G. L. Howard Wanted for Alleged Auto Theft in Deseronto Surrenders

City Water Free From Germs, Says Health Official

Do not be afraid of the city water during these dog days. It is healthful beverage, free from germs, and the safest liquid imaginable with which to quench thirst. This despite the fact that it tastes very weedy-like, and looks muddy.

Yes, the last report which has been received from the analysts at Toronto (and this is the report that will be sent to the analyst weekly) the water was reported as being free from bacteria. Similar reports for Monday has resulted from the city water this morning, according to a statement of Dr. S. Cronk, M.O.H., who declares that the city water is safer than well water as it is difficult to keep tab on well water.

Recently, however, the department assisted city officials that additional chlorine should be added to the water. This has been done and that accounts for the strong taste to the water.

Former Belleville Boy in West Wounded in War "Carries On"

(Regina Daily Post)

"Devotion to duty" that phrase that on the battlefield gains many an honor, is exemplified by W. C. Bonnard of the Collegiate Institute staff who taught his class from a sick bed. A veteran of the world war still suffering severely from the effects of shock and gas he continues to "carry-on."

He is head of the motor- mechanics department of the institute but has been handicapped, by a recurrence of his injuries, for over six weeks. While under medical attention he has attended to his duties and last Friday and Saturday when in bed he held in the boys of his class grouped around his bedside heard him continue his lectures and took notes as usual.

While and ill, and suffering considerable pain he was able to give his instruction on the intricacies of the automobile.

Yesterday, however, he really did take a rest and to fittingly mark the occasion went under the surgeon's knife at the General Hospital. He is said to have passed through the ordeal very well and last night the report was that he was resting easily. Possibly now he is in for an enforced rest for some time. It is not conceivable that the hospital authorities would welcome his class there, as a whole. But there seems to be no doubt that only strong necessity will keep him to his bed.

Mr. Bongard has been an instructor at the Collegiate for three years, having come here from Kingston, Ont.

The W. C. Bongard referred to in the above is a former Belleville boy and is now overseas from here.

MEMBERS OF BRITISH EMPIRE FORESTRY PARTY ENJOY TRIP

Bathurst, N.B., Aug. 1.—Breakfast on the Canadian National Railway special train, carrying the British Empire Forestry conference through Northern New Brunswick was provided yesterday morning by Major-General Lord Lavat, Chairman of the conference and Sir James Calder, G.B.E., delegate from the United Kingdom. These two distinguished delegates were among those entertained by the Matapedia Salmon Club, while the remainder of the conference were accepting Mr. Pitts' hospitality. They craved to be skilful fishermen and returned with their first salmon. The other members of the fishing party caught nothing, but had a good time nevertheless. At the breakfast which was entertaining this small delegation from the conference, the remainder continued on the train to Campbellton where they were met at the station by Premier Veniot and numerous prominent citizens.

Premier Veniot spoke a few words of welcome and the party was then divided into groups each visiting different mills in the district. The party left Campbellton at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and proceeded by special train over the Canadian National Railways to Quebec, where they were met by Mayor W. J. Kent and a number of prominent citizens. The afternoon was spent visiting various lumber and pulp mills and on this evening the conference was banqueted at the Gitzcester Hotel. A very representative gathering of prominent New Brunswick men attended the banquet, speeches being made by Premier Veniot, Mayor Kent, Lord Lovat and other overseas delegates to the conference. Following the banquet the party returned to the train which was parked at the station they spent the night in their sleeping quarters. This morning they motored to Chatham and Newcastle where extensive preparations were made for their entertainment. The delegates are much pleased with the reception they have received throughout their tour of Eastern Canada and with the excellent arrangements made for their comfort and convenience by the Canadian National Railways. They have been very greatly impressed by the vastness of the forest resources of this section of the Dominion and by the precautions which the various provincial governments in co-operation with the lumber industries are taking to preserve these resources. St. John, Fredericton and Grand Falls are to be visited before the conference leaves over the Canadian National Railways to Quebec City on Friday next.

WHITBY CLERK REFUSES TO QUIT

Population of Fair Town Divided by Administration Impasse

COUNCIL RAPPED

Matter May be Threshed Out at Meeting on Monday Night

Whitby, Aug. 1.—Whitby is in the throes of excitement over a crisis that has arisen in municipal affairs, but it is not true, as reported, that it is now without civic officials.

Some of the members of the council are after the scalp of the town clerk and treasurer, A. W. Jackson, and have asked him to resign. As a result the population is divided into two camps, one for the official and the other for Mayor R. N. Bassett, leading the majority to the council seeking the clerk's dismissal.

The council has called for applications for the position, but Mr. Jackson has refused to resign, declaring that if the work has accumulated as charged, he has not enough assistance, and should be supplied with a competent bookkeeper.

The clerk's adherents held a public meeting for the purpose of asking the clerk's resignation, but nothing came of it. At this meeting members of the council were warmly criticised for their action, and were severely dragged forth on evidence of their incompetence. The meeting broke up in wild confusion.

What the outcome will be cannot be predicted at present. There is some talk of burying the hatchet, but the affair seems to have gone too far for that. The council will meet next Monday night to take final action on the matter, and some excitement is anticipated.

Urges Caution by Crown Attorneys in Anti-Betting Cases

The following communication was sent to Acting Crown Attorney Donnan by Deputy Attorney-General Bayley, relative to the Betting Information Act of 1923:

"Most newspapers published and some magazines have expressed such an intention to co-operate with this Government in securing respect for those acts, and reports have been made for leave to submit papers to this department for approval.

"For obvious reasons the department cannot assume this responsibility. It is, however, undesirable that information should be withheld from the laid, and prosecutions take place against publishers that are observing the law.

"I desire, therefore, to impress upon you the necessity of your making special distinction between publications that are in conformity with the law and those that are not, and that before the publications very carefully before advising that prosecutions be launched.

Crown attorneys throughout the province should consider each case on its merits, that the evil which the Betting Information Act aims at may be eradicated without undue number of prosecutions. It must be remembered that the papers may in one case conform to the law and in another violate it, so that constant scrutiny will be necessary from time to time with regard to the various publications offered for sale.

"Where either of these acts is being violated, particularly where there is a flagrant disregard for the provisions of the law, it is desired not only that prosecutions shall be actively pressed, but that the constant violat or shall be prosecuted for each offence."

Standard Bank Reduces Dividend And Reserve Fund

The local Manager of The Standard Bank of Canada, Mr. John Elliott, when interviewed in reference to the reduced Dividend and Reserve Fund recently made by that bank, gave the following information:

Owing to the continued tough times throughout the Dominion, the bank finds it necessary to reduce its dividend to stockholders from 14 to 12 per cent, and the Reserve Account from $4,000,000 to $3,750,000. Of the reduction in the reserve $1,250,000 was used to make liberal provision for meeting any losses which the bank may sustain during the past twelve months, a Reserve Fund of $2,500,000 is now considered sufficient for the purpose, which has now arisen, the bank now finds itself in a position to provide for losses incurred without in any way impairing the ability to depositors and interfering with the efficiency of the bank in the conduct of its general business. As Mr. Elliott has been in the service of the Standard Bank since the year 1895, he has watched with interest the growth of the institution, as in 1905 the bank had only seven branches, today over 160 are in operation. The total assets in 1905 did not exceed $3,205,000 while the Reserve Fund was only $60,000. Total at $4,000,000 and Reserve Fund of $5,000,000. At today's date, after provision has been made for all known losses, and $1,000,000 placed in a Contingency Account, the Paid Capital remains at $4,000,000 and the Reserves ... $3,750,000 Its supreme Account ... $1,000,000

Making a total in these three accounts as security for depositors of ... $7,750,000 as compared with the combined Capital and Reserve of less than $9,500,000 when The Standard Bank was opened in Belleville in September 1906.

While it is to be regretted that any reduction in Reserve was found necessary, it is reassuring to know that the Standard Bank of Canada has weathered throughout the Dominion of Canada, and in the East or Quittle district in particular, will not in any way be curtailed and the customers dealing at the Belleville Branch of this bank may be assured that the same courteous treatment and liberal accommodation they have received during the past seventeen years will be continued.

Year	Assets	Total Deposit	Capital Paid	Reserve	Dividend
1905	3,205,000	2,191,000	700,000	60,000	6%
1908	17,750,000	13,150,000	1,100,000	1,394,000	10%
1923	73,700,000	67,000,000	4,000,000	3,000,000	14%
1923	80,000,000 (June 30)

Year	Capital Paid	Reserve	Reserve	Account
1923	4,000,000	3,750,000	4,750,000	1,000,000
1906	1,184,000	1,284,000	2,468,000	7,750,000
			5,220,000

To which may be added (in Suspense Account)

Making in all an increase in Surplus Capital and Suspense Account of ... Over that shown in 1906 when The Standard Bank of Canada opened its Belleville Branch.

AUTO-SUGGESTION.

There is an old newspaper proverb about a superstition—to the effect that when any event of major importance occurs, two similar events will follow in rapid succession. Of course, exceptions to the rule have been invented, but so often has the truth of the proverb been demonstrated that it persists as an axiom in certain newspaper circles.

Yet, like all phenomena which savor of the super-natural, the apparent cogency of the proverb can be logically attributed to natural causes. A psychological influence, which is very important, impellent factor in the lives of human beings psychologists have discovered and labelled auto-suggestion. It is to the influence that they attribute repetition of incidents due to human volition. They remind you that when a murder, or robbery, for instance, is committed and the details of the crime are published, similar deeds are suggested to susceptible minds. Usually when this occurs, the details of the original crime are faithfully followed out. This has occurred with such astonishing frequency that, in the case of suicides, many newspapers do not publish the details, fearing that other persons may be influenced to imitate the action in the original tragedy. Of course there are other events which are purely acts of "providence." Repetitions of such events is merely coincidence.

Upon the former premise we may reasonably anticipate another bandit robbery in Ontario. And the influence of the apparent success of the Toronto incident must not be overlooked.

With these two impellent forces to stimulate criminal activity it is behooves the guardians of society to exercise special precautions.

THROUGH OTHERS' EYES.

"Familiarity breeds contempt," said the sage a great many years ago and there is an abundant confirmation of the fact that he knew whereof he spoke.

We are, all of us, prone to discount the importance or value of that which is familiar to us. Resources, the productions of our factories, our civic improvements—all these are common to our every-day existence and for this reason we cannot fully appreciate them.

Strangers, naturally, view these possessions or advantages through a truer lense. They note the evidences of remarkable industrial activity and its concrete results, where we see only commonplace routine; they are impressed by plants, equipment and natural resources, while sometimes we are constrained to offer excuses for their insignificance; the strangers are the moralizers; we are the mole hills.

Now, since a community which seeks to develop must attract outsiders, it follows that those strangers are the persons to whom we should advertise our advantages and attractions. It is they to whom we should look to "sell ourselves."

Obviously we cannot conveniently bring our prospects to us in sufficient numbers. This is the function of that great economic and industrial institution, the "industrial exhibition."

The Canadian National Exhibition held annually in Toronto is the greatest of its kind in North America and the greatest in the world. There the warns and the attractive features of every section of Canada are displayed to great multitudes, the greater percentage of whom could be reached in no other way.

Belleville proposes to display her wares and attractions and those of her district at the Exhibition this coming Fall. Space has been secured and a number of manufacturers have announced their intention of co-operating in the undertaking.

It is proposed to display the natural products of this district, the potentialities and its possibilities, faithfully and sensibly. As a projection of this display advantage is the financial and individual advertising the various manufactures of the city and district will be shown.

In addition to the effectiveness of the display per se, the psychological effect of the concentration of these highly advantageous to Belleville and the surrounding District.

There is another aspect which should not be overlooked. Many natives who are not now noticeably imbued with civic pride and who view the exhibit are likely to return more deeply impressed with the importance of their home town.

WHEN THE FAMOUS MARRY

(Muskegon Chronicle)

When two famous people marry the paper always tells you whose former mates they were.

WAGES OF ROBBERS.

(London Advertiser)

Four automobiles visited Galt recently and carried the safe out of the Lake Erie and Northern Railway office.

Taking it to the bank of a creek, they rolled it down, and at the bottom worked in vain with a crowbar trying to open the strongbox.

In the end they failed and their foolish night's work netted them nothing at all except the certain knowledge that the men who built the safe knew his business.

If these four huskies would put the same amount of energy into legitimate daylight effort that they employ on lawless night robbery they would find the returns greater, sweeter and more wholesome.

NOT MUCH ENCOURAGEMENT.

(Woodstock Sentinel Review)

It does not appear that there is any great rush confidently or latisfaction in the world today than there was before the war. There is nothing to show that we are any more active today than it has been for some years; but certainly there is not much ground for encouragement in the situation of the world as it is today.

TEACHERS WILL MARRY

(The Australasian.

Marriages are made in heaven—though heaven isn't always made by marriages. Even heaven itself—not to mention the parties to its celestial contracts—must, in future, how, per be permitted to conduct its designs in defiance of the minister for education in New South Wales.

That gentleman complaints that some girl teachers, after being given four years' course in the training college, and getting degrees in arts and sciences have "gone and got married" without the slightest regard for their agreement to give service in exchange for their training. The department makes them bonders, and heaven makes them brides, so the department has nothing to show for all its enterprise but broken contracts and lumps of wedding cake. So in future the minister says that he will hold by his bond even unto the limit of heartbreak, and if any gentleman wants a bride from his department he must pay for her perfections.

VAE VICTIS.

In the pool by the bridge you were wont to lie
Boasting aloud to the smaller fry
That ever nor wish you would defy.
I fished so long, but you came not nigh;
My choice casts you'd scornfully eye,
And then you rose unwarily!

Do you hear the stream, as it murmurs by,
Telling the willows and bullrushes nigh?
What does the wind in the tall trees sigh?
Listen and learn, oh! soon to die.
What little things may be treacherey—

A gossamer gut and a gaudy fly!

There was once a conscientious dealer in eggs (spelled he a Scotchman) who discovered that in a consignment dispatched to a local bigwig he had included one more than the proper number. So he went to the big wig to explain matters and recover his property. The squire laughingly suggested that it was hardly worth bothering about, but the dealer was firm. At last he quite said: "You may be right and you may be wrong. Let's forget it. Have a drink—anything you like—and we'll call it quits. What is it to be?" "Thank you kindly, sir," said the dealer, "I'll take an egg and milk."

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"Hurry up, Patricia (if you may, think better of it," she cried to her reflection in the glass. "This is a race with misfortune."

Going downstairs quietly she went to the telephone.

"Gerrard 40000," she called, conscious that both her voice and her voice and her knees were unsteady.

After what seemed an age there came the reply. "Quadrant Hotel."

"Is Lord Peter Bowen in?" she enquired. "Thank you," she added in response to the clerk's promise to enquire.

Her hand was shaking. She almost dropped the receiver. He must be out, she told herself, after what seemed to her an age of waiting. If he were in they would be found him. Perhaps he has already started for——

"Who is that?" it was Bowen's voice.

Patricia felt she could sing. So he had not gone! Would her knees play her false and cheat her?

"It's——me," she said, regardless of grammar.

"That's delightful; but who is me?" came the response.

No wonder women liked him if he spoke like that to them, she decided. Suddenly she realised that even she herself could not recognise as her own the voice with which she was speaking.

"Patricia," she said.

"Patricia!" there was astonishment, almost incredulity in his voice. So Elton had said nothing.

"Where are you, and are you?"

Patricia felt her cheeks burn at the cagerness of his tone.

"I—I'm going out. I—I'll call for you if you like," she stammered.

"I say, how ripping of you. Come in a taxi and we'll have tea and fetch you."

"No I—I'm coming now, I'm——then she put up the receiver. What was she going to do—or say? For a moment she swayed. Was she going to faint? A momentary deadly sickness seemed to overpower her. She fought it back fiercely. She must get to the Quadrant. "I shall have to be a part of reincarnation of Mrs. Trigg, I think," she murmured as she staggered past the astonished doorman. He was just coming from the lounge and out of the front door, where she secured a taxi.

THE GREATEST INDISCRETION

In the vestibule of the Quadrant Hotel, Paul, looking a veritable colossus of negation. As Patricia approached he bowed and led the way to the lift. As it slid upwards Patricia wondered if Paul could hear the thumping of her heart, and if so, what he thought of it. She followed him along the carpeted corridor conscious of a mad desire to turn and fly. What could Paul do? Rise wonderful. Possibly in the madness of the moment his mantle of discretion might fall from him, and he would dash after

Disease Germs Doomed
Many have lost terrors for the Scientist
The progress of recent years in medical research is little short of marvellous. Daily, new cures are being discovered. Daily, new ones are being discovered, isolated and exterminated by the march of medicine.
Science is winning. What were once regarded as serious diseases are now laughed out of countenance by the doctors. Fearlessly they plunge naked hands into the centre of them, their only precaution being to rinse their hands afterwards with a reliable germicidal preparation. We are witnessing the birth of an era when the world will have little to fear from microbes.
Absorbine Jr., besides being the all-purpose liniment that removes pain and soreness, and hastens healing, is a powerful antiseptic that is death to the microbe world.
Absorbine Jr. is just what is needed in the home for the use of accidents and to correct the many little household hurts that constantly occur. $1.25, at your druggist.

EVERY SPORT AT A GLANCE

PROSPECTS FOR INTERMEDIATE HOCKEY TEAM HERE ARE BRIGHT

Prospects are bright for a first-class Intermediate hockey team in Belleville next winter, the team will play under the colours of the Belleville Amateur Athletic Association and will be managed by Ed. A. Thomas, prominent and popular local sportsman. Mr. Thomas handled the local teams for many years and knows the game from A to Z. He is certainly the right man in the right place. Mr. Thomas promises that Belleville will be represented by one of the strongest teams in some years. It will be made up of home-brew players who have lived and learned the game in Belleville.

"Doc" Whalen has signified his intention of turning out and donning the skates once again. Whalen was always a prominent hockeyist until last year when he decided to retire. The fans of the game hate to see him go but "Doc" will be found at his old position next winter. It is welcome news to local fans who have always valued his worth as a player.

"Slim" Green another Belleville boy will be found among the candidates. Bill has played in Belleville for upwards of ten years on the Intermediate and Junior teams. He was a versatile player sometimes playing the position most sometimes anywhere. He was always a gritty boy and ran into a heap of hard luck. He is a great defence player and although not heavily built he can deal of the stiffest kind of body checks.

Besides the above players we have last years team intact with the exception of "Frosty" and "Bouncer" Holway, who have located in Brockville. "Bunny" Prechette, "Soup" Gorrell, "Stan" Hagerman, "Verne" Weir, "Lin" Crook, "Al" Swayze, "Bill" Canning, "Hank" Pent and others are still located in Belleville and are available for the local team.

The above mentioned are all first-class boys and the team should certainly not suffer for lack of material. "Pat" Boland the veteran goaler will be found among the aspirants for net-guardian position. Both he and Crook are good goal-keepers.

The Teller of a local bank have played with Deloro and can handle a hockey stick with no mean ability we are informed.

The Junior team should be well fortified with the majority of last year's youngsters still eligible.

BUNIONS

Perhaps you have often wondered what was in that big red lump called a bunion which you find at the inner side of the joint of the big toe where it meets the bone of the sole of the foot.

You see Nature has put a little bag of water over that joint for protection. If this little bag of water gets irritated it swells up and forms the painful lump that is called a bunion.

Now if you could go barefooted always, you'd never have a bunion because it is caused in nearly every case by tight, poorly fitting shoes.

The number of these cases reported for army service was very large indeed.

You see a tight shoe particularly one with a pointed toe, not only presses on this little water bag but actually forces the big toe outward against the other toes. This pressure causes an inflammation which is usually very painful. The fluid increases in amount in the little bag, and every step is accompanied by a throbbing pain. Sometimes three cases go on to an actual formation of pus in the joint.

Now, what about it?

Well, why ever allow it to get a start in your feet or in those of your youngsters?

There's only one thing to do and that is to use common sense in the selection of shoes for yourself and children. It isn't necessary to wear uncouth looking shoes. There are plenty of sensible but well fitting styles plenty of room and yet are neat

Standard Bank's Good Position

Toronto, Aug. 1.—The board of directors of the Standard Bank of Canada, in a notice going forward to shareholders, announces a plan for a re-adjustment of the assets of the bank. Certain losses in commercial accounts and to customers of long standing have occurred within the past six months and steps have been taken to cover the losses and ensure the institution's sound financial position. The advisability of carrying out the plan has been suggested by the continuation of the business depression which has so severely affected the operations and standing of some of the customers and accounts of the bank.

C. H. Easson, the general manager, is retiring. N. L. McLeod has been appointed to the position of general manager and N. C. Stephens and G. N. Brown have been appointed assistant general managers.

In order to effectively meet the financial situation, the directors recommend dropping on the large reserves of the bank for an amount of $1,250,000 and suggest further the creation of a contingent fund of $1,000,000. The bank will then have a reserve of $5,750,000, a contingent fund of $1,000,000 and a Paid-up Capital, of $4,000,000.

As regards the dividend policy the board of the future may have conditions should be on the more conservative basis of 12 per cent. in place of 16 per cent. and to retain that any additional distribution should take the form of bonuses from time to time.

FAIR WEATHER GREETS RACERS

Slightly Dull Skies and Light South Wind Cause Slight Ripple

(By Staff Reporter)

Massassaga Park, Aug. 1.—Slightly dull skies, and a light southeast wind which causes a slight ripple on the placid waters of the Bay of Quinte, was the weatherman's greetings to yachtsmen who have congregated here from every city and town on both Canadian and American sides of Lake Ontario. The bay this morning, as well as the harbor off Victoria Park at Belleville, was dotted with the numerous yachts, spic and span, sails furled, and riding at anchor. And they are all here for the monster Lake Yacht Racing Association regatta which began here this morning at 10.30 and which will continue until Friday evening. Motor boat races commenced here at 10.30 a.m., but the sailing races did not get under way until 1.30 p.m., standard time, when the L.Y.R.A. schedule opens, and the Regatta is away strong.

Power boats were shooting to and fro between city and park, transporting supplies and completing the last minute details of the big week's program. One power boat glided into the harbor at Belleville under power and a large spread of sails. Power boats are here from as far east as Montreal.

During the latter part of the forenoon the snow-white yachts began to spread their wings, and tack down to the Park, from where they rested at anchor on the bay during the night. At 11 a.m. Old Sol beamed forth spasmodically, and gave great promise of another fine day among the many that have been enjoyed, as it played upon the snow-white sails and the carefully scrubbed, shining hulls and

FAIR WEATHER

Spelled success to the racing boats. The steamer Brockville, which had been chartered by the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, and which was supposed to have been chief transportation medium between the park here and the city, unfortunately broke down on Tuesday, and every effort is being made to make repairs in order that she may be pressed into service this afternoon.

Commodore F. Wills of the R.Q.Y.C. when seen by The Intelligencer this morning was of course unable to state definitely when the steamer would be up-to-par. Everyone whom repairs are being made.

By 12 o'clock noon all racing craft had reached the park and the little harbor was a mecca for brightly colored yachts which sway to and fro in the gentle breeze, all "ashore to go." Lovers of the race are arriving every few minutes in power boats, and all clouds have disappeared. Old sailors here characterize the day as being ideal for the races, there being a very satisfactory breeze blowing.

Members of the Fox motion picture organization are here getting motion pictures of the fleet in action, the officials and the general scenery as they did recently at the St. Catharines regatta.

Good Health
Secret of Beauty

Beauty lies in the care a woman bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ailments peculiar to her sex, which drag her down and leave telltale traces upon her countenance. Sparkling eyes, the elastic step and a clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. Distressed expressions, a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, insitude, headache, and mental depression, are the telltale symptoms of women's ailments. Women so troubled should not lose a day in taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, the most successful remedy known to overcome woman's ills and restore health and beauty.

Harding Has Pneumonia Now

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—President Harding was better yesterday morning. A good night's rest—the first since he became ill—has caused his personal physician, Dr. Charles Sawyer, to issue an optimistic statement on the President's condition, ending a night of anxiety caused by unfavorable developments of the previous evening.

The President lay gravely ill yesterday, battling against one complication, including a touch of pneumonia, that set in during the night.

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning, all was silent in Mr. Harding's sick chamber and those who waited anxiously outside took this as a hopeful sign that the president might be sleeping, gaining strength for the bitter struggle he is making against death.

The president's five physicians gathered in his sick room early yesterday to mark the progress of the battle.

From their morning examination of the president and subsequent consultation, word was expected which would tell a waiting nation whether Mr. Harding's will, aided by agencies of science, was winning.

Mr. W. R. Russels spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Weakitt at Shannonville.

OFFICIAL GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Controller Thomas Foster was fined $20 and costs in police court yesterday afternoon by Magistrate Cohen for his assault on Ald. Dr. C. A. Hodgetts-Vicars, member from the city council on July 12, following a debate in council.

Mr. Foster pleaded guilty to a "technical" assault, and pleaded extenuating circumstances.

"A man and his standing should know better than to do such a thing" was the comment of Mr. Cohen.

"He has no right either in Council or out of it to put his hands on another member," he added, "unless personal encounter occurred. I would hope to see the two members shake hands and be as brothers, but I have my duty to do, and the fine will be $20 and costs."

"It was worth it, your worship," laughed T. L. Church, M.P., who acted as counsel for the accused controller.

But Mr. Church had evidently not heard what the amount of the fine was a moment later, after a brief consultation with Mr. Foster, he turned to the magistrate. He had discovered that the fine was the maximum allowed by the law for such an offence.

"That is a very heavy fine, your worship," he said, "I would ask you to reconsider that fine, and make it less. It is the highest fine you can impose."

The magistrate paid little heed to his plea and was about to go on with the next case.

"We can appeal, your worship," intimated Mr. Church.

"All right, appeal if you want to," said the bench.

Then the Foster counsel made a demand on the magistrate that Ald. Risk should be bound over to keep the peace.

"This should be a lesson to council," said T. L. "I would ask your roundsip to bind over Dr. Risk to keep the peace." He repeated this request a number of times.

But Mr. Cohen was not doing any binding today. He was through with the case. That's all I have to do with it," he said.

Another case was then taken on while Mr. Church again conferred with his client and then produced $20 and the costs, and paid the clerk.

Asked later as to whether there would be an appeal against Mr. Foster's fine he did not know. "Mr. Church has been talking about it," was all he would say.

W. J. B. Foster confirmed his complainant's case.

Readjustment of Accounts Standard Bank of Canada

DIRECTORS ANNOUNCE PLAN OF DRAWING ON CAPITAL RESERVE TO PROVIDE FOR CHANGES IN DIVIDEND POLICY.

The Board of Directors of The Standard Bank of Canada, in a notice going forward to shareholders, announce a plan for a readjustment of the assets of the Bank. The advisability of carrying out the plan has been suggested by the continuation of the business and agricultural depression, which has so severely affected the operations and standing of some of the customers of the Bank.

In order to effectively meet the situation, the Directors recommend drawing on the large Reserves of the Bank for an amount of $1,250,000 and suggest further the creation of a contingent fund, of $1,000,000. The Bank will then have a Reserve of $2,750,000, a contingent fund of $1,000,000 and a Paid-up Capital of $4,000,000.

As regards the dividend policy the Board suggests that future distributions should be on the more conservative basis of 12%, in place of the present 14% and that any additional distribution should take the form of bonuses from time to time.

In banking circles this action on the part of the bank, which places it in an absolutely sound position, is much commended and considered that it will do much to inspire confidence in our Canadian banking system.

Music & Drama

EXPOSE OF NARCOTIC GANGS MADE IN THE DRAMATIC SENSATION "THE GREATEST MENACE."

No doubt the readers have heard all about the illegal traffic in drugs that is going on between Canada and the United States and American cities and what bitter fights are waged against it by the authorities in an effort to stamp it out completely. Men and women have died in great agony from the use of drugs, which without the narcotic organized systems are not only smuggling drugs into Canada and the United States but the distributing of them to the many addicts that are their consumers.

One of the biggest and most complete films ever screened that exposes the drug rings from start to finish is entitled "The Greatest Menace." This powerful film tells a most entertaining and thrilling love story in addition to bobbing up the drug traffic to light. It is being exhibited for the last time at Griffin's tonight.

An excellent cast interprets the different roles and includes Ann Little, Robert Gordon, Wilfred Lucas, Hatty Northrup, Jack Livingston and Rhea Mitchell.

Fox News, a Vodevil Movies and "Babyhood", a very entertaining reel, are also being exhibited.

RICHARD DIX AND LEATRICE JOY AT REGENT TONIGHT

"In your utter thoughtlessness, sacrificing everything for success, you have robbed me of my children! —and I wanted them so. Children that would press their warm, little bodies against mine—babies whose souls and minds would grow before my eyes. You've robbed me! You've robbed me!"

They were rich. They had reached their goal. But the rich are sometimes poor, and happiness is not always a matter of money.

The story of "Poverty of Riches", which is being exhibited at the Regent theatre tonight, is intimately connected with the relations between husband and wife in this modern age. Leatrice Joy, Richard Dix, Lester Lowdly, John Bowers, Irene Rich, Frankie Lee and others of the unusual cast give inspired performances.

A Sunshine comedy, "Movie Chats and the second chapter of Universal stunt serial, "The Eagle's Talons," will also be exhibited on the same program.

BEBE DANIELS AND ANTONIO MORENO IN THRILL PICTURE

"Come down to earth!"

As expressions especially applicable in the case of Ronnie Rand, played by Bebe Daniels, co-stared with Antonio Moreno in the Paramount picture, "The Exciters," which is due for a run of three days, with a matinee Saturday, commencing today.

Miss Daniels as Ronnie Rand, a typical example of the modern girl, seems to take a great delight in leaving mother earth as far behind as possible. To accomplish this, Ronnie, to the annoyance of her parents, forces into service a number of power boats and airplanes, either from her own resources or those loaned by admiring friends.

GLADYS WALTON HERE TOMORROW IN "A TOWN SCANDAL"

An expose of a small town Purity League by a chorus girl gives food for action. In "The Town Scandal," Universal attraction, starring Gladys Walton, which will be shown at the Regent theatre tomorrow to Saturday, with a matinee daily, there's an element of humor that extends from beginning to end. It is the story of a Broadway girl who comes a certain Pierre Martel, a supposed crook, who is in reality a secret service agent, thus employed for the same reason that Ronnie employs speed wagons—for excitement. Antonio Moreno plays this role to perfection. It is at the first meeting of this pair, that the love interest of the story is brought to life. Their marriage in dramatic circumstances follows and then comes an unexpected climax. The picture is definitely entertaining and is said to have exceptional heart appeal.

A two-reel comedy titled "Smarty," William Desmond in the Fourth chapter of "The Phantom Fortune" serial, and a Kinogram, being exhibited on the same program with the above feature offering.

hind the footlights of a Broadway theatre to a small town newspaper career.

The chorus girl writes a series of stories of her experiences which involves several of the leading citizens in a near scandal. She doesn't mention any names, but tramps heavily on the toes of the old boys' and the resultant action is a riot.

A Canoe Comedy, Pathe News, and Mutt and Jeff, a Fairy comedy have been arranged for exhibition on the same program.

Document Prepared by Board of License Commissioners Revealing

COMMITMENTS LESS

Traffic in Liquor Still Voluminous—Large Quantity Consumed.

The effects of the enactment of the prohibition law and the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act are reflected in the statistics of the Bellevile district contained in the recent report of the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario.

In the year 1911, the report shows there were 92 commitments to the Belleville gaol for drunkenness. In 1919 the number rose to 110 and dropped to 22 in 1917. In 1918 there were only two commitments. 1919, four and 1920, the number rose to 18. In 1921 and 1922 the number for each year was three.

Fines imposed under the Ontario Temperance Act paid to the municipality of Belleville from April 30, 1920, (2 April 30, 1921, totalled $9,979.50. The fines under the Act paid to the municipality amounted to $3,310.00, a noticeable reduction.

The total number of commitments in the province, according to the records, were 3,710 in 1921 and 3,423 in 1922. The net decrease in commitments during the year 1922 was 1,295. Twelve cities and towns showed a total increase of 87. London showed the largest increase from 150 in 1921 to 200 in 1922. Toronto showed a decrease of 337. St. Sidbury's commitments dropped from 782 in 1921 to 198 in 1922.

The change in the revenue, shown by License District reports, from $811,087.56 in 1921, to $272,437.56 shows an appreciable decline in the unpopularity of liquor. Yet the total revenue for 1919—1920, $270,767.14, tends to offset this report. Again the suggestion of unpopularity of liquor in the province is revived by the difference in the sale of medicinal liquor in the years, 1921 and 1922. The figures are, for 1921, $677,697.50 and for 1922: $456,293.80. The figures for the year 1919-1920, was $573,576.29.

The number of prescriptions issued in 1922 was 652,314 as compared to 820,466 for 1921 and 650,553 for 1920. The lowest figure for 1921 is attributed to fixing of a maximum of 50 prescriptions per month for dispensaries "coupled possibly with continuance of beverage importations up to July 15, 1921, after which a gradual rise took place in sympathy with depletion of private stocks."

Prescription per orders received also show a decrease from 729,947 in 11 months of 1920 to 708,944 in 11 months of 1922. The report states: "An increase is noticeable in the mail order business of dispensaries, attributable probably to diminution of private stocks of liquor in residence, the daily average of shipments having increased to 633 in the calendar year 1922 from 226 in 1921."

In the subject of prescriptions the report says: "It is the duty of the Board to see that no liquor is supplied by the dispensaries for beverage purposes, that is well-known, however, that much of the liquor prescribed is really obtained by the patient, so-called, for his own purpose." A certain class of druggists is exposed. "There are some drug stores that are little better than bar rooms, but the proprietors display great cunning in covering up their guilt."

The sale of patent and proprietary medicines containing large percentages of alcohol due to abuses which it is difficult to punish."

Elsewhere, dealing with brewers and distillers, the chairman of the Board James Hales, says:

"There is a considerable demand for liquor for manufacturing and scientific purposes, and if brewers and distillers would limit their sales to these permitted uses there would be no cause for complaint. Under Dominion law they are permitted to export their liquors to other countries and to Provinces which permit importation. It might well be expected that the prohibition laws of the United States would be respected by our brewers and distillers. Not so however. Many of these gentlemen deliberately supply liquor which they well know is either to be smuggled into the United States in direct violation of the laws of that country, or is to be illegally distributed in the Province of Ontario. Most of our efforts to check the traffic through the courts have been unsuccessful. Ex-

Throngs Assemble To Do Honor To Hon. J. R. Cooke

Many Notables of Province Present at Stirling Picnic in Honor of Hydro Minister in Ferguson Cabinet

There is no disputing the statement that the most popular man in North Hastings if not in Hastings County is the Hon. J. R. Cooke, who represents the northern riding in the Ontario Legislature. It was freely predicted during the recent Provincial election campaign that if the Conservative party led by the Hon. Mr. Ferguson was returned to power Bob Cooke as he is familiarly called would be made a cabinet minister and such proved to be the case. He is with Sir Adam Beck a responsible one as the Hydro Head. His personality and system is such as to win for him many true and lasting friends.

The many friends of the minister in North Hastings decided in some manner to recognize the honor which had been conferred upon the riding by selecting their representative as a member of the cabinet, and a picnic was decided upon. Stirling was the picnic for our Bob. It was held in the Stirling Agricultural Park on Wednesday and proved to be the success it was anticipated it would be. It is estimated that during the afternoon upwards of 4,000 persons were upon the grounds. All sections of Hastings County were represented and a few of those present being from Belleville. Those who had the affair in hand let no stone be unturned to make the success which attended their efforts. Many prominent citizens such as M. F. Hall, Reeve and Councillors from various municipalities were to be seen mingling with the crowd. Amusements, such as baseball etc., were provided, whilst suitable music was provided by the military band of Belleville. It is not every day we have a gathering. At noon and evening meals were served in the spacious exhibition hall, by the ladies of Stirling and many partook of the good things provided.

HON. J. R. COOKE, M.P.P.
Member of Hydro Commission, who was the guest of honor at a monster picnic at Stirling yesterday.

In the afternoon a platform meeting was held in the grove upon the grounds and speech making was held in order for some hours. The meeting had been erected and appropriately decorated with flags and bunting and Mr. C. B. Maguire, Reeve of the village presided over the gathering, which listened most attentively to the various speakers, all of whom spoke eulogistically of Hon. Mr. Cooke and his worthiness as a representative.

THE CHAIRMAN.

Mr. C. B. Maguire, Reeve of Stirling village in a few well chosen remarks referred to the occasion which was for purposes of honor to the minister honor was done. This gathering was for the purpose of honoring the worthy representative in the Legislature the Hon. J. R. Cooke, who was returned for North Hastings by a large majority. In selecting his cabinet Hon. Howard Ferguson selected Mr. Cooke as one of his cabinet ministers. This should be a day of rejoicing. Mr. Cooke was the first cabinet minister from the Legislature in Hastings County since Confederation.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville, was the first speaker. His remarks were brief. He was present on this occasion to say a few words for the Hon. J. R. Cooke, a gentleman who was returned for North Hastings by a large majority. In selecting his cabinet Hon. Howard Ferguson selected Mr. Cooke as one of his cabinet ministers. This should be a day of rejoicing. Mr. Cooke was the first cabinet minister from the Legislature in Hastings County since Confederation.

MINISTER OF MINES

Hon. Chas. McCrea Minister of Mines was the next speaker and in his opening remarks spoke in glowing terms of the Hon. J. R. Cooke, the tribute paid him today and the tribute paid him on 25th of June is not without merit as he is worthy of all the honor that could be bestowed upon him.

Those associated with "Bob," as we want to call him, know his worth, and the Prime Minister Hon. Howard Ferguson regretted his inability to be present to honor him, (the speaker) to present his congratulations to the people of North Hastings in regarding Mr. Cooke as their representative. Hon. Mr. Cooke was as it were, an anchor of the cabinet.

The gathering today was a non-political gathering when such a gathering feature. The present government is desirous of giving to the people of

CLEVELAND FIRM TO LOCATE HERE

Marvel Equipment Company of Ohio, to Establish Branch Plant

LARGE CONCERN

To Produce Oil and Grease Pumps & Gasoline Handling Equipment

There is nb slopping Belleville's industrial progress. Another large American manufacturing organization has decided that our city is the logical location for the establishment of their Canadian branch.

The latest addition to our wealth of factories is the Marvel Equipment Company, of Cleveland, Ohio. The documents are signed, sealed and delivered and the actual manufacturing will commence here in less than a month's time. Negotiations have been pending for several weeks past but it was only yesterday that Messrs. J. G. Williams and S. H. Prendergast, principals of the firm, finally concluded arrangements for entrance into the Canadian field.

The Marvel Equipment Company is at present operating on the lands in its Cleveland factory. The company is engaged in the manufacture of oil and grease pumps, and gasoline handling equipment. They supply more than fifty-five per cent. of the needs of the United States in regard to those lines. They also manufacture steel drums and containers for gasoline, oil and alcohol. The latter will eventually be turned out at the Belleville plant but the pumps will be the first to be put upon the Canadian market.

Temporary quarters for manufacture have been secured on the main floor of the Graham building where it is expected that manufacture will be under partial way about the 20th of the present month.

To Mr. R. J. Graham, to whom our city has been so long and so deeply indebted for its industrial activity, must be accorded the credit for having brought the present negotiations to a successful issue. To Mr. R. Bowsome, general manager of Alemite Products, Ltd., must be accorded the additional credit for having interested the firm in Canadian development as well as assisting in subsequent negotiations.

The new firm has already shown that it is part of Belleville for today it announced the leasing of the entire space in Belleville's collective industrial display at the Canadian National Exhibition, where a complete line of their products will be shown.

The Marvel Equipment Company is the latest industry to find a home in Belleville during the present year, 1923. The others to date are The Bahr Motor Company, Canuck Motor Products, and J. & J. Cash, Inc.

This is also the fifth American branch to be established here in less than a year. The others being Alemite Products, Ltd., The International Burr Company, The American Optical Company and J. & J. Cash, Inc.

No other town or city in the province having less than 15,000 population, can show so satisfactory an industrial record in the same period of time.

Prospects are exceedingly bright for the location here of still another new industry, announcement of which may appear at any time.

Lillian E. Wins G.W.V.A. Trophy In Regatta Race

R.C.Y.C. Boat Victor Over Field of Twenty-Eight in Sangoy Contest—Contestants Show Marked Ability

(BY STAFF REPORTER.)

Massassaga Park, Aug. 2.—Under ideal yachting conditions the second day's racing of the L.Y.R.A. was carried on at Massassaga Point to-day. A fair breeze carried the craft on their way.

Competition for the Robb cup took place this afternoon and between twenty-five and thirty boats entered the contest. The white-winged yachts presented a most pretty appearance as they ploughed their way down the waters of the Bay of Quinte. The starting gun started at 1.40.

Owing to the non-arrival of the motor boats there was no races of this sort this morning.

The dinghy races resulted the same as yesterday's, with the exception of a Nepanee boat which beat Caldwell's boat.

Lillian E. trim Toronto racing yacht, sailing under Royal Canadian Yacht Club colors won the Great War Veterans' Trophy in the first race of the Best of twenty-eight yachts which fly-ded in the Bay of Quinte Massassaga Park on Wednesday afternoon.

On Friday evening when prizes are to be awarded following the close of the Regatta, the crew of the Lillian E. will be presented with the trophy. Lillian E., which is R. Grant Hall's, not only won in her own class but when time allowance handicaps were reckoned, she proved to be the victor over the fleet of twenty yachts.

Big Ben registered a few minutes of six o'clock when the first big yacht race of the L.Y.R.A. regatta which opened off Massassaga Park, near here, yesterday afternoon, was completed. The boat sought was wonderful to see, not to mention the beautiful picture they presented with their white sails flowing in the light breezes.

Ten boats started in the "R" class, which was won by Lillian E. of R.C.Y.C. by three minutes and twenty-two seconds over Rowena, of Rochester, a new boat in these waters. Nayada of the R.C.Y.C. was third.

Veteran cruisers under twenty-five feet were five in number, the "Whirl" of the Bay Ridges Yacht Club winning the race in this class from the "Tantarum" of Rochester Yacht Club with the close second of Kingston Yacht Club was third.

In the cruisan cruiser class, 25 feet and over, there were five entries also; the "Sylvia" of Kinjston Yacht Club winning with Mona Lisa of Belleville second and Belleville yawl "Temeraire," which put up a wonderful race, one of the best in the series. Temeraire was beaten in by almost one minute, by Sylvia.

In class "M" of the four boats that went the finish, Corsair of R.C.Y.C. was the easy winner, "Iroquois" of Rochester coming in second, four minutes and thirty seconds after, with "Alice" of Crescent Yacht Club, Watertown, N.Y., third.

"Bernice" of R.C.Y.C. lead in the "P" class boats in a fleet of four, with "Patricia", also of R.C.Y.C., second, with Bill Second between them. "Italia" of R.C.Y.C. was third and "Nutgret", also of R.C.Y.C., was fourth, finishing last in the class.

So the twenty-eight yachts which were started off in the big race yesterday afternoon replenished five different classes. Class 1 got the gun at 1.20 p.m., class 2 at 1.25, class 3 at 1.30, class 4 at 1.35 and class 5 at 1.40 p.m.

This year the course has been altered, and is now in the same locality as it formerly was in the older days. The starting point is farther east of the Massassaga Point, and is consequently, instead of the officials using Toronto, Aug. 2.—A complete reversal of the Crown timber policy of the past four years was announced yesterday at the Parliament Buildings by Premier Ferguson. The change, he said, was made in response to public resources whenever opportunity presented itself, which meant when new interests were ready to absorb them, is to be definitely abandoned, and instead sales will be made in the name of the Premier, to be "law and for bygones." The reason for the change was the premier's conviction that the intelligent development and development that is haphazard, sometimes verging on the promoting of unscrupulation for the benefit of vested interests.

Ontario good government, which will merit the good will of the people. The late Sir J. P. Whitney left a great heritage which the present government will endeavor to carry on. The late election was a notice to any government that it will be turned out of power if it does not give that government which the people desire. During the past four years we had a U. F. O. Government and it was a farmers' government which desired to increase the price of the product of the farm. It is desirable, that any Government should do what it could to improve the condition of the farmers. The speaker spoke at some length upon New Ontario which was a great area, over 1,000 miles in extent. Time has shown that that great area is productive in many respects. There are hidden treasures and only fringe has yet been touched. At Sudbury where he resided nickel is produced in larger quantities than in any other country. At Cobalt we have silver in abundance and at Porcupine we have immense gold deposits. This year millions of dollars of gold will be mined. The development of New Ontario will mean much for this province. Last year had our mines not the operating powers of three stamps in its industry we spoke. The mining industry is a great industry. He as Minister of Mines will see that the production is increased. We will promulgate a policy that will stimulate that industry and create a demand for a greater production of the farm. This will be the policy of the Government. If we give a feeling of confidence to the capitalists then we will see an industrial boom in the Province. The hope of future of the agriculturalists must come from the development of the wealth of New Ontario. Once we create the demand we will find the people ready to produce more upon the land. In concluding his address the Hon. speaker stated that if we make love that will command the respect of the people, that Government will get the good will of the people.

It is said he has a voice with unlimited possibilities. He is Angus Hagrid, the "Caruso" of New York's east side.

Suds all through

Cleansing soap in every drop of water

Put your hand in a tub of Rinso suds. You can feel that the water is actually soapy all through.

This is one reason why Rinso soaks clothes clean without hard rubbing.

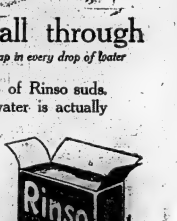

A few minutes at night—just the little time you need to put the clothes to soak in these rich suds, and Rinso suds work down into every fold and fibre, loosening the dirt without weakening a single thread.

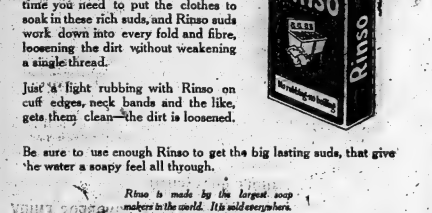

Just a light rubbing with Rinso on cuff edges, neck bands and the like, gets them clean—the dirt is loosened.

Be sure to use enough Rinso to get the big lasting suds, that give the water a soapy feel all through.

Rinso is made by the largest soap makers in the world. It's sold everywhere.

The question of the restoration of Mallow Bridge, near Cork, destroyed by the irregulars, is now occupying the attention of the authorities. The bridge spanned the Blackwater, a valley a quarter of a mile wide.

HON. MR. RAYMOND

Mr. Speaker, everything all through the province is in a healthful condition as to the people and in four years we will see not a continuance from the people but the government of the day.

Major Bedford M.P.P. for East Northumberland referred to the pleasure it was to be present to day to hear Hon. Mr. Cooke, Hon. Mr. Cooke we have a man who will represent the Eastern portion of Ontario. He is a capable and efficient manager. The thing we want the government to do is to create a greater market for our products. If markets are secured it is hoped. We have in the past spent too much money. When we have a deficit we can pay some of it back. Retrenchment in many lines. He wished Hon. Mr. Cooke a successful term before the cabinet and house.

COMPENSATION FOR FARMERS.

Mr. Peter Heffelfinger, Preston, member of the Ont. Workmen's Compensation Board spoke briefly. As an old Raynor boy he was pleased to be present to do honor to Hon. Mr. Cooke a Rawdon boy. In speaking of the Board Mr. Kingston thought that the farmers should be included in the compensation law. He certainly should be given to the farmers to come in and be hoped the government of the day would take care of that fact.

Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., for West Hastings said he was delighted to be present at the Board as in Hastings County were proud of Robert Cooke. He was a Hastings boy and all were proud of him. Mr. Ireland was attended as a delegate in the Ferguson cabinet. Mr. Ireland referred to the people ready to produce more upon the land. In concluding his address the Hon. speaker stated that if we make love that will command the respect of the people, that Government will get the good will of the people.

HELD ON LIQUOR PLOT CHARGES

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug., 2.—James Wadsworth and his son, Howard, of Toronto, Dr. Chauncey P. Smith, prominent Buffalo physician, and John W. Kirk, druggist, Salder, N. Y., are under arrest here as the result of one of the biggest drug conspiracies bared by the government in months. A truck load of faked whiskey, a huge distilling plant with the latest devices for storing booze liquor, false labels, and a load of government stamps, were seized, together with narcotic drugs valued at more than $50,000.

The men were arrested at the door of a downtown hotel within fifty feet of a room in which fifty government officials were seated at a banquet given in honor of the retiring United States district attorney's activity in prosecuting drug and liquor cases.

Wadsworth is Kirk's father-in-law. He is alleged to have spent two days in Toronto arranging for the purchase and transportation of the drugs here. Federal agents say he was in Toronto Saturday. As that the drugs were to be shipped Monday put the government men on guard. In anticipation of the transaction they engaged a suite of rooms here in which they installed listening devices. But the Toronto-made auto nets racket proved, the stated time, so the plan was abandoned.

Wadsworth is said to have declared he arrived from Toronto at Lewiston on the steamer Cayuga yesterday. He carried no baggage, but concealed morphine, it is said, in paper bags about his person. Federal officials believe the arrests will result in revelations that will explain why Buffalo is called the "centre of the drug scandal."

Made Girl a Thief Given Three Years

Owen Sound, Ont., Aug. 2.—Three years in Kingston penitentiary was the sentence meted out to Wilbur Wicks, alias Charles Patton, alias J. F. Williamson, who pleaded guilty before Police Magistrate Creasor of the theft of three thousand dollars, property of Emil Schreiber, a Normanby township farmer.

Ellen Schreiber, foster-daughter of Schreiber, who actually took the money after being led to believe that Wicks would marry her, and who was deserted at Arthur, Ontario, after Wicks had secured the money, was allowed out on suspended sentence of one year. The magistrate lectured Wicks, more particularly for leading the girl astray than for the theft of the money. Schreiber will recover about two thousand dollars in all. While Wicks was in Niagara Falls he made two trips to Buffalo, N.Y., and on one of these trips he lost $700 less than four hundred dollars gambling.

He came to Mayor Amy's office one afternoon, according to the affidavit, and offered her a $2-0 proposition. Six hundred new laborers were coming to Fairport to work in the ice cream factory, he is said to have explained, and a well protected gambling resort would bring big returns.

"Mayor Amy" agreed and asked Schriegel to bring the money to her office the next afternoon.

The would-be gambling boss next day unfurled a huge roll of bills on Mayor Amy's desk. Two seconds later a deputy sheriff and the chief of police, who had been hidden behind a closet door, stepped out from behind a closet and placed Schriegel under arrest.

"Have You Seen the New McLaughlin-Buick?"

WE INVITE EVERY MAN AND WOMAN IN BELLEVILLE

Every Person in this Section Who is Weak, Rundown, Sick or Nervous to Try This Great Medicine at Our Expense—Free Bottle Will be Given to All Who Come Early.

All Have the Same Chance to Get Well and Strong

This is an invitation you can't afford to ignore. We'll tell you why. We are going to give you a free bottle of medicine that will cost you nothing, and put an end to all chances of indigestion, rheumatism, constipation, catarrh and kindred ills.

The medicine of which William Bronson said, "It is the only medicine I ever took that did me any good," is Dreco, a highly efficient stomach medicine made from roots, herbs, barks, leaves and a few other plants. It tones the nerves, stomach, kidneys and bowels.

You may be starving your blood in the midst of plenty. Dreco will prove to you not that counts, but it's how you digest the food you eat.

You cannot get steam out of water without fire; you can't get brain power, nerve force or red blood corpuscles out of food without digestion.

Thousands lack sufficient vital force and don't know why. They think they need a tonic, a vacation or a change of scenery, but they don't. It is a conviction that's the matter with them and 10 days of Dreco will prove it. They don't get the strength out of their food. It's like running an engine through fuel with the rollers too wide apart, the corn too through last the mill doesn't grind.

DON'T THINK YOU MUST HAVE A PAIN TO HAVE INDIGESTION

Lack of flesh, too much fat, pimples, blotches, sallow complexion, lack of nerve force, impoverished blood, sleeplessness, headaches, backaches, backaches, weak brain power, dizzy spells, poor digestion, before the eyes, may be due to the faulty digestive process either in the stomach or the bowels.

Take Dreco with your other food for a week and find out how your digestive organs are working. If the Dreco helps you greatly, grieve you more force, strength and brain power, you may set it down that your liver and bowels are not doing their duty.

Only yesterday your head may have felt dull and heavy, you had the "blues," were cross, nervous and irritable, everything seemed to go wrong and you couldn't tell why.

It's ten to one it was old dyspepsia style getting in its work, not enough to cause you pain, but just enough to dull your brain, rob you of your vitality, upset your liver and deplete your nerve force. Maybe you don't think so, but try a bottle of Dreco and see if it doesn't change "blues" to a bright cherry red, make the old world laugh in a merry glee, and put new vigor in your life again.

Lewis & Field, the travelling salesman, had stomach trouble so bad he practically had to live on liquid foods. He couldn't even eat vegetables without suffering terrible pain. He took two bottles of Dreco and can now eat anything he wants and without any distress whatever—sounds like a miracle? Well, we have Mr. Field's own signed statement to that effect.

C. L. Mallick, the B. & O. conductor, says he had rheumatism so bad that he had to use a cane to get around at all. On his fourth bottle of Dreco he said: "I am now entirely free from pain and can carry my cane." These are only two of hundreds, ye thousands.

TEST THIS MEDICINE FREE

Mr. Sufferer, have you ever heard of the wonderful medicine that talks, that really tells you itself what it can do—that's Dreco. Five minutes after you take it the medicine begins to unfold its virtues, and it will by actual demonstration, unfold to you more in regard to its merits in ten minutes than we could probably make you believe if we wrote you ten books as large as the dictionary.

"Words cannot tell you how glad we are for Dreco," declared Mrs. Truman Copley, "for the first bottle fixed me up," said Walter F. Dixon. "Am a changed man now," states Rev. Samuel L. Bosley.

You may know something of these people, or know somebody who knows them. We'll send you their full address so if you want them, so that you can find out about Dreco and the wonders it has wrought.

Probably you are now thinking whether all this can be true; stop it. Come at once to the Belleville Pharmacy, Belleville. They will give you absolutely free, a good-sized bottle of Dreco. This offer is open to every man and woman in Belleville and vicinity. There are no ifs, ands or buts attached to it, except that you come early before the generous supply of free bottles has been used up. Don't have to buy anything if you don't want to. All we ask is that you step in and try this wonderful medicine, and see for yourself what it can do for you. So please come as early as possible.

Go today to the Belleville Pharmacy and they will explain the merits of this great remedy.

THE DRECO COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED

DR. TOLD NURSE TO TAKE DRECO

Crippled Up By Rheumatism So She Had to Hold on to Banisters—Feet Swollen, Limbs, Ankles, Elbows Full of Pain.

"I am writing to say a few words of praise of your wonderful medicine, Dreco. I have often been asked to endorse this or that medicine which I have suffered, but Dreco is different," said Mrs. D. S. Shipman, late of 1462 Lay Avenue, Evansville, Indiana.

"I have suffered greatly from rheumatism and been treated by excellent physicians, finally tried a doctor's nurse, but always my relief was temporary. While nursing, I've had doctors give me nursing. I should be the one in bed with a nurse to attend me. My feet were so swollen and painful I could hardly keep my shoes on, my ankles and limbs were so sore and full of pain I could hardly walk. I often had dark circles under my eyes and that tired look in them.

"Constipation was a source of great annoyance and I couldn't secure relief from it. I was often nauseated and had a repulsion at the sight of food.

"Everybody my feelings are greatly changed. I have taken two bottles of Dreco and I am so much better that the doctor told me to keep on taking it. Every ache and pain is gone, indigestion is completely relieved. I am no longer nauseated, but eat and relish every meal. Instead of being a sore, crippled creature, limping around, I am happy, and am some more today which I was forced to refuse before. I give all the credit for my grand relief to Dreco, and unhesitatingly recommend it to everyone who suffers as I did." Free samples given.

TOURIST TRADE

A advice to hotel-keepers, which should be accorded respectful consideration, especially in this section of the Province is contained in the report of the Board of License Commissioners. The report states:

"The hotel-keeper is prevented from enjoying what was formerly a very profitable trade at the bar and is taking time and effort to adjust himself to new conditions.

"It should be generally recognized that a well-conducted hotel is a valuable asset to any municipality. It may not be out of place to call attention to the unquestionably great opportunity which the Province of Ontario has to cultivate a lucrative tourist traffic. The Province has lakes and rivers, forests and hills, climate and other advantages to offer to tourists. There are hundreds of thousands of Americans who own automobiles and are looking to Ontario for spending a few weeks, or months, in the summer. Until recently most of our attractive tourist spots were not easily accessible; the Province is now, by degrees, overcoming this difficulty.

"An equally important matter is the catering to these visitors when they come. In addition to the setting part of parking places where visitors can rest, or put up tents, etc., there should be better hotel accommodation, and it is felt that, in order to secure better hotel accommodation, some encouragement should be given to hotel-keepers. If municipalities were to reduce the taxes to be paid by hotels, this should prove an excellent investment, and the municipalities would be repaid many times over by the expenditure of money by tourists. Along with this improvement of hotels should go a well-planned scheme of advertising the attractions which the various parts of the Province afford.

"It has been said that a hundred million dollars per annum would easily be available to the people of Ontario from tourists, when adequate provision is made for taking care of them. This will easily leave a sum of not less than two million dollars available for the average county. The loss of revenue which any municipality would suffer through a reduction of taxes on well-kept hotels would be slight, when compared with the advantage there would be from the expenditure of so large a sum of money."

These facts are obvious, yet repeated reference to them appears to be warranted in view of the tremendous importance of the subject.

FIGURES AND FANCIES

The statistics contained in the report of the Board of License Commissioners, for Ontario, while not conclusive, show unmistakable evidence of a reduction in the consumption of alcoholic beverages. This is to be expected since such consumption except, in an extremely restricted degree, is a violation of the law of the land.

The only clear-cut evidence of this apparently marked change in the habits of the people of the Province is evidenced in the statistics dealing with gaol commitments for intoxication. However, since persons who are sent to jail for drunkenness are not fairly representative of society, these statistics cannot be accepted as a criterion. Yet reduction in the number of convictions of

By The Side Of The Road

AT THE LOCAL POLICE STATION

Officer—To young lady, member of motor party, arrested for speeding)

"Who are the other young ladies?"

Young Lady—"They are sisters."

Officer (pointing to one of pair)—"Is this one your full sister?

Lady—No, that's the other one. This one doesn't drink."

Lament over the scarcity of the supply of "fine sight-year-old-rye" is voiced by the members of the Board of License Commissioners. But Mr. Raney didn't know that was to be incorporated in the report.

Many harassed housewives will concede that a cook is a cook, if though he may be a murderer.

Kingston Standard announces that it is proposed to "intern" Abbe Delorme. That might be a good plan.

One million gallons of wine were made in the Province in 1922 and about 318,000 gallons were sold. The License Commissioners say "there is this factor, however, to be borne in mind, and that is that those foreigners have been accustomed to the use of wine in their native countries as their ordinary beverage, and when they come to our country they naturally try to secure wine for their drink here."

Upon that premise, we would be placed in a very embarrassing position if a foreigner were to call the mansion of New Guinea should elect to visit us.

The Standard Bank of Canada has converted a "little change into a sumptuous account. The "little change" is only a million dollars. Surprises are right.

The energetic bootleggers who ply their illegal traffic over the Canada-U.S. boundary, apparently feel that the fine spirit of neighborliness which hovers over the border is materially enhanced by a Dew drop. Unfortunately (for the prohibition agents) they appear to believe that if a little is desirable a deluge is much more so.

"drinkers" indicates growing scarcity of liquor.

The fiscal statistics do not constitute definite evidence and the explanations attached in the report fail to shed satisfactory light on the subject.

That the government dispensaries are operated on a comfortable margin of profit and that the fines imposed under the Ontario Temperance Act aggregate an appreciable sum yearly is evident.

The authors of the report, however, undoubtedly inspired by the "dominant genius" of Hon. Mr. Raney, have incorporated in the document an elaborate treatise calculated to emphasize the evils of intemperance and the attitude in favor of prohibition on the part of manufacturers, teachers, pastors and others. This is a worthy object, deserving of the highest commendation, yet it would seem that a more complete and consistent report of statistics and facts would have made interlopations unnecessary.

Prices demanded for liquor by the Dispensaries are discussed but the costs upon which the charges are based are not clearly revealed.

Mr. James Hales, Chairman of the Board of License Commissioners complains that brewers and distillers fail to respect the prohibition laws of the United States, but "deliberately supply liquor which they well know is either to be smuggled in the United States in direct violation of the laws of that country." Belleville is mentioned in this connection. This view does not appear consistent with the policies of the retiring Attorney-General, Mr. Raney, who was the chief enforcement officer when the report was prepared. The suggestion that a complete revision of the Act be made, restricting the sales of patent and proprietary medicines and extracts and essences, containing alcohol, seems more in keeping with the public utterances of Mr. Raney. On the whole, the report is more voluminous than the record of accomplishment warrants.

WASN'T HURTING IT.

A little colored boy, clothes rescued was splashing around in his heart's content in a public reservoir. "Hey! come out of that, you young rascal!" shouted the keeper. "Don't you know that the people in town have to drink that water?"

The youngster dived under, came up and innocently replied: "Oh! dat's all right, mister; I ain't doin' no

PERCENTAGE OF AMERICANS

(Current History Magazine)

Few people would credit the extent to which the American people have come to permeate the Canadian Dominion, especially the Western provinces, in recent years. In the year 1871, when the first census of the newly federated Dominion was taken, Canada was found to have a population of 3,485,761, and of these 24,121 recorded their birthplace as the United States. Twenty years subsequent to not quite seven-tenths of 1 per cent of the total population. At the time of the 1901 census there were 127,599 citizens of American birth in Canada. In that of 1911 there were 303,620, representing 4.31 per cent of the total population at the time. From 1911 to 1921 a total of 768,115 citizens of the United States entered Canada, so that at the present time there are well over 1,000,000 people in Canada who have been citizens of the United States, or something like 12 per cent of the total Dominion population.

THE PROFESSIONAL HONKER

(Detroit Free Press)

The village cut-up custom of trying to blast the tonsils off by blowing horrific blasts of sound at them is neither funny nor tolerable. In the old days, the rip saw was the limit considered a rest and was suppressed. In these days the factory whistle is severely censored. But the noises made by those contrivances seem like soothing lullabies when placed in comparison with the racket the harpies of city dwellers are called upon to withstand because certain semi-imbeciles at the wheels of motor cars think that their signal horns were given them as playthings, much as rattles are given to babies.

NO OPPOSITION

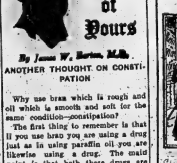

(Brooklyn Eagle)

Mr. Hughes seems to accept the socialized stability of Soviet rule as a fact, whereas it is but an appearance. The stability of Lenin and his Administration is a stability of force. Much nonsense is talked about Lenin's control since 1917, when other cabinets and governments have fallen right and left. The Cabinets that have disappeared were subject to parliamentary majorities. To survive without an opposition is no achievement at all. As Mr. Hughes remarks, the will of a people "may not be manifested by long-continued acquiescence in regime actually functioning as a government."

UNEMPLOYMENT IN ENGLAND

(London Daily News)

The unemployment in our streets are quite as tragic a spectacle to the Englishman as ever his ruined fields can be to the Frenchman; they may easily prove the more fatal mischief of the two, and to expect Englishmen to shut their eyes to the fact is to expect something which cannot be granted and which ought not to be granted. There is still time for the recognition of this in France; but it would be a disservice even to France to fail to point out that the long delay is beginning to be very dangerous and that even British patience has its limits.

ANOTHER THOUGHT ON CONSTIPATION

Why use bran which is rough and oil which is smooth and soft for the same condition—constipation?

The first thing to remember is that if you use bran you are using a drug just as in using paraffin oil you are likewise using a drug. The main point is that bran and paraffin are practically harmless. The bran which is used as a cereal, or in a biscuit simply irritates the intestinal walls and stimulates action of the bowel.

The oil on the other hand just softens the waste matter and it moves more rapidly along the intestine with less effort on the part of the intestine.

Now the point to remember is that if you have an irritable stomach and irritable nerves, instead of this irritation by the bran flakes you easily set up an inflammatory condition in the stomach and small intestine. This will mean pain and distress which may be more serious than constipation. Gastric and intestinal ulcers may start in this way.

The mineral or paraffin oil is therefore a safer proposition for general use than is the bran.

You see this is just where a little thought or sense will be of help. If you find that bran or other very coarse food seems to set up an irritation, don't continue its use when there are so many other ways of correcting your constipation.

People differ widely in the matter of digesting food. One person can eat cabbage and turnips and practically all of it will be digested, whilst another person will digest only a fraction of it. What is of little value to one person may be valuable. That's a point we've got to forget.

Wit and Humor

From a Flapper

I want a man with lots of dough,
Who has a roaring car.
He must be tall and dark, you know,
Like any movie star.

He must make love like knights of old,
Just gentle, sweet and kind.
Still, if he is a veteran bold
I'm sure I wouldn't mind!

He must excel at say feai,
My praises he must sing.
A man like that I'll never meet
'Cause there ain't no such thing!

BEBE DANIELS AND ANTONIO MORENO SEEN IN "THE EXCITERS".

Co-starring for the first time in their career, Bebe Daniels and Antonio Moreno appear in the principal roles of the Paramount production of "The Exciters," coming to Griffin's tonight for a three day run, with a matinee Saturday.

This is a splendid picturisation of a successful play by Martin Brown, adapted to the screen by John Colton and Sonya Levien and directed by Maurice Campbell. Speaking of speed, one would believe that even the modern mices would, at least, be a while be satisfied with but one means of excitement. But not so with Miss Daniels in the role of Ronnie Rand in this picture. Ronnie is a real speed girl in every sense of the word. Morning finds her out for a spin in her power boat and through the afternoon comes a series of spins in the air.

The close of the day means to Ronnie a delightful trip in one of her motors with the anticipation of a series of similar exploits on the following day. Pleasure is all the this girl has to think of. She has not a care in the world—that is, not until she finds herself married to a supposed crook, bent on extorting from the girl's family a goodly sum of money for an annulment of their marriage. The climax of this peculiar and interesting picture story, stamps "The Exciters" as a picture almost alone in its class. The supporting company is wholly adequate.

"Smarty" is an amusing Universal comedy. William Desmond in the fourth chapter of Universal's popular continued play "The Phantom Fortune," is developing into being established on the same program with the above offering.

HERE'S STORY FOR TIRED BUSINESS MEN AND WIVES

The too drastic reform idea gets a body blow in "The Town Scandal," a Universal attraction starring Gladys Walton, which will be shown at the Regent theatre, tonight to Saturday, with a matinee daily.

The picture was adapted to the screen by Hugh Hoffman from the cosmopolitan story. "The Chicken That Came Home to Roost," by Fred.

GRAND TRUNKS TROUNCE COBOURG AGGREGATION IN LISTLESS SESSION, 12 TO 6

RAILROADERS NOW TIED WITH PETERBORO IN SECOND HALF

Trunks Lead 12-1 Till Ninth, H. Mills and Weir Pole Out Homers

Belleville are now tied on the top rung of the second half of the C.O. B.L. by virtue of their win over Cobourg yesterday, by a score of 12-6, while the Kingston team strengthened the Trunks' chances by trimming the highly-touted Peterboro outfit on a 15-4 Saturday's game is now the crucial encounter of the series, and should Belleville grab a win they will have a straight hold on the championship regardless of a play-off.

Yesterday's game was a rather listless affair with the issue never in doubt. The Mogols obtained an early lead and were never headed. They increased the margin considerably in the third frame when they shoved across six big juicy runs. It was merely a matter of holding the Cobourgers at bay during the remainder of the contest.

Going into the ninth the Trunks were leading on a 12-1 score, but with two down the visitors went to work and grabbed five runs. A little carelessness on the part of the homsters gave the lake shore boys the quietus.

Jackie Williams was detailed to do the gunning and he made a fine job of it until the seventh when Jack Oulette took a whirl. With the exception of the ninth he pitched fine ball. Both twirlers are in excellent form and are ready to tackle the Peterboro Saturday at Riverside Park.

Williams struck out seven men and didn't walk a man. He kept Cobourg's bye-ball well scattered. Jack Oulette allowed but two hits, both coming in the ninth.

Jahren went the route for the Cobourgers, and although he was touched rather freely, the manager refused to yank him. A total of ten hits was garnered off his delivery. His support wavered at the critical points of the game, Drennon at shortstop being charged with three rather costly errors.

The Trunks were also accountable for four errors, two of these coming in the ninth. Harry Brownscombe was responsible for two errors while Hagerman and Harry Mills each had one. Harry Mills and Weir provided the hitting features, each with a homer run. Both were good ones, his to left centfield, Stan. Hagerman drove out a healthy wallop in the first which gave them a tripl. Some pretty stops were made by players on both nines. Drennon, Hagerman and Weir were particularly proficient at the stick line; Brownscombe was out of luck at shortstop. Harry is also in the throes of a bad batting slump. But Saturday will be a fine chance to escape. "Browny" will start hitting, the pill one of these days—then watch him. Whether Vern. Weir will come back to short on Saturday is a question. Both boys are high-class performers.

A rather meagre crowd turned out yesterday. Many counter attractions, particularly the regatta, had a tendency to lessen the attendance. Next week should show a decided increase if the Trunks win on Saturday.

The Cobourg team were half an hour late in arriving, owing to car trouble. Probably a fine or two would see the team arrive at starting time. Spectators kept waiting became now and out of sorts, and you can't blame them much.

J. Kenney was absent from the Cobourg line-up yesterday. T. Kenney was forced to retire early in the game with an injured foot. Schafer took his place at the initial sack.

George Sullivan and Bert Booth of Kingston officiated. Neither was critcised for their work.

The Cobourg team are, however, continuing the schedule through many difficulties and deserve a heap of credit. Better luck to them next season.

WINS CONSOLATION.

TIGER TIRES LEAD SOFT-BALL LEAGUE

Position Advanced by Win Over 34th Battery, 11-3.

The Tiger-Tire are now leading the local softball league by their win over the 34th Battery last evening at the Mug on high school grounds, by a score of 11-3. It was a tidy little argument all the way but the Tire boys, through their previous experience at the game, managed to pull out ahead. Bill Knott pitched excellent ball for the winners and was accorded air-tight support. "Jerry" Murphy behind the bat turned in a nice game. The Tire boys appear to be headed for the championship unless some team takes it all out of them very soon.

Lloyd and Stork as battery for the 34th Battery were right on their toes. The battery failed to get their murderer's row working, but watch them tonight when they stack up against Maraket Derby Club at 6.15 on the High school grounds. Batting order:

Tiger Tire—Hay, r.f.; Murphy, c.; Symons, 3b.; McKenna, 2b.; Laughlin, 1.f.; Platt, lb.; Knott, p.; Fitchett, c.f.; Cornell, s.s.

34th Battery—Kellar, s.s.; Knott, 3b.; Hurley, c.f.; Lafferty, 2b.; Frechette, lb.; McDonald, 1.f.; Lloyd, p.; Cornell, r.f.; Stork, c.

Sam Curry and Cy. Young officiated.

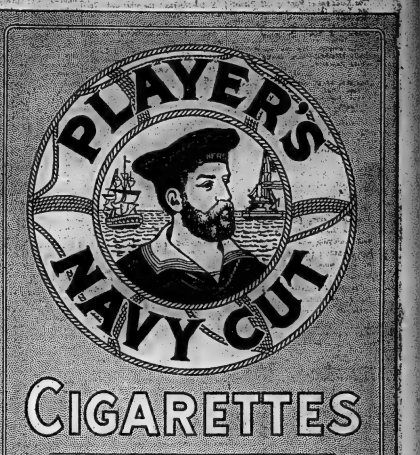

Standing of the league, including last night's game:

	W.	L.
Tiger Tire	1	0
Shoemiss	1	1
34th Battery	1	1
Grand Trunks	0	1

TORONTO LAD KILLED.

Allen Rosenberg, aged 9 years, of 1419 Bloor street West, was instantly killed this afternoon while taking a ride on a Dinner Steel Company truck on Dufferin boulevard near Bloor. The body was taken to the morgue in the police ambulance.

While holding an impromptu beach this afternoon, Jenkin Stewart, aged 9, had his foot badly cut. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Sporting Skits

Kingstons win over Peterboro puts Belleville in an excellent position for the honours. Jake decided to depend on McElroy to turn the Ponies back but the south-paw was walloped hard and timely. Heckman was given a much needed rest and is being groomed for Saturday's gigantic struggle. The Trunks have defeated Peterboro at Riverside Park before and are determined to repeat on Saturday.

Both Oulette and Williams are in fine shape and nothing would please either better than to trim the Peterboro outfit on their own back yard. Should the C.O.B.L. championship come to Belleville there is an excellent chance that the Provincial honours may come with it. Up west in St. Thomas and Guelph the teams are playing fine ball. Hillcrests are not nearly as strong as last year with Batstone and "Cannonball" Scott off the list. The loss of "Chuck" Allen was a sore blow to the Hampden Parkers. The double battle of the season takes place on Saturday at the Shaw Street grounds when Ottera hook up with Hillcrests. Manager "Nip" Dwan will likely send Greer into action against the ex-Fairground champs. Manager Freddie Hamilton has a trio of reliable hurlers to choose from.

Freddie Goyer is pitching great ball for Guelph Maple Leafs. Royal City fans are looking towards the championship of the Inter-County League.

Danny McPhee is hurling lovely ball for St. Thomas. The garden city nine look like champs in their league.

Besides the above there is many fast teams in the province which must be reckoned with in the titular race.

Belleville fans are dreaming of another Ontario championship and here's hoping it comes to our fair city once again.

KINGSTON TRIMS PETERBORO, 15-2

Latter May Be Crippled in Saturday's Titanic Clash

Frankie Collins and Jackie Wolfe were both injured in yesterday's game at Kingston while going after a fly ball. They were both carried out for some time but were able to return to the fray. Whether this with handicap them to any extent in Saturday's important game has not yet been ascertained. The fly was ruled in Wolfe's territory but Publisher Johnston told Collins to go after it, hence the collision. Both players are valuable players and if they are unable to play it will be a big hole to fill. McElroy will be on the mound but Jake Solomon was determined to save 'Al' Heckman for the tit-bit of the season at home.

Fanny Mills will probably be back at his old position on Saturday, which will be a great help.

Who will start on the mound has not yet been announced.

A large following of fans will no doubt accompany the team.

Of Interest to Women

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press

(Written for the United Press)

New York, N.Y., Aug. 1 (United Press).—Black crepe, for years considered only as a material for mourning apparel, has become a fixture in the fashion world. Today almost every woman includes a black crepe frock in her wardrobe. Not only does this absorbent material outwear the shiny-surfaced silks, but it is decided by becoming to the figure and can almost be called "non-crushable."

Often black shoes, black hat and black accessories accompany the black crepe frock, making it almost impossible to distinguish the fashionably-gowned maskfin from the mourner. Only one who is familiar with the minor details of mourning wear can detect any significant difference. In fact, the only way that mourning apparel can be distinguished from the popular black apparel of today is by its accessories.

Mourning calls for mourning accessories, such as black hosiery, black jewels, black furs, etc. Jewels other than gun-metal pearls, and dull jet or the imitations of these are not considered appropriate for mourning wear, although many women wear pearls for the reason that they are presumed to mean tears. This is rather a far-fetched idea, however. Strictly speaking, jewels of any description should be barred for first mourning as a woman who is conspicuous with bracelets, earrings and chains looks anything but a mourner. Diamonds and all other sparkling jewels are decidedly in bad taste, as mourning jewelry, like mourning materials, should be devoid of all luster.

Shoes, likewise, keep to the lustreless effect. Black patents and shiny-surfaced satins are not considered as appropriate, as are dull, black kids. Styles in shoes are to be worn, but with mourning should not be too extreme as cut-out sandle effects and numerous strapped effects are not in good taste. Even the little shoe button should be dull finished, if one is to be accurately groomed.

Usually the mourning hat can be distinguished from the popular creation by some little touch of heavy crinkled crepe. There may be a little band of this crepe shading the line about the head, a crepe bow or crepe flowers, but though the heavy mourning veil has been done away with the term "street," the morning bonnet, it has no luster, either in its material or in its trim. Even hanging and ornaments have a dull finish finish.

On the other hand, the ordinary black crepe frock is worn with a bit of color. Furs colored hosiery, jade earrings, a panel embroidery or some slight deviation from the all-black idea. Perhaps the color can be found on Milady's handbag or on the border of her handkerchief. To be perfectly smart this season, one must touch up the black costume with a bit of color.

How to Rid the Arms Of Objectionable Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of all hair or fuzz growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 3 or 5 minutes rub off, wash the skin and your hair will be vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury, but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

Bowen gently withdrew his arm and, rising, strode across to a table on which was a decanter of whisky and siphon of soda. With unsteady hands, he poured whisky and soda into a glass and, returning to Patricia, he passed his arm gently behind her head, placing the glass against her lips. She drank a little and then, with a shudder, turned her head aside. A moment later her eyes opened again. She looked round the room, then fixed her gaze on Bowen as if trying to explain to herself his presence. Gradually the colour returned to her cheeks and she sighed deeply. She shook her head as Bowen put the glass against her lips.

"I nearly fainted," she whispered, sighing again. "I've never done such a thing." Then after a pause she added, "I wonder what has happened. My head feels so funny."

"It's all my fault," said Bowen penitently. "I've waited so long, and I seemed to go mad. You will forgive me, dearest, won't you?" his voice was full of concern.

Patricia smiled. "Have I been here long?" she asked. "It seems ages since I came."

"Oh; only about five minutes. Oh, Patricia! you won't do it again, will you?" Bowen drew her nearer to him and spent the glass containing the remains of the whisky and soda that he had placed on the floor beside him.

"I didn't quite faint, really," she said earnestly, as if defending herself from a reproach.

"I mean threw me over," explained Bowen. "It's been hell!"

"Please go and sit down," she said, moving restlessly. "I'm all right now. I—I want to talk and I can't talk like this." Again she smiled, and Bowen lifted her hand and kissed it gently. Rising he drew a chair near her and sat down.

"You see all this comes of trying to be a Mrs. Trigge," she said regretfully.

"Mrs. Trigge!" Bowen looked at her anxiously.

Slowly and a little wearily Patricia explained her conversation with Elton. "Didn't he tell you he had been here?"

"No," replied Bowen, relieved at the explanation; "Godfrey is a perfect dome of silence on occasion."

"Why did you suddenly leave me all alone, Peter?" Patricia enquired presently. "I couldn't understand. It hurt me terribly. I didn't realise"—she paused—"Oh, everything, until I heard you were going away. Oh, my dear!" she cried in a low voice. "be gentle with me, I'm all broken."

Bowen bent across to her. "I'm a brute," he said, "but——"

She shook her head. "Not that sort,' she said, "it's my pride I've bruised. I seem to have turned everything upside down. You'll have to be very gentle with me at first, please." She looked up at him with a flicker of a smile.

"Not only at first, dear, but always," said Bowen gaily as he rose and seated himself beside her. "Patricia, when did you—care?" He blurted out the last word hurriedly.

"I don't know," she replied dreamily. "You see," she continued after a pause, "I've not been like other girls. Do you know, Peter," she looked up at him shyly, "you're the first man who has ever kissed me, except my father. Isn't it absurd?"

"It's nothing of the sort," Bowen declared, tilting up her chin and gazing down int other eyes. "But you haven't answered my question."

"Well!" continued Patricia, speaking slowly, "when you sent me flowers and messengers and telegraph boys and things I was angry, and then when you didn't I——" she paused.

"Wanted them," he supposted.

"U-m-m-m!" she nodded her head. "I suppose so," she conceded. "But," she added with a sudden change of mood, "I shall always be dreadfully afraid of you. He seems so perfect."

Bowen laughed. "I'll try and balance matters," he said.

"But you haven't told me," said Patricia, "why you left me alone at once. Why did you?" She looked up enquiringly at him.

During the next half hour Patricia slowly drew from Bowen the whole story of the plot engineered by Lady Tangra.

"But why," questioned Patricia, "were you going away if you knew that—that everything would come all right?"

"I had given up hope, and I couldn't break my promise to Tan. I convinced myself that you didn't care."

Patricia held out her hand with a smile. Bowen bent and kissed it.

"I wonder what you are thinking of me?" She looked up at him anxiously. "I'm very much at your mercy now, Peter, aren't I? You won't let me ever regret it, will you?"

"Do you regret it?" he whispered. He regards her, conscious of the fragrance of her hair.

"It's such an unconditional surrender," she complained. "All my pride is bruised and trampled underfoot. You have me at such a disadvantage."

"So long as I've got you I don't care," he laughed.

"Peter," said Patricia after a few minutes of silence, "I want you to ring up Tangra and Godfrey Elton and ask them to dine here this evening. They must put off any other engagement. Tell them I say so."

"But can't we——?" began Bowen.

"Then, you are making my regret already," she said with a flash of her old vivacity.

Bowen flew to the telephone. By a lucky chance Elton was calling at Grosvenor Square, and Bowen was able to get them both with one call. He was a little disappointed, however at not having Patricia to himself that evening.

"When shall we get married?" Bowen asked eagerly, as Patricia rose and announced that she must go and repair damages to her face and garments.

"I will tell you after dinner," she said as she walked towards the door.

MRS. LINDQUIST TELLS WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Kansas City, Mo.—"I was left in a very serious condition after childbirth and no one thought I could ever be any better. Then came the 'Change of Life and I was so prepared for what I had to suffer, I had to go to bed at times to be entirely quiet as I could not even stoop down to pick anything from the floor. I did not suffer any pain, but I was decidedly nervous and could not sleep. For nearly two years I was this way, and the doctor was frank enough to tell me that he could do no more for me. Shortly after this I happened to see in a newspaper an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a few days my condition was in the house and I had begun to use it and I took it regularly until I was well. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to others when I have the opportunity." — Mrs. May Lutzgiver, 3816 Independence Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

THE TIN THAT UNBINDS

McGoldrick Cliff and Thomas Spit
Were friends in childhood's tether,
They went to school and broke each rule
And played and wept together.
Conjointly thus they came on,
And found in fact their lives compact
As Pythias and Damon.
Both hated golf; in spring they'd scoff
At fishing with dry flieses;
In later life each took a wife
Whose sister was the other.
So that perforce in legal course
Each was the other's brother.
They settled down well out of town
In two adjoining houses.
Each morn the twain the choo choo train
Would catch, urged by their spouses.
The daily papers that would shape
Their views on public questions
They both found good and to their food
They brought the same digestions.
But out alas! it came to pass
That they, commuter fashion,
Took planted plots, called garden spots,
It soon became a passion.
McGoldrick Cliff and Thomas Spit
Pass now with bared lacisors
And looks of scorn, both night and morn—
They split on fertilisers.

All married women are good listeners —when their husbands talk in their sleep.

BROAD HIGHWAY

(Jeffrey Farnol)

Instead of riches give to me
Eyes the great good things to see;
The golden earth, the jewelled sky,
The best that in all hearts doth lie.

Give me this: When day's begun,
A woodland glade, a ray of sun;
Failing where the dewdrops lie,
Give me this, and rich am I.

Give me this: The song of bird
In lonely wood at sunset heard,
Piping of his evening hymn
'Mid a leafy twilight dim.

Give me this: A stream that wendeth
Where the sighing willow bendeth,
Singing through the woodland ways
Never-ending songs of praise.

Give me these, with eyes to see,
And richer than a king I'll be.

The first two legs of the first round of the triangle in the log yacht race for the G.W.V.A. cup yesterday were just a series of shifty, windy, calms, puffs, any old thing that would go to bring the aggers up to the leaders and get them just generally balled up. For instance, the Tecumseh was sent five minutes before the B boats. Then the R's and the cruising boats, and in 13 minutes from the start on account of the wind leaving the leaders in a flat spot, but holding for the late starters, that was a general jumble before the first mark was reached.

The result of Wednesday's race for the R boats was, of course, a great victory for the R.C.Y.C., and Lillian E. The latter, who so many thought should have been sent to the rear, finished in a run away race of it and won by a long way from Rowena, who came second, with Sunbeam, Nirwana and Nayada followed by those good old calf-sized boats, who, by the by, made the race of the day for fourth place, Scarpay and Nirwana.

In the P class there were four boats to compete—Bernice, Patricia, Ilalia and Natimer, who finished in the order given. In the cruising and veteran classes Zuvays was first over the line, Zuvays finally won out from Iroquois, sailed again by the good old sport, Frank Christie of Rochester, who was the entry list of boats from Geneva, Rochester, Kingston and Hamilton and Toronto.

The race Ilalia held a steady southerly breeze, outside of the rest of the fleet, apparently, but the south-easterly buoy, held the wind out of the east in the north-easterly run on the second leg, and there was an ironclad that mark caught the fresh south-west wind that took her chasing along on the home stretch and the rest of the fleet a few minutes ahead of Bernice and Patricia and Natimer, and this same south-west-erly breeze held Ilalia to hold her into a bunch again, and made a general mix-up. It is impossible to write a coherent story of the race, for the boats were flukes and changes of position occurred, but Ilalia in the end, with Bernice, Natimer, and Zoreya in the Veteran fight, made the running, and in the second round Natimer and Zoreya and Bernice began to happen, and merit and seamanship took the place of luck. Ilalia's luck held out to the end, and she came home a bunch again, and made a general mix-up. Officials on board the Sonora yesterday were Commodore J. F. Commodore Bullock of Gananoque sailed into Mananagi last evening on his yacht "Annie Lee," and will be here for the remaining two days of the regatta.

The officials' boat is of course designated by the red flag, and every time the officials change their positions they are called upon to race to their new "anchoring grounds" as the "Sonora" is proudly wearing the brown, and the spunky little power fleet do not like the sweep idea of the "Sonora", which, however, is a very good boat for her size, and leaves many in the offing, who believe her to be a slow, ungainly craft.

Before should be scores of racing boats in the Mananagua harbor were busy this morning making ready for the big afternoon's program which commenced again today at 1.30 p.m The yacht races today are for the Robb cup, handicaps being allowed for classes 1., II., and IV.

This evening at the Mananagua pavilion the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club are holding a ball (invitation only) for the benefit of visiting yachtsmen and their friends.

An interesting feature of the afternoon's program yesterday was the appearance of an old sailing and racing boat of nearly fifty years ago. She sailed down, the lay in old Lake Ontario just to show the old sailors she still lived. This craft was the "Lady Belle," formerly owned here, now owned at Napanee.

Nance Dirtwert.

One result of the conquest of England by the Normans in 1066, was the Norman-French language current in England.

Another result was the tongue of the conquerors, while the conquered stook to their native Saxon, and out of the mixture of the two tongues was merged into a common "English."

Another interesting and natural effect was that all the "luxury trades," as they were called, fell into the French. French, while all the noun and service trades remained with the Saxon. Of the conquered, were spoken of in Saxon terms.

So the man who looked after the pig got called "a sow-herd" instead of "swine," while the gentleman who ate it thought of it as the Norman-French "pork."

In the same way "calf" as an animal (beef), sheep and mouton (mutton), deer and venison.

The conquered had the job of looking after the beast; the conquerors enjoyed eating the results of it, and though the centuries have passed find we are now the united race, most of these old distinctions of names still remain in our language.

Sketch by Sargeant.

Now that John Singer Sargeant has executed a black and white sketch of the Duke of York and Commander Harvey's wedding present to Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, the duke's bride, it may be followed by a royal commission in the near future.

It seems to have been a weakness of the British Royal Family since Queen Victoria's time to commission artist who would turn out canvas of a character more popular with the masses rather than with those of discrimination. Queen Victoria, it is argued, thought enough of himself and meeting of communion Holbein, why should not King George sit for Sargeant or Sir William Orpen or Augustus John.

Jenny Lind as Inventor.

One may scan the records of the patent office in vain to find the name of Jenny Lind as an inventor. Yet she was responsible for a large degree for the "parlor car." When P. T. Barnum brought the famous singer to America she was obliged to spend much of her time in traveling from place to place on the wretched railroads of the period. So, to reduce the discomforts of the trip, she had the seats of an ordinary car removed, and the vehicle furnished with chairs, tables, and other pieces of furniture which would be appropriate to a parlor. She jocosely called this her "parlor car," and it is undoubtedly from this that we get the name for our pullman chair cars.

EVANGELIST REPORTS GREAT YEAR IN WEST AND IN PACIFIC COAST

Conference Members Try Luck at Fishing in Maritime Provinces

Editor Intelligencer:

Believing that our many friends who read your paper will rejoice with us that we are still in the harness, and that unmerited gracious favor has been given us, and you this short letter. During the last conference year we have been privileged to conduct eighteen evangelistic campaigns in the Western Provinces. We began last fall in Edmonton, Alta., where six campaigns were held, and then on to Lethbridge. Then in response to calls from British Columbia, we went to the help of the churches in Revelstoke, Kamloops, Chilliwack, Vancouver, Vernon, Nelson, Trail and Penticton.

We much enjoyed the winter in British Columbia, and greatly admired the blossoms on thousands of acres of apple, cherry, peach and apricot trees as we journeyed by boat and train on May 24th along the famed Okanagan Valley.

The scene was changed as we passed from the province of mountains and valleys to Manitoba, the province of broad landscapes and growing grain. There we held three campaigns in High Bluff, Boissevain and Killarney, closing the year on June 24th.

LOOT DIVIDED IN MONTREAL, CLAIM

Montreal, Aug. 2.—A Montreal office building was the headquarters of the gang of bandits who attacked the Toronto bank messengers, and it was in a small office in that building that the immense haul of banknotes was divided.

This is the discovery claimed to have been made by private detectives here, but made, alas, after the birds have flown.

The robbers, they say, returned to Montreal two days after the hold-up, the leader, who was the tall man mentioned in early despatches, carrying a black suitcase in which it is now considered was the entire haul of bank notes. The leader and one of the gang, a man with a dark moustache, evidently his chief lieutenant arrived first.

According to the story told here they reached the office building early in the forenoon, and rode up the elevator. Later in the afternoon when most offices were closed, the remaining four members of the gang arrived. They walked up the stairs to the office on the second floor. There the gang remained locked up. Earlier in the afternoon preparations for the arrival of the balance of the party were made by the second in command running out to purchase a bottle of Scotch whiskey from the Quebec liquor commission shops, near at hand. Suspicion was first directed towards the gang by an employee of the office building, which is in the heart of the financial.

Youths Enter Plea Of Guilty In Order To Protect Girls

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 2.—Pleas of guilty entered by seven young men in B. O. T. A. charges in county police court yesterday obviated the necessity for a trial in which sensational evidence involving a number of young girls was expected to have been given. The charges arose out of alleged doings at summer resorts in this vicinity. The boys and girls in question belonging to prominent families in this city.

The court house was thronged long before the hour for opening the court, but proceedings were delayed for one hour by negotiations between the authorities and the defendants for a settlement. When the accused finally appeared they pleaded guilty through their counsel, R. L. Bracken, K. C., to one charge of having liquor in other than a private dwelling place and were fined $200 and costs each and condemned to pay the costs on other charges which they admitted was substantially correct but which the crown did not press.

In commenting on the arrangement in accepting a plea of guilty in one case only, Magistrate Arnold said: "The crown is doing this in order to prevent the girls from being forced to come into court and give their evidence. If these young men had any consideration for the girls and their parents, they would have pleaded guilty last week.

'POLITICAL BUNK' SAYS DONAHEY

Ohio, Governor Claims Tale of 'Murderers' as Servants is Only Hit at Him

Cobocook, Ont., Aug 2. This is all political bunk," said Gov. Nor V. Donahey, of Columbus Ohio, when interviewed concerning two convicted murderers in his party while on a flshin; trip to Cobocook. "This news was published in last nie. I have a signed pardon in my desk for Earl Jennings, one of the murderers, and C. Zigrisi is employed as a cook."

Gov. Donahey was very indignant at the publicity the matter was given and stated that he was never so surprised in his life as when he heard of the supposed controversy over these men in his party. "Both men are trusties," he continued, and have been for over five years. These boys are not real murderers. They were convicted or second degree murder, not first. They started to fight in a pool room and in both cases two opponents were accidentally killed They aren't like thirs who har stolen and who have resisted capturee by force. I would trust them asa I do my son. I personally for these men and I know them."

Columbus, Ohio, Aug.2.—Upon hearing reports that the two Ohio convicts who accompanied Gov. Donahey to Canada, had been ordered expelled from Canada by Canadian immigration authorities, Attorney-General Crabbe of Ohio state law which permits the governor or other state officials to take convicts outside the boundaries of the state.

"Gov. Donahey", the attorney-general said, "is the first Ohio governor who has employed convicts as servants at the governor's mansion here, although trusties have been used as servants in the home of the penitentiary warden for years."

Mr. Crabbe asserted that there was nothing in the Ohio statutes that authorized the use of penitentiary prisoners in the homes of public officials or at state, or nothing prohibited it. None of the governor's servants went on the vacation trip.

LAKE BECALMED

Four Yachts Unable to Finish—Huskie and Chiriya Drop Out

(By Staff Reporter)

Massassaga Park, Aug. 3.— The third day's racing under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club gave visitors to be the best of the trip. A stiff breeze made the racing much lively and it is expected that the yachts will make excellent time.

DAISY, WINNER

The Daisy of Watertown, won from the Lady Betty, Captain McQuaig, the Gidley-Ford speed boat, in one of the fastest and closest races over the five-mile course ever witnessed in these parts. The Daisy was declared a winner by one second, whose time was, fifteen minutes and fifteen seconds. The Gidley-Ford followed right on her heels and crossed the line a second later. The boats get away to an excellent start at 10.15 this morning. The Daisy is owned by Rear Commodore Day of Crescent Yacht Club, Watertown, who congratulated Mr. McQueen on his very excellent showing. Mr. Day admitted, following the race, that he should have allowed Mr. McQueen a handicap.

The yachts went to the post and got away to a beautiful start in this afternoon's race for the Industrial Athletic cup. Thirty boats entered the contest, which was finally won by the boat at the 1st. At 2.10 the yachts were on the first leg of the journey.

DINGHY RACES

The dinghy race today resulted as follows:

Nomad, sailed by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Caldwell, first.

Fally, sailed by Miss McLean, crossed the line second, but owing to handicap may have to give way to Beard's boat for second place.

The Napanee boat finished fourth.

On the first round of the yacht races four of them were in line for first place.

Flags here are at half-mast out of respect for President Harding, who passed away last evening at 7.30.

Honor was brought to Toronto and to the R.C.Y.C. on Thursday afternoon at 4.30 when the Patricia won the Robb cup from a fleet of thirty yachts which sailed over the Big Bay course. The victory was not quite so exciting as the big contest for the G.W.V.A. cup on Tuesday afternoon, only because the wind died down about the middle of the afternoon and so calm was the bay at finishing time that three of the yachts failed to finish. The Chiriya of Kingston was towed in by motor boat, and the Huskie went dead out from the finishing point. The Temeraire was also towed in. There were practically no finishes outside that of the Scrapper of Kingston, manned by President Bruce Taylor of Queen's University and his girl crew (his three daughters), and the Swamba of R.C.Y.C. which scarcely any breeze and with heroic efforts on the part of the sailors to send the boats over the line, these two boats drifted leisurely in, barely moving, the Scrapper coming in from the north east while the Swamba sailed in almost due west. Scrapper just nosed Swamba out, winning by a matter of 57 seconds. Patricia won the Robb cup handily and also won first place handily in her own class (P Class). Bernice going over just two minutes and forty seconds after her, for second place in the class. Nutmeg was third and Swan Hallo fourth in this class.

In the yawl class, two entries, Sylvia won from Temeraire, who did not finish the race. Zoraya won the M Class quite easily from Iroquois, who came second, and Alice who dropped out. Whirl of R.H.Y.C. was in almost ole minute ahead of Kathleen in the twenty-foot class of five entries, with Kathleen of Kingston second, and Tantarum third. In class No. 8 of Star entries, Little Nell was dead easy with Clip second, Cadlie

TO INVESTIGATE SEWER TANGLE

Civic Committees Will Seek to Adjust Albert College Sewage Problem

WOULD BUY LOT

Propose Sanitary Sewer for St. Charles Street—Publicity Body Named

At a meeting of the various civic committees held last night the business transacted was chiefly of a routine nature. A number of recommendations were made and will be passed on to the Council meeting on Monday night for adoption. A special committee appointed will meet with the officials of Mikel and Alford to make a satisfactory arrangement relative to Albert College premises being connected with Geddes street sewer.

The recommendations were as follows:—

Recommended that a sanitary sewer be constructed on St. Charles St., from East Moira street to College street, same to be constructed under section 9 of the local improvement act and that the City Clerk and Engineer take the necessary proceeding to construct same.

TRENTON IS READY FOR HOME-COMING

Forty-Eighth Highlanders Will be Celebration Attraction

Trenton, Aug. 3.—There have been other large celebrations here and elsewhere, but it is doubtful if on any former occasion another city and district ever poured into which the citizens entered more heartily or which had such good prospects of success as the present celebration as the present one.

The programme is one that for quality and quantity of material, prizes offered and complexness in every detail, would be worthy of a town seven times the size of Trenton. All the superlatives of the old time circus man might be used truthfully too, to describe the abundant good time that is in store for Trenton Old Boys and Girls and their friends during Old Home Week.

The town has already put on its holiday attire in anticipation of the event. The committees are busy as bees rounding off rough corners and clearing away every detail to make sure there will be no hitch in their well planned programme.

The famous 48th Highlanders Band will arrive Saturday afternoon on the special train from Toronto. This is the band that delights large crowds at Toronto Exhibition every year and is in great demand in Toronto for all big events which will play for a big pavement dance tomorrow night and will give sacred concerts in Hanna Park Sunday.

Warren G. Harding. (left), U.S. President, who died suddenly at San Francisco last night; Calvin T. Coolidge (right), vice-president, who succeeds Harding as chief executive of United States.

New President is Former Governor of Massachusetts

New York, Aug. 3.—Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President of the United States, who automatically succeeds the late Warren G. Harding as President, was born at Plymouth, Vermont, on July 4, 1872, of old New England stock. He worked on his father's farm as a boy and through hard effort obtained an education, graduating at Amherst College and afterwards practising law at Northampton, Mass. Before being elected Vice-President of the United States in November, 1920, he was successively Mayor of Northampton, member of the State House of Representatives and the State Senate, and Lieutenant-Governor and Governor of Massachusetts. His success as Governor in dealing with the serious Boston police strike was, in the public mind, largely responsible for his being chosen as Mr. Harding's running mate. He has a wife and two sons and is known for his simple tastes.

Paris, Aug. 3.—France won a decisive victory in her diplomatic war with England over reparations today. Britain will not break off negotiations towards a common inter-allied settlement of the problem and deal directly with Germany, despite Premier Baldwin, Lord Curzon terms Poincare's reply "unsatisfactory."

Coolidge Now U.S. President, Assumes Post

Vice-President Takes Oath —Hastens to Washington —To Take Over Reins of Chief Executive

NATION SHOCKED

Death, Believed Due to Apoplexy, Occurs While Mrs. Harding is reading to President

Plymouth, Vermont, Aug. 3.—Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President of the United States took the President's oath of office in this house at 3 hours of this morning and left at 9 o'clock for Washington to take up his duties as chief executive of the country.

Palace Hotel, San Francisco, Aug. 3.—President Warren G. Harding died suddenly of apoplexy here at 7-30 last night. He was stricken while Mrs. Harding was reading to him from a magazine. Physicians were immediately summoned and pronounced the president dead. Physicians agreed that death was due to apoplexy, or rupture of a blood vessel in the brain. The death of the president came with remarkable suddeness, the president being reported as vastly improved after several examinations during the day by the five physicians attending him.

The body will be sent by special train from San Francisco at 7 p.m. to-day to Washington and later to Marion, Ohio, President Harding's Home city, for burial.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—T. Pendent died without warning to those about him. He had been particularly comfortable and Mrs. Harding was reading to him, as has been her habit, before he went to sleep.

She and the two nurses were the only persons with him at the time.

Doctors Sawyer and Boone were in the adjoining room, and local physicians were out of the hotel.

The doctors heard Mrs. Harding call and ran in.

It was just 7.30 when a secretary ran out of the President's apartment and announced the formal notice of his death. It read:

"The President died at 7.30 p.m. Mrs. Harding and the only nurse, Miss Ruth Fowderly and Miss Rose Dunner, were in the room at the time. Mrs. Harding was reading to the President, who, utterly without warning, a light shudder passed through him and he collapsed. It is all recognized that the end had come. Stroke of apoplexy was the cause of his death."

Within a few moments all of the President's official party had been summoned.

This was followed immediately by this notice signed by his physicians:

"The President died instantaneously without warning, and while conversing with members of his family, at 7.30 p.m. Death was apparently due to some brain involvement, probably apoplexy. During the day he had been free from discomfort and there was every justification for anticipating a prompt recovery."

WILL ATTEMPT TO SWIM CHANNEL

Calais, Aug. 3.—Merrault, the French - Canadian swimmer, will attempt to swim the English Channel today.

GIRL ATTACKED BY TRAMP IN FRONT STREET STORE

Members of the city police force here, searched diligently throughout last night for the tramp, who assaulted Miss Emma Barrie, fourteen-year-old clerk in the S. R. Arris grocery store, 395 Front street, on Thursday afternoon at 4.30 p.m. The search was continued today, but up until noon had been fruitless, owing no doubt, to the start the tramp had on the officers.

Entering the Arris store about 4.30 o'clock yesterday, a middle aged man with unshaven face, grey moustache and carrying a cane and soldier's kit bag, asked for a small loaf of bread. He entered by the back door, and stated that he did not have money for the loaf which he said he would purchase. The young girl refused to give him the loaf, and he seized her, rough by placing one hand over her mouth, while he beat her over the arms and head with his cane. He then took the loaf and decamped.

The frightened and injured girl became hysterical and remained in the store more than twenty minutes, before the arrival of Mrs. S. R. Arris, who had gone out of the store shortly before the arrival of the tramp.

Mrs. Arris found the girl crying on her return and on learning the nature of the trouble, called the police. The officers hurried to the store, and are still diligently searching for the man. The police request that any person seeing the man, immediately notify the police department.

When seen this morning by The Intelligencer, Miss Barrie had returned to her work, and was feeling much better after her harrowing experience. Her arms bore evidences of injuries, scratches and cuts, and were very sore.

When asked for the particulars of the episode, the young girl calmly told the details of the affair.

"I was alone in the store," she began, "when this stranger entered the store by the rear door. He was a middle aged, unshaven and carried a cane and a kit. He asked for a loaf of bread, but when he admitted that he did not have the money to pay for same, I refused to give it to him. He then said, "We'll see about this," and he grabbed me, putting one hand over my mouth, and striking me forcibly over the arms with his walking stick."

The young lady was naturally dumbfounded and did not have the presence of mind to call the police department.

England Building Against France, Her New Enemy

Great Increase in Air Force to Lead to Conflict, Says British Editor and Politician

By E. D. MOREL, M. P.

(Copyright, 1923, by the United Press and the Newspaper Publishing Union of the "Foreign Affairs", London.

CHAPTER I

London, Aug. 1. (United Press)—For the last four and a half years the writer, as many people know, paying the price of the error it allowed its statement to permeate its tissues, has been fighting for the reconstruction of peace on such terms as would not merely make another war impossible, but would make such a war speedily abhorrent to the conscience of mankind.

Having served a further and dramatic proof of that error in the shape of evidence subsequently impossible to set aside which we are being committed to fresh war preparations for further war.

For the great increase in the air force means that our next nothing else but that. And this fact may prove from which we have anything to fear in the matter of armament in France, of the most appalling case, that we are now definitely building against France.

To this day even to the truth because it is damnable would be not only foolish, but criminal. An exact recital of the situation which obtained in the years preceding the war is being produced.

Substitute France for Germany as the continental enemy and aircraft for battleships and one large you has the facts. And the failure to face with this fact is the explanation of why we are confronted at a time when a million and a quarter of our population are unemployed; when the housing problem cannot be adequately handled because of an alleged lack of funds, when the social services are starved; when we are spending about one million and a half sterling a week in preventing masses of our people from actually starving, and more than one million pounds a week in providing, on such terms as would not merely make another war impossible, but would make such a war speedily abhorrent to the conscience of mankind, when hundreds of thousands of our miners are living below subsistence level; when an unparalleled load of debt bows down the national shoulders.

And members of this labor party, happily few in number, have been known to declare that foreign policy does not matter!

Four and a half years after the close of the most annihilatingly successful struggle in our history, which we had to bring us peace, security, and prosperity, we embark once more upon the road to intensive armaments and war.

Whatever be the result of the Baldwin-Poincare conversations that is the dominating fact before which all else pales into insignificance. Surely, if experience teaches a nation anything at all, our people have had their fill. Four years of gigantic effort during which they subsidized half Europe, organized vast campaigns and spent hundreds of millions; four more years of bad trade, high taxation, unemployment and growing social unrest—and, at the end of it all—new rivalry in the latest type of killing machines with our former associates. If our people are not convinced by this experience that there must have been a radical error permeating the national policy and conduct during the past four years, they are unteachable.

What is the fundamental explanation? Where does the great error lie?

THE PERIL HIDDEN

To realize it, is to apprehend the remedy, a remedy obviously far more difficult of application today than at any other period during the past four years—but still the only one. The great error would have been patent to everyone of us long ago, but for the fact that successive governments, the vast majority of our public men, nearly the whole of the press and, substantially the entire force of organized official Christianity represented by the Churches have tacitly conspired either to hide it from the nation with deliberate intent or, with equal deliberation, to dissuade the nation from comprehending it.

The great error has consisted in the supposition that a nation conveying, like Britain, almost vital to the economy and interest of Europe, could be assailed year on year, on the "knock-out blow" principle, of men, women, and children compounding for retribution in which I have myself coming into operation.

The great error has been to imagine that the abominable treatment meted out to the Germans in the Ruhr, the starvation of the German people could persist, without serious reactions from which one's own people would suffer.

The great error has been to, as at present, allow the French and French press, through their governments, consent to this most infamous international story being written, chapter by chapter, without inviting its inevitable consequences.

The great error has been, the belief that national policy could be responsible, directly or indirectly, conscientiously or unconsciously, for oppression, cruelty, and injustice, while claiming to be inspired by motives of equity and humanity, could establish long into the whole international body a virulent poison, bound to percolate throughout its organs.

Music & Drama

GLADYS WALTON AT REGENT IN NOTABLE DRAMATIC ROLE

When Frederick Arnold Kummer wrote "The Children Pay," "Home to Roost," he must have had it in mind for a motion picture story. It has changed surprisingly into a comedy drama with an unusually punch.

The Universal screen version of the story, now showing at the Regent theatre under the title, "The Town Scandal," offers an entertainment that is humorous and appealing. The sense of humor of the author is sustained in the film play by the director, King Baggot. Gladys Walton has the leading role, that of a small town girl who made good in the chorus of a Broadway musical revue, and plays the part with ease and grace. Her dancing skill is well displayed.

The story is about a Purity League that rules a small town and dictated everything from the policy of the Commercial Club to the rules for pleasure, but which finally was forced to fold its wings by the chorus girl it tried to spurn.

Others in the cast include Edward Hearne, William Welsh, William Facey, Edward McWade, Charles Hill Mailes, Anna Hernandez, Virginia Boardman, Rose Gore, Nadine Beresford, Louise Fazenda Barnes and Margaret Morris.

"Crash," and amusing Cameo comedy, Pathe News, and a Torchy comedy were also exhibited.

BEBE DANIELS AND ANTONIA MORENO IN MILE A MINUTE ROMANCE.

The Paramount picture, "The Exciters," co-starring Bebe Daniels and Antonia Moreno, opened successfully at Griffin's Theatre yesterday, where it was greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience.

The story is a mile-a-minute tale of a mile-a-minute girl, for Ronnie Rand portrayed by Miss Daniels, was born on an express train traveling sixty miles an hour. This dismayed her Aunt Veronica, who predicted that Ronnie would be marked sure as fate. But she wasn't and she wasn't even scratched in her many daring escapades. Speed is her mania.

In order that Aunt Veronica's money should remain in the Rand family, Ronnie is required to marry before reaching the age of twenty-one. One day, she is injured in an airplane crash and she meets Pierre Martel, played by Antonio Moreno. He carries the injured girl to safety and wins her heart. But lo! He is a crook. Not until after the wedding ceremony does the girl discover this, and then—divorce? Pierre, acting by order of his confederates, demands a huge sum for the annulment of the marriage, but is only chided by Ronnie. Would he sell his wife? Then comes a smashing climax.

In the supporting cast are Burr McIntosh, Diana Allen, Cyril Ring, Bigelow Cooper, Ida Darling, Jane Thomas, Miles Bingham, Gene Richards and others. The story, adapted by John Colton and Soura Levien, was directed by Maurice Campbell.

A beautiful Travelogue of scenes of interest in British Columbia. A good comedy titled "Smarty", and another chapter of the popular continued play "The Phantom Fortune" completes the program.

THE PRELIMINARY CANTER.

The teacher was trying to explain the term "booking," as applied to the railway system.

"Now," he was saying, "can any of you tell me the name of the office at which railway tickets are sold?"

"The booking office," replied one of the lads.

"Right," responded the teacher.

At this moment his eye fell on a small boy at the end of the class who was evidently paying very little attention to what he said.

"Did you hear that, Spry?" he demanded.

"Wot, sir," asked the youth, innocently.

"As I thought—you were not listening. We will suppose your father decided to have a day's holiday and take a trip to London. What would he have to do before he could take a seat in the train?"

Without a moment's thought the youngster electrified his teacher by replying:

"Pawn his Sunday clothes."

Speaks Highly of The Home Made Cough Remedy

Says It Acts With Unusual Speed—Loosens the Mucus—Relieves The Irritation and Stops the Cough.

COSTS NEXT TO NOTHING—FOR A BIG SUPPLY.

Whenever anyone in my family catches cold and begins to cough and sneeze, and hawk and breathe heavy, it doesn't take me many minutes to fix up a remedy that will drive away each one's troubles in double quick time.

It's no secret—anyone can make a half pint of the finest cough medicine in the world for a trifling sum.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it.

But now you've got a real medicine—mind you—the first spoonful you take acts directly on the membranes of the throat and nose, the tickling ceases almost instantly—the inflammation begins to disappear—you notice the stubborn mucus and often in 24 hours every trace of the cough that frightened you is gone.

Its really remarkable how this home-made remedy acts on the mucous membrane and that is one reason it is so helpful to thousands of Catarrh sufferers.

Mexican Elections to be Test of the Republic's Stability

Murder of "Pancho" Villa May Have Important Bearing on Future of Mexico

By A. E. Bradford, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Mexico today is rapidly approaching another great test of her stability.

This test will finally come in the Presidential elections to be held in the rich Southern Republic, in August, 1924.

Already the preliminary moves in the coming elections have created a tense situation in the country below the Rio Grande.

A President is prohibited by law from succeeding himself in Mexico, and therefore President Obregon is due to turn over the reins of government to another at the inauguration in December, 1924.

General Pluto Elias Calles, minister for interior states in President Obregon's cabinet, is at present the outstanding figure in the presidential situation. He is making strenuous efforts to lay the foundation for his nomination for President by the Cooperatists party, the strongest in Mexico.

However, Calles is said to be meeting with strong opposition. It is declared that his activities in the interest of his candidacy for President are being strongly resisted by those who regard him as too much of a radical.

Adolfo de la Huerta, the minister of finance in Obregon's Cabinet, is another outstanding figure in the Presidential situation although it is understood that as yet he has taken no definite steps. De la Huerta's friends are said to be pressing him to seek the nomination.

A final clash between the forces of Calles and de la Huerta is foreseen by some quarters here in close touch with the Mexican situation. However, to avoid open hostilities, a "dark horse" might be selected.

Also, the assassination of "Pancho" Villa, Mexico's famous bandit chieftain, comes at a time when the dec ding cheapened, although having lived as a "country gentleman" since the fall of President Obregon's regime, was beginning to have an increasingly important position in the Mexican presidential situation.

Villa, shortly before his death, is said to have sent word to de la Huerta, urging the latter not to allow himself to be "bluffed" by Calles, and indicating that he, Villa, would support de la Huerta. It is claimed that Villa's supporters and sympathizers embrace half the northern states of Mexico, with the exception of Sonora, and that, therefore, "Pancho" held the balance of power.

Particularly was Villa's position said to be powerful because of his military strength. There was a large number of ex-soldiers ready to rally to his banner. Besides, Villa is supposed to have had large stores of arms and ammunition.

Villa is said to have declared not long before his death that if Calles became president, he, Villa, would retire from the country.

In view of the present state of affairs developing in Mexico and the fact that already there have been some armed clashes over the political situation, it is believed probable here that both the Harding Administration in Washington and President Obregon in Mexico City want to have the differences between the two countries settled and recognition extended as soon as possible because of the possibility that a satisfactory settlement impossible once a crisis has developed over the Mexican presidential elections.

According to quarters here opposed to the candidacy of Calles, President Obregon about two months ago, feeling that the presence of his minister of interior affairs in Mexico City might embarrass the negotiations for the so-called "recognition conference" there, sent Calles to San Francisco on a mission.

Calles, however, did not remain long in San Francisco, soon returning to Mexico and going to Vera Cruz to see Vo Leon. In the recent election of governor of that state there were three candidates, Porfirio Gonzales, Aaron Peres and Aaron Saenz, the last a friend of Calles. Gonzales is reported to have received a majority of the votes.

Said to have been inspired by Calles, Saenz contested the election and Calles' visit to Nuevo Leon is declared to have been for the purpose of rounding up the legislature to declare Gonzales' election void. Gonzales is supposed to have the backing of de la Huerta.

Calles is said to be further embroiled at lack of support for his candidacy from President Obregon. However, Obregon is understood to take the attitude that he will refuse to have any part in either the presidential nominations or elections and will give his support to no particular candidate. But this is interpreted by Calles' friends as meaning that Obregon is opposed to him.

General Calles also is charged with attempting to dictate the elections in the State of San Luis Potosi, where his candidate for governor is Gen. Pedro Prieto Laurens, opposed by Aurelio Manrique, a member of the National Congress and a supporter of de la Huerta. As the result of the deep feeling in this campaign, several armed clashes have taken place.

Are Women Overworked

Yes, hundreds of thousands of them are. This applies to the housewife and mother who struggles on a small income to make both ends meet by doing all the washing, ironing, cooking, making and mending for a large family. There are others who not only support themselves working in factories, shops, stores and offices, but often have an invalid father or mother to support, therefore do housework besides. These are the women who break down early and are afflicted with various forms of female weakness. Nine-tenths out of every 10 women who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have proved that it is a successful remedy for woman's ills. For nearly fifty years it has been restoring women to health, and it will pay every ailing woman to try it.

With a Brunswick in your home you can play—and play correctly—all the world's recorded music. And at the same time the cabinet is one in which you will feel justifiable pride.

"SHAM BATTLE STAGED

Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment staged a sham fight on Macaulay's mountain, near Picton. The contending forces were in Dr. Herring-ton's woods and McKinley's woods. Blank cartridges were used and the make-believe battle was quite exciting. When the men left the field they were greeted by Captain Mrs. Goodwin and a corps of Salvation Army lasses and treated to doughnuts and lemonade in precisely the same manner as the soldiers were treated on leaving the trenches in Flanders. The alcation Army's manoeuvre was quite successful but was greatly appreciated by the officers and men.

HOSPITAL STATISTICS

The annual report of the Inspector of prisons and public charities says the hospital and charitable institutions of the Province of Ontario shows that there are 110 public and 43 private hospitals in the province. The number of patients admitted during the year ending September 30, 1922, was 113,845.

The capacity in beds of the general hospital at Belleville is given as 60 in the report. The capacity of the cottage hospital at Cobourg is 24 and of the Nicholls Hospital at Peterborough, 90. The Belleville institution appears well in this comparison.

The number admitted to the Belleville hospital during the year ending September 30, 1922 was 1, 315. The number admitted to the Cobourg institution was 470 and to the Peterborough hospital 1,176.

Belleville report shows, of incoming and outgoing patients during the year, the collective days' stay of patients was 16,745, exclusive of indigent under one year of age. The total cost of maintenance was $72,697.94. At Cobourg the total maintenance cost was $54,125.78, with a collective days' stay figure of 14,997. At Peterborough the collective days' stay figure was 16,348 and the total maintenance cost was $135,261.66. Here again the Belleville general hospital shows up particularly well. The average cost of each patient per day, including cost of dietary was: Belleville, $3.91; Cobourg, $3.86; Peterborough, $4.42.

With the Cobourg and Peterborough institutions selected for purposes of fair comparison the statistics pertaining to the local hospital and relation to those of the other two should prove interesting in view of the slight difference of opinion which has arisen regarding the local affairs of the Belleville general hospital. With the exception of the figures on the daily cost per patient, Belleville appears to advantage and the statistical triumph of Cobourg is lost in the general expense figures.

Hospitals are necessary adjuncts to society and, since a patient's chances of recovery frequently hinge upon the facilities and services of the institution in which the patient is housed, it is impossible to measure the value of a hospital in financial terms. The life of a person, whether a day-old baby or one past the allotted three score and ten, cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Hence, there should be no limit, within reason, to the interest in, and assistance to our hospitals and their unfortunate inmates, who invariably pay for hospital services all that their resources permit.

THE OPPORTUNITY

The eyes of a large section of the sporting world of North America are focused on Belleville just now. A racking expert has termed the regatta now in progress in Big Bay the greatest in 25 years. Belleville's task is to grasp the opportunity afforded by the glare of publicity, to perpetuate as much of the prominence achieved as possible.

The yachtsmen must be given credit for "putting the city on the map"—as a yachting centre and the yachtsmen must be taken by others when the yachtsmen's mission has been performed. Other mediums can readily be found.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

The growth of a city must be measured by its industrial development. As Industrial Commissioner Herity has pointed out, the industrial growth of Belleville has been fairly satisfactory during the past few years and the prospects are remarkably bright. Unfortunately, there have been some disappointments, but a number of industries brought to the city are prospering satisfactorily.

The J. & J. Cash Company will begin operations in its plant, now being housed in the Grier Street School building, by the latter part of August. The Marvel Equipment Company of Cleveland will establish a plant here within a few weeks.

The addition of these two plants will materially augment the productive volume of the Belleville city. Aside from the intrinsic benefit accruing the influence and example provided should result in more rapid development, the growth in such cases usually progressing by a ratio of geometrical progression. The proper spirit of co-operation will assist materially in the work of industrial development.

PRESS OPINIONS

ABSENCE OF LAUGHTER.

(Guelph Mercury)

The London Sketch says a man should laugh every fifteen minutes to keep in good health. It's a wonder there's anybody living in the world today at all, for a good, healthy laugh isn't heard sometimes for a whole week or a month.

ON THE QUI-VIVE

(Montreal Le Canada)

The Government counts with reason on the support in this campaign of the many clubs and associations for motoring, whom they will endeavor to persuade that it is to their interest first, and afterwards to that of the pedestrian, to be always on the qui-vive and to drive with prudence. The provincial roads should not be transformed into speed tracks, any more than the streets in our cities, where the danger is already great. Our authorities should use drastic measures against those who consciously transgress the law.

By The Side Of The Road

The Pennsylvania man, who was arrested by state troopers while transporting alcohol in a hearse, expressed his disgust in emphatic terms.

Yet in connection with the illicit liquor traffic a hearse is quite appropriate. The Pennsylvania man was somewhat previous, that's all. It was a white hearse, too, which is eloquent of white mule in its interests.

It is rumored that William Hohenzollern, who will be remembered in sporting circles as the former champion of the "Deutschland Uber Alles" movement, is the proud papa of another little Hohenzollern. They must have been cutting up with Hoke at Chatham. But then the stand residents of Chatham are so prim and old-fashioned, you know, they can't expect energetic young people to keep themselves swathed in clothes on warm summer evenings at the beach, even if they don't stay in the water all the time. The idea of a photographer appearing on the scene to "get" Hoke is no permitted to photograph scenes at our charming beach resorts let it be Mack Sennett. He can use the photographs to advantage.

ONE WITH US

(Brooklyn Eagle)

In the long run a policy of negation will be as costly to this country as it has been to Great Britain. We can no more ignore what is happening in the Ruhr than the British. Morally, economically and in every other way we are hopelessly involved in this situation. So for we have been unable to take the initiative in effecting a settlement but it is to be hoped that this government will support Great Britain in any definite plan that has for its purpose the ending of the present intolerable conditions.

ENGLAND A PAWN

(London Morning Post)

The only theory so far presented which covers the facts is that prohibition in America has become a political issue of acutest tension on both sides. People in this country are extremely reluctant to draw the obvious inference that England and other foreign nations are being exploited by America as pawns in the game of domestic politics; but a wealth suggest that, in the interests of international comity, the American Government should make a statement on the matter without delay.

BACK TO THE HOME

(Charleston Mail)

If it is not one thing, it is another. Man can never, it seems, hit the right balance. Some time ago he was to get the man to stay at home, how to wean him from the club and the saloon and from other attractions that made him somewhat of a stranger in his own home.

Now some one has discovered that man is becoming too much of a home animal. The radio and the comforts of home have been made so attractive that he is inclined to spend his nights there, and possibly some of his days when he is not called away by the necessity of bread-winning.

The churches are said to be suffering from this new instinct acquired suddenly by man of sticking to his home and fireside. Perhaps now the radio is not a universal home equipment and can not alone account for the home-staying mood in man.

A REVELATION FO RMISTRESS

The second day after the new cook came her new mistress found a basin in the scullery half full of soap.

"That's wasteful," she said. "When you wash your hands take out the soap and throw away the water."

EASILY WON

The biggest liar in the country was strolling through an orchard with his friend. Pointing to a tree covered with hundreds of red apples, the friend remarked:—

"I'll bet you a box of cigars you can't tell me a lie for every apple on that tree."

"Just a moment," broke in the fabricator de luxe. "Before we go any further, I wish to inform you that those are not apples. They're bananas!"

He won the cigars then and there.

Before our agrarian population had taken as enthusiastically to the automobile, two farmers drove into town in an old spring wagon pulled by a very bony nag. The little burg had just been incorporated, and among sign at the town line: "Speed limit 15 miles an hour." Observing this, the driver began whipping up his steed vigorously.

"What's yo' hurry?" demanded his companion in mild astonishment.

"See that sign?" returned the other. "But I dunno if I can make it or not."

L.Y.R.A. rendezvous at Belleville Saturday is certainly a huge success. Judging by last year's experience at Prince's Bay, where the fleet was marooned forty miles from anywhere with no wind for racing during the day, some cyclonic outbursts at night, belleving in a chunk of Paradise. Consequence Wilie may not have much of a racing fleet, but he is big chief of the tribe of hustlers who are giving the visitors a bigger time than they gave Jonah. Commodore Willis and his trusty henchmen, W. E. Schuster, G. L. Wills, Peter Ballard, Ernest and B. L. Hyman, have roused the old town out of its quiet. The "village" is all decked out, and bunting and smokers are keeping the sailors busy all the spare time ashore. There were eighty boats at Mississauga Point to see the start and finish of the race, and four or five thousand thronged the park to see the contests. It is without doubt the greatest L.Y.R.A. rendezvous since 1900. Any time the Belleville Club asks for an L.Y.R.A. meet the opposition will have a tough time. Thirty-four boats started in yesterday's races, and every yacht club from Gananoque on the east, where Jack Bullock is commodore and the good ship Anona, Let, the flag ship, to the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club on the west, on both sides of the lake is represented. The Crescent Yacht Club of Watertown, rowed to a high pitch of enthusiasm over Hankins defense of the George Cup, is particularly well represented. Of course the Toronto clubs outnumbered all the only racing boats, but still every club on the lakes has one or more racing boats in the contest.—Star.

Even with several weeks of baseball head of us and with many an inning yet in the dim distance, the thought of many local sport lovers are beginning to revolve around the question of Kingston in the O.H.A. this winter. Many delicious rumors have been floated around recently, although this mighty good goal-tender was for our colors just a day or two ago, and a fighting team, and a winning one, may at last be gathered after many years of waiting.—Whig.

The Kingston C.O.B.I. team has a real fighting chance of finishing on top for the second half because were yet, and with Manager Derry becoming more familiar every day with his players, it would be no great surprise if Peterboro should be forced into a play-off.

The city league managers and officials have many troubles and difficulties to overcome, and it's not always plain sailing on the diamond or in the executive either. But when it's a case of pushing a cause like the Hepburn boards came, every petty trouble is laid aside, and it's a case of "united they stand."—Whig.

Syracuse is apparently through as an International League prospect. The indications are that Montreal will replace that city in the league next year. The Quebec metropolis should never have dropped in the first place. John Dunn of Baltimore is the man who was responsible for the shelving of Montreal. He has always considered that Montreal was too expensive a proposition on account of the extra travelling costs entailed. It was Dunn who wielded Richmond, Akron and then Syracuse on the league—all failures.

The accident to Outfielders Wolfe and Collins in the fourth was a regrettable one, but it could have been avoided had Solomon called the play-er to take the fly. Each of the players shouted at each other, but both kept right on and the bump was a bad one.—Standard.

A number of fans remarked that if Solomon had saved some of the talling effort he had directed at the umpires and had directed it at Wolfe and Collins when they were coming together, the accident would not have happened.

Terpell had only two plays during the evening and he took them nicely.

Nicholson and Johnston divided the batting honors, each getting a perfect average. Somerville was the next best hitter.

McElroy's balk caused a lot of argument by Solomon but it did not get him anything. Butler was firm in his decision.—Standard.

Messrs. Butler and Barnes were in charge of the game and their decisions were, on the whole, received with satisfaction by the local fans. On a couple of occasions Solomon made vociferous objections to Butler's calls, and the crowd grew impatient with the arbiter for not benching the Peterboro manager. The umpire was obliged to stop the game for several minutes on each occasion, while Jakie gesticulated and argued, a proceeding that should not be tolerated. Solomon should be given to understand that he is not the whole show, and should be kept in his place. On neither occasion did he gain anything by his objections.—Standard.

In a game of ball in which the Peterboro team did not at any time show the class of ball which has characterized former games, and especially that of Saturday last, the local overwhelmed them at the ball park last evening by the one-sided score of fifteen to two. The score just about indicated the play. Kingston was playing good ball at all times, while the showing made by the Petes was anything but pleasing to the fans. Their style was listless, errors were frequent, and many balls went for hits which would have been outs with anything like the snappy play which they have shown on former occasions.

The game was marred by a serious accident when Wolfe and Collins collided in right centre on Bunnerville's fly, and both were stretched out motionless after the ball had dropped safely. Teammates and members of the Kingston team hurried to their assistance, and "Johnny" Evans made a quick trip across from the Kingston bench, and it was some time before either of the injured players showed signs of reviving. Wolfe was the first to get up, and Collins followed in a short time, and as both players came back to the Peterboro bench they were loudly applauded by the crowd. Both were sent to their hotel and their places were taken by Turner and Heckman, respectively.—Standard

TRUNKS AND PETES GIRD LOINS FOR TITANIC CONTEST TOMORROW

Victory Will Virtually Put Second Half in Cupboard For Winning Team

The titular battle for the second half takes place at Riverside Park, Peterboro, tomorrow afternoon when the Trunks hook up with the Petes. Both teams are running neck and neck and a win for either will practically decide the second half. The Trunks are sure of figuring in the play-off but to insure the championship of the "Big Four" as WINNER who go to Montreal over will perform on the hillock.

"Big Dewey" may possibly be able to get back in the game. He has a steadying effect upon the boys and his presence is badly needed. Brownscombe will likely remain at short-stop.

"Al" Heckman will do the gunning for the homesters. Jakies team made a bad bungle in Kingston, having fourteen errors chalked up against them. Wolfe and Collins will both likely be in the game as their injuries were not such as to keep them on the bench. The team leave at 7.50 to-morrow morning and a host of fans will no doubt accompany them together with the best wishes of those remaining at home. Dick Butler and Cliff Soundy are scheduled.

SOFT BALL.

Printers and Grand Trunks clash tonight at the High School grounds at 6.15 in what should prove one of the best games of the season. The typos have been practising hard for this game. Stan Nurse and Dan Prechette are billed to officiate.

The batting order of the Printers is as follows:—

Scott, ss; Mason, p; Stoco, 1b; Wiley, 2b; Hardwick, Lf; Cooke, c; Spearse, rf; Barlow, 3b; Curry, cf. S. Vandervoort and Hill spares.

RACE CALLED OFF.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The first race in the inter-city regatta (Winnipeg and Montreal) was called off yesterday afternoon one hour and 34 minutes after the start. At that time Red Patch II. was leading by about one minute. The second race is scheduled to start at 2 p.m.

Do You Know?

Q. Was the report circulated some time ago that Ted Kid Lewis had committed suicide, true?

F. D.

A. Apparently the report was not true as Lewis has been very prominent recently around his former haunts in London.

Q. Is betting on horse races legal in England?

H. N. M.

A. Betting on horse racing is not legal at the present time, though betting has been permitted as a government tax on betting, which if adopted, might be constructed as at least an unofficial legalization of betting.

Q. Have Yale and Harvard agreed to call off the boat race next summer in favor of the trials for the Olympic team?

B. B.

A. No official statement have been issued, but it is understood that Yale and Harvard crew committee would not agree to suggestion of the American Olympic committee on the ground that the race would not prevent either crew from entering the trial races and that such a stiff test as the annual four-mile race would get either crew that wanted to enter the trials in better shape for them.

Q. "Is not the Scion and newspaper writing fame as by William T. Tilden a violation of the amateur rules?"

L. T. C.

A. No. The United States Lawn Tennis Association ruled that a tennis player could write articles or stories about the game as long as he actually wrote the copy and did not merely loan his name to another author. The association does not allow players to assume actual reportorial work on a tournament, however.

Q. "Is it likely that the baseball rule makers will do something this winter to curb the abuse of the intentional pass?"

G. B. B.

A. It is likely that something would be done if the legislators knew what to do to stop it.

A. Johnny Wilson the middleweight champion, is a southpaw.

Zeal for Jumping Kills a Thoroughbred

London (By mail to United Press).—A real race-horse paid with its life for a little private jumping practice at Aldershot camp.

The horse, belonging to Lieut. D. O. Blake, 12th Hussars, was a well-known blooded steeplechaser, and recently won the 13th Hussars Challenge Cup.

It disappeared from its stable. It was known to be an enthusiastic jumper and soldiers sent towards the nearby Tweseldown racecourse to look for it. They found it hanging from the fork of a tree.

The horse, in jumping a hedge in sight of the course, went too high and caught its neck in the fork. It was strangled to death before it could be cut down.

A FEW RULES FOR SWIMMERS

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 3 (United Press).—Gene McGuire, noted life guard at Kansas City swimming pools in summer, and at Miami beach in the winter, gave the following rules for swimmers:

Don't enter the water until at least two or three hours after eating. Dangerous cramps may result from violation of this rule.

Don't make foolish boasts.

Don't dive off high places without first learning to dive from lower ones; a dive timed incorrectly is dangerous.

Don't get excited when a cramp seizes you; a cramp in feet or arms may be massaged away.

Don't call for help in fun.

HOLY GROUND.

(Alaska St. John Adcock, in the Royal Magazine.)

No stone may stay of country lanes,
The white cliffs set the sea,
And, threw a street in Camberwell
What's good enough for me,
Iron street, a dingy street
That dies in dingy alleys,
Or see it leads to Paradise—
Can also lives there.

No stone may stay of London halls,
The chestnut and the plane,
And there's a garden in Camberwell
Of thronging three score lanes;
Narrow street, of common feet
Beneath a lamplight's glare;
One spring stamp of holy ground—
The kissed we greet.

No stone may stay of foreign parts,
The statesman and the sage,
But though I travelled 'round the world
I'd find my heritage.

To a little street, a shabby street,
And would no longer roam,
Bounded with all my wanderings—
At home come home.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

CHAPTER XIII.

"It is impossible that I should be constrained to be modest," remarked Elton as the footman sauntering in Bond's room after dinner.

"Is that an apology, or merely a statement of fact?" asked Lady Tangara.

"I think," remarked Patricia quietly, "that it is an apology."

Elton looked across at her with one of those quick movements of his eyes that showed how alert his mind was, and in spite of the languid ease of his manner.

"And you," continued Patricia, "have something very important to say to you all."

"Quite," groaned Lady Tangara, "apart me from the self-importance of the newly-engaged girl."

"I've come to my knowledge, Tangara," proceeded Patricia, "that you and Mr. Elton did deliberately and willingly conspire together against my peace of mind and happiness. There!" she added, "that's almost to put in the modern fact!"

Lady Tangara and Elton exchanged glances.

"What do you mean?" demanded Lady Tangara gaily.

Patricia explained that she had certain facts in her knowledge. Tangara looked reproachfully at her brother-in-law. "I thought you said you wouldn't tell," she said with unwonted seriousness!

"I saw that was the only way to—well, get you for a sister-in-law," said he paused a moment incongruously, "and I thought it was good for that silly old thing there, who was pondering up the whole business."

"Your concern for the welfare of other people's affairs will be your ruin, Tangara," said Patricia as she stood before the fire, apparently enquiring if he had any excuse to offer.

"The old Garden of Eden answer," he said. "The woman tempted me."

"Then we will apply the old Garden of Eden punishment," announced Patricia.

Elton, who was the first to grasp her intention, looked apprehensive. Lady Tangara, who with knitted brows was endeavouring to penetrate to the bottom of matters was curiously at sea. Suddenly Lady Tangara's face flamed and her eyes popped out. Elton, with the smack of his head, a habit he had when preoccupied—he was never accurate—said: "You two," continued Patricia now thoroughly enjoying herself, "have precipitated yourselves into my private affairs, and in return I am going to take a hand in yours. Peter has asked me, I will marry him, and I will tell him after dinner this evening."

Brows knitted across at her eagerly Elton lit another cigarette, Lady Tangara toyed nervously with her cigarette-holder.

"I will marry Peter," announced Patricia, "when you, Tangara," she paused slightly, "marry Audrey Elton."

Lady Tangara looked up with a startled cry. Her eyes were wide with something that seemed almost fear, then without warning she turned and bottled her head in a cushion and burst into uncontrollable sobbing.

Bowes appeared. With a swift movement Patricia went over to his side and, before he knew what was happening, had him in the corridor chattering his astonishment to Patricia.

For an hour the two sat in the lounge below, talking and listening to the band. Patricia explained to Bowes how, from across the hall, she had known that Elton and Tangara were in love.

"But we've known him all our lives!" expostulated Bowes.

"The very thing that blinded you all is the most obvious fact."

"But why didn't he—?" began Bowes.

"Because of her money," explained Patricia.

"Anyhow," she continued gaily, "I had lost my own tail, and I wasn't going to see Tangara wagging hers before my eyes. Now that's up and see what has happened."

Just as Bowes's head was on the handle of the sitting-room door, Patricia cried out that she had dropped a ring. When they entered the room Elton and Lady Tangara were standing facing the door. One glance at their faces told Patricia all she wanted to know. Without a word Elton came forward and bending low, kissed her hand. There was something so touching in his act of deference that Patricia felt her throat contract.

She swung round to Lady Tangara and put her arm around her.

"You darling," whispered Lady Tangara. "How clever of you to know!"

"I knew the first time I saw you together," whispered Patricia.

Lady Tangara hugged her.

"And now we must all run round to Grosvenor Square. Poor Mother—what a surprise for her."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

YOUR BOY OR GIRL.

You have a growing boy or girl and as you watch them eat, you sometimes wonder just how much they can hold.

You give them helpings at first of some one vegetable and yet they are back for more: more meat, more vegetables, more dessert, and yet the one helping has been sufficient for you.

You compare their frame with your own and thereby come to the conclusion that they must be eating too much.

How are you right?

Not likely.

You see the youngster, if in his or her teens, as a frame almost as large as your own, but he has something more. He has growing ability and you have not. Thus when we think of material going into the body, that is food and liquids, we remember that nearly 60 per cent is to maintain heat, and the other 20 per cent is to perform work.

That is what your food does for you.

Now what about the youngster?

He has to maintain heat for a body almost as large as ours, and often does as much work or play as you do, and therefore he needs materials to provide growth for his body. So this extra need of his is supplied by the extra amount of food he consumes.

And just here let me advise parents to teach their youngsters to eat everything, I mean every kind of food. A little meat, or eggs, plenty of vegetables and a fair amount of butter and milk. Don't let them be "picky" about their eating. If they play or work hard let them have plenty of eggs and some meat every day. These foods are builders.

BUSINESS SHOWS MARKED GAINS

Business in Canada the past year and a half has pursued a course practically independent of the United States. On the whole conditions in Canada are more favourably forward and there has been an entire absence of any tendency to "boom" conditions. Taking into consideration the character of developments in the respective fields the assumption is warranted that in the future, as in the immediate past Canada will be affected only indirectly by conditions which may prevail in the United States. Conditions in the Dominion are fundamentally sound and big developments may be expected over the next few years.

Considering all affecting conditions it would seem quite logical that we may expect a period of long continued prosperity in the building industry by reason of a well maintained demand for new structures. It will take several years to catch up on the delayed building due to the war, and for some time after that, it will keep the building trades busy trying to keep step with the vigorous growth of the Dominion.

During July, construction contracts awarded in Canada amounted to $30,262,200 compared with $20,994,200, a year ago. Residential building amounted to $9,402,200. Business building amounted to $7,776,600, or 30.8% Industrial building $1,781,000 or 7.3% Public works and utilities $10,852,100 or 43.9% The total for the seven months to end of July was $160,760,200.

In the R Class of two yachts, all but Chiriya and Huskie finished the race, Lillian E., winner of the G.W. V.A. cup, winning the race without difficulty from Nayads, both R.C.Y.C. boats. Riowna was third. The Ontario and Winona (once around yawls) was a victory for the former.

R Class, Yawl Class, A Class, P Class were all around inside course, which is 8 9-3 miles in length. All other classes in the race went once around.

When the first class started at 1.30 p.m. there was a fair breeze blowing but clouds began to pile up and the Bay became misty-like and a thunder storm threatened for a time. The south breeze continued, and the storm passed off to the north. Then it was the wind began to die down, and from that time until after the finish of the race the bay was almost ripplcless. Then after six a slight wind and some showers what had threatened all afternoon, visiting the scene of the day's fun.

Six dinghies entered and finished in the dinghy race yesterday afternoon, which resulted in the way the sailed order as they did at the finish of Wednesday's race with the exception that Miss Rapsons dinghy, which was first Wednesday, jumped to fourth position yesterday, George Caldwell's Nonsuch being fourth on both the stranger. The Wallbridge entry, the new one, was last.

DANCE AT PAVILION.

Last night at the Massassaga Park pavilion, an informal dance was held for the yachtsmen and their friends. The spacious pavilion was crowded to the doors, and the yard about the park grounds was thronged with motor cars. Excellent music was supplied by the orchestra and a most jolly time resulted.

Large crowds attended the races yesterday afternoon, everyone being

The total elevator capacity of Port Arthur and Fort William will reach 55,000,000 bushels by September of this year. By the end of 1924 the elevator capacity is expected to reach seventy millions.

Immigration returns of the Canadian Government for the first three months of the present year show a considerable increase in immigration from the British Isles over 1922. Figures for the same period of last year are not available.

The 1923 apple crop of the Okanagan Valley will amount to 4,429 cars according to the estimate of W. T. Hunter, district horticulturist. This is an increase of 30 per cent over last year and a record for the district. The apple crop for Kootenay and boundary districts will approximate 650,000 boxes.

A new high record of production was established by the Canadian newsprint mills during May with 110,253 tons, an increase of nearly 10,000 tons over the month of April and 19,000 over May of last year. The daily production in May was 4,064 tons, the highest in the history of the Canadian industry.

Following the opening of the Banff-Windermere Motor Highway, Lieutenant Governor Archibald of British Columbia and Randolph Bruce were honored by the Rocky Mountain Park Board, made them an honorary chief and full chieftain of the Stoney Indians. Two days of Indian celebrations were held at Indian Days Park in the beautiful Windermere Valley.

If the Canadian two-way exports of flour and feed continue to 1926, the Dominion's average export total between 1921 and 1927 will be considered as 207. Comparatively, two-way exports of United States being rated at 100, its present estimate is at the rate of 200. This indicates that Canada has more than doubled her export trade in flour while the United States has increased its trade by 47 per cent. Before the war Canada exported 3,832,000 barrels, while at present her exports are about 7,000,000 barrels a year.—Journal of Commerce.

RACE IN DETAIL.

In the sailing of the yacht races yesterday for the Robb cup a large following of Americans were hoping to see Lieutenant repeat his victories, but they are a badly disappointed lot to-day. Chiriya of Kingston also has not lived up to the reputation she has made on the lake. She was out of to-day's race altogether. There is one more chance for these two to get their colors flying, and it is up to them to step up. It certainly looks after all as if they were not so badly out in our prophesies for the George Cup race, and local knowledge may have been a large factor in Nayada's defeat than we were inclined to acknowledge. The boat making the fastest time over the course to-day was also the winner of the Robb Cup, a magnificent silver trophy that last year was won by Commodore Jarvis with Hanwell. To-day the honor goes to Skipper T. K. Wade, who with Patricia made the round for the day's racing. It looked as though Zorya might have a chance but she started five minutes ahead of Patricia, and also had to follow her fame, and just managed to beat her by two minutes, as Wade was the first over P class race and also the Robb Cup.

Sylvia, of Kingston gave a sound licking this year has been great. There is real enthusiasm.

Zorya takes the lead of her class, the veteran cruisers from Iroquois, Alice and Medora, and one only kept that place that smart work at the line gave her, but increased it and showed the way to the rest of the fleet the whole way over the course. Iroquois made a game fight for second place and at times showed some of her earlier days speed. This was noticeable when down the wind, but at her spot she was no match for Cliff Mitchell's Patricia. Patricia is a "bald headed" schooner, owned and sailed by Mr. Stuart Lansing of Watertown. She is a fine boat, well designed, but for luxury and comfort below deck she is the last word in the fleet. In third Medora of Toronto dropped out at the end of the first round.

P. boats were sent off next, five minutes after the veterans, and Skipper Bert Sweet in Scrapper had the first of the smoke blow away, well to weather and ahead of Bernice. Nutmeg was a good second and Italia third. Italia had to go back and start over again. She had company, as Italia was late in crossing the line. She is reported to have had a brush, but Nutmeg soon pulled away and went after the flying Bernice who was doing her best to come up with Patricia. All the way down the first leg of the triangle these three boats were doing their best to overhaul the port, balloon jibs and spinnackers, and from the skill of experienced sailors could think of either to overhaul or to maintain position, was resorted to, but Wade's boat was fast. In fact was never once overcome throughout the day. Nutmeg nearly had Bernice at the first buoy, Cockerton not being much for MacGregor and he was forced to drop to her old place of third. Italia was on the wrong side of the buoy.

From the start the race was practically a two-boat race. It was a hard fight with Commodore Lansing and Mr. Wade. There was no rest for Patricia with Bernice's crew in her quarter, so to speak, for nearly the whole race and so let up or chance for either skipper or for any of the members of the crews but both in the windward work and while reaching. Patricia had the edge of her rival, and little by little increased her lead, finally winning by a little over two minutes.

Electricity Bad For the Nerves

By John O'Brien, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Aug. 3 (United Press).—Electricity is bad for the health, according to Professor Charles Nordmann, of the University of Paris. Inhabitants of cities like New York and Paris, where the development of electricity for transportation and lighting has been enormous in the last twenty years, are more exposed to nervous diseases than people living in little towns where oil and gas fill all the essential needs.

Professor Nordmann bases his belief on the fact that the human nerve is one of the most efficient conductors of electricity. Every manifestation of electric energy has a reaction on the human organism. Every time there is a variation in an electric current, that is to say, every time we telephone, or send a telegram, or start a street car, or light an electric lamp, we alter a series of counter-currents in our bodies.

"Electric currents," writes Professor Nordmann, "have varied effects on the nerves, on the muscles, on our thoughts. Sometimes they may produce alerty, sometimes even agitate, times neurasia. These effects are dependent on the strength of the current and its duration. Dwellers in cities are more or less 'electrucuted,' according to the length of time they have lived there."

Globe, Ariz., Aug. 3 (United Press).—Violins made from century plants and horsehair were used in a "mountain contest" of Indian fiddlers at a trial celebration held at Bylas on the Gila River near here.

Britain May Fix Duty On Barley

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The announcement that the British Government is considering the imposition of a customs duty upon barley has aroused much interest here owing to the opportunity a preference under it would give to the Canadian grower. Already there is a trade in this grain between Canada and the United Kingdom, and it is regarded as probable that a preference might lead to a considerable further development. Quite recently the department of trade and commerce made inquiries for barley from British sources.

The average production of barley in Canada during the last decade is placed at 44,000,000 bushels by officials authorities, and of this amount some 18,000,000 bushels have been exported. Of the Canadian exports about eight per cent., or approximately 1,500,000 bushels, already go to Great Britain.

THREE HURT WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

Campbellford, Aug. 2.—Bert Nicholson, Jack Simmonds and Harold Nicholson, Hilton, sustained at the week end when a C.N.R. Wednesday evening were run into by east bound freight at Centre street crossing and narrowly escaped death.

Simmonds was badly cut about the head while Nicholson and Nicholson were only slightly bruised. How any one escaped instant death is a mystery as the car was completely demolished.

Jack Simmonds home is in Harwood. Bert Nicholson formerly resided in Havelock and Harold Nicholson is a Campbellford boy.

Dr. E. F. Richardson responded promptly to a hurry call and had the injured men removed to his residence near by. Simmonds injuries consisted of two bad cuts in back of head, cut over left eye, thrust gouged by wire or some sharp instrument and right cheek badly cut together with body bruises. He was removed to his boarding house later where he is reported to be doing nicely. The other men were only badly bruised and escaped little the worse of the shake up.

The need of proper protection at this crossing was evidenced by Wednesday night's accident and the matter will come up for discussion at the next meeting of the Town Council.

Great credit is due the train crew who gave every assistance to the injured men.

CROP PROSPECTS STRONG FACTOR

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The increase in immigration to Canada during the first three months of the present fiscal year, amounting to 43 per cent. more than for the same period a year ago, is accompanied by indications of a return movement from the United States, according to officials of the department of immigration and colonization.

Reports reaching the department indicate that there has already been a considerable movement of returning Canadians who in recent months were attracted to the United States by the industrial prosperity then existing in that country.

The prospect of a record crop in Canada, with improved industrial conditions and the northward movement of the wave of prosperity is already reflected in admissions at United States border points.

ONE MAN KILLED.

Ohio Man Swims Across Lake Erie

Cleveland, O., Aug. 3.—Lake Erie has been bridged by a swimmer.

Carlos Walker, of the Central Y.M.C.A., Cleveland, accomplished the feat yesterday morning at 5.30 o'clock when he reached Lorain Harbor lighthouse, totally exhausted after his swim from Point Pelee lighthouse, Canada, a distance of 54 miles.

Walker completed his swim with only a rowboat for convoy. His only food, after the first few hours was sugar, a beef broth taken along by the rowers, copies. He had no compass to guide him, only the sun and stars, as the yacht Argus, which was to accompany him, lost him near Pelee Island. It was thought to be lost for some time, but landed at Lorain early this afternoon.

Walker's time was twenty hours fifteen minutes. He started at 9.15 a.m. Wednesday.

IMMIGRANTS WRECKED.

Barre, Vermont, Aug. 3.—A Canadian special immigrant train southbound ran head-on into a local passenger train on the Central Vermont Railway north of East Granville injuring several passengers of the local though not seriously.

Ottawa Inactive In Convict Case

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Action on the part of the Dominion Government in connection with the bringing into Canada by the governor of Ohio of two "fugitive" will depend, according to W. J. Black, deputy minister of immigration, upon the result of an investigation which has been instituted by the department.

"In the meantime," said Dr. Black, "we have nothing to say."

The incident has created a considerable stir at the capital, and it is considered possible that complications of an interesting character may ensue.

It is believed that steps will be taken by the authorities to see that the immigration law bearing on the matter is carried out.

The immigration law not only prohibits the entry of those who have been convicted of crime, but provides that if any such have obtained entrance to Canada they shall not be permitted to remain.

COOLIDGE NOW

There was not the slightest warning of anything untoward. He had had a particularly good day, had spoken of his happiness at returning health and of his hope that the doctors would not insist on too long a delay in starting home.

The doctors had reported that this was the best day he had had since he arrived here last Sunday.

SKETCH OF CAREER

Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States was born on the outskirts of the village of Blooming Grove, Morrow County, Ohio. His father, George Tryon Harding, was a country doctor; his mother, Phebe Elizabeth Dickerson, belonged to the well-known family of that name, with a strain of Dutch from the Van Kirk family of Pennsylvania.

The Harding family moved to Caledonia, Marion County, where the boy, the oldest of eight children, went to grammar school until old enough to attend Ohio Central College. He worked as farm hand and house painter after classes there until the age of seventeen, when he received the degree of Bachelor of Science.

The father bought the Marion Star for him, having moved to the larger town from Caledonia. This was in 1884.

In 1899 Harding took his first step at active participation in politics. He was nominated for the State Senate.

ST. MICHAEL'S PICNIC.

St. Michael's Church Picnic at the Pine Grove, West Belleville, Wednesday, Aug. 15th. ad,2t,d

Until 1903 Harding remained in the State Senate, becoming Lieutenant-Governor. When defeated for Governor in 1910 he announced that he was "out of politics."

In 1914 he was elected to the United States Senate by a majority of more than 100,000.

He was until 1916 that he became a really national figure as a member of the Senate, when he was chosen to be the keynote speaker at the Republican National Convention at Chicago in behalf of Hughes. It was this convention that his name began to be mentioned as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination in 1920.

He was President in 1920 by plurality of 7,000,000.

Harding was married in 1891 to Miss Florence Kling, daughter of Amos H. Kling, who had then retired as a banker and was known as the richest man in Marion County. They had no children.

FORESTRY PARTY VISITS ST. JOHN Conference Members Royally Entertained Along Route of Journey

St. John, N.B., Aug. 3.—The British Empire forestry conference arrived in St. John yesterday and spent the full day here. On the arrival of the special train in which they are touring eastern Canada over the Canadian National Railways they were met by His Worship Mayor Fisher, G. E. Barbour, president of the Board of Trade, and D. E. Lauderburn, of Pejepscot Paper Company of Salmon River. A large number of representative citizens were present with motor cars to convey the distinguished guests to Salmon River where during the morning and for luncheon they were the guests of the Pejepscot Company.

The party returned to St. John from Salmon River during the afternoon and were entertained to a motor ride to all points of interest in the city. In the evening at the Union Club they were the guests of honor at a banquet which was attended also by many of this city's most prominent men. Among those present were Lieutenant-Governor W. F. Todd, Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, M.P., Col. Murray MacLaren, M.P., Hon. C. W. Robinson, Minister Lands and Mines, Hon. W. F. Roberts, Minister of Public Health, Commissioners Chief Justice Sir Douglas Hazen, G. E. Barbour, president Board of Trade, F. C. Beatty and Alex. Wilson.

Major-General Lord Lovat, K.C.M.G., expressed on behalf of the conference the pleasure which each member felt at the cordiality of welcome and warmth of hospitality which had been extended to the conference during its tour of eastern Canada. He outlined briefly the objects of the conference and expressed his belief that from the unity of ideas by all countries represented much good would accrue and that new methods of building with the country's forest would result in its being. Others who spoke were prodigal in their praise of the forest resources of Canada and of the efforts which the government and the bulk of the population were making to preserve those resources. They also spoke feelingly of the genuine hospitality which has been shown them by the Canadian people.

The party returned from the banquet to their special train on which they spent the night. They left St. John at 7 o'clock this morning and travelled by Canadian National Railways to Fredericton where they remained until noon, paying visits to the university, parliament buildings and other points of interest. They left Fredericton at noon over the Canadian National Railways for Mc-

Neptune Holds Court on a Famous Canadian Ship

A REMARKABLE photograph of the ceremonies that took place when the Canadian Pacific steamer "Empress of France" crossed the line on her recent "round-the-world" tour. Neptune accompanied by his royal barber, and other officials came aboard in the early morning and duly initiated those who were crossing the line for the first time. His Majesty's stay on board was short, but the same cannot be said of the little god Cupid. He came aboard with twenty maids and stayed until the end of the trip, as may be gathered from the fact that out of a total of 800 passengers on that famous 30,000 mile cruise, no less than forty came to the end of the trip as engaged couples. This fine photograph of Neptune's court was made by Miss Margaret Miller of Waterbury, Conn., who was one of the ship's passengers.

CANADIAN FRUITS

Eat Canadian Fruit and Vegetables while they are in season and can, dry, and store the surplus for winter use.

Canadian-grown Fruits and Vegetables are conducive to health and greater and more regular use of them throughout the year would have a potent live beneficial effect.

Canada produces, cans and preserves more than enough fruit and vegetables, unexcelled in quality, flavour and attractiveness, to supply all the possible demands of Canadians, but in spite of this fact the amount of these products being imported is rapidly increasing. The increase is largely in the canned, dried, and dehydrated products and it is with a hope therefore of encouraging Canadians to demand Canadian grown fruits and vegetables, canned or for their canning and preserving requirements, that this Booklet of instructions and recipes has been prepared.

INTERNATIONAL DRUG PLOT IS REVEALED

HUSKIE, HEROINE OF THIRD DAY

Watertown, N.Y., Beats 8 in Her Class and Takes Industrial Alcohol Cup

TEMERAIRE WINS

Beats Kingston Boat in Yawl Class—Thistle Third in 20-Foot Class

Huskie, the sturdy and speedy R Class yacht of Watertown, N.Y., was the heroine of Friday's yacht races of Massassaga Park. She not only won the R Class race from a fleet of eight starters, but also won the Canadian Industrial Alcohol cup, the trophy for which the twenty-nine yachts went over the course yesterday. Two R.C.Y.C. boats shared the next two high positions in the R Class, the Nayada coming in a close second to Huskie, one minute and sixteen seconds after her. In this race the third position was fought for very briefly by the Kingston boat, Chirlya, and Vivia II. of R.C.Y.C. On the first round, Chirlya beat Vivia past the buoy by the small margin of four seconds, but on the second round, Vivia passed Chirlya and won the third position, by passing the leeward buoy just two minutes and twenty seconds before the Kingston boat. Scraper of Kingston, the boat with the 'girl crew,' was fifth, and Lillian K, R.C.Y.C., winner of the G.W.V.A. cup, was sixth.

TEMERAIRE WINS.

Like the Huskie, the Temeraire, Belleville's new yacht, likes the water to talk loudly while the race is on; and yesterday's fresh breezes from the south were made to order for both of those boats. As a result, the Temeraire went ahead leaps and bounds and won first place in her class (the yawl class), beating Syivia of Kingston quite handily by more than four minutes. There were four boats in this class yesterday.

Nine yachts started in the twenty-foster class, and, a Hamilton boat named R.H.Y.C. won the race, with the Tantarum of Rochester rather a close second, and a Belleville boat, Thistle owned by Commodore J. F. Wills and his son, was third.

Bernice of R.C.Y.C. won the P Class (boats of four feet), Phoebe winner of the Robb cup, being second, Nutmeg third, and Italia fourth.

In M Class, Alice of Crescent Yacht Club, Watertown, N.Y., was first with Zoraya of R.C.Y.C. second. Iroquois of Rochester was third and Meadow had to drop out as the gale was too heavy for her.

In the dinghy race yesterday, the dope was turned over somewhat compared to the results of the first two days' races in this class at the regatta. Yesterday, the dinghy sailed by Mr. Bert Sword was third, and the Napanee boat fourth.

Following are the results of yester day's races:

OHIO GOVERNOR BREAKS CAMP

Gov. Donahey Returns to States with His Two Murderers

Cohoconk, Ont., Aug. 4.—Governor Victor Donahey of Ohio and Warden Preston Thomas of the Ohio State Penitentiary, with their holiday party, which includes Jennings and Ziprian, two life-term murderers from Ohio Penal Institution, started on the return journey to Ohio this morning. The reason Governor Donahey gave for the breaking up of what was announced to be a holiday of several weeks duration, was the death of President Harding, but it is believed from the attitude of Warden Thomas, who is obviously peeved at developments, that it was the outlining of Canadian law bearing on the entrance of convict persons to the Dominion that determined the exodus. Governor Donahey, however, took the situation calmly and said he had no hard feelings. The flag at the Ohioans' camp was at half mast for President Harding's death.

A Canadian official from Ottawa visited the camp yesterday and was closeted with Governor Donahey several hours.

RESCUE MISSION IS THREATENED

Soviet May Block Trip to Wrangel Island to Take Off Crawford

CLAIM ISLAND

Demand That Red Guards Be Carried on Trip by Rescue Ship

Nome, Alaska, Aug. 4.—Harold Noice, head of the expedition to Wrangell Island for the relief of Allan Crawford, of Toronto, and his party, of the original Stefansson expedition, announced here since 1920 has been advised of an announcement by the Soviet authorities at East Cape, Siberia, that unless the ship Donaldson, calls at Petropavlosk, Kamchatka, for proper clearance and also at East Cape for a consignment of Red guards to be taken to the island, the vessel will be confiscated.

Although Crawford and his party consists of Canadians, E. Lore Wright of McMurille, Ore., Frederick Mawrer of New Philadelphia, O., and Milton Galle of Grand Rapids, Mich., raised the British flag over the island when they landed there, the island is claimed by the Soviet Government, which desires to send Red guards with the Nobis expedition, to enforce the payment of taxes on fur furs taken by the Crawford party, according to information received here. The Donald son was scheduled to sail from Nome yesterday.

Captain Nobis had previously been informed that Soviet authorities at East Cape were antagonistic to his expedition and plagued to avoid interfering Siberian waters while enroute to the island, which lies off the north eastern Siberian coast. Wireless "refusals normally, however, have indicated a possibility that the Donaldson would have to be searched.

The coast guard cutter Bear arrived at Nome today from Exadyr, Siberia, bringing C. B. Cossman, representative of Olaf Swanson and Company of Seattle, whose ship, the Nine Sea, has been reported seized by Red Russians. The ship is to be used as a transport for Red troops into the Kalyin river country. No further details of the reported seizure and confiscation of the Swanson trading properties in Soviet territory could be obtained here.

SKIRTS HIGHER

Sofia, Aug. 4.—(United Press).—Whoever may regret the assassination of Stamboulisky, the fair-haired women and the tailors and shoe makers of the country do not. The tailors have been flooded with orders for kneelength dresses and the shoemakers have been kept overtime at their last since Stamboulisky's death. The reason is that he, as much a puritan as a political reformer, had had a law passed forbidding women to wear short gowns or big heeled shoes. Since his disappearance this law has been celebrating their regained liberty.

Ferguson Cancels a Biggs' Contract

Toronto, Aug. 4.—The frustration of a political design which, had it succeeded, would have cost the Province the sum of $30,000, was accomplished yesterday by the Ferguson Government when it cancelled one of the dying hour contracts awarded by Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Highways in the Drury Cabinet. The contract involved was one with the Canadian Colortype Company, of Hamilton, and was rather unique as an example of political jobbery of the sudden news. "This is terrible thing," stated the governor. "It was passed in the dying hour of the session of the Legislature decided and with a general election only six weeks away, it arranged for the motor license plates for the year 1924, the amount involved was approximately $37,500.

SMUGGLED DRUGS FROM TORONTO

Canadian Ex-Soldier Said to Have Revealed International Narcotics Plot

TELLS OF DIVES

Americans and Canadians Are Held in Drug Traffic Probe

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 4.—Details of an international plot to smuggle narcotics from Toronto to the United States, via Lewiston and Buffalo, were revealed here in a confession said to have been signed by James Wadsworth, formerly a Canadian soldier of Toronto, and now of Snyder, N.Y. Wadsworth was one of four arrested late Tuesday on a charge of violating the federal narcotic act. Two were prominent doctors in Buffalo and the third, Wadsworth's assistant, was formerly a Buffalo druggist. After two nights in jail, Wadsworth, it is alleged, confessed.

Wadsworth stated that he had served overseas for four years with the 19th Battalion. On his second trip to Toronto for what federal authorities term the "Buffalo group" of the gang, he met on the boat a man, who had served overseas in the same outfit. This man directed him to a blind pig in Toronto, run by a man whose name was given in Wadsworth's confession, simply as Sheehan. Wadsworth said that he spent the night at Sheehan's place, and later made several trips to Toronto, bringing back dope for the gang each time.

Federal authorities say that the narcotics, which Dr. Chauncey P. Smith, Buffalo physician, is charged with selling, were also smuggled into the United States off the Toronto boat at Lewiston. The narcotics were brought in secret about the pockets of the smugglers.

It is stated that Sheehan has been in business for several years and has been supplying peddlers and doctors on the side of the line. One paper goes so far as to say that "the Canadian authorities are powerless to arrest Sheehan because of the methods of doing business." American customs authorities, however, are waiting for him with warrants in arms.

OHIO GOVERNOR DEEPLY EFFECTED

Cohoconk, Ont., Aug 4—When word of the death of President Harding reached Gold River Queen Governor Donahey accompanied by Homer Price and Warden Thomas, were out on a fishing trip to Mud Pond Lake.

As soon as word reached the camp two members of the party paddled up the lake in the example of political jobbery of the sudden news. "This is terrible thing," stated the governor. "It was passed in the dying hour of the session of the Legislature decided and with a general election only six weeks away, it arranged for the motor license plates for the year 1924, the amount involved was approximately $37,500.

The Star.

"I have not decided as yet. I must get into touch with Columbus first. I have ordered my secretary to go that funeral, and flowers for expression of condolence. I have also invited Mrs. Harding to have the body lie in state at the capitol and that there be an honorary guard of honor. Ohio should be honored in death as in life. That is all that I can say for the present."

New Style Master Sixes Are Now Being Shown at McLaughlin Salesroom

McLaughlin-Buick certainly registered a bullseye with their 1924 line announced and shown August first.

The new cars disclose such remarkable advances in automotive engineering that an atmosphere of genuine enthusiasm prevails wherever they are shown.

Inspection proves that "development" is the proper word to use rather than "radical changes." For, despite the advanced engineering noted in nearly every unit of both sixes and fours each improvement is strikingly consistent with past McLaughlin-Buick practices.

The valve-in-head engine, which from the inception of Buick, has been not only the heart and lungs of the car itself, but of the sales argument as well, has undergone practically no revisions in principle. Yet in the refinements added to the six cylinder job, quite startling results are disclosed.

Double valve springs, the extension of automatic force feed lubrication to all smaller parts, heavier crank and cam shafts, increased piston displacement and other notable revisions, including a specially designed carburetor, supply grounds for the claim that this engine offers fifty per cent. more power than formerly, speed of the car of sixty to seventy miles per hour, greater smoothness and facility of operation and much increased economy.

Having insured, in engine improvements above, superior power, speed, economy and driving responsiveness, the new McLaughlin-Buick has follows its own tried and proved principles for, in the final analysis, this feature is no more than an extension to all four wheels of the external brake system employed so successfully on prior models. It is stated that this extension is the outcome of years of trial and experiment and in its present perfected state, subjected to 150,000 miles of the most varied and exacting road work. Owners (brakes are very easy to operate. The car can be stopped much more quickly and skidding is minimized. Both sixes and fours feature four wheel brakes as well as a heavier frame and new by designed springs that assure more riding comfort. Ten body styles are mounted on the six cylinder chassis, including five open models, as follows: a two-passenger roadster, five passenger touring, seven passenger touring, three passenger sport roadster and four passenger sport touring. The closed six models comprise a four passenger coupe, a seven passenger sedan, a five passenger sedan, a five passenger Brougham sedan and a five passenger "Double Service" sedan. The latter seems destined to prove one of the best sellers in McLaughlin-Buick history. In designing this car, the main idea centered upon adaptability and serviability, a car that can be employed for business use without rendering it unfit for social purposes. Black, being the most lasting, as well as the most easily cleaned color, is employed in the finish, while the lining and upholstery is of strong material, easily cleaned. The five passenger Brougham is the other extreme—a most luxurious carriage in every respect. It is beautifully finished with fine leather upholstery, appointments of an extra-quality character, and equipment unusually complete. "Distinctive" may be most applied to it by one who saw it and the description was appropriate.

There are four body models on the four cylinder chassis—five passenger touring, two passenger roadster, four passenger coupe and five passenger sedan.

Have you seen the new McLaughlin-Buick? It certain is be a widely heard question during the next few weeks.

HUNGARY'S SHERLOCK HOLMES GONE WITH 40 POUNDS OF MONEY

By VICTOR WITTIER
(United Press Correspondent)
Vienna (By mail to United Press)—Hungary's Sherlock Holmes has gone wrong and gone—goes with 140,000,000 crowns and the professional reputations of six star detectives of the Budapest police force, who helped him to make his getaway.

Hugo Kopnitz, the hero, is an ex-officer who has been studying at Budapest University and dabbling in criminology as a hobby.

Kopnitz decided to help out the police, and he became a secret agent of the Budapest equivalent of Scotland Yard. In eleven big cases he did valuable work. His specialty was smuggling and the "valuta profiteers"—speculators in exchange.

One day recently Kopnitz went to police headquarters with a bet up. Two leading officials at the Hungarian National Bank, he said, were valuta profiteers.

Everything was framed up. Kopnitz was to trap the men. He thought it best to get them really fat, and that the amount involved ought to be large. So the police obtained 140,000,000 crowns for Kopnitz was to take the money to the bank officials, to be used, ostensibly, for illegal speculation.

Kopnitz took the money in 20,000 crown notes, and made two twenty-pound parcels of it. Six detectives were to go along with him.

The detectives promised to obey Kopnitz's injunction to carry out his instructions faithfully. They were to follow him to the bank, and up to the second floor, upon which the officials had their office. There they were to guard all doors. Kopnitz showed them the doors. At a signal from Kopnitz they were to enter the room. They were warned that the officials probably would try to Everything went well at the start. Kopnitz entered the room with his big parcels and the detectives closed on their portecochère. They smoked cigarettes and watched, and waited for the signal. It never came. Soon Kopnitz had warned them to be patient, and had pointed out that if they peeked into the room the suspects might themselves become suspicious.

After an hour and a half the clerks in the bank home in the detectives became anxious. They dared not ask any questions. But finally, when a clerk came out, he saw the watchful room the detectives asked about a young man with two big bundles.

"There is no one in the room," she said. "It is way past closing time."

The detectives tried vainly to make up for lost time.

Kopnitz, they found, had shown them every door but one—a back one. They had come to the front, the detectives became anxious. They dared not ask any questions. But finally, when a clerk came out, he saw the watchful room the detectives asked about a young man with two big bundles.

Yes, an imperturbable taxi-driver explained later to the detectives, a young man had been in his cab. He had two parcels. They had driven to a shop where the young man bought a suit case for the parcels. Then they had driven to a well known restaurant. Yes, the restaurant proprietor said, there had been such a young man. He had spent an hour at lunch. No, he did not seem nervous. Before he left he had the head-waiter make up for him his lunch, saying he was going on a journey.

They found later that Kopnitz had flown to Bucharest and then to Athens. Before he left he mailed 7,000,000 crowns to his sister, and 5,000,000 to a friend, with a note that his whole speculation was easy and profitable. All the police found was Kopnitz's house was six pounds of fine letters.

But the WATCH knows it, and it tries to tell he knows, too.

It gradually loses a little more every week or so.

Guard Baby's ealth In The Summer

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Italians Don't Blame Deaths on Mt. Vesuvius

By Gus M. Ochm, United Press Staff Correspondent)
Pompeii (By mail to United Press) —Old Mount Vesuvius, again playfully erupting, hasn't really killed anybody since the day it buried Pompeii, way back in the first century—if one is to believe native Pompeiians.

"Nobody here fears the old volcano," quoth one native declared to the United Press, as smoke and lava and fire spouted into the air with a series of loud puffs, like a Twentieth Century locomotive.

"How about the death list in 1906?" was the natural question.

"Oh, the volcanic eruption itself didn't kill these folks. Most of them were killed when a roof of a theater in which they were watching a play, fell in from the weight of the lava and stone. Most everybody had left the vicinity of the mountain long before the eruption took place. Those folks killed were really killed by accident—not by Vesuvius."

Neapolitans, Pompeiians and others living in the danger zone of the mountain seem rather to revere the old destroyer. The countryside, even between the towns, is populated as thickly as it will permit—nobody worrying, nobody caring, nobody anticipating trouble.

"If it comes we will have plenty of warning to get in the clear," is the general attitude these people assume. 'Old Vesuv never does kill anybody, anyway. It's always by accident that people are killed when he does erupt —and accidents happen everywhere," accept Sunday.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.
POISON IVY.

Perhaps you have seen or actually suffered with this distressing and irritating condition.

A few hours or even a few days after exposure the hands and face become covered with a mass of tiny sores with redness, swelling, and severe itching.

Just why some people are susceptible to it and others are not is one of the mysteries of that strange condition we call Immunity. And yet the same thing occurs with other conditions in a family such as measles, scarlet fever, and diphtheria, some members escaping and others being stricken.

A person can actually handle poison ivy, have no symptoms of poisoning, and yet pass the condition along to someone else.

Now what to do.

If you think you have been exposed scrub the skin with good soap and warm water, and rub alcohol over the entire body.

In an emergency call to a child at some distance from his office or a druggist, a physician found himself with nothing of an alkaline nature in his bag but a tube of carron oil which is used extensively for burns. The case was a well developed attack of poisoning. Remembering that carron oil contained equal parts of lime water and linseed oil he applied this to the surface of the affected part of the skin, and gave epsom salts internally. The carron oil was applied two or three times a day for three days when the condition cleared up completely. As the carron oil had lasted for weeks, the carron oil was certainly most successful in this particular case. Sometimes the itching becomes so intense that it is almost unbearable. A little baking soda rubbed into the skin allays this condition almost immediately.

I know there are other remedies suggested such as boracic acid compresses, zinc ointment, lead and opium wash, and a host of others, but try the carron oil first.

So if exposed, wash well at once as suggested, and you may lessen the severity of the attack.

Symptoms of Debility

How to Tell Whether Your Blood Needs Revitalizing

The symptoms of general debility vary according to the cause, but weakness is always present, a tendency to languor and fatigue easily, mental dullness, a disinclination for work, passing before the eyes, weak back, vertigo, wakefulness caused by inability to stop thinking and unrefreshing sleep. The cause of the trouble may be some disorder in the system, or it may be a general or abnormal overwork, sometimes insufficient nutrition due to digestive disturbance.

If you have any or all of these symptoms try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as the new blood carries through your veins these should be an increase in your appetite, a better digestion and soon a renewed activity.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, postpaid, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

This I found very soothing, healing and soothing—no method "first aid" for child-ren's accidents, for my purposes, is complete without Absorbine Jr.

Keep it handy—a bottle lasts a long time, as a few drops are sufficient for most ailments and one application will usually be sufficient to relieve most ailments.

Ontario Ready to Entertain the Thirsty

Buffalo, N.Y. Aug. 4 (United Press)—Champagne at $37.50 per case is Canada's offer to the thirsty.

There is an abundance of it just now in Ontario towns that may be purchased legally and consumed without fear. The news has gone forth that the supply is to be increased to meet the requirements of thirsty Americans visiting the north shore.

The bubbling beverage is made from the juice of the grapes grown in the province of Ontario. Its production is the result of a law passed many months ago by the United Farmers party then in power. The farmers didn't believe in permitting the breweries to run it at 6 per cent. ale and beer but they sided at drawing the line on wine produced from grapes grown on their own lands. The wine carries an alcoholic content of about 17 per cent.

It has taken some time to get the supply really swinging along, because the process of making champagne is a tedious one.

Women Plan to Economize Time

Chicago, Aug. 4 (United Press)—Housekeeping took its place beside the other sciences here this week when several hundred women from all parts of the country attended a 5-day meeting of the American Home Economics association.

Discussions of the problems of home making indicated that American housewives were bent on the ambitious efficiency in the home. Under the direction of the association women in a half hour period examination have been conducting practical experiments within their own homes with charts diagrams and time schedules.

The object of their experiments, the women disclosed, was to reduce the time required for household tasks to the minimum and obtain more leisure for the housekeeper.

Among the speakers were: Mrs. L. H. Otis, Madison, Wis., "The Home Maker's Responsibility for Obtaining Leisure;" Mrs. Orville Shipman, De Kalb, Ill., and Mrs. H. H. Douglass, Northwood, Ia., "Month's Experiment with a Time Schedule;" Mrs. Elsie Park Duncan, Columbia, Mo., "A Study of the Housekeeper's Working Day."

Mrs. Samuel Bradt, De Kalb, Ill., prominent Illinois club woman, presided.

On Friday the women will take up child care and training.

FASHION NOTES

Paris, Aug. 4—Skirts reaching just below the knees will be a feature of the new fashions which will be exhibited to United States buyers for the first time August 7.

Dressmaker Chanel, who is regarded as the leader of the fashion-makers, insists that the American effort to re-establish long skirts is doomed to failure. She declares smart women must exhibit their lower limbs or resign all claims of being fashionable.

Jenny, also a leader in style creation, follows the idea that there must be freedom for the lower limbs.

Endeavors to popularize the stout figure, which was a feature of last season, has failed, the two years ritonesette styles being again a triumph for the slim woman.

Fur will be in great demand for trimming. Velvet is also popular both for dresses and hats.

BURIED TREASURES.

Floors of Ocean Are Often Paved With Gold.

Sunk beneath the waters of the Caribbean sea and under the surface of the little islands that stud the Southern Main are gold, silver, and precious stones valuable enough, could they be found, to set up the British National Debt.

The treasure lies largely in the holds of sunken Spanish galleons, great ships that from the days of Queen Elizabeth sailed every year from South America to Spain bearing the almost fabulous booty captured from the Aztecs of Mexico and the Incas of Peru.

In "The Book of Buried Treasure," by Randall Parrish, we are told that in Vigo Bay lies "the greatest treasure ever sunk in the waters of the sea." Here, in 1702, a fleet of British and Dutch warships destroyed a number of Plate ships, which went to the bottom carrying with them gold $100,000,000 worth of gold.

In Tobermory Bay in the Hebrides, known to have carried $50,000,000 worth of gold and Mosquito Bay, Cornwall, there is the Salut Andrew, a treasure ship which carried "blocks of gold, silver bars, golden dishes and plate, precious stones, brooches and chains of gold, circlets of gold, lapery, satin, velvet, and four suits of armour for the King of Portugal."

But if you think of going on a treasure-hunting expedition, it is pirate gold that will attract you most, for there are millions upon millions of dollars' worth of treasure-hunting scenery.

The buccaneers of old harried the Main along the Spanish Main and Spain, and collected from them immense stores of wealth. And when Britain and the other powers set about clearing the seas of pirates, these rovers buried their treasure and ran for it. Many of them were hanged at the Pirates' Dock in Wapping, and the secret of their secrets died with them.

Coco Island alone is known to be the hiding-place of twelve million dollars' worth of gold and silver booty. Then there is Trinidad, off Brazil, where repose the vast hoard of sea-rovers who plundered the rich coast of America. Dozens of expeditions have sailed there and dug in vain. Some day, perhaps, the key to the treasure will be found, and those who hit upon it will become possessed of wealth beyond all dreams.

Another vast hoard waiting for the pick and shovel of the searchers is that of the Chincha Islands. Chincha Row, who fled when the British captured Manila in 1762, having first buried his incalculable treasure. It lies at Leaon, in the Philippine Islands, and the directions we have say that it is concealed "near Calumpit in the swamps of the Rio Grande." In the glittering store are magnificent jewels, including the "Star of Peace" said to be the finest ever seen.

In the Bay of Panama, south of Madeira, is hidden a vast store of gold and silver in great iron-bound chests. We are told that the hoard is guarded by the skeleton of a sea-captain with a dagger blade through his heart.

On the island of Diego Alvarez we know were the place where forgings should be done, for the booty of bygone days line some of the caves. But at the western end of Church Rock, Honduras bay, are the bones of a man. Hundreds have searched, but in vain.

One 200 year buried treasure is found and brought home. The interested lies now in the Record Office. Captain Kidd concealed his plunder on Gardiner's Island, where it was found in 1699. Kidd's store contained 1,111 ounces of gold, 2,222 ounces of silver, and seventeen ounces of precious stones. The whole was worth nearly $600,000.

During the war German submarines sent many millions of pounds' worth of gold to the bottom of the sea there it lies despite all efforts to recover it. The seas around our islands are almost parted with gold.

DESPERATE.

The mother had taken her daughter on a visit to a wealthy maiden aunt, from whom she had expectations. The old lady produced a number of photographs of herself as a young woman, and showed them to her niece.

"Oh, mother!" exclaimed the girl, artlessly, "auntie looks quite pretty in these photographs."

"Haven't I always said she used to be, but you would never believe me," said her agitated mother.

WHAT DID IT

An officer recently became engaged, and this is how he became disengaged:

"I'll write to you while you are away, dearest," she murmured.

"Do, by all means," he replied absently, "but kindly write on one side of the paper only, and enclose stamped envelope for return-in case

TAKE A BIG LEAD

"STAND away off and go down the field with his arms," advised the coach. "Take a big lead."

It's the advice of success in baseball. It is good advice in life. The smart, safest "lead" in life is life insurance. At twenty-five you should have a 20-year pay-ment, profit-participating policy in a good, sound company like the Mutual Life of Canada. You'll have it half paid for by the time more than one in ten who they had taken out more insurance when they were as young as you are now.

This policy at 25 years costs $29.80 per thousand. At 35 it costs $35.50—If you can pass the medical examination as well then as you can now.

You are starting the circuit determined to win. "Take a big lead." Send for our booklet, "Limited Payment Life Policies," and remember, Mutual Insurance is insurance at the lowest possible cost, because the Mutual Life is the only life insurance company in Canada which divides all its profits among its policyholders.

A TASK UNFINISHED

The death of President Harding has stunned the nation, which he had served since March 4, 1921 as chief executive. While he had been seriously ill, physicians, who were in constant attendance, were apparently confident of his recovery. Even up to few minutes before his death, their statements were sanguine.

For this reason perhaps his sudden passing appears tragic in the eyes of the people of the United States. The Americans are a demonstrative people, and, strangely, in view of the leaven of Anglo-Saxon blood and Anglo-Saxon influences, which have been dominant in American society since the first British colony was founded in North America, are noticeably emotional. They are prodigal in their expressions of sorrow at the death of a president no more nationally prominent public or private citizen.

There is no doubt, however, that the grief of the nation as a result of the death of Harding is profound. It is worthy of note also that the week of his death has stirred other nations in a marked degree.

The poignancy of America's grief is more keenly appreciated in Canada because of the fact that he visited this country just a short time before his death, the first president of the United States to visit the Dominion as an incumbent of that office. His visit to Vancouver, while of the tour which was terminated by his illness, was rich in significance. Both the late President and Mrs. Harding were accorded an ovation, which could be interpreted as nothing less than a great national gesture of good-fellowship and fraternalism. The late president's utterances at Vancouver were particularly appropriate and undoubtedly served to enhance the entente cordiale which exists between the two nations.

Yet President Harding was by no means an ideal executive in the eyes of his people. His Democratic enemies had made much of his interest in golf and of his official calm. Accustomed to men like Theodore Roosevelt and the strong-willed and, at times, masterful Wilson, the people could not understand Harding. Criticism of the President had become widespread a few weeks ago. In fact, this criticism had attained such proportions that Samuel G. Blythe, an American political expert, toured the country to study the attitude of the people toward their President. In an article in the Saturday Evening Post of date, July 28, last, dealing with impressions acquired on the tour, Mr. Blythe said:

"We are a volatile and an impressionable people, and soles gets its flooring these demonstrations we say to one another: 'Prob'ly there's something into it.' I guess this man Harding ain't what he's cracked up to be.'

"Probably he isn't, but, so far as that goes, he isn't what he's cracked down to be either. And the present seems to be an opportune moment for stating the judicial fact that there is a Harding man which the President as President of the United States, and not as a Republican or as a partisan or in any political sense whatsoever, is entitled to have spread on the minutes. This man Harding is neither noisy nor less, which called for keen foresight and unusual inhibition.

Mr. Blythe's article implies that the late President had performed the task imposed on him in a creditable manner and that his particular method was bearing fruit. It is unfortunate that his real worth could not have been more fully appreciated before death called him from his work. It may be because of a realization of this fact that America's sorrow is so keen.

By The Side Of The Road

Under the heading "Marine News", the Kingston Standard informs its readers that "Steamed Jenks' has cleared." Who is she, a new movie vamp? We are surprised to learn she was "steamed" when she left. Sounds like a trick of Jackore Dumsel's.

Now, if the Governor of Illinois had had a few months in a Cobourgh it would not have appeared so strange. They have so many of 'em in Illinois, especially in Herrin and in other parts of "Bloody Williamson" county.

It is to be regretted that the vagabond who assaulted the girl in a Front street store became she refused to give him a loaf of bread, had not successfully importuned one of our Belleville brides.

If he had answered one of "Bridget's" home-made loaves or a few of her biscuits, retribution in the form of "tummy-ache" would have been just and swift.

The yachting spirit is contagious. We noticed, during the regatta persons traveling "three miles to the wind" right on the streets. They appropriately acquired the "spirit" in a literal sense. The bay may be calm as a ball room floor at times, but it's always rough sailing on land.

Well, the native sons who have returned to Trenton for the Home-coming will be able to enjoy a few days of rest and quiet.

brilliant, is the showy acceptance of that term. He is not loud and declamatory. He is a modest man—too modest no doubt—and a calm man, and a man with a philosophy that has not worked out so badly, as will be shown. He undoubtedly has made mistakes, and undoubtedly will make more mistakes, but his administration hasn't been all mistakes, as a lot of insurgents in his own party, and opponents in the other party and echoes among the people in both parties holler down the national rain barrel.

"Now the fact that the President does his work calmly and methodically, and does it efficiently and without a flock of highly trained press agents sending out feverish bulletins reciting that he is striving mightily at his desk with the affairs of the people; the fact that no person stands outside his office and beats the tom-tom to call attention to the enormous political significance of the great man inside devoting himself to mighty, heroic, self-sacrificing labors for the commonalty; that no chanters or shouters celebrate incessantly the magnificence of the spectacle of this patriot and statesman sitting there, worn and weary but unconquerable, hauling the republic off the rocks every half hour each day, including holidays and Sundays—has been so extraordinary that the American public has not understood it. It has been so different, and what is different, with us, is deplorable and disturbing. . . .

"Rudolph Forster has been executive clerk at the White House since McKinley was President, and McKinley went into office on March 4, 1897. Forster says that the burden of work the President has to do now is five times greater than the presidential work was in McKinley's days in the White House, and three times greater than during the time Roosevelt was President. And greater now than ever before, even during the war days.

"And Harding does this work—does it calmly and in his own manner. But the point is, he does it. Instead of treating all molehills as mountains, as is our national manner, he expertly appraises molehills as molehills and mountains as mountains. He doesn't struggle mightily as have some others who have occupied his seat, with the little things, but treats them as such; and when a real emergency comes along he gets action as quickly—quicker in many cases—than some of his much-lauded strenuous predecessors."

Born the son of a country doctor, and a man of moderate means even at the time of his death, Harding was not given to theatrical performance. He was unassuming, yet not easily disconcerted. His task did not demand the strenuity of Roosevelt or the aggressiveness of Wilson. The burden was a weighty one, nevertheless, which called for keen foresight

THOSE DELIGHTFUL AMERICANS

Lord Glenconner, the twenty-four year-old son of Viscountess Grey of Fallodon, has thoroughly enjoyed his trip to America. He says, however, that there were three things which he could never completely master:

The constant imbibing of iced water on all social occasions.

The correct reply to "I'm pleased to meet you."

The elevated railway.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

DEMPSEY GOOD SPORT, SAYS MCAULIFFE

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Sports Press Editor)

New York, Aug. 3. (United Press)—Jack McAuliffe, the genial light-weight and only champion who ever retired undefeated from the ring, has an idea that Jack Dempsey may yet come into the popularity that up to the time of the present champion has always come her's heritage in heavy-weight title holders.

Dempsey, as is well known, is not a hero in the public eye, for reasons that are hard to explain. It might be going too far to say that Dempsey is the most unpopular champion on the long list, because Jack Johnson held even a lower place i the estimation of the public.

Johnson brought disfavor upon himself by his conduct after he had won the championship from Jim Jeffries, but Dempsey has done nothing since he won the title from James Willard to bring discredit upon himself, or on the game that has been so good to him.

Dempsey's war record got him in bad with the public and while most everyone has forgotten that there was such a thing as a big war, the impression still lingers that Dempsey didn't do something when he had the chance.

Friends of the champion and those who are broad-minded enough to go back to the days leading up to the war, know that Dempsey was largely the victim of circumstances and poor advice.

McAuliffe believes that a fight with Luis Firpo, the South American giant, will do much to win for Dempsey the public esteem which he deserves. Until the time that Dempsey is accepted as a national representative against a foreigner, he will not have the opportunity to get himself back into favor, McAuliffe believes.

"Carpentier was the first foreign fighter to be cheered over an American and that can be explained," McAuliffe says. "The war records of the two fighters was the big issue there and the fight was staged at a time when the hardships of the war was rather a fresh memory in the eyes of the public.

"John L. Sullivan gained his greatest popularity when he fought Mitchell, the sentiment being 'your' champion against a foreigner. When Dempsey meets Firpo, minus the animosity toward Dempsey is too deep rooted to be pulled out, the American public will rally the same way behind the champion.

"Indications of this were shown in the Firpo-Willard fight when the crowd arose spontaneously and yelled for Willard to win when he rallied and seemed to have a chance. The sentiment there was clearly for an American against a foreigner, because Willard during his regime as champion was hardly more popular than Dempsey.

"Through all his trials and troubles Dempsey has been such a good sport that sometime sentiment is bound to change in his favor. He never has grumbled or complained. He has never been quicker to accuse those that were manifestedly unfair and untrue and he has never shown malice toward the crowds that practically razzed him on his two last appearances in the ring."

It is rather unfortunate for Dempsey that some of his severest critics and his most prejudiced detractors have not had the opportunity to meet him and talk to him.

It is not enough to say that Dempsey is not a bad fellow. It is more to the point to say that he is a mighty fine fellow, obliging at all times, affable and kind toward all and mighty generous in his treatment of friend and foe alike.

Dempsey lacks only the moral back ground and the domestic stability of Tommy Gibbons, the most popular of all the boxers. It must be remembered that Gibbons had opportunities to become polished and to grow into the high place he is in while Jess Dempsey had no chance to elevate himself in his youth, but he has made the utmost of his opportunities since he won the championship.

Just before the fight to Shelby, a friend asked Johnny Kilbane, the former featherweight champion, which one he wanted to win.

"It will be a shame for either one to lose," Kilbane said.

Both Dempsey and Kearns acted like real sportsmen all through the mixup at Shelby and they made many friends. It was a most difficult proposition to break through the overwhelming Gibbons partisanship that was almost solid in the middle-west and the north-west section of the country, but the champion made many new friends under the handicap and he had to be a "regular fellow" to do it.

Dempsey, as far as public utterances would indicate, has never protested against the unkind spirit that the public had stooped toward him, but the hurt is very apparent on the hands and it cropped out in the fight with Gibbons.

Several things in addition to that interior rebellion against circumstances helped to make Dempsey more vicious, more inclined to go to the ragged edge of the rules and more malicious than he has ever been in the ring before.

Through gross inefficiency of the promoters, Dempsey was in the ring almost ten minutes before Gibbons came into the arena, a delay of ten minutes more was occasioned when Gibbons came into the ring with his hands unbandaged. The delay worked Dempsey almost into a rage. He was further angered when the announcer introduced Gibbons first and was leaving the ring when some one from the ringside shouted at him to introduce the champion.

From his remarks after the fight, it was apparent that Dempsey had no great animosity toward Gibbons and that his off-shade work in the ring would have been done against his own brother had he been opposed to him.

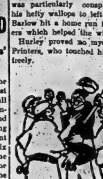

TYPOS WIN FROM RAILROAD SQUAD

Spear 'Speers' Fly and 'Pies' Game for Trunks

The Printers team defeated the Grand Trunks in one of the closest games yet played in the soft-ball league, last evening. After seven innings had been played it was found that the paermen were on the long end of a 7-6 score. The typos went to work in the first and notched six big runs and were limited to a lone counter for the remainder of the contest. The fourth inning saw the Trunks put across four runs but it was not enough. It was an exciting game from start to finish, with the result always in doubt.

Spear saved the game for the printers when he made a pretty shoe-string catch in the seventh inning and retired the side. The Trunks had the bases cluttered at the time and had he missed it, at least two runs would have scored.

The winners played well both at the bat and on the field and justly earned the victory. Larmer Mason was on the mound for the printers and had the opportunity to meet him

Umpire Dick Allen explaining the fine points of the game to the thick-headed players.

The Trunks brought out a dark horse in the person of Newt. Thompson. Cy Young says he grabbed this promising outfielder in the bush league in Alaska. Thompson covers more territory than any other three outfielders in the league. Harper McElrath was issued his unconditional release following the game. He will be farmed out to the Bayside team of the Bluebird league.

It was a good game and was enjoyed by both spectators and players. Next game, Monday night—McLaughlins vs. Tiger Tire.

Batting order:

Trunks (6)—Mingtie, Edgecomb, McElrath, Young, Newton, Hurley, Thompson, Ranson, Jordan.

Printers (7)—Scott, Mason, Stoque, Wylie, Hardwick, Cook, Spear, Barlow, Curry.

Umps—"Dick" Allen and Mr. Wright.

NOTE

All teams must use the regulation Lal which is 36 more than 2 3-4 feet long and not more than 3 inches in circumference.

Do You Know?

Q. Is it true that Lee Fohl is to be displaced this winter as the manager of the St. Louis Browns? R.J.B.

A. Fohl, from reliable reports will not manage the Browns next season. It is said that he is bad with the Brown owners but because he is to get a better job as manager of the Boston Red Sox will Bobby Quinn, vice president of the Boston team and former business manager of the Browns. It is also reported that George Sisler will manage the Browns next season.

Q. Was it true that Jess Willard's handlers said he quit in his fight with Luis Firpo? S. T. H.

A. Some time after the Firpo-Willard fight, Jack Skelly, Willard's chief handler in the fight, gave out a strong statement in which he said quite openly that Willard had deliberately quit and that he was not badly hurt.

Q. What caused the mid-season slump of the New York Giants?

B.R.C.

A. Slumps in baseball are hard to explain. The collapse of the Giant pitching staff and the absence of Dave Bancroft, star shortstop, no doubt affected the morale of the club and was a big factor in causing the protracted lapse of form.

Port Hope Scribe Seeks Ray of Light on "Chuck" Allen Case

Guide:—About the latter part of June the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association took exception to certain decisions by the Ontario Baseball Association and the statement appeared in all the papers that the Toronto teams had withdrawn from the O. B. A. A. No representative of the Toronto teams sailed the statement and the public accepted it as authentic. Now when the season has reached the final stages and the play-off games are being arranged, the Toronto organization comes along with the story that the statements in the press last June were not authorized and that all the Toronto teams are desirous of remaining members of the Provincial Association. And this spineless organization, the O.B.A.A. opens its arms wide to receive the Toronto teams. The reception and welcome extended to the wanders is touching as the story of the Prodigal son. Simply another case of the tail wagging the dog. Toronto teams are doing as they like and no checking up by the parent organization. It is high time for a shake up in the Ontario Baseball Association. How will the O.B.A.A. explain "Chuck" Allen's name Allen came here in May to take charge of the dancing pavilion. Port Hope at that time was definitely out of baseball, so we cannot be accused of bringing Allen here to play ball. His coming to Port Hope was purely a business venture. Port Hope having no team, the rules permitted ball players resident here, to play with the nearest Central League team which in our case was Cobourg. The Cobourg club made application to use Allen but the O.B.A.A. couldn't hear of it. The rules distinctly said that players must be residents of the town in which they played from January 1, and this rule must be observed. But last week Chuck Allen went to Toronto, pitched for Hillcrests and arranged to play the following two Saturdays so that he would be eligible to take part in the play off games. Why was Allen elegible for Hillcrests and not Cobourg. We don't know; probably the O. B. A. A. could explain.

GAME IN ADIRONDACKS

Saranac Lake, N. Y. (United Press)—Deer is a long ways from extinct in the Tahawus section of the Adirondacks, if long noted as one of the real wilderness traps in the mountains. F. J. All the game he saw was twenty-nine deer, one red fox, one wildcat, two Canadians lynx, four rabbits, two partridges, one great blue heron and one full grown bear.

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a great deal of distress before I got the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said that your medicine would be the only thing to build me up and I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight, having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was ill for over a month, but am my again and I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and always give permission to use my letter."—Mrs. ELMER A. STICHE, 82 Rodney Street, West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties a burden because they are unable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

By G. Manville Fenn

Chapter I.
PLEASANT RECEPTIONS.

"Ax."

"I was asking, or axing, as you call it, my name, I said: is that Dumford down there in the valley?"

"And I said ax, or arks, as you call it, my man," was the surly dotard's reply.

The last speaker looked up savagely from the block of stone on which he was seated, and the questioner looked down from where he stood on the rough track. There was a quiet, half-amused twinkle in his clear grey eyes, which did not suit the awful opponent for an instant, as he remained gazing at him without speaking.

They were men of about the same age—about forty, or thereabouts—but one evidently a clergyman by his white tie, and the clerical cut of his clothes, though there was no overdone gaiety look in the soft felt hat cocked a little on one side of his massive head. In fact the general maturity to demand short crisp curly brown hair. The same free-and-easy air show ed in the voluminous wrinkles of his gray tweed trousers, his thick square-toed rather dusty boots, and his spotless hands, which were brown, thickly veined, and muscular. He had a small leather bag in one hand, a stout stick in the other, and it was evident that he had walked some distance over the hills, for the nearest train, in the direction he had come, was at least six miles away.

The seated man, who was smoking a very dirty and short clay pipe, was as broad-shouldered, as sturdy, and as well-knit; but while the one, in spite of a somewhat heavy build, was as sleek, polished by exercise into grace the other was rough and angular, and smirched as his appearance was by sweat and the grime of some manufacturing trade, he looked as brutal in his words.

"What are you looking at?" he suddenly growled, menacingly.

"At you," said the clergyman, in the most unruffled way; and, letting his bag and stick fall in the fern, he coolly seated himself on a second block of stone on the bright hillside.

"How look here," exclaimed the workman, roughly, "I know what you're after. You're going to call on my friend, and finish off with giving me a track, and you may just save yourself the trouble, for I won't do."

He knocked the ashes out of his pipe as he spoke, and looked menacing enough to do any amount of mischief to a man he did not like.

"You're wrong," said the traveller, coolly, as he rummaged in the pocket of his long black coat. "I'm going to have a pipe."

He opened a case, took out a well-blackened meerschaum, scraped the ashes from the interior, filled it from a large india-rubber pouch which he then passed to the workman, before striking a match from a little brass box and beginning to smoke, with his hands clasped round his knees.

"Try that tobacco," he continued. "You'll like it."

The workman took the tobacco-pouch in an ill-used way, stared at it, stared at the stranger, sniffing as contentedly by him, frowned, muttered something unconnected with an oath, and ended by beginning to fill his pipe.

"Don't swear," said the traveller, putting his pipe from his lips for a moment, but only to replace it, and puff away like a practiced smoker.

"Shall if I like," said the other savagely. "What have you got to do wi' it?"

"Don't" said the traveler; "what's the good? It's weak and stupid. If you don't like a man, hit him. Don't swear."

The workman stared as those strange doctrines were enunciated; then, after a moment' hesitation, he finished filling his pipe, struck a match which refused to light, threw it down impatiently, tried another, and another, and another, with the same result, and then uttered a savage oath.

"At it again," said the traveler, coolly, thrusting a hand into his pocket. "Way, what a dirty-mouthed fellow you are."

"You wasn't be happy till I've made your mouth dirty," said the workman, savagely; "and you're going the gamest of the two at it."

"Nonsense!" said the traveler, coolly. "Why didn't you ask me for a light?"

He handed his box of vesuvians, and it was taken in a sullenly way. One was lighted, and the few puffs of smoke which followed seemed to have a mollifying effect on the smoker, who confined himself to knitting his brows and staring hard at the stranger, who now took off his hat to let the fresh soft breeze blow over his hot fore head, while he gazed down at the little town, with its square-towered church nestling amidst a clump of elms, beyond which showed a great blank, many windowed building, with tall chimney shafts, to or three of which were vomiting clouds of black smoke as evidence to the advantages of the landscape.

"I thought you was a parson," said the young "workman" at last, in a grunt a trifle less surly.

"Eh?" said the other, starting from reverie, "parson! Yes, to be sure I am."

"Methody?"

"No."

"Ranter, p'r'aps?"

"Oh no, only when I get a little warm."

"What are you, then?"

"Well, first of all," said the traveller, quietly, "you'd better answer my question. Is that Dunford?"

The workman hesitated and frowned. It seemed like giving in—being defeated—to answer now, but the clear gray eyes were fixed upon him in a way that seemed to influence his very being, and he said at last, gruffly:

BEBE DANIELS AND ANTONIO MORENO IN GRIFFITH'S IN FAST MOVING MELODRAMA

The paramount production of "The Exciters" by Martin Brown is the feature attraction at Griffin's today, matinee and night. It is an up-to-the-minute story with Bebe Daniels and Antonio Moreno in the principal roles supported by Lila Leslie, Ernest Hilliard, Charles Burr McIntosh, Diana Allen, Cyril Ring and several other screen players of prominence.

Miss Daniels has never had a more delightful role than that of Ranni Rand, whose life is one continuous search for excitement. The story is a humorous and comedy combination. The picture is interesting and beautiful.

A beautiful Travelogue of scenes in British Columbia, a good Century comedy, and William Desmond in a gripping chapter of "The Phantom Fortune" serial are being exhibited on the same program.

GLADYS WALTON IN "THE TOWN SCANDAL" AT REGENT

Jean Crosby handed a hot message to the leading citizens of her home town when she asserted that there was only one real man in the whole town—and that he was going to New York. And the town dads failed it right on the chin, for Jean held the goings to their happiness in her two little hands. A pull on the right string would offer a cure for a volley of rolling pins and the good women folk of the village were wanting with more such a signal. "The Town Scandal", Universal screen attraction, starring Gladys Walton, which is being offered at the Regent today, matinee and night, offers a comedy drama entertainment of real merit.

A Canuck comedy, Pathe News, and a two-reel Torchy comedy are being exhibited on the same program.

MORE TO BE PITIED THAN SCORNED" THRILLING DRAMA STAGED HOME HERE MON.

The first of a series of picturized stage successes will be shown here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Griffin's Theatre when "More to be Pitied Than Scorned" will be presented.

This screen version of Charles E. Blaney's tremendous stage success of the same name will feature the ever popular J. Frank Glendon, Alice Lake, Rosemary Theby and little Josephine Adair.

"More to Be Pitied Than Scorned" is a powerful drama of real life, as all the old spoken dramas were, and it is presented with scenic lavishness which is fully worthy of the wonderful cast of players.

Most of the thrills are the thrills of the heart which every woman will recognize and every man will understand, but there are scenes of real gripping action when you will hold your breath longer than you would believe possible.

Wonderfully directed by Edward J. Le Saint, master of the megaphone, whose years of experience enabled him to produce results that are so true to life that the story seems to be reality.

The great fight in the theatre, before an audience of several hundred people is a masterpiece of film direction and Viola Lorraine's battle for her child is another classic bit in picture history.

ZANE GREY'S "GOLDEN DREAMS" AT REGENT THEATRE MONDAY

"Golden Dreams", another of the immensely popular Zane Grey stories, produced by Goldwyn, and co-starring Clair Adams and Carl Gantvoort will be exhibited at the Regent Theatre, Monday to Wednesday, matinee daily.

In addition to the above 6 reel Western drama, "Rocking Broadway", a good Christie comedy, Aesop Fables and Fred Thomson in the third chapter of "The Eagle's Talon's", and a Sport Review have been arranged for exhibition on the same program.

French Device Filters Light To Produce Color Effects

Paris, July 25.—A remarkable advance made in the science of colors by a Frenchman whose name has not yet been divulged is reported here today. The discovery, which is said to be of equal importance to the cinema and the photograph, deals with filtering light both to neutralize and produce colors.

Eleven filters have already been produced. Materials and other objects upon which the color filter is to react are painted or designed in advance. One filter, for instance, will make a dress appear entirely black. A second filter will bring out in the design alternate lozenges of black and purple. A third might bring out two yellow spots and a green lozenge.

No technical explanation of the discovery has been made except that it is based on profound knowledge of the solar spectrum. It concerns the selection of colors which harmonize or annul each other. The phenomena are produced by electric lights especially colored to filter the light of a room.

DON'T try at first, to can vegetables in any jar largey than a quart. The smaller the jar the easier it is to sterilize.

DON'T use old rubbers. It is cheaper to buy new rubbers than to lose your vegetables.

DON'T try to use a wide rubber on a screw-top jar. The wide rubbers fit the spring-top jar and the narrow rubber the screw-top.

DON'T shorten the time of sterilization.

DON'T fail to seal jars tightly. See that the spring is adjusted to give good pressure on spring-top jars and that the screwtop does not slip on com jars.

A GOOD WINTER WHEAT

Farmers May Try Free a Well Tested Variety

The O. A. C. No. 104 is a Proven Regional Variety of Winter Wheat, Yields Exceptionally Well, Is Hardy and Has a Good Chance for Enterprising Farmers.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Special).

The market value of the winter wheat of Ontario amounts to over fifteen million dollars annually. It is, therefore, of the most vital importance, at the money ends of the Province. The acreage of winter wheat during the past few years. There is not a county or district in Ontario in which winter wheat is not grown, although in New Ontario the sowings amount amount to not more than about 50,000 bushels. Owing to the comparatively low price of winter wheat at present, strict attention should be given to economic methods and to large yields.

O. A. C. No. 104 a Carefully Chosen Strain.

The Dawson's Golden Chaff is still the variety most largely grown according to the December Bulletin, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture for 1922. The object of the variety of securing even a better variety, crosses have been made at the Ontario Agricultural College between the Dawson's Golden Chaff and some other varieties, such as, Tasmania Red, Crimean Red, Turkey Red, Buda Pesth, Imperial Amber, and Bulgarian. A new variety has been obtained at the College by crossing the Dawson's Golden Chaff and the Bulgarian, and this is now known as the O. A. C. No. 104. In both the yield and the co-operative tests this new variety has made a very good record, surpassing the Dawson's Golden Chaff in both yield and quality of grain. It is a white wheat, and resembles the Bulgarian in appearing somewhat like the Dawson's Golden Chaff in a beardless head. It is a vigorous grower, and has been less subject to winter-killing than the Dawson's Golden Chaff.

The Value of Using Good Seed.

It is also important to use seed of high quality. The results of six years' experiments at the College show an average increase in yield of grain per acre of 5 bushels where large as compared with small seed, of 7.8 bushels from plump as compared with shrunken seed, and of 85.6 bushels from sound as compared with broken seed. Seed which was allowed to become thoroughly ripened before it was cut produced a greater yield of both grain and straw, and a heavier weight of grain per measured bushel than that produced from wheat which was cut at an early stage of the kernels of maturity, in each of two years when winter wheat was sprouted in the fields, germination tests of grain were made and 95.6 bushels from sound as compared with broken seed. Seed which was allowed to become thoroughly ripened before it was cut produced a greater yield of both grain and straw, and a heavier weight of grain per measured bushel than that produced from wheat which was cut at an early stage of the kernels of maturity, in each of two years when winter wheat was sprouted in the fields, germination tests of grain were made and the following results show the average percentages of germination by each selection: Skin over germ, unbroken, 94; skin over germ, broken, 76; sprouts one-quarter inch long, 30; and sprouts one inch long, 12. Not only was the sprouted wheat low in germination but the plants produced were very uneven in size.

White Wheats vs. the Red Varieties.

While white wheat as compared with red wheats yield more grain per acre, possess more straw, weigh a pound less per measured bushel, are slightly softer in the grain, are more useful in the manufacture of pastry than wheat and of pastry, and furnish a somewhat finer flour for home production.

Winter wheat which was grown on clover sod yielded much better than that which was grown on corn stubble sod, and that which was grown on land on which field peas were grown and as a green manure yielded 8.5 bushels of wheat per acre more than that grown on land on which buckwheat was used as a green manure.

Several Experimental Union Tests to Choose From.

In time for seeding this autumn, valuable material will be sent out from the College to those farmers intending in Ontario who wish to conduct experiments upon their own farms through the medium of the Experimental Union. The material will be supplied, free of charge, to those who wish to conduct the experiments and report the results in the early autumn of 1924. Any Ontario farmer may apply for the material for any one of the following seven separate tests: (1) Three choice varieties of Winter Wheat (including O. A. C. No. 104); (2) One variety of Winter Rye, and one of Winter Wheat; (3) Spring applications of Sow Fertilizers with Winter Wheat; (4) Autumn and Spring applications of Nitrate of Soda and Common Salt with Winter Wheat; (5) Winter Barley and Winter Barley; (6) Hairy Vetches and Winter Rye as cover crops; (7) Mixtures of Winter Rye and Hairy Vetches for seed production.

The size of each plot is to be one rod wide by two rods long. Fertilizers will be sent by express for Experiment No. 3 and Experiment No. 4 and the co-operative tests this new variety may make an excellent record, surpassing the Dawson's Golden Chaff in both yield and quality of grain. It is a white wheat, and resembles the Bulgaria in appearing somewhat like the Dawson's Golden Chaff in a beardless head. It is a vigorous grower, and has been less subject to winter-killing than the Dawson's Golden Chaff.

EAT MORE HOME-GROWN

We Import Too Much Foreign Agricultural Products

Canadians Use a Good Deal of Imported Fruits, Vegetables and Grain—Their Value Estimated at Nearly $100,000,000—The Mystery of Silkgoo—No Alcohol in Silage Mills.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Special).

Are Canadian farmers getting the full advantage of their home market? A study of the import figures for the fiscal year ending March 31st last reveals the amazing extent to which the food stuffs we must grow ourselves in producing are imported for consumption in Canada.

Take fruits for instance. Of apples we imported 358,201 barrels worth $775,819. They weren't all early apples either, for 30,028 barrels were brought in during March. During the year we imported: berries, $114,-182; peaches, $83,349; cranberries, $313,284; grapes, $661,643; peaches, $493,389; pears, $87,726; plums, $93,-$95,389, and strawberries, $78,-$20; a total of $3,000,283. Add to this $1,786,832 for dried apples, apricots, peaches, figs, raisins, and prunes, and $492,228 for canned peaches, jellies and jams and imported fruits and fruit juices being $36,409,335, besides an item of $1,718,475 for nuts. Much of this was, of course, for substitution, but the sums of these might be substituted, to our financial and gustatory advantage, by home grown products. For instance, we might eat more roast apples and fewer oranges. Much of the nuts are tasteless horticultural a bill for $1,064,-$1,718,475 for nuts, dates, trees and vines might be mentioned.

Coming to vegetables, our total bill for the fresh article was $2,575,076, while the canned sums of these $187,689, onions for $467,099, potatoes for $1,265,242, tomatoes for $965,941, a total for these four comparatively grown products of $2,885,971. Of canned vegetables we imported $626,310 worth; of pickles, $1,-$1,660. Our total outlay for vegetables and vegetable products amounted to $4,648,338 and more or nearly $5,000,000.

We have a great dairying country in Canada, yet we purchased abroad during the year $124,317 worth of milk and its products. This included $1,349,819 by the U. S. and $1,-$237,932 for $16,517 Ile. of cheese, $46,332 for butter, $85,710 for casein, and even $28,276 for sweet milk and cream. Our butter importations were supplemented by 1,156,142 lbs. of imported oleo margarine.

Our foreign grain bill amounted to $11,715,642, though this included $7,695,256 for feed corn, and $2,696,000 for oats, of which $2,000,-000 lbs. came from China. Millet products ran to $1,-$1,258, and prepared foods and bakery products another $600,000.

Our total imports under the head "Agricultural and Vegetable Products, Mainly Food" came to the astounding total of $162,-782. We could hardly be expected, however, to produce our own tea, coffee and spices, though we might substitute chicory for coffee, and which now amounts to approximately $40,000,000 a year, by growing more ourselves.

We also imported $20,935,296 worth of sugar, and this is not such a loss as we all know, are mostly derived from the products of the farm. We may be, however, that some of our sweetening might be derived locally because there isn't enough nitrogen in the right form in the plants to get all the time of the year. As a single element existing alone, neither animal nor bee gives plants the right nitrogen, and yet the air is the source of the entire supply for all life.

If we go back into history of Roman agriculture we find that even the farmers of that time knew the necessity of rotation of crops, though all of this was known, it was not until the year 1888 that reason for was discovered. Then it was that the little swellings always found on the roots of legumes were discovered to contain bacteria which are a definite form of life, now known as bacteria for the growing of crops, for these little workers had a great deal to do with keeping the soil in fit condition for the growing of crops, for they extract nitrogen supply of the soil.—Board's dairyman.

No Alcohol in Silage Mills.

Satisfactory evidence has been adduced to show that by the feeding of silage the danger of intoxication from the milk. While it is true that silage does have traces of alcohol in it, yet it is altogether probable that the alcohol, as well as the acids of silage are completely burned up in the cow and never passes even in minute traces into the milk.

The poultry house should be built so low as possible without danger of the attendants bumping their heads against it when working with the birds. Many walls warmed than a high one.

"Wonderful dreams indeed," replied Sir Ernest.

"Oh, do tell me now," she went on excitedly, "what you used to dream about in the Antarctic?"

LIFE AND LOOKS.

Much Truth in Adage, "My Face Is My Fortune, Sir."

In the old nursery rhyme the milkmaid announces that her face is her fortune, sir. Many a modern Fatal beauty, however, is not permanent, a writer in London Answers reminds its readers.

Sometimes its life is extremely short. Apart from the toll that father time takes, there are other enemies. Late hours, neglect, bad health, overwork, worry and fret and worry are perhaps the most deadly of beauty destroyers. Fortunately, many can be tackled and rendered harmless. Take late hours, for instance.

It is quite right that we should enjoy ourselves, but we must not neglect the rule governing. It is fresh air, exercise, and sleep. Sleep is the best of the like, that keep the skin soft and supple, and the eyes bright.

Bad temper soon makes a naturally pretty face unattractive. If we would not lose our beauty we must keep ourselves under the governance, lose our temper. Overeating, of course, means loss of health and the delicate contours are lost in fat. Overworking means the same, in fact that in the end it leads to unhappiness, and unhappiness, nothing is gained, puts its imprint on the face.

Worry brings the same lines. You may have a pretty face naturally, but it is far better to face them and overcome them, or—if it must be so—accept them as the years go on—than to accept a rainy day, than to allow worry to leave its ineffectual waste of mental effort. It alters the face, and, in the end, it effects nothing. But it destroys beauty.

Nervousness has ruined you many a good effect on good looks. Absent, it takes away from the charm of the face. Present, it doubles, trebles, quadruples it. Take the nervousness, it will make an ordinary face—yes, and a beautiful face—appear beautiful. The "something else" is expression.

Expression is not acquired you merely you can, of your own will, substitute expression, and let that be your "fortune."

We wonder sometimes why some men marry the most matrimonial choices. Pretty Doris is passed over, and Dorothy is married by the man. Yes, but Doris has a pleasant expression, and Doris has not. What Doris really is is expressed in her face, and she is attractive to look at. Take the features one by one, and each is lacking. But the whole Doris makes expression transforms everything. It makes the plain beautiful.

Doris, as the years roll on, will lose not one charm. Dora will add beauty through her expression. Dorothy will grow old and attractive. Why?—What is the gain in possessing facial beauty if the face is lacking in the contented expression? What is the use of beauty with no expression?

Don't look in a mirror. Assume you are plain of face, put a pleasant expression on it, and the impression is not so noticeable. If you have beauty of face, assume it, and it will be a beautiful expression. All vices and all virtues are shown in the face and expression in our faces. So the moral is obvious—cultivate character, it makes or mars your looks.

IT WAS FINALLY FINISHED.

Wife (on the way home from the church)—That's what I call a finished sermon!

Husband—Yes, but do you know I thought it never would be.

THE REAL THING, TOO

"Who is that fellow clinched with the editor?"

"Oh, that's one of our struggling young poets."

INJURED DIGNITY

"Does you still refuse, sah, to pay me dem two dollars ah done loaned you'se, de Lawd only knows when?"

"Nassah!" dignifiedly replied Brother Boggy, "Ah don't refuse. Ah jes refusin'."

DISCOVERER OF CAR THREATENED

Toronto, Aug 4.—A threatening letter, reporting to come from the man who blew up the fuse compartment in the box car of a C.N.R. train here last week, was received by W. R. Sexton, of 114 Grenadier road, and has been turned over by him to the police.

The letter, which in many ways was similar to that received by a Toronto newspaper last week, was printed in pencil and made threats against Sexton. Some little sum delivered the anonymous letter by the bundle for their owner in a barn on the Dunlop estate on Sunday last.

Mr. Sexton has become rather nervous since the arrival of the letter, and has turned it over to the police, who, however, will not make public its contents. It is understood that Mr. Sexton has been closely questioned, by the police, but it was decided that he had been of the detective office to-day.

The letter bore a Toronto postmark.

5,000 HARVESTERS COMING TO CANADA

Many More in Britain Expected to Take Advantage of Reduced Rates

Montreal, Que., Aug. 4.—Since men willing to work on the harvest fields of the prairie provinces, have been offered the reduced rate of $50.00 from England to Winnipeg the Canadian Pacific have disposed of nearly 5,000 tickets. Thousands of applications for information are being received at the company's London office daily.

It is expected that before the reduced fare is stepped on August 11, some thousands more will be aboard the Canadian Pacific steamships bound for Canada. It will be the policy of the transportation company to create as far as possible a favorable impression in the minds of the men, but the cheap return insures that those, who do not find Canada conditions agreeable, may return to their homes before falling into unemployment or becoming destitute.

Should Have Spent Them Before War

By GUS M. OEHM

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, (By mail to United Press).—Germany has developed a new indoor sport—figuring out what wonderful things could be got before the war with the same amount of marks one lays out for trivialities to-day.

For instance when the German today pays out 57,000 marks to have his suit pressed he has a lot of fun figuring out that since he could buy a complete suit before the war for 70 marks, the 57,000 marks which he spends for cleaning would have brought him 814 new suits in the olden days.

The cost of a bad pencil to-day equals pre-war cost of the furnishing a complete living-room, bed-room with two beds and well-equipped kitchen. The price of a little box of matches to-day equals the pre-war price of ten pairs of good shoes. A cigarette equals the price of a good piece, and the single individual little match with which a German lights his cigar costs as much to-day in paper marks as a pre-war pound of meat and a pound of butter.

Everytime a German eats a cherry he does so with the realization that "there goes a 10-mark piece."

And as for strawberries, he can't even think of the 160 marks each one sets him back.

Every puff of a cigarette he figures, means five marks gone up in smoke. And he gets gray-haired when he thinks that every time he rides his elevator to the top floor he does so at 3,000 marks a trip. Most of them walk.

Word Painting That Brings Scene Perfectly Before Reader's Eyes.

"Through some paddocks and a belt of trees you come first to the wool shed, over now, for the time of shearing is past. You pass through a white gate and or you descend the steep drive you see the house at the bottom of the hill—a long low bungalow, cosily painted in two shades of apple green, with a dark red roof. By it runs a little creek, which widens into a pool at the foot of the garden. The hill above the house is rich with wattle, the scrub, too heavy to doom but dustless in the dry, is fragrant in the air. In the garden beside a tall clump of bamboos, a black wattle with feathery leaves and pale yellow blossoms hangs over the water. There are great bunches of frangipani, ashy-blossomed bell as bougainvillea, pink peach blooms and exotic ornamentations.

A black swan comes up and down the water; he skuttles on his long neck and utters his queer metered cry. From the verandah you can see on the skyline a long low hill, knee of trees, this green to the darkness.

"Birds are on safari; and here, parrots are showing defiant against the blue sky. The deep hum of cicadas, a continuous throaty measure not much louder than a cricket, but with an occasional deep note as though a harp string had been struck.

Later the moon will rise and the magpies delight you on with their harmonious warble all the night long, and the trunks of the great gum trees stand out white in the moonlight, another dignity to the scene. A cobra on the fence, a deep quiet, broken only by the sounds of nature.—London Daily Mail.

Gulling the Ducks.

That was a strange relation indeed which Mr. H. J. Massingham, the British naturalist, noticed between a duck and a gull. In a small body of sea gulls, in his recent book, "Down Wind to the Countryside," he describes what he saw and incidentally illustrates well the meaning of the word "gull." "One day," he writes, "I saw some tame tufted ducks attended by some thirty gulls. As soon as a duck went down into the water one of the gulls placed itself near by. When the duck reappeared or the gull marked the gull—or sometimes a pair of them—left the water, and, hovering at a yard or two above the bird's head, swooped down upon it with open beak and clack sounds, and dropped its food on the snorkeler, whereupon the gull-in-gull scrambled to recover it. The purpose of the manoeuvre, of course, is to disturb the innocent duck, and nine time out of ten it succeeded. The same thing occurred day after day. The food of the duck was neither weed nor fish on the occasions when Mr. Massingham watched them, but, so far as he could guess, water snails, limpets, and other fresh-water molluscs.

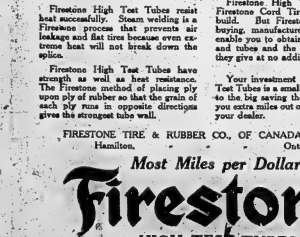

None In Sight Now.

Jack—You in a terrible fix, I'm engage to three girls.

Tom—Well, that's not exactly a trime.

Jack—No, that's the worst of it. If it were I could go to prison and have seven years.—Boston Evening Transcript.

How Can You Prevent Frequent Tire Changes?

Many tire changes are made necessary by tube failures. Heat raises havoc with tubes. It is the inner tube's constant enemy. The way to save yourself tube trouble and consequent annoyance is to buy tubes that resist heat.

Firestone High Test Tubes resist heat successfully. Steam welding is a Firestone process that prevents air leakage and flat tires because even extreme heat will not break down the splice.

Firestone High Test Tubes have strength as well as heat resistance. The Firestone method of placing ply upon ply of rubber so that the grain of each ply runs in opposite directions gives the strongest tube wall.

Compare Firestones with other tubes and note the wider Firestone cross section. This extra width means less stretch to fill the casing, less strain when inflated, less tension and longer life.

Firestone High Test Tubes, like Firestone Cord Tires, cost more to build. But Firestone economies in buying, manufacture and distribution enable you to obtain these better tires and tubes and their increased mileage they give at no additional first cost.

Your investment in Firestone High Test Tubes is a small matter compared to the big saving they effect in giving you extra miles out of your tires. Ask your dealer.

POSSES SEEK INSANE MURDERER WHO ESCAPED AT GUELPH

TORONTO POLICE QUIZ SUSPECT

Man Arrested at Detroit as Toronto Hold-up Suspect, Questioned

DENIES COMPLICITY

Identified by Garage Man as Driver of Car Used by Bandits

Toronto, Aug. 6.—The man, giving the name of William S. Morton, arrested at Detroit Saturday, suspected of being one of the bandit sextet who staged the daring daylight holding up of bank messengers here on July 24, was brought to Toronto today from Windsor by Toronto police officials.

While there appear to be several flaws in the theory of the police that he was one of the band, the fact that he has been identified as the driver of the bandit car will warrant his detention until other evidence is sifted, police believe. It is not believed that any of the messengers who were attacked will be able to positively identify the driver of the car. The suspect will be confronted with the men attacked Monday.

Windsor, Aug. 6.—Said by police to be positively identified as one of six men wanted for complicity in the daring $83,000 Toronto bank robbery on July 24, William S. Morton, 40 years old, was arrested in Detroit on Saturday night in a Woodward avenue restaurant and turned over to Toronto authorities today.

Although he protested his innocence, following his arrest at the point of a pistol, Morton waived extradition and was brought to Windsor immediately.

He was identified by Stanley Hallam, a Toronto garage proprietor and former member of the Provincial Police detachment stationed at Windsor, as the man he saw an hour before the robbery driving the automobile used by the robbers, which later was found abandoned some miles east of Toronto.

He was taken immediately to the train and turned over to Toronto, officers this morning. They started at once for Toronto.

Morton declined to make any statement to the Windsor police, except to deny his guilt and assert he was in New York City on the day of the robbery. Hallam asserted there could be no mistake, however; that he knew Morton, and was positive he had seen him in the car used by the robbers just before they waited for the party of Toronto bank messengers, shot three of them, and then seized pouches of currency the messengers were carrying from the banking house to their home institutions.

The suspect was arrested by Detective Lieutenant Wilson and by O'Grady of the Detroit force, and Walter Gorman, a Pinkerton operative. The officers had been advised of the license number of the big touring car Morton had been seen driving about Detroit shortly after 8 o'clock found the car parked in front of a restaurant at Woodward avenue and Columbia street. They entered and, seeing Morton captured him at the point of a pistol.

Windsor officers declare Morton has a long police record in this city, his home until four or five years ago. They declare charges lodged against him range from violations of the Ontario Temperance Act to theft and breaking into box cars, and allege he has been active in the rum-running trade.

Large rewards have been offered by the Toronto officials in the conviction of those hurt in the thugs and police officers on both sides of the Detroit River have been on the alert to apprehend them.

Several suspects have been taken, all except Morton having been speedily released.

EIGHT KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 6.—Eight persons were instantly killed and two fatally injured late yesterday afternoon when a train crashed into an automobile truck carrying a picnic party in Niagara Falls. COUPLE ARRIVE IN BELLEVILLE FROM FAR AWAY PANAMA CANAL ZONE; 6,200 MILE MOTOR TRIP

Ontario in her summer garb enlarges in beauty and attractiveness the tropical charm of Central America and the vaunted scenic beauties of California, in the mind of Charles Spenson of the Panama zone who, in company with Mrs. Spenson, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Merry at the Marchmont Home. Mr. Spenson is a native of Washington State and is at present engaged as superintendent of the Pacific section of the Panama Canal. He has resided in the canal zone for a period of ten years.

Mr. and Mrs. Spenson left Ballard, at the western end of the canal on May 30 and boarded a steamer bound for Los Angeles, arriving on June 12. A journey of 6,200 miles overland by motor car to Vancouver was then begun. After a short time spent in Vancouver the party drove back through the States of Washington, Idaho, Montana, through Yellowstone Park, Wyoming, Montana, Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Cleveland, and thence to Belleville, arriving on Aug. 3, thus completing a 9,000 mile journey. Mr. Spenson reports having had a very interesting trip and enjoyed the scenery in Ontario second to none.

Mr. Spenson served in the navy for some time previous to attaining his present position. His whole trip occupied a space of two months and three days. Very little car trouble was experienced and with the exception of a broken spring, all went well. This occurred when they were forced to detour east of Toronto. Heavy rains caused the car to skid into the ditch, which caused the accident.

Mr. Spenson is very much impressed with the evidences of Belleville's substantial growth and civic attractiveness. Mr. Spenson, after motoring through Prince Edward county, expressed himself as being impressed with its location, facilities and people.

The couple will motor back as far as New York, from where they will take the boat to their home. The car will also be shipped to Balboa.

George H. Ross Is Finance Controller Of New Government

Will Make Public Address in Order to "Satisfy" Eager World Leaders

Toronto, Aug. 6.—George H. Ross, Commissioner of Finance and City Treasurer for Toronto, is Ontario's provincial Finance Controller. His salary will be $25,000 or $30,000 per annum and his appointment probably will be approved by Order-in-Council early this week.

Premier Ferguson and his Treasurer, Hon. W. H. Price, K.C., have given consideration to several names, including another Toronto financial man and a prominent Montreal financier, and it is understood that a gradual process of elimination has left but the name of Mr. Ross and Mr. Price, with the chances all in favor of Mr. Ross' selection.

At $25,000 per annum, the salary of the new Financial Controller for Ontario would be one of the doubtedest of the Prime Minister, and would rank as the largest on the Civil Service payroll.

He was born in Toronto on September 13, 1850, and educated in the public and high schools of Ottawa. He joined the staff of Ottawa as early as 1872, and succeeded to various positions, becoming inspector of the whole system in 1891. He was successively appointed Manager of the bank; and later entered a firm of New York stock brokers. In 1920 he contested South Bruce as Commissioner of Finance and City Treasurer.

Mr. Ross has been identified with the National Boy Scout Movement for many years, and has contributed many articles on municipal finance to various newspapers and periodicals. In June, 1922, at the international convention of Kiwanis Clubs in Toronto he was elected President of that great body, representative of every club in the Union and all the Provinces of Canada

WORK ON STATION STREET UNDERWAY

Steam Shovel in Operation at Point Near G. T. R. Station

Work on the Station street pavement is progressing very favorably, the upper end having been finished up since Friday. A gang of men are busily engaged in operations and are laying down sewers and other work preparatory to or auxiliary connections which will be laid later. The steam shovel has been moved from Coleman street and the asphalt plant is being overhauled at the foundry. Station street will undoubtedly be one of the most travelled thoroughfares in the city when the pavement has been laid. The work is proceeding toward Front street but there is some talk of moving operations to the opposite end. However, in all probability operations will proceed as they have been started. Highland Avenue is practically ready for the top coat which will be laid in a short time.

UNDER ARREST ON 'BAD' CHECK CHARGE

Belleville Man's Financial Manipulations Lead Him Into Trouble

A young man who recently came from Haliburn to this city where he has opened up a small repairing business, has been taken into custody on Saturday evening, on a charge of securing money under false pretences. He was arrested by Mr. J. W. Seeley, butcher and grocer at 4 North Front street, after he tendered him a cheque for the amount, on the Standard Bank for which there were no funds. It is alleged the young man tried to secure $5 on the fraudulent afternoon. Knowing that he was to receive $65 on Saturday evening, he thought he had time before the bank opened on Monday he would be able to cover the amount of the cheque but when he visited the manager in the meantime, however Seeley and called the Standard Bank and found that there were no funds there. He then applied for the man's arrest. The accused will appear in court tomorrow morning, to answer to the charge.

AGED BACHELOR DIES SUDDENLY

John Malone, 65, Dies in Ranch Home in Tyendinaga Township

HEART DISEASE

Coroner Boyce Finds No Mysterious Circumstance Connected with Death

John Malone, wealthy bachelor, aged 65 years or more, was found dead in his lonely home on his three-hundred acre farm and ranch land on the eighth concession of Tyendinaga township, by neighbors last night. He had been dead for several days and the body is reported as being in an advanced stage of decomposition.

First word of the finding of the aged bachelor in his dilapidated home this morning when Inspector Francis Nephin of the Provincial Police received a telephone call from Deseronto informing him that the body had been found. After the finding of the body Coroner Boyce was notified and at Deseronto but he was not to be located, so Inspector Nephin notified Coroner Boyce.

Malone, who in his younger days was a clever man and was well educated, had accumulated his fortune farming and ranching. He had never married and lead a quiet, secluded life. Of late years he had been of a rather retiring disposition and had become somewhat eccentric. He was known as a well-to-do farmer and ranchman, but had few personal friends who resided in the United States.

Dr. Boyce, who viewed the body, is at his opinion that death had resulted suddenly some time during Wednesday or Thursday. There was nothing suspicious about the manner of death, which had resulted from a sudden attack of heart failure, for which deceased had been troubled some time ago. The body was found lying upon the floor and was fully clothed, even with the boots on and hat lying near by. There was every indication that the unfortunate man had just been stricken down when he was fatally stricken and fell upon the floor, where the body was found by some neighbors. An inquest was not considered necessary.

ROTARIANS AT LUNCHEON HEAR NOTED SINGER; MEMBERS PAY TRIBUTE TO HARDING'S MEMORY

Hot weather does not seriously interfere with Rotarian attendance as indicated at today's luncheon and Rotarians present today enjoyed one of the most entertaining meetings ever held here. Entertainer-Chef today was Rotarian Knight MacGregor, professional soloist and former Belleville boy, who delighted Rotarians with five beautiful solos. Mr. MacGregor possesses a powerful and pleasing voice, and is an enthusiastic diet wheel exponent. Within the last few weeks he has sung for the Rotary clubs of New York City, his home, Columbus O., and Indianapolis, Ind. The solos rendered were "Hallo," "Smilin' Thro'", "Dona", "On the Road to Mandalay" and an Italian operatic number, "Largo" from Xerxes.

This last number sung in Italian by Rotarian MacGregor was the last record and the finest ever sung by Enrico Caruso. "On the Road to Mandalay" was sung by special request, as Rotarian MacGregor declared it was one song for phonograph records. President Scott extended a hearty vote of thanks to the singer, on behalf of the club.

Many guests today were, Rotarians Doug Graham of Kingston, and Frank Wallace of North Bay, Kiwanian E. A. Lewis of Toronto, Rev. C. E. Clarke, the new Rector of Christ Church, James Booth of Belleville and Mrs. M. P. Duff who so capably acted as accompanist for the singer.

Rotarians today stood in silence for one minute as a mark of respect for the late President Warren Harding of the United States, who was an honorary member of the Rotary club of Washington, D.C.

Rotarian Bob Graham gave a humorous ten-minute speech, in which he told a thrilling story of a flying fish which he encountered while making Rangoon on his Mediterranean cruise. The story was a fitting climax to the references made to this fish species as referred to in the song, "On the Road to Mandalay."

Rotarian Al Sillman was congratulated upon his new appointment of Superintendent of the Canadian Express Company for this district.

Next Monday, Mr. J. R. "Bob" Cooke, M.P.P., member for North Hastings, and member of the Hydro Electric commission will be the speaker of the day, together with three other members. Rotarian Jack Angus who underwent an operation recently at Wellesley Hospital, Toronto, is improving in health and the club members were informed today.

WADING POOL TO BE OPENED TONIGHT

The Rotary wading pool for the kiddies of this city will be opened this evening. The water will be turned on at an early hour. City Engineer Chas. Campbell informed President Oswald Scott of the Rotary Club at noon today. This pool is situated in fire hall park.

PRIEST'S SLAYER ELUDES POLICE

John Cosgrave, Deaf-Mute, Who Killed Father Cluchecy Makes 'Getaway'

OFFICIALS MYSTIFIED

Had Been Detained in Ontario Reformatory After Being Found Insane

Guelph, Aug. 6 (Special)—Authorities at the Ontario Reformatory at 2 p. m. today had received no word concerning John Cosgrave, deaf mute and slayer of Rev. Father Clohecy of Proton, who escaped from the institution Saturday.

Guelph, Aug 6.—One of the most sensational escapes which ever took place at the Ontario Reformatory occurred on Saturday morning, when John Cosgrave, the deaf-mute murderer of Rev. Fa ther Clohecy of Proton, near Dundalk, made his guards. The whole case is the most mysterious in the history of the institution.

While the authorities at the reformatory are somewhat reticent regarding the manner in which Cosgrave made his escape, it is understood that, while with several others from the section for the church of the deaf and dumb, Cosgrave aged in some manner to secrete himself behind some bushes. It was some little time before he was missed.

The opinion was expressed today that Cosgrave may have made for the River Speed, which runs near the institution and drowned himself, and a close watch is being kept in order to recover the body should this be the case.

The C.P.R. and the Toronto Suburban Railways are on the route provided, and it is believed that he might have remained under cover until night and then boarded a passing freight train, as trains do not travel very fast on this section of the line.

The escaped lunatic is 5 feet 9½ inches in height, has brown, straight hair, blue eyes, and weighs 165 pounds. At the time of his escape he wore a dark brossed in a dark tweed trousers, a khaki shirt, and wore a blue cap. He is 34 years of age.

Cosgrave shot Rev. Father Thomas Clohecy as the priest was unlocking the door of the church in the village of Proton Station on Saturday, August 19, last. Father Clohecy was taken to Owen Sound Hospital, where he died on August 23. Cosgrave fled to a bush where he remained until after the coroner's inquest had been held.

Twenty men are engaged in the pursuit. He is thought to be hiding in the bush north of Guelph and will likely remain there until exposure or starvation drive him out again as it did immediately after the crime was committed. He is known to have brought razor, razor strop, berries and water for a considerable time.

Local police headquarters were notified on Sunday of Cosgrave's escape from the Guelph prison farm and a close watch will be maintained by both Provincial and local police, although it is not believed that the man will reach this vicinity before being overtaken, if he is alive.

12-YEAR-OLD BOY IS LOST; SEEKS PARENTS

Mr. T. D. Ruston would be glad to receive any particulars as to parents who says his parents reside in Belleville, Ont. The boy's description is as follows: Rode on Trenton with a milk-man and intended to go home with him. He lost the man and started to walk to Belleville when a passing motorist picked him up and took him in charge to the city. Mr. Ruston telephoned to Belleview but was unable to locate the boy's parents.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION, GREATEST PHASE OF CHURCH WORK ASSERTS NEW RECTOR OF CHRIST CHURCH

Rev. C. E. Clarke, in First Sermon, Urges Activity in Church Work on the Part Of Young People

Delivering a powerful and appropriate sermon to the congregation at Christ Church Sunday morning, Rev. C. E. Clarke, M.A., the new rector of that church, who was formerly stationed at Campbellford, made a distinct impression upon the minds of his congregation members. This was Rev. Mr. Clarke's first service at his new charge. Rev. Mr. Clarke started with the service, it being Communion Sunday.

After thanking the congregation for having selected him as their new rector, Rev. Clarke expressed the sincere hope that at the end of his work at Christ Church, the confidence of the whole congregation would be his. "In commencing duties as new rector of any church," exclaimed Rev. Clarke, "I believe that it is the duty of the Rector to have working plans formulated in his mind whereby the church may continue its good work and possibly go further afield." In my sermon this morning there I will tell you what my conception of the perfect church is."

In Bible days, when immorality was prevalent in the Temples, and many believed that Christ sent nothing but plagues and pestilences, the Israelites used to congregate among themselves with the church. It was necessary for them however to forget the evil and to make the most of good and it was also necessary for the Jews to forget their pride and feeling towards the Gentile, in order that a harmonious and strong church might be established and maintained.

The same is true today.

Christian education in the church today is regarded by Rev. Clarke as the greatest phase of church work.

"Unfortunately," declared the new Rector "as Christian education is not highly considered in the public schools, it is very imperative that it be developed in the Sunday schools." We are not born Christians," he continued, "although we may live in heathen surroundings. We must be taught and bring to the church people who has passed through the Sunday schools of our churches, is much more valuable to our country than the young man or woman who has not attended Sunday school.

"I do not hesitate to accept an invitation to teach a Sunday school class if asked," urged Rev. Clarke, "for it is a grand old work, but a work whereby you may be able to teach some child, who would otherwise be running the streets or bathing in the river."

"We must reach out for every boy and girl, not primarily that they should be Anglicans, but that they may get into closer relationship with their Saviour by hearing the Word of God."

The second great phase of a typically perfect Christian church, as described by Rev. Clarke, is the social aspect, the fellowship, and the keeping in touch, one with the other, as well as with God. Strangers should be welcomed into the church, and assisted in every possible manner to find their feet in the strange city. There should be a social distinguished for if there are, that church is not a truly Christian church. There should be no distinction shown, but all should the symbolic wine and eat the sacred bread of the Sacrament from a common cup and plate respectively.

Worship is the third essential of the perfect Christian church, and was accordingly stressed by the new rector.

"We have a beautiful service and church here, and we must all be proud to take part in the services. The more we do the greater will be our enjoyment and profit."

Allies Sentenced Germany To Death, Says Morel

Says Victors in World War Perpetrated Moral Infamy on the Vanquished Who Had Trusted Wilson

By E. D. MOREL, M.P.
(Copyright, 1923, by the United Press by arrangement with "Foreign Affairs", London).

CHAPTER II.

London, Aug. 6.—(United Press) — What we have allowed to be done to Germany has been morally indefensible. The young skeptic of the war found the German nation with a heart stabbed by economic suffering and by heroic fortitude against colossal odds.

You may call it well-deserved suffering if you like, although, for my part, I have never been able to understand the mentality which finds satisfaction in the spectacle of collective suffering.

But even from that point of view, to suffer is to atone—the suffering is meaningless. Bitter experience has revealed to it the flaws in its own government mechanism, the faults, the weaknesses, the intemperancies, the lack of perspective and judgment in its own rulers. Misery in every shape and form has burned into its soul a detestation of war and militarism.

Bowed down under an immense weight of affliction, but not broken; beaten and chastened, but still preserving its self-respect, the German people were at that moment capable of an passionate response to the conception of a constructive international, as eager to participate in a new world-order of national relationships, as they had shown themselves capable of facing a world-foe arms.

Even before the last cannon had ceased to fire, they had expelled their rulers, denounced their imperialism, and by a prodigious "leur de force" turned their old constitution inside out and evolved as real a political democracy as any in existence. TRUSTED WILSON CONQUERORS

They accepted the Wilsonian programme as a creative and constructive measure. They gave the guidance of a statesman of lofty and noble mind—Prince Max of Baden—they trusted his pledged word of their conquerors. What was the result?

The treatment of the German people by the governments of France and Britain since the armistice is without parallel in history. The process began with the elaboration of the document still spoken of as a "Treaty", but which was in reality a sentence of political and economic death upon the German State—blind to the consequences of immediate, but of lingering death.

To a vast number of individual Germans it has meant, and means, physical death. We, the British people, have been watching for four years the execution of this lingering death sentence upon the German State with an insensibility, or with a non-comprehension of his human effects, due, in main, to the systematic concealment of the facts, very terrible to Englishmen who had enough imagination and knowledge to understand the tragedy, except love for their country to suffer because of its participation in producing the tragedy and enough appreciation of the international situation to realize that, sooner or later, the government responsible for the tragedy would assuredly quarrel between themselves with disastrous results for their peoples.

CLEMENCEAU AND GEORGE

The stage has now been reached when all the warning written in these columns materializes in stern realities. The sentence upon Germany was drawn up by a Frenchman (Clemenceau) who realized quite clearly what he was doing, and by a Welshman (Lloyd George) who either foresaw nothing of what his action involved; or who, if he did foresee it, put his own immediate political future first and the interests of his country and of the world second.

In either case he ought to be drummed out of public life. For the school to which the Frenchman belonged taught that the interest of France would be served by the political destruction and economic strangulation of Germany, and by the establishment of a French diplomatic, economic and military hegemony over the Continent of Europe.

His believed this, he clerked for that, and his and his successors became, concurrently with the inauguration of the policy, extensive preparations to enforce it against any power that might eventually challenge it. Hence the fact that to-day France is incomparably stronger in aircraft than all the rest of the Powers put together, i.e., stronger in the chief destructive agency of modern war; that she has a vast army under arms, and that she is arming all her satellites in Europe.

Hence the fact that the people of this country are at last on the point to open their eyes to the danger and to put their hands into their pockets to guard against it.

But every British school taught the Welshman that British interest would not be served by the destruction of Germany and would be jeopardised by a French hegemony in Europe. Every British history book told him that this country had fought for 400 years against the creation of such a hegemony.

Thus, while the Frenchman served his country in the fatal way peculiar to the particular school he followed, the Welshman did the most grievous die-service both to his country and to the world.

The horrible feature of the last four years has been on the one hand the steady march of the British and French nations towards rupture amid hypocritical pretenses of everlasting friendship from their statements, whose spokesman spoke with their tongues in their cheeks, coupled with the ingrezest anti-Germanism of the tory "die-hards" and their fatuous money-making press; and, on the other, the absence of any public expression of sympathy or generosity with the German people, any moral protest whatsoever by leading politicians, or by the churches, for the treatment meted out to them. And now we are up against the operation of the natural law of retribution.

"MORE TO BE PITIED THAN SCORNED" FAMOUS STAGE SUCCESS NOW FILMED

Romance is not confined to the age of top boots and swishing plumes. Love has outlasted the centuries and will continue to do so.

Motley love, greatest of all human emotions, is the keynote of the thrilling drama of incest and stage that Charles E. Blaney called "More to be Pitied Than Scorned." An old fashioned title to be sure, but mother love is an old-fashioned thing even if it does rule the world nowadays as before.

They took her baby from her through no fault of her own and she followed blindly, although her road led through the hospital, the prison and the insane asylum. The mother of More to Be Pitied Than Scorned" is Alice Lake, whose tremendous following among Belleville picture lovers will flock to see her in this famous play. Miss Lake's talents need no press agent. She is as perfectly cast for the part of Viola Lorraine as though she had lived the part, and as an emotional actress she has no peer on the silversheet. Baby Josephine Adair as Ruth Lorraine is a blonde kiddie who wins the heart of every beholder at once and makes the smiles and tears chase each other in lively fashion. J. Frank Glendon, Rosemary Theby, and Philo McCullough make up the balance of the leading roles and each is perfect in his given part.

"No Wedding Bells", a highly amusing Larry Semon comedy, a thrilling serial jungle story, and a new Sport Review are also being exhibited on the same program.

CLAIRE ADAMS IS HEROINE IN MANY ZANE GREY FILMS

Another thrilling Zane Grey picture, produced by Benjamin B. Hampton and distributed by Goldwyn, "Golden Dreams," is at the Regent theatre for three days, beginning today, with a matinee daily. It is based upon Zane Grey's story of the same title.

The story concerns the daughter of a Spanish soldier and an American father, in the mythical Spanish State of Chinora, who falls in love with Sandy Buchanan, the American engineer in charge of the oil wells on the MacDonald estate. Her aunt, Countess de Elberra, has other plans for her. She wants Mercedes to marry the young Duke of Othomo, whose fortunes are at a very low ebb and who is wanted in Spain for offences against the government. The Duke and his uncle, Don Felipe de Cristobal, plot to kill Buchanan, but with the aid of an American circus troupe he routs his enemies and wins the girl.

There is color and picturesqueness and adventure galore in this photoplay. Spectators early take sides with the lovers and root for them till the last foot of film has been unreeled. Mr. Hampton and his directors staged a great fight at the inn in which the hero and his friends hold back hundreds of natives until the circus people have opened the animal cages and loosed the lions, tigers and bears upon the attacking party. The photography and direction are excellent.

Claire Adams and Carl Gantvoort are the featured players, as they were in Goldwyn's previous Hampton production by the same author, "When Romance Rides." Their roles give them opportunity for acting that thrills the spectators and holds them in suspense. Other members of the great cast are Madame Rose Dione, Morris McKay, Bertram Grassby, Frank Leigh, Audrey Chapman, Frank Hayes, Babe London, Walter Perkins and Mary Jane Irving.

"Rocking Broadway", a funny Christie comedy, Fox News, and Ann Little and Fred Thomson in the third chapter of Universal's stunt serial "The Eagle's Talons", are announced for presentation on the same program.

League of Nations Seeking Action

Liberal Leaders Now in Control Want It To Take Definite Stand on Big Problems

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Geneva, August 5 (United Press).—The fourth annual assembly of the League of Nations, which will convene at Geneva, September 3, for a month's session will be more pregnant of possibilities than any of the three preceding sessions.

The assembly gives every indication of being fatherhated throughout with surprises. Two important changes or developments that have taken place in the League during the past year.

The League has now actually passed into the hands and control of the liberals, with a real leader, the League, during the three years of its existence, has run its system to an extent where it wants something real to chew on.

In other words the League instead of being content with handling more or less routine questions, proposes to butt in of its own initiative on current questions, such as reparations international debts the Ruhr, the near-east and everything else that is constituting an obstacle to peace.

While none of these questions figure at the present time on the agenda, owing to the fact that the agenda has to be drawn up and released to all Leaguers four months in advance, nevertheless the constitution of the League permits all such current questions to be brought up on the floor of the assembly.

Each assembly opens with a presentation by the League Council of its report for the past year. This corresponds to the usual 'address from the throne' and a general debate immediately ensues.

Any member has the right to inject into the debate any current question, such as reparations or the Ruhr, by merely demanding why the council did not take up the question of its own initiative and try to solve it.

While the just lowering this has been a rule ably about getting into deep water by injecting such questions, there is every indication that such a condition can no longer prevail. The League has admittedly received world-wide criticism for failure to tackle some of the most important questions that are manifestly delaying worldwide adjustment. There is a steadily growing world-wide demand that the League become a more element in the handling of every international question.

Finally, heavy pressure is being brought to bear on Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, the Scandinavian countries and others to demand before the Assembly that the League delve into the problems of reparations, inter-allied debts, the Ruhr and other questions that need immediate solution if Europe is ever to get readjusted.

The Assembly will be in the hands of the liberals, with Lord Robert Cecil as leader, something which the assemblies have always lacked in the past.

Although Lord Robert Cecil has been a participant at all of the past assemblies, it has only been as the delegate from South Africa and not of England.

On the other hand the English delegation has always been headed by Lord Balfour. As the bitter political opponent of Lord Robert Cecil and the fact that the latter represented only South Africa, Lord Balfour has not only deprived Cecil of assuming leadership in unbroken leadership.

This year there is every indication that with Lord Robert Cecil heading the English delegation, as the recognized actual leadership, of the League Assembly. He will be surrounded by a group of other prominent liberals of the Commonwealth, who will come periodically this time to represent South Africa, Bruning of Sweden, Dr. Nansen of Norway, and many men who believe that the League and the League Assembly should begin playing the leading role in international affairs.

Another big surprise which the Fourth Assembly may witness is that of the application of Germany for membership. Powerful influences are now being brought to bear on Germany to enter the League at this time. No doubt Germany but that she would be elected, but nevertheless that would entail not only a bitter fight but possible some startling compromise solution.

Probably the most constructive job which the assembly will tackle will be that of framing an international treaty of mutual guarantees as a basis of disarmament.

Another important item on the agenda is the American program to limit the world-wide production of natural products.

The election of Ireland as a member of the League will also take place during the course of the session.

FRANCE AND ENGLAND MAY DECIDE BALANCE OF POWER IN FAR EAST

Immense Naval Base for Great Britain at Singapore Promises to be Controlling Future Factor

By J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press)
New York, Aug. 4. (United Press).—Great Britain is changing the center of gravity of the international balance of power from Europe to the Far East.

The debates in the House of Commons over the expenditure of $50,000,000 for a modern naval base at Singapore, have shown that as large a majority of British public supports the project as to make withdrawal impossible. The British, who have the skill of a thousand years of practice in international negotiations behind them have reached the conclusion that the Orient holds the key to the future. It is far from the truth to assert that the sole purpose of the Singapore expenditure is to counteract Japanese influence in the Far East. The British strategic viewpoint is not aimed at any one power. The European situation and the Far Eastern situation henceforth will present a chain problem, with the balance of power resting in the Orient.

Singapore Second City

Singapore is the second most important port in the British Empire. It is within 600 miles of French Indo-China and is the close neighbor of the Dutch East Indies. Manila is 1,300 miles away, and Japan is 3,500 miles distant—the width of the Atlantic Ocean.

Toward the close of the World War it was reported that France wished to make an arrangement with Japan whereby Indo-China was sold to the Japanese. An alliance between France and Japan, based on an understanding whereby Indo-China might be placed at the disposal of the Japanese for military purposes, has never been absent from the minds of the British strategist since the development of serious Anglo-French friction in Europe. The Japanese have always had a horror of isolation. An offer of an alliance from France, if the French should become eventually military masters of the European continent, could not be passed over lightly at Tokio.

Should such an agreement take place, Great Britain would be caught entirely unprepared and would have been out-generaled had the House of Commons refused to consent to the fortification of Singapore. French diplomacy at the present time is beyond question the most skilful in Europe. Otherwise it cannot be explained how the French have become masters of the international policies of Belgium, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, and to a large extent of Rumania and Jugo-Slavia.

France is Ambitious

France is now more ambitious than at any time since the height of the Napoleonic era. It is not the proper sphere of strategy to dismiss French dreams as impossible of realization and therefore as unworthy of being counteracted. The only way they can be made impossible is by counteraction. The Singapore move of Great Britain is counteractive, in this sense against France.

With a great modern base at Singapore, to be finished in ten years, Great Britain has looked forward to the period when the present French course in Europe will have been a success or a failure.

If it is a success, France will find she has been checkmated in advance in the Far East. Great Britain will hold the balance there. That means, eventually, the balance will again return to Europe, where there will be a better chance of its upset through new combinations of powers than in the Far East.

Objects To "Peace Scarred" Flags On City's Buildings

Find Ontario's Claims More Alluring Than the Beauties of Tropical South

Editor Intelligencer:

An imposing building over which flies no rather clings in half mask a shredded, dejected looking piece of cloth which one has to suppose is a Union Jack, emblem of the greatest Empire the world has ever known. Such is the spectacle that meets the eye of all who pass by the Armouries. One can imagine what passing tourists and visitor from other countries staying at the Quinte Hotel will think and say as they gaze at this sign of official indolence, neglect and contempt.

The Poor Odes has never flown a flag on any occasion for the last two years, on account of a defective flag pole. Another sign of the times.

I wonder if these two little discrepancies could be remedied without involving the financial security of the Country, or a general upheaval of officialdom at the Ottawa. Perhaps a little publicity through your columns will produce results.

Yours truly,
G. A. SYMON.

At a party in Washington a pretty girl was chatting a bachelor friend on his reasons for remaining single.

"I should like to know whether you were ever disappointed in love," she said.

"No", he said, "I never was exactly disappointed in love. I am what you might call discouraged. You see when I was very young I became very much enamoured of a young lady of my acquaintance. I was mortally afraid to tell her my feeling but at last I screwed up my courage to the proposing point. I said: 'Let's get married.' And she said, 'Why, you'd have us?'

THE WHISPER

The propaganda disseminated by the Montreal Star recently in an article captioned "The Whisper of Death" appears to have served as a biblical boomerang. The Star's obvious purpose was to germinate seeds of doubt and dissension in Conservative soil for the direct purpose of undermining the prestige of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen as Conservative leader. The scheme, however, is predicated upon the primary object, so close to the editorial heart of the Star—overthrow of Government Ownership.

The Montreal Star has witnessed the spectacle of a no less prominent Liberal organ than the Toronto Globe virtually taking up the cudgels in defense of Mr. Meighen, thereby materially mitigating the effect of the Star's propaganda, so carefully prepared. Let it be said here that the Globe's defense of Mr. Meighen, undoubtedly undertaken with reluctance, in defense of Government Ownership, was palpably its only course in dealing with the Star's article.

It is common property in political circles, (with no party exceptions), that Mr. Meighen is recognized as the logical Conservative leader. His past record and his position as the leader of his party at Ottawa are eminently satisfactory, and, in fact, his position in relation to the Conservative party of the Dominion is analogous to that of Premier Ferguson in Ontario. In spite of an especially bitter campaign of vilification and misrepresentation, the enforcement of Mr. Ferguson by the Ontario electorate was vigorously expressed on June 25, last. There is every reason to believe that Mr. Meighen can confidently expect endorsation fully as pronounced in the event the Dominion electorate is called upon for an expression in his case. The Star knows this as a matter of fact and the Globe has practically admitted it.

The issue rotates, of course upon the question of government ownership of railroads. The Star, in its political offensive, projected with an unconscious reminiscent of the Spanish Inquisition or the modern Ku Klux Klan, sought to present government ownership of railroads as an incubus, which must be promptly destroyed—as a menace which threatens Canada's national existence. It is evident that the Star's policy is inspired by the ambitions of a powerful group, who hope to profit by a return to private ownership of railroads. Mr. Meighen is the dragon who stands in the path of the financial group.

The Liberal regime of Sir Wilfred Laurier is responsible for the condition, which resulted in the taking over of the lines now under government control. The projection of the Transcontinental Railways, giving the nation three transcontinental lines with a population of approximately nine millions and a vast area unsettled was disastrous. The Grand Trunk's affairs developed early into a hopeless muddle and, largely due to the war perhaps, the Canadian Northern was obliged to fall back upon the government. With its bonds guaranteed by the provinces, and with the general situation as it was, the Union government had no alternative but to take over the lines.

The conditions obtaining when the

They are making champagne from native wine in large quantities in Ontario, according to a United Press despatch, and are retailing it at $27.50 per case. This is an exotic industry for Canada, even under pre-prohibition conditions. But it was made possible by legislation enacted by the late and lamented U.F.O. government, which fact fully explains the situation.

The Ontario champagne makers evidently desired to observe the biblical admonition "Look not upon the wine when its red" and hence decided to make champagne, thus presenting a new problem to theologians. By the way, champagne at $27.50 per case is longer beyond the reach of the man with a "beer pocketbook", judged by prewar standards.

Of course, life is not all "beer and skittles", but, anyway a great many people are willing to forego the skittles.

government assumed control have not materially changed and until the country has reached a much higher stage of development these lines cannot be expected to stand upon their own feet. If there is any "Whisper of Death" it is the sinister effort on the part of the clique served in the Montreal Star's propaganda to defeat attempts to evolve a plan by which the struggling lines may be reduced to a solvent condition.

THE NEW PRESIDENT

Press despatches indicate that European leaders evince keen interest in the probable attitude of the United States in international affairs as a result of the accession of Mr. Calvin T. Coolidge to the presidency. They are justified in their exhibition of anxiety since the powers vested in the United States president are greater than those of any European monarch of the present day.

There is no way in which the Republican party can control the actions, or dictate the policies of, President Coolidge. He will be recalled that the late Theodore Roosevelt was offered the Republican nomination for the Vice-Presidency in 1900 because the late Senator Platt and other Republican leaders desired to get "rid of him". Roosevelt objected strenuously but was finally persuaded to accept the nomination. On the death of McKinley at the hand of an assassin, Roosevelt became president with the result that is well known. The "Big Stick" and its associate policies completely routed the Republican forces which had been instrumental in electing Roosevelt to the Vice-Presidency and Roosevelt's policies were Roosevelt's and no one's else.

The late President Harding was a stand-patter. He was chosen as a safe figure head of reactionary Republicanism. Any other man of Harding's type would have been swept into office in a landslide as he was. Naturally, less care was exercised in the selection of Coolidge. However, his career is not as hectic as was that of Roosevelt's at the time of the latter's accession. Coolidge achieved some prominence as an industrial arbiter. And he is noted as a keen student of economics and a politician of a different stripe than the usual run of "ward-heelers", high in Republican party councils.

He may "stand hitched"—and he may not.

PRESS OPINIONS

HARD ON HARDING

(Los Angeles Record)

The country and nation will not permit the law of the land to be made a by-word. That President Harding, announcing his drier than the dust stand on the Volstead act.

Fine sounding words and reflecting a highly commendable attitude from our chief executive, who just now is touring land and sea endeavoring to keynote his next campaign.

In the same paper that carries the president's firm conviction that the country is strong for absolute prohibition, in a word and in deed, I read that lying off New York City are 14 vessels piled high with 318,000 cases of liquor, worth close to $7,000,000, which is to be smuggled into the thirsty east at the rate of 6000 cases a day.

I also read that on one night one crew of smugglers ran into San Francisco harbor $400,000 worth of liquor. So, from New York to San Francisco, there is still an enabling demand for tens of thousands of gallons of liquor from the people somewhat generally.

Of course for every bottle of bonded liquor that is consumed in this country there are 18 bottles of moonshine, of home brew and cordial and wine, and though every sizable town in the nation averages about one destroyed moonshine outfit a day the supply of illicit liquor manages to keep up its flow, so that each month the price drops a bit and the quality improves a bit.

Not running for president, and not giving a darn whether this nation becomes as dry as the Chuckwalla in August or not, but merely as a wise, unbiased observer, and reporter of things as they are, it seems to me quite evident that this nation is as thirsty and as determined to drink as it ever was, and whatever may be the open public attitude of the voters, in private there are few men who drink before who have quit drinking on account of the law, and there are many men who did not drink before who do drink now. I think a general recognition of this fact might preserve us from a lot of asinities that we are today guilty of, from Harding down.

PEACE AND WAR

(Springfield Republican)

The League of Nations has named a Harvard man head of an international group of chemists to make an exhaustive study of chemical warfare. The committee is expected to urge restrictions to make this form of attack more humane, including the prohibition of launching gas against undefended cities. These efforts deserve sympathy, but it should be remembered that in time of war "military necessity" is urged as a defense of almost any violation of rules which seems to better the chances of victory.

MRS. HARDING AS POLITICIAN

(Flint Journal)

As Mrs. Harding travels across the country with her husband her presence means a lot in his political destinies. Already she has addressed several women's organizations and from reports has made a very favorable impression. She frankly likes to meet people and revels in the political atmosphere. Politics has meant a great deal to Mrs. Harding for when her husband was the struggling editor of the Marion Star the carn politics took meant bread and butter itself to the Hardings.

PETERBORO IS VICTORIOUS OVER GRAND TRUNKS, SCORE 8 TO 4

Ragged Umpiring is Factor in Railroaders' Defeat—Petes Bunch Hits in 4th and 5th Frames

Peterboro are now practically certain of figuring in the Big Four playoff through their win over the Trunks at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. The Petes are now one full game ahead and conclude the schedule in two games with the Cobourg team, both of which they should win. However, if Cobourg should slip over one win while the Trunks grab two victories from Kingston, a tie would place by default. This is highly improbable and the first game of the play-off will likely be one week from Wednesday.

Saturdays game was a real hard-luck affair, the Trunks getting the bad end of the breaks all around, and, coupled with this, Dick Butler gave one of the worst exhibitions of so-called umpiring witnessed in the "Big Four" this season. His decisions on several occasions were, to say the least, rank. On a couple of near riot started and was only quelled after police protection intervened. It was in the fourth inning. Petes had the sacks cluttered and Legon came to bat. He rolled to Oulette, who in turn threw to Hagerman at second, forced play. Swanston tore in from third but Hagerman, standing directly on the plate, took the ball and threw when Swanny was at least four feet from home. Butler, thinking that Swanston had to be tagged, called him safe. Players and officials gathered around and a hot time ensued for a minute. Jake Solomon was a target for remarks and blows from one or two Belleville players. But, her saw where he was wrong, but refused to change his decision. It was a nerve-racking blow for the Trunks, who failed to show up well afterward.

President Dedman has the poorest staff of umpires that has ever graced the C.O.B.L., outside of Alex. Kay, Kyn. Colling, and probably Georgo Sullivan. The rest put together wouldn't make one capable official. Not only did Butler pull the "raw stuff" on the Trunks but he deliberately turned around and tried to cover things up. The Trunks will not play under Butler's officiating in the play-off under any circumstances. Barnes on the bases was not so bad, although he pulled a bone on Meagher when the latter targed a man going to second base. Barnes didn't see it that way.

Jack Williams was started on the mound and for the first three innings didn't allow a hit. The fatal fourth with two errors and hits netted the Petes four runs. Vern. Weir-Mills judged Ansaldo's line which went for three bases, and then the nightmare began. The crowd of 2,500 went wild and after Jack Williams had filled the bases and forced a run, Oulette took up the burden. He was cold and in no shape to step in and pitch. But for Butler's decision, the Petes would have failed to score, as Oulette retired the side.

Again in the fifth the homesiers went wild and added another quartette of runs. The thing started when Jack Williams drew leather free to Harry Mills at first. These two big innings were, however, insufficient to quell Belleville hopes. Nothing happened until the ninth, when the Trunks made a brave little rally which was cut short when Wicky Ross was nipped off first base.

At the end of the third innings the Railroaders were leading 3-0 and everything looked like easy sailing, but the Petes came back in their half.

Some Good Recipes

Button Pie.

1 Cup the tinned meat into slices, as is advertised in the above recipe, and sprinkle them with a little mixed herb, salt and pepper. Put a layer into a pie-dish, add a layer of potatoes and onion finely sliced; then more meat, and so on until the dish is full, or nearly so. Mash some freshly boiled potatoes, with milk, butter, salt and pepper, and spread it over the top. Score the surface and bake in a quick oven for about three-quarters of an hour.

Tinned Meat Stew

Open 1 lb. tin, and turn the meat out; cut it in as firm solid slices as possible. In a stewpan fry a minced onion in a little dripping, or shallots, of which I am sure my readers are so fond, till the onion is brown; then add about half-pint of water; and when boiling, put in two or three young carrots, a teaspoonful of turnip, cut small, a dessertspoonful of minced parsley, and, if liked, chopped leek, or a little red cabbage, chopped fine. Boil slowly until all are quite cooked. Then add the slices of meat, with a seasoning of salt and pepper. When the meat is quite hot it is ready to serve. I am sure this will be liked.

Ham Croquettes

Add to 2 cups finely chopped cold ham, 1 cup milk and ½ cup stale bread crumbs. Cook to a smooth paste stirring constantly. Remove from range, add 1 or 2 egg yolks to make mixture of the consistency to handle. Season with grated onion 1, ½ cayenne, and 1 tb. finely chopped parsley. Spread on a plate to cool in cork shape croquettes, dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs and fry in deep hot fat. Drain on brown paper and serve with horseradish sauce around a mould of spinach.

The Possibilities of Tinned Food

A reader tells me she had to depend on tinned provisions, and aided my call in giving her a few ideas how she can vary the monotony. Cold tinned food day after day is apt to pall upon the palate, although an occasional salad can be made, especially during the summer months. I here give one of two simple methods which will suit my correspondent.

Small Meat Patties.

Rub ¼ lb. dripping or lard into ½ lb. flour, add a little salt, and enough water to make a soft, pliable dough. Roll out on a floured board till half-inch thick. Cut into rounds, two for each patty-tin. Butter each tin, and line it with a round of paste. Put into each a dessertspoonful of meat, minced fine, and nicely seasoned. Perhaps a few bits of minced parsley will be liked. Moisten with a very little milk or water; cover with a paste round, brush over the top with milk, and bake for three-quarters of an hour. This recipe has been printed over and over again.

Diplomat's Wife Tells Stories

The ceremonial form of Chinese conversation is very amusing. Here is an example given in "Indiscretions of Lady Susan" by Lady Susan Townley, whose husband was at one time attached to the British Legation in Peking:—

Q.: "Distinguished and aged Sir, what is your honorable age?" A.: "Alas, honorable lady, I have wasted fifty years!"

Q.: "How many worthy young gentlemen sons have you?" A.: "My fate is beggarly; I have but one little bug."

Q.: "How is your excellency's honored wife?" A.: "Thank you, madam! The foolish one of the family is well."

When alluding to himself in conversation, though it may go against the grain, Chinese ideas of politeness require that a man should make use of such expressions as the above, and speaking of his family he is bound to qualify them as "little," "mean," "stupid," or "cheap."

Lady Townley was once initiated into the mysteries of Chinese foot binding. It was done with narrow bandages stained in the juice of a herb which were applied as hot as the tiny feet could bear them and tightly drawn in. By degrees the bandages became quite hard, so that all possibility of growth was excluded. I have occasionally seen a girl at play with her brothers, the authoress writes, upset by a twitch of her pigtail, so unstable was her centre of gravity."

In China, before the republic, women and their fashions were as governed by the empress—whom the author has met many times—that all the change from winter to summer dress was made by royal mandate on a date which depended upon the state of the weather.

Sir Walter Townley was also at one time a member of the corps diplomatique at Lisbon. The Russian Minister there was Count Meyendorf, of whom a good story is told.

When a young man he was seen by his chief with despatches to be delivered personally to Prince Gortchakoff, the clever Russian statesman who, as Foreign Minister, was the terror of all who worked under him. On taking leave of the great man, Meyendorf asked if there he wished any special message conveyed back to his Chief.

"Tell him you have beheld the lion in his lair," said the elder in his most terrible voice.

"Right," answered the irrepressible youth, unable to resist a joke, "I'll tell him I've seen the bear's pleasantry which it is said cost him his subsequent advancement in the service.

A royal footman who, according to Lady Susan, was despised to attract attention, if not to make history, was a man named Sykes, who was in the service of William IV. The king used to visit Lord Albermarle, who held a position in the king's household. One night his lordship entertained somebody's wealth.

Sykes, unmindful of the tell-tale mirror before which he stood, took advantage of the king's toast to toss off a tumbler of claret behind the screen.

Unfortunately the king caught sight of the reflection, and next day told Albemarle that as others had seen it also he had better put the man out of sight for a time until the affair had been forgotten. So Lord Albemarle sent him dispatches to a remote lodge in Windsor Park.

Another incident occurred in which this man figured. A party of North American Indian chiefs visited England, and, being desirous of seeing the King, traveled for the express purpose to Windsor. The first person they fell in with outside the castle was Sykes, in scarlet coat and large gold epaulettes.

The Indians, of course, came to the conclusion that he must be the "great white father," and forming a circle round him they chanted the astonished flunkey to their best war dance.

In Italy, of which country the authoress had her husband when his official experience, it is the custom when a sovereign dies for the suite of ambassadors in the Quirinal to be dressed for a certain number of years out of respect for his memory. In this way it happens that a great part of the palace is now clothed up to the deaths of Kings Victor Emanuel II. and Humbert.

In Persia, beggars adopt a patron, and thus it was Lady Susan's husband also found an old man had "attached" himself to her garden, having brought his mistress, water-bottle, and beggar's bowl as if he intended making himself a "permanency." At last a total eclipse of the sun so threw him off his balance that he fled!

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"Well, yes, it is Doomford; and what if it is?"

"Oh, only that I'm the new vicar." The workman puffed rapidly at his pipe, his face assuming a look of dislike, and at last he ejaculated:

"Ho!"

"Like the tobacco?" said the new vicar, quietly.

There was a pause, during which the workman seemed to be debating within himself whether he should answer or not. At last he condescended to reply:

"Ain't bad."

"No! it's really good. I always get the best."

The last speaker took in at a glance what was going on in his companion's breast, and that was a fight between independent defiance and curiosity, but he seemed not to notice it.

"Give him time," he said to himself; and he assumed an air of indifference, but nothing daunted, he had accepted the living and he had made up his mind how to act. At last the workman spoke:

"I never see a parson smoke afore."

"Didn't you? Oh, I like a pipe."

"Don't it wicked?" said the other, with a grin.

"Wicked? Why should it be? I see nothing wrong in it, or I should not do it."

There was a pause, during which pipes were refilled and lighted once more.

"Ever drink beer?" said the workman at last.

"Beer! By Samson!" exclaimed the new vicar, "how I should like a good draught from my man. I'm very thirsty."

"Then there ain't none nigher than the Bull, and that's two mile away. There's plenty o' wather."

"Where?"

"Round the corner in the beck."

A short nod accompanied this, and the vicar rose.

"Then we'll have a drop of water, qualified," he said, taking a flask from his pocket, "and perhaps you'll be added, as he saw the stare directed at the little flask, whose top he was unscrewing.

A dozen paces down the path, bidden by nom rocks, ran the source of a tiny rivulet or beck, with water like crystal, and filling the cup he took from his flask, the vicar qualified it with whiskey, handed it to his rough companion, and then drank a draught himself with a sigh of relief.

"I've walked across the hills from Chorley," he said, as they reseated themselves, "I wanted to see what the country was like."

"Ho!" said the workman. "Say you ain't like the owd parson."

"I suppose not. Did you know him?"

"Know him? Not I. He warn't our sort."

"You used to go and hear him, I suppose?"

"Go and hear him? Well, that's a good one," said the workman and a laugh transformed his face, giving it a jolly, pockmark look, which, however, began rapidly to return.

"What's the matter?" said the vicar, after a few minutes' silent smoking.

"Matter! matter wi' who?"

"Why, with you. What have you come up here for, all by yourself?"

"Nothing," was the reply, in the surliest of voices.

"Nonsense, man! Do you think I can't tell that you're out-and-out sad about something has annoyed you?"

The young man's face gave a twitch or two, and he shuffled half round in his seat. Then, leaping up, he began to hurry off.

The new vicar had caught him in a fifteen strides, putting away his pipe as he walked.

"There," he said, "I won't ask you any more questions about yourself. I'm going down into the town, and we may as well walk together.

The young workman turned round to face him, angrily, but the calm, unruffled look of his superior disarmed him, and he gave a bit of a gulp and walked on.

"I never quarrel with a man for being crow when he has had something to put him out," said the vicar, quietly. Then seeing that he was touching dangerous ground, he added, "By the way, where's the vicarage?"

"That's it, next the church," was the reply.

"Yes, I see; and what's that big building with the smoking chimneys?"

"Foundry," was said gruffly.

"To be sure, yes. Dell foundry, isn't it?"

"Yes." Then after a pause, "I work there."

"Indeed?"

"Tell you what," said the young man, growing sociable in spite of himself, "you get here and I'll show you all about the works. No, I wasn't though," he exclaimed, abruptly, "I'm on the works, I'll never go there no more."

Who new vicar looked at him, tightening his lips a little.

Germany Is Developing Her Power In Air

Washington, Aug. 6 (United Press).—Germany has embarked upon an ambitious program of international aviation, E. G. Eichelberger, of the Western European Division of the Department of Commerce, said, shortly after his return from Berlin.

The Allies' withdrawal of the restrictions which forbade international flying by Germany was a signal for extensive development of Germany's air lines, Eichelberger said. With the final delivery of the reparations aeronautic reparations to the Allies early in 1925, Germany began her aeronautical schedule of international flying.

"In 1922 Germany's commercial aviation services comprised eight great nations," continued Eichelberger. "These eight have now been grouped into large combinations, the 'Junkers Luftverkehr' and the 'Aero-Lloyd.'

"In practically every direction regular German air lines are either in operation or are being planned. In general Germany is placing her greatest efforts on air line connections with Russia, Scandinavia, and the Balkans.

"During the 1923 season, services to Budapest, via Munich and Vienna, will be undertaken; it is planned to extend this line to Belgrade.

"The London-Amsterdam-Berlin line is being operated through an agreement between the English Daimler Air Service, Ltd., and the German companies."

An International Cast For Gest's New York Theatre

By Gus M. Ochm, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Berlin (by mail to United Press).—Morris Gest, American theatrical producer, is in Germany to add his bit to the internationalization of the American stage.

Gest, producer of New York's biggest spectacles during recent years, is in Berlin working out a new theatrical stunt—an international theatre for New York, with Max Reinhardt, Germany's leading producer and director, in charge.

Gest has visited Reinhardt to spend three months in New York this winter rehearsing the cast.

"The venture is not to be all-German," Gest said, in an interview. "It will have leading actors from all over Central Europe. It will be international. Reinhardt has proposed his "Miracle" as a suitable piece, but I am convinced we should have another which will give the various nationalities represented an opportunity to show themselves at their best."

"The war is over. We want to re-establish understanding between nations. And this is not easy, even in America. Great and small diplomatic busy endeavoring to bring it about. And as theatre manager I am convinced that internationalization of the theatre—bringing the best in Europe to America—is a big step toward understanding between nations."

Other Firms Take Exhibition Space

Since the report published a few days ago several others have signified their intention of taking part in the exhibition of industrial products of Belleville products at the coming Canadian National Exhibition.

The latest additions to the list are the Marvel Equipment Co., Belleville's latest industrial acquisition, who have reserved 120 square feet of space for their exhibit of oil and grease pumps and gasoline handling apparatus; the Ontario School for the Deaf, 150 feet for an interesting showing of furniture and other products made by the pupils of the school; the Belleville Hardware and Lock Manufacturing Co., 100 feet in which they will show a well known line of builders' hardware and locks; and Collin's Motor Products, another of Belleville's new industries, 200 square feet for an exhibit of their motor trolley.

Sixteen Belleville firms and organizations have now signified their intention of making exhibits, therefore Belleville's exhibit of industrial products is bound to be one of the most interesting and successful features of the great fair.

Nighty Throws Out the Pajama

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press

(Written for the United Press)

New York, N. Y., Aug. 1 (United Press)—

Yes, we have no pajamas—

We have no pyjamas today.
We've pumps and shoes
And old fashioned nightie
But we have no pajamas today!

Or to misquote a more ancient line:
Backward, Oh backward! Turn time in your flight

Give us a gown again to wear at night!

Slowly, but surely, the pendulum of fashion is turning backwards. The crinoline gown appears in Juts and Longs, and fluffy skirts sweet themselves in America, poke bonnets are having their day and the old fashioned nightie is ousting the pajama out of its place in the sun.

Time one can still find pajamas at the shops, but they have lost their mannish lines. They are round-necked and sleeveless, bewildered, etc. But, with all their feminine acquirements they lack the daintiness, charm and comfort of the nighty. In the first place, the pajama requires a cord about the waist and this makes it less comfortable than the gown which is developed into a wisp of a garment with no binding of any sort on the body. Pajama trousers, though chic, can not be as comfortable as the loose-flowing night-gown and unless one is a boyish-shaped individual with hobbled hair, one had better stick to the more feminine attire. Somehow the pajama seems incongruous on a long-haired woman. She is too entirely feminine for them. A stout woman in pajamas is also ludicrous.

New Type of Nightie

The nightgown that is made like the costume slip with Empire waistline is than the short-cyked affairs, as it has the effect of being a robe and makes one look more slender. It should be made wide enough at the waist, however, to allow comfort and prevent pulling.

Even tiny puffed sleeves are used on gowns of this type, making them truly adorable. I saw a little bride's gown with round neck and yoke finishing the bodice and puff sleeves of Irish lace trimmed in rosettes of silk orange blossoms. This was made of white crepe satin and would be adorable for the bride.

Another lovely gown designed for the bride, but which could also be made in colors, uses the long-waisted costume slip model with rounding neckline and a berths of fine lace which falls over the shoulders. A rosette of silk flowers is placed with long element attachments at the side waist-line. Made in colors, this would be a veritable dish of beauty.

Among the French imports I found a gown that might be interesting to copy, as it is so simply made and yet so lovely. It was of yellow radium silk, sleeveless and round-necked, and after the manner of the simple dress of today, bloused about the hips by loose elastic band. Wide armholes covered the top. Any ordinary gown pattern, with an elastic band to form the blouse, could be used for this model. A gown of this sort should be made only of some lovely silk as it would lose its charm in cotton.

The girl who is accustomed to pajamas won't want to return to the old fashioned nighty, but the newer types of gowns have many interesting charms to attract her.

Science Gaining Control of Typhoid

New York (United Press)—Control of typhoid fever has reached such a stage in the United States that in 1922 the death rate for this disease was the lowest ever recorded, according to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The figures have reached the offices of the American child health association.

The typhoid death rate in 1922 was 5.6per 100,000 among millions of Metropolitan industrial policyholders, whose experience is considered as the total population of the United States and Canada, according to the figures. The rate for 1911 (22.8 per 100,000) prevailed in 1922, there would have been 3,181 deaths instead of the 770 that actually occurred.

HANDLING THE HARROW

An Implement Often Neglected By Farmers.

Smoothing, Disc, and Spring Tooth Harrows Described—Keep the Bolts Tight and Sharpen the Points Clean—The Implement Shed.

Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.

The iron smoothing harrow, being a rather clumsy implement to handle, is apt to be neglected to the extent of bolts working loose and teeth falling out. A small wrench should always be at hand, preferably strapped to the adjusting lever, with which all bolts could be tightened and kept in proper adjustment. The front teeth should be kept sharpened if the harrow is to do its best work with the least expenditure of horse or tractor labor. The harrow sections should be fastened for uniformity of set from velocity, by lining up the teeth and seeing that all are cutting the same depth. Long, short, crooked or dull teeth reduce the efficiency of this implement. When not in use the harrow should be piled in sections out of harm's way to prevent away after seeding is a good practice to daub a little machine oil or grease on the bright parts of each tooth where it is a break or sloth to do so. If any gaps, such as bolts or teeth that have been lost, make note of it on a card, bring the card to the nearest tool repairer will be made before the harrow is required for use. The ordinary harrow tooth will ball up, collecting grass roots and soil particles in the head, ground, reducing the efficiency of the work. It pays well to keep the harrow teeth bright and sharp. The plate harrow is especially good for harrows where such will be out of the way is up on the hills. Some four spikes should be that will hold two sections can be driven in the divide or wall between the two. The row sections hung thereon high, dry and easy to get at for oiling.

This harrow generally suffers more from neglect than any other farm implement. Lifting and dropping the soil on its own hinges. It has been difficult for manufacturers to make a bearing that is dust and proof. Frequent and careful oiling right from start to end is the practice that will save the bearings of the disc. If the bearings become loose or worn, the draft is greatly increased and the work not as well done. The oil can should always be at hand and oil should be applied every day. Some of the discs in the 640 times an hour at ordinary field speed with considerable pressure from two directions on the bearings. Oil can not be applied too frequently long, and it does not, so oil often or the disc will squeak and the horse tire. This implement must be kept tight if it is to do its best work. A wrench should always be on hand and used when needed. If the discs are free from rust, well burnished and smooth, they are not apt to stop. The rusty disc may cause long delays in the early spring. The discs should be dry and clean when put away for a little rub with a soft cloth saturated with melarine oil will keep the wearing parts bright and always ready for field.

The Spring Tooth Harrow.

The spring tooth harrow is an easier implement to keep in order than the disc harrow. With large wheels and a day oiling will suffice. The keeping of the bolts tight and the wearing surfaces clean and bright are the principal needs leading to satisfactory work. The teeth should be points that be renewed or sharpened when required. The spring parts should be kept bright and clean; this is best done by grind or rub them with a dry cloth and then following with a coat of melarine. The moving parts in the elevating mechanism require and should get sufficient lubricant to keep them in condition to move freely. Both shelter and painting when needed to protect the iron and wood parts and keep the wheels are very important. Not to long and useful life of this implement. — L. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

The Implement Shed.

Shelter for tools and implements is absolutely necessary during the period of each year when they are idle. The weathering elements will soon destroy the wood or metal used in implements, if they are not. Although to excite, the indolent man neglects, but nevertheless, is sure and steadily the wood will decay and the metal will rust, until the implement becomes too weak to stand the strain of use. A good roof over a floor that is always dry, and ample large for all implements and feed storage requirement of the farm is all that is needed. A painted building is not needed. Posts set in cement are a strong enough base to support roof and wall in all that is required if a special building must be erected. — L. Stevenson, O.A.C., Guelph.

Orchard May Be Pruned In Winter.

Fruit growers are not content to wait until spring to prune their orchards. Pruning is no difference to the new growth and maturity of the wood where pruning has been done any time between November and May.

If the usual care is taken to make the cut close to the main trunk or to branches, no stubs will be left to die and decay, though the covering of wounds with a white lead and oil paint or with common grafting wax warmed to the consistency of cold putty will give added protection.

The boy and girl should be made to see that they are a main factor in the maintenance of a home, and that a slave or servant to do little errands for the parents.

POINTS ABOUT PLOWS

The Development of This Basal Agricultural Implement.

Steam Why Sharpened Pieces of Wood—Iron Plows Used by the Romans—Introduction of the Rotherham Plow—Small and American Plows the Climax in Development.

Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.

Sharpened stakes and crooked limbs of trees were the earliest implements for the plow in historical times, and their use has been common among the nations. The stakes were sharpened plow was but a pointed stick. The early Greeks used the crooked limb of a small tree with the branches opposite, one forming the share and the other the handle, where the trunk formed the pole or beam.

The Iron Plow Used by Romans.

Iron plowshares were used many centuries before the Christian era by the Romans and the iron was used for a double purpose—for plowing on rear and for scouring and to spears the soot, as iron was scarce in Italy. Many of the Romans improved the plow by putting on a wheel and also a coulter. Many people showed a widespread hostility to the use of iron in connection with agriculture, believing that it polluted the land.

Wooden Plows Used in America 150 Years Ago.

The study of all countries west through the early experience of finding a ways and means of tilling the soil, some rapidly, some rapidly; and curiously enough the first plow of all nations were much the same, owing to the fact that some nations started out on their early industries ahead of the others. The wooden plow is only a development of the wooden hoe and Canadian agriculture.

It is curious to trace the progress of plowmaking in Britain, where Cesar invaded the land in the year 55 B.C. Those of the early cultivators were of necessity rude and by no perfect, for in those days the plowman was obliged to cut his land and plow before he was permitted to use iron. It is uncertain whether the early Britons had the iron, but some of those of the Saxons were furnished with it. The Scottish plow was furnished with wheels, and was used for the purpose of harnessing a hatchet to break the clods.

Introduction of Rotherham Plow.

The first attempt at the construction of a subsoil plow was made in 1677, when it entered the land to a depth of fourteen inches. It is not necessary to do so much work in all the various and numerous references which are found in early times to this valuable implement. For ages the plow was the principal, and in clumsy instrument, which served only to scratch the surface of the soil to a sufficiently deep for the seeds to be buried. It was the same with everything like a perfect tillage tool until the close of the seventeenth century. The Dutch were amongst the first who brought the plow into any shape, and soon its best features were copied and imitated in the Britisher's idea of a plow.

The Rotherham plow was made by J. Foljambe in 1730, and although a patent was granted for it in 1720. It was then the most perfect tool and is still well known after two centuries. Its features are considered chiefly of wood, the draft iron share and coulter and the mould board of the mould board and sole being the only parts of iron. This was the first development of the iron industry, it was but a step from the wooden implements entirely of iron and steel were in use.

James Small, a Scotsman, was the first to introduce a cast-iron share and the cast-iron mould board.' at that time (1760) the plow was generally the joint manufacture of the village wheelwright and blacksmith. Plowshares had been made of wrought iron until 1785, when a patent was granted to Robert Ransome for the making of cast-iron shares. The case of hardening cast iron shares was the subject of a patent granted in 1803.

British Plows the Climax in Development.

The Rotherham plow, Small's chain plow, and Small's Scotch plow represented the climax in plow development previous to 1800, and the race whose ingenuity, spirit, and perseverance brought about the development in plowmaking were Britons. But Lambe, Small, Wilkie, Finlayson and Ransome, Sims & Jefferies, the management of the plow during the past 100 years, the world knows and is to warrant its mention here.

The American pioneers scratched the soil with their crude implements, going over the field time and time again, crossing and recrossing before they had worked up a few inches into a seed bed. The work was slow and was rarely over five acres in extent, and when our forefathers in this country used the old wooden plow, the clearings among the stumps were small. The two century gap between the old wooden plow and the soil scratcher and the new multiple bottom tractor and disc plow is a wide one, but even the numerous plow milestones that mark the path of the progress in the progress of Agriculture.—L. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

Fall plowing is best from the standpoint of saving time, as there is more time for spring work and usually more earlier seeding. Spring plowing is more effective in the control of weeds, as, being turned under just before seeding, they have less chance to crowd the grain.

The best time to inspect a machine for its weak parts is when you are putting it away for the season. A few dollars in repairs now and laid down at the time will help you realize that the very parts you should order next winter.

Fearless Nurse Is Heroine Who Saved Young Woman From Afridi Bandits in India

Lillian C. Starr, a nurse of Peshawar, India, is the latest recipient of one of the British Empire. It was she who saved from the fierce Moslem Afridis, the young English girl who was captured by Afridi bandits and held for ransom. Miss Starr had long enjoyed the award to her of the Kaisar-i-Hind gold medal, and Queen Mary has publicly expressed the gratitude all Englishwomen take in her noble conduct.

A short time ago all India was shocked by the news that Mrs. A. C. Hills, wife of Major Hills, D.S.O., stationed at Kohat, had been stabbed to death and that her seventeen-year-old daughter Molly had been kidnapped by Afghan tribesmen. Kohat lies some distance inside the border, and is supposed to be safe from raiders. Five miles away, however, are the Afridi mountains, forbidden ground for the whites and infested by some of the most dreaded fighting men said to be found anywhere upon the surface of the globe. It was to one of the murder Major Hills was away, on another officer's wife was living in the bungalow for the protection of the ladies. There came a terrific storm that night, which probably explains why he was not awakened when the intruders, as they stole into the house, stabbed Mrs. Hills to the heart and carried away the terrified young girl, cried only for her slight years and for her race. Shortly after the crime had been committed the alarm was given, but the nearest troops and police were scouring the neighborhood. Next morning Miss Starr was on the scene. Pluses were offered and rewards declared.

The first news of the bandits came from Molly herself. She had been permitted, seen ordered, to communicate with her father and had memorized the terms on which she would be released. She said that the Afridis were continually threatening her. That she would be killed if the British kill her unless their demands were met. In a week or two communications were established with Mahmud Jan, chief of the Afridi tribe of Kohat Tirah, and he admitted that Sidhu was in a mountain fortress eight days' journey from Peshawar, but denied all knowledge of the kidnapping, but the was strongly suspected that the real letter might be delivered to Mollie. Mahmud Jan was the real commander of the bandits and was receiving better treatment. It was suggested that the British troops should advance to her rescue, but it probably would have brought about war with Afghanistan, which the British government was anxious to avoid.

Thoughts immediately turned to Miss Starr, missionary nurse in the Church Missionary Society's Hospital at Peshawar. She was known to everybody, and was highly respected and quainted with the ways of the Afridis. In 1910 the Afridis, Miss Starr, was murdered by Afridis. The village from which she slayers had been set forth, was known, but a short distance from the mouth of a pass of dust came from this village Mrs. Starr knew it, and immediately set out for husband's murderers until the end. Meanwhile Miss Starr, who was commissioner of the Northwest Frontier Province, asked her if she would venture into the Tirah for Mollie she would be willing to go at any time, an hour, as soon as she had changed her clothes, provisioned her horse and concealed a revolver in her dress. She was not afraid, indeed it is said that she is absolutely fearless. Her plan is to accomplished swimmer, horseman and rifle shot. She knows no fear arms. She was escorted to the border, and then with a small bodyguard to the commissioner and a few Afridis who had been summoned by the bandits' fair.

Though she is said to be the only woman in India who could have gained a safe conduct through that region, she had not gone far when a messenger told her on behalf of the paid no attention and kept on. She reached the rendezvous and visited Mullah and much against his will induced him to tell the names of the bandits. Then the native assistant was sent to the bandits and convinced Ajab, the leader, that the negotiations were proceeding before better results could be had if Mullah's house, which must be regarded as a sanctuary of religion, was left. But Mrs. Starr had no intention of rearing Mollie to the Tirah, sending material to offer to meet the demands of the bandits. She had won their love and confidence. While the talk was going on Mrs. Starr noticed that the friendly Afridis were attacking the house of the murderers, and that the bandits were furious. One of them struck Mrs. Starr out of the room the others proceeded to regain possession of Mollie. The alarm was sounded, and this peopling was comparatively recent. Early man was unable to grow crops in any but the most sufficient effectiveness, and until the soil was prepared by tillage and civilization he had evidently all he could do to preserve existence. There was no advance in culture could enable him to do, but the necessity arising from growing numbers and corresponding or decreasing supply of food. It was this which eventually led to agriculture. This spreading over the globe was conditioned by three great laws —movement in the direction of least resistance, movement in the direction of the greatest prospects; movement in the forms from behind, or compulsion.

Monster Parade Is Feature Of Trenton Home-Coming Today

Trenton old boys' homecoming celebration, which commenced on Saturday and will continue until Wednesday night, is in full swing today. An elaborate program had been prepared for the occasion and is being carried out by an energetic committee.

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock a special train arrived from Toronto, on board a large number of Trentonians who are now residents of the Queen City. Accompanying the Canadians was the famous 48th Highlander Band of that city. During the evening, while the boys were at the yacht races took place on the bay and were witnessed by a number of interested spectators.

In the evening the town was filled with visitors many of whom took part in the parade which moved up upon the main street, a portion of which was roped off for the occasion. The Dundas street, near the bank of Montreal, the Highlanders 'band gave a delightful concert.

On the main street the bay shore park was liberally patronized.

On Sunday special services were held in the various churches in the town and sacred concerts were given by the Highlanders' band.

The programme has had been arranged for today (Monday). In the morning acquatic sports from off the west dock, including a swimming races and canoe races.

Pat Jennings, who is well known in this city, will be here for some time, gave exhibitions of his prowess as a swimmer and diver. This afternoon a baseball match between Trenton and Picton.

The Flooding of Asia.

REPORT OF FARM CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Farmers are now in the thick of harvesting, and in most cases are badly handicapped for lack of help. The shortage was never greater. In some cases as high as $5 a month with board is offered with little response. Leeds says that border counties find it hard to compete with the prices paid to harvesters by farmers across the river.

Hay has been cut and housed under good favorable conditions, and the yield is also first-class. In many cases the grain harvest has overtaken haying, to the detriment of the latter crop. Huron says that at auction sales standing hay is being sold at from $1 to $1.50 per acre.

Fall wheat is very variable in both yield and quality. The yield in some counties is placed from twenty to thirty bushels per acre, but the average for the province is likely to be nearer the first named figure. Bruce complains of considerable rust.

Huron: Most of the fall wheat is cut in this county and in Nelson Tralalgar and Eequesing the crop is excellent. In Nasagaweya and par of Esquesing where the wheat was seeded early, from 15 to 30 per cent. is damaged by Hessian Fly.

York: Wheat in some districts has fallen short of early expectations being slightly more winter killed than was at one time realized. I believe the rust will considerably light en the yield. The results of twi. fields might be interesting. One a mixed hay sod, manured and turned down to wheat, and one field of wheat cleared off which had been cut for ensilage. It did not receive manure. The wheat on the sweet clover unmanured soil is reported to be 2 per cent. better in grain and straw.

Huron: As the Hessian fly has been particularly bad this year, and owing to ground being dry the last month or two, there is not the usual preparation for the fall wheat.

Barley is being cut in some counties, and on the whole regarded as a promising crop both as regards yield and quality.

Oats are turning, and will be more variable in yield and quality.

Alsike is on the whole a most satisfactory crop. Halton reports some yields at seven bushels per acre, and Halton puts the average yield in that county at about five bushels per acre and of excellent quality.

Lennox and Addington says: The second crop of alfalfa is at present being harvested and farmers report a fair tonnage per acre. The prospects for alfalfa and red clover seed are very bright.

Timiskaming: For the months of June and July, dairying is showing quite an increase, despite the fact that many factories suffered in the fire. During June, there has been 227,300 pounds of butter made, 7,000 more than last year. For the first half of July there has been 15,553 pounds made.

Kenora: This will be a record year for bee-keepers. No patents all over the district are excellent and owing to the many fires, fire-weed is growing in abundance which makes excellent honey instead of first class quality. One apiary has as many as six supers and figures on turning out about eight tons of honey this year.

Lambton: The farmers income at this season is principally from his butter and eggs. Many farmers are now starting to get rid of their old hens. The practice was formerly to wait until late fall.

Bruce: A number of shipments of heavy cattle weighing around 1,200 were shipped from a number of points during the past week. We are informed that the price realized for best cattle was approximately $7.75 f.o.b. shipping point. A large number of export cattle are yet to be shipped from this district.

Wentworth: A car of hogs was bought on grade by one of the dressers. The car had 45 per cent. selects.

Lennox and Addington: All classes of live stock are in fair condition, although the pastures are badly burned up. Good three-year-old best cattle are selling at the farm for from $75 to $35 per head.

Front of Leeds: A car load of western horses were brought in recently and they are being sold on Saturday of this week, but it is generally conceded that the prices will be low.

TRIO FREED AFTER WEEK ON THE HILL

Magistrate Masson Releases "Suspects" in Bandit Case

Harry Charron, Theodore Grenier and B. Generaux, three French Canadians arrested here a week ago Saturday, were given their liberty as soon on Saturday, after having spent a week "on the hill."

The last two mentioned were charged with vagrancy and Magistrate Masson thought that the week they had served would be sufficient, they were discharged. Charron, owner of the McLaughlin car which they were driving when arrested, is a garage owner in Montreal. He was charged with negligent and reckless driving in Sidney township. On this charge to which he pleaded guilty (the speedometer not being in order) he was assessed $10 and costs amounting to $7.35. He was given one week in which to raise the fine, during the week the car has been stored in a garage here, awaiting the return of the owner.

It was believed at the time of the arrest that the men might be three of the bandits who held up the Toronto bank messengers, as they drove away from a gasoline service station at Welcome, near Port Hope without the formality of settling for ten gallons of gas which had been put in the tank of the car.

'BANDIT LETTER' IS REDICULED

Toronto, Aug. 6.—That the letters written to W. R. Sexton, of 114 Greenlee road, threatening his life and that written to a Toronto newspaper, both purporting to come from the bandits, were not written by the men who robbed the bank messengers here, is the opinion held by certain detectives, who say that the bandits of the type that escaped the robbery here are not the kind to descend to cheap, melodramatic stuff.

They point out that the bandits were experts and doubtless had at least one well educated man among them, and that they would not attract attention by such silly epistles. Rather is the work thought to be that of the type designed to lull those who while they have not nerve enough themselves to stage a hold-up, sympathize with those who have, and praising the criminals for pulling a "pretty smart job" do everything they can to aid their escape and hinder the police on the case.

Investigators with long criminal eyes of a sort belonging to the class who while they have not nerve enough themselves to stage a hold-up, sympathize with those who have, and praising the criminals for pulling a "pretty smart job" do everything they can to aid their escape and hinder the police on the case.

Investigators with long criminal experience in this line pointed out that hold-up men have hardly ever been known to descend to the letter writing line, and say that even if the men are now in Toronto they would not write a letter here, the postmark of which would proclaim the fact.

COMPROMISE TO BE PACT BASIS

Paris, Aug. 6.—The League of Nation's temporary committee on disarmament, which is holding sessions here to discuss the pending plans, took up Saturday the proposed compromise between Lord Robert Cecil's plan and the French project. The former provides for a general guarantee pact with a general reduction of armaments, and the latter for partial guarantees pacts between two or more powers with limitation of armaments proportionate to the security afforded by such pacts. The compromise will probably form the basis of the text of the treaty which the committee will draw up to present to the next assembly of the league.

The compromise project was prepared by a special sub-committee, including Lord Robert Cecil and Colonel Requin, author of the French plan, at a meeting in London. The British and the French being agreed on the proposition, it is thought there will be little opposition from other sources. The chances for the presentation of the project for a treaty to be submitted to all the league members after the assembly has passed upon it are, therefore, considered good.

DOUBTS SUCCESS OF WHEAT POOL

Regina, Aug. 6.—Strong doubt regarding the success of the voluntary wheat pool being formed to handle the grain crop of the prairies this year was expressed before the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission here by Hon. Geo. Langley, president of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company.

Mr. Langley based his grain season forecast on the fact that the pool would be forced to do business through the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. "It's dead before it's alive," he said.

Farmers in Western Canada were much vexed regarding the failure of the pool to operate, he said, adding that he favored the compulsory method himself. In 1919, the farmers had a satisfactory method for marketing their grain, and with the present failure, after they had confidently expected its resurrection, they were not in good humor to accept a substitute of any kind.

DRUG ADDIT IS FINED $1,000

Toronto, Aug. 6.—That is how these drug addicts live, they pedal dope drugs to get it for themselves," declared Crown Attorney Murphy in police court Saturday. When J. O'Brien acknowledged having morphine in his possession. Magistrate Cohen imposed a fine of $1,000 and costs or six months and eighteen months, O'Brien has a police record.

Frank Marabello took out a friend's automobile without asking his consent and smashed it in a collision with a post. At the crown's suggestion the case was dealt with under section 285b with the infliction of a fine of $50 and costs or three months.

DROUGHT HITS CROPS

Brockville, Aug. 6.—Farmers in this section find their crops very urgently in need of rain, the long drouth having burned up many of the plants and vegetables. Haying has been completed in practically all parts of eastern Ontario. Other crops which were deterred from an early start by the late spring season will be damaged, farmers state, if a reasonable supply of moisture is not soon received.

DESERTERS WANT TO GO HOME

Buenos Aires (By mail to United Press).—Ten thousand deserters from the Argentine army and navy are in Montevideo and want to come home, according to the "Amnesty Committee," which has petitioned President Alvear to permit them to return and resume the duties as Argentine citizens. In replying to the petition the president made it clear that he thought the first duty of the evaders was to return and take their punishment. Only then, he said, would any pardons be considered.

LAST LIGHT BRIGADIER

London, Aug. 6 (United Press).—The long unofficial list of veterans of the charge of the Light Brigade was shortened to one man when the Duke of Connaught announced that Troop Sergeant Major Edwin Hughes, retired, of the 13th Hussars, was the only authentic survivor. Hughes is 92 years old. He is the last of the Light Brigade pensioners on the list of the Royal Patriotic Fund Corporation, of which the Duke is chairman.

"Old Boys and Old Girls" Make Merry—Startling "Stunts" Performed

Work seems to have been suspended in Trenton until after the Old Boys' Re-union on Wednesday. All day Monday there was something doing in the busy town. The 48th Highlanders' Band of Toronto under the leadership of Lieut. John Sletter were playing as early as 9 a.m. In the morning canoe races and swimming races were the order of the day, valuable prizes being offered for the various events. Pat Jennings of Trenton, the "human fish" gave a wonderful exhibition of his prowess as a swimmer, at 11-30 o'clock. Chief among the stunts were—

Dive into the water fully robed and undress in the water.

Dive under water with a lighted cigar, stay for one half minute more or less, come up and smoke same cigar without relighting.

Lying on back reading a book and smoking.

Representing a screw-wheel in motion.

Representing a motor boat while in motion."

Tied with rope in any shape by any of the spectators, thrown in the water and swim thirty feet, turn around and come back to platform and many more stunts.

Yacht races and diving girls drew large crowds, and held the attention of the throngs until the monster parade at noon, lead by the Fire Department of the town, and the Highlanders' Band, followed up by the "old boys" and the "old girls", and a fleet of beautifully decorated trucks and motor cars, for which the sum of $50 was awarded as first money. In the afternoon track sports, a ball game and the midway of the carnival company playing the town kept everyone amused. Trenton baseball team defeated Picton in a close game by the score of 5-4.

In the evening the band concert on Dundas street was enjoyed by thousands, many driving in from the surrounding towns and country. The concert and solo work of Mrs. W. H. Gill was a feature of the evening's entertainment. Unfortunately a long looked for rain storm nipped the community dancing in the bud, much to the consternation of the frolicking young folks, who took shelter in door-ways and buildings and patiently waited for the God of Thor to spend his wrath. The good time was permanently broken up, however.

At 11 p.m. a special train for Toronto pulled out, and it was crowded with former Trentonians who had to return to their duties in their present home towns and cities. The Highlander band also returned to the city. For the remainder of the re-union celebration, the Trenton and Kingston bands will supply the necessary music. To-day and this evening are advertised as being eventful at Trenton.

3,559 Mothers Are Aided By Terms Of Allowance Act

Annual Report Shows Much Has Been Accomplished by Workers Commissioned to Enforce Terms of Act in Province—Improvement Noted in Health Standards, School Attendance and Home Conditions

A total of 3,559 mothers in Ontario received an aggregate sum of $1,332,138 under the terms of the Mothers' Allowances Act during the period from November, 1921, to October, 1922, according to the annual report of the Mothers' Allowances Commission. The report shows that 19 mothers in Belleville were granted a total of $8,655 during that period and that 25 mothers in Hastings county received $10,819.

The number of beneficiaries increased from 2,560 in October 1921 to 3,559 in October, 1922. In the homes of these beneficiaries there are 10,922 children under 16 years of age, in one home investigators found 11 children under 16 years and in two homes 10 under that age. Of the mothers assisted, 2511 were of Canadian nationality, 532 were English, 162 were Scotch, 73 Irish, 76 American, 67 Italian, 30 Austrian. The average age in number from 43 to 3, there being only 3 Welsh and 3 Swedish mothers in the list.

The Act provides for the payment of a monthly allowance to mothers of dependent children, and has the following qualifications:

1. Applications are considered when the mother of the children is a widow or the wife of an inmate of a hospital for the insane in Canada or a man who is permanently disabled and incapable of contributing to the support of his family.

2. The mother must have been a resident in Canada at the time of the application for the allowance and must have been living in Ontario for two years immediately prior to this date.

3. The applicant must have been a resident continuously for at least one year in the municipality in which she now resides (see Section 8 (3), Mothers' Allowances Act, 1920). If an allowance has been granted in any municipality in which she has been resident to another municipality in which she has been resident to another municipality in which she has been resident to another

England Staggering Along Road To International Massacre

Demands That Great Britain Sit Over Cliff Conference To Arrest all Armament Construction

(By F. D. MORELL, M. P.
Copyright, 1923, by the United Press
(By arrangement with "Foreign Affairs," London)
CHAPTER III

London, Aug. 7 (United Press).—The attitude to which the Versailles Treaty, after four years of suppression of facts, and apathy in the face of that diplomatic fiction the destruction of German social and economic life through an international instrument—our rulers in part created have brought us—the new program of armament bears witness.

There has no precedent. If we confine ourselves to creating air squadrons we reach no solution we attain to security. We simply clamor along the road leading to the next international massacre.

The government should straightaway launch an invitation to a world-conference for the arrest of armament construction by land, sea and air. The whole world would accept that invitation.

For, granted that our Russian policy has been short-sighted and aggressive; our near eastern policy imperialistic; the fact remains that the present French government continues to the real unenlightenment to a return to journal conditions in Europe.

Granted again, that under the pestilent influence of Mr. Lloyd George our government identified itself with the French policy until its materialist consequences to ourselves became inconvenient, the fact remains that British stands today for reconstruction and reconciliation. The world knows this and the world would support our initiative.

If France stood out she would be isolated. That would be a grave risk which we doubt very much the French people would be disposed to take, which we doubt their desire to take. Conversely with that invitation our government should make up its mind once and for all to speak with perfect plainness on the French-German issue, if need be over the heads of the French government to the people of France who have been shamefully betrayed by their political leaders, and to the world.

A treaty, is open, after all, to differences of interpretation. As a signatory party to the final instrument of Versailles, Britain is as much entitled to place her own interpretation upon it as is France.

Britain does not interpret it as giving the French the right to invade German territory, to suppress German civic officials and police, to expel thousands of families and reduce them destitute to loot banks, and shoot and starve German workingmen: to wage open economic war upon the German working classes.

It should say so, and if the present French government insists upon pursuing its present policy, we should formally dissociate ourselves from its action, which is action taken under the Treaty, and conclude our own diplomatic and commercial arrangements with Germany.

At the same time the agreement should make it clear to the French people and to the world the lengths it is prepared to go to prove our disinterested desire for peace in Europe. The first and most obvious step in this respect should be the unqualified cancellation on our part of further indemnity claims upon Germany—a concession to the French and Belgians as well as to Germany. And a willingness to cancel the French debt subject to an abandonment of the Poincare policy.

A straightforward and courageous attitude in the Franco-German issue. A settlement with Russia which would bring with it a settlement with Turkey. A clearing up of the Egyptian mess. A generous gesture towards India.

Above all, cards on the table with the United States and an active and constructive diplomatic action in Europe which is looking to us for a lead. That is the policy which our own dictates and necessity demands.

(THE END)

A. W. Pratt, Local Manager McLaughlin Motor Car Co. Pleased with 1924 Models

Major A. W. Pratt, manager of the local McLaughlin Motor Sales and Service Station, is introducing to the public the 1924 McLaughlin-Buick cars, including the new models equipped with the four wheel brake appliance, something new in the world of automotive advancement.

Major Pratt spent one week at the factory home of the "Mac" cars at Oshawa, where he studied the new advanced appliances on the new cars, and also conducted interesting tests with the new cars. With a brake on each of the four wheels, the car can now be stopped in half the distance that the older models with the brake on the rear wheels only. The wheels do not lock or skid, but stop the car uniformly. Wet pavements do not interfere with the operation of the brakes, giving no danger of skidding.

With five passengers in one of the new cars, tests were conducted. Driving along the road at thirty-five miles per hour, one passenger would call "stop" when opposite a telephone pole unknown to the driver. He would then slam on the brakes. Tests prove that the new model will stop in about half the distance that the old model (two brake) would. At thirty-five miles per hour, the car will stop in slightly more than her own length.

The whole car has been accordingly improved, features of which are the famous valve-in-head six cylinder engine, specially designed carburetor, change in body lines, all these improvements on fours and sixes.

Exterior features noted at first glance are the new head lamps, nickeled radiator on the sixes, wider tight hood hinge, open hood support, newly designed covered fenders, a more efficient weather proof windshield strip, operating instruments conforming in design to the head lamps, flush cowl ventilator, new dust spring and a heavier and better looking gasoline tank.

The six cylinder valve-in-head engine, which has probably brought more enduring fame to its makers than any other unit of its construction, has been so designed that it actually yields 50 per cent. more power and a speed of 60 to 70 miles per hour. It has four-speed full-location, removable heads, larger valves, heavier crank and cam shafts, larger piston displacement and a new Marvel carburetor that includes a simple dash adjustment for economy, regardless of weather or kind of gasoline used.

The other improvements are as numerous as they are descriptive, and together they give to the car owner a remarkable series of advantages that are not found in any car elsewhere. Each improvement has been matured and developed for many months in the engineering laboratories, and in the great research laboratories of the General Motors Corp. all offered to the motoring public with the same assurance and the same sincerity that have been characteristic of past successful models of McLaughlin cars.

Mr. Pratt speaks very highly of the manufacturing service with a system of twelve direct and controlled factory branches in important centres of population throughout Canada, of which Belleville is one of the main branches, it insures its service of this kind of maintenance and service conducive to confidence and satisfaction. At each of these twelve factory branches are complete and up-to-date stock of repair parts are kept up-to-date so that the car dealers can get from the nearest branch at any time parts necessary to keep their cars in their territory on the road. When the motorist buys a car from a dealer he effects a service connection that is unassailable anywhere. McLaughlin maintenance services stretching from coast to coast in unified by the same spirit that has enabled this immense manufacturing organization at Oshawa and Walkerville to make the McLaughlin Car.

Mr. Pratt will be having an exhibition of these new cars as soon as he is able to get models of all the different cars that the firm manufacture, he expects to put this show on in the course of the next two weeks and hopes that the public at large will take the opportunity of seeing one of the greatest cars that Canada can boast.

Palatial Canadian Pacific Liner To Go On Big Cruise

In the upper left-hand corner is shown the Canadian Pacific palatial liner Empress of Canada, which will make the cruise of the world this winter—fair and early spring. Below are some of the features that will be shown the travellers as they sail the seven seas.

The Sphinx in the majesty of its Pyramids of Egypt.

Three famous Mount Royal men, noted specialists at Japan.

Fuzzy Wuzzy, a native of Africa, and Miss Betty Grable girl, and no her bett le a winner this time.

Fuzzie and snapshe are shown on the Cruise liner, while palms throw the scent of Ceylon into shadow.

Other interesting pictures are shown in the picture, will offer special low fer visitors, and the heavy right-hand picture is of Mount Fuji, the most prominent feature in the world.

The famous cruise of the Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Canada, posted for this coming winter, is attracting much attention not only in Canada but in the United States and Mexico. The big 21,500 ton liner is especially adapted to world cruising and having won the speed record of the Pacific, the company has chosen this boat to be the flagship of cruisers for the winter months.

The circumnavigators on the Empress of Canada will return laden with the rich experiences and mental treasures gathered from visits of eighteen different countries and contact with the customes, crafts and civilizations of fifty different races. It will be a tour to ports of a thousand romances, unfolding the panorama of the world from the cultured west to the barbaric splendor of the east. Sphinx, mosques, temples, cathedrals, palaces, and the sacred treasures of the fabled Orient will be revealed to the gaze of these fortunate voyagers.

Leaving New York at a time when the inhospitality of winter drives those who can afford to escape to more sunnie climes, the Empress of Canada is due to reach nine days later the balmy shores of Madeira, an island of mountains thrown up as high as six thousand feet above the sea by volcanic action from the still unfathomed ocean bed.

TO VISIT SPAIN.

Gibraltar, reached on the morning of the twelfth day out, stands on guard like a rock-mounted policeman on an ocean trail. This famous fortress of the British Empire was originally named, after a Moorish invader of the eighth century, whose name survives in the Pillars of Hercules. It was formerly considered as the western extremity of the world.

Already from the Straits of Gibraltar the rugged purple and green mountains and blue of the Atlas mountains has cast the spell of Africa upon the voyagers, and now at early morning of the fourteenth day the ship casts anchor in the harbor of Algiers, facing the ivory terraces and minarets of a still half-Arabian city.

Across the Mediterranean the ship now turns to Monaco, the high-stepping principality on the south-eastern coast of France, at which all the Puritan world makes its finger. Within the past few more fortunes have been lost and won than lives have been squandered on the battlefields of Europe. The tables at the Monte Carlo casino are forbidden to the twenty thousand local inhabitants who, however, have the consolation of being exempt from taxes.

Naples is the next port of call, the largest, busiest and most populous port in Italy. Here opportunity is given to see the chief points of interest in the city and to visit Pompeii.

Port Said and then Cairo and with the boat proceeds to Suez the passengers will be given four days in the land of the Pharaohs.

BATTLE OUTPOSTS.

From there, the visitors move on to the Red Sea, and Aden, another British outpost and on across the Indian ocean to one of the most romantic ports in the world, Bombay. A stay of a week has been allowed at this port, and many trips inland have been arranged.

After leaving Bombay the passengers will know where they are going as several hundred miles out from the shores of Ceylon, the heavily scented and spicy breezes indicate the approximity on the south-western coast of India, at which all the Puritan world makes its finger. Within the past few more fortunes have been lost and won than lives have been squandered on the battlefields of Europe. The tables at the Monte Carlo casino are forbidden to the twenty thousand local inhabitants who, however, have the consolation of being exempt from taxes.

Naples is the next port of call, the largest, busiest and most populous port in Italy. Here opportunity is given to see the chief points of interest in the city and to visit Pompeii.

Port Said and then Cairo and with the boat proceeds to Suez the passengers will be given four days in the land of the Pharaohs.

South of Asia, is also one of interest. Singapore, the busy capital of the Malay states, is the next port of call and Britishers on the trip will be shown the foundation of the new naval base which is to be built there soon.

DUTCH EQUATOR.

Crossing the equator the Empress of Canada will then go to Batavia, the capital of the Dutch East Indies.

With her name turned 90th the liner will steam for Manila, the capital of the Philippine Islands, and one of the greatest educational centres in the world. Money bylaws for schools are always passed in this familiar settlement.

From Manila the travellers will be taken to Hong Kong, Canton, Macao and then to Shanghai, and special arrangements have been made to visit Pekin and Tientsin.

The next port of call will be in Japan, where all the leading ports will be visited and the Japanese Government is making preparations to demonstrate to the visitors that Japan is a friendly little island.

From Japan the liner will go to Honolulu and on to Victoria, but intimate her cruise at Vancouver, the passengers going overland from here to their various destinations.

Mrs. Luckhurst Quickly Discovered That Dreco Possessed remarkable Health Giving Qualities

Every woman should read the following statement from Mrs. J. Luckhurst, of the Davis Street, Toronto, Ont. It portrays convincingly the true merit of Dreco, especially emphasizing the quickness of its beneficial action.

"For several years I have suffered from indigestion," says Mrs. Luckhurst. "I had gas on the stomach, acid risings and smothering spells. The pains were very severe across my back and I felt tired out all the time. My liver was sluggish and I was constantly constipated. Had constantly to take a laxative which gave me only temporary relief. I didn't eat well and my appetite was very poor. The food I did eat gave me no nourishment because it was not properly digested.

"No remedy ever gave me the amount of good results that Dreco has and I have only taken a half bottle. I had only taken a few doses when I could feel the difference and I seems to act so differently from any other medicine. It has gone to the root of my troubles I am sure, and I feel positive that by continuing the treatment I will get real good results. I haven't been having those terrible bloating spells and shortness of breath, nor have I any pains through my limbs and back. I eat well and sleep soundly and am indeed happy that I can recommend Dreco."

Dreco acts quickly and with sure helpful results, because it is made from Nature's own remedies.

REPORTS ASKED OF PARKS BOARD

Council Resolution Requests Monthly Statements By Board

GET $500 MORE

Proposal to Ask For Report Precipitates Animated Discussion in Meeting

A regular meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening, and the business transacted was chiefly of a routine nature and the session was one of long duration. Considerable discussion ensued relative to a motion that the Parks Board Commission furnish a monthly statement of the financial relative to expenditures made.

Members present were Mayor Bennett, Aldermen Thompson, Lynch, Patterson, Stockton, Treverton, Greenleaf.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Reports of committees, communications were laid on the table and on motion the Council went into committee of the whole on reports, etc., Ald. Thompson in the chair.

The following recommended to be paid by the committees were passed also some recommendations which have already been published.

Sprinkling Street

Residents on Great St. James street asked that a portion of this street be sprinkled, owing to the diversion of traffic from off Station street.

A motion resulted to have the street water, whilst Station street is being paved.

Mr. John Gallivor offered a piece of property adjoining Memorial Park for the sum of $300.

On motion the matter was referred to the committee meeting.

Board Named

The Mothers' Allowance Commission requested that the Council appoint its members to the Board.

The old members were re-elected as follows: Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Miss A. Switzer, W. B. Riggs, R. Tannahill and Thos. Wills.

A communication was read from Mrs. Maud McGinnis relative to a complaint of the grandstand being constructed on Cauifton Road causing her trouble to some property owned by her. The matter was referred to the next committee with a request that Mrs. McGinnis or some one to her behalf be present to present her case.

The committee rose and received Reports received and adopted:

Motions

Moved by Ald. Greenleaf, seconded by Ald. Treverton that a further credit of $500 on account be granted the Parks Board pending the passing on the estimates for the year 1923.

Ald. Thompson—Should we not have a report from the Parks Board on what has been done, before any further grant is made.

Ald. Greenleaf—All the accounts have been checked by the City Treasurer.

Mayor Bennett—When the report is presented from the Parks Board he was certain it would be satisfactory. All members of the Board are working for the city's interest. The Board is well within its appropriation of one half mill.

Ald. Patterson—The Parks Board need the money and it should be granted. The Board should keep the credit of $500.

Ald. Treverton said he could not see anything wrong in granting the amount named.

Ald. Thompson—The Board has spent nearly $2,000 thus far and he would like to know where the money has been spent.

Ald. Robinson said he was not advised as to what the Parks Board is doing.

Mayor Bennett had no doubt that the report would be forthcoming if it was asked for.

The motion was adopted.

Ald. Robinson moved, seconded by Ald. Treverton that the Parks Board be requested to furnish the City Council with a monthly statement mentioning what money is expended and for what purpose.

Ald. Greenleaf—The Parks Board was appointed by the city and he appeared to him that a reflection is cast upon the Board by the motion.

Ald. Robinson—We are in receipt from other Boards and there was nothing wrong in asking for this report.

Ald. Patterson—We should have that report from the Parks Board.

Mayor Bennett—The report will come from the secretary of the Parks Board. Any member of the Council can see the expenditure made by the Board. When the estimates are considered the Parks Board will have to be considered as to what grant is made to the Board.

Ald. Patterson moved seconded by Ald. Lynch as amendment to the motion that a statement be presented showing all expenditures to date by the Parks Board.

Ald. Robinson—We will be in the air in the future if the amendment is passed. He could not see the use of such.

After some discussion the amendment was withdrawn and Ald. Robinson's motion was accepted to read that a statement be furnished up to date of expenditures and that to-forward a monthly statement be presented.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

3,559 MOTHERS AIDED

must have two or more of her own children under fourteen years of age living with her, or one of her own children under fourteen years of age and one over fourteen years of age totally and permanently incapacitated both in her care; or if the wife of a husband totally and permanently incapacitated and must have one of her own children under fourteen years of age and the husband both in her care, living with her, or one in a hospital for the insane in Canada, who must have two or more children under fourteen years of age in her care.

Mothers residing in cities, or towns with a population of 10,000 or more, who have two dependent children, receive $40 per month under the terms of the Act. This amount is increased $5 for each additional child under 14 years, until a maximum of $55 per month for five children is reached. Those residing in centers of population ranging from 5,000 to 10,000 receive $5 less per month and those in other municipalities were allotted the rate of $30 with $5 additional for each child.

The report shows that of the 3,559 mothers, 2,901 were widows, 274 were wives whose husbands had been incapacitated, 99 were wives of men committed to asylums for the insane, 56 were foster mothers and 111 were wives who had been deserted for five years or more. The report states that in the last case much has been accomplished since family desertion was made an extraditable offense between the United States and Canada.

The amount granted by the Legislature for the payment of allowances during the fiscal year—Nov. 7th, 1921, to Oct. 31, 1922, was $1,400,000. Of this amount the $1,383,138 paid out was distributed as follows: Counties, $1,048,150.05; Cities, $732,942.95; Separated Towns, $73,373.80; Indian Reserves, $1,215.00; Judicial Districts, $1,215.00; Province cost, on the amount expended, or $491,049.00 is chargeable as under: Counties $294,629.40; Cities, $219,515.70; Separated Towns, $11,344.00; Department of Indian Affairs, $607.50.

Amendments to the Act provide that in certain cases the allowance may be granted when the children are between 16 and 18 and greater latitude has been permitted in determining the amount of assistance required in special cases.

Investigators' reports incorporated in the document indicate that marked improvement has been noticed in health standards, school attendance, home conditions and sanitation as a result of the enactment of the provisions of the Act. Tuberculosis is one of the most serious menaces encountered by the investigators. Approximately 10.33 per cent. of the budget for Mothers' Allowances in the calendar year of 1922 was incurred because of tuberculosis. Various civic and welfare institutions are also made responsible in the case of unfortunate families, the work of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs being of special significance.

The Act is administered by a commission of five persons three men and two women appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. There are no salaries or boards, remuneration which serve gratuitously. The members of the Belleville board are: Mr. W. B. Riggs (chairman), Miss Anna M. Hurley (secretary), Miss Mary Yeomans, Mr. Thomas F. Wills, Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Mr. C. M. Sinclair. The personnel of the Hastings board is: Mr. W. H. Nugent, Belleville (chairman), Mr. D. D. Bird, R. R. 4, Stirling, Mr. Alexander Moore, Plainfield, Mrs. F. A. Comerford, Eldorado, Mrs. Chas. Vanderwater, Foxboro.

Possible to see too well in the distance

No, it is nothing to be proud of.

Rather it is cause for consulting the optometrist.

Far-sight causes many kinds of eyestrain, as such a condition proves, no matter whether or not near work is done.

There is but one method of correcting this error—by wearing glasses that overcome it.

We can prescribe and supply them.

NEW WAY TO MAKE JAMS AND JELLIES AT HOME

The new method of making jams and jellies is fast and still popular in this time, wasteful, haphazard ways. This new scientific method results in perfect jams and jellies every time. fruits—given 50 per cent. more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit—brilliantly clear delicious quality due to the retaining of all the original delicate flavor and color of the fruit. This is accomplished by cooking by long boiling, and a great saving of fuel and time because these modern jams and jellies will require only one minute of boiling with all the gums work eliminated.

These results are revolutionary, of course, and they are attained by ya scientific discovery, but that does not mean that they are the less simple. On the contrary, they are being performed every day in the home with a practically perfect and still regular way by the old highly wasteful methods. The new way is as easy as A.B.C. By following the directions of the most inexperienced housewife can produce perfect jams and jellies of regular flavor and it is home and impossible to attain by the old wasteful, laborious methods. One simply asks for Certo and follows the then follows the directions. That's all.

What is Certo? It is pectin, and pectin is one of the elements Nature puts into fruits. It is Pectin that makes jelly "jell". Science has found a way to concentrate the pectin from pure fruits so that it is available in a handy form. Certo is then a pure fruit product absolutely free from preservative, or gelatine. It is so economical that one half an bottle or more you naturally boil away a good part of the delicate flavor and color of the fruit. Certo conserves this uncertainty by supplying the necessary pectin, enabling jam and jelly to "jell" in one, two or four minutes boiling and thus eliminating all chances of spoiling your fruit.

If you have but one half an hour to spare you can make delicious jelly, with fruit juices you will get wonderful flavor and color undreamed of by the old slow, wasteful methods. You can use the juice of any fruits you like and make sparkling jellies of rare delicacy and the full richness of flavor of the fruit. You can also make jams with all fruits and get the full rich fruit flavor, and not that concentrated sugar taste so noticeable in many homemade jams.

It is wonderfully satisfying to succeed the first time and every time with these new products. You never fail, with Certo, because you make your jellies and jams by the same principle as always did, but with all the handicaps removed. You make and you get natural flavor.

HOSE FLIES AND HOSS SENSE.

"Two colored gentlemen were talking, when one of them became annoyed by a large fly that pestered him continually.

"Sam," he said, "wha kin' o' fly am dat?"

"Hoss-fly," said Sam. "It buzzes round hosses, cows, an' jackasses."

"You reckin' out to call me a hoss, Sam?" he asked.

"I ain't makin' out to call you nuthin', but, lawdy me, you calls fool dem hoss flies."

Retail Merchants in Session in Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 7 (United Press).—Fourteen hundred retail merchants from thirty-eight states and Canada gathered here today to swap ideas and lay plans for the expansion of business during the coming year.

The merchants are attending the convention of the Interstate Merchants' council, which will be in session today and tomorrow. An elaborate program has been arranged by W. L. Ware, trade commissioner of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Curtis H. Hall, Duluth, City, Minn., president of the Minnesota State Fair Association, and Judson F. Stone, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, are two of the principal speakers," Other speakers are R. M. Hudson, Department of Commerce, Washington, D.C., representing Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce; Captain John W. Corby, Waukegan, Ill.; J. W. Kamp, Lansing, Mich.; Charles A. Kuhl, Green Bay, Wis., and Fenny Jones, educational director of a large Chicago retail store.

Fred Deck, Waterloo, Ia., is president of the council and F. N. Nicks, Chicago, is secretary.

Summer Care of Poultry

There is a tendency among some people to believe that poultry do not require special care during the hot summer months, and may be allowed practically to shift for themselves. While it is true that conditions are more favourable for growing stock, and for egg production in adult stock yet at no time of the year is more care necessary to prevent disease and vermin than during the warm summer months. Poultry kept in close, stuffy sleeping quarters cannot be kept in a healthy condition of health, and are fit subjects for the ravages of lice and mites. It would be much better to spend the setting put in place of the glass windows in order that more fresh air might circulate in the house.

A very strict watch must be kept for any evidence of lice or mites as during warm weather conditions these lice are present on the birds, treat each bird individually with some Blue Mercury ointment, or some reliable dusting powder, and if red mites are present on the perches of walls, the birds should be removed from the house for a day or two, and the building thoroughly fumigated, followed by a thorough coating of creosote paint of the interior. A thorough occasional whitewashing of the whole interior of the house will make the place not intend to keep over for about three years, and sell them early the price is higher and while they are in good condition before they commence to moult.

Economy Definitely Proven

BY THE RESULTS OF THE NATIONAL ECONOMY CONTEST

55.4 Miles to the Gallon

CHEVROLET owners themselves have proven beyond all doubt their claim that Chevrolet is the most economical car in the world to operate. 55.4 miles to the gallon of gasoline is an almost unbelievable record for any car to make; yet this record was made by a Chevrolet in Edmonton, driven by its owner. It was a stock car in the strictest sense of the word and no special appliances were installed on the motor or carburetor. Many Edmonton people witnessed the test from start to finish, including F. H. Needham, Automobile Editor of the Edmonton Journal, and one of the best known automobile men in Western Canada. High this record was the highest of the many received, there were many others almost as remarkable, as the 43, 42, 44 and 41 miles to the gallon in all parts of Canada. Runs were made under ordinary road and climatic conditions and were witnessed by at least two independent witnesses who rode with the owner.

One of the most remarkable features of the contest was the very high average mileage obtained.

BELLEVILLE'S ATTRACTIONS

When a traveller who comes all the way from the Panama Canal zone, and has passed through the "riviera" of California on his way in, Belleville, declares with frank sincerity that the mid-summer beauty and charm of Belleville surpass all the scenic attractions of the section he has visited during his entire trip, Belleville residents are naturally moved to feel that their civic pride is justified.

There is no doubt that Belleville, for her summer dress, is one of the most attractive cities on the continent and, with her other attractions of a more material nature from a business standpoint, is an ideal residential city. The people of California and Florida, in their literature designed to attract investors and settlers, stress heavily scenic beauties and climatic conditions. Belleville has a more healthful year-around climate than either California or Florida, her scenic beauties are second to none—and it pays to advertise.

THE MOTHERS' ALLOWANCE

Perusal of the annual report of the Mothers' Allowance Commission of Ontario for the year 1921-1922, reveals intimate details of a wonderful work being accomplished in the Province of which comparatively little is known to the average citizen.

The wisdom and economic soundness as well as the altruism of the Act, which became effective on Oct. 1, 1920, is evidenced by the fact that it provides for "payment of allowances in certain cases to mothers of dependent children", and stipulates that the mother must be "a widow or the wife of an inmate of a hospital for the insane in Ontario, or of a man who is permanently disabled and incapable of contributing to the support of his family". Since it is further stipulated that the mother must have two or more children of her own under 14 years of age living with her and must be a British subject, and a resident in the Province it is evident that the purposes of the Act cannot be circumvented easily.

Payment of $40 per month to such mothers living in cities when they have two children under 14 years, and of $5 additional for each child until a maximum of $55 per month is reached, while not a magnificent sum, is, nevertheless, an appreciable assistance to families in such circumstances. It is reasonable from an economic standpoint that beneficiaries residing in municipalities other than cities are granted allotments based on a rate of $6 and $10 lower than those obtaining in the cities.

The significance of the undertaking and the importance of its influence, upon the coming generation is seen in the fact that 3,859 beneficiaries were allotted a total of $1,362,138 during the period from November, 1921 to October, 1922, inclusive. The fact that 19 mothers received an aggregate sum of $6,655 during that period and that 36 in Hastings county received $10,619 should prove particularly elucidative to the people of this county.

However, the feature of the Act, of paramount importance, is the results achieved. Among the concrete results listed and substantiated by statistics and reports of investigators, other mother's loving care under the one roof.

To their mother's loving care under efficient eloquence for the immense value of the Act to society and fully justify the outlay of expense and effort involved.

The development of such methods will result in time, in the virtual elimination of poverty in Canada and will thus remove one of the greatest blots on society, so far as this Province is concerned.

By The Side Of The Road

A story is being told of a Belleville man who made a number of speeches during the recent political campaign in Ontario. This man was called upon to speak at a dinner one night in a county town. His subject was "Education in Politics." He faced a select gathering and, for some reason, became somewhat embarrassed. He had carefully prepared his speech, which began: "Mr. Toastmaster, ladies and gentlemen: The school house is the bulwark of civilization." When introduced the speaker rose, glanced nervously about and said: "Mr. Toastmaster, ladies and gentlemen: The schoolwark is the bellhouse of civilization versus the bullschool is the workhouse—no I mean to say, the housework is the schoolbull—" He paused, stared wildly about, and began again: "The housebull—" then he sat down amid a painful silence.

Now if Coolidge can only keep cool—but then there's the bid(ge).

The man they arrested at Detroit as a bandit-suspect may be a remarkable bootlegger. If that's the case, he should seek redress for the effect of his arrest upon his social standing.

It is reported that, when her "gentleman friend" proposed to her the other day, a demure Campbellford young lady whose training in calmness has not been neglected, replied, "Yes, and thanks for asking."

Two Trenton youths are alleged to have been detained at police headquarters in Toronto recently on a "charge of highway gawkery." You know, lookin' up at the high buildin's and all the offer sights on the streets.

All the world loves a lover, but as long as the world's attitude is not expressed through the medium of other young women, the bride-to-be does not object.

The finance controller of Ontario receives $10,000 a year. That salary ought to render him immune to temptation.

See that Prince Henry was thrown from a horse. It must run in the family.

Motors are: increased school attendance, improvement in health conditions, improvement in housing and home conditions, and improvement of the standards of care of home and children.

One case is cited in which the children lived 5 miles distant from the nearest school until the allowance was granted none of the children had attended school. When the money became available the mother was enabled to move nearer to a school and to send her youngest children, aged 14 years and 16 years, to school regularly. In another instance the children of a family in straightened circumstances could not speak English. Eight months after the allowance was granted a 14-year old daughter who had never attended school before, was attracting attention by the rapidity with which she advanced.

Several cases were cited in which the assistance rendered prompted families to become interested in health conditions and stimulated them to activity regarding sanitation.

There is one pathetic instance of a mother living with her brood in a tent on a lot which the mother was buying by payments of $5 a month earned by washing. She was enabled to erect a house on the lot.

In another case a mother and six children were living in two rooms, three of the children sleeping in one bed and the mother on a cot. In the neighborhood was a filthy pool. The family now occupy a six-roomed house in which a comfortable home-like atmosphere prevails, the menace being maintained by the allowance and the earnings of two of the children. Naturally, the investigators found that the mothers, when assisted, were better able to care for their children, to more carefully train them and to watch their moral development, the result being a decided improvement in home conditions.

Another feature which should not be overlooked is the re-uniting of families. In many instances children separated as a result of dire poverty have been re-assembled from orphanages, and private homes and returned to Canada in consequence.

And so long as it remains supine, so long as it continues to regard with indifference the spectacle of thousands of British citizens being engulfed by the United States, so long will our broad acres await settlement and our opportunities go a-begging in the wilderness."

SENSELESS DESTRUCTION.

(London Morning Post)

Today, whole tracts of land are dis peopled of birds by the cruel gangs of bird-catchers, who net birds to their helpless prey, and sell it either for food or into an inhuman captivity. We should like to see the taking of plovers' eggs and the pillage of larks forbidden, for people can really do without these delicacies and still retain their health.

Another criminal is the person who goes out with a gun and shoots everything feathered he sees, for the mere sake of senseless destruction. Probably by some mysterious process of muddled thought he esteems himself to be a sportsman, a type perhaps more abused than any other in the English tongue.

PRESS OPINIONS

ABANDONING THE SICK.

(Belleville, Ills., Messenger)

"Visiting the sick" is an old-fashioned exercise that did service since the world began. Has philanthropy advanced and nurtured that pleasant habit? Or has the idea of institutional initiative.

There was a time when a sick person received the attention of the neighbors and the comfort of a friendly visit. Now, unless one's members skip in a society basket the sick-list committee to one's bedside, one may suffer the isolation of a wild animal in the desert.

MIXED ORATORY

(Buffalo Echo)

Occasionally a spell-binder gets his historical dates badly mixed. The Washington correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor reports an amusing incident of this sort from eastern Maryland.

There, on Flag Day, a Klan orator, who was holding forth in his best "100 per cent" style, told his audience that "the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth with a Bible in one hand and a spelling book in the other, while over them waved the Stars and Stripes."

Evidently these of us who celebrated the 146th anniversary of the flag about the time this statement was made are something like 157 years behind the times.

WHY NOT CANADA?

(Montreal Star)

Why, then, does the British immigrant continue to rush to Ellis Island and the States? The answer is obvious.

It is because Canada's advantages are not laid before him clearly, consistently, and effectively. Our government continues to talk theories and to refrain from even attempting to put any of them into practice, so far as the development of immigra-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Belleville, 6th Aug., 1923

Dear Sir,—As a busy travelling man about to leave your town—for which "all praises fair" (the departure —not the town!)—may I say that in thirty years' travelling all over North America, I have never seen a town so hopelessly wanting in street nomenclature. It is literally harassing for a stranger to know on what street he is and on asking, as I did, on old well-dressed gentleman, who admitted he had lived here forty-four years, the inhabitants do not seem to know either. Intelligent "home birds!"

Also, why have you no decent coffee and tea bar, operated by white people where a man can run in and get a snack at any hour, a la Bowles' or Child's Lunch? It would pay hand over fist. However, from what I heard in certain catering quarters in Toronto recently, this is to be remodied in Belleville in the very near future.

Can it be that the fanatics who have already ruined this fair Province's joy of liberty and life object because it would be a Cafe "Bar." And yet they allow the hotels to keep their bars open all Sunday—the usual sickening hypocrisy in Ontario.

Yours truthfully,
A. Misto Elliott,
Late of Victoria, B.C.

"Oh, yes, indeed. Think of all the citizens they give employment. Why we're building four new hospitals."

The Gobb—Certainly, miss. At the recullebatt, on the starboard side, or the gun deck, amidships, just forward of the dynamite hatch.

HARD ORDER TO FILL

A bride recently went into a provision shop and said to the proprietor: "I bought three or four hams here a month ago and they were fine. Have you any more of them?"

"Yes, madam," said the owner, "there are ten of those hams hanging up there now."

"Well, if you are sure they're of the same pig, I'll take three of them," said the young woman.

NOT HER MOVE.

Betty and her little playmates were having a bitter quarrel. "I don't love you!" cried the latter, turning away.

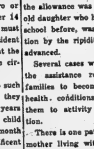

Betty, who is a minister's child, returned: "You dot to love me! You dot to!"

"Why've I got to?"

"'Cause my papa says you dot to love those who hate you—and I hate you, goodness knows."

DEMPSEY PICKED TO BEAT FIRPO AND WILLS

BY HENRY FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 7 (United Press)—Many ring titles have exchanged owners so far this year and perhaps some more champions will be displaced before the January blasts arrive but two division leaders, Jack Dempsey and Benny Leonard, look secure on their thrones at this writing.

Dempsey has two fights in the making, with Luis Firpo and Harry Wills and, although he may have a hard fight in each bout, he ought to come out of them with his title.

The heavyweight champion's fight with Tom Gibbons in Shelby can be almost ignored in figuring Dempsey's chance in his next fights if too much time does not elapse. There is no doubt that the gamblers looked bad and very bad against Gibbons, but there are two ways to explain it:

Dempsey purposely permitted Gibbons fifteen rounds, or Dempsey was off form, due to his long absence from the ring.

Once before the Shelby fight, Demp sey was in the position of being forced practically into a retirement because no such sentiment existed that he was too good for any of the contenders for the title and that it would be a runaway for him to defend his title.

Then came his fight with Bill Brennan in Madison Square Garden. Dempsey looked terrible for six rounds and then he stepped out and won by a knockout in the twelfth round.

The reaction from the fight was that if the slow, tidal wave Brennan could go twelve rounds with the champion that the clever, spectacular Carpentier, with a one-punch knockout in his right hand, would have a good chance to win.

Dempsey - Carpentier fight was the result and it established a record for receipts that may never be equalled.

After his victory over the Frenchman, Dempsey went back into the "too good" class and he could find no work. New York was the only logical place to stage a heavyweight championship fight and the commission in New York stepped every attempt to stage a title bout.

Then came the fight with Gibbons and Dempsey turned it again. Management switched over and it was figured that if a fight heavyweight could stand up for fifteen rounds against the mauler, that Dempsey was not the super-man.

This reference is not based upon any facts, it is merely a theory and is worth only that.

It is just a logical and reasonable to figure that an absence of two years from the ring threw Dempsey off his timing and his judgement of distance and that he was just rusty from lack of usage.

It would stand to reason then that Dempsey will be much better and more like the Dempsey of Toledo and Jersey City in his next fight. If he did work under wraps in Shelby, he is bound to be better when he throws off his pads. He suffered from the absence from the ring, the Gibbons fight would be the very thing to get him back in form.

While Dempsey seems secure again at his two big challengers, Leonard is even more safe on his throne because he has no dangerous challenger since Lew Tendler was eliminated from the list by a very humiliating victory.

Regarding Dempsey's "holding up" at Shelby, Jack McAuliffe, the only re tired undefeated champion, has some interesting views.

While I did not see the Dempsey-Gibbons fight, I do not believe that Dempsey would pull his punches and hold Gibbons up for fifteen rounds. I was a champion once and I was proud of the title. It means much to a champion to be esteemed as the greatest man at his weight and it is hard to voluntarily accept humiliation to hold up an opponent that you know you could finish anytime you wanted to. There is a whole lot in being looked upon as a superman.

"I admit, though, that in my days I would have no temptation to hold a man for another $300,000 fight and even pride might be sidetracked by such a pile of dough," McAuliffe said.

Dempsey is such an energetic fighter in his ring and has so much fighting instinct and temperment that many argue he could not pull his punches without exciting the resentment of the ringsiders but he was not doing his best.

"Bosh," says McAuliffe in answer. Dempsey is almost as much of an actor as he is a fighter. He has been pulling punches against sparring partners in Atlantic City and even in the ring the title and he could do it in a real fight as naturally and so cleverly that no one could detect it."

STILL HOPES FOR TRUNKS; MEET KINGSTON TOMORROW

Tomorrow's game should not be overlooked by the ball fans, Kingston and Belleville are now tied and the Trunks hope to finish in at least second place. There is still a hope that we may land on top of the second schedule, also. If the lowly Cobourg teams runs wild and trims the Peter while the Trunks win two from Kingston, in that case a tie would be created. Manager Gerow has not yet divulged his pitching selection. Gallagher will likely start for Kingston.

TIGER TIRES WIN FROM McLAUGHLINS

Soft-Ball Contest Results in Score of 8-4

The soft-ball game last evening resulted in a win for the Tiger Tire over the McLaughlin Co. by a score of 8-4. The Tire boys have now an undisputed lead in the league with three straight wins. These games are becoming real interesting and the boys are getting some real live sport, McConnell and Longdon were the opposing hurlers and both pitched good games. Harry Saylor in left field for the motor car crew made two clever catches one going on the spectacular. Hayes was the big noise with the swingers, he secured four runs in four times at the plate.

There will be games to-night, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at 6-15 o'clock at the High School ground. Teams are requested to be on deck at the appointed hour equipped with a ball and bat.

A fair crowd witnessed last night's game. Umpire Curry officiated.

OPENING OF BLANEY'S
GREAT STAGE SUCCESS

"More to Be Pitied Than Scorned" Scores Tremendous Triumph At Griffin's Theatre

"More to Be Pitied Than Scorned", the first of a series of screen revivals of the thrilling stage plays of Charles E. Blaney, opened last night at Griffin's Theatre.

With an all-star cast of players comprising J. Frank Glendon, Alice Lake, Rosemary Theby, Philo McCullough, Baby Josephine Adair and others, the picture version made as instant hit with the first-night audience.

Baby Adair scored heavily as Ruth Lorraine, and Alice Lake as the wife and mother made a figure which appealed both to the eye and the sympathies. Glendon was his usual debonaire self, and his work held the audience breathless throughout the six reels of the picture.

The scenic investiture is unusually rich and attractive, especially the interior views of Julian Lorraine's home.

The New York critics, who were unanimous in their expressions of approval, appear to have been justified in their comments.

"No Wedding Bells", an amusing Larry Semon comedy, a good Sport Review and a thrilling wild animal story preceded the exhibition of the feature offering.

ZANE GREY'S NEW PHOTOPLAY IS A THRILLING ROMANCE

If you want a good thrill, if you like romantic heroes and imprisoned heroines, by all means, see "Golden Dreams," at the Regent theatre. This Benjamin B. Hampton-Goldwyn production was made from the story by Zane Grey.

An interesting and novel feature is the presentation of an American circus in a small Spanish town. The hero and the heroine are Americans in the State of Chinora, where a plot is concocted to marry the heroine, who is a niece of a rich old west owner, to the impoverished nephew of a down-at-the-heels count. The Americans make friends with their circus manager and when the weak nobles plan to abduct their prey, the performers come to her rescue and stage one of the most thrilling mob fights we have ever seen. With the odds fifty to one against them, they liberate the tigers and the lions. We figure one tiger the equal of a hundred men.

The leading parts are in the capable hands of Claire Adams and Carl Gantvoort. Excellent work is also done by Mme. Rose Dione, Bertram Grasby and Frank Leigh. The mob scenes will make you sit tight; and when the fight is over you will stand up and cheer.

Fox News, a new chapter of Universal Stunt serial "The Eagle's Talons," and a Christie comedy were also exhibited.

MOVING FROM AN OLD HOUSE

(Westminster Gazette)

When it has come and gone—that last day!
When after fruitless seeking for a moment's ease,
The final load was tied, roped, and driven away,
When in the deserted house and yard
Are scraps of paper flutter aimlessly,
And empty drawers lie carelessly about as they fell from some intruder's hand,
When in a word, the Great Remove is done,
The mourners round a corpse, we genius, by Death!
And say: The garden has a fine rich loam!
And, seeing it stood vacant in the sun,
Mother for the days those that once was home.

SUCCESSFUL HOME CANNING

THE THEORY OF CANNING

The canning of vegetables in glass jars is the home is comparatively a new art, and its success depends upon the application of certain well-known laws for instance it is known that;

(1) All decay, mould, ferment actions and loss of food are caused by the action of minute forms of life known as bacteria, yeasts and moulds.

(2) These minute forms of life exist in the atmosphere and are found in the soil, on everything in nature, especially in and on food products.

(3) After any food product, especially fruit or vegetable, has reached a certain stage of ripeness, these minute forms of life, if conditions are favourable, will increase exceedingly rapidly by feeding on the food and destroying it.

(4) Sufficient heat at a sufficient high temperaturely will destroy any form of life.

THE SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE OF CANNING.

The success in the practice of canning may be explained in two sentences.

First, the material to be canned must be subjected to enough heat to kill all those forms of microscopic life found in or on it.

Second, after such forms of life have been killed the food product must be hermetically sealed to protect it from sources of re-infection, such as the atmosphere or the hands. The product will then keep indefinitely. This has been proved by thousands of experiments.

Non-success in household canning is due, therefore, either to insufficient sterilization or cooking or to imperfect sealing.

NO DANGER FROM POISONING.

There is not the slightest danger from poisoning as a result of eating vegetables and fruits preserved in Cold Pack Method, or any other methods recommended in this pamphlet (Provided the instructions as given are followed.

No bacterial life exists, or can exist, in a successfully canned product. Bacillus botulinus will never be found in properly-canned products.

Cooking canned vegetables for ten minutes at the boiling point after opening the jar for use is even necessary danger in cases where perfect success has not rewarded the efforts of Good fairy attempting to can. This would be true also of fruits like peaches and pears.

SOME EXPLANATIONS.

Modern canning depends for success upon heat, rubbers and perfect jars. The one kills all decay organisms, the other keeps them out.

When sterilization is effected it means you are to boil in boiling water or steam long enough to kill the bacteria, moulds, etc.

When "perfect sealing" is advised it means you are to use a new rubber band and a jar which can be depended upon to keep out all air.

If you can by the methods which follows you will have fruit and vegetables which will keep for years. If you have never tried before, why not this year?

"THE COLD PACK METHOD" OF CANNING.

This is a phrase which is used to describe the most common method of handling the produces. Nearly all vegetables are canned this way. They are packed into the sterilized jars and the cooking follows in one of the three ways described in the next three paragraphs.

Sterilizing may be done in three different ways, each of which has its advantages.

(1) SINGLE BOILING.

This is too commonest method and if carried out carefully there will be but few failures. A wash boiler or wash boiler is used by making a false bottom of slats to keep the jars off the bottom and thus prevent breakage. The water in the boiler should come half-way up the jars, or with vegetables it may even cover the jars. A steam cooker such as is ordinarily used in the kitchen works well and is a little more convenient than the wash boiler.

(2) INTERMITTENT OR FRACTIONAL STERILIZATION

This method is the same as No. 1, except that the sterilization of the food is divided into three periods upon three successive days. If followed out properly there would be absolutely no failures. Thus instead of boiling three hours at once the jars are boiled one hour each day for three days. However, it requires more handling of jars, more fuel and more work, which is the disadvantage.

(3) PRESSURE STERILIZATION.

This is carried out in a pressure cooker. Heat can be applied thus to produce steam under pressure. This is the most effective and rapid method, but special apparatus is required. The advantage of the steam pressure method is that it requires shorter time and is more thorough. Small pressure cookers can be obtained in which from six to thirty pounds of canned can be produced, but as these cost more than the average housewife care to expend, instructions in this article outline a canning" method where the ordinary wash boiler may be employed with a slat rack upon which to place the cans.

Other utensils recommended consist of enamel kettle, wire basket, wire cheese-cloth, enamel colander, wire strainer, glass measuring cup, large spoons, rubber bands, paper and quart measure clean towels and glass containers.

HOW TO SCALD OR BLANCH

Scalding is for the purpose of loosening the skin, so that fruits like tomatoes and peaches, for instance, may be peeled easily.

Blanching is more thorough than scalding and consists of leaving the product for a large amount of boiling water for a short time. Blanching gives a thorough cleaning and destroys all bacteria on the surface of the product. It often helps to improve the flavour and in some instances it removes strong or objectionable odours or flavours. Blanched peaches and pears have a more transparent appearance, better texture and a mellow flavor.

STEPS IN THE CANNING PROCESS

1. Prepare the canning utensils and select fine, ripe fruit. Wash it and see everything is clean and that jars are air-tight.

2. Sterilize jars 15 minutes.

3. Wash fruit or vegetables in clean cold water. Prepare the vegetables as you would for cooking, then ready to boil for dinner, and the fruit as for serving.

4. BLANCH—This is done by putting material for canning into a cheese cloth, or a wire basket, and plunging into boiling water for from one to twenty minutes.

5. COLD DIP—Immediately upon removing from boiling water to product should be plunged into cold water and left till it feels cold to the touch.

6. COLD PACK—Pack the cold vegetables or fruit into the sterilized jars.

7. To the vegetables add salt—one teaspoon to one quart jar and fill the jar to overflowing with boiling water.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"Another nice place, eh?" he said to himself, and turned the conversation once more.

"What sort of people are you at Dumford, my lad?"

"Hey? What sort o' people? Why, men and women and children, o' course. What did you expect they were?"

"I mean as to conduct," said the Parson, laughing. "What will they say to me, for instance?"

The young man's face grew less clouded for a few moments, a broad, hearty, honest grin extending it so that he looked a frank, even handsome young fellow.

"They'll make it a bit warm for you, parson," he said at last.

"Eh? will they?" said the vicar, smiling. "Rough as you were, eh?"

"Oh no," said the other, quickly. "Don't you have no notion o' that. I ain't always that how. I was a bit pepped this morning."

"Yes, I could see you were a bit pepped," said the vicar. "We all have our troubles, my lad; but it's your trade that you are the master of his anger and masters it."

"You look as if you never had naught to make you wary in your life," said the workman. "I say, what do you call your name?"

"Call me? A parson, I suppose."

"No; I mean call you. What's your name?"

"Oh! Selwood—Murray Selwood."

"Murray Selwood"—and the quartoner, repeating it to himself. "Well, it's a queer sort o' name. Why didn't they call you Tom, or Harry, or Sam when thou was a babby?"

"Can't say," said the vicar, smiling. "I was too young to have a voice in the matter."

"You couldn't help it, of course. Say can you play cricket?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Then I'll be bound you're a bowler, and a good one, too. Why, you look as if you were made for it, with female weakness and that there arm. Why, do any work, I'm sure?"

"Yes, I do a little gardening," said the vicar, laughing. "What will they say to me, for instance?"

HOW T? MAY BESPREAD

Careful Experiments Made With Cattle and Hogs.

Communication and Destruction of Germs—Not Blown About Like Fog or Vapor—Kept Alive in Scabs.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

At a conference of veterinarians engaged in the radication of tuberculosis in live stock, held in Chicago, a valuable paper was read by Dr. B. Schroeder, Superintendent of the Bureau of Animal Industry at Bethesda, Md., who gave details of the results of experiments which he has conducted during many years on the method of how tuberculosis is carried from one animal to another.

The first experiment he described was where two stables were used, designated T and H.

T. B. Germs Destroyed by Air and Sunlight.

Stable T held for six years a tuberculous herd of about 20 cattle ranging from cattle that were healthy to those that were in the last stages of developed tuberculosis. Healthy cattle put into this stable contracted the disease very quickly, and death threw not uncommon. In stable H at least of 30 to 35 cattle were kept during the same time, but no case of tuberculosis developed among them. Men employed in stable T were not allowed in stable H nor were utensils used in T were ever taken into H. Dr. Schroeder believes that this experiment confirms the research of various investigators to the effect "that we have no satisfactory reasons to believe that tubercle bacilli are carried their virulence long enough in tuberculous sputum, dust or manure sistance to become pulverized sufficiently to be carried about by currents of air, and even if this were possible the bacilli would be exposed to light in the minute particles which would be in the air that they would speedily die."

Germs Not Blown About Like Fog or Vapor.

Another experiment of a similar character was carried out on cattle fed which had been divided into three groups. He at once got a stable 16 feet square. The inclosure was designated A, B and C. A was separated from B by a woven wire fence. C was separated from B by two lines of woven wire fence eight feet apart. Nothing tuberculous come, some healthy cattle who some healthy brood sows were placed in A. In B were placed the original healthy brood sows were placed in A and C. At first each inclosure had its special attendant but later one man was given the care of all of them, with the injunction that he should attend to those in A and B in order of C, A, B. If it was necessary to enter C after having been in B, he was required to clean his shoes of manure. This experiment continued with the one man in charge for many years. Nothing improved to be a dangerous place for both hogs and cattle. A few hogs in A contracted tuberculosis, but none of the cattle, and both hogs and cattle in C contracted the disease. As a result of this experiment, Schroeder says, "Tuberculosis does not spread by contact, nothing which is not blown from place to place like a mass of vapor or fog. There are many ways in which it can be transported, but it can be practically comprehended ways." This he showed by a third experiment, in which two pastures separated by a small woodland and a cultivated field. A stream flowed from one field called 1 to the other called 2. A herd of tuberculous cattle was placed in 1 and a healthy herd in 2. Secondly the cattle in H contracted tuberculosis.

Healthy Cattle Contract the Disease by Contact.

Experiments regarding the danger of allowing healthy cattle to come into contact with diseased ones are quite impressive. Calves which normally a luxurious udder only came to have the disease. Cows which were fed on tuberculous milk from a pail invariably contracted the disease. Schroeder has the records of healthy bulls contracting the disease by serving diseased cows, but none of healthy cows contracting the disease during or after bulls. tuberculous bulls.

Schroeder's results show that if healthy cattle are protected from direct contact with virulent tuberculous material or with diseased cattle, their chance of contracting the disease are slight, even nil. For slight cases he has been able to separate a healthy herd and a diseased herd from suitable fences, the latter of which the diseased cattle were kept. In carefully cleaned, but not disinfected, especial care being taken to remove caked masses of manure. After a week or ten days the healthy cattle are put in, and the tuberculous cattle put in the stable formerly occupied by the healthy cattle. Both stables are frame structures with earth floors. No cases of tuberculosis have ever appeared in the healthy herd.

T. B. Germs and Manure Piles.

Dr. Schroeder closed his paper with this significant statement: "Tubercle bacilli have been proved by the station to remain alive and virulent, when mixed with manure distance below its surface, for a period upwards of six months, but they will not stay alive, in stables or elsewhere, unless they are protected by opaque masses of some kind against the action of the light."

Debora cattle on any fine dry day when dung do not absorbed, but not in very hot or very cold weather. This operation should not be performed when a cow is advanced in pregnancy, or in heat done after she has recovered from calving.

THE LONESOME WOMAN

"She Can't Speak to Anyone Without Her Tongue," is Her Plaint.

Was This Farmer's Wife Correct—Is There Any Respite From Monotony in the Life of Rural Women—Is There a Remedy for Farm Loneliness?—Handling Cream for Butter.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

I called at a farm home one day in search of eggs. I was an unrelated motor. Hopping gently on the kitchen door, I was met by the good lady of the house.

"May I have a pail of water?" I asked.

"You may," she said, handing me a pail and pointing to the pump. I noticed that her inches burr and her chin seemed to work in unison but she indicated the direction of the pump.

"Shrewd old girl," I thought, as the water filled the pail. "She will try and draw her out. I wonder how she puts in the time. Poor thing, she thinking of the scarves!"

A Farm Woman's View of the Quiet Life.

After filling the radiator with the thing, cold water, I set round to the door with the borrowed pail. No need of rapping this time. She met me with a hearty smile.

"You have a nice farm here Mrs. Smith," I said, as we sat in the quiet life in the country where everything about you is so full of interest and nature."

"Quiet lifer!" she said with some emphasis. "Just plain nature!" "Ye last too much so much so that we want to get away from it all, and be natural."

Somewhat surprised at her expression, thought, that the lonesome life had always thought that if there was any place where one would be natural it was on the farm.

The Monotony of Farm Living.

I asked, "Why do you want to get away?"

She replied, "We have no life here. My husband and I get up at five o'clock every morning. He at once goes to the barns to feed the stock, while I set the breakfast on the table in the poultry. We hurry through breakfast, and then he rushes away to the fields. He comes in about noon for one half hour in which to get his dinner, and then rushes away again until supper time, when he returns tired out. He works in the fields, pretty well worn by the long monotonous day in the fields. As for me, why, I attend the house work. Yes, I attend the house work in all silence all day long, and that is what ails my poor self. I do not hear the songs of another voice from one day's end to another. There is no music to cheer me, no neighbor handy by where I can call for a chat. No chance to exercise my tongue.

Farm Women Fed Up With Silence.

"We farm women are fed up with so much silence. It is somewhat different with the men, they have to deal with animals and do not feel the loneliness as we women do, and once a week is not often enough for women to get together. Being a woman I do not need to say wonder that our tongues wag at both ends, when the opportunity offers. I often wonder

Is There a Panacea for Rural Loneliness?

After hearing that little sermon, I proceeded to relate several stories of the car that I had left standing on the roadway. I was not in a hurry and after a time, I began to think, just what there was in what the lady of the farm home had said, and I repeated to myself her words, "No chance to exercise my tongue." so much silence.

Perhaps, after all, the farm is too lonely a place for the average woman of to-day, and with the trend of modern living it will be a more cosmopolitan place in the future unless something happens to change ideas and ideals.

Can anyone suggest a solution of the problem?—L. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

Handle Cream for Butter Carefully.

Cream may be a little sour, but, if it is clean and free from disagreeable odors and tastes, it will make fancy butter in the hands of an expert buttermaker. Cream approaching rancidity and containing a high percentage of dirt, whilst of undesirable odors, and a taste of the barnyard or cellar never loses its identity. The butter will retain into it these traits as soon as the market and sells at a low price. To argue that because a certain cream gives no trouble with their cream provides a reason why no one needs to be careful in handling. Provide and handle your cream in a careful, cleanly manner, deliver it frequently and then demand a price in keeping with the quality.

Finishing Sows.

Flushing sows at breeding time to increase the number of twin is an ancient practice among flockowners, but only recently has much attention to raisers' paid much attention to its practice. Prof. Edward, of the Iowa Experiment Station, has been investigating its practicability with pigs, and has found that it does not pay on the most rapid gain at the time of breeding. Sows gaining from one and 1.1 pigs more per litter than those making the slowest gain. Another practical conclusion reached as the result of this same set of observations is that if large litters are looked for, it is well not to breed the sow until the first period of heat after weaning, when two litters are raised in one year.

An extra gallon of gas carried in the tank should be under the hood in case of your car will save you a walk some day.

Playful Prince Is a Problem

Why did the marriage of the Duke of York create more interest in Great Britain than any wedding since that of his father? The great popularity of the royal family, and the fact that the prince was wedding a girl who is, in the eyes of the law, a commoner only partly explain the great outpouring of popular satisfaction. One suspects that the bachelorhood of the Prince of Wales explains the rest. It seems to be unduly prolonged, and there are those who suspect it may become chronic, that the prince will never marry, and that, therefore, he will be followed on the throne by his brother, or, perhaps, his nephew. We have read replies from the English correspondents that say the prince has lost some of his tremendous popularity because he gives no sign of settling down but mates unappealing his precious neck in the battle field. We should be the last to question his popularity, but can easily understand that there may be considerable body of opinion that disapproves of his globe-trotting, and would like to see him married.

Had it not been for the war there is little doubt that the prince would have been married by this time, and his wife were found, complete, duly by O. W. Munnings, 130 MacDonald Ave., or phone 8, business hours.

SEVEN YEARS OF TORTURE

Headaches and Indigestion Ended By "Fruit-a-tives"

The Marvellous Fruit Medicine

Like thousands and thousands of other sufferers, Mr. Albert Varner of Buckingham, P.Q., tried many remedies and went to doctors and specialists; but nothing did him any good.

Finally a friend advised him to try "Fruit-a-tives"—now he is well. As he says in a letter:

"For seven years, I suffered terribly from Headaches and Indigestion. I had belching gas, bitter stuff would come up in my mouth, often vomiting, and was terribly constipated. I took Fruit-a-tives and this grand fruit medicine made me well".

ALBERTA WHEAT POOL ASSURED

Calgary, Alta., Aug. 7.—Alberta will have a provincial wheat pool next year as the result of the visit of Aaron Sapiro, of California, to whose energy and initiative is due the existence of co-operative marketing pools in the Burletah tobacco in the tobacco-growing States, for the field and orchard products of California and the cotton of the Southern States. The decision to establish such a pool for the handling of Alberta's 1923 wheat—and this product only became as the result of Sapiro's conference in Calgary, whither he was brought by the Calgary Herald, is forgiving, in a measure, the Land Conference. In these places he met, not only delegations of farmers from all parts of the Province, but business and professional men and representatives of the Government, including Premier Herbert Greenfield, Attorney-General J. E. Brownlee and other Cabinet Min isters. In attendance also was Henry Wise Wood, president of the United Farmers of Alberta.

New President Former Plowboy

Chicago, Aug. 7.—In President Coolidge farmers see the marks of a true friend.

In the Green Mountain farm boy, blue-eyed, sandy-haired, silent Calvin, farmers observe a farmer-minded sympathizer.

New England farmers have been swearing by him, for years, and during the last two years he has passed the practical farmers' test, as imposed by examining boards in the farmyards of every agricultural person in America. Fifteen other Presidents have come from the farm, but none of them has been so close, to the soil when asked to take the President's chair than the native new chief.

Farmers do not have to draw on their imagination to see this Plymouth plowboy on his father's dry hillside farm. It must have been when he good and hawed the old Morgan mare with a plowline that he developed that something in him which made men choose him as a leader.

Knowing the ills of the new President and the fact that he loves the country well enough to spend the vacations in his father's pleasures, kerosene-lighted farmhouse, farmers believe he will come out to the country often enough to take care of their needs.

Agricultural leaders consider it significant that President Coolidge's native State is noted for its small farms and lack of big mills and factories.

Would Change U.S. Navigation Laws

New York, Aug. 7.—Alfred Gilbert Smith, president of the American Steamship Owners' Association, announced today that he had been authorized to name a committee of five to go to Washington and confer with United States Secretary of Commerce Hoover and the Shipping Board with a view to obtaining "a fair and thorough revision of the navigation laws of the United States."

"It is believed by ship owners," said the announcement, "that the time has come for a concerted movement of the Government, the private ship owners and the operators of Government-owned ships to modernize the whole system of navigation laws and rules of the United States, in connection with reconciliation."

Edmonton, Alb.—Up to the end of May this year about 65,000 acres of free grant homestead lands had been taken out at the Dominion land office here.

Walkerville Woman Gets a Big Surprise

"Tanlac gave me health and happiness a year ago, after it looked like I never would be well again, and I haven't stopped praising it since," declared Mrs. Maude Whitehead, 29 Victoria Road, Walkerville, Ont.

"My appetite was so poor I often went all day without food and was so weak and run-down a fter steps over to the store would exhaust me. I'd get me out of breath until I thought I would drop in my tracks. I feared a nervous breakdown, too, for I would tremble all over even if the doorbell rung and at night little noises like a cockroach rustling would keep me wide awake.

"I felt an improvement with my very first dose of Tanlac and now I am always hungry, eat like a farm hand, am never nervous, sleep all night long and am so strong I could walk the mile and a half to my office and hardly notice it. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

Proposes Sale of French Titles

Paris, Aug. 7.—Among the novel suggestions made for meeting France's budget deficit, none is more fantastic than that of Georges Mauravet the well-known author, who wants the Republic to start selling titles instead of allowing princedoms and dukedoms to be held by non-productive idlers. He estimates that 1,000,000,000 francs could easily be obtained through this method and suggests a sliding scale of prices as follows:

Princes, 1,000,000 francs; duke, 500,000 francs; marquis, 250,000 francs; count, 125,000; viscount, 100,000; baron, 75,000; knight, 50,000 francs.

It was announced late to-night by Hon. T. M. Black, Provincial Treasurer.

running power plants, not many volcanoes would go to an earthquake spree on their day off.

Japan is just all cluttered up with volcanoes, good, bad and indifferent, and holds all per-diem earthquake records of the world—flat-footed, run-of-the-mill, catch-as-catch-can and hurdles. If every volcano in Japan was running a flock of factories busily, Henry Ford's quantity production would look thin. There'd probably be a mad rush to every new volcano-field, just like in the Texas oil fields—with wildcatters selling fake volcano stock and everything.

Two Japanese engineering professors of the Kyushu Imperial University are now roaming around the Sepru volcano, sinking pipes into the ground and experimenting with various theories they have of the most effective way of extracting volcanic heat and turning it into productive motive power.

"It's a long chance," they admit, and it may be fantastic and unrealizable. But it was also a long chance, and fantastic, and it seemed unrealizable when men talked about harnessing lightning and making electricity run the world.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ontario Safety League,
189 Church St., Toronto.
To the Press of Ontario:

Safety Lessons for the Auto Driver. Prepared by the National Safety Council; issued by the Ontario Safety League.

No. 5.—THE STEERING WHEEL.

Weak or defective steering mechanisms cause many accidents.

A car whose direction cannot be controlled is more dangerous than a railroad train that has jumped the track.

Drivers should frequently inspect and if necessary adjust the steering mechanism. When adjusting, it is well to turn wheels to extreme right. Parts are worn less at this position than when straight ahead. A good adjustment at straight ahead position would possibly bind at the angle position.

The steering column should be solidly anchored to the main frame. This joint receives much of the steering strain and the shock when the front wheels meet obstructions in the road. Loose or broken rivets or bolts at this point are frequently causes of serious accidents.

Parts should not be allowed to wear excessively nor should adjustments be so poor that there is too much lost motion in the steering operation. There should be approximately ½ inch to 1 inch play (lost motion) on rim of steering wheel.

Proper lubrication of steering mechanism is essential.

Never turn the steering wheel while the car is standing still. This puts a great unnecessary strain on all steering gear parts and is bad for tires.

It is much easier and safer to steer a car whose wheels "toe in" than one whose wheels are straight or "toe out". Front wheels toeing in tend to keep the car in the centre of the road; little or no effort is required of the driver to keep the car moving in a straight line. Frequent movements between front wheels should be taken; distance between wheels should be ⅛ to ¼ smaller at the front than at the back. Take both measurements at height above the ground equal to the height of the front wheel bearings (half the height of the wheels.) See that measurements between tires; measure from one fellow to the other.

Painted By Amateurs

Kinston, N.C., Aug. 7 (United Press).—The city fathers here hit on a happy plan of saving money when the city hall reached a stage where paint was essential.

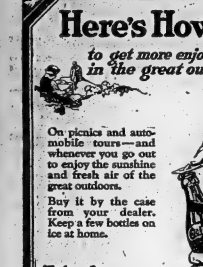

Let the citizens do it, they voted. Then to encourage the fire-fighters in the new field, they gave permission for them to select the color scheme. The result:

Ceilings, azure;
Walls, cream;
Wainscotin, lockers, etc., cherry;
Seats, chests, etc., yellow;
Odds and ends, black;
Odds and ends, white;
Storeroom, pink;
Fire department quarters, red.

Officials, after one look, voted unanimously to have other public buildings painted by bonafide artisans.

FRANK LOFT IS CRUSHED

moval to the Belleville General Hospital.

He was rushed to the hospital in the Trenton ambulance, but he died fifteen minutes after being admitted. Dr. M. E. Branscombe, 64 Queen street, duly attended the man before his death.

At 10.55 p.m. yesterday, the police department here were advised by Trenton police officers to hold Doctor, but before they could get to Front street, Doctor had arrived and reported the whole matter to the officers on duty at the station. He was held until the arrival of Acting Crown Attorney Bonnan, who allowed him to go, without being taken into custody, and without bail, as no charge should be laid against the man.

Loft, the dead man, is aged 38, an Indian, married, and has two children, a boy aged 3 and a girl but three or four months old. He was a carpenter by trade, employed by W. H. Laffman & Son, contractors and builders, 217 Dundas street, this city.

At 10.30 a.m. today, an inquest was held in the Tickell & Son parlors, taking parlors, Coroner Dr. W. W. Boyce officiating, and Acting Crown Attorney E. C. Donnan conducting the investigation. Under instructions from the Coroner, Detective John M. Truesdell took full charge of the preliminary measures, and empanelled the jury. After being duly sworn in, the jurymen with the coroner, along with the other officials, Mr. Joseph Tickell and Louis Alfred Loft, father of the dead man. The inquest was then adjourned until at 7.30 p.m., at the police court room. Thursday evening next, August 9th, when the matter will be thoroughly threshed out.

Joseph Tickell, undertaker, told of personally receiving the body of Frank Loft from Miss Tait, Superintendent of the General Hospital, and preparing it, for burial. Mr. Tickell knew nothing of the accident.

Louis Alfred Loft, father of the dead man, farmer, living one mile and a half east of Shannonville, identified the body as that of his son, and stated that he knew nothing of the accident but that his son had been in good health recently, and throughout his life.

Alfred Dorter and Stewart Legan both attended the inquest today.

Mr. E. R. McBride is the foreman of the coroner's jury and the following are the names of the other jurors: W. A. Woolley, Lou M. Howe, R. J. Fisher, H. A. Morgan, William Leslie, William Thompson, John McIntosh, Charles Hanna and W. Meagher.

CHALLENGE FROM K. OF C. TO K. K. K.

Montreal, Aug. 7 (United Press).—Declaring that the Knights of Columbus would stand in whatever country they operated, against all societies or combines that sought to inject religious and racial bias into government and social life, Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty, of Philadelphia, in his address to the Forty-first Supreme International Convention of the Knights of Columbus today, challenged the Ku Klux Klan or any other opponents or critics of the K. of C. to produce a single fact on which to base their opposition or criticism.

SPENT $40,000,000.

"We can tolerate any reasonable differences of opinion," he stated "but we shall not tolerate reflection upon our integrity. The Knights of Columbus have expended forty million dollars entrusted to them by the American people, with the exception of some millions now being devoted to educational and hospitalization work. In Canada the Knights have spent many hundreds of thousands on welfare work. Every dollar has been devoted to its right purpose.

"Every remaining dollar is being devoted to that purpose, as tens of thousands of ex-service men receiving education under K. of C. auspices can prove, and as any inquiry may see by himself by visiting any of the 400 hospitals through out the country where the Knights of Columbus maintain hospitalization service free for war veterans regardless of creed.

"Any man who challenges the record must prove his case or abandon it. We have been over patient with our slanderers. We shall not be so in the future. The laws can be invoke to curb malicious lying."

Harness Volcanoes, to Run Factories, A Japanese Scheme

By Clarence Dubose, United Pres Staff Correspondent.

Tokyo (By mail to United Press), —Several Japanese scientists are trying to perfect a scheme for taming volcanoes, harnessing 'em up to horsepower units and converting their wayward energy into commercial, constructive activity.

If the idea works out the nicer thing, a big industrial plant could have shooting its pennies out of its face, live volcano. You'd just pull a lever and let the volcano furnish all the heat and power necessary. Besides, after working six days a week

GERMANY WILL REPUDIATE MARK, REPORT

HAMILTON GIRL SLAIN BY LOVER

George King, Suitor, Shoots to Death Erie Johnston, Aged 17

MAKES ESCAPE

Leaves Note For Mother and Flees With Friend In Car

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 8.—The police of Hamilton are searching early this morning for George King, aged 28, who late last night fatally shot Miss Erie Johnston, aged 17, at her home, 27 Kilrade Avenue, after she had refused to marry him. The bullet from a 32-calibre revolver penetrated her heart, but she did not succumb until after her removal to the General Hospital.

King, who came to Hamilton from Cobalt about Oct., not long ago, has been employed by the Abso Pure Ice Company, as a driver. He had known Miss Johnston, who was a stenographer for the Canadian Oakville Company, only about four weeks. He is stated to have asked her several times to marry him, and on one occasion spoke to Mrs. William Johnston in the girl's presence, who told him that her daughter was too young to be married, but that she had no objection to his coming to the house.

King came to the Johnston home late in the evening. After talking with the two members of the family, he asked Miss Johnston to accompany him to the door, as he wished to give her a note. He gave her the missive, then shot her. The note was addressed to his mother, Mrs. H. King, 312 King street west, Hamilton, and read as follows:

"Dear Mother—Good-bye. I am going away forever."

As the shot rang out and the girl mortally wounded, a boy, Charlie Thompson, of 230 Victoria Avenue, who was a visitor in the Johnston home, started after King, who ran down Kilrade Avenue to Barton Street where stood a motor car with a man waiting for it. King leaped aboard and the car speeded up Barton Street and vanished.

The police believe the motor car is bound for the border, and in all directions are hastily rushed to border points to be on the watch.

Search of King's room at 230 Bar ton Street east has led to the finding of letters which bear out the belief that he had threatened to kill himself should he be disappointed in his love. He was wearing a black shirt with dark trousers and peaked cap.

Miss Erie Johnston lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Johnston, the family consisting of two girls and three boys.

OIL ON ROAD PUTS AUTO INTO DITCH

Car Driven by Mr. E. F. Dickens Slides Off the Road

Oil which was placed on the Kingston road just outside the city limits caused a Belleville motor car to take the ditch last evening. The car was not badly damaged and no one was hurt.

Mr. E. F. Dickens, who was driving his McLaughlin sedan out the Kingston road, wished to turn around and return to the city, when about midway between the House of Refuge and Gibson's Crossing. Turning in to a laneway on the north side of the highway, Mr. Dickens broke the car, but the brakes were not sufficient to stop the machine on the slippery road, with the result that it backed into the ditch. It was necessary to tow it out.

COAL SHORTAGE NOT FEARED HERE

Local Dealers Say Supply Will be Plentiful Next Winter

FAVOR ANTHRACITE

Declare Other Coal Sources Not Feasible — Little Change in Price

Several coal dealers of this city when interviewed this morning stated that there is no cause for worry on the part of the householders in regard to next winter's coal supply. From the present outlook there will be a plentiful supply for local consumers. The uncertainty regarding the possibility of a strike in the anthracite field is being carefully watched by both dealers and federal fuel authorities. Whatever the situation may be there is a considerable popular interest being evidenced as to the possibility of obtaining other kinds of coal. Belleville dealers stated that such fuel could be brought here only after great expense and would probably be no great saving to the western product is composed of a large per centage of slate and is much inferior in combustion than the American anthracite.

Inquiry among the local coal dealers as to the branch of the trade in which coal have been turned down brings the response that it costs more money than the American anthracite, and coal dealers are defendent upon American railways and mine owners who, during last year's strike, rushed enormous tonnages more than the Government allotment in order to keep coal connections in the shape of English and Alberta coal operations. Little change in prices is anticipated.

POST OFFICE HAS NEW REVENUE SOURCE

PHILATELIC STAMP AGENCY IS OPENED

In an endeavour to see that nothing escapes the Canada Post Office Department, as well as in response to requests from Philatelists in different parts of Canada there has been established in the Department an agency for the sale of all stamps not now in current use or on sale at the present current issues of all Canadian postage stamps.

It was found that there was in the Department an accumulation of stamps that are now obsolete and which in the eyes of stamp collectors and it was decided to convert such stamps into revenue producing and such stamps are supplied by the Department after careful selection by persons familiar with every detail in the preparation of postage stamps. Accordingly a stamp agency has been established and through this agency there has been sold up to date a considerable amount of stamps of both old and new issues. It is reported that as there has been a list issued published in the Department an agency for the sale of all stamps not now in current use or on sale at the present issues of all Canadian postage stamps of the various countries of the world, at least six million stamp collectors.

It is in this stamp agency that Post Office Department will find a sale for its old and current issues of stamps. From such sales it is expected that a very substantial revenue will be derived as orders have already begun to come in from collectors considered as well as from Canadian Philatelists.

Sir. J. V. C. Truslech, assistant postmaster of the local office, stated this morning that no stamps not in current use are on hand at the Belleville department. Should stamp collectors call at the booth desiring old stamps they will be immediately referred from the head office.

No official notification has been received here of the innovation.

DESERONTO YOUTH IS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL, CHARGED WITH THEFT OF CAR FROM DESERONTO GARAGE

When G. L. Howard, a Deseronto youth, appeared before Police Magistrate H. Bedford of Deseronto, at that town on Tuesday for his preliminary trial, he was committed to the county jail, this city, and will face trial at the fall assizes. Howard is charged with breaking and entering a Deseronto garage, and also stealing therefrom a McLaughlin roadster motor car.

The accused youth was defended by Mr. W. Herrington, K.C. of Napanee, and Acting County Attorney Donnan conducted the prosecution.

Howard, it will be remembered, is alleged to have driven the stolen car onto garage one week ago Sunday, taking from the garage the motor car which he drove about the town and country, inviting several persons to ride in the machine. In the evening while driving in the country with the car, which was filled with young people and children the Provincial officers sighted him and gave chase. Howard leaped from the car and ran into the woods, leaving the car to careen down the road without a driver, it plunged into the ditch and overturned, but fortunately no one in the car was injured. After having evaded the officers, by hiding in the woods for a few days, the youth was arrested to Belleville, where he gave himself up to Acting County Attorney Donnan. Later, at his office at the court house building. He was handed over to the provincial police and taken to Deseronto, where he was held in custody until yesterday.

Down came the Horse of Hope on the Provincial Highway east of Port Hope, a favorite party, two men and two women, and a regular Donnybrook right in the centre of the road and clothes were torn and hair pulled. What happened along at the opportune time and as liquor figured in the brawl, the fines in the police court reached the large figure of $373.00.

Nations Not Yet Ready To Disarm, Says Wood

League of Nations Fails to Make Expected Progress —Attitude of the United States a Bar, Says Geneva Correspondent

By HENRY WOOD

(United States Staff Correspondent)

Geneva (By mail to United Press)—When the fourth annual assembly of the League of Nations convenes on September 3, it will be called up to face the somewhat painful realization that the world as a whole is not as ready for disarmament as had been hoped.

This realization will be thrust home not only by the slow progress which the League's various disarmament commissions have made during the past year, but by frank declarations from a large number of league members that they do not consider the moment has arrived when any general reduction in armaments can take place.

These replies have been sent into the secretariat during the past few months by the various governments that are members of the league as the result of a round robin sent to all leagues asking them just how far they are disposed to go in the matter of a mutual guarantee treaty as a basis of disarmament.

The fact that the assembly will be obliged to recognize that the world as a whole is not yet ready for disarmament will have all the more weight from the fact that it comes only after the league has put in three years of hard work; study, research, and constructive effort towards disarmament.

Despite the discouraging nature of many of the replies that have been received and which will be repeated before the assembly itself, the league's disarmament leaders are still confident that they will be able at least to perfect, and launch during the course of the assembly a draft treaty of mutual guarantee that would serve as a basis for a reduction in armaments.

This treaty has now been prepared after a year's study and examination by technical experts by the league's mixed temporary commission on disarmament. The treaty in its present form was based on two projects, one drawn up by Lord Robert Cecil, and a second one prepared by Colonel Requin of the French General staff and the French expert on the league's permanent military advisory commission.

SERIOUS OPPOSITION.

However, it is certain from the replies that have been received to the league's round robin that the project will meet with the most serious opposition in the assembly by those states who feel that the moment has not yet arrived for a reduction in armaments.

The Scandinavian countries, headed by Sweden, will oppose the project bitterly as they are in a state of isolation and virtually free from any danger of attack, these countries maintain very little armed forces. Were they to enter into a mutual guarantee pact, it is possible that they might be called on to maintain as their quota of the international forces for the maintenance of peace, even larger forces than they maintain at the present time.

Holland has also developed a marked hostility to the project. Her contention is that the moment for disarmament will not have arrived, until the League of Nations is universal. The Dutch are inclined to thing, however that once everyone is in the league and everyone has accepted the league's pledge of mutual guarantee and joint attack, that the necessity for an additional mutual guarantee pact as a basis of disarmament will disappear automatically.

FRANCE IS WILLING

Strange as it may seem, France, which was generally credited with being the strongest opponent of disarmament is the one nation that has shown the most receptivity to the most constructive reply. France accepts fully the principle of mutual guarantee as a basis of disarmament.

She insists only that the guarantee offered under the pact be adequate and be technically prepared in advance so that it will offer a real and actual guarantee against invasion. She insists that such state must be its own judge of the degree of reduction in armaments that it can make in exchange for such a pact.

Despite the opposition that has thus developed to the project, its backers headed by Lord Robert Cecil, have nevertheless, to secure the assembly's approval of a perfected form of treaty.

Virtually all of the League of Nation's efforts for peace have been blocked purely and simply because the governments of the world do not feel hat the moment has come, to take serious steps towards disarmament. The refusal of the United States to co-operate on the question of government control of the private manufacture of war material and of the international traffic therein has completely blocked all progress on this point.

The control of the International traffic in war material was fully regulated in the St. Germain treaty, of which the United States was one of the signatories. The refusal of the American senate, however, to ratify this treaty resulted in all of the other great powers refusing to ratify it for the simple reason that for them to abolish all traffic in arms, leaving the United States free to do as she pleases, would merely give American manufacturers a world monopoly on that industry at the expense of every other nation.

The same situation holds true as regards abolishing the private manufacture and sale of war material, which is conceded to be one of the most public causes of war. Other governments insist that they must retain their industrial to stop this production and sale as long as the manufacturers of the United States are unrestricted.

As a consequence, during the course of the year the league powers to aid in summoning a new international conference for the purpose of negotiating the two subjects. They have likewise, was known whether or not she would join in such a conference, but has failed to reply and still progress on this question for the year. The assembly will have to decide what step to take next.

The position of the last assembly to ask all nations to limit their armament budgets to what they were in 1913, and all nations to limit their armscommission appointed to study and carry out this project found so many technical difficulties that it was obliged merely to prepare a report asking the coming assembly to reconsider the question.

Little if any progress was possible either during the past year on the question of limiting or abolishing the poison gas and chemical warfare. Another subject on which a little progress has been made is that of the exchange of military and naval information, which is required, under the covenant of all leagues.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

EATING PTOMAINES.

Some years ago a number of us celebrated some athletic successes by indulging in an elaborate banquet. Everybody enjoyed the menu and departed to their homes.

On meeting some of the banquetors the next day about noon, they shook hands and congratulated me on my appearance. Then asked, "How are you feeling?"

I said, "All right."

They said, "Are you sure?"

"Well," I said, "to tell the truth, I did feel a bit shaky this morning, kind of weak in the knees."

And then I asked the reason of the questioning.

It seemed that very few had appeared at lectures and there was a history of severe diarrhoea and nausea, and many were confined to bed unable to raise their heads.

The matter was so interesting to me that I made an investigation and found that only five of the hundred that had partaken of the banquet escaped some symptoms. One of these was the football captain, anoth- er was one of the older players. These two stated that they hadn't missed on course in the menu. Now how do I explain it?

Well, there was something in that menu, in the soup, the oysters, the meats or the desserts that had become decomposed. When it had entered the intestine the juices did their best with it. I believe the amounts served would be practically the same to every diner.

Why, then, did some suffer more than others?

Perhaps two factors would enter in- to the matter.

First, the ability of juices to cope with decomposed foods varies with different individuals. The football captain might have had something on the rest of us in that respect. And then the condition of the intestine itself. An intestine that has an excess of waste already lying in it is not going to have the power to cope with fresh poisons as quickly or accurately decomposed matter. So the degree of constipation at the time would be an item.

Now the point is just this. When you know exactly what you are eating and as far as possible, don't take very few chances in the matter of unsuitable or decomposed foods, but when you are dining out you are at the mercy of the cook.

You can't protect yourself against the food, but you can protect that body of yours from itself by not allowing it to be constipated. Thus its real working ability is not handicapped in any way.

Music & Drama

"MORE TO BE PITIED THAN SCORNED" NOW AT GRIPPIN'S

A cast of expert players directed by a master director, surrounded by unusually beautiful scenic investiture, all are responsible for the screen version of Charles E. Blaney's superb drama of home and stage.

"More to be Pitied Than Scorned" which is being exhibited for the last time at Grippin's tonight will touch the heart strings of every person in the audience, and, make them sing with delight.

The glimpses of the stage are absolutely true to the life behind the footlights, and its home scenes ring as true to the life of the home. The romance or drama of a screen story nowadays appeals almost entirely on its fidelity to life as we of to-day know it.

There are no strained or impossible situations in this tremendous and absorbing story.

Alice Lake, as the wife and mother, who fights with a heavy chair, a revolver, snatched up and flung at her child, endures prison and the asylum and withstands temptation, is a true delight in such a moving figure. Her performance as Viola Lorraine is a screen classic that will live for a long time.

A very funny Larry Semon comedy, an interesting Sport Review, and a Mutt and Jeff animal story are being exhibited on the same program with the above feature offerings.

CLAIRE ADAMS IN ZANE GREY'S "GOLDEN DREAMS" AT REGENT

Claire Adams, who plays the feminine lead in "Golden Dreams," Benjamin B. Hampton's picturization for Paramount of a Zane Grey story, which is being exhibited at the Regent Theatre tonight, gave up her acting career to marry and keep her family. She had been a member of a Winnepeg Stock Company. She then went to Detroit where she was with the Red Cross nurse, but her health broke down and she persuaded her family to move to New York so she could act in the films. Because of her Red Cross training she was selected to act the leading role in the government's Red Cross film. It was this which started her in the direction of motion to her. He sent for her to go out to California and she has since acted in his productions.

THRILLS GALORE IN MOTION PICTURE

New York rooftops, the toy section of a huge department store, and a beautiful animated doll house are especially interesting features of "The Top of New York," a Paramount picture starring Mae McAvoy, which opens at Griffin's Theatre for three days beginning tonight.

The roof-top effort an interesting locale for many dramatic scenes, one of the thrills being a realistic blizzard sweeping around the roof where a helpless crippled child is marooned.

It is the day toy department set for the thrills interest the children most however. Thousands and thousands of toys are shown and busy Christmas shoppers buying them. The piece-de-resistance of the toy shop is the appearance of Miss McAvoy as an animated doll in a huge doll house.

Around the tragic home life of this animated doll, Sonya Levien has woven a most entertaining story.

Prominent in the cast are Walter McGrail, Pat Moore, Miss Mcintosh, Arthur Hoyt and Mary Jane Irving.

A good Torchy comedy, William Desmond in a new chapter of Universal's popular contined play, "The Phantom Fortune," and a Kinogram will also be exhibited.

HERBERT RAWLINSON HERE TO-MORROW

Since he made his first big success a few season's ago in "Come Through," Herbert Rawlinson has been one of the most popular of the screen's male stars and his pictures have been unusually successful. In "Fools and Riches," which is now being shown at the Regent Theatre, he plays one of those typically American parts that have made him a favorite with the fans. Supporting him in the comedy, Faths News and a two-reel Century comedy will be exhibited on the same program.

CLIFFORD HEPBURN BENEFIT AT KINGSTON, IS GREAT SUCCESS

The Clifford Hepburn Benefit staged at the Fair Grounds Monday was a most successful event, due to the skilful planning by the committee which had charge of the details, and the unstinted support of citizens generally and of the sporting element in particular. The cause was a good one, and the great, big spirit of brotherhood prevailing throughout this city was emphasized in no uncertain manner throughout the day. Everyone rose magnanimously to the occasion and showed by their attendance at the sports and by their support of the cause that their hearts are in the right places, and as a result they have the consciousness today of knowing that they have done well by their unfortunate fellow-citizen. They have been told that the amount realized, enough had been totalled up to show that the amount realized will be a substantial one. The returns compiled late last night showed well over $200, and it was expected that the final returns would be in this afternoon.

The day was an ideal one for baseball, racing and sports and shortly after one o'clock the crowd started to gather at Fair Grounds, though the events were not scheduled to start till two-thirty. At that time the ball park was crowded and many had taken seats in the grand stand, which also was crowded. Every point of vantage had its quota when the sports commenced, and from that time till the ball game was over there was not a lax moment. The baseball fans watched the ball game, those who are devoted to racing had their sport for them, both attractions being of the high class variety and when both were over their devotees were satisfied that the committees which had the events in charge had provided a splendid afternoon's sport.—Standard.

Belleville Man Enthuses Over Spic Cape Trinity

Belleville, Ont., Aug. 6th, 1923

Editor Intelligencer:—Through the efforts of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce the Canada Steamship Lines Limited have put on a boat on the Bay of Quinte route, giving a triweekly service between Belleville, Toronto, Prescott and return to Belleville.

Mrs. Elliott and myself have made the round trip on the Cape Trinity. We cannot speak too highly of the courtesy of the officers and the excellent manner in which they manage. The interior of the boat is all that could be desired, the staterooms are spotlessly clean and comfortable.

A passenger from Belleville has between seven and eight hours in Toronto, giving ample time for business or sight-seeing at the tourists may desire, leaving that city at 4 p.m. for a delightful sail down Lake Ontario, to arrive up the following morning in the midst of the 1000 Islands in the American side, arriving at Prescott about 10 a.m. and leaving that historic spot about 10.30 a.m. again passing through the locks on the Canadian side of the river, calling at Kingston at 5 p.m. and reaching this city later in the evening.

The people of Belleville are exceedingly fortunate in having such an excellent steamer as the Cape Trinity plying on the waters of the Bay of Quinte this year. If the service is to be continued a fair amount of patronage will be expected by the Canada Steamship Lines Limited, otherwise the boat will be withdrawn.

Full particulars as to rates and dates of sailing may be obtained from Mr. H. C. Thompson, who represents the Canadian National Railway in this city, or from the Harbour Master, Mr. John H. Carr.

As one who is interested in the welfare and progress of Belleville, and desirous of bringing the advantages of this trip prominently before the people of this city and vicinity, I am writing this letter in the hope that you may consider it of sufficient importance for publication in your valuable paper.

Yours very truly,
J. ELLIOTT.

THE REPORT SYSTEM

There appears to have been some difference of opinion among the members of the City Council as to the action involved in asking the Parks Board for a statement of expenditures to date and for a monthly report hereafter. It was brought out that reports are received by the Council from other municipal boards.

Certainly, there can be no serious objection to the preparation and submission of monthly reports by the Board, provided they are reviewed in a spirit of co-operation and are given thorough and impartial consideration. They should prove accurate and convincing arguments in support of all feasible requests and proposals of the Board. The suggestion that the request for reports might be construed by the Board as a reflection upon its work, while undoubtedly made in all sincerity, does not appear to be well founded for the reason that through the medium requested by the report system, the Board will be afforded an opportunity to express its position and to explain its problems in the most concise and effective manner. There can be no doubt that the Board members will heartily welcome the proposal after they have given the matter full consideration.

The value of the preparation of reports by government boards, commissions and bureaus has been amply proven. Invariably the members of these bodies have been benefitted by the opportunity offered to clearly explain their work and thus to clear up many points not clearly understood and perhaps unfairly criticised.

These reports are available to the public and frequently rate payers who have been inclined to grumble about being taxed to support certain undertakings have become supporters of the work and have ceased to complain about being taxed to finance the undertakings after studying them.

It might be well, then, to make our city reports not only available in detail to the public but to encourage the public to study them. Unfamiliarity breeds distrust. It is probable that if the ratepayers of Belleville were more conversant with the aims and the problems, even the minor ones, of the various boards and departments of the city they would evince greater enthusiasm with regard to the work being done and the efforts of the members of these bodies to give the city the best service possible. The plan is certainly deserving of a trial.

A GROWING MENACE

A grand jury commissioned to investigate motor traffic conditions in New York City recently made the following recommendations.

1. Rigid and thorough examination of all applicants for chauffeurs' license by the Motor Vehicle Bureau of the State Tax Department to determine mechanical ability, physical fitness and moral responsibility.

2. Extension of the State law requiring operators as well as chauffeurs to apply and be examined for licenses to operate an automobile.

3. Judicial treatment of reckless or speeding drivers as criminals.

4. No chauffeur's license, revoked by a Magistrate, to be restored by the State without conference with the Magistrate who cancelled the license.

5. Strict examination for defective brakes.

6. Exceptionally close scrutiny of applicants for taxicab licenses, with inquiry into their records.

7. Rigid enforcement of the State law requiring taxicab operators to post bonds. The Grand Jurors also endorsed Commissioner Enright's proposal to the License Commissioner that taxicab owners display a disc showing their cabs to be bonded.

8. Convictions to be reported to the State Automobile Bureau so that if a chauffeur reapplies for a license his record will be there to cause his rejection.

9. A clearing house for information pertinent to officials enforcing the automobile laws.

10. Uniformity of motor ordinances and of traffic signals.

11. Extension of the plan of street markings for the guidance of drivers.

12. Continuation of the campaign to end "jay-walking" a practice which the Grand Jurors found responsible for many accidents.

13. Recommendation that the continued growth of the shipping and transportation industries brought into "prominence the problem of providing facilities for loading and unloading the trucks and carriers of these establishments within their premises and thereby avoiding the use of the public thoroughfare for that purpose with the incidental addition to traffic congestion."

14. Expansion to the city's playground area, since "the absence of scarcity of playground places and facilities contributes materially toward automobile.

While many of these proposals deal with conditions not found in Belleville, nevertheless, the purpose of the recommendation is as applicable to Belleville as to New York City.

Rigid examination of applicants for chauffeurs' licenses, judicial treatment of reckless or speeding drivers as criminals, the extension of the plan of street markings for the guidance of drivers and the continuation of the campaign to end "jay-walking" are measures which should receive the support of the public generally to a greater degree than they have received in the past.

By The Side Of The Road

If they stage the Anthony and Cleopatra idyll in a manner consistent with historical documents and the supplementary contributions of literature it might be advisable to have a few censors on the job.

Cleopatra was certainly not noted for her modesty and moral standards, and Anthony wasn't so very straight laced himself. Their escapades in Egypt prior to the disastrous battle of Actium were not unlike those frequently revealed when present day domestic tangles are aired in court. The heroine honors should be accorded to Mrs. Mark.

The suggestion of a Peterboro autoist to a Port Hope constable that he remove himself to the "lower regions" was at once unnecessary and superfluous. The constable was close enough to Satan's realm as it was.

If Mr. Mikel persists in his laudable purpose we may yet be able to secure another World Disarmament conference for Belleville in conjunction with the U.E.L. celebration.

Should think there would be danger of some of those staid Trentonites suffering from shock when witnessing those hair-raising stunts.

Apropos of the gathering of the Barlow clans, there is the story of the rich young New Yorker who was asked how far his ancestry could be traced.

"Well," drawled the youth, "they traced my grandfather to San Francisco but he got away."

The City Council is said to be seriously considering the suggestion that pedestrians be advised to carry miniature motor horns when walking on Belleville streets. There have been numerous incidents of persons being wetted by lawn hoses in the hands of pre-occupied householders. Those with rubber heels usually suffer most, it is said.

PRESS OPINIONS

HOT AIR WITHOUT COAL.
(Guelph Mercury)

The U.S. government is to intervene to prevent a coal strike. Was there ever a strike when there was not months of "intervening" and what was accomplished except to add to the price of the coal laid down in the cellar? It's an old story, this intervention stuff, and doesn't mean anything.

SICK MAN OF EUROPE.
(Ottawa Journal)

It is the old, old story of European stupidity and greed and disunion breaking against Turkish cunning, and solidarity, and militancy. Turkey played England against France, and France against Russia, and the United States against the lot. With "divide and conquer" as her motto, and fortified by an army that had sent the Greeks streaming back into Europe in flight and panic, she used rich concessions to entice, divide, flatter, and make friends or enemies as the case demanded, among the powers.

And in the end the union of pen and sword won for her what the sword could not wine alone, with the consequence that the Treaty of Sevres was torn into fragments, the integrity of the Turkish Empire maintained, the Christians of blessed war memory abandoned, the Crescent retained triumphantly at Constantinople, and the "Sick Man of Europe" restored to his pristine power.

Remember Gallipoli, remembering Sedel-Bahr, it is a tale for tears.

REWARD OF VIRTUE
(Huntington, W. Va. Adverser)

A fat car broke down directly in front of the house of a resident along one of the roads to the south of Vasalgton in the hours before dawn several days ago. Just about that time the aforesaid resident drove up on his way home.

Accosted by the operator of the broken down machine, he kindly offered the use of his yard for the other to repair his car in. This offer was snapped up and when the repair job was finished the resident was reward ed with the gift of half a case of "real stuff."

NO BUTTING IN (London Telegraph)

A great ruler will probably arise in China again, as great rulers have arisen out of chaos before in the country's long span of history; but no action of foreign government can hasten the day of his coming.

The Powers have solemnly bound themselves by the Washington treaty to interfere in no war with Chinese sovereignty or territorial integrity, and any steps which they may now decide to take in common will be strictly conditioned by that self-denying ordinance.

EXTRAVAGANT NOTIONS
(Hamilton Spectator)

A decline of marriage in the United States is disconcerting, yet not surprising. Ordinary living conditions, superinduced in many instances by the mistaken and extravagant idea that it is necessary to "keep up with the Joneses," will ever prove a deterrent influence.

NEAT EXAMPLE.

If your neighbor's chickens molest your garden, and you yearn to lick him for it, that is patriotism on a small scale.

NOT KEEPING THEM.

"Really, Jane, is that man to the grey car throwing kisses to you?"

"Yes, mother dear," said Jane, "but I'm throwing them back."

LEONARD HAS NO RIVAL FOR L.W. CROWN

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 7.—Benny Leonard the world's lightweight champion has ambitions to retire undefeated from the ring. Only one champion boxer on the list has done that and he was Jack McAuliffe. Rather coincidental, he was a lightweight also.

Unless he desires to pick up some more money that could be gathered up in a number of small purse matches, there is no need for Leonard to postpone long the time for his retirement.

The case with which he eliminates Lew Tendler in their recent fight from the list of logical contenders made Leonard so secure in the possession of his crown that it is practically riveted on his on his head.

The lightweight situation as it now stands was well put in the words of Phil Glassman, Tendler's manager who said after his hope had been made to look like a novice by the clever Leonard:

"We're out of it for years. Our only hope is to let age wear the champion down and then take him."

Tendler's hopes of becoming claim pion, such as they are, are feeble indeed. While age is exacting its toll from Leonard, Tendler cant expect to be spared of the same penalty because he is only slightly younger than the champion.

When the Philadelphia southpaw was eliminated from the list, Leonard's prospects for future matches thinned down to the veteran, Charley White, and after the latter the champion showed against Tendler, White is only an ordinary card.

Never a fast hitter, White never will have a chance as long as the quick witted, high-speed brained Leonard retains his form. Being a clean liver and a boxer interested in his profession there is no reason why the champion should slip in a year or two years.

There has been some talk of a match between Leonard and Mickey Walker for the welterweight championship. There was also talk at one time that Leonard aspired to become the welterweight champion and retire as the possessor of two titles.

In his first appearance with Jack Britton, Leonard very obviously had no great desire for the welterweight crown as he deliberately fouled Britton and lost the fight when he had the veteran welter champion just as good as knocked out.

Some opinion was openly expressed after the Tendler fight that Leonard had either met or carried the Philadelphia challenger. Many wise followers of boxing, including Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, believed that Leonard could have knocked Tendler out if he had really wanted to win that way.

Leonard may have wanted to keep Tendler on his feet and build up another big money match with him for next season, but after the beating Tendler took, spectators were convinced that Tendler is no match for the champion and is no longer a good card.

There are no young lightweights of sufficient ability to be built up into logical contenders for the title and no good welterweights are few and far between, so Leonard is in the unenviable position of having a high priced title on his hands and no place to put it.

Jack Dempsey, who was in the same position two years ago, has at least three good matches in the making, but Leonard hardly can expect that such in the same period of time. The division is almost barren of class on his side and in Europe the lightweights are jokes.

Even though some of the spectators bought that he was holding Tendler up, it looked as if Leonard put on some of the kick in his right hand punches. Admitting that Tendler is a rugged, tough fighter and that he can take a tremendous lot of punishment, it seems impossible that any boxer could take the least twenty hard right uppercuts on the jaw and remain off the floor if the punches landed on him had the same pull and drive Leonard possessed at one time.

While he may have lost some of his speed, Leonard, if anything, has improved as a boxer and a ring general.

Tommy Gibbons gave a most marvelous exhibition of foxing against Jack Dempsey in Shelby, but it was all defensive work. Leonard's skill was brilliant in his blocking and dodging and more particularly in his wicked counters. It must be remembered that Tendler's boxing reached perfection under the handicap of an awkward left-handed opponent, that is very difficult to beat when it is perfected as well as Tendler had developed his style.

DERBY CLUB TOO FAST FOR BATTERY

Former Team Whitewashes Soldiers by the Score of 7-0

The Derby Club whitewashed the 34th Battery in last night's soft-ball game by a 7-0 score. The winners grabbed an early lead count. The Battery boys got men on bases but Marsaka's bunch managed to tighten up in the pinches.

Alex Weir and "Piper" Leichford were in the points for the Club boys and both were in excellent form. Lloyd and Stork formed the 34th's battery. Several feature catches were pulled off by members of both nine. Archie Leslie and "Stub" Barrett umpired.

The officers desire to thank those spectators who kindly contributed towards the expenses of the league. 34th Battery and Shoemen play to-night while the Printers and Derby Club clash tomorrow night.

These games are becoming more close and interesting each night. Fans who visit the High School grounds at 6.30 on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of each week witness some real sport.

PETERBORO TRIMS COBOURG, 7 TO 6

Latter Nosed Out in Weird Diamond Contest

Peterboro, Aug. 8.—The Peterboro Central Leaguers nosed out Cobourg here today in a weird battle that ended with a score of 7 to 6. Several errors on the part of the Cobourg nine gave the Petes the tying and the winning run in their half of the final inning.

Both teams hit hard and often in the first three innings, but from the third on it was a regular pitchers' battle. Nelson was the batting star of the day when he walloped out a homerun in the second inning with both second and third bare occupied. Two triplets and five doubles were also included in the batting spree.

Hockman went the whole distance on the mound for the Petes, and though he allowed six hits in the first three innings he was air-tight from then on, and fanned fourteen of the opposing batters. Schaffer started on the mound for Cobourg, but after being touched for a single triple and home-run in the second frame, which, together with a walk, an error and a wild pitch, allowed five runs to cross the pan he got the derrick, and J. Kenny finished the game. He held the Petes to two hits in the last seven innings. Nelson and Logan each featured with unassisted double plays. The players were:—

Peterboro—Logue, lf.; Wolf, c.f. Acosta, s.s.; Swanston, c.; Conolly, 1b; Hockman, p.; Johnston, 3b.; Nelson, 3b.; Colling, r.f.

Cobourg—Skitch, 2b.:	R.	H.	E.
Derry, c.f.; Kenny, 1b.; F. Drennan, s.s.; Jackson, c.; Johnes, lf.; Schaffer, p. 1b.; Fardelli, r.f.
Score:—	R.H.E.

Cobourg was the home team, as the game was originally scheduled to be played in Cobourg.

CLASS HOUSES

Dear Hall (college) came to our school;
She did the queerest thing—
She scolded at the names we had,
And would not let us sing
Until she changed them all around.
To Miss Hall's quite a different mood.

Flossie Gray is Florence now,
And Maggie Beggs is Mae,
And Tabbie Mills is Tabbie
And must be every day,
And open boys she named again,
Like Benjamin for little Ben.

And one day when our teacher said
"Twas nothing more than shame
That she should come so far along
With just a baby name,
A visitor we didn't know
Came in and spried our teacher so;

He stepped right up and kissed her cheek
And said, while passing through,
He found he had a moment's time
To stop to say "How do."
Then she cried, "Dad-dies" with a hug.
And he replied, "How's Daddy's Pup?"

The best kind of vacation that we get is when the boss goes on his vacation.

Rub Campana's Italian Balm on your face and arms each day. It won't prevent you getting sunburned; in fact, it assists the sun in giving the skin a clear, healthy, pretty texture, instead of a coarse reddness, but it will prevent the roughness and soreness and irritation that comes from sunburn, or excessive perspiration.

Be sure to take a good supply of Campana's Italian Balm away with you on your vacation—become you can't buy it conveniently at many summer resorts.

RECIPES

DOUGHNUTS TO POETRY

One cup of sugar, one cup of milk
Two eggs beaten fine as silk;
Salt and nutmeg (famous will do),
Of baking powder teaspoons two.
Lightly stir the flour in.
Reflect pie board and toe thin.
Cut in diamonds, twists or rings,
Drop with care the doughy things
Into fat, that briskly swells
Evenly the spongy cells;
Watch with care the time for turning
Fry them brown, but short of burning
Roll in sugar, serve when cool.

PLUM DUMPLINGS

Mix ½ lb. flour, 1 egg, pinch of salt and enough water or milk to make a stiff dough. Work smooth and place on a board. Cut into pieces the size of walnuts. Have plums or prunes cleaned and dried and place them on a piece of dough. Wrap up plums and place in boiling water. After they are in the water, take a spoon and slip it under the dumplings as they like to stick to the pans. Let them boil about two minutes after the dumplings come to the top of the water. Take out and pour over them browned butter or cream.

A DELICIOUS CONSERVE

Pick over and wash 2 lbs of dried apricots and let soak in cold water over night. In the morning add one can of sliced pineapple and put all into meat chopper. Then add as many cups of sugar as you have of fruit and boil all together.

BAKED SUMMER SQUASH

Hollow out all ripe summer squashes and boil in salted water for thirty minutes. Drain, dry, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and fill with a stuffing made from three-quarters of a cupful of soft bread crumbs, one cupful of any kind of cold meat, hash or left over meat, half a tablespoonful of minced onion, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one minced green pepper, salt to taste, and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, with tomato juice to slightly moisten. Cover with buttered crumbs and place in a dripping pan, half cover with stock, and bake until tender—about forty minutes.

RASPBERRY BOMBE GLACE

1 quart red raspberries
Red fruit flavoring
½ cup pineoppple-juice
1 lemon
1 cup sugar
1 orange
1 cup water
Plain vanilla ice-cream

Wash the raspberries or strawberries may be used. Add pineapple-juice or grated pineapple, sugar and a cup of water. Cook for ten minutes, remove from the fire and add the juice of the orange and the lemon, the remainder of the water, more sugar, if not sweet enough, and enough red fruit coloring to make the mixture red. Strain three a fine sieve or cheese-cloth and when cold freeze as you would ice cream. If a tablespoon of gelatin is stirred into the hot syrup after being softened in a little water, it will give a little more body to the ice. Draw the mixture against the side of the freezer, leaving a hollow in the center. Fill this with vanilla ice-cream, and pack down in salt and ice for wo or three hours. If preferred, a mold may be lined with the raspberry ice and the cream filled in the center. When ready to serve, slice down and place on individual plates. Garnish with candied violets or with a fresh blue blossom.

PEACH ICE CREAM.

Wipe and pare peaches, cut in slices, sprinkle with sugar, cover and let stand two hours; then force thru a puree strainer. To pulp thus obtained add twice its measure of thin cream, sugar and lemon juice to taste, and a few grains of salt. Freeze, Garnish with slices of peach.

ICE CREAM WITH RASPBERRY SAUCE

Beat three eggs light with one-half cup of granulated sugar, add a pint of rich cream and a pint of milk and flavor with vanilla. Turn into a freezer and freeze. When firm turn out upon a chilled platter and serve with raspberry sauce. To make this, boil a cup of sugar with a gill of water, and when you have a thin syrup stir in the washed red raspberries that have had a little sugar added to them. Set aside until cold.

GOOD BEET SOUP

Boil 2 medium beets in water. Cut up fine a can of red beets saving the juice, and add the beets to the water and boil for 5 minutes. Then add pepper to taste, and add to the cold beet soup mixture. This is very nice in hot weather served with boiled potatoes.

HINTS THAT HELP

With Your Cereals.

If you wish to wear flowers and do not want them to wilt, dip the ends of the stems in melted wax. This keeps the sap in the stems.

With Stamps That Stick.

To remove a stamp, iron over the back of the paper which the stamp is on, and the heat of the iron will take the stamp off immediately.

With Candle Stubs.

When candles are broken, cut the broken ends off smoothly and melt back together. The candles will look like new.

If Ironing Dollies.

To iron a round centrepiece so that it will not pucker in the centre, always iron from the center to the outside edge.

To Mark Poison Bottles.

A safe way to keep poison from being mistaken for other medicine is to insert a pin or photograph needle in the side of the cork so that the point sticks out at the top.

With the Percolator.

If the percolator strainer becomes clogged, pour coarse salt into it and scrub the perforations inside and out. Pour boiling water through to wash away the salt and coffee deposit.

To Scare Carpet Moths

People troubled with carpet moths may get rid of them by scrubbing the floor with strong hot salt water before laying the carpet, and sprinkling the carpet once a week before sweeping.

With Stubborn Stoppers.

The common nut-cracker makes a splendid household article to remove the tops from cans and bottles with screw tops. Even glass stoppers will yield to it.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear

(Helps to Beauty)

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, throat, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove hair from arms, neck or face, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be sure certain you get real delatone and mix fresh as wanted.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

By G. Manville Fenn

She was very plainly dressed, and wore a simple cotton straw hat, but there was an air of refinement about her which, before she opened her lips, told the parson that he was in the presence of one who had been born in a sphere of some culture.

Not so her companion, who, though as well dressed by nature, was in quite another mold. Plump, pearly and rounded of outline, she was a splendid specimen of the better class English cottage girl, spoiled by her parents and indued with a knowledge that she was the pretty girl of the place.

"I am so much obliged—it was a good of you," stammered the heroine of the bog.

"Not at all, my dear; don't mention it," said the parson, in the kind way that helped to put the discomfited maiden at her ease. "I see; gather big bog-flowers and want too far. Too much for you, I'm thinking, loudly. "You a country young lady, and not know it is dangerous to go where the cotton rushes grow. You wanted some, eh! Yes, and left the basket out there—eh, my dear?"

"Oh, pray don't go—never mind the basket—it does not matter," faltered the fair one, who was already stepping from tussock to tussock and wading by hooking up the basket with its pink and white load and the great silky-topped rushes with his reach.

"There," he said, returning the basket and its contents: "there are your cotton rushes—earth's fruit. I say, you've got a bit of a cut in your hand; a thumb—of five, and trying to get what you ought not to touch."

"Oh, it's nothing," said the girl, looking ruefully at the little red raspberry on her hair at the word Eve, and exchanged glances with her companion. This was startling enough, but the hot, frowning, and cross, with her eyes fixed on the ground and her head down in the air, was incorrect by the angry look directed at her by the young workman who was standing with his hands in his pockets, with his hands thrust into the very bottoms of his pockets.

"I did not think the bog was so treacherous," said the girl, stealing a look at the parson's ruddy face before her. "It looked so safe."

"So do many things in this world, my dear; but you must not trust them any the more for their fair seeming."

The girl started a little and looked wonderingly at the familiar is which she was addressed by so young a man—a perfect stranger. She had already called him a long time in the bog with two or three furious darts from her bright eyes for daring to put his interference, but it was the first time for a moment, that she would rather sink into the earth than be touched like that. She was taken quite aback and had to resign herself to her fate.

"Ah!" said the vicar, "you are thinking that I am no for speaking in such a free way!"

"I—I indeed—!"

"Ah, my dear, I can read that pretty innocent face of yours like a book. There—there—don't blush so. We are strangers, well, let's be strangers no more. Let me introduce myself. I am Murray Selwood, your new parson, and you are—"

"Eve Pelly—Mrs. Claire's—"

"Niece, I know, my dear. Very, very glad to make your acquaintance. You see I know something about the place Thought I have not been there yet."

As he spoke he took the fair lady's extended hand, and gave it a warm frank pressure, which again heighten ed the blush; but in a few moments Eve Pelly felt more at her ease in the presence of this stranger, who, with all his freedom, had an atmosphere of gentlemanly truth and candor, which won upon all with whom he came in contact.

"Now," he said, "you must introduce me to my other little friend here. Who is this?"

"This is Daisy Banks, Mr. Selwood Mr. Banks is my aunt's foreman at the Foundry. Daisy comes with me sometimes when I go for a walk. We have known each other from children."

"To be sure," said the vicar smiling "I might have known your name was Daisy. Shake hands, my dear. You'll never change that name, but some day you'll be coming to me to change the other for you."

"Which I'm sure I never shall," cried Daisy with an indignant shrug and a hot angry glance at the young workman, who ground his teeth, and savagely kicked the top off a tuft of heather.

"Don't be angry, my dear," said the vicar, kindly, as red-faced choking and hardly able to restrain her angry tears the girl snatched away her hand and turned away.

"It's one of my weaknesses to touch tender chords unwittingly," he said in a low tone to Eve; and, how it was she knew not, the girl felt her self drawn into a feeling of confidence with the stranger, who, however, half affronted her susceptibilities the next moment by saying.

"But come, you must not stand here with wet feet. If you were a sister of mine I should make you take off those dripping boots."

"They are not wet—and very wet," she stammered, correcting herself.

"I think I know," said the vicar, smiling, "but come, you must walk home sharply. I'm a bit of a doctor in my way. You won't mind my company I hope. We must be very good friends."

"I'm sure we shall," said Eve, frankly, as she glanced once more at her companion, and the next minute he was chatting to her about the contents of her basket.

A ROSE FIGHT IN JUNE

"My, how hot it is," sighed Hattie Canning herself with her bandkerchief. "I believe I'll go out in the backyard and see if I can't find a breeze.

"It certainly is sultry," agreed her mother, "but I shouldn't be surprised if we had a storm later in the afternoon. There's a black cloud coming up in the west and it's starting to blow a little."

Hattie sank into the hammock. The only rose remaining on the bush by the porch and shed its fragrance lowd on her. "The roses surely are beautiful this year," she remarked them through half-closed eyes.

Suddenly the largest cluster of roses gave a jump. "What stuck me!" it screamed. "Some one stuck me in the back with his thorn. It was you!" He took his head at a smaller cluster back of him.

"It wasn't either," snapped back the smaller cluster, "I'll tell on you like that. Take that right back or I'll pull your petals all out by the roots."

"There, you did it, now," cried the bigger rose. Hattie was horrified to see him turn and slap his companion right across the face.

"I won't take that from anyone," flared the smaller rose, grabbing out a handful of his petals.

"Help! Help!" he yelled. Other roses rushed to the assistance. Some came to help the smaller rose, too. It became a free-for-all-fight. Every one grabbed big handfuls of petals and jerked them out of the heads of anyone near. Hattie blinked her eyes in a sudden shower of petals.

Then the hammock started to rock. "It was you," they all cried, jumping on her. "It was you that stuck him in the back."

"Pull her petals out!" they scream. "Pull her petals out, too!"

"Goodness gracious, Hattie," her mother called from the door. "Come right into the house. You've pulled off blow out of the hammock. I never saw such a storm! It certainly has been very hot in a hurry. But, oh dear! Look at the roses They are all ruined, and they were so pretty, too!"

Long Skirts Are Rejected by U.S.

By HEDDA HOYT, Fashion Editor of the United Press.

New York, N.Y., Aug. 7.—"Never kick a hen when its down!" shout the designers in behalf of the long skirt.

"Raise it upwards!" smile the ladies.

Long skirts are "out." Women simply wouldn't have them. There was a short time last fall when women, tired of the long vogue of short skirts, decided to wear long ones, but was the thing. But the fondness for the short hem is again upon them. Early reports indicate the length of skirts. At present they are wearing them quite high again and have been doing so for some time. If Parisian women can get away with short skirts, surely the slender-limbed American can. It is to be hoped, however, that the ridiculously short skirts which were worn by matron and flapper alike in America, will never be popular again. We went to extremes in skirt lengths. It was even said that an American girl in Paris could always be distinguished by her short skirts.

Skirts which are from eight to ten inches from the floor are sensible, pretty, comfortable and youthful. Of course, ones about length should depend upon the size of ones ankle and foot. A large, heavy ankle is better when hidden by a long skirt. Skirts are less conspicuous when the skirt reaches just above the ankle, as both the short and the extremely long skirt seem to draw attention to them.

THE EVENING FROCK.

The evening frock for fall will continue using long skirt lengths as the formal evening gown really is at its best when long. Velvet, metal cloth and, luxurious materials seem to demand long skirts.

Dance frocks, on the other hand, are both long and short.

The girl who really dances for the love of it, prefers a dress that has fullness and that is short enough to allow freedom of motion. Chiffons have been popular with the young girls for this reason. Beaded gowns of more elaborate trend lend themselves better to length, however.

But whether our evening frock is long or short, our day gowns will be short. Those who welcome the return of the short skirt should bear in mind that the only thing that puts a style "down and out" is to overdo it.

Short skirts won't stay in style six months, if the flappers, chiffettes and chorus girls make themselves ridiculous by parading in public in skirts that do not reach to a bath house. A leg is never so attractive as when partially left to the imagination.

With Spotty Pumps.

When cleaning black satin shoes, always use a piece of black velvet. This prevents the satin from becoming rough and removes the dust and spots as readily as an ordinary cloth saturated with alcohol or chloroform.

IT'S AN IDEAL SPOT.

MEN AND HORSES

How closely related is man to the more intelligent of the animals is seen in the copy of the above, which both are prone and the remedies to which they answer.

Doctors and veterinarians are oftentimes surprised to learn of the similarity of their methods of handling the ailments of man and beast.

Sprains, burns, scalds, scratches and many other minor injuries, many everyday ailments, too in men and animals, take the same course, and both answer immediately to the same treatment—Sloan's Liniment.

Absorbine was first discovered by a very close student of the horse, W. F. Young, and by him, devoted to its cause. In very exceptional hands, however, were promptly seized upon for the human race and, in a milder form, the preparation is sold all over the continent today as Absorbine, Jr. It is used for men, women and children everywhere as a positive germicide—a great killer—and a prompt and certain healer of all hurts. It is useful not only for all the purposes served by ordinary liniments and embrocations, but as a mouth-wash and for anything else where a germicide is needed. And, what with until you need it. CHARLES LECHENBUCH.

How Wise Men Have Often Made Fools of Themselves.

The London professor who, in an absent-minded moment, promised to wed his Indian daughter "a penny's worth of evaporated pigeon's milk" may be no means the only clever man who has proved that profound learning can be allied to the gullibleness of a "Simple Simon."

Verily, one All Fools' Day, a newspaper announced the invention of an apparatus by which the magnifying power of a telescope could be increased in several minute objects of the moon, scores of scientists wandered about over the discovery. "Strange," they only do I understand, would one expert, "that lunar fields and trees are plainly visible, but animals resembling human goats, and sheep are to be distinguished; and winged creatures, something between a human being and an ostrich-ostrich."

Hundreds of columns were printed in eulogy of the astounding invention, and 40,000 copies of an explanatory pamphlet were sold before the scientific world was shocked by the discovery that it had been hoaxed by a journalist.

A year later the antiquaries of Paris were thrown into a state of excitement by a discovery of great archaeological interest—a mysterious stone, unearthed on the Montmartre, bearing the following cryptic inscription:—

SIT. G. LIC. HEM. IND. ERAM. EE.

The combined learning of the Academy of Inscriptions wrestled with this strange legend. But its members applied their brains in vain, and a committee of imagination suggested the clue to the riddle. "Read sideways" they said, "and you have it: Cest ici le Chemin des, sans—This is the road to Gomorrah."

It was more perplexing was a prehistoric bumiliated to the antiquaries of the wisecrack of England. It was an inscription, said to have been found from an ancient sepulchral mud, dating as far back as the British occupation of Britain. It was duly dedicated by its finder "to the discerning few, or Order of Gentlemen and the learned Society of Antiquaries."

This was the inscription, arranged in proper epigraph form in lines of varying lengths—SENEX A. TU. ERE. T. ONERE. POS. ET. E. CLAUD. FON. TEM. TRIP. S. SELLIUS. IMP. IN. OT. ONAS. DO. TH. HI. O. OR. SOR. T.I.N.

Here was a poser for the expert in antiquities. There was evidently an allusion to Latin here and there; but the clever archeologist in a flash had could make no sense of the inscription until a reading was suggested which made a mockery of all learning. It was this: "Senatis this Pro Proseth Claud Cister Tripliter of Impington, as doth his conjurt, Jane."

Tennyson Stories.

A couple of stories regarding Tennyson are given by Mrs. Brookfield, an English actor, in his "Random Reminiscences." Both date since his death, which contrast strangely with the conventional one, pictured by most of us. Brookfield's mother, who was a friend of Tennyson, told the first of them. It was told by Tennyson, then quite a young man, to her house. Mrs. Brookfield's father, a country old gentleman with a very bald head, was in the drawing room.

"Immediately on entering the library, in which my grandfather was sitting, the long-haired young poet marched up to him and, without preliminaries, laid his palm upon the old gentleman's cranium, and, after gazing into his face for a few seconds with knitted brows, walked away without saying a word. Mrs. Brookfield's father, a country old gentleman with a very bald head, was the object of his fresh study."

Mad Infatuation of Rich Egyptian Ends In Blood

Left Immense Fortune, Youth Falls in Love With Beautiful French Woman

BY LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
CHAPTER I.

London, Aug. 8. (United Press)—Smouldering passions fanned by jealousy and nurtured in the selfish breasts of a boy prince of Egypt and his maternally beautiful French wife were resulted in tragedy.

A fatal revolver flashed in a corridor of London's smartest hotels; a genius died; and his princess ex-wife got the voluptuous luxury of her choice of rooms for a shifty, comfort-less cell in Bow Street police station.

Shrivelled with money and believe has thereby to have escaped entirely from the common duty of consideration for others, the scorn in the alleged murder played the part of spoiled children during six short months of honeymooning. Then the woman killed the man and is threatened with the noose of the hangman.

At Kamel Pahmy Bey, is the name of the 29-year-old Egyptian who is dead. His prickly extravagance matched with princely, but often misguided, charity earned him the title of Prince and he was so known. Actually Pahmy Bey was only a minor Egyptian noble. In a country but a few months restored to monarchial government the bestowal of courtesy titles is apt to carry as much weight as the more formal pronouncements of the lords.

Income of $325,500 Yearly

At the age of 18 Pahmy Bey's father died leaving the youth heir an income of $325,500 a year. The will had bounded the family treasure of wealth. The yearly tribute of thousands of acres of cotton fields was at last brought to gratify the whims of young Pahmy Bey.

He bought fleets of motor cars. He was not skilful in their use but paraded them proudly about the streets of Cario. His cars were the fastest and had the greatest exhaust pipes of any in Egypt.

Unschooled in any life but that of self-indulgence, the young Egyptian no scons reensed his own family's objections to the match than he stubbornly determined the marriage should be.

The woman he had chosen for a bride was ten years his elder. She had been married before. Her faith was not that of Pahmy.

In spite of all these things Pahmy planned his campaign.

He followed his choice to Paris and spent streams of money to further his cause. His charmer fled to Deauville —where fortune smiled once-bright—where gather the beautiful, the wealthy, the deified of the world.

In this glittering atmosphere of women, showering money and license, Pahmy shone. He could outspend the spendthrifts. He could outgamble the masters of the ball rooms. He was handsome. He was passionate.

Perhaps he was lucky women coveted the youth who was dancing attendance on the charming Parisian. His pleas triumphed. His love was returned. He was happy.

Pahmy returned to Cario to obtain the consent of his family.

END CHAPTER I

Connected with the exhaust were ingenious American contrivances which transformed the bark of the motor into shrill blasts of a nasty noted horn.

It was not difficult to know that Pahmy Bey was coming. He announced his approach with a fanfare worthy of an emperor.

The motor cars soon became passe. Pahmy commissioned Thorneycroft's, the greatest pleasure boat builders in England, to create a craft worthy of its prospective owner. The wonderfully conceived boat was shipped to Cario and in it Pahmy added stature to his pose as a Prince in fact as well as in name.

Pahmy Bey travelled. He knew Paris, London and Vienna—and little else. He was not well educated. His money was the life giving of his career and ultimately it killed him.

Woman of His Dreams

One day in Cario Pahmy Bey saw the woman of his dreams. He contrived an introduction. She was the daughter of a French family visiting in Egypt.

Unschooled in any life but that of self-indulgence, the young Egyptian no scons reensed his own family's objections to the match than he stubbornly determined the marriage should be.

The woman he had chosen for a bride was ten years his elder. She had been married before. Her faith was not that of Pahmy.

In spite of all these things Pahmy planned his campaign.

He followed his choice to Paris and spent streams of money to further his cause. His charmer fled to Deauville —where fortune smiled once-bright—where gather the beautiful, the wealthy, the deified of the world.

In this glittering atmosphere of women, showering money and license, Pahmy shone. He could outspend the spendthrifts. He could outgamble the masters of the ball rooms. He was handsome. He was passionate.

Perhaps he was lucky women coveted the youth who was dancing attendance on the charming Parisian. His pleas triumphed. His love was returned. He was happy.

Pahmy returned to Cario to obtain the consent of his family.

Through the Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Mrs. Edwards Avoids Operation

Wilson, N. C.— "For about a year I was not able to do anything, not even do housework, because of the pains in my sides and the bearing-down pains. I could only lie around the house. The doctor said nothing but an operation would help me, but I tried different medicines which did no good, until my sister insisted on my trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She said there was nothing like it. I know that she was right, for I began to feel better with the first bottle and it has done me more good than anything else. I am able now to do anything on the farm or in my home. I recommend it to my friends."—LILLIE EDWARDS, R.F.D. No. 3, Box 61, Wilson, N. C.

Another Operation Avoided

Akron, Ohio.— "I can never praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for what it has done for me. I had such pains and weakness that the doctor told me nothing but an operation would help me. But my mother had taken the Vegetable Compound and she told me what it had done for her, and so I took it and I am glad to tell every one that it made me a strong woman and I have had two children since."—Mrs. Geo. Kenyon, 65 Grant Street, Akron, Ohio.

Victims Plead Hazy Memory

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The messengers of the Standard Bank of Canada, who were held-up by bandits in Toronto on June 24, with messengers from other banks, when the robbers stopped them with guns at the corner of Jordan and Melinda streets and escaped with $32,000 visited detective headquarters at 2.45 yesterday afternoon, but failed to identify William Morton held as suspect as one of the men that molested them.

William Morton, arrested Saturday morning in a Yonge restaurant, on the evidence of S. K. Hallam, of Toronto, who said he saw Morton at the wheel of the bandit car on the day of the robbery, was seated with three other men in detective headquarters it was reported, but the witnesses failed to pick him out of the group.

Questioned after they had been in the detective office to see Morton and the other men, the bank messengers said that it was very difficult to remember a man clearly only seen during a few exciting seconds, but they thought that none of the men in the detective offices participated in the hold-up as far as they knew.

It is understood that up to a late hour yesterday, no one had been able of identity Morton as having any connection with the bandit gang. Mr Hal Franks, of Osler and Hammond, saw him, but cold not state that he was one of the men seen during the course of the gun fight.

Woman Found Dead Identified

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The mysterious "Mrs. Smith of Buffalo," found dead in her bedroom at the Cornwall Hotel, Cornwall and Parliament, on June 24, has been positively identified as Mrs. Nancy Warren, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Identification was made by a Cleveland man at the morgue. He refused to give his name but address as police headquarters, and Chief of Detectives Guthrie did not press him for his identity.

The man who identified Mrs. Warren told the police he read of the finding of the woman in Buffalo and inquired there where he identified her picture.

The man told the police Mrs. Warren has two sons, one who just finished his course at Harvard University and a son attending Boston Technical School. The boys were away at a summer resort, he said.

LAYS CORNER STONE

Galt, Aug. 8.—At two o'clock yesterday afternoon Canon Cody of Toronto laid the corner stone of the new $200,000 addition to the Galt collegiate in the presence of a great gathering of citizens. It was quite appropriate that the distinguished Toronto divine should have this honor, he being an old Tuscio boy.

Preacher-Author Visits Toronto

Toronto, Aug. 8.—After an absence of sixteen years, Rev. Dr. John Freeman, of Belvoir street church, Leicester, has returned on a visit to Toronto. While here he is to preach four sermons at his old church, the Bloor street Baptist, where he served from 1902 to 1907.

Dr. Freeman is noted as a divine and an author. In 1921 he wrote his "Pan of Belsezu." In this he depicted the life of Nova Scotia, where he had spent his boyhood. His next work was the manuscript which was later to be-come "Pitch My Tent." In its first form it was sent, to a Canadian publishing company anonymously. It was returned with a recommendation of certain radical changes. Dr. Freeman revised the story and later the book sprang into his "best sellers" class. The scene of this story was laid in New Brunswick and deals with lumbermen, trappers and a priest. The latest novel by this author is entitled "Punch and Holy Water."

On returning to England on August 28, Dr. Freeman will begin work in a new church in Chatham, Burks, at the foot of the Chilton Hills.

To-morrow Dr. Freeman preaches the first of his four sermons in the Bloor street Baptist church. His subject in the morning will be "The Unrecognized Christ," and in the evening, "In Commodious Heavens."

Need Harvest Hands in Canada's Wheat Belt

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 8, (United Press)—Prospects of a serious shortage of harvest hands in Western Canada in view of the bumper wheat crop, which promises to be the greatest in its history, have caused government officials in the three prairie provinces to send out a call for 63,000 extra workers.

Of the army of harvest hands required, it was stated at a meeting of officials here, Saskatchewan will need 25,000, Manitoba 12,000, Alberta 19,000. The workers will be recruited from the eastern provinces. British Columbia and the United States. Manitoba's wheat harvest, according to the present outlook begins August 7, Alberta's about August 15, and Saskatchewan's August 15.

Crop experts estimate their productions of the biggest harvest in nineteen years. Some estimates place the yield of wheat at 500,000,000 bushels.

Conditions in the fruit belt of British Columbia are extremely good, according to the provincial horticulturist. Yields of all fruits, present estimates indicate, will exceed by a considerable margin the output of last year.

Montreal, Que.—Exports of wheat from Canada during June amounted to 22,278,282 bushels.

150 English Titles Are Now Held by Women From U. S.

London, Aug. 8 (United Press).—Acquiring standard European titles by the cash-and-marry plan continues to be a favorite occupation of American debutantes and widows—grass and otherwise.

One hundred and fifty English titles of much distinction and frequently more poverty have been gobbled up in the last decade.

Heading the list of Englishmen possessed of American wives and dollars are the two fortunes in the Duke of Marlborough. His Grace, the Duke, married Consuelo Vanderbilt and his capable portion of the Vanderbilt millions in 1895. A divorce has since separated the couple, but the Duke regularly got himself another American wife.

The Marquess Curzon of Kedleston is another English aristocrat possessed of the bluest of blood and an American wife. Lord Curzon would appear to agree with the Duke that American wives are worth having, for the present Marchioness is the second American and is bear the title.

French titles, which are much cheaper than the English variety, are the object of American search-ers for social distinction.

The fortunes of 23 Italian nobles become members of the Belgian nobility.

Though the Australian, Russian, German and Balkan women of title who once got along as a mere hometown "missus" have not been counted, the number is large.

CULVERTS HELD MOTOR MENACE

Kiwanis Head Advises Minister of Highways Concerning Unsatisfactory Crossings

TWO FATALITIES

Narrowness of Kingston Highway Bridges Declared Danger to Motorists

Prevalency of motor accidents in the vicinity of Belleville has been sharply emphasized by the tragic death of Frank Loft of this city on the Trenton road Monday night. Loft's death was the second to occur in this vicinity as a result of a motor accident during the past few weeks. The first was that of Mrs. J. B. Lont of Sidney, who was struck down in front of her home.

Narrowness of culverts on certain highways and especially on the Kingston highway are criticized. The culverts on this road within four miles of Trenton and another east of Belleville are declared to be too narrow to be permit of the convenient passage of motor vehicles.

Mr. T. W. Collister, President of the Belleville Kiwanis Club today sent the following communication, dealing with the matter to Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Highways.

Honorable G. S. Henry,
Minister of Highways,
Toronto, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—

On the night of Monday, the 6th inst., a man named Loft was killed on a bridge on the highway between Belleville and Trenton. The bridge in question has been the scene of five or six accidents, but up to the present time there had been no fatality.

This bridge is far too narrow for cars to pass and I am instructed by the Kiwanis Club of this city to invite you drawing your attention to same, and asking that you remedy this defect.

We would suggest that, in the meantime, red lights be placed on the bridge in order to draw the attention of the travelling public to same.

This applies also to the other bridge on this highway lying within a mile of the bridge where the accident occurred, and to a bridge lying on the road between Belleville and Shannonville. No doubt your engineers would be familiar with the bridges in question.

The Kiwanis Club feel it their duty to draw your attention to this condition in the hope that you will be able to remedy the same.

Yours truly,
T. W. Collister.

GARB RECOGNIZED

Surrenders to Guards From Institution Who Surround Him, Without Struggle

Guelph, Aug. 9.—The man hunt for John Cosgrave, the escaped lunatic murderer from the Ontario Reformatory, ended early last night, when the fugitive was captured in an oat field six miles north of Guelph, on the Eramosa Road. A telephone up from Mrs. A. Peart, wife of the general storekeeper at the farm, referred to the Guelph police, and relayed to Superintendent Neelands at the reformatory, at 7 o'clock, was the commencement of the last act in an escape that has stirred up the whole province. Two hours later, and after receiving the message, Superintendent Neelands and a party of guards set out from the institution, and in less than half an hour later the fugitive had been caught.

Cosgrave, apparently, had been lying in the swampy lands southeast of the reformatory ever since his escape, until "some time yesterday," when he came out to the open country and started for the north. He was given a ride by a farmer named Lawson, who did not know of the escape, early last evening. When passing the Peart store at Four Corners Mrs. Peart recognized his prison garb and gave the alarm. Mr. Lawson dropped at Four Corners and Cosgrave continued north on the Eramosa Road on foot. He had only gone a mile when the automobile carrying Four Corners and just before the latter came up with him he entered an oat field. He was seen by the guards in the field and quietly surrounded and captured without a struggle.

Court Case Here Is Aftermath Of Point Anne Donneybrook

Police court room this morning was crowded, and without exception interest was from the lurid environment of Jugo-Slavs at Point Anne, who were here today for the big assault case which resulted from a melee there on Sunday evening, July 29 last, when Mary Shymayshyn was injured, her husband, Edmund, badly scratched, and one of the enemy, Nick Gurniak, suffered a scratched face, a lacerated face and a black eye.

C. A. Payne is defending the parties charged with assault on all counts, E. D. O'Flynn is the private solicitor for the Shymayshyn family, and Acting County Crown Atty. C. C. Donnan is conducting the prosecution before Police Magistrate Mason.

Mr. J. J. Roberts, interpreter was told of having visited the complainant, Mrs. Shymayshyn on Sunday, July 29 at 9.30 p.m. and found her suffering from abdominal pains and pains in the head. There were no bruises on the abdomen, but on the right side of the head there was a swelling, evidently caused by a blow. On the following Monday or Tuesday the woman was removed to the General Hospital here, as the abdominal pains had not abated, and serious complications owing to the woman's delicate condition at the time, were feared. After three days' stay in the hospital, the pains subsided and as far as the physician now knows, a complete recovery has been effected. The woman's husband, Edmund, bore lacerations about the face, one scratch extending into the right eye, and his right arm was also lacerated, evidently by finger nails. Nick Gurniak, a defendant, was also visited by Dr. Robertson at the jail, when he was suffering from a wrenched knee, black eye and other minor injuries.

The complainant, on the stand, told her story in very broken English. She had finished milking the cow, she stated, when Nick Gurniak pushed her, pulled her hair and scratched her face, and, grasping her around the throat with one hand, struck her in the breast with the other. He then went up street, and she went by the factory where her husband was at work and told him of the affair. He returned and when they met Nick Gurniak Edmund Shymayshyn's face was staged, where nothing apparently was barred with regard to fighting tactics.

Mr. Payne wished that all cases be tried simultaneously, as it was a free-for-all fight. Mr. O'Flynn objected on the ground that the first alleged assault on Mrs. Shymayshyn by Nick Gurniak was a little "private" fight.

"They are charging my client with assault when he was on his back on the ground," pleaded Mr. Payne.

"Well, could he not fight upwards?" queried the Magistrate.

"He certainly can," explained Mr. Payne, "but very well indeed. If you saw the other fellow, you would think so, too."

Captain Rasback has been flying during the summer months, around Islands and entertained the Trenton public during the Old Boys' Reunion week. The party will travel in two planes, both of which will anchor in the harbor here between 7 and 8 p.m.

HOME FOR AGED CLEAR OF DEBT

Indebtedness of $9,200 Against Belleville Institution is Removed From Books

WORK OF W. C. A.

Addition to Building Planned to Meet Increased Demand for Accommodations

Mrs. W. C. Mikel, president of the Women's Christian Association of Belleville, announced today that the Belleville Home for Aged is now clear of debt. The last payment on the $9,200 indebtedness of the Home was paid recently.

The building, which houses the Home for Aged, was purchased two years ago last June. The purchase price was $7,200 and an additional expenditure of $2,000 was entailed in improvements. The money applied on the debt was secured chiefly from contributions and from the proceeds of garden parties, socials, etc.

The institution now has a maximum of $150 per week from the city and 16 inmates, which is the limit the Province. It has accommodations for 15 inmates, but at present there are but eight. Until recently, however, there were 13 in the Home. Of the present number, three are women. The oldest of the eight is 86 and the youngest, an invalid, is 48. The Home is in charge of Mrs. Minnie Cooper.

The rooms of the building are charmingly appointed and beautiful surroundings add to the attractiveness. The Home for Aged is owned and operated by the Women's Christian Association which has a representative corporation formed by Belleville women. The Association, which also owns and operates the General Hospital and administers the city's appropriations for the poor and indigent of the city, has a board of 52 trustees.

Although the Home was primarily designed to care for the indigent aged of the city without charge, many applications have been received by the Association from persons who desire to enter the Home and contribute toward their maintenance by gifts from friends, or from whose maintenance they would be willing to pay. For this reason an addition to the building is being considered.

SLAYER OF GIRL GRIEF-STRICKEN

Youthful Murderer Begs Forgiveness of Victim's Father

HEARING TO-DAY

Youth, Who Slew Hamilton Girl Admits Guilt to Police.

Hamilton, Aug. 9.—Surrendering to the authorities in Toronto yesterday morning, George King, who on Tuesday night slew Erie Johnston, the 15-year-old merchant, is now in the Hamilton jail, a self-confessed murderer.

King arrived in this city about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in charge of Detective Harry Sayer. While in the Toronto police court he threw himself upon George Johnston, father of the girl he killed. King broke down and wept bitterly. Failing on his knees he thrust his hands through the bars, clutched the girl's father, and begged forgiveness.

Himself under a severe strain, Mr. Johnston spoke affectionately to King, whom he several times addressed as "poor fellow."

King has constantly asked in a dumb way if his young assistant was dead. He has been told several times that she is, but has continued to repeat the question to himself.

King is not 25 years old, as first reported, but only 19. On the roster of the police force he is charged with murder. He will receive his preliminary hearing today.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Following a wild motor ride from Hamilton to Toronto, twenty-four-year-old George King, son of Mrs. E. King, 318 King street west, Hamilton, was arrested in the Parkdale police station on Queen street early this morning. He was held on a charge of shooting and killing seventeen-year-old Erie Johnston, on the verands of her home, 84 Niagara avenue Hamilton at 11.30 last night.

The story of how King left Hamilton for Toronto in an effort to escape the law, of the means he took to reach Toronto and of his final confession for his act is told by Arch E. Eells, driver of a motor car, whom King forced to bring him to Toronto.

After leaving the Johnson home the young man ran hurriedly along until he reached King street. It was about midnight, and his whole desire was to get as far from Hamilton as possible. Along came a roadster, driven east by Eells, of 39 Craig street, Hamilton. Eells is a paper-hanger, was homeward bound.

King jumped on the running board of the car and asked him "How far are you going?"

"A little warm up" returned Eells, somewhat cautiously.

"You're going to take me to Toronto," asserted King with vehemence.

"I am not going to Toronto," said Eells, and then, according to Eells, King pulled out his gun and with pressing it into Eells's side, said that he "had better take him to Toronto." Eells replied that he "could not drive." Eells told the press yesterday morning before starting back for Hamilton, "had stopped out for Toronto with the old bus. I told the young fellow that I didn't think I had enough gas, but he said that it was all right if I just drove as far as I could with what I did have.

He understood that King attempted to commit suicide at the police station in Toronto.

MAN IN "BAD CHECK" CASE SPRINTS—NABBED IN HAYLOFT

Sergeant Harman Gets Exercise in Chase When Wilbert Edgewood Proves Shy

After a chase through back yards, over fences, along a railroad track, into an old barn on Grier street and up into the hay loft, Police Sergeant Arthur Harman arrested Wilbert Edgwood shortly after 9 a.m. this morning.

Edgewood is the man who ran a foul of the law by technical irregularities with a cheque attention issued for $5 on the Standard Bank, last Saturday afternoon; here, when the officers were good enough to allow the man his freedom on Sunday morning, when he deposited $65 with them on condition he appear at the station on Monday at 10 a.m., he never reported, and it was necessary to go out and chase him all earth today.

Learning that Edgewood was staying at a house on Ridley street, Sergt. Harman drove out to the house. When Edgewood saw the car, he left the house via the "tradesman's" entrance, and began to canter through the yard, and on to the railroad track. Leaving the car on the railroad crossing in his excitement, Officers Harman gave chase and after a short time captured his quarry in the loft of the hay barn.

Edgewood was routless when apprehended, dressed in the overalls of the mow. He stated that he had slept at the Tiger Tyre and Rubber Company, and had fasted for two days.

Edgewood appeared in court this morning charged with unlawfully obtaining $70 from Jack Pahey, of Foxboro's Meat Furnishings store by tendering a worthless cheque, also with obtaining $5 from John Seeley, grocer, by similar means. Accused pleaded guilty to both charges and was sentenced to 2 years in Portsmouth Penitentiary near Kingston.

"I consider this a bold piece of business," remarked Police Magistrate Mason in passing sentence, "and it appears to have been a business proposition contemplated to be practically steal money."

Of the $65 on Edgewood's person, $3.55 goes to Seeley and the balance to Pahey, according to the magistrate's direction.

After Canton business was concluded the ladies invited all to the banquet room where a splendid banquet was provided at which Col. R. H. Ketcheson acted as Toastmaster. After honoring The King in the usual way, Col. Ketcheson proposed the toast, "The Patriarch Militant Army" which was received with great enthusiasm. On rising to respond Gen. Shaw was greeted with musical honors and cheers. The General thanked members for their splendid reception and, after a few words of advice, expressed the wish that the Canton in the Province of the south of the province would continue to advance. Lieut. Col. H. W. Lindstrom also replied to the toast. To the toast of the Ladies Auxiliary, Lady President Mrs. Davey of Kingston, Lady President Mrs. Cornish of Picton, and Lady Secretary Mrs. Cole, of Belleville replied. Ideal Conditions Feature Emmanuel Church S.S. Picnic

Emmanuel Church Sunday School Picnic to-13 O'Clock Point and Murray View on Wednesday was the most successful beyond all previous records. Favored by the best of weather and a load of watermelons the afternoon went merrily along from 2 o'clock till 7.30 p.m. when the last load started in the dark.

The affair was in charge of the Rev. A. Baker and Mr. Montgomery Barlow had charge of the 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. Mr. R. H. Hutcheon had control of the latter arrangements, and in his usual efficient manner discharged his duties to the satisfaction of all.

Mrs. Baker's ladies' committee consisted in the ice cream and chocolate department and proved himself not only a good salesman, but his ability to make a profit. To Mr. A. S. Lang fell the duty of doing everything and being everywhere.

The young women teachers were on hand and so well did they discharge their duties, that only one child was heard to cry, and that was a very little one.

Among the willing helpers we saw Mrs. (Dr.) Hayley, Mr. Mayler, J. Rigby and Cyril Reed.

The 2.30 and 7.30 boats were comfortably filled, while the 5 p.m. boat was loaded to capacity.

The Salvation Army brass band rendered a very excellent program on the moonlight trip, which was much appreciated. Everybody was in the best of spirits and agreed that it was an ideal picnic.

ROSSMORE

Quite a number from Massassaga attended the one hundredth birthday celebration on Tuesday last.

Miss M. Jones of Tweedie is with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Anderson, and sisters, for her summer holidays.

Miss Lish of Hamilton arrived on Saturday to spend two weeks holidays with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Miss Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Parliament and son spent a recent afternoon with the former's parents.

But he, poor loon,
Must think that what that means
Is "shoot the moon."

NORTHERN ONTARIO INDIANS PRESENT HIAWATHA.—To Celebrate "Discovery Week" at Sault Ste. AND SHE PACKED UP AND WENT HOME.

An old lady was on a visit to her married daughter. One day there was company and little Theodore, the hope of the house, was doing his best to amuse his mother's visitors. Presently he left the room, to return soon afterwards with a zinc bucket. This he planted right in front of his grandma, while the others sat wondering what was about to happen.

"Grandma," said little Theodore, "will on kick it?"

"Bless the child," said the surprised old lady "why do you wish me to do that, darling?"

"Because," replied the young hopeful, "I heard pa say we should be awfully rich when on kicked the bucket!"

BUT HARDLY HUMOROUS.

"I hear you had appendicitis. That's a good joke."

"Whatsamun, joke?"

"It's a side-splitting affair, isn't it?"

ANOTHER PEST.

There is something worse than the jay walker. That is the idiot who, holding an umbrella at an angle of 45 degrees, rolls it up as he sidesteps through a crowd.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother

(Moles of Today)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To prevent disappointment, be careful to get genuine delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

Music & Drama

JUST THINK OF IT!

MAY McAVOY A BLONDE

Belleville admirers of May McAvoy, the Paramount star, will be interested to hear that when they see her at Griffin's tonight, Friday or Saturday, it will be not only with bobbed hair but with blonde bobbed hair!

"The Top of New York," her Paramount starring vehicle, adapted from Louis Levien's story, "Baby Doll," which appeared in Metropolitan magazine, presents the star in the role of a young tenement girl who climbs to the top section of a huge New York department store.

To attract customers during the Christmas rush the proprietors have the tiny saleswoman appropriately costumed to appear as an animated doll, who adds interest to and gains sales for the doll section.

Paramount picture feit that a blonde type was needed for the character, and decided that Miss McAvoy's personality was exactly suitable for the part. And Miss McAvoy's hair is dark brown. One false, as they say in France, and beautiful blonde will behold and curly, solved the difficulty, and a radiant little blonde star will greet her Belleville friends when "The Top of New York," is shown at Griffin's this week-end, with the usual Saturday matinee. Miss McAvoy is supported by an excellent cast headed by Walter McGrail. Other well-known players include Mafanne Marstin, Charles Bennett, Charles Benham, Edward Cecil, Pat Moore, Corrie Clare Ward, Arthur Hoyt and Mary Jane Irving. A thrilling picture is promised.

A funny Torchy comedy, William Desmond in a new chapter of Universal's popular continued play, "The Phantom Fortune," and Kinogram are also announced for presentation.

HERBERT RAWLINSON NOW AT REGENT IN NEW OFFERING

There's a type of friendship that is reflected in the radiating glare of the dollar sign.

Such was the type of friendship bestowed upon Jimmy Dorgan, son of John Dorgan, multi-millionaire, railroad president. Dorgan, Sr., had amassed a fortune and Jimmy dedicated the early years of his life trying to spend it. With the help of the social leeches who clung to him he did awfully well at his self-appointed task.

He did so well with his check book against his father's bank account that he lost all other interest in life. His life became a series of parties, with Jimmy always in the role of the host. His father's advice regarding the character of his associates was ignored, and thus he gained his father's displeasure.

When he learned that his inheritance amounted to only a half million dollars when he anticipated several millions, Jimmy was so used to spending that he galloped through the fortune like a colt through a small corral. When his money was gone his friends deserted him.

"Fools and Riches," the Universal photoplay at the Regent Theatre tonight to Saturday, matinee daily offers as ideal playground for the romantic screen hero. Herbert Rawlinson, who is starred.

Jimmy Adams in a funny Cameo comedy, Pathe News, and "Vamped," a good Century comedy are being exhibited on the same program.

JAPANESE STUDENTS RIOTING

BY CLARENCE DUBOSE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Tokyo (By mail to United Press).—Strikes and rioting among Japanese students have been becoming more frequent and serious recently.

Government officials, newspapers and leaders in almost every field are wondering whether "new Japan" is going to kick out of the traces altogether.

Students of one of the big religious universities of Tokyo recently mobbed their President, wrecked his office, beat him up thoroughly, forced him to sign a resignation touched in humiliating terms—and made the resignation stick. The University has a new President and the students have consented to resume their studies.

UNIVERSITIES UNDER GUARD

Heavy reserves of police are now guarding three Tokyo Universities and plain-clothes detectives are trailing hundreds of students who are ring-leaders in the ultra-radical, anti-social movement that has swept the Japanese university-student world like wildfire.

The whole thing seems to be borne by the reaction of the youth of a people, bound always heretofore by traditional laws of social order, but extreme rigidity, and now for the first time learning something of what liberty and democracy mean—and perhaps confusing them with license. They're simply feeling their strength—the hotheads of thousands of students in Japan—and most of 'em are kicking around all over the picture like a lot of wild colts. But chances are they'll play in the 1st all right—after romping up and down and kicking up the dust a while.

"Strikes" of Japanese students against the country which they do like have been common in the country for some time. A class in mathematics, for example, will hold a mass meeting, decide the professor is unsatisfactory (for whatever the reason may be) and go on strike, refuse to attend class, until that professor is removed or until he corrects whatever it is to which the students object.

HAPPENS ALL OVER JAPAN

That sort of thing has happened many times all over Japan in recent years. But nothing before has happened like the Tokyo University riot in Tokyo where students wrecked the President's office, beat him, and forced him to resign. Tokyo is one of the largest Buddhist educational institutions and all the students are prospective priests.

The trouble there followed upon the heels of the Waseda University fracas where students booted and drove away the vice minister of war and high army and naval officers who wanted to lecture them on military training. And both these affairs have been followed by "free speech" meetings of students—and free fights with the police—all over Tokyo.

It is a great life for Japanese University men these days.

EXCRUCIATING PAINS, CRAMPS

Entirely Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ebert's, Ont. — "I started with cramps and bearing-down pains at the age of eleven years, and I would get so nervous I could hardly stay in bed, and I had such pains that I would scream, and my mother would call the doctor to give me something to take. At eighteen I married, and I have four healthy children. I still have pains in my right side. I am a farmer's wife with more work than I can able to do. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I feel that it is helping me every day. My sister-in-law, who has been taking your medicine for some time and uses your Sanative Wash, told me about it and I recommend it now, as I have received great relief from it."—Mrs. NELSON IVEY, R. R. 1, Ebert's, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for ailments common to women. It has been used for such troubles for nearly fifty years, and thousands of women have found relief as did Mrs. Ivey, by taking this splendid medicine.

If you are suffering from irregularity, painful times, nervousness, headache, backache or melancholia, you should at once begin to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is excellent to strengthen the system and help it perform its functions with ease and regularity.

SAVING THE FORESTS

Premier Ferguson's announced plan to inaugurate a new system of forestry conservation and to discontinue timber sales is a step wholly consistent with his pre-election expressions.

The sale of huge timber tracts to American capitalists and others during the past few years has been justly criticised. Ontario's forests are among her most valuable resources. Students of economics realize that the potential value of these forests is far greater than their present worth to the province, in terms of contemporary industries.

Ontario's timber supply is by no means inexhaustible - and the fact that her timber is in great demand among American capitalists and manufacturer emphasizes the imperative need of protection.

With her major industries in an embryonic stage and with the possibility of manufacture of furniture and wood implements on a wholesale scale, by no means remote, Ontario must zealously guard her timber interests. The time is not far distant, when a well preserved timber supply will be the greatest asset of a nation.

Europe learned the lesson of conservation and re-forestation decades ago. Canada will some day be a first-division nation in population as well as area. She will then draw heavily upon her own resources and industries. The flourishing agricultural areas of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will require vast quantities of timber both in the raw state and as finished products. Its wooded provinces such as Ontario and British Columbia are then in a position to supply both industry will open ups of the future nation's most pressing bottlenecks. In addition, Canada will be able to supply other countries of the United Kingdom.

It is to be hoped that Premier Ferguson will be able to do solidify ground his forestry conservation policy that future administrations will find it expedient to perpetuate.

ENCOURAGING FIGURES

The vital statistics contained in the report of the Registrar-General of Ontario for the year, 1921, tell a story of especial interest to the residents of the Province. The effect of modern hygienic methods, sanitation and disease prevention is evidenced in the mortality tables. It is encouraging to note that these tables indicate a marked response to the efforts made to improve health standards. The total of deaths in the Province during the year, 1921, was 34,551, a rate of 11.8 per 1,000 of population, which is the lowest rate since 1898, when it was 11.5. There was a numerical decrease of 2,349 and a decrease of 2.1 in the rate. While in 1920 the cities contributed considerably more deaths than the rural parts of the Province, the situation was reversed in 1921, the cities contributing but 14,907 to the total number of deaths.

The total number of deaths from tuberculosis, 2,085, being a ratio of 71.2 per 100,000 of population is the lowest ever recorded in the province.

In the year, 1912, the total number of deaths from tuberculosis was 2,550. The number was larger each following year, with the exception of 1919 when the total was 2,215. The highest yearly total, 2,559, was reached in 1916. There were 973 deaths from tuberculosis in the cities during 1921, compared to 871 for 1920. The decrease in the death rate in the cities is greater than in other sections of the Province. The reason for this is the fact that public health work is more advanced in the cities than in the towns and rural areas. Its effect in respect of this disease is apparent.

A less marked but, nevertheless, highly encouraging decrease in the mortality figures for other contagious and infectious diseases is noted.

The number of children in the Province who died before completing 12 months of age was 6,763, which is a rate of 91.3 per 1,000 of living births and also the lowest ever recorded in the province. The ratio of infant deaths per 1,000 of living births was 119.3 in 1912. The lowest ratio recorded during the last 10 years was 92.1 in 1917. The highest was 117.6 in 1913.

This decline in the infant mortality rate is directly attributable to public health work and is of paramount significance in view of the fact that infant mortality is a social problem which has reached serious proportions in various leading nations of the world.

It may be reasonably assumed that, with the rapid strides being made in health work and in the promotions of health standards generally, much lower mortality figures can be anticipated.

By The Side Of The Road

The Kingston Standard says:

"Belleville people want Big Bay made the permanent location of L.Y.R.A. events. Naturally, the 'pulling strength' of the sport is the life of the organization."

The writer's philosophy appears to be hardly confined to his construction. We didn't force the L.Y.R.A. to come here, you know. They came, and will undoubtedly come again, because Big Bay is particularly well adapted for regatta races. If Kingston doesn't watch out we'll get her penitentiary and her university.

A reporter, in describing the activities of a prominent Hamilton citizen the other day, said they were a great force. The reporter is now said to be in hiding. The harassed proofreader let it slip by as a great force."

In Toronto recently a young Irishman "not long over," celebrated his birthday in the old-fashioned way. He was arrested and hailed into court on a charge of drunkenness. In the courtroom were two Chinese who had pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and were awaiting sentence. The Irishman was sealed beside them. Presently the magistrate addressed one of the Chinese:

"What is your name?" he asked.

"Ah Sing," was the reply.

"You, Ah Sing," said the judge. The magistrate then asked the name of the other Chinese.

"Ah Ling," said the culprit.

"Ten days," decreed the court. Then, turning to the Irishman, the magistrate said:

"Well, my good man, what is your name?"

"Ah rate," said the Irishman, "give me ten days."

It is a sad reflection that the husbands now dapperly attired in white ducks will soon be tending the furnace.

NOT FOR HIM TO QUOTE.

It is merely a matter of time and ingenuity when some engineer will find a way to tunnel the Bering Strait and enable the New Yorker or San Franciscan to get on a train in his home city and get off that train at Pekin, Petrograd or Paris. The ninth anniversary of the beginning of the World War, brings with it a powerful impetus to the peace movement.

The realization is general that every additional year that goes by, without universal assurance of peace, increases the responsibility of civilization for a duty it owes to itself and to all the individuals who compose it.

A year from now it will be a decade since the Great War began. Make the twelvemonth now with us one of epochal progress in the cause of peace.

A law of this kind is one thing; enforcement quite another. The United States has ample measures proscribing games of chance, but in every city and hamlet losses and winnings over the card table are things of daily and nightly occurrence. Professional gambling goes on despite all interdiction.

HIDDEN TRUTHS.

(Montreal Daily Star)

The truths of life are not floating upon the surface to be obtained by skimming, like cream on milk. They lie low in the hidden depths to be reached by workers—springs of living water into which a man must sink a shaft for himself. The surface sylimer knows that there are depths below his ordinary ken. He tries to forget these depths. Much of his activity is a contrivance to forget. The tragedy is that he often succeeds. He pursues bubbles. His life is full of very empty things. One day he must face the fact of his poverty; for poor, utterly poor, every such man is.

AN INFECTIOUS DISEASE

(Buffalo Express

Somebody in Canada has taken offense because American automobiles touring the country have a habit of decorating themselves with American flags, and the Lincoln County Council promptly passes a resolution of protest. Every day one sees on the streets of Buffalo automobiles, supposedly Canadian, which carry small British flags. Nobody has as yet thought to make a protest, but doubtless somebody will do so. Canadians set the example. There is no disease quite so infectious as damphoolishness, and it is one which can't be quarantined at the international line.

The fifth annual lawn bowling tournament held under the auspices of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club was not brought to a close until after the midnight hour last night, it proved to be the most successful tournament ever held here and many members of the visiting rinks expressed their appreciation of the courtesy extended to them and promised to return next year.

RITCHIE CUP.

FINAL.

The final game for the possession of the Ritchie trophy was close and exciting between rinks skipped by H. Newman of Kingston and Rev. D. C. Ramsay of Belleville. The visiting team, however, played a great game and when the final end came to be played Belleville was leading by 1 shot. In the last end Kingston players placed two shots adjacent to the kittle, which were not dislodged. The game ended 10 to 9 in favor of Kingston. The composition of the two rinks was as follows:

Campbell vs. Gardiner.

The latter defaulted to Campbell owing to having to leave the green before the game was completed.

The winners in the singles were as follows: Liberty, first; Lackie, second; Campbell, third; Allen, fourth.

NOTES.

The Cobourg rink which won the Riggs cup is composed of four players all of whom were overseas during the great war.

Mr. R. J. Wray was the busiest man on the job and the success of the tournament is due largely to his efforts. Last night, or rather, early this morning the ladies in charge of the marquee left a box containing a pie, which was to be given to Mr. Wray. When the box was presented to him it was minus the pie.

A number of visiting bowlers were unable to return home until today.

The ladies in charge of the refreshment tent did well, as the patronage was all that could have been desired.

KINGSTON VANQUISHES TRUNKS IN SESSION HERE BY 9-7 SCORE

Faulty Umpiring Is Alleged to be Important Factor in Win of Tonies.

Belleville lost on the home lot to Kingston yesterday afternoon by a score of 9-7 and eventually dropped any possible chance of winning the second half, which is now virtually conceded to the leading Petes. However, should Kingston win from Belleville and the Cobourgers trim Peterboro, the Tonies and Petes would then be deadlocked. Getting back to yesterday's game here. It was chiefly a case of the Kingston team hitting Williams hard and timely. They launched their salvos in the fourth, fifth and eighth innings for a total of eight runs. The Trunks scored a run in each inning with the exception of the fourth and seventh frames.

Williams struck out nine men but was wild, issuing six passes. The Railroaders gathered eight hits off Gallagher while the visitors nicked the Indian for an even dozen.

The game was marred by one of the worst acts of rowdyism witnessed on the local diamond for some time. It happened in the third inning with Kingston at the bat. With Batstone on second and Sommerville at the bat, the latter lifted a fly to Cherry the wily "Red" attempted to score, but Umpire Theroux called him out. The Queen's player created a protest once while many officials, players and spectators gathered round the arbiter. He is alleged to the manager, Bert Derry of Kingston, shoved Theroux to the ground while Twigg and Batstone called him names.

The police took a hand and Twigg was put out of the game. The field was then cleared and play continued. It was a rare piece of audacity which is very seldom seen in the Central League. Whether Batstone was out or not, there was no place for such ungentlemanly conduct. The umpire called the play as law it.

"Peeney" Mills, pinch hitting for Ross in the ninth, drove a homer to centre with nobody on the sacks. It was a mighty wallop and shows that "Peeney" is still there with his bat when he wants it. It is to be hoped that he will be able to go behind the bat in the play-off, although Stan. Hagerman has done well during Mills' absence.

Besides the home run, Casey, Meagher and Del. Cherry pounded out three-baggers. Pitcher Jack Williams hammered out a double.

Gallagher, with two purloins, led in the base-stealing department. Ross and Teepel followed with one apiece.

The Kingstonians had four errors chalked up against them, while the Trunks had but two, both of these go on to Jack Williams, pitcher.

Meagher, J. K. Williams and Brownscombe garnered two hits each Daley, Batstone, Cherry, Sommerville and Gallagher had a brace apiece.

A small crowd of only five hundred people attended, numerous other attractions taking many people away from town.

The umpiring was nothing to rave about. Theroux was rather leary or balls and strikes while Butler gave several bad decisions on the bases. The umpiring is getting worse as time goes on and it is up to President Coleman to see that capable officials are appointed for next year. Both Kingston and Belleville players suffered on account of several bad "guesses."

The Trunks are playing good enough ball but the pitching is not up to the mark. Williams has as yet failed to show any of his last year's form and must show something better mighty soon if we are to cut any figure in the play-off. Probably he is not being worked enough, but whatever the trouble is, something must be done to remedy it. Oulette will likely pitch in Kingston, also in Peterboro one week from Saturday. Williams will likely work next Wednesday in the first game for the championship of the "Big Four."

The game was of particularly long duration, having lasted over two hours and one-half.

Wicky Ross still leads in the run-scoring department with a total of 37. Meagher and Weir are tied with 19 each. J. K. Williams has 15 and Harry Mills 14. Brownscombe and Casey have each scored 10 runs. J. H. Williams follows with 8. "Big Peeney" has scored the plate 6 times. Oulette has only scored 4 tallies.

EVER SEE THIS ONE?

Take the eight of spades and the nine of clubs—lay them on the top of the deck; take the nine of spades and the eight of clubs and put them on top of the other two cards. Explain to the audience that you will take two cards from the top of the deck and let them see them for just a glance. Do this and then allow someone to place the cards back in the deck. Then, put the cards behind your back for a second and bring them out in front again and take the two top cards and show them.

Of course, they will not be the same ones which you first showed the audience, but many people will believe that the eight of spades and the nine of clubs which they are shown the second time are the nine of spades and eight of clubs which they were really shown.

HAD REASON TO WORRY

"I have been worrying over debts, Doc, and can't sleep. Can't you do something for me?" inquired the local business man.

"Gosh," exclaimed the doctor, "I didn't know you had any debts."

"These are not mine; they are another fellow's debts."

"Then why the heck worry over them?"

"Well, you see, he's in debt to me."

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"Then you understand perfectly," she said sharply, and he looked down with pleasure at the bright, animated countenance at his side.

"Oh yes, a little. And you do, I see."

"Oh, a very little," said Eve, "the hard Latin words are so puzzling."

"But you can learn plenty of history without troubling yourself over the long names; they will come to you imperceptibly."

Meanwhile Daisy, who had been forgotten, had followed on a few yards behind, looking very angry and indignant at the way in which she was neglected while the young work man walking by her side seemed exceedingly happy, but with a dash of the savage in his face.

Both looked straight before them and neither spoke, each going on at first in utter ignorance of the companion's presence.

"I shall have to give you some lessons when I begin making my collection of specimens," said the vicar, after a few more observations.

"Will you?" exclaimed Eve, eagerly; and then, recalling the fact that she had known this stranger but a few minutes, she tried to qualify her remark, failed dismally, and began to feel exceedingly hot and conscious when there was a diversion.

They had been gradually nearing the town, and had reached a spot where the moorland gave place to cultivated soil, when a young man, dressed in rather fast style, and with a cigar in his mouth, suddenly leaped over a stile and started and looked quite awkward on finding himself face to face with this group.

He was a slight fair young fellow, of some four-and-twenty, with rather pale downy whiskers, and a bleak, silky mustache, which was carefully waxed into points. His dress was a slight tweed suit, but to condemn for the somber hue of it and his gray wide-awake hat. He wore a brilliant scarlet tie slipped through a massive gold ring, and wore several rings on his thin effeminate fingers.

The effect upon the party caused by his sudden appearance of this personage was varied.

Daisy, who had resumed the natural tint of her complexion—a peachy one, touched rather warmly by the brown of the sun—became as though he new-comer's tie was reflected to her very temples; the young workman's face grew black as night, and his teeth grated together as his pockets suddenly bulged out indicative of doubled fist, and he stared at the dandy in a menacing way that betokened evil.

As for Eve, she ran forward with a little joyous cry, and took the young man's arm.

"Ah, Dick," she cried, "I didn't expect you. How kind of you to come."

"Didn't come to meet you," said the young man, shortly, as he fixed a glance with some difficulty in his eye o stare at the stranger.

"Then you ought to have come," said Eve, quickly. "Take that stupid class out of your eye, you silly boy," she whispered. Then aloud, "I've been in such trouble, Dick, dear!" He did not know why it was, but this very familiar appellation from those soft red lips seemed to jar on the stranger's ears, and he drew a longer breath than usual.

"I actually got bogged, Dick, and was sinking, when this gentleman came and saved me. Dick, dear, this is our new vicar, Mr. Selwood, this is Mr. Richard Claire of the Foundry."

"Glad to know you, Mr. Claire," said the vicar, holding out his hand.

"How do?" said the new-comer, shortly, and his hand went out in a slow, awkward, unwilling way, retiring afterward from the hearty grasp it received in a very sharp manner, for this effeminate hands, that do not return a honest pressure, fare badly in a manly grasp, especially if they happen to be half covered with unnecessary rings.

"How do? Glad to see you," said the young owner of the Foundry, though it was always more looked upon since his father's death as the property of Mrs. Claire. "Find this rather dull place."

"I don't think I shall," said the vicar, looking at him derisively.

"Very dull place," said the young man, "very. Come, Eve. You'll call, I suppose?"

"Of course I shall," said the vicar, smiling. "I mean to know everybody here."

"Thanks, much," said Mr. Claire, glancing at Daisy, who gave herself an angry twitch, and turned away. He then drew Eve's arm through his own and raising his hat slightly to the vicar, was turning away when his eye lit on the young workman. "Hallo you Tom Poldmore," he cried, "how is it you're not at work?"

"That's my business," growled the man. "I'll tell you that when you ain't got young missus there wi' you, and I won't afore."

Richard Claire looked at the sturdy fellow uneasily, and directed a second glance at Daisy, his vacillating eyes resting for a moment on the pocket-ed double fists before repeating his words shortly—

"Come along, Evey."

"Wait a moment, Dick, dear," she said, disengaging her arm. "How rude you are!" she added in an undertone. "Good day, Mr. Selwood, and thank you very much," she said ingenuously. "Pray come and see us soon. Aunt will be so glad to know you; She was talking about you last night, and wondering what you would be like. Good-bye."

She held out her hand, and the constraint that was in spite of himself creeping over the new vicar was thawed away by the genial, innocent sunshine of the young girl's smile.

Funeral Rites For President

Washington, Aug. 9.—Washington yesterday said farewell to Warren G. Harding. With due solemnity and with the military and civil display befitting his office, the body of the president was carried from the White House to the capitol and placed beneath the dome, on the catafalque of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley.

Shortly before 10 o'clock the broad boulevard was nearly filled and for 1½ hours the throng which pressed again at the steel wire barricades until it seemed as if they would give way, "Silence" was the order of the day.

Meanwhile at the White house, and in the streets leading to it, the representatives of America's army, navy, courts and congress were assembling. There was the shaft and of marching feet, the clatter of instruments, the rumble of artillery wagons—and the sharp words of command. President Coolidge was carried to the start of the procession by a squadron of cavalry.

The caisson was flanked by the honorary pall-bearers, Senator Cummins, president pro tempor of the Senate; Speaker Gillett, cabinet members and twelve senators, and by an honor squad of six generals and six admirals.

Behind came Mrs. Harding, the most pathetic figure of the procession.

The president of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, so suddenly called to high responsibility by the death of his chief, came next in line. Behind him followed Chief Justice Taft, a former president.

A flutter of excitement and then a hush fell over the almost silent throng as the next vehicle passed along. It bore Woodrow Wilson, former president, spared to life, but crushed by the burdens of office as was his successor. Beside him rode his faithful friend and physician, Admiral Cary T. Grayson.

The invocation with which the funeral services opened was delivered by Dr. A. Freeman Anderson, assistant pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church. "Lead Kindly Light," the hymn that Mr. Harding loved in all the steel wire barricades until it seemed as if they would give way. "Silence" was the order of the day.

Higher Scores At Rifle Meet

Spittall, 90th Winnipeg Rifles 32.

Capt. J. C. Vincent, 91st Regiment Hamilton, got a possible 35 at the short 300-yard range in the Governor's match. This gives him out of a possible 70 for the first stage. He is shooting excellent though the wind is a little trick this afternoon and the light varies from time to time.

Would Like To Shout From The House Tops

That is How Mr. Hurndall Feels About Dreco, the Famous Health-builder, That Gave Him the Results He Had Been Seeking for Years.

Mr. Arthur F. Hurnall, a salesman of Long Branch, Ont., gives all the credit to Dreco for his relief from terrible suffering caused by stomach, kidneys and liver that would not function properly. Here is his story, which he says himself he would like to shout from the top of the tallest building in Toronto, so that people might hear and profit thereby.

"My stomach was out of order. After eating, my food seemed to sour and I would double up with cramps. I had so much gas on my stomach that I would gasp for breath. My liver became sluggish and I was very restless, arising in the morning tired out after a night of tossing around, I had no energy or life to do anything. Catarh in my nose also troubled me and caused me much discomfort and embarrassment. My blood was impure and I often had pimples. Constipation kept my system in a poisoned condition that I became so rundown that friends commented on my appearance.

"My case was of several years standing, during which I tried almost everything without results, until I heard about Dreco. Have only used about four bottles, but a big improvement is noticeable. I feel like a new man. I can eat anything and digest it without being troubled, with cramps or sour risings. My system feels clean and I feel and look much healthier. I also sleep like a baby now.

"I am trying to make plain what my troubles were and what Dreco has done for me, for the benefit of other sufferers and only hope that they will give this wonderful medicine an equal opportunity to help them as it helped me. "

Dreco's wond-rful, corrective and tonic properties come from herbs, roots bark and leaves. It acts on the stomach and aids digestion, or uses a sluggish liver, strengthens the kidneys, corrects constipation and improves the blood generally. Why suffer when this reliable medicine is at your elbow?

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

Finds Rich Relics of Cliff Dwellers

Durango, Colo., Aug. 9 (United Press).—The only life-sized idol of the ancient cliff-dwellers of America ever known to have been discovered, was recently found by Lauren Crandall on his ranch, near the Aztec ruins.

Along with the perfectly preserved image were priceless bits of pottery, household implements and farming tools, lying just as they had been left when the cliff-dwellers disappeared from the earth thousands of years ago.

Crandall is said to have refused large sums of money for the baked clay idol and pottery. Bowls unscathed retain the original coloring, delicately traced a numerous fantastic shapes. One piece has a perfectly formed swastika (emblem of good luck) palated in red and black, covering the bottom of the inside of the vessel.

A number of skulls and bones of human beings show that Crandall had penetrated an ancient cliff-dwellers' graveyard. The custom of idol-worshiping races burying their choicest works with the craftsmen may account for his unusually valuable discovery.

Our idea of fun is a telephone girl calling up a friend and being given the wrong number, chortles the Lexington (Ky.) Herald.

A lot of people need an eye service

Who have never given their baby eyes as much as a thought.

In fact if you will give this subject a moment's consideration you will see that it is the folks who have never undergone an examination who really need one.

We promise to make all eyes as nearly as possible normal, and especially to give those who up to now have never submitted to an examination.

CHAOS REIGNS IN GERMANY'S CAPITAL

CORONER'S JURY RECOMMENDS THE WIDENING OF HIGHWAY CULVERTS

NO ONE BLAMED FOR FATALITY

Find Loft Rode on Running Board of Car at Own Risk

TRAGEDY DESCRIBED

Evidence Not Held Indicative of Negligence on Part of Motorists

At 10.50 o'clock last night, the coroner's jury returned their verdict, in the inquest into the death of Frank Loft, who met death in a motor crash on the Trent road, three miles this side of Trenton, on Monday night last.

The jury found that Loft rode on the running-board of the Reynolds car of his own volition and at his own risk and absolved the drivers of both cars from blame. The jury strongly recommended that all bridges and culverts be extended immediately, to the full width of the road, by the Provincial Government, and until such time as they are widened that red lights be placed on them.

Before the jurymen retired to find a verdict, Coroner Dr. W. W. Boyce instructed them that besides finding when, where and by what means Loft met his life, they should also in order to completely fulfil their oath, incorporate a clause in their verdict, which might effect a lessening of accidents on the highways.

"On a provincial highway like the Trent road, where traffic is heavy almost all the time, the traffic bridges are not sufficiently wide to be perfectly safe," commented Coroner Boyce.

This is the verdict which was accordingly returned:

We, the jury, empanelled to inquire into the death of Frank Allan Loft, find that he came to his death on the morning of the 7th of August, 1923, at about 12.30 o'clock, at the Belleville General Hospital from injuries received while riding on the running-board of Reynolds' car at his own risk, on the Provincial Highway, Lot 4, Broken Front, Township of Sidney, County of Hastings.

We attach no blame to the drivers of either car.

We also would strongly recommend that all bridges and culverts be widened to the full width of the road at once by Provincial Government and in the meantime that red lights be placed on all dangerous points.

Dr. Walter B. Crowe, of Trenton, who examined the late Frank Loft at his office about 11 p.m. on Monday, August 6, the first witness at last night's inquest. Loft was brought to the doctor's office by Trenton police. There was a deep cut on the left side of his head, about four inches long, and the scalp was cut free of his bone. There was a large swelling over his right eye, and abrasions on the left shoulder. "He was quite seriously injured, as I called Dr. Reid, and we examined him together," said Dr. Crowe. "We both agreed that there was a concussion of the brain, so we sent for the police in order to have him removed to the hospital. He was unconscious.

I came down with the man in the ambulance, and stayed with him until he died. None of the ribs were fractured, I believe, and certainly there was concussion of the brain."

Loft had been in the hospital ever since, and the Trenton police have that in safe keeping.

Provincial Officer Robert F. Davis first heard of the accident between 11.30 and 12 o'clock when Chief Bain called him to go out and take in the wrecked car with a truck. Later, Officer N. Maker and Davis returned to the scene of the accident and made measurements. (Witness submitted plans of the scene of the accident.)

The distance from the western extremity of the bridge to the blood stains on the centre of the road was 36 feet. There was a heavy track on the north side of the road off the untravelled portion of the road, and on to the culvert. The northern track was on the grass for four feet before it struck the culvert. Twenty-three feet west of the culvert, this track started. The other car was on the south side of the road, at the east end, and there was a long scratch on the concrete wall of the culvert, some 4 feet in length. The scratch might have been caused by the hub cap of a motor car. The Reynolds car was found on the left side of the front end. The mud guard was twisted and the left front hub cap was dented, and the running-board bent, towards the front, half way back. The right mud guard had a cut in it and the springs and axle were broken on the left side, on the front end.

The other car is now in Fulver & Graham's garage, Trenton. The hub cap of the left front wheel on this car is dented, and the running-board towards the rear end is damaged. The rear fender was almost torn off and bent, and the running-board on the left side was turned up, and the body scratched. Just behind where the dent is in the running-board there is a dent in the body, and scratches above, as though something sat had been there. The front room in the Columbia roadster car is 41 inches in width. The bridge is 15 feet, 10 inches wide. The road west of the bridge 18 feet 4 inches wide from grass to grass.

Herbert W. Leavitt of 120 Lingham street, locomotive engineer, next witness, heard the two cars come together when about 20 yards east of the bridge, driving home from Trenton in his car. "Just as Leavitt left the bridge I noticed the length of his car; he met the Columbia car and almost immediately heard the crash. The Columbia would be travelling about 20 or 25 miles per hour. I immediately stopped the car and ran back to the scene, where I found the Ford car against the square cement post at the easterly end of the culvert. The Columbia car was on the west west of the bridge, and in the centre of the road. I and two other men picked up and placed Loft in my car, and I drove him to Dr. Crowe's office at Trenton.

"Doctor followed me all the way from Trenton, and I travelled between 18 and 20 miles per hour."

Leavitt described the scratch on the south side of the concrete wall, about the height of a fender and about four feet long.

New President Decrees Day of Prayer and Mourn-Throughout Land

Harding Carried $52,000 Insurance

United Press Despatch

Marion, Aug. 10—The late President Harding carried $52,000 in life insurance. He began taking out policies when nineteen years old. Fifteen thousand townspeople filed by coffin for a last look. Roads for eighty miles were packed with cars enroute to funeral.

Washington, Aug. 9.—As the body of Warren G. Harding was placed in the vault at Marion, Ohio, this afternoon, the entire nation paid a last tribute of reverence.

From all sections of the country and from foreign countries came messages that the burial hour would be observed in impressive silence everywhere.

In Washington and most other cities street traffic was stopped for five minutes. Telephone and telegraph companies discontinued all service for a few minutes. The electric current was cut off cables under the ocean. Trains on the railroads ran ground to a standstill. Vessels flying the American flag, wherever they were, stopped for five minutes. Business generally closed down entirely.

One of the beautiful thoughts was the sounding of "Taps," the soldiers' good-night, by buglers of the American Legion, whose silver notes filled the air from points of vantage in all cities of the country.

In accordance with the proclamation of President Coolidge setting aside today as a day of prayer and mourning, the churches throughout the country are holding memorial services, many of them virtually at every hour of the day.

New York, Aug. 10.—Publishers of New York evening newspapers at a meeting last night decided to suspend publication today as a tribute to their late President and fellow-publisher who was buried today at Marion, Ohio.

OCCUPANTS OF CAR NOT CHILDREN IN AUTO THEFT CASE

An erroneous report has been circulated to the effect that G. L. Howard, the Deseronto youth, now awaiting trial on two charges, one of theft of car and entering a Deseronto garage, and the other of stealing therefrom a motor car, had the car loaded with children, when he allowed it to a caretaker down the road after he had jumped and fled on foot when seen by the Provincial officers approaching. This is not true. In the car with Howard were two girls and two young men, the youngest of the party being 20 years of age and the oldest 24.

This information was given The Intelligencer on Thursday afternoon by the man who rented Howard as his adopted son. He was willing to supply the ages and names of the occupants of the car, as he felt that the charge would be more serious were the occupants more children.

'Frisco Prepares to Entertain Over 200,000 A.L. Visitors

San Francisco, Aug. 10 (United Press)—Backed by business men and prominent citizens, American Legion members in San Francisco are preparing to entertain 200,000 visitors during the fifth annual national convention of the organization here, October 15 to 18.

The first step that the Legionnaires took to insure the support of all elements in the city in entertaining the convention guests was the appointment of Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, retired, as convention chairman.

General Liggett, who commanded the First Army Corps in France is one of the most popular men in California in the eyes of the doughboy, while his standing with San Francisco is of highest order.

A general convention committee, composed of both legionnaires and business men, who have served on previous convention committees, is arranging details for the reunion of this former army.

Housing arrangements are well under way. The convention committee has enough hotel rooms available to assign one to each state delegation. At previous legion conventions it has been necessary to house many visitors in private homes.

Unusual entertainment facilities will be open for the use of service visitors. Rifle shoots, golf tourneys, swimming meets, baseball, tennis, polo, bowling, boxing, wrestling and track and field and other events are planned.

There will be the customary convention parade in which more than 50,000 marchers are expected to participate.

In addition there will be a huge night procession to illustrate the progress of the various units. By one these heavy weights submitted themselves to the weighing-scales and

POINT ANNE ROW ENDS IN TRUCE

Parties to Affair Pledged to Keep Peace in Future

CASES DISMISSED

Skirmish in Which Mrs. Shymyashym Was Chief Casualty, Graphicly Described

Charged with assault and occasioning actual bodily harm, the case against Joe Kaczmowski, was dismissed in police court Thursday afternoon.

At the conclusion of the trial of Joe Kaczmowski, the wife of one of the Shymyashym family members were bound over to keep the peace for one year, but no fines were imposed, on the assault charges.

The case was an amusing one and the story of the free for all fight which occurred in the Jugo-Slav colony at Point Anne on July 29th in the evening, was an interesting tale. Two witnesses required interpreters, a Polock, known as "Big Frank" acted as interpreter for Dan Tamits, and Mrs. Kathleen Pirska acted as interpreter for her mother, Mary Hirska. The Hirska family are Swedes.

"Big Frank" and Dan Tamits gave pretty straight evidence which was very similar. According to their evidence, Nick Gurniak, one of the defendants grabbed Edmund Shymyashym by the face then punched him twice, when both fell. Ed. hit Nick once also When they fell Ed. was on top and Joe Kaczmowski pulled him offwhile "Big Frank" pulled Nick away. Then while Frank held Nick's hands, and Joe held Ed's hands, the constable fought with the feet, evidently disliking the peculiar position of holding hands. They "hit by the hand," kicked by the foot and as Dan testified excitedly, "kicked by the hand." Kathleen Pirska was sworn that Sam Gurniak did not strike Shymyashym, nor shove her, but all fell over a piece of pipe, and when Sam attempted to help her up, she refused to allow him to do so. She called the Gurniak children names, and chased "rats", volunteered the information, who spoke fair English.

After the fight, when Shymyashym retreated to his house, he reappeared for Act II, carrying a life-size axe, and invited the Gurniak brothers and big Joe over to his house to "play" Fire Axe manufactured in there must be a killing. the appropriate place would be out in the yard and not in the house.

"Yes it mickit spatter up the house," surgested Mr. O'Flynn amid much laughter. Such was the evidence of Mrs. Rosie Lazuk.

Sam Gurniak on the stand stated that he never shoved Mrs. Shymyashym back out of the fight, and she tripped on a flower bed fence and fell backwards. He also denied that he pounded or in any way touched her husband while he fought with his brother Nick Gurniak. Nick Gurniak admitted striking Edmund, but drew attention to the bruises, cuts and scratches to prove that there were two sides to the story.

"Who won the fight?" queried Mr. Payne.

"We both did," was the answer.

All the trouble, which started in the first instance it is believed by Mrs. Shymyashym inferring that Nick Gurniak's children had crooked eyes, legs and feet. The children were in court, and are bright, good looking children, who should make real Canucks some day.

NO SEPARATE ACTION

London, Aug. 10.—The net results of yesterday's Cabinet Council which discussed the terms of Great Britain's reply to France and Germany with regard to German reparations, appears to be that the negotiations between the Allies still are proceeding and that no approach has yet been made to anything like separate action.

In effect it seems to be that Premier Baldwin still is seeking to surmount the difficulties of the situation without safeguarding an open breach with France, and it is supposed Belgium is engaged in trying to find means for accommodation between the divergent views of her Allies.

Paris, Aug. 10.—The Belgian government has decided to take the initiative and directly approach Great Britain and France if the reparations negotiations among the allies show no signs of being resumed after an early date, says a Brussels despatch.

Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar will come to Paris, the correspondent asserts to propose that the reparations debate from Germany, so far as France and Belgium are concerned, be confined to the material damage suffered by those countries, and furthermore that Great Britain cancel the inter-allied debts, ranging from Belgium for her part the amount of money she owes the United States.

In this case, according to the dispatch, the Belgian ministers will suggest that the installed properties be granted to settle the guarantees to be required from Germany, thus coming within the provisions of the Versailles treaty.

Uncle Sam Is To Start Night Airmail Service

Planes, Guided by Powerful Beacons, Will Flash Across the Continent in 28 Hours.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (United Press).—The American transcontinental air mail service will soon be seen streaking through the darkened skies of night, its pathway blazed by powerful beacons of light.

After having worked steadily on plans for more than a year, the Post-office Department intends to inaugurate the night air mail service about the middle of the present month. Air mail experts and aviation specialists have been experimenting in all phases of night flying and are confident of success.

In the opinion of Postmaster General New continuous and regular transcontinental air mail service "will be a milestone in the history of aviation and an era in the progress of transportation, and will put the air mail service on the basis of an independent postal service."

THE NIGHT SCHEDULE

Under the proposed schedule for the service after night flying has been inaugurated, air mail will leave New York City shortly before noon, go to Cleveland; then to Bryan, O., and then to Chicago, arriving there at sundown. From Chicago, another pilot will take the mail and fly about 1,000 miles, one-third of the trip across the continent, in the dead of the night.

Leaving Chicago, this pilot will turn southwest to Iowa City, thence go to Omaha, on to North Platte, and into Cheyenne at dawn. A relief pilot then will start from Cheyenne and head for Rawlins, Wyoming, thence to Rock, Wyoming, then southwest to Salt Lake City, and from there will proceed straight for the Pacific Coast, passing over Elko and Reno, Nevada, and landing in San Francisco as the street lamps begin to glow.

Thus will be marked another great stage in the development of the post. Each plane of the night air mail service also will be equipped with being "stalled" or "stood inside." When the clouds are low and heavy and the pilot is forced to fly at a low altitude, flashing signals, similar to traffic guards on city streets, but whose lights will be directed towards the skies, will be located every three miles along the air mail route. On a clear night a pilot 7,000 feet up will see a narrow line of light stretching along the miles over the level prairies.

"Those upon the air mail," will cry descendants of this American pioneer who has hailed the stage coach mail and then the steaming, glistening locomotive, "no transportation," said Director Eggs of the air mail service of the postoffice department, in the United Press, "is successful unless it can be operated day and night, and through wind, rain, sleet or sleet."

"The night flights of the postal planes cannot wait upon the will of the elements like boats take conditions as they find them. Almost one-third of the day flying is made through rain, hail or fog, and it is probable that the night flyer will have to take the same conditions."

Operation of the day air mail service during the fiscal year 1922 was 90.73 per cent, perfect, the highest efficiency attained since the establishment of the service. During that period the air mail covered 1,500,000 miles.

STEADY PAYMENT OF DIVIDENDS BY POWER COMPANIES

Degrees Of Stability And Safety For Investors Marked Feature Of Security Market. Distinguishing Features in Ottawa and Hull Power Company Issues.

Enterprises such as power Companies which have unfailingly paid shareholders their dividends regularly are bound to attract the attention of investors so that undertakings of a promising character are bound to attain popularity.

Looking over the long list of companies engaged in the production and distribution of water power, there is found an exceptional degree of stability and safety in the prompt payment of interest charges and dividends. This has resulted in one of the most effective and satisfactory distributions of securities of that class of securities to be found in any country.

This factor has greatly encouraged the creation of new enterprises and has made Canada one of the largest consumers per capita of power in the world. A plentiful and cheap supply of power has brought many industries into Canada than any other single factor in the economic situation.

The market for power securities has expanded at such a rate that very few discerning investors have failed to add some of the new offerings to their already large holdings as there seem on the market. This is one of the most encouraging situations to be found in Canada at the present moment from the fact that the use of power is a permanency which goes on steadily no matter what minor fluctuations or changes there may be in the realm of industry.

Once established a power company is maintained at the minimum of operating cost while it is confronted by no such inventory problems as have faced many industries in the past few years. This is why such a development as the extension by a new company of the Ottawa and Hull Power Company, Limited, which is now offering as issue reserved as being in one of the most desirable classes in which the public could invest their money.

Music & Drama

MAY McAVOY HAS APPEALING STORY IN "TOP OF NEW YORK"

There's a bit of everything for everybody in "The Top of New York," the May McAvoy Paramount feature which opened at Griffin's theatre last evening.

There is wonderful "kid" appeal in the linge toy shop with its thousands of toys and the appearance of May McAvoy as an animated doll, to the delight of the Christmas shoppers.

There are thrills in the scenes where the heroine is saved from committing suicide—and a rousing fight between Edward Cecil and Walter McGrail.

There is comedy relief by the Irish characters impersonated by Carrie Clark Ward and Arthur Hoyt.

There's real pathos and drama revolving about the Christmas rush in the toy department and the home experiences of the little sales girl who makes such a plucky fight for the happiness of her crippled brother.

"The Top of New York" is an entertaining story which splendidly fits the winning human appeal of May McAvoy whom playgoers remember for her gripping work as "Grisel" in "Sentimental Tommy." The star does a convincing bit of work and she is supported by an excellent cast including Walter McGrail, Madame Marstini, Charles Bennett, Edward Cecil, Pat Moore, Carrie Clark Ward, Arthur Hoyt, Mary Jane Irving.

Credit for the excellent direction belongs to the late William D. Taylor, whose final production it is. This is the second picture starring Miss McAvoy which Mr. Taylor directed, the first being "Morals," which made an instantaneous success.

Pathe News, William Desmond in "The Phantom Fortune" serial, and a good Torchy comedy were also exhibited.

RAWLINSON HAS ACTIONFUL STORY IN "FOOLS AND RICHES"

Wealthy fathers who are worried in regard to their children's ability to fit into the places of industrial prominence, in which they have become established, and to handle the fortunes which they must some day leave, may find a solution to their worries in "Fools and Riches," the Universal photoplay starring Herbert Rawlinson, which had its first local showing at the Regent Theatre yesterday.

It is the story of a spendthrift son of a railroad president whose knowledge of the industry that had built up his father's wealth di-l not extend beyond his ability to order a perfect dinner in a dining car.

The old railroad builder i.-l-ed that the wisest course open to his son if he was ever to make a man of his son was to fix his inheritance so that his son would not be at liberty to throw it away when he no longer was under the restraining hand of his father.

A dual legacy was arranged with his lawyer and shortly afterwards the old man died. The will is read and the youth learns that the vast fortune that he thought he was due to receive in reality amounts to only a fraction of his dreams. Events start happening then and the hero finds out who his real friends are.

An interesting Kinogram and two good comedies complete a bill of good screen entertainment.

EXCITEMENT IN COURT.

With that thought in mind we invite you to inspect our display. Be assured you pay just here your Fountain Pen worries if you have any.

The size of the pen must suit you. It must write when you want it to, at other times keep the ink to itself.

It must have years of service built into it. It must be a true writer and not cost too much.

August Styles at the Resorts

By HEDDA HOTT

Fashion Editor of the United Press

(Written for the United Press)

New York, Aug. 10 (United Press).—The revival of the yoke brings an interesting decoration to the new frock. Narrow yokes of beige colored georgette or lace extend to the armholes of the frock and are there met by tiny sleeves of the same material. While Irish lace, dyed in silver beige or grey tones, predominates on most of th yoke-trimmed frocks, pin-tucked georgette, organdy and chiffon are also popular.

Maize and green—a green slightly more vivid than Nile green—is being used extensively for silk undergarments this summer. Lacey effects are newer than the plain pecoted and hemstitched effects.

Monograms, used as a dress or blouse decoration, are using the initials of the wearer rather than the cryptic letters introduced by the manufacturers as the well dressed woman does not care for the monogram monogram.

Many of the coiffures seen about this nearby summer resorts show a band of black velvet across the forehead which tucks under the hair at the sides. Some of the younger, bobbed-haired girls wear little rosettes of narrow velvet just back of the ears, tying the ribbon band the appearance of ending there. Parting the hair in the middle from the forehead to the nape of the neck and curling it in buns over the ears is also popular with the younger set.

Yellow remains the most popular sport color of the season. Sweaters, blouses and summery frocks have accompanying hats of the same shade of yellow. Many large yellow horsehair hats are seen at afternoon affairs at the seaside, trimmed in black velvet ribbon and flowers of shades ranging from light yellow to orange.

The Parisian idea of winding the loose head bandeau about the arm is being taken up by many of the New York women. Tiny pearl chains were first used in this manner, winding about the arm as many as ten or twelve times. Larger beads of vivid colors are now being used in this way. Amber, cornelian, jade and crystal are popular.

Ninety-eight Out of Every Hundred Women who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for ailments peculiar to their sex, have been benefitted by it. What a marvellous record for any medicine to hold! Over 50,000 women replied to a questionnaire recently sent out by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., of Lynn, Mass., 98 per cent. of whom definitely stated that they had been benefitted or restored to health by this old-fashioned root and herb medicine. This is a most wonderful record for efficiency, and should induce every woman who sogers from any ailment peculiar to her sex to give it a fair trial.

SAFETY HINTS FOR DRIVERS

Safety lessons for the Auto Driver. Prepared by, the National Safety Council; issued by the Ontario Safety League.

NO. 7—ENGINE TROUBLES.

Defects in the power plant are seldom contributing causes of accidents but there are a number of things about the power plant that the average driver should know.

To locate a "dead" cylinder run the engine and open the cylinder pet cocks, one at a time. If the cylinder is dead, the gases will not be exploded in the cylinder and there will be no loud report heard coming from the open pet cock. If there are no cylinder pet cocks, touch the end of a screw driver (one with an electrically insulated handle) to the cylinder casting and the side of the screw driver to the top of a spark plug. A sparking between screw driver and the engine casting at any cylinder does not diminish the speed of the running motor (determined by careful listening) that cylinder is the one which is dead.

Back firing is caused by:—

1 A mixture too lean in gasoline.
2 No gasoline or defect in gasoline system.
3 Engine inlet valve not seating properly.
4 Water in carburetor (due to condensation in gasoline tank)
5 Water in gasoline (due to condensation in gasoline tank)
6 Pocket of spark plug too close or too far apart.
7 Improper timing of electric spark.
8 Cold engine.

Improper mixture of gasoline and air.
10 Lack of gasoline.
11 Excessive corrosin on battery terminals.
12 Ignition switch not on.

Engine may miss because of:—

1 Improper adjustment of carburetor
2 Broken porcelain or improper adjustment of spark plug points.
3 Carbonized spark plugs.
4 Too much carbon in engine or in valves
5 Cold engine (only at starting)
6 Defect in ignition circuit
7 Improper adjustment of valves
8 Weak compression (due to leaky valves or piston rings, scored cylinders, or loose spark plugs valve caps, or priming cups.

Engine may lack power because of:—

1 Carbonized engine or valves
2 Improper adjustment of valves
3 Improper timing
4 Insufficient lubrication.
5 Overheated engine
6 Defect in ignition circuit
7 Dragging brakes
8 Air leakage in connections between carburetor, manifold or cylinder blocks.
9 Excessive friction in transmission or digerential.

10 Lack of traction (caused by wet roads or roads with loose surface.
11 Weak compression.

Fine For Chest Colds Too and Is Cheaply Made at Home

When you can make in two minutes a word beating remedy that acts directly on the membranes and often overnight cashes troublesome coughs and even hard chest colds disappear, why trifle with things that will probably disappoint?

A tickling and sensation and also soreness of the mucous membranes and you will feel fine in a short time.

Just get one ounce of Parmint (double strength) add to it a little sugar and enough hot water to make a half pint and you've got an impressive remedy better than you can buy ready mixed.

Its soothing, healing action on the membrane is the reason so many people use it for Catarrh and nasal colds.

A HIGH KICK.

Kick of Grimsby was before Magistrate Jelfs this morning for having imbibed strong waters with such a "kick" in them he was asked to "kick" with $20 this morning, though he tried to explain to the court that he was not drunk.—Hamilton Herald.

Ben Jiru. Kick "kicked up" a row when Ross had to "kick in."

Mr. Ridgwood want to prison for two years instead of Mr. Justice Bridgeport. Oh, well, he should be well qualified for marital duties when he is discharged. His will be trained to remain silent and to stay in at night. That's worth waiting for, even 18 years if necessary.

The ancient Egyptians were far wiser in many ways than they are generally considered to have been. For instance, here is an Egyptian marriage drawn up by the husband, which dates from 200 B. C.

"Since God willeth that we should unite one with the other in righteous wedlock, after the manner of every free man every wise woman, therefore I have given these four dollars in gold as a bridal-gift, that thou mayest come and enter my house as a free woman. And for my part I will not neglect thee more than as it were my own body. Neither shall I be able to put thee forth without a cause, having legal ground. But should I wish to put thee forth I will pay 17 dollars for the matter."

It will be noted that it costs more to put rid of a wife than to acquire one, even as in the case today.

From the Kingston Standard:—

"Mrs. Schryver, who has lived on party refreshments all her life is beginning to look like a lettuce sandwich."

We don't know why a Belleville woman could be likened to a lettuce sandwich unless it became because they have plenty of dressing. That's more than can be said of a great many Kingston women we have seen.

John Cosgrave, the dentonite murderer who escaped from the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, and was captured in an oat field, must have been short the need of harvesters.

Why is it that some women will buy $400 coats and $200 hats and scorn and pay $400 for a fur coat?

Maybe those men were merely trying to pronounce Mrs. Schryver-skyna's name when she thought they were sneezing.

ment-owned or privately owned, traversing virgin or partially developed territory, to stimulate settlement, and this can only be encompassed by holding tillable lands at prohibitive prices. Surely, railway heads recognize this as an economically unsound policy.

Yet there are other landowners in the west who are eminently qualified for classification as speculators. The activities of these men are not heralded to the world as are the movements of railway organizations, or other great industries, and the public generally is unfamiliar with their practices.

These speculators are not pressed for money and find it more profitable to maintain high sale prices than to encourage development by offering their holdings at reasonable figures. They get far quicker action on their money.

Even when a fairly well advanced stage of development is reached, this class of speculators does not cease to be a menace. There are numerous instances in the States wherein large areas of rich farm lands, once cultivated by prosperous farmers, are now in the hands of speculators, who evidence only a vicarious financial interest in the properties. This is due to the fact that they acquired the lands at bargain prices by taking advantage of the adversities which beset the former owners. Today in the Dakotas, Montana, Iowa, Kansas and other central and western states, one can see mile after mile of fertile farms, slowly operated by incompetent hands and equipped with ramshackle buildings.

This economic cancer, which has already begun to wield its malignant influence in the Canadian West, will become a chronic affliction in Canada unless vigorously treated.

It is difficult, however, to connect this phenomenon with the specific of

LAND SPECULATORS

Undoubtedly, there is food for thought in the article of the Montreal Star's "Whisper of Death" series, published under date of August 7, last. While the Star veils its charges against the Canadian National Railways in ambiguous phraseology and fails to introduce to its readers the economic features which figured in the transfers of Western Canadian lands to the Canadian National and the C. N. R., it strikes a responsive chord in its criticism of the practice of holding large areas for speculation.

It should be understood, however, that there was some justification for permitting the railways to acquire large holdings. As the Star magnanimously points out, the railways have been a vital factors in the development of Canada and their transcontinental lines have been constructed at enormous expense. If railways, either govern-annexation. They have the same troubles in a more aggravated degree in the States and have not succeeded in overcoming them. Certainly the annexation of Canada by the United States would not prove beneficial to the one nor the other. On the contrary, it would simply be a case of carrying coals to Newcastle.

PRESS OPINIONS

A MATTER OF BUSINESS

Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

Arguments for the purchase of the Bridgeport electric railway were capably presented in the recent letter from W. V. Dilley. Lower capitalization, lower operation costs and increased patronage as a result of an improved service are the chief reasons why municipal control of this suburban line in connection with the Kitchener-Waterloo line is urged to bring substantial profits, thus supplying more than enough funds for the sinking fund of the debenture debt created through the purchase.

There is another point worth considering, namely that it would be desirable to build another line to Bridgeport along Lancaster street or anywhere else without spending much more money than is required for the purchase and re-equipment of the present line.

The best way to look at the whole proposition is to find out what a private corporation would do if it were offered the same opportunity as is now presented to the people of Kitchener as owners of the 3-4 W line, if purchase and extension of the service would pay a private company, it would be of equal service to the present line owned by the people. What benefits private ownership must in equal measure be of benefit to public ownership.

In reaching their decision for or against the bylaw the ratepayers will have to be governed by strict business considerations. Nothing else counts.

MISERY LIKES COMPANY

(London Express)

London's parks have become a quaint study in democracy during these tropical days. The sun is a level lar. Under its scorching influence the banker on the way to the office sits down on a sheltered bench in the park and wonders if finance is as important as men think. He is joined by a vagrant who pulls his hat over his eyes and dreams of far-off islands where there is never any work and life is one glorious loaf. So they sit, strange by indifferent to each other, and feeling no incongruity in their situation. They are the new democracy of the sun.

WAR NOT BANISHED

(Indianapolis News

Some progress has been made on the road of permanent peace, it is believed, especially through the treaties negotiated at the Washington Conference, which have been finally ratified by all the contracting parties. The League of Nations also has received credit for adjusting several threatening situations in Europe.

Yet, all in all, the high hopes for the banishment of war forever, so generally held at the end of the world war, are still to be realized.

CONSERVING RESOURCES

(Montreal Le Canada)

Canada must unquestionably look to the protection of her own industries, of which pulp and paper is one of the most important. She should allow bear strictly in mind that the exportation of pulp-wood means the felling of her forests. These are the rulp-Canadian and all-important reasons why the government has seen fit to protect our forest wealth.

NOSE ON THE GRINDSTONE

(Charleston News)

Keeping the nose to the grindstone shuts off some of the finest views possible on this earth. Who can see the better part of life when he is forced to watch unceasingly its more exacting demands?

WASTE SYMPATHY

(Los Angeles Times)

Technicality and sentimentality are the chief foes of law and order, and the assassin knows when he commits his crime that these two assets will be of tremendous value in saving him from the gallows, and in many cases from long confinement in prison. Also modern psychoanalysis is blamed for raising in the minds of the people the idea that the criminal is mentally deficient and therefore irresponsible, and as a result he is not infrequently let loose on the community to commit further crimes.

THE MODERN JUGGERNAUT

(Des Moines Capital)

The records show that every year 15,000 people in America are killed in automobile accidents. This statement is not shocking, because the people are not all killed at one day; are shocking because they were not killed in battle.

The Miscatine Journal says that there are fourteen thousand people in Augusta, Me., one of the oldest towns in America. If that city were destroyed by an earthquake the world would be shocked. But every year automobile accidents destroy enough people to make up the City of Augusta in the solid old State of Maine.

Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador at Washington, said at a recent dinner:

"Young men rise easily from the ranks here in America because the American spirit is so democratic. In Europe, now it is different. That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

SUMMER DIARRHOEA AND DYSENTRY.

It is sometimes difficult to find out just what has started the trouble. The bowels have been so active that you feel reasonably sure that whatever caused the irritation is now safely out of the body.

If may have passed out and many physicians feel that once the severe cramps stop, that simple drinking of the bowel with an enema is sufficient. However most physicians take no chances and proceed to give a good dose of our very old friend Castor Oil immediately. Castor Oil has been used for many many years for this particular ailment and nothing has ever superseded it. Taken in peppermint water it is not difficult to take.

If the vomiting is severe, castor oil often cannot be taken unless in cap sule form.

The next step is then to rest the bowel. This is obtained by abstaining from food entirely for twenty-four to forty-eight hours. In severe cases with intense pain physicians find it necessary to use paregoric—a teaspoonful in hot water.

The next step is in the matter of taking food again because you must eat. This is one time when the concentrated or constipating foods must be used. Therefore you start off with soft boiled eggs, scraped beef, beef juice, roast chicken, rice and macaroni are useful. Vegetables are apt to irritate on account of the "roughage" and must be avoided a few days. Like wise fruits must be avoided on account of their laxative effect.

So the idea then, is to rid the intestine of the irritating material, then rest the bowel, and come back to your regular food gradually.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

CRIQUI AND WILDE SHOW THEIR GAMENESS

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 8.—Because there were a few, a very few, examples to prove the point, it has been a generally accepted opinion in the United States for a good many years that gameness was not one of the qualities of European fighters.

Through a hard-boiled idea that a fighter is a "dog" who resigns under punishment, Americans after scanning the records of "retirements" in the records of European fighters, got the idea that there wasn't a real fighting heart on the other side.

When Carpentier was being steamed up as a candidate for the heavyweight championship three years ago, the skeptics pointed out: "He quit every time he had a hard fight".

When a casual mention was made of Joe Beckett and the chances of the British heavyweight champion against Dempsey, scoffs came back and retorts followed that he was the world's dirtiest champion, without an argument.

There may be timid hearts among the European boxers. There have been. But because there are faint-hearted ones among the American fighters, no figure is available to back up the point that the ratio of back-steppers in the European ring is no greater than it is on this side.

There are two good examples to prove the point that in at least two cases America has no sole right to game fighting hearts.

No gamer, or more stout hearted and willing fighters than Jimmy Wilde and Georges Criqui have ever drawn on gloves.

Whatever suspicion might have been directed at Wilde, the former flyweight champion, were not based on anything that could be found on his record, but upon the general assumption that he was British and could not stand the gaff.

Wilde was the last of the world's champions that England owned, and since he was held up, before his fight with Villa as the representative of the whole English clan, it only follows that he should have been considered the same after the fight and that he proved himself about the gamest little fellow that ever was beaten up and out of a title.

Punched dizzy by Pancho Villa, floundering around the ring out of his head, he was carried on only by the urge of a game heart.

Wilde was praised as much for his gameness in defeat as Villa was for his part in victory.

Boxing is a cold-hearted sport. There are limits to sentiment in the ring and out of the ring, and the boundaries are drawn very close. It is the duty of a fighter to think of himself first always and it is a distaste of good judgment on the part of a writer to leave the heart out of his copy even when it hurts.

No unkinder thing was ever said than remarks made before the Criqui-Dundee fight, that the Frenchman was not game. Criqui had proved by the kind of a heart beats under his breast under the most severe test that has even been imposed on a fighter. He kept his bayonet in his hand in a trench at Verdun when a shell had shot away his jaw.

But the quality of gameness varies under different conditions. A football player, hardened to brutal punishment on the gridiron, might falter in the ring. The stoutest heart in the ring might waver in a pitching box, with the bases filled and one run needed to beat him.

So what Criqui did at the front was passed over and he was judged by a few entries made years ago in his ring record that indicated he wasn't there when the going was rough.

Even Johnny Dundee, who turned literary a few days before the fight and voiced his views, printed in a New York newspaper, recounted the reasons for which he felt sure of winning the championship, and among several he mentioned that his opponent was not game.

After Criqui had stood up for fifteen rounds under punishment that was almost agonizing to the spectators; after he had kept plodding on, his eyes partially closed, his mouth gushing a torrent of crimson, his lips cut and swollen and his shattered jaw sagging; Criqui smiled a twisted smile and went through it to lose his title, Dundee remarked:

"I would give anything to take back what I said about his gameness."

Dundee need worry little. When he said, what critics had said and what the record book shows are all now obliterated by the gallant, dying stand made by that heroic little Frenchman.

In the future, when Americans want to question the gameness of European fighters, it is too bad that every fan in the country could not have a picture of that game Frenchman, battered and bleeding, but swinging wildly in the fifteenth round in a desperate effort to win and contrast it with that huge bulk of a Jess Willard, a former heavyweight champion, squatting on his huge haunches with one hand on the ropes and taking, almost with a sigh of satisfaction, the referee's count of ten over him.

U. S. ASKED TO SEND SPEAKER ON OPIUM TRAFFIC TO L. OF N.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, (By mail to United Press). —When the fourth annual assembly of the League of Nations which convenes at Geneva, September 3, takes up the question of the control of the opium, morphine and cocaine traffic one of the surprises may be an address before the assembly, for the first time, of a representative of the United States.

During the past year the United States has not only consented to cooperate with the league in its worldwide campaign against the harmful drugs traffic, but has actually created the leadership. To maintain this leadership, however, it is generally conceded that it will be necessary for the United States to have a representative present at the fourth assembly.

While this would create an entirely new precedent for the League, namely, the right of a government which is not a member of the league to have a speaker present on the floor of the assembly, Leaguers declare their willingness to establish such a precedent.

The question has also been unofficially broached to the American government and it is generally believed that a spokesman will be named.

Porter or Brent

The choice will unquestionably fall either on Congressman Porter, chairman of the commission on foreign affairs of the house of representatives, or on Bishop Brent.

Both of these men were members of the delegation which the American government sent the past summer to Geneva to collaborate with the league's advisory commission on the opium traffic. Congressman Porter has already expressed a willingness to present the American viewpoint on the opium traffic to the league assembly.

During the May and June meeting of the league's advisory commission on the opium traffic, the American delegation succeeded in securing the adoption by the commission of what is known as the American program. This program is embodied in the United States in the Porter house resolution and stipulates that control of the harmful drugs traffic can only be attained by limiting the world's production, both of the raw materials such as poppies and coca leaves, as well as the manufactured derivatives to the world's actual medical and scientific needs.

This program after being adopted by the league's advisory commission, was recommended by the latter to the league council for approval. The council, however, meanic decided to circularize it to all the members of the league, they to send to the Secretariat assembly delegates fully instructed.

Unless the United States has a speaker present at the assembly, both to present and defend the American program, she will be in the embarrassing position either of having to leave this defense to some other country like England, or take the risk of defeat at the hands of such countries as India and Holland, which are not keen about limiting the production of poppies and coca leaves.

DERBY CLUB TOO FAST FOR PRINTERS' SQUAD

The Derby Club proved too fast for the Printers in last night's soft-ball game, the fray going down to a 13-2 count. The winners scored four in the first and six in the second. After that the good baseball Handwick pulled off two or three pretty catches in the field. Bill Scott ran to the left field and pulled one down in nice style. The Derby Club are a lusty aggregation and will make a big bid for the honors in the soft-ball league. Weir and Latchford combine to make a good battery. Attorney Tuttle and Stan Barrett umpired. Tuttle's order:

Printers—Scott, r.f.; Hoopes, lb.; L. Mason, c.; Cooke, s.s.; Wylie, c.f.; Hardwick, l.f.; Curry, s.s.; McLeod, 3b.; Barlow, 3b.; R. Scott.

Derby Club—Wardauch, Dennis, Marsakas, Laicford, Weir, Post, Symons, Herily, Harden.

LONG FRONT TEETH

A chap consulted a physician one day complaining of indigestion and severe gastric attacks. The physician thought he had the trouble diagnosed at the outset but went over him carefully just the same.

Finally he said, "Well, all your trouble is in your teeth."

"My teeth," said the patient. The dentist and all my friends say I have excellent teeth.

"Well so you have," said the physician, "but just take a look at them in the mirror."

The patient did so, and the mirror reflected good teeth of unusual length in front.

"Now look at the teeth on the sides," said the physician.

Taking an instrument of ordinary thickness he was able to push it between the two rows of teeth on either side because they were more than a width of an inch apart.

Thus when that chap was chewing his food in the ordinary way it was not being properly nor properly because the front teeth were so long they prevented the side teeth from coming together properly, and food entered the stomach in an unfit condition.

Those large teeth at the sides are often called grinders, because that is really their function. They grind the food into very small particles, and thus enable the saliva or digestive juice in the mouth to mix with every part of the food.

So although he had good teeth they were not doing the work for him owing, as I said, to the fact that the long teeth in front prevented the grinders of the upper jaw from meeting the lower ones.

Food unready for the stomach caused the gas distension and pain. The physician referred him to his dentist to see whether the front teeth could be ground down sufficiently to allow the grinders to meet one another. His only alternative was to give a few months chews to every bite of food and eat and get the food ground up real fine.

So, after you have all your teeth fixed up, it might be just as well to see whether your grinding teeth really grind upon one another. If they don't you must necessarily chew your food for a little longer period. It's a good habit anyway.

THE STYLE.

Oh, how I love that Panama
I bought some years ago.
I spoke it into some new shape
It ne'er before did know.
And then it is in verse again.
Quite swell and up to date.
It is the best investment that
I've chanced to make, of late.
This year I jumped on it a lot,
And beat it up a pr'ze,
I let a car run over it,
And lo—it's right in style. —

"Honesty, once pawned, is never redeemed."

R. D. Waugh, Canadian representative on the Sear commission, resigned that post; and will become of the Manitoba liquor commission.

Canning Instructions

To the fruit add syrup according to instructions in the syrup recipes.

Put on a new rubber and the glass top, but only partly seal the jar. Sterilize by putting the jars into a boiler with false bottom. The water in the boiler should be cold and at least half way up the outside of the jars. The jars upright and partially filled with water. Take time after the water starts to boil.

Remove from boiler at end of the required time, and seal the jars immediately by tightening the covers. The cover must be perfectly tight and must not be opened until needed for use. Invert to test for leaks.

When cool, wash jars, label and date. Store in a dark, cool, dry place or wrap each jar in paper to prevent bleaching.

THE SYRUP TABLE

For sweet fruits—3 cups sugar to 5 pints water.

For acid fruits and fruit—4 cups sugar to 5 pints water.

For very acid fruits—4 cups sugar to 5 pint water.

For very acid fruits—1 cups sugar to 5 pint water.

The amount of sugar used will also depend on individual taste, but too much sugar spoils the natural flavour of the fruit.

In all cases boil the sugar and water together for 5 minutes, and strain if not sweet or clear.

For quart jars of large fruit about 1 pint of syrup is required. For quart jars of small fruit about ½ pint.

FRUITS

CHERRIES—The large black and sweet white cherries are usually packed unpitted while the reverse is true of the sour cherries. The sour cherries present a better appearance, and many people like the distinctive flavour which the retained pit gives to the product. When cherries are canned whole they should be blanched in hot water at about 180 degrees Fahrenheit for twenty or thirty seconds. This will slightly soften the fruit and prevent splitting. Then drop cherries into a cool syrup and they will keep considerably better than being cold into jars. For sour cherries use a syrup made from two cups of sugar to one pint of water, and for sweet cherries use a syrup made from two cups of sugar and two pints of water. Sterilize cherries in boiling water 15 minutes.

CHERRY MOCK OLIVES—Select red wash firm, ripe cherries, pack unpitted and with stems attached in sterilized jars, spread generous layer of layer by layer, cover with weak cold vinegar (one teaspoon salt, one cup water, one cup vinegar) and seal using sterilized rubbers and lids.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"Goodbye," he said cheerily, and his face lit up with pleasure.) "I shall call very soon, and we will have a talk."

"Oh no," said Eve, as her arm slid into his elbow. "Come, Daisy, you are coming up to the house."

"No, thank you miss; I must go home now."

As she spoke she hurried forward, tripped over the tin first and was gone.

A minute later and Eve had lightly touched Richard Glaire's arm and clinched the title to her name, leaving the vicar to follow slowly, forgetful of the presence of the young workman, Pedmore.

He was brought back from his dreamy musings on the relation existing between the young fellow who had just gone and the sweet innocent girl who was his companion, by a rough gruff voice behind him, and turning sharply, there stood Tom Podmore, with the veins in his forehead swelling, and his face black with rage.

Chapter II

TOM PODMORE'S GRIEVANCE.

"Look here, parson," cried the young workman, in a voice husky with passion—"what do he mean by dashed his cap upon the ground and began to roll up his sleeves, display his great brawny arms and show his muscle, for a young Hercules. "Look here, parson. You're a stranger here, and I'm a native. I've been a native that is, and I shall kill him afore I've done."

"Hush, man, hush!" cried the young vicar.

"I don't keer, I shall. Why ain't I at work, and he's at work instead? Why I do for him; wish that my hammer may come on my head if I do. Look here, parson, I've went on, catching the other's arm hard in a grasp of iron, "that's his last, this time. I'll give you fair warning. As Polly; God bless her for a perfect angel, and too good for him. He's engaged to her, he is—engaged to be married, and he's got thousands and thousands of his own, and his Foundry, and Squires is his uncle, and he ain't satisfied. No, no; I ain't done yet. Look here, sir! all that comes for any man. I'll let him know what's right, and what ain't. What call's he got to come between me and Polly?"

He jerked one fist in the direction taken by Daisy, and went on.

"Those two all right between us before he steps in with his London dandy air, and his short coat hair, and his clothes, for Joe Banks was willing; and as for Missus Banks, why, bless her, she's always been like a mother to us, for she's a widder, and she's got ten ton, all hard earnings, and we was took to be married, and they he comes between us and turns the girl's head. You mind me, I'm a man I'd cure up the hill-side there, if there is all over, after she'd buffed me like knocking, and I can't say much. I say, warn't it enough to make any man cool up rough?"

It was, indeed, Podmore, and the vicar, kindly.

"But I won't stand it, that I won't," roared the young man, like as angry bull. "A man's a man, even if he is a master. I'll fight fair; but if I don't break every bone in his dashed skin, my name ain't Tom Podmore."

This burst over, he resumed his cap and snatched down his sleeves, looking half ashamed of his effusion in the presence of a stranger, and he stirred away a little as the vicar laid his hand upon his arm.

"Look here, Podmore," he said, kindly; when I was first in school they used to give me for a copy to write, 'Do nothing rashly.' Don't you do anything rashly, my friend, because things done on haste are repented of at leisure. I have compassion for you, for a friend, I hope, to everybody, and as you were the first man I met in Dumford, I shall be very sorry as one of the first to have a call upon me."

"Thanky, sir, thanky kindly," said Podmore, in a quieter tone, "I don't know how it is, but you've got a kind of way with you that gets over a fellow."

"She seems a nice, pretty, well-behaved girl, that Daisy Banks," said the vicar.

"There fan't a better nor a truer-hearted girl, nor a prettier nowhere for twenty miles round," cried the young fellow, flushing up with a lover's pride. "Why, look at her, side by side with Miss Eve, that's a born lady. Why, Miss Eve's that delicate and refined, that I sometimes think she ain't no comparison 'tween 'em. My Daisy, as was," he added, sorrowfully, "Somebody come over and her like it late, and it's all over now."

The great strong fellow turned his back, and putting one hand upon his stile, his broad shoulders gave a heave or two.

"I shan't take on about it," he said, roughly, as he turned round with a sharp, defiant air of restrained, "I can't do it, you see, that's been filled by a woman. Say, parson—hundred and sixty pounds 'll buy a sight of gilts of sie. Don't you take no heed of what I said."

No was turning away, but a strong hand was upon his shoulder.

"Look here, Podmore," said the vicar, firmly, "you said something about fools just now. You are not a fool, and you know it. You leave the sin and folly to the fools—and go back and get to work as hard, or harder, than you ever worked before. I shall see you again soon, perhaps bowl to you in the cricket field. As for your affairs, you leave them to me. Do you know why Englishmen make the best soldiers?"

Consider the Beach Lily!

By HEDDA HOTT

(Fashion Editor of the United Press)

(Writer for the United Press)

New York, N. Y., Aug. 9.—(United Press)—Consider the lily of the beach

She toils not—neither does she swim.

At every beach we find them—these lilies of the beach! Their complexions are as white as the lilies of the field. Lo! They sketch not and spin not, but wax fat on the sands under enormous umbrellas in the hot, sunny days. Or, lightly, they are dappled in the breeze. What can penetrate through their sunshades hits not flesh but layers of powder.

It was rumored last season that Coligield offered a prize to the Follies girl who wept through a hot season without becoming disfigured by sunburn. It may be that the vogue for complexion started in this way.

Quite the most astounding sight that I have witnessed this year on the beaches was a "beach lily" doing up in a brown bathing frock, which had a high-buttoned-in-front neck and long skin-tight sleeves. Her parasol hid her other portions from view and I presumed that she was dressing for the day, so to speak. When suddenly, without warning, she leisurely lifted her sweet parasol disclosing to the astonished bare legs that I have ever seen. The incongruity of the bather's face and the Fifth Avenue "upper" was amazing.

Real Bathing Suit

Of course, there have been all sorts of lovely bathing suits introduced this season ranging from silk bathks and velvets to simple little gingham and printed linens. But the real swimmers are still wearing and will continue to wear the jersey suit as it permits complete freedom for swimming. Woolen girls find it preferable to all other types of suits and since the ban on the one-piece has been lifted at most resorts, the woma wnho goes in for swimming as a sport need have no qualms about wearing what she pleases.

Certainly the one-piece suit, designed for swimming purposes, is the conspicuous and shocking thing the long-sleeved, high-necked frock with cuts at the hips, boldly displaying naked limbs for no apparent reason.

Double rubber caps with the chin straps are quite the best sort for the swimmer. One cannot really enjoy the water with ends of bath and bandana handkerchiefs flowing in the foam. Even the girl with the permanent wave hesitates a bit before getting her hair wet as continual applications of cold water tend to eliminate the curl.

Criss-Cross Bathing Suits

Rubber suspender bracelets for swimming have tiny pockets in which small change may be kept. They come in very handy, as it is twice as easy to get back to one's locker for change and popcorn and peanuts taste mighty good after a long swim.

The newest bathing shoes are made in sandal effect, with soles of heavy chamois and tapers of white canvas. Straps of colored leather are used as a trim and as a support to the foot and ankle. Often a beach shoe of this kind extends half way to the knee. The all-rubber beach shoe is pretty in its bright colors but unless its boots is free of broken glass and stones, it is inadvisable to wear a rubber-soled shoe.

INDIA'S KILLER, THE COBRA.

"The most terribly snake in the world—that's the foundation the great Indian hooded cobra has earned for himself. Every year the cobra accounts for the deaths of thousands of East Indians."

These creatures usually grow to be about six feet long and are able to make the "hood" which is their particular trademark by bringing forward and extending several ribs. They grow about six inches thick and may vary in color from a yellow to a dark brown. On the back of the hood is marking in white which resembles the pair of spectacles.

COLONY IS ARMED

The colony of Amazon ants is also an armed camp. Scouts are constantly on the lookout and as soon as these scouts report finding a colony to be raided the ant commanders get into battle formation and conduct a war.

The enormous jaws o this type of ant make effective weapons and the brown ants, on whom they wage war, haven't a chance for victory. The ants usually overpower their enemies all that remains of the former colony of brown ants. These slaves do all the work in an amazon colony, even to giving the fighters their baths before they come into the nest after battle.

SLAVES ARE NEEDED

There must always be plenty of slaves or the amazon colony will die out because of inability to take care of themselves. The slaves seem to be perfectly content with their treatment, for they never rebel or cause much trouble to their masters.

Often the amazons will allow a peaceful little bettle to share their nest with them. This sort of a beetle gives off an aromatic odor and also delights in scratching the backs of his amazon friends.

The fighting Amazon ant is one of the queerest members of the insect world.

TWO MUSICAL DOGS

"Do-re-me-fa-so" sang Caruso and Peggy, two fox terriers in Los Angeles, as they accompany their singing with a duet on a toy piano.

"What harmony and control," exclaim their delighted critics as they hear these gifted dogs raise their voices in melodious howls. No one takes more delight in the performance than Caruso and Peggy seem to take in performing. They are never quite strick when called upon to perform. They never try to excuse themselves because they have left their music at home or say that they have such bad colds they can't sing a note.

Both dogs have a remarkable range of voice; they can sing even the lowest note of "Asleep in the Deep" with as much ease as the highest runs of "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark." Caruso seems to prefer the bass notes, while Peggy delights in throwing back her head and letting her graceful throat quiver with soprano trills.

In spite of their artistic temperament, these gifted dogs do not seem to be jealous of each other. They do not try to out-do each other by howling as loud as they can, but seem to be jealous of each other. They do not try to out-do each other by howling as loud as they can, but seem to believe in giving the other fellow a chance. Of course when it comes to being praised and petted or to the matter of a juicy bone, dogs will be dogs, and their master must be careful not to give more to one than the other if he wants to avoid an argument.

PEDRO

As far as the neighbors could see, Pedro had no earthly use. He was worse than no good! He was an added expense and care for poor Mrs. Stewart. Every time the interest in the little widow, whose husband had been killed in a factory accident. She was left with two babies, almost no money, and nothing that she could do but take in washing. Why she still kept the old dog was more than anyone could understand.

Pedro was blind in one eye, limped in the right front leg, and had a miserable, shaggy coat. Mrs. Stewart admitted that as a watch dog, Pedro was a joke. "But," she would laughingly say, "I think that a good watch dog he would be wasted here in Millersburg where there is nothing to watch."

It worried the neighbors a great deal to see poor Mrs. Stewart working so hard. "It's time you were her to have to kill herself washing, to support her family, but for that useless dog—it's too much!" they grumbled. They decided that they ought to speak to her about it.

"You've never heard Pedro's story have you?" she smiled at them. "I couldn't possibly do away with him. No one would want to take him from me and give him a nice home. He was in the war with my husband. Twice he saved Charles from being badly gassed, and Charles declared that he owed his life to the dog." After hearing Pedro's story, the neighbor's went away wiping their eyes. They all agreed that they could see how Mrs. Stewart would be attached to the dog. It was about a week later when one day Pedro came around the house, followed by a tall, fine looking man. "If I am not intruding," he bowed to Mrs. Stewart, "may I ask your name?"

"Mrs. Charles Stewart," he repeated. "Is Corporal Stewart got the little dog. May I see your husband? I was his captain in the war?

The captain was deeply sorry to hear of Mr. Stewart's death. "I suppose you wouldn't consider selling Pedro?" he asked. "He saved my life over there, and I should like to make it up to him a little."

The neighbors all wondered what changed Mrs. Stewart's mind. As soon as she got rid of Pedro, she was able to save more money and things were easier for her. They never knew that she had sold him for a neat little sum.

HUNTS WITH BODY UPRIGHT

Despite his bad reputation, the coon's ancestors have efforts to get out of a man's way unless surprised while eating or sleeping, then he will attack. He is a night animal and both by day and by night but is more of a night prowler than a daytime wanderer, as he likes to sleep. He has four toes on his hind feet and his gait is a shuffle with his body erect in the air and glides swiftly along, swaying the upper part of the body from side to side.

Mrs. Cobra lays from 15 to 25 eggs at a setting and hatches them in a warm, open place where they will be hatched by the heat of the sun's rays. These eggs are white and look very much like the egg of a pigeon.

Indian snake charmers are very fond of giving exhibitions of their skill with cobras and often handle them in bare hands without the snake's fangs having been removed.

THE brilliant colours of the Orient are to be found in the gauzes, silks, laces and Chinese figured chintz, now so much in vogue for window hangings.

NO ONE BLAMED

The accident occurred at the easterly end of the bridge. Loft had evident ly been dragged from there to where he was found, a distance of thirty feet from the western end of the bridge. A portion of Loft's trousers was torn away as though with a knife as it he had been dragged."

Joseph Magginson, foreman on the highway, who lives right near the scene of the accident, drove into his yard from Trenton that night while the man was lying on the road. The Ford car's front hub was two feet from the easterly end of the bridge. "I saw a grease mark on the concrete wall. The rear end of the car was about two feet from the south wall of the bridge. I also saw the scratch on the wall. Loft was lying in a pool of blood some thirty feet west of the west end of the bridge. The Columbia car was up near my gate. I lit two matches and helped put the man in the car by their light." Witness verified the measurements as made by Officer Davis He had made similar measurements

Stafford Irwin, who lives on the Magginson, was in the drive house and heard the racket on the road at about 10.30 p.m. "I went out and found a roadster car standing twenty five or thirty feet west of the bridge," he said. Loft was lying on the road 3 or 10 feet east of the car, and about 20 feet or more west of the bridge. The body was never in the north side of the road, just pointing east, body stretched out, feet pointing northwest. The Ford car was on the bridge, sort of around the post."

Mrs. W. M. Neale of Trenton was present when the accident occurred a passenger in the Columbia car "Loft hailed us to stop and take him into Trenton for gas. Loft got out the left running-board. He leaned down on one knee, I believe, and hung on to the brace. I got the car, Mr. Neale travelling about fifteen miles per hour on the bridge. We were quite a piece over the bridge when the crash occurred, and the car stopped I saw the Ford car coming toward us. I think the hub of our wheel struck first and the back of our left fender was torn. Our car travelled about its own length after the impact."

William Neale, mechanic, of Trenton, passenger in the Columbia car, testified that at no time on the trip had the speed of their car exceeded 25 miles per hour. He was in the rear car, just before we mounted the bridge the accident occurred about immediately," he explained. "The Ford we collided with would be travelling about 30 miles per hour. The front of the Ford hit the rear end of our car. Loft was on his right knee on the running-board, holding on to the brace. Loft went over the back of the Columbia, I believe. Our car stopped in a length or a length and a half after the crash. Our car was shoved by hand down opposite Magginson's gate. Our brakes were not applied before the impact. Before we reached the bridge we were travelling about twenty miles per hour and we slowed down to fifteen miles per hour so go over the bridge. The right wheels of our car were out on the grass, when we approached the car."

Stewart A. Fegan, boiler inspector for the C.N.R., of 94 Mount Vicwavenue, Toronto, passenger in the Dozier Ford coupe, told next witness "We were travelling fifteen miles per hour or less when we crashed. After the accident on the bridge we were dazed with light—then the crash—and I was thrown into one corner of the car. We went about one foot after the crash. I got out and stopped a third car which came along."

The Columbia car was down a short distance beyond the white object in the dark road (which was the body of Loft). Several gathered about the scene. "We moved our car off the bridge and came to Belleville police station in a Ford car. Doctor he absolutely not been drinking that evening.

Roy Madden, 29 Albion street clerk at C.N.R. offices, was en route to Trenton in a Ford car, along wit ther passengers.

"I saw the Columbia first when we drew up alongside to pass. The Columbia pulled away and then we swung in behind. When they stopped to pick up Loft, however, we passed them. After they picked up Loft they passed us after we had travelled about a quarter of a mile. We were going about fifteen miles per hour then. They would be going eighteen or twenty miles per hour when they passed us. When we came up to the scene of the accident, a man saying his hands, stopped us. The Ford coupe was in close to the bridge and Loft was lying in the centre of the road, the roadway being some three or four yards west of Loft. Loft was breathing, but moaning and wandering profusely."

Albert Dozier, pipe fitter for the C.N.R., driver of the Ford coupe, 570 Station street, told of driving at a rate of about 15 to 18 miles per hour as his way from Trenton to Belleville. He cars collided either on the centre of the culvert or a little to the east-end. "We were well over to the north side of the bridge, and the front ender of our car was jammed against the concrete post. I got out and took the number of the Columbia car, but never noticed our car off the bridge, and then took into Belleville and reported the accident to the police. Loft was lying some twelve or fifteen feet west of the bridge, a little north of the centre of the road."

Joseph Reynolds, traveller, of Massboe, owner and driver of the Columbia light six three-passenger roadster, told of leaving Belleville for Trenton about 9.15 that night. "I was travelling about eighteen or twenty miles per hour when I passed Madden's car.

When the car struck I was travelling about fifteen miles per hour. The two right wheels of my car were out on the grass, when we approached the car."

The nearly right watch won't do any longer.

Alaska From the Inside

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
San Francisco, Aug. 10 (United Press).—The women of Alaska—what are they like?

If you folks in Ontario could see some of Alaska's children, you would have your answer. For the children are the reddest, chubbiest, handsomest and altogether most vital set of youngsters you will find in any portion of Canada's broad domains. And that statement is made upon a basis of rather thorough and extensive observation.

Alaska's women are just as up-to-date and as intelligent as their sisters "outside." Their clothes are just as modish, and their homes just as tastefully arranged and furnished. They have succeeded in making a great wild country into a land of homes.

That, perhaps is the best characterization of them that could be given. For Alaska is, for those who live in it, a home land. Nearly everybody owns his own home, in Fairbanks, today, you can buy a cozy, warm, good-looking little log house on a fair sized lot for from $500 to $1,200. And you have electric light and power, steam heat, running water and all similar conveniences.

The women who came in after the pioneers had blazed the trail set about immediately making the matters land a comfortable place. They were facing a tremendous task, for there are many things lacking here that are to be had "outside."

Here and there you will find notably interesting individual women as, for instance, Nellie Neal, or the more recent Miss Hunter.

Two Types of Women

Nellie Neal is an "oldtimer," and Miss Hunter is a newcomer. Both typify their own ways the woman of Alaska.

Before she came to Alaska, Nellie Neal lived in Missouri. Pass over years spent in this camp or that, until Nellie Neal opened her eating house at Curry. Curry is a stopover point on the Alaskan railroad. Trains wait there overnight, and passengers sleep in a fine new hotel. But when Nellie Neal went to Curry, the railroad was just building, and her job was to feed the hungry empire builders who were laying the steel.

"I fed 10,000 people in this room in three months," she said as she glanced about the long, low main room of her house in Curry. It is right back of the pretentious shiny new hotel, and it is a thousand times more charming than the hotel will ever be.

"I've been all alone ever since I came here to Alaska. It has been a wonderful experience, because I feel that I have been able to help. People have to be fed if they are going to do the work those railroad makers had to do."

That's what Nellie Neal did—she fed them. In spare time she got to know a great deal about the animal life of the "inside." She has the skins and heads of many bears, caribou, moose, goats, lynx, bobcats and other animals she shot. She does a good business nowadays selling these.

Nellie Neal is like Alaska because she has the pioneer heart, and the pioneer optimism. All the pioneers are optimists. They may have failed themselves to find the end of the rainbow, but they know Alaska as a whole is going to find it some day.

Another Type

Ruth Rhees, a quiet, soft-spoken graduate of the university of Illinois, is another type entirely, yet she, too partakes of the Alaskan spirit. She came up here a couple of years ago to see what a college woman could do in Alaska. She is part owner of a outdoor herd, now, and is one of those who are fostering this industry both as a means of greater prosperity for the territory and as a means of educating the natives and giving them a solid economic footing.

Miss Rhees wears khaki knickers, and knows her way about the country from Cantwell to Alaik, and even over to Iditarod and Nome, as thoroughly as any oldtimer. What she typifies is the application of the new intelligence to Alaska's problems.

The women in Alaska do not smoke cigarets. They are not troubled much by "complexes," such as are fashionable among the more sophisticated females known at home as "society women."

The Alaskan housewife in the interior has an electrical home in most cases. Waterpower development has made electricity cheap, so that many housewives not only do their laundry work, their sweeping and their sewing, but also their cooking and heating by electricity and in many instances heat their homes the same way. In one town it costs about $30 a month to heat a six room house by electricity. This is the cost of one ton of coal. And remember, electricity supposed to be a very cold place.

Alaskan flower gardens are among the most beautiful in the world. And as everywhere the women sought beauty as soon as they had established a modicum of comfort. In the towns they have trim lawns about their houses, and wonderfully vivid and fragrant beds of flowers.

Satan's Empire Is Doomed, Armageddon Awaits the World

(Contributed)

Judge Rutherford, of Brooklyn, N. Y., delivered a most interesting lecture last Sunday evening at Pantages Theatre, Toronto, to an audience exceeding four thousand.

This Judge proved by the Bible that Satan, (Adam's forbidden, has also established a wicked empire, which dominates the nations of earth; that Jesus Christ, invisibly present, is ousting Satan; that the world's troubles will shortly reach a climax followed by lasting peace, health and happiness; and that millions now living will never die.

Satan's wicked influence has forever left in every part of the world. Together with his associate devils he incites the people to hatred, strife, murders and induces war, revolution and anarchy. These devilish influences produce intemperance and the fall of man, sedgeed many of the affects of heaven, turned them to wickedness, and with these establish on this empire, which is likened unto a wild beast, devouring the peaceful people. This wicked influence has overspreaded the denominational churches, causing many leading clergymen to deny God, and unite with profiteers and politicians to control mankind. But the end is here and the empire is falling, and Christ the rightful King, though invisible to man, is beginning His reign; hence the World War of 1914 and the trouble following. These troubles will shortly reach a climax and disappear, followed quickly by peace and prosperity, and millions of people now living on earth obeying the righteous King, will live and never die. Jehovah is God, and Jesus Christ is King of Kings and Lord of Lords. All other powers must give away. Hear also what some of the leading men of the world have to say regarding the present times. Ramsay McDonald, member of Parliament, says: "There is no settlement in Europe. Governments can do nothing. They are afraid to do anything and they stand by and allow things to go from bad to worse—1922 is worse than 1921."

Senator Borah: "What is immediate upon the continent of Europe.

Secretary of War Weeks, in the Nation's business: "The United States is preparing for war that would take to the utmost in manpower resources."

15,000 Settlers To Aid Harvest

Montreal, Aug. 10.—Interest in every section of local marine circles is centred upon the extraordinary response made to the special harvester rate arranged by steamship and railway companies. It was stated by a prominent shipping authority that, thanks to the £13 rate from the United Kingdom ports to Winnipeg, from twelve to fifteen thousand of the best type of British settlers will be landed in Canada and distributed through the west in time for harvesting operations.

Not since the palmy days of the initial rush to Canada has there been such a migration of British men to Canadian fields. The Cunard, Anchor-Donaldson and allied lines are bringing in about four thousand men on the harvester rate which is about fifty

TROOPS GUARD HOME OF CHANCELLOR

CALLS RATE CUT IN WEST, UNFAIR

Winnipeg Man Argues at Length Against British Columbia Appeal.

CITES DISADVANTAGES

Says Investigations do not Warrant Freight Rate Cut for West

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—"We have always been found insisting, nay demanding, lower freight rates", said Mr. Isaac Pitblado, representing the province of Manitoba, and the Board of Trade of Winnipeg before the Privy Council yesterday in the British Columbia freight rates appeal. We sympathize with every appeal for decreased tolls, but we oppose the application of the attorney-general of British Columbia.

It is not for decreased rates, it is for an unwarranted equalization in favor of British Columbia. He pointed out that nature favored the coast cities with water transportation, both domestic and foreign, the preferential rail rate basis that effected both east and west-bound and gave to her production and consumption lower rates of transportation than any other province. On the other hand there were natural disadvantages in that four ranges of mountains lay between British Columbia and her staple provinces, which, it was said on good authority, would move mountains, but so far there was no precedent to accomplish the task by the process of adopting a freight schedule the ignores their existence, or the railways coast that had been admirably served and assisted in that mountainous unproductive and sparsely settled region.

"The inevitable result of ignoring these fundamental operating costs" was to eventually raise rates in the prairies and elsewhere. The effect resulting has been made up itself in this way or by taxing the railways bond, after protracted hearing and full consideration had decided the question on certain established facts, he demanded that the principle laid down in a previous order of the Privy Council should be affirmed, that reversal of the Board's rulings would be highly prejudicial to the public interest. To decide otherwise would mean in the end to destroy the usefulness of the Board of Railway Commissioners. Mr. Pitblado outlined the basis of freight rates, the result of past investigation, the eastern rates the rates influenced by American railway and the waterway situation from the lakes to the Atlantic, the prairies with the tremendous congestion of traffic due to grain movement and agricultural products, followed naturally by low operation costs.

"The mountain scale is based on the higher operating costs and lower traffic density the various commodity tariffs percolate the widest marketing of the nature products of each section The distributing schedules permit the distribution by wholesale of the necessaries of life to outlying communities He referred to the fact that the Board at rates had before the results of careful consideration not only by the carriers but of the representatives of the applications before the Board by those interested. He referred to the fact that over 80 per cent of the tonnage in British Columbia was carried under rates on which the mountain schedule had no bearing. If the application was granted it would over ride every principle of rate making that has been fixed either as the result of past experience or established under the decision of rate tribunals in the United States or Canada. Mr. Pitblado quoted from the Railways Act as to what constituted discrimination. It could only be charged where the circumstance and condition were the same it first be undue and unjust."

Mr. Pitblado reviewed the various reductions in the mountain scale made in the Board since the basis enforced in the western case, submitting that there was nothing in the evidence on which the Board should have made the reduction.

Prince Of Wales To Canada

London, Aug. 11.—The Prince of Wales has settled his autumn plans. He goes to Scotland next Friday to visit his parents at Balmoral and to unveil a memorial to Scotch Highlanders. Returning to London the first week of September, he will leave the following week for Canada.

He has already notified Lord Byng that so much of his time will be taken on business connected with his ranch that he cannot accept many outside invitations. The Prince is very keenly interested in his ranch. Its financial results so far have not been brilliant but the stock have done well and bountiful opportunists have been very successful.

"I cannot claim to be raking in the dollars," said the Prince at the Canadian luncheon party in London, "but I have recently had some satisfaction in seeing the quality and appearance of the shorthorns bred there have more than come up to my expectations."

Renew Battle For Free Seeds

Washington, Aug. 11.—(United Press) —A vigorous campaign to force Congress again to provide an appropriation for distribution of free seeds is now being waged throughout the country, Congressman John W. Langley, Republican, Kentucky, who always leads the fight for this legislation, told the United Press.

Since July, when the new agriculture appropriation bill became effective without provision for seed distribution, "thousands of letters have been received by constituents urging them to make an effort to have the provision restored to the bill," Langley said.

"The people are badly disappointed because there will be no free seeds this year," he said. "The farmers are not the only people who are kicking. There are also the men who work in factories and mines and other industries and who garden their products in back yards and vacant lots.

"When Congress convenes, I again will introduce my bill making the seed distribution permanent law. This will stop all further fighting and quibbling over the proposition. I will press the measure for passage so that the people may get the seeds in time for spring planting, otherwise they will have to wait until next July, when the 1923 agriculture bill becomes effective.

Every year when the agriculture bill comes to the House, Langley says, the free seed amendment and after fiery parliamentary discussions and heated debate it usually becomes through by a bare majority. Last year Langley carried on an intensive campaign for the adoption of his amendment, but it was defeated by one vote. This resulted in the Senate not having free seeds from their Congressmen for the first time since 1870."

Mother of Triplets Hears News Next Day

New York, Aug. 11.—Mrs. Margaret Isherwood, wife of Harry Isherwood, Surrogate of Essex County, N.J., who died in a sanitarium operating here jointly to three boys on Tuesday night, was told of her good fortune for the first time yesterday.

Mrs. Isherwood lay in a ward in a private hospital in Newark, when Dr. Sarah Edwards, her attending physician, entered.

"Why can't I see my baby?" Mrs. Isherwood asked the doctor.

The physician smiled and shook her head.

"Is anything the matter?" anxiously inquired Mrs. Isherwood.

"No, except that there is more than one boy," the doctor replied.

"Two?"

Dr. Edwards laughed. "Worse than that," she said. "There are three."

"Good—I'm glad," the mother said, "and I want to see them."

But the three youngsters were brought in to her and she was permitted to look at them.

Surrogate Isherwood, asked if he intended to take a holiday to celebrate his good fortune, said, emphatically "No. I'll have no holiday. I propose at work to make all ends meet, now."

Reports that several bootleggers have openly boasted that they would not file the activity on the part of the bureau.

When the Americans dressed in white flannels, which offered a sharp contrast to the sombre black or grey clothes of the Welsh singers came to the platform the audience gave them a rousing welcome.

The Americans excels in male voice choral singing, but the Cleveland choir members were too good to be overcome by Welsh opposition. The men from Ohio were enthusiastically cheered when their success was announced. Charles E. Davy, their conductor, is a native of South Wales. Three members of the party are Welsh born, and seven nationalities are represented in the choir, which intends to stay in Great Britain for a month.

Govt' To Sell Peat Plant

Toronto, Aug. 11.—No more money will be spent on the Alfred peat manufacturing experimental plant, The Ferguson administration has passed an order-in-council authorizing disposal of the premises and the newly developed cutting and drying machinery to some private individual This was suggested by the dominion government, half owner with the provincial authorities, which notified Queen's Park a short time ago of its decision to spend no more money upon the plant.

The Alfred peat manufacturing industries has cost the dominion and provincial governments a big sum, but the provincial authorities believe that there have been beneficial results. Premier Ferguson's comment was that it had been clearly demonstrated that peat could be manufactured and sold upon a commercial basis in Ontario, but that owing to its bulk and other reasons it could not be transported economically any great distance. His solution was about another large bog in Ontario's numerous bogs, which lie in practically every part of the province.

See Huge Waste in U. S. School System

Chicago, Aug. 11 (Unlited Press).—Taxpayers are not getting their money's worth out of education.

The education committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, after a year's study of education costs in Chicago and throughout the country, has concluded that much of the huge sum spent annually is waste.

According to the committee's report the "limiting of the expenditures for some branches of public education" will have to be considered to place the educational system on a sound basis. The report suggests that some forms of taxation be changed.

Last year only one out of three persons reaching the high school entered a high school, the survey revealed. In 1890 one person in 10 entered high school.

Meriden, Conn., spends more money in keeping a pupil in an elementary school one year than any other city in the country, Savanbah, Ga., spends the least. The figures compiled by the committee to show the cost per pupil for one years instruction in elementary and high schools in a selected list of cities follows:

	Elementary	High
Savannah, Ga.	$ 29.00	$.....
St. Louis	47.66	110.2
Boston	46.73	94.0
Philadelphia	46.73	128.9
Chicago	51.33	117.9
New York	52.15	117.9
Cleveland	54.00	127.8
Meriden, Conn.	167.41	.....

The committee found that the distribution of school funds, $795,000,000 went to elementary schools $240,000,000 to high schools, $58,000,000 to universities, $35,000,000 to technical schools, $18,000,000 to normal schools and $11,000,000 to colleges.

Members of the committee are Will liam L. Abbott, chairman of the board of directors of the Commonwealth Edison Company; William Chalmer Covert, D.D., First Presbyterian church; W. A. Evans, commissioner of public health; C. M. Moder well, W. P. Sidley, John E. Wilde and C. Herick Hammond.

Repentant War Profiteers Aid French Conscience Fund

Paris, Aug. 11.—The conscience fund of the French Treasury received today an anonymous remittance of 145,287 francs 40 centimes, according to the Journal Officiel.

Coming within a month of a remittance of 2,000,000 francs, today's payment arouses hope that the war profiteers are conscience-stricken or that conscience-stricken at any rate as regards the evasion of taxes on their gains.

The French conscience fund, like the American one, is principally the recipient of small amounts left back by small, hand-pressed taxpayers. Never fact that two large tax evaders have remitted payments to the same source aims to give hope that more of the war mulcters anonymously will come to the aid of the country in its present financial difficulties.

Rum Runners Speed Business

Bridgeburg, Aug. 11.—With Bridgeburg still without a resident magistrate on Canadian police officer to replace Mr. Howie, recently transferred to Kitchener, and with no town authority over smugglers of ale and whiskey to the United States are carrying on the illicit trade with little or no interference.

The principal scene of operations is the shore of Lake Erie, south of Bridgeburg, and the main street of Bridgeburg on the boulevard. Shipments of ale in cartons containing four bottles each are made in an absolutely occurrence, according to authoritative information, and whiskey is known to be coming from the States by the names of the makers even being known.

Last week a couple of cars loaded with ale lockyed the U. S. A. prohibition officers up and down Niagara River, finally anchoring on the Canadian shore at the foot of Lake Erie, the night their cargoes disappeared. Two days ago, finally boats reported as having arrived home on St. Clair River.

Last week prohibition officers raided a suspected building on the American side near Tonawanda finding a large still working, a store of drinks and false labels on hand and a large supply of Canadian ale, showing very plainly the source of information for the ale exported from Canada.

Last week, Grand Island, in the centre of Niagara river, yielded up an immense quantity of ale to U. S. dry agents who discovered its hiding place.

A truck load of ale arrived here from Niagara Falls on Tuesday by rum, and liquor is coming here by road steadily, both ale and whiskey.

Bitter Quarrels Resulted in Bride and Groom Sleeping With Revolvers at Pillow

Lethbridge, Alta.—Here is the sordid wedding history of the runaway bride and bridegroom, and the beautiful French bride—The United Press, New York.

Chapter II.

London, Aug. 9.—Young Fahmy arrives in Cairo, bursting the news of his family relatives to his startled wife a difficult matter.

The Fahmy palace and Fahmy regalia. Finally the young man invoked the traditional Rights of the Mohammedan male and won a grudging consent.

To please Fahmy's family, there were two ceremonies, attending the civil marriage and those in accordance with the Mohammedan ritual, was celebrated in February of this year.

With the Mohammedan ceremony Princess Fahmy was enlightened in the embraced the faith of her husband. Her conversion was not apparent, however, as distinguished her skin. Her latest quarrel with her self and robe of a Mohammedan woman.

There followed a hurried order for a palace on the Nile. It was to be the home of the happy bride and groom. (It is almost finished now and the Khedive's finest—like the tariff for his life.

A gorgeous Bedaeboat was purchased for the season of Lord Carnarvon's Tutankhamen discoveries. The parties on board the floating tinsalled beauty spot were only one phase of the domestic life of the Prince and Princess.

FOUGHT IN HOTELS.

The unbridled jealousy of both head began to get in its work. From heated arguments it soon developed into blows. Hotels in Cairo, Paris and London were the scenes of their open and disgusting combat.

The Fahmy and Princess, both whimsically generous but rarely consistent, were drifting toward trouble.

The Prince, outwardly, was a cultivated young man of fashion possessed of a beautiful estate. He gave thousands at dollars for the education of young Egyptians, but not a penny for charity for himself.

Actually the young fellow was a vain disciple of freedom. He, broadminded in interference. His jealousy limited disfashion by his wife. He often locked her in her room. He vowed to shoot her if she escaped.

The Princess protested that she had no desire to escape, but chided her Prince for his unreasonable attitude toward other women. That, she declared, should stop. Things went from quarrel to quarrel. The two began to go about armed.

Even their bed was not a safe place. On the side of the Prince was always a small chambered revolver, close to his hand.

By the head of the Princess was a table. As she slept there lay there a vicious automatic pistol, ready for the last that was finally put to it.

On the night of July 10, London was visited by a terrific thunder storm. Shrieking wind, and crashes of lightning disturbed the entire city.

FOUGHT DURING STORM.

On that night Fahmy Bey elected to leave his Princess, who was ill and scheduled to enter a hospital the following day. He left her side at a few minutes past midnight. Within an hour and a half he returned. The Princess had not gone to bed. They argued. They quarreled blows. A slight porter saw them berating each other in the hallway and implore them to return to their rooms. They refused.

The porter went his way down the lightning illuminated hall. As he neared a corner fifteen yards from the entrance to the Prince's suite three shots flashed in the momentary darkness.

He rushed back. Vivid lightning showed the Prince and Princess in the corridor. Above him bent his Princess, gushing a torrent of French in his unresponsive ear.

Actually the yelling fellow was a vain disciple of freedom. He, broadminded in interference. His jealousy limited disfashion by his wife. He often locked her in her room. He vowed to shoot her if she escaped.

The Princess protested that she had no desire to escape, but chided her Prince for his unreasonable attitude toward other women. That, she declared, should stop. Things went from quarrel to quarrel. The two began to go about armed.

Even their bed was not a safe place. On the side of the Prince was always a small chambered revolver, close to his hand.

By the head of the Princess was a table. As she slept there lay there a vicious automatic pistol, ready for the last that was finally put to it.

On the night of July 10, London was visited by a terrific thunder storm. Shrieking wind, and crashes of lightning disturbed the entire city.

FOUGHT DURING STORM.

On that night Fahmy Bey elected to leave his Princess, who was ill and scheduled to enter a hospital the following day. He left her side at a few minutes past midnight. Within an hour and a half he returned. The Princess had not gone to bed. They argued. They quarreled blows. A slight porter saw them berating each other in the hallway and implore them to return to their rooms. They refused.

The porter went his way down the lightning illuminated hall. As he neared a corner fifteen yards from the entrance to the Prince's suite three shots flashed in the momentary darkness.

He rushed back. Vivid lightning showed the Prince and Princess in the corridor. Above him bent his Princess, gushing a torrent of French in his unresponsive ear.

The woman bent lower.

"Did she kiss him?"

On the witness stand the porter said he did not know, but that she was very close.

On the calling checks of the Princess's lawyer jeer-drops. They were not the tears of the dead boy.

The life of the Princess depends on the cold mercy of an English court The charge against her is wilful murder. In England murder is considered pay for their crimes on the gallows—even though they may be women.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The stomach and bowel of the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be carried off in a man help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentery and colic are most prevalent. Any of these troubles may prove deadly if not promptly treated. Many a summer mother's best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CONTOUR MAP OF OCEAN BED

New Depth Finder Aids in Charting 50,000 Square Miles.

The first accurate contour map of a deep-sea area has been completed by the hydrographic office of the Navy Department. It is a chart of the west coast of North America from San Francisco to Point Barrow, Alaska, and Mexico constructed from soundings made by the naval ships with the aid of the new sonic depth finder developed by Dr. H. G. Maves of the experimental station of the Navy Department at Annapolis, Md.

The chart represents the configuration of the ocean floor over a territory of 50,000 square miles, showing submerged hills, valleys, and sea-precipices.

The map, naval officers declare, will be of great importance in the shipping case accordingly. It is expected it will materially in the study of earthquakes on the west coast of the United States, by showing data from which issues of structural weakness in the earth's crust may be traced.

It was also said to indicate the location of "continental shelf," consisting of sediment, and revealing the structural demarcation between a shelf and the steep slope of the ocean bed, and the new sounding device is said to be capable of more effective study of continent building and subterranean peaks. With other instruments, it is thought, the depth finder may be used to determine the general condition of connections supposed to exist between land areas between bodies of land as now charted. It may also give information about frequent earth changes in such regions as the Chilean coast and the Hawaiian Islands.

Portraits on Playing Cards.

Four holiday-makers, playing cards in the garden on picnic for a summer resort, were entertained by an old man in the corner of their table. Suddenly he broke into some things they did not know.

"Why, you've got the face whose portrait you hold in your hands!" asked the old man, and one of the players showed him a bumper head.

"Same the other," he said.

And the old man informed him that the four portraits were of the greatest rulers the world has ever known.

The four kings, when cards were first invented, stepped in person: Charlemagne. David, Alexander, Cæsar, and The queens were Argine, Judith, Esther, and Athalie, these standing respectively for the idea of birth, fruitfulness, piety and wisdom. And the knaves were merely unnamed knights, or else knights' servants.

The four suits, also, had special significance, and were designed to stand for different classes of the community. Hearts were ecclesiastics or "clergy." (the heart symbolically being a heart-shaped cape), diamonds were artisans (there sign being a stone tile), clubs were farmers (clover leaf), and spades were soldiers (spade and sword, the original spade being a pennant).

Gottland.

The Saga says that the discoverer and first settler on the isle of Gottland was Gotland, the hero-god. From the same source we learn that the island was then in such an unsettled condition that it was submerged in the daytime, and rose to the surface only at night. Thither were dominated with fire the trolls—and these, it appears, were the first inhabitants of that island. It is said that there were trolls over the head of the Baltic. The great number of tourists who have rediscovered Gotland in recent years are of a different disposition, and have driven them thither and fastidious them into lengthening their sleep at night. Many of these weird powers and happenings of olden times, in later years, the early Middle Ages. Gotland was indeed a power to be reckoned with, and it is the combination of ancient fairy lore and an interesting historical past that makes the island so attractive and a favorite spot for tourists in search of exploring strange ground.—Boston Transcript.

A Resourceful Woman.

"I think it is a foolish fashion that so many women indulge in that of telling white lies wrongly," said the woman with prematurely gray hair. "I has honestly say that I never practice it myself." "No?" said her friend, with much meaning in the monosyllable. "Well," said the first speaker, with a smile—she was a person with a sense of humor—"I admit I don't have to. I have a way of making myself out younger than I am. If I wish to, without telling a lie, at all." "Really?" inquired the other curiously. "In what way?" "I put the burden of the lie upon the questioner. You see, when one of my dear friends—it is always women who are curious on this point—asks me how old I am, I say, 'Oh, I'm a year or two older than you, my dear, my dear—at least, a year or two older.' And then she always tells me of my age than I should ever have the courage to do myself!"

First American Wood Engraver.

Alexander Anderson was the first engraver on wood in America. At the age of twelve he made quite successful attempts at copying on paper and type-metal, and in 1792, when employed in copying drawings on wood, after Bewick, for an American edition of the Looking-Glass, he discarded the type-metal upon which he had been working and cut the rest of the illustrations upon boxwood, with tools of his own invention. Anderson signed his name to the first wood-cut published on this continent; and this gained for himself the title of the American Bewick. The vast number of books illustrated by him attests the skill and industry of this pioneer of the art of wood-engraving, who continued in the daily practice of his profession till a few months before he died.

The Were-Wolf in England.

A superstitious belief in the were-wolf (as a creature half human and half a human being in the form of a wolf) still lingers in the remote country folk of Hampshire, England. In'ead Christ the children are not allowed to take a certain path on the Downs for fear of meeting this dreaded creature. An old woman of the place when questioned told how her father and grandfather before her had always warned her of the were-wolf saying: "Mind, Lizzie, it is a dog, but he used to be a lady!" Other inhabitants of the locality still entertain a cross this path after dusk, for many assert that they have seen upon the downs a large dog which suddenly vanished on being approached. Belief in treanthropy was widespread during the dark ages, when men displaying all the predatory instincts and ferocity of wolves wandered in masses through southern Germany and parts of Italy.

May Day.

The celebration of May day is an old custom which originated with the Druids. The Floralia, or floral games of the Romans, which began on April 28 and continued several days, were festivals of similar character. In medieval and Tudor times the 1st of May was a great public holiday. The young people started in an early hour to gather flowers and hawthorne branches, with which they decorated every door and window in the village. In Northamptonshire it was the custom for the young men to rise early that morning, to leave a large bunch of flowering hawthorn at the door of the prettiest girl in the village; later the hawthorn gave place to the May basket. In some places in the United Kingdom the people sing on the evening of April 30, but there is no authority for the custom.

"Hobson's Choice."

A "little portrait of the quaint Shakespeare carrier, Thomas Hobson, to whom we owe indirectly the phrase "Hobson's choice," has recently been acquired by the National Portrait Gallery. In the canvas appears the late, 1619—two years before the death, at the age of 84, of Hobson. The painter is unknown, but he evidently belonged to a school of greater regard for fidelity than technique. Here the famous saying arose in Hobson's stable, which kept a fine stud stocked, but his horses had to be taken in customers in strict rotation. "This or none," was Hobson's choice. The portrait shows a strong face with sequillos, firm mouth, and kindly but compassionate eyes.

Superstition and the Owl.

The owl, with its curdling cry, has always been regarded with superstitious dread by persons of culture. The Indians shrink from the cry of the horned owl. The Romans refers to it as the bird of evil omen.

Alaska From the Inside

Gasoline and Newspapers

Gasoline comes high in Alaska. In Anchorage it was 40 cents a gallon. In Fairbanks it was 68. It is transported in cans, bound in light crates. These are carried into the mining camps where, gas is used, on the backward pack trains. Gifts are accepted to carry two ten-gallon cans comfortably over the steep passes.

The people of Alaska "live" by the daily newspapers, which keep them in touch, though usually a day behind what the rest of the world is doing. A paper is about to be launched in Anchorage. Most of the towns used to have two dailies, but few can support more than one. By absorption or death the field has been narrowed. The newspapers of the territory are remarkably interesting and newsy, considering the difficulties encountered in keeping them going.

Their editors are nearly all picturesque oldtimers. At the head of the list stands W. P. Thompson, editor of the Fairbanks News-Miner, who has the gift of pointed writing in a remarkable degree. In his annual number, issued just as the Presidential party reached Fairbanks, Thompson told how the News-Miner had been evolved from a large number of other papers, so that it now has "a combination of names as long as your arm." But most people, Thompson said, just call it "that damned sheet."

At Nenana, in the Tanana valley, where President Harding drove the golden spike connecting the two sections of the Alaskan railroad, they have a yearly "ice pool" of $10,000 which to the people of the region corresponds in interest and value the great sweepstakes the Eighth have on the Derby.

The pool goes to the man who comes nearest to predicting the day, hour and minute when the ice goes out of the Tanana River. Poles are stuck into the ice, and when the poles move, the ice is said to have gone out. This spring, five men hit the exact minute and second, and split the pool, $2,000 to each.

Fairbanks is the smallest town in Alaska there is no money smaller than "two bits." They have, it's heard of nickels and dimes there. A great deal of gold changes hands. Also much Canadian silver money. One and two-dollar bills are saved as curios. A haircut costs $1; a shine 25 cents.

Alaska, from the "inside," is a totally different country than from the coast. For one thing, the climate is not nearly so severe. Stefansson, the explorer and Ketchikan's sticky climate give way beyond the first divide on the Seward railroad to warm and reasonable and clear skies. It is warm even hot in the daytime, and delicionally cool at night.

What is a "Sourdough?" The Alaska story asked the question many a time but got no final answer until they met up with Dan Callahan at Fairbanks. Dan is a real "oldtimer," in fact, stands 'em all up. He's been a chain of nuggets that would make a miner's ass's shoulders droop with the weight.

"A sourdough," said Dan, spitting ruminatively into the gutter," is a guy that's been in the Arctic so cold shot three caribou a month, and drank a quart of hard liquor a day.

He laughed.

"We was a preacher here once," he said, "who was an honest to gracious oldtimer. Some fellers were talkin' one day with him about one of 'em not bein' what sourdough meant. Well I've told you. So when that definition was handed to preacher he says, says he, 'I haven't shot a caribou in quite a long time,' he says, he wondered what they was here laughin' at.

The term sourdough came from the baking soda dough, the oldtimers used to make. They'd take a chunk of it and let it stand, using it as needed. In its raw state this douch was rather sour, the chemical action of the heat in bakin' turning it sweet.

PALE FACES AND WORN OUT NERVES

Due Solely to Weak, Watery Blood—A Tonic is Needed

Anaemia—literally impoverished blood—comes on so stealthily that it is often well advanced before its presence is recognized. Paleness of the lips, tongue and discomfort are the earliest manifestations of the trouble and these are often taken lightly. Gradually small tasks become an effort, and exertion causes the heart to palpitate violently. The complexion becomes sallow or pale and there is loss of weight. The nerves grow weak and the victim displays irritability under slight provocation and is extremely sensitive to cold. Food loses appetite is fickle and indigestion often follows.

A condition of anaemia calls for a tonic, one that will enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves, and for this purpose there is nothing can equal Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These pills give the blood all those missing elements necessary to give strength to the nerves, color to the cheeks and nourishment to starved organs and tissues. Miss Margaret J. Fraser, R. R. 2, Tecumseh, Ont. has proved the value of this treatment. She says: "I was very pale and weak. My blood was poor and I was very nervous. I lost my appetite, my feet and ankles were swollen and I was in a most miserable condition. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills and I got two boxes and found by the time were finished that all the symptoms had disappeared. I continued the pills until I had taken a half dozen boxes with the result that I am now strong in the best of health, all symptoms having disappeared. I feel confident that what Dr. Williams Pink Pills did for me they will do for others if given a fair trial."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MAY McAVOY AT GRIFFIN'S

"IN WORTH WHILE PICTURE

If you would learn of the lives of the East Side New Yorkers, to whom the top flat of their tenement house is as much a haven as is the open country to those folks who can afford to go there; if you would learn of their loves and hopes and despairs and temptations, then see "The Top of New York," a Paramount picture starring May McAvoy, which is being exhibited at Griffin's today, matinee and night. The plot narrowly skirts tragedy and Miss McAvoy does some fine acting in this beautiful production.

A very funny Torchy comedy, Pathe News and William Desmond in a new and very interesting chapter of "The Phantom Fortune" serial are being exhibited on the same program.

HERBERT RAWLINSON NOW AT REGENT IN SPEEDY DRAMA

Herbert Rawlinson was particularly fortunate in the matter of support during the filming of his latest Universal production, "Speed Wings and Riches" which is the feature offering at the Regent Theatre today, tomorrow and next night. Included in the cast are such well-known players as Katherine Perry, Tully Marshall, Frank Brownlee, Arthur Hull, two good comedies and a kinogram complete a worth while program.

MARY MILES MINTER IN UNUSUAL SOUTH SEA STORY

"Sonia" the latest of Mary Miles Minter Paramount picture which is to be exhibited at Griffin's this Monday and Wednesday, departs decidedly from the usual run, both of Mary Miles Minter photoplays in particular and South Sea stories in general.

For one thing there isn't a girl in shredded wheat dress as heroine, nor a hero in immaculate white in the whole film, and yet the production seems to possess more interest and color of the tropics than the average run of such pictures.

Ernst Adamson has evolved a most entertaining melodramatic plot which offers Miss Minter splendid acting opportunities and the star is well supported by John Bowers and Walter Long.

"Animal Hearts," a funny Charley Murray comedy, a two-reel Jungle story and Fox News have been arranged for presentation on the same program.

HOUSE PETERS HERE MONDAY IN "MAN FROM LOST RIVER"

A powerful photodrama of conflicting love interests in the heart of the Northwestern lumber camp, is presented by Goldwyn when the Frank Lloyd production of "Man From the Lost River," is shown at the Regent Theatre, this Monday to Wednesday, matinee daily. The story is from the original photoplay written by Katharine Newlin Burt, whose two previous stories, "The Branding Iron" and "Snowblind," have been made into stirring pictures. "The Man From the Lost River" pictures the trials of a powerful, patient lumber camp foreman in "standing by" the girl he loves while in the absence of a millionaire marries her, neglects her and eventually proves his utter unworthiness. As an act of providence strips all the chanciers in the play to their fundamental finances or manners, at the same time that wickedness receives its just reward.

The production is an exceptionally fine performance of the strong lumber camp foreman. Fritzie Brunette as the girl who cannot see her true love lives and Allan Forest is a polished, cultivated weakling.

Osman Digna Known to Fame As Great Guerilla Fighter

May Be Given His Liberty

From 1886 to 1900 British authority was successfully defied by Osman Digna, one of the boldest, or guerilla leaders. Since then he has been a prisoner, though his captivity has been no exceedingly irksome, and now a British member of Parliament wants him released. This may be done, for this desperate character is long past the time of life when he is likely to take up arms again in any cause, and probably has become reconciled to British rule in Egypt. Osman Digna does not deserve to be ranked with great patriot rebels like Garibaldi or even Kossuth. Not from patriotic reasons did he raise the standard of revolt against the Egyptian Government but because the government was interfering with his many profitable lines of business, which was the slave trade. Nevertheless, his rebellion against the detachment of the business activities synchronized with the religious crusade of the Mahdi, and joined forces, Osman becoming the chief lieutenant of the Mahdi, and the real military director of the campaign against the British.

About Osman's lineage there is no good doubt. One theory is that he was the son of a roving Scotchman who left his native Aberdeen, with Hadendowas; another that his grandfather was a Turk who had married a Dongolawi. Any way, he was brought up by the Arabs as a boy but later, with his brothers, in charge of the business at Suakim. The latter became part of the business was a traffic in ostrich feathers, gums, ivory, gold, skins and slaves, to provide African produce in return for more than the merchandise needs. But the most profitable trade was in slaves. In 1870 the slave trade was abolished, and the prosperity of the business of the Osman brothers. For a time it was carried on clandestinely and on a greatly reduced scale, but at last the firm was ruined when a British force captured a boat loaded with slaves, the property of the Osman brothers. Osman determined to revenge himself by stimulating a number of his friends and suggested plans for a revolt, but these friends were cowards.

He was accepted and welcomed, and left with the title "Emir of the Sword of God," and with authority to raise a force to support the holy war. He won over an important Arab tribe which had been under the caravan route from Berber to Suakin, and he succeeded in stirring up a revolt upon to give battle to Tewfik Bey with his irregular levies. Osman's force of 6,000 men defeated Tewfik with heavy loss, and then Osman marched upon Suakin. By this time most of his followers had deserted him, but he was not discouraged, and shortly afterward, by surprise, he captured a considerable Egyptian force. The British, however, his prestige and Arab soldiers flocked to his banner. Those who remained neutral he forced into the Mahdi by threats. By 1883 he had several victories in quick succession due to the fanaticism of his men in taking cover and falling upon unprotected enemies.

THE KAISER'S TRIUMPH

To the cern of Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm in his retreat at Doorn, the rumble and roar of insurgency in the capital of his beloved Germany, must sound ominous.

When the former War Lord was laying his plans for the Grand Conquest he visualized the populace of Paris and London, grovelling at his feet in abject supplicance. He provisioned his attitude as that of the greatest conqueror of all time, visiting upon the conquered peoples, most unmitigated for their temerity in undertaking to interfere with his program.

There was no hint of a distressed Germany or a rabble-ridden Berlin in his bright lexicon of war. And, as a result, sane leaders must undo the wrong wrought by his monarchial anachronisms.

Berlin instead of resounding to the tread of victorious hosts returned in triumph has become a city of fear and famine. Shops are barricaded through fear of spoliation at the hands of frantic mobs, business is demoralized and everywhere the black clouds of despair are lowering.

The sins of the War Lord are being visited upon his people—a costly lesson indeed.

DIFFERENT METHODS

An American citizen, who appears to occupy a domicile on the Canadian side of the border, has voiced a criticism of legislation, or governmental ethics, if you please, which would undoubtedly be echoed throughout Canada and the United States if the plaint of this particular citizen were given wide-spread publicity. He says:

"For years I have subscribed to The New York Times and I always take it with me to my house on the Canadian side of the Niagara River to read it at leisure. Last week, however, I was stopped by the Canadian Custom House officers and my New York Times taken from me with the warning that I was liable to arrest and imprisonment for having it in my possession, as it contained odds on some horse race. This is irritating, but not a whit more ridiculous than our own Eighteenth Amendment and Volstead law. I need scarcely say that the Canadian law has developed a new and flourishing industry which may be called "racing dope bootlegging."

There is little or no difference in the degeneracy of the two great English-speaking peoples of North America as far as legislation is concerned."

The complainant is apparently a radical on the question of "personal liberty". In the incandescence of his wrath he frankly talks of degeneracy.

He weighs Canada's anti-betting legislation against the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act of the United States, but overlooks the fact that both nations have enacted legislation directed at racetrack gambling and traffic id liquor. The prohibitory regulations of Canada evidently have not conflicted with his "personal liberties", whereas the recent anti-race tip law of Ontario has tripped him with an unpleasant suddenness. As a matter of fact the attitudes of both nations regarding betting at the track, is the crossing. There seems to be a sort of satisfaction to some drivers to outdistance a train, freight or passenger, and to wave the hand with satisfaction, combined with insolence, to the engine driver for having to drive such a slow old "boat" of iron.

If there is a determination to shoot ahead, reggaliss as to all risks, it is folly to repent when within a few feet of the crossing and try to stop. That might be the time for the extra spurt, for more gas, and when the grade has been made for the driver to step out of his machine and stay out until he swears never again to be such a fool as to imperil the lives of others just for the sake of riving them a thrill.

FEASIBILITY OF PEACE.
(Buffalo Evening Times)
President Harding in his speech at Vancouver, cited the friendship between Canada and the United States as proof that the people's will, not armed force, is the key to international peace. The example named by the President is a conspicuous one. Peace between this country and Canada has been unbroken for more than a hundred years.

The admonition thus conveyed is the more significant because of the great length of the border territory, and the controversies which from time to time have arisen, and the fact that navigation, commercial, fisheries and power questions are involved. Yet all such issues are settled by peaceful means. That is a conclusive demonstration of the feasibility of peace.

The century of peace between the United States and Canada has on a number of occasions been a theme by prominent Europeans who have realized its value as evidence that peace is practicable.

The application Mr. Harding made of the topics who chiefly in its international bearings, as shown that nations can be at peace if they will. But the amicable relations of the Canadians with ourselves are likewise of a kind strongly to impress local communities, especially those along the frontier of both countries.

To such friendship has the quality of an example next door—something that can be seen in all the proximity and clearness of a neighborhood development. Nowhere is this more so than in Buffalo, a city whose people can see Canada by looking across the river.

In a Belleville courtroom a few days ago a young man, charged with a minor offense appeared for trial without counsel. He questioned a court official concerning the availability of a lawyer's services.

"Well," said the official, "there are two young lawyers sitting over there. You may secure one of them and there is another out in the hall." The prisoner looked the pair over. "I guess I'll take the one out in the hall, he said with a sigh of resignation.

We have often heard of persons being "knocked silly". That auto truck performed the trick neatly when it hit that pedestrian yesterday.

In Peterborough a man was haled before a magistrate charged with being intoxicated.

"What brought you here," thundered the magistrate.

"Two (hic) policemen", replied the culprit.

"Drunk, I suppose", said the magistrate.

"Yes, (hic) both of them".

PRESS OPINIONS

WHISPERING KNOCKERS
(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

The sensational "Whisper of Death" articles published by the Montreal Star have culminated in a veritable bellow. This one is an attack on the Canadian National Railways and the object of the "Whisper" is clearly divulged. It is merely a clear-cut work of propaganda against the National Railways and against the policy of the government in taking them over.

The Beacon tried to put a spoke in the same wheel by refusing to sanction the necessary western extensions of the railway system. This disparagement and criticism will be productive of no other outcome than a firm resolve to place the National Railways upon a paying basis.

Sir Henry Thornton is more than hopeful. He gives two or three years as the probable limit when the system will begin to pay. It is believed by many that in that time deficits will disappear and that in ten years or so the C. N. R. will prove to be one of Canada's best paying investments.

The outlook is not by any means the dismal one that certain public ations would let one suppose. Under the caption of "The Whisper of Life" the Quebec Daily Telegraph sets forth the hopeful outlook and bright prospects awaiting the Dominion. Touching upon the matters of our railway problem it observes: "Our railway problem will be solved in a few years. The present government is struggling with its charge, and in the appointment of Sir Henry Thornton it is generally conceded that it has made no mistake, so far.

"Give the present management time to put the railways upon a paying basis and no government will be happier to be relieved of the task of fostering them into a healthy marketable asset.

"Do the Tories want to hand our National Railway over to the group of company wreckers who are now ruining Canada's fair name and credit in London, and elsewhere?

"If so, the Liberal leader should tour Canada and tell the people exactly how this government was burdened with the railway problem, and what it has accomplished in its economical re-establishment".

LIMITATIONS OF PLANES.
(Singapore Free Press)

As to the value of air vessels to damage warships, there are still great difficulties to be overcome. A plane which will carry a big enough bomb to damage seriously a modern vessel has yet to be devised. If it is intended to drop the bomb on the deck, at least be made armour piercing, and a feeble form of projectile is produced from the small amount of explosive it can carry. Besides bomb dropping from a height which is out of range of anti-aircraft guns is a matter of chance. A bomb intended to fall along side a ship and damage it under water must carry an extremely heavy load of explosive, and outside an exceedingly limited radius it can do no harm.

YANK REFORM FEATURE OF B. B. YEAR

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 11.—(United Press)—When the baseball season opened, the Giants and the Yanks were picked by practically all the experts to repeat as pennant winners.

The Giants were rated good almost to the point of a cinch for the National League pennant, while the Yanks were selected as just about good enough to win the American League honors.

It followed as a surprise then when in mid-season the Yanks had taken unto themselves the role of a cinch and had galloped to a lead of thirteen games, while the Giants were tossed into a fight for their lives with the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The transformation of the Yankees from a rebellious, manager-bucking team of temperamental stars into a smooth working, morale filled organization was one of the most interesting features not only of the baseball season, but of the entire year.

It follows that there were reasons for the rather sudden and long delayed disire of the American League champions to develop harmony and get the best out of what has been for three years a very fine ball club.

There are many theories advanced as to the reasons.

First quoted as the biggest factor in the improvement of the team is the return of the great Babe Ruth.

The swat king, although he is not within striking distance of new slugging marks, is, without doubt, the outstanding figure of baseball to-day. When the jury meets in the fall to vote for the most valuable player in the American League, there is little doubt that Babe Ruth will be elected.

Safety-first methods of the American League pitchers, which caused Ruth to be passed more than one hundred times in half a season, prevented him from setting new marks as a home-run hitter, but it seems certain the the will be the champion slugger of the big league even under that handicap.

With his opportunities to knock balls off the yard were restricted by the refusal of the pitchers to put them in his alley, Ruth switched to his batting style and he developed into a likely candidate for the batting championship of the league. It is almost certain that he will lead the league in runs batted in and runs scored.

With his general improvement at the bat, his fielding also became better. Without the handicap of the surplus weight that he carried last season he developed into a long-range fielder and his arm is second only to that of Bob Meusel, the finest outfielding-peggor in baseball.

Ruth has been "going straight" and the influence of his example no doubt was of benefit of the whole team. At one time, the less illustrious members of the team felt that they were being discriminated against when they were punished for infractions of the training rules while Ruth was able to "get away with murder."

Another theory advanced is that Miller Huggins felt more sure of himself when Col. Jake Ruppert became sole owner of the club by buying out the interest of his partner, Capt. Til Huston.

Huston never liked Huggins. Huston is a military man and he accused Huggins of being lax in the enforcement of discipline. When the players felt that their manager had given them a bad break, they appealed to the "Cap" and, as many times as not, he aided with them.

Perhaps these two factors entered into the transformation. No doubt they did, but they were not enough to overcome entirely the factional spirit that for two years has had the team split two or three ways.

Bob Boyd, smart young writer, who has followed the American League champions for two years, advances the theory, which sounds most logical of all, that it was just the development of common "horse sense" that turned the Yanks into a hard-fighting, well-balanced and smooth-working ball club.

The Yanks felt terribly humiliated after the Giants had made a mess out of them in the world's series last fall, according to Boyd. They felt then and there said that they are a better ball club and they set out this season with the ambition of running away with the pennant in order to show that they have everything outclassed in their league and then to go into the world's series and glow up the Giants.

Factions ceased to exist in the common desire to win. Players who would not speak to other players last season are now friends. Some players are rooming with others that they wouldn't sit next to last year. When card games are started, they are open to all the club. There are no certain chairs and tables for certain players.

The Yanks want the Giants to win the National League pennant. They figure, of course, that their hit would be much more if on behalf of the series was to be played in the enlarged Polo Grounds instead of in Cincinnati or in Pittsburgh. Each of almost equal unpeal is their desire to beat the Giants and show that they are a ball club.

CONSTIPATION

I have talked about the evils of constipation very frequently. That it was the cause of a great many disturbances of that body of yours is now well established. That it affects you mentally, morally, and physically is now acknowledged by all thinking physicians. Perhaps a few suggestions bearing entirely upon the correction of this demoralizing condition will be of help.

The first thing to get established in your mind and body is to try, really try to get a regular time for the evacuation of the bowels every day. Then the drinking of a glass of cold water the first thing in the morning is often just the "shock" your intestine needs to start it working. In fact liquids are usually of help in controlling the condition.

However, if you are weak, flaccid, and your abdominal walls are weak it is as well not to use too much in the way of liquids. Use plenty of vegetables and fruits every day. The "roughage" of root vegetables is particularly valuable in stimulating the intestine into activity. Then the most effective thing of all and requiring only four minutes a day are the simple exercises of bending from side to side with knees straight, lying on the back and raising the body forward and also raising the legs with knees straight.

Many people suffer with constipation who would secure almost instant relief if they would learn to stand properly. Perhaps they are not strong, may be lazy, but they stand with the shoulders drooped, and the abdomen sagging.

An X-ray of a test meal in these people shows a great "delay" in the passage of this meal through the large intestine. This sagging position actually plows up the action of the large intestine which propels the waste matter from the body.

So get busy with above suggestions and you'll get results. Remember that an abdominal support will help in the meantime, as it will take some time to develop abdominal muscles and acquire a better standing position.

McLAUGHLINS WIN FROM RAILROADERS

McLaughlin's came into their own last night and succeeded in winning from the Grand Trunks by the close score of 2-0. It was a nice game and air-tight fielding coupled with little hitting and great pitching kept those fans present on edge throughout the whole piece. The Macs have now stepped on the accelerator, as seven up on them, Stub's gang were right on their toes last night and fielded a la N. Y. Giant style. Amos Moyer and "Heavy" Saylor were going great guns all night. Earl Chapman made his official bow to the fans and made a great hit.

Grand Trunk defeated Tweed ball team at Tweed yesterday afternoon 7-3. Oulette and "Cap" Smith hurled for locals and Keon pitched a nice game for the Tweed squad. Harry Mills hit a homer with Weir on base, and "Pennie" who played center field for the first time since he was injured got four safeties out of five times up. Hagerman got three safeties out of four times up to bat. Rose did not play yesterday, otherwise there was the regular line-up. Both Hart and Hugh Cummins, last year with the Lindsay Greybirds, were struck out every time they faced Oulette their old playing companion. Owing to the death of John Countryman, at that town, the garden party was not held in the evening.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D.C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a bad case of female trouble. My system was all run-down, everywhere after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, take sewing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down." You may use this testimonial for I am only too grateful for suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. Ida Brewer, 1623 Penna. Ave., S.E., Washington, D.C.

Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Preserving and Other Favourite Recipes

APPLE BUTTER

One bushel apples, eight quarts sweet cider. Cover and boil until tender. Rub the pulp through a strainer and cook thirty minutes longer, then measure. For each gallon add eight ounces sugar, eight teaspoons ground cloves, eight teaspoons ground cinnamon. Stir and boil twenty minutes longer. Put into jars and seal with paraffin.

This will keep as long as any other canned fruit, but care must be taken to see that there is no decay on any of the fruit when ready for the kettle, and it must be thoroughly cooked. Apple sauce can be prepared in this way by any housewife as a matter of economy at times and feel. When several jars of other fruit become emptied fill them with apple sauce. Apples that have not good keeping qualities may to thus used.

CITRON PRESERVE

Two pounds citron, two pounds sugar, two cups water two lemons, and small piece of ginger root to flavour. Wash the citron, cut in half and remove the seeds, then cut into eighths, then into small bits as desirable, then drain and cover with clear, cold water four or five hours. Remove skin, drain and cook until clear in the syrup in which the lemon and ginger-root have been added. Fill jars and seal as you would any fruit cooked by the open kettle method.

Cut the fruit into stripes one inch square and one-eighth inch thick. Prepare ginger by cutting and slicing thinly and boiling one hour in a syrup of equal parts sugar and water. Slice lemons as for marmalade. Put all in a preserving kettle and let stand twenty four hours, after adding an equal weight of sugar. Boil about one and one-half hours or until fruit is transparent, and can.

TIPS TO HOUSEWIVES

Add a little soda to the water in which you wash the greasy cooking utensils and see how much labor you save.

A soiled clothesline can be wrapped around the washboard and, thoroughly scrubbed with a brush and hot soapsuds.

Clean your patent leather shoes with milk or a little sweet oil. If the shoes have become wet and the leather has hardened, soften them with vaseline.

The vinegar left from pickled beets is sometimes used in salad dressing instead of regular vinegar. It adds a pretty color and a delightful flavor and makes for variety.

Has your hot water bottle a leak? If it is from a broken spot in the rubber it may be fixed with layers of mending tissue larger than the hole. Place a piece of tissue, hold it on with a warm iron and continue until four or five have been set. Let it get cold and harden for a day or more before using.

Why Babies thrive on 'Allenburys'
BABIES denied an adequate supply of nature's food, D thrive on the 'Allenburys' Milk Foods. These foods are almost identical in composition with Mother's milk, and can be used alternately with breast feeding, without causing any digestive disturbance. If necessary, they can replace the mother's milk entirely from the time of birth.
The 'Allenburys' series of foods provides the progressive dietary necessary if the child is to thrive.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"Do of know why Emslithmen make the best soldiers, parson?" said Podmore, starting. "No, can't say I do." "Because my lad, they never know when they are beaten." Now, you are not beaten yet. Good bye."

He held out his hand and the great grimy, horny palm of the workman came dow nlato it with a loud clap, as Mike gave him the answer. each ale would have been unpleasant to say walnut between their palms.

Then they parted, taking different routes, and ten minutes later the Reverend Murray Belwood was walking quietly through the empty town street, quite conscious though that head after head was being thrust out to have a look at the stranger.

There was the usual sprinkling of shops and private houses, great blank brick and stucco dwellings, the latter tortured into civilized form came painfully to the front from time to time. Stucco hung heavily in the hot air—always tinged with lurid flame; and above all came the roar of the reverberating furnaces. Now and then some shop was being fitted for the castings which had made out-of-the-way, half-country Emslith, with its smooth, independent people, famous throughout the length and breadth of the land.

There were very few people visible for the works had not yet begun to pour forth their contents into the town, but there were plenty of big rough lads hanging about the corners of the streets.

It wonder what sort of order the schools are in," said the new vicar to himself, as he came to the end of the ward which he was bending his steps meaning to glance round before entering the town proper, "I wonder what sort of a condition they are in. Bad, I fear. Very bad, I'm sure," he added.

For at that moment a great lump of furnace refuse, or glass, there known as a slag, struck him a heavy blow in the back.

He turned sharply, but not a soul was visible, and he stooped and picked up the lump, which was "nearly equal in size to his fist.

"Why, he didn't aimed it, very bad," he said. "Well I'll take you to my new home, and you shall have the first position in the cabinet of specimens, being kept as a memorial of my welcome to Dumford."

"Well," he said, as he reached the church gate, "I've made two friends already, and—perhaps—and enemy. By Jove, there's a pleasant brick!"

Chapter III

AT THE FOUNDRY HOUSE.

Mrs. Giles lived in a great blank-looking red-brick house in the main street, two ugly steep stone steps coming down from the front door on to the narrow kidney pebble path, and encroaching upon the way that they were known as the tipsy-turvies, in consequence of the number of excited Dumfordites who fell over them for the most sober wayfarer, and in a town with Local Board would have been condemned as a nuisance.

The ugliness of the Foundry House, as it was called, only dwelt on the side giving on the street; the back opened upon an extensive garden, inclosed by mighty red-brick walls, for the protection of the property by the dense foliage, which made fine old garden a bushy wilderness of shady lawn, walk, and shrubbery.

For Mrs. Giles was great upon flowers in fact, after dressing herself, her greatest study stood at the top of her affections, even before her niece, Eve, whom she loved very dearly all the same.

Mrs. Giles was a little busy act of a woman, with a pleasant, fair face, framed round with two tufts of little fussy blonde curls, which ought to have been bunge grey, but would not be screwed up so tightly that they took delight in sticking out at all kinds of angles. Her dress was a perfect wanton—those with the rough reds—that had been untwisted by Mrs. Giles' own hands, and were as far as to stick straight up.

On the morning when the new vicar called, Mrs. Giles, Eve, and Mrs. Flaire was out in her garden busy. She had on her brown holl's apron, and her hands were full of the basket of which seemed to cut deeply into her little chin, and altogether did not look as though she possessed a single grace. A little basket was in one hand half filled with the dead leaves of rose-bushes, and in the other she was ling off with the large garden scissors she held in the other hand—scissors which, for the time being, seemed were attached to a silken cord, evidently the former trimming of some lady's work-table attire, and the cord was tied round her waist.

She had two attendants—Prince Rupert and Master Dudd—Jacky, for it was the peculiarity of Dumford that everybody was known by a name of distinction, or of his Christian name, or else by a sobriquet more quaint than pleasant.

Thus we had a King Charles spaniel, with the shortest of snub noses, the most preposterous of bulging eyes, and long silky ears that nearly swept the ground. Prince had a weakness for cats, and he had been led into such a state of rotundity that he had long ceased running and barking even at cats, against which he was supposed to have a wonderful antipathy, and he passed his time as a rule in the couch grass by the path when he was lying down, and wheezing when he was standing up, and where he could generally help it did no move from the position in which he was placed.

SCHOOL GIRL OF FIFTEEN WINS FAME AS ARTIST

When Pamela Rieman was only four years old her parents were surprised to find that she could draw pictures. They were not at all like the scribbly drawings that little children usually make, and they couldn't understand how she could draw so well without being taught. Of course they thought their child was wonderful, as all parents should, but when her little drawings were shown to a world-renowned artist and he exclaimed over them and said that surely little Pamela was a genius, they knew that they were right.

Pamela has spent most of her time ever since drawing and painting, and now when she is only fifteen years old her pictures are being exhibited in art galleries side by side with those of the greatest artists, and critics are amazed at the perfection they show in every detail. Her work is so natural for her that it seems that her pictures grew under her hands in pearli without any effort at all. She has a style of art that is distinctly her own and the only four the admirers of her pictures have is that she will be influenced too much by the work of older artists.

Her father is Italian, so it is probable that Pamela inherits her talent from the early Italian masters. Critics say that her work also shows a spirited thoughtfulness which she has inherited from her English mother. The birds and flowers, the sea and the mountains; everything in nature seems to tell beautiful stories for her to which she transfers to her canvas for others to enjoy too.

Are you one who succumbed to the delicious puddings made from tapioca by your mother? Are you resigned to try to eat the same old puddings and say that you like them? If so, read and learn to know all about it you housewives who have not yet discovered in the American Museum of Natural History, one of the primitive utensils used in making the delicacy and can now buy it in this city. In order to make the trip, we would describe the utensil and tell you to go to Charles W. Mead of that institution and he will tell you all about it. Those persons who know that tapioca was made from the starchy root of the cassava plant, a tropical shrub about six feet in height.

The utensil is very primitive, to say the least. Two species of cassava are cultivated, the bitter and the sweet cassava. The first, the more useful of the two, contains a large quantity of acid and cannot be eaten in its natural state, but in the latter the qualities are quickly dissipated by heat. The tapioca factory from which the tapioca is made has the sweet variety in abundance and is used as a table vegetable. Both the bitter and sweet cassava are found in the tropical South America. The former has been cultivated for many beneficial properties, and is very extensively cultivated in the western part of Africa and in the East Indies and Archipelago. Its starch, in the form of tapioca, is a staple article of food, and is considered well to resist frost and other South temperate conditions. It is largely sold under the name of Brazilian arrowroot. The roots are sometimes sliced, dried and grated, to be made into cassava bread.

The juice compressed from the poisonous roots becomes the Indian way of making a large piece of cassava cake. The juice is boiled down and set forth on a board studded with hundreds of small pegs, each with the root is reduced to pulp. When a sufficient quantity has been grated for the next step is to press as much water as possible from the pulp. For this purpose a long, narrow tube of basketwork is used. The pulp is forced into the tube, which is then hung from one of the loops. Through the lower loop is inserted a long, stout stick, which in turn is run under some convenient object like a chair, or a fallen tree. The woman then upon six to ten and of the stick, her weight stretching out the grass and forcing the liquid through the interstices of the basketwork. This liquid is caught in a pottery trough, and the pulp prepared in the manner stated above.

The wet mass is taken from the press and spread on a very large, flat dish of pottery having a raised rim, under which a fire is built. If stirred rapidly the preparation is converted into tapioca in large masses and quickly agglomerated into small, irregular pellets—the tapioca of commerce."

God asks us to do only one thing at a time.

Because a man has a slop to mind in time and place, since flesh must live,

Needs spirit lack all life behind, Or brain run dry as soon as fuel gives? All loves except what trade can give!

Safety Lessons For Auto Drivers

Safety Lessons for the Auto Driver, prepared by the National Safety Council; issued by the Ontario Safety League.

NO. 2.—AUTOMOBILES AND PEDESTRIANS.

No laws prohibit pedestrians from using the streets. In fact, pedestrians have equal rights on the streets with automobile and other vehicles, but because some pedestrians use the streets needlessly and incautiously, there is a cause for the drivers of motor vehicles not taking every possible to avoid injuring pedestrians.

Pedestrians still greatly out-number drivers, and if the drivers as a rule become too careless, pedestrians can pass (or cause to be passed) laws that so restrict the use of motor vehicles that their efficient operation would no longer be possible. We as drivers can think of many laws that if enacted and enforced could limit the movement of the pedestrian, but until such laws are passed we must remember that the law is usually on the side of the pedestrian.

Automobile drivers must be especially careful to avoid injuring pedestrians who cross the street at the middle of the block. They are jaywalkers, but that does not absolve us of responsibility.

Many accidents happen at regular crossings. If pedestrians do not or will not pay attention to your horn, remember that some people are deaf, while others are mentally deficient, and that hundreds of people are using the streets whose mind age, youth, infirmities, and physical defects would throw all the responsibility of an accident upon you.

Be especially careful when two or more people are crossing the street together. Quite often before an approaching automobile one person may dodge, or they may separate and go in opposite directions.

Above all, do not unnecessarily or suddenly quicken your horn. Pedestrians may be easily frightened and temporarily "paralyzed."

Drivers should stop 5 feet behind the open door of street cars which have stopped to load or unload passengers.

People who have just alighted from a trolley car are sometimes bewildered and do not know which way to go. Give them plenty of time to get their bearings before attempting to proceed.

Regardless of whom you think is at fault, if your car injures or kills some other person, you are usually held responsible.

Moreover, no matter who was to blame, and in spite of large sums of money paid for "damages," the dead cannot be brought to life, nor could anything or anybody console you in case the one killed happened to be your wife, your child, or some one else near and dear to you.

Harding Is Laid To Rest

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 11.—His own home folk accorded simple final personal honors to President Warren G. Harding here yesterday.

Not with crashing volleys and the wailing notes of "Taps", but with old-fashioned, homely ceremonies that might be accorded any leading citizen of Marion, the twenty-sixth president of the United States was laid to rest by his fellow townsmen.

It was a home funeral, attended by the home folks of Marion and of Washington, and of nearly every state in the union. The pall that was placed by thousands was a tribute yesterday by thousands was a tribute to Harding the citizen and friend, and Harding the president.

All morning as the body lay in state in the home of his father, George T. Harding, on East Centre street, a continuous file of people passed through the house, past the simple bier and cut again on to the street. Middlemen gilded into throngs of citizens eager to pay their last respects to Warren Harding.

In preparation for the funeral, all the downtown streets and State street, leading to the cemetery, were freed from motor and street car traffic. Only official cars of President Coolidge's party or those directly connected with the funeral were permitted in cars on those streets. Yet, at the expressed wish of Mrs. Harding, everybody had a chance to pass through the house and view the body.

The new president, the secretary of state, the chief justice of the supreme court, any many other dignitaries, joined with Mr. Harding's friends and associates to pay their last respects.

In the final act of the great national drama, which started in San Francisco and extended across the continent, the body was carried to a hearse in Marion cemetery and interred in a receiving vault.

In life he was President, but in death he became again Warren Harding of Marion, plain, honest, upright gentleman. And he was entombed with simple service as he had told them loving woman who turned away from the vault to-day to take up again the things of life he would no longer share, he wished to be.

The flags of presidents, carried by a friend in many nations; the little sod from the White House, where men watch over his sleep had ended; the flowers heaped mountains high, beside the dead man's bier; the thousands of silent onlookers; the little group of highest officials of the government and including his successor, these alone marked the entombment as that of a president. And those rather the relics of the dead nor the desire of the grief-stricken widow could avert, for they came from the heart of the nation.

CRASH OF MARK BLAMED BY MASON ON DELIBERATE GERMAN POLICY

By J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press).

New York, Aug. 11.—The collapse of the German mark is the result of deliberate avoidance of imposing adequate taxation on the German people. The Germans are paying scarcely more than 1 per cent. of the government's expenses in taxation. The rest of the expenses are being met by the flood of paper money.

The only way Germany can put such huge amounts of paper in circulation is by printing the money instead of collecting taxes, and then using the fiat paper to pay the reparations bills. This policy has been deliberately adopted by the Berlin government for the same reason that it is pursued by Russia—to save the people from being taxed.

THE PEOPLE SUFFER

But the result is developing into chaos, and the people themselves are the chief sufferers. The financiers of Germany are making the most gigantic gamble in modern history. If the flight of the mark should finally result in its surrendering in the Ruhr, through fear of a Bolshevik revolution, or flight to England into Great Britain, it will render though fear of the dismemberment of Germany, then the financiers in Berlin will have won. They will not have to find the money for an adequate indemnity. But if France holds fast and if Europe refuses to be bluffed by the German move, then Germany will not only be forced to its indemnity but also will have had no recompense for the enormous suffering being caused by the artificial depreciation of the mark.

Every fall of Germany's paper currency is supposed to be followed not by an automatic raise in wages, based on a price index number of the average quotations for a large group of commodities. On the first of each month the government and private employers determine what the wages of employees shall be for that month by the price index system.

WAGES BEHIND THE MARK

But this method is always a month behind the falling mark. What the mark is worth on the first of the month cannot determine its value during the remainder of the month. It may be worth only one-half as much on the fifteenth as on the first, and under present conditions it often is. Yet the wage determined on the first holds likewise for the fifteenth and the thirty-first.

The wage earning class of Germany therefore, is paid after each up with the mark's real value. Prices of commodities change daily and sometimes hourly, while wages change monthly. The German financiers who have deliberately depressed the mark for political and monetary reasons of their own, have not taken into consideration the sufferings of the masses of the people. This is a full exemplification of the German militaristic methods which never regarded the common soldiers as other than machines.

BLIND OBEDIENCE

The German people have been accustomed for so many years to discipline that the financiers have been allowed to work their will without protest, under the mistaken idea that harmony was being benefited.

Signs at last are appearing that the German masses are beginning to realize how they have been imposed upon. The stabilization of the mark must therefore be brought about by protectorist action, through the realization that sound money is the workingman's best friend.

INFLUX OF VISITORS TAXES MONTREAL HOTELS TO UTMOST

Montreal, August 11.—The tremendous influx of visitors into Montreal during the past week from the United States, Western Ontario and the Canadian West, has taxed the hotel accommodation to its utmost. In fact it has been impossible to entirely cope with the situation. Pullman cars on the railroads have been commissioned and retained as sleeping quarters during their stay in the Metropolis, while hundreds of motorists have retired to the outskirts of the city, parked their cars and used them as sleeping compartments. Not only have the railroads been taxed to their limit, but never in the history of tourist traffic on the St. Lawrence river have the huge fleets of the Canada Steamship Lines been taxed as during the past week. The vessels out of Toronto for Montreal and the Thousand Islands, with a call at Prescott, Cornwall and Kingston, have been carrying hundreds, and almost a thousand every day, including representatives from all parts of the middle west to the gigantic convention of the Knights of Columbus at Montreal. The boats have been full to capacity and since yesterday afternoon, it has only been with considerable difficulty and contrary that the company have been able to adequately handle the huge crowd. On arrival at the mid-river section they were transferred to the Rapids boats for the final swing and the exhilarating thrills experienced on the way to Montreal. Of the fifteen thousand delegates to Montreal it is estimated that the Canada Steamship Lines handled the majority, who travelled by way of Toronto and the famous Thousand Island river route to the Metropolis, and then to the new-inspiring Saguenay river, while hundreds also made the trip to Quebec and St. Annes de Beaupre, requisitioning in many cases half of the accommodation available on the Montreal to Quebec service.

several years in New York and is said to have grown rich in the "bootleg" liquor traffic before retiring to Naples.

"Persons who seemed to be above suspicion," says Il Corriere D'America (New York), "were at the head of the organization—millionaires who frequented the best hotels, professional men who carried on their criminal operations in every region of Italy. It seems that the false passports were made by New York, sent to Naples via Marseilles and from there distributed throughout Italy. Many of those thousands have been robbed in this way."

Closely associated with the passport fraud is an incident, lately reported, concerning an Italian who months ago by a well known liner, out of Naples for New York. Attentionset his money in the steamer by the fact that she was obliged to ship a new crew at Naples, the old crew having deserted, a thorough police inspection discovered nothing wrong at the time when she was ready to put to sea. So fewer than 100 clandestine immigrants were found to be aboard. All were sent back to Italy following their arrival in New York.

Confessed to Authorities

Many of them confessed to the authorities in Naples that they had paid as much as ten thousand lire each to the passport agency which dodged them safe conduct and free admission to the United States. Incidentally, the amount of cash paid separately from the helpless steerage passengers during the trip from Naples and Marseilles to their victims if they decked protest, the strange crew deserted en masse when the boat reached New York.

Even at the present rate of exchange the initial payment of ten thousand lires comes to more than the most favored passengers pay for first class accommodation on the same voyage. All that these miserable dupes received was a round trip in steerage, broken hearts and bankruptcy.

Immigrants Robbed by Counterfeit Passports

Swindlers Even Imitate the Seal Used by United States Officials — Many Immigrants Turned Back

New York, Aug. 7 (United Press).—Wholesale counterfeiting of passports for travel to the United States, by a group of conspirators centering about Naples and with confederates apparently residing in New York was disclosed by activity of the Italian during June and July.

The thoroughgoing nature of these swindlers is shown in the fact that they embellished their fraudulent documents with facsimiles to the seal and signature of the king's attorney and the seals o fthe American embassy and consulate at Rome and Naples.

As early as May, this year, the liner "Patria," en route to New York touched Naples with fifty persons among her passengers, whose passports the authorities found to be counterfeit. Investigation by the Italian police disclosed traces of a general conspiracy and brought about the arrest of two suspects on whose persons were found blank passport certificates, already stamped with the official seal and signature. Further inquiry led to the seizure, on July 3 of fifteen additional prisoners, among them cases of prominence and of great wealth, according to advices to the Foreign Language Information Service.

Early in July the steamer "Conte Verde" was found upon her arrival in New York to have aboard five passengers whose papers were false, although adorned with good imitations of the seals used by American embassy and consular officials. Deportation of these immigrants coincided with vigorous activity by the Italian police and the arrest of those who it is said organized the conspiracy.

Robbed by Swindlers

Investigation has been aided by the disappointment of those in Southern Italy who have been rendered penniless by the swindlers and subjected to the ridicule of fellow villagers across the Atlantic. The alleged organizer of the group, now in custody, is a man who lived for several

NO RECORD OF MASON'S ARREST

Murderer of Taxicab Driver in Britain Said to Have Been Convicted Here

NAME NOT LISTED

Police Say He May Have Been Arrested Here Under an Alias

The Toronto Star of Saturday, carried a story concerning the English Taxicab murderer, Alexander Campbell Mason, alias "Harry Mason," who it stated was sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary from Belleville, on a charge of shop breaking and theft. He was deported by the Immigration Department in 1921.

This morning, Clerk of the Court John Newton, went over his records very carefully, back as far as the end of 1916, but no where on the records was there a prisoner by either name.

"He would certainly be listed here if he were tried in this court, and in this city," explained ex-Chief Newton.

"He has either used another alias, has never been tried in the police court, or else The Star is mistaken in the city," he continued.

"Grim" Melville is "credited with Brockville in Toronto newspapers.

During the war "Harry Mason," as he is known in the Canadian army records, enlisted in the royal navy Canadian volunteer reserve, but deserted and was not again heard of officially until the police began to inquire into his record. His file at the naval department shows that he was born in Montana, where his mother still lives, but had spent some time in the Canadian west.

Mason's sentence to death for the murder of a Brixton taxicab driver has been commuted to imprisonment for life.

London, Aug. 13—Considerable surprise and some criticism has been caused by the Home Secretary's recommended reprieve of Alexander Campbell, Mason, ex-Canadian convict and deserter from the Canadian Navy, who was sentenced to death for the murder of Jacob Dickey, taxicab driver.

Mason, who accused his friend Vivian of the murder, was convicted on Vivian's evidence. He made a very remarkable statement after sentence in which he admitted he had a fair trial, but asserted that he was the innocent. No reason has been given for the Home Secretary's action.

TORONTO NEWSBOY KILLED BY AUTO

Driver, Who Strikes Five-Year-Old Child, Held

Toronto, Aug. 13.—Within three minutes after he was struck by a motor car driven by Antonio Rocco, 323 Danforth Avenue, shortly after 10 o'clock on Saturday night, at Danforth and Woodbine Avenue, William Morse, 5 Keystone Avenue, died of his injuries in the office of Dr. D. Clapp, Danforth Avenue. The remains were removed to the Morgue, where an inquest will be opened to-night. Morse, a driver of the car, is under arrest on a charge of manslaughter. He was refused bail, pending the outcome of the coroner's investigation.

"Spooning" Menace In Derby Township, Not Problem Here

Up in Georgian Bay district, especially in Derby Township, another and a new pest is worrying the sturdy farmer. This pest works by the light of the moon, and is more annoying than the extended drought. This new nuisance is "spooning motorists." So hard do they spoon that the hired men do not have the opportunity of relaxing in the three or four hours allotted to them for that purpose.

Way up in Derby Township, the concession lines are blocked with car loads of "spooners." They must certainly have a Spooners' club there. When the moon glides behind a motor car thusly, the sight which is silhouetted there is certainly the "easy to look at" for many of the revered residents of the locality.

Lately, legislation from the Derby township council asked that a by-law be passed prohibiting the parking of cars in Derby township between sunset and sunrise. It was suggested in opposition that this would encourage the drive-in theatre. But the solicitor spoiled the whole thing. He said the township had no "power to pass such a by-law."

The consoling fact, however, is that like occurrences are not being recorded in this vicinity. There is no Bridge Street in Belleville, and never be approached by such temptations, pressing for their gratification. Apparently, Belleville has "moonlight motorists" when seen by The Intelligencer, stated that he was positive that a car stopped on the main arteries of Belleville or their tributaries, unless for repairs, or broken down in some manner.

When asked if there ever were many cars which refused to be operate on the same road, at approximately the same time, he stated that he was off for work, and had better be "getting there."

YOUTH DROWNED IN LAKE AT PORT HOPE

Port Hope, Aug. 13—Edward Nelson, 18 years of age, son of Mr. Lorenzo Bebb of Morrish, was drowned while bathing in the lake here yesterday afternoon. Bathing with three companions, left the shore in an old raft, and when nearing the end of the pier they all jumped into the water. There was a very heavy sea rolling, and it was with difficulty that any of the party reached the pier.

Jack Eakins would doubtless have been drowned if it had not been for the assistance given by Eaton Darcy and Jack Tweed was almost exhausted when brought to shore by Alfred Stagg.

Bebee was carried out to the breakwater and went down before help could reach him.

Bergdoll Kill An Alleged Kidnaper

Eberback, Baden, Aug. 12.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the United States draft evader, shot down and killed Charles Alexander Gardner, when man concealed in his apartment of a hotel, seized him with the intention of kidnapping him.

Two other men waiting outside in the old U. S. Army automobile with which Bergdoll has eluded the police were arrested after being menaced by a crowd. The German authorities said no one in the United States may possess an and the other a Russian prince.

GIRL INJURED IN AUTO MISHAP

Car, Driven by Peterboro Man Turns Turtle Near Smithfield

OTHERS BRUISED

Girl, Who Suffered Fractured Arm, One of Pair of Hikers From U.S.

At 10.30 on Sunday morning, an auto accident occurred at the high bridge near Smithfield, on the Provincial highway. A Mr. Mercer, of Peterboro was driving westward in a Ford touring car with his wife, three children and two girl hikers from New York who had been picking on the road and were en route to Kingston. Just at the east approach of the bridge from some cause the car swerved, and going over an embankment, turned turtle. Other autos were in close proximity at the time, amongst them being one driven by ex-Mayor Hanna, of this city who assisted in righting the overturned car.

One of the girl hikers suffered the most serious injury, sustaining a broken arm and numerous lacerations. The other occupants of the car escaped with a shock about the face and abrasions about the body. At Brighton a physician rendered first aid after which the party proceeded to Trenton where their injuries were attended.

The top of the touring car was damaged and the wind shield was shattered. The car was in a condition to run by 4.30 p.m. when after temporary repairs had been made.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 13.—President Coolidge will not permit a coal strike, it was said here after a conference between John Hays Hammond, Chairman of the Coal Fact Finding Commission and Governor Oris Phelps, a member of that commission, who had hurried to Mr. Hammond's Gloucester home after a conference with the President in Washington Saturday. Dr. Smith returned to Washington last night.

Mr. Hammond announced after the conference that he would go to Washington to see President Coolidge on the coal situation either Tuesday or Wednesday. It was also announced that a day or so after the conference in Washington anthracite mine operators and miners' officials would be held in New York.

Col. Wright Dodges Bullets Behind Range at Peekskill

New York, Aug. 13.—While inspecting new ground acquired by the State to enlarge the military camp at Peekskill, Colonel William R. Wright, acting Chief of Staff and post executive officer, was caught in the fire of machine guns yesterday, but escaped unhurt.

Colonel Wright had reached a point behind the target and was concealed by brush when the New York National Guardsmen began target practice. Bullets whizzed all around him, but he quickly got under cover. The 2,000 acres of wooded land was bought recently by the State, and Colonel Wright was looking it over to see about laying out roads and setting up field ranges.

Some of them have worked in the harvest fields previously, while others are making their initial trip to the Canadian West. I.O.O.F. GRAVES ARE DECORATED

Lodges Hold Annual Decoration Parade and Service

On Sunday afternoon, August 12th the members of Hungerford Lodge No. 248, I. O. O. F. held their annual decoration service. The parade formed at the lodge room at Front Street, and headed by the Band of the Northumberland County Regiment under Bandmaster R. T. Cowell and followed by Canton Belleville, No. 5, under Capt. E. M. Joby and members of Sidney Encampment of Belleville formed the district. A number of Rebekahs of Loch Lomond Lodge, N. 248, Campbellford, and Rebekahs of the City of Belleville followed in automobiles.

On arriving at the cemetery the band played "Nearer My God to Thee." Rev. Harry Anderson explained the meaning of the gathering and Bro. J. Dewar, Chaplain, read the Order Service. The members then marched around and decorated the graves of 14 deceased members that sleep in the outside world that, although they are dead, they are ever remembered. Bro. Rev. H. T. Cowell addressed the gathering, taking as his subject the one word, "Remembered." The members all stood with bared heads while the band played "Nearer My God to Thee." The parade then returned to the lodge room to disband. The attendance of the Canton in full uniform was a great attraction as this was their first visit to Campbellford.

RED LIGHTS FAIL TO HALT AUTOISTS

Barricades and Warning Signals Knocked Down on Trent Road

Every morning it is necessary for employees on the Provincial Highway to put up barricades which have been knocked down by motorists on the Trent road, during the night, so The Intelligencer was informed this morning. There are several barricades, well lighted with red lanterns, two feet apart, placed by the supervisor, across culverts, which are being widened, not the two permanent concrete bridges which have been erected. In warnings to motorists of the presence on the road side of road machinery.

Despite the fact that the red lights show plainly, the motorists bump into them almost nightly, and Saturday night, a lantern placed on the small wooden bridge altogether, driving to the south side of the red light, over the bridge and into the new culvert. The car was slightly damaged.

Driving between this city and Trenton last week-end about 12 Belleville motorist counted 78 cars which met him while almost as many were counted coming from Trenton. On narrow culverts, the cars were parts clearly careful last evening, he stated, in avoiding the two recently put over the culvert, and the speed of all cars was very moderate.

ASSAILANT OF GIRL IS SOUGHT

Posses Scour Neighborhood for Man Who Outraged Girl Near Ottawa

VICTIM NEAR DEATH

Found Terribly Beaten After Being Left in Secluded Spot by Attacker

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—Practically the whole countryside at Billing's Bridge, Ottawa, was out all Saturday night and most of Sunday morning engaged in a man-hunt for the author of one of the most dastardly outrages committed in the history of Carleton county, whereby Hazel Mockett, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Mockett, well-to-do farmer of Billing's Bridge, lies at her parents' home almost at death's door.

The unfortunate girl, attacked by an unknown man, but of whom the police have a fairly accurate description, within a quarter of a mile of her home and broad daylight, was found lying about the face and throat by her assailant, who, after dragging her into a shed, again beat her, and then apparently left her for dead.

Miss Mockett's plight was not discovered for some time later, when, as she failed to return home for supper, an older sister sent in search of her found her with her features almost unrecognizable, and hardly able to stagger along the road home.

Physicians who were called declared her story and the news spread like wildfire through the countryside. Scores of motorists and neighbours assisted by the police, were scattered through Billing's bush in the direction the assailant was supposed to have taken, but, although the search was kept up all night, no trace of him was seen.

Stowaway Youth Reaches Canada, Is Held At Napanee

Frank Morin, a young English lad of fourteen years was apprehended by Chief of Police Barrett at Napanee, last night. The boy although of tender years has had a varied career and has seen a good part of the world.

About two months ago, while living in London with his father and mother he and a chum decided to run away and seek adventure. By various devices they worked their way to Liverpool where they were able to elude the officials and board the Montreal as stowaways. After having been on the ocean for a few days they were discovered by the ship's officers and put to work. When the vessel docked at Montreal the boy was successful in dodging the immigration officials but his chum was caught and sent back home. The youth managed to beat his way to Quebec City where he worked for a short time and then boarded for Ottawa. While at the capital the youngster was taken in charge by the Children's Aid Society. He escaped from there and, boarding a freight train, he finally reached Carlwall. After being there for a few days the police placed him in the lock-up but when he was sent to scrub the floor of the cells he was able to effect a get-away. Riding the bumpers to Deseronto he was arrested several times by detectives. Finally he fell into the hands of Chief Barrett who took charge of him and placed him in his breakfast. Meanwhile he may try to get in communication with his parents.

The boy seems anxious to secure employment of some sort. He hopes to reach Prescott where his brother-in-law resides and where he told he might gain a job. He is smart and witty and no doubt if educated would make a very loyal Canadian. He is ambitious and optimistic regarding his stay in Canada. His fare does not appear to possess any criminal instincts and foster parents would undoubtedly have no trouble in rearing him to be an honest, straight-forward man.

MANY GUESTS AT ROTARY LUNCH. DR. MARR, CHIEF SPEAKER, IS STRUCK BY PROSPERITY HERE

There were ten guests at Rotary club luncheon here today. Rotarian F. A. Brophy of Ottawa, F. B. Pringle, Huntingdon, P. Que., G. M. Jamieson, Toronto, H. C. Moore, Toronto, Alderman Harry Thompson, Belleville, A. E. Reid, Toronto, T. Sloan, Boston, Mass., William Nugent, Belleville, Rev. Dr. Marr of Edinburgh, Scotland and William Reed, M.P.P. for West Hastings.

Belleville Rotarians have been extended a hearty welcome to such Toronto Rotes whenever they are in the city and are desirous of playing a game of golf. By calling at the address given, they may play on any course in the Queen city.

Next Monday evening, the Rotarians will meet at the Country Club and observe a ladies' night event.

Rev. Dr. Marr, who is relieving Rev. A. S. Kerr, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here for the summer months, was pleased to hear such weighty individuals enter into the sing-song as he did, According to Dr. Marr, Belleville, which is French for beautiful city, does not belie her name, for Belleville reminds Marr of a quaint town in Southern France.

Dr. Marr's remarks to be the keynote in this city," exclaimed the speaker, "for I notice that almost everyone drives a motor car. Over in poor Scotland, only the richest own an afford a car. The people are prosperous as a 20 hp. car is $150, and petrol costs 75 cents per gallon."

Dr. Marr was pleased to notice, too, that there was practically no unemployment in this city, as in Scottish cities, any man who was strong and willing to work cannot get it, and idle their lives away about the street. Unconventionalities of the Canadian visit impressed the speaker, who states that the "Scotties" are still too suspicious of one another. The nationalist independent note of Canadians was stressed by the speaker, who remarked that it was the one great Scottish trait in this country.

WHAT WILL CANADA DO?

The presence in Canada, of several thousands of harvest workers from the British Isles, who are here to help in garnering the crops in the fall of the year, presents a problem. A large percentage of these workers are young men who plan to remain in America.

They prefer to live under the British flag, but are casting longing eyes "over the border from whence have come to their ears alluring reports of high wages and advantageous working conditions. These reports are highly colored and many of those who heed the call from the States are destined to be bitterly disillusioned, yet the question presents itself, "What will Canada do?"

Canada needs young blood. Sturdy young men, accustomed to manual labor and peculiarly fitted for farm life are the most desirable type of immigrants just now. These young men are eager to settle in Canada, to acquire homes and, in short, to become Canadians.

What will Canada do after the harvest is ended to help them to realize their ambitions? This is the question which Canada's political, industrial and sociological experts must answer promptly.

THE PULP INDUSTRY

Apropos of Canada's pulp export problem and the suggested reciprocal embargo on the product, statistics showing the rapid growth of the industry during the last two decades are interesting.

Forty years ago there were only 5 mills in operation in Canada, today there are more than 120, consuming over two million cords of pulp-

By the Side Of The Road

Reports from Owen Sound and Derby Township indicate that motorists who desire to spoon "just go down to Derby town."

In a nearby town recently an unsuccessful candidate in the last Provincial election was called upon to act as layman preacher at a Sunday evening service. Considerable comment was aroused by the text he chose his text from the fourteenth chapter of John: "Let not your heart be troubled. Ye believe in God, Believe ye also in me."

It seems that he just couldn't get away from his campaign habits.

The vicissitudes with have beset Chancellor Cane during the past few days recall the ancient game of "Keno."

A neighbor whose window affords a commanding view can learn more about a family's affairs than an army of Pinkertons.

The motorists who fail to see a red light on a highway at night, would find the trip across the River Styx difficult if Father Charon were not on hand to guide them.

A "straight and narrow" path is alright in an allegorical sense but it won't do for a highway patronized by motorists.

Wonder who could have misled that unfortunate if they are harbouring at Marchmont Home? His mother must have a lot more like him.

Wood per annum and using hydro-power to the extent of 637,000 h.p. In 1921 the capital invested exceeded 380 millions dollars, while the value of products was over two hundred million dollars.

From the point of view of the Dominion's export trade the pulp and paper industry holds a position that is second only to that of agriculture. The figures below give a comparison of the exports of the products (animal and vegetable) of Canada's farms with pulp and paper exports, for the years indicated:—

Year	Farm Pulp and Produce (Millions of dollars)	Paper
1914	245.9	19.1
1923	497.1	122.6

The following table gives the exports of pulp and paper during the past twelve years.

Year	Wood-pulp (tons)	Newsprint (tons)	Total (Millions of dollars)
1912	3.9	5.1	9.0
1913	0.3	5.5	11.8
1914	12.7	6.4	19.1
1915	15.5	9.3	24.8

Although large supplies of pulpwood and lime are readily available in Canada, the pulp and paper mills are at present importers of many of the raw materials entering into the manufacture of chemical pulps and paper. In the fiscal year ending March 31, 1923, sulphur valued at $1,673,662 was imported chiefly from the extensive Louisiana sulphur deposits; of this amount about three-fifths was used in the pulp and paper industry.

Other products which are imported include resin, alum, pulp-stones, acid proof refractories, and soapstone linings. Some of these are being produced in Canada and as the pulp and paper industry grows, a large enough market will become available to warrant the development of Canada's resources for these commodities.

These facts evidence the palpable need of business acumen and statesmanship in dealing with this great Canadian industry.

COMING TO CANADA.

London, Aug. 13.—Sir Eraley Robertson Hay Hardwell, former assistant under-secretary of state and at present legal assistant under-secretary of state in the home department, is going to Canada to study the penitentiary system in the dominion, Robert Johnson, deputy master of the mint, will accompany him.

BALDWIN SEES LAW.

London, Aug. 13.—Bonar Law, who has spent considerable time at Brighton since his retirement from the premiership owing to ill health, was visited by Premier Baldwin this week. The meeting between the present premier and the former premier was prompted solely by Mr. Baldwin's desire to greet his late chief, who will leave shortly for the continent.

Canada is considered to be only useful for watering flowers.

"Now, Jacky," exclaimed his mistress, "see pots on table dry. Give them all some water."

"Yes, mum," said Jacky; and raising the pot, he began with trembling hands to direct erratic streams among the flowers, then shaking his head, stopped, and examining the spout as if it were in fault.

"Some got in it, I think," he muttered.

"Why've been drinking again, Jacky," exclaimed his mistress, shaking the stern at him threateningly.

"Drinking, mum! drinking!"

"Yes, I'm sure of it," said Jacky.

"Yes, you stupid man. Do you think I don't know; I can smell you."

"Drinking!" said Jacky, putting his hands to his head, as if to collect his thoughts. "Yes, so I did; I had a gill of ale last night."

Did the was a dangerous experiment, and Jacky nearly overbalanced himself. A sharp question from his mistress, however, brought him upright, and somewhat sobered him.

"Have you heard any more about that, Jacky?"

"Dont Master Richard, mum?"

"Yes, Jacky. But mind this, I hate tale-bearing and the gossip of the place."

"You do, mum, you allus did," said Jacky, wiking solemnly to himself; "but that's a fact."

"I won't believe it, Jacky," said Mrs. Glaire, snipping off sound leaves and blossoms in her agitation.

"It's a fact, mum, and I don't wonder at your feeling pozzed."

"I'm not cross at all, Jacky," exclaimed Mrs. Glaire, with her face weeking, "for I don't believe my son would allow in that way."

"But it's a fack, mum; and you must send him away, or he'll be taking a wife from among the Midanthil women. "That's so."

"Now, I don't want to hear gossip, mum; but what have you heard? Them, do stand still, or you'll tread on Prince."

"Dead, mum? Lots. You should say, "What have you seen?" Jacky put his thumb very far into his arm hole, and spread his fingers very wide as he rolled his head solemnly.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

Jacky Budd, the gardener, was a pale, sodden-looking man, the only tinge of color in his countenance being in his nose, and that tinge was given by a few days' rubs. He had a knack when addressed of standing with his thumbs stuck in the arm-holes of his reared vest, which stretched and worn in consequence, and this attitude was a favorite with him on Sundays, and was maintained just inside the south door till all the people were in church, when he went to his own sitting beneath the reading-desk —for Jacky Budd, in addition to being a gardener, was the parish clerk.

Jacky had his weaknesses, like Princo, but it was very different from that of the dog; in fact, it was one that touched a great many of the people of Dumford, who looked upon it with very lenient eyes. For though the gentleman in question had been suspended by the late vicar for being intoxicated in church, and saying out loud to the clerk in the psalms, "Va, it (ble) was in the beginning (bic) is now (ble) and ever shall be (ble)," he had been patient and forgiven at the end of the week, and he stinned no more until the next time.

The late vicar was compelled to take notice of the backsliding, even though people said he was troubled with the same weakness, so Miss Purley, the doctor's sister, burst out loudly in church in the exuberance of a look given her by Richard Glaire from the opposite pew. Her brother was there, and to pass it off he made a stir about his hand and her carrier out, to come back after a few minutes on tiptoe with a paper in her hand, people that it was a touch of hysterics.

Those who knew Jacky could tell when he had been drinking from the stolid look upon his countenance, and Mrs. Glaire was one of those who knew him.

"Come along, Prince," she cried in a shrill chirp from the end stooping down she lifted and carried Prince a few yards, to set him down beside a rustic arbor, covered, rubbing his face with the rim of the basket, and Prince went on wheezing, while his mistress went to seek.

Jacky followed saiowly with a pot of water, a fluid that he held in detent action, and considered to be only use-

"Now, Jacky," exclaimed his mistress, "see pots on table dry. Give them all some water."

"Yes, mum," said Jacky; and raising the pot, he began with trembling hands to direct erratic streams among the flowers, then shaking his head, stopped, and examining the spout as if it were in fault.

"You won't tell Master Richard as I heard it from the mum, mum?"

"No, Jacky, no, certainly not."

"And get me kicked out without a moment's notice?"

"No, no, certainly not. Now tell me directly."

"Well, mum, Missis Hubley says as she knows he's always arter her."

"What Daisy Baskat"

Jacky nodded.

"But she's a mischief-making, gossiping old—mum!" exclaimed Mrs. Glaire; "and her word isn't worth any thing. You said you had seen something."

Jacky nodded, and screwed up his face as he laid his finger beside his nose.

POWER COMPANIES MAINTAIN UNIQUE SECURITY RECORD

Ehanemetia Which Has Strongly appealed To Investment Classes.—Success Predicted For New Issue Of Ottawa And Hull Power Preferred Stock.

Records of purchases of bonds and shares of public utility companies in the past couple of years are an infallible indication of the preference of investors. In that group water power has always enjoyed a distinctive place.

Recognizing the superior advantages of Canada for development in that direction, together with the economic necessity of a plentiful supply of hydro-electric power, marked progress has been made in harnessing the available sites with its striking distance of the chief industrial centres.

One of the notable factors in that connection is that at no time has there been an embarrassing surplus of power created. On the other hand the new installations have been readily absorbed by the demands of industry.

When the country was recovering from the period of deflation and industry was undergoing readjustment of a more or less severe nature power companies continued to increase their earning power, as in fact they had done continuously in time of depression as well as expansion. This is a phenomena which has appealed strongly to investors and has, as was predicted, made the market for power securities one of the best features of the Canadian financial situation.

The Province of Quebec has enjoyed special privileges owing to the availability of good power sites which have developed at a comparatively low cost and this has been a decided advantage in indicating the establishment of new industries seeking cheap power together with the required labor supply.

These factors are bound to bring success to the new company which recently purchased the Ottawa and Hull Power Company and is now engaged in enlarging the scope of its operations. A strong organization and an excellent market for its output remove any doubts of the stability of its earning power and its securities will inevitably repeat the unparalleled record of the numerous companies which have been added to this group of enterprises in recent years.

AN APPEAL FOR JUSTICE AND FAIR PLAY.

We have in our midst a little woman with three children, whose husband and father left the employment months ago. Now five years ago this mother, broken in health, went to the Rest Home where a serious operation was performed by a local doctor. Then it was discovered that she was tuberculous. For a time there was some improvement and she has gone on taking care of her children and her home, but has now come to add to the small income of $70 a month for the four to live on. The week is that one has developed disease and all of our good doctors have advised that she should go to a sanitarium.

Now when she takes care of her little girl of twelve in the summer and two sisters take the boys there will be nothing left for the mother but the sanitarium. We could hardly ask any of the sanitariums to do anything of that sort after the way they treated us when they could have been on a drive. I wonder if we would let this born-in-Belleville woman, a graduate nurse of the Belleville General Hospital, go to the hospital as a free patient?

Any subscription will be gratefully received at the office of The Intelligencer.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

HAVE YOU REALLY GOT AN ACHE?

I know there is a tendency at the present time to speak of aches, pains or other symptoms as being in the imagination only.

This is a good thing up to a certain point, but it can be carried just a little too far.

What I mean is this. You meet people who have an ache in one place one day, and a pain in another part of the body the next day. Perhaps they want to tell you all about those pains. They often look well, eat well. They just have that peculiar twist to their discussing this type.

I am not discussing this type.

But some member of your family becomes so complain of an ache in the back, a pain in the chest, distress after eating, headache or some other definite symptom.

When a piece of machinery complains, you immediately stop the engine and try to find out the trouble, because you realize that further running may cause serious damage.

Now why not be fair to that body of yours.

Just as a squeak, knock or rattle in your car spells trouble, so does any pain or ache in the body.

You go to the garage man to have him locate the trouble and then correct it.

Now why in the name of common sense should you permit a constant ache or pain in your body, or that of any member of the family.

Why say "Oh it will pass away some of these days, don't worry about it?"

You wouldn't do that with your car. Why not go to your family physician and say "I've had a constant pain in my forehead, my chest, my abdomen, or my back, I'd like you to go over me."

Perhaps you have been losing weight, have been unable to sleep and so forth. Tell him all about it. He likely knows your make up better than any one else and should have the best chance of locating and correcting your trouble.

Memorial To Honor Memory Of Trent River's War Victim

Campbellford, Aug. 13.—The soldiers' memorial which is being erected at Trent River, will be unveiled on Sunday, 26 of August, with appropriate ceremonies. All the military officers and other distinguished residents of the districts will be invited to attend and make addresses. An invitation will also be tendered to all returned men and these will be asked to appear in uniform if possible. Details of the arrangements for the unveiling will be announced later.

This memorial is unique for the reason that it has been erected by voluntary subscription and by voluntary labor to perpetuate the memory of only one man, Pte. Richard Oliver Cowan, who laid down his life for his country at Vimy Ridge on April 9, 1917. Trent River sent a number of young men to the war, the majority going overseas with the 93rd Battalion, but of these all returned with the exception of Pte. Cowan. The latter lived at Trent all his life and was well known, not only to the residents of the district but many other cottages who spent the holiday season there. His mother and sister now reside in Campbellford.

CANNING FARRELL

COMMERCIALISM THREATENS FIGHT GAME

By HENRY FARRELL.

(Copyright, 1923, by Publishers Press)

New York, Aug. 12 (United Press) —Assuming a rather dictatorial rule over boxing, the New York State Commission has done much to promote interests of the sports and the benefits derived have not been confined to the territory under its immediate jurisdiction.

While many rules have been made that seemed absurd and overstepping the bounds of the commission's authority when they were first passed, some of them prove to have been based on farsighted judgment.

If the commission did nothing else, its most radical step in declaring forfeited the titles of champions who refused to fight worthy challengers brought the fly-weight, feather-weight and middle-weight titles out of hock and put them into competition.

The right of the commission to rule out Johnny Kilbane, Johnny Wilson, Mickey Walker and Jack Lynch as champions was scoffed at when the commission ruled, "but the fact remains that there are new flyweight and featherweight champions, and Wilson, Walker and Lynch have been forced into the defense of their titles.

While their judgment was sometimes questioned, the sincerity and honesty of the commissioners never have doubted, and they have been right as many times as wrong.

There remains much yet to be accomplished and the commissions might well devote a little attention to the "clean jumpitis" champions.

It has become the popular custom for a new champion to seek competition in a heavier class, no matter how much he has reached the top of the toxers at his own weight.

Pancho Villa won the world's flyweight championship and then started campaigning among the bantamweights and announced himself as ready to fight Joe Lynch. Lynch ignores the challenges of bantams and seeks new worms among the feather-weights. Benny Leonard, although he may be accused because of the wide margin by which he outclassed all lightweight wents to fight Mickey Walker for the welterweight championship. Walker, although he would be duffer with several welter-weights seeking matches with him, has expressed his willingness to fight Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, and Harry Greb, former light-heavyweight champion, seeks bouts matches at his own weight and shouts his desire to fight Jack Dempsey.

The way that the "money-first" champions have fallen into can be shown by two utterances of Johnny Dundee.

Hardly had Dundee won the feather weight championship from Eugene Criqui when he said:

"I want to be a fighting champion! I will meet all challengers as fast as they come."

The next day, Dundee announced that he would start a drive after a lightweight championship bout with Benny Leonard and a return bout with Jack Bernstein, who took Dundee's trick junior lightweight title away from him on a decision some time back.

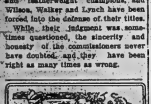

Dundee wants to hold three titles at once, and every one but Jack Dempsey, whose weight confines him to only one class, aspire to hold two titles.

Dundee is not to be picked out for criticism, but his is the most recent case of "clean jumpitis." Lynch and the same thing about "meet 'em all," when he won his title; so did Walker, so did Wilson, and all of them.

There are only two big figures in the boxing game now who have been sports enough to take a chance. Gene Tunney, the American lightweight champion, gave Harry Greb a chance at his title within six months after he had won it, and Criqui, the former feather-weight champion of the world, defended his title less than two months after he had knocked Kilbane out. Both Tunney and Criqui did not dodge the toughest man in their class, and both lost. Tunney had a little better fortune than the Frenchman had, as Tunney won his title back, but Criqui has a slight chance to get back under the crown.

Commercialism, is, of course, the greatest evil that any commission in boxing has to contend with today. There is no way to legislate strong enough to kill the evil, it can only be curbed. In New York it was thought that the exorbitant demands of boxers could be regulated by prohibiting the giving of guarantees by promoters and passing rules to force the boxers to fight for a percentage and so each could do per cent of the purse between them. With the support of the promoters of Kentucky,

BELLEVILLE TROUNCES KINGSTON, SCORE 8-3, PLAY-OFF WEDNESDAY

Peterboro and Belleville Teams Well Matched—Series Expected to be Best in Years

Belleville finished the season by trouncing Kingston on Saturday at the latter city by a score of 8-3. Belleville and Peterboro start the play-off on Wednesday afternoon at the Agricultural field. This series should be the best in some years. Both teams are playing pretty ball and those fans who miss Wednesday's game will be missing the ball of the season. It will be welcome news to local fans that Chauncey Frank Halligan, two of the best arbiters on Toronto have been secured and will officiate in the series. Chandler umpired here last season and his work was of the very best. Williams will umpire behind Al Heckman in the initial game for the championship of the "Big Four." The Indian haired pretty ball on Saturday and should be in excellent form to take a fall out of the Peter. Regarding Saturday's game, Williams let the Ponies down with three hits in five innings after which he was relieved by Jack Oulette who was touched rather freely but sat tight in the pinches.

The team was shifted somewhat owing to Allan Meagher's sickness. Weir went to second while "Ike" Pennie went to left in Vern's place. The team played errorless ball and their team work was of the snappy kind.

Brownscombe who is hitting at a merry clip right now had a home run and a triple to his credit.

Wicker Ross and Johnny "Crock" Williams also hammered out circuit clouts.

Teddy Gallagher went to route for the Ponies and was nicked hard and timely.

Spoops Sidlivan of Kingston and Lape of Bowmanville "called 'em" in fair attendance saw the Ponies go down to defeat.

Belleville was from Cobourg on a 11-1 count. Heckman performed on the mound for the homesters.

Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Aug. 13—13.—Announcement has been made here that Mrs. Payne Whitney, owner of the Greentree stable, has purchased from William Read, the English sportsman who brought over a string of fat runners and steeplechasers this season, the splendid steeplechaser William W. II. No price was mentioned, but it was understood that it was insanely large. William W. II. has been under silks three times since arriving in this country and has twice been in the money. Good judges of cross-country horses pronounce him one of the best 'chasers in the country. Last Saturday he was in the Ballston and appeared a bit green and short, weakening in the last twenty yards, to finish second to Letterman, also of the Greentree string.

Innocents Abroad With a New Version

Moneyed Youngsters in England Find Many Adventurers After Their Coin

CHAPTER I

London, Aug. 13 (United Press)—London crooks have found ready dupes among the throng of wealthy and quite young Americans who are conspicuous visitors to England this year.

Vacationing Americans are looking for coolness among other things and that is to be found around London only along the supper reaches of the historic Thames.

To the upper reaches of the Thames has moved in host of fashionable crooks who inhabit what was gilded square mile of Mayfair during other months.

"Host" is a perfect description of these men and women who prey on half-baked young America, for, not only are their manners suave, but they actually put their deals across while posing in the gracefully filled role of entertainer, host to a wet and happy party.

The upper Thames is lined with summer cottages ranging in size from cottages in truth to luxuries mansions. About half way along the scale of grandeur will be found the headquarters of scores of skilful dealers who scrape pickup acquaintances with the young men from the United States.

There are plenty of dupes to go around. Hampton Court, the former home of Cardinal Wolsey, and numerous other historical and modern beauty spots attract more than ninety-ten cent of London's visitors to the banks of the great river.

Pretty women figure largely as bait in the modern and somewhat ugly version of "Innocents Abroad". The women, however, have learned to do no more than look pretty and wholly reserved if the game ought happens to be a couple of young Americans with the distinctive "flat bat" of the collegian perched at a rakish angle over glossy Rudolph Valentino locks.

If a young Frenchman were being caught, the women would hand forth in conversation and get away with it. A young Scandinavian would be accused of a courtly but thoroughly correct bow.

The men and women who prey on young men have learned that visitors from "the States" do not expect women to make a fuss over them, particularly in public. The male conspirators start all conversations and carry them along until an introduction to their pretty girl accomplices seems natural.

Young Americans are preferred above all owing to their reputed and often substantiated wealth.

This summer's tremendous invasion by American tourists, often accompanied by their young, is unchecked and under guarded sons has provided a lucrative field for blackmail, veiled robbery and sharp practice.

How the new-old games are worked on the young men from the United States will be told in the following chapter.

Playfellow Through As Racer; Will Go To Stud Next Month

Saratoga (Spring), N.Y., Aug. 13.—Playfellow has run his last race. The three-year-old son of Fair Play and Mahubah, full brother to the famous Man O' War and of By Play, and chief figure in one of the most famous legal battles in the history of modern turf, is to be retired to the stud.

James F. Johnson of Brooklyn, owner of the Quincy Stable, which sold the colt to the Canadian stable for $100,000 and was forced to take him back because it was charged that he was a cribber and a whistler, has been disappointed in the efforts to train the horse. Playfellow was so certain in his appearance at the Aqueduct meeting that it was decided to retain him to the stud. Playfellow will be shipped to Kentucky next month and will stand at he Short Grass stud near Lexington. There he will serve twenty-five free services to the breed

Mr. William H. Ireland, M.P.P., is still satisfied with election results and is still confident that President Ferguson and his hand-picked cabinet will be well able to attend to the growing business of this province for the next four years, in such a satisfactory manner, that the eyes of the staunchest Liberals will be opened. Mr. Ireland predicts that the province will be foremost in their minds, but Belleville and adjacent territory, forgotten for the time, when he gets up to Queen's Park.

Kirkman J. J. B. Flint, in a short speech became enthusiastic in order to show the great stride Belleville has made forward in the past years, which city he characterizes as "a city of natural advantages and beautiful surroundings." Mr. Flint recalled the old grammar school days, when Sir Mackenzie Bowell was the most active and ardent Conservative in Belleville fire brigade, which then consisted of as antiquated old fire engine. The new Albert College was given a modern contrast to the old, 20 by 20 foot "knowledge house" or grammar school which he attended.

Dodge Brothers Plan Larger Production

New Buildings Greatly Increasing Present Capacity Almost Completed

Expansion Program Will Cost $8,000,000; New Closed Car Building Erected in Record Time.

An immense new assembly building, embodying the newest ideas in mass production in use, is announced by Dodge Brothers as the principal unit of the 1923 expansion program.

The building is six stories high 1,000 feet long and 75 feet wide, will occupy three one-half million square feet of floor space. Construction work which started some months ago is now nearly completed. The new assembly building, paralleling the old structure, is just across the street, which formerly marked the boundary line of the great Dodge Brothers factories.

Factory executives would not comment on the number of additional cars contemplated in this extensive addition, but it is believed that the immediate aim is a capacity of 1,000 cars a day. In the face of the prevailing shortage during the entire year just past, it is not unreasonable to assume that this number mentioned could be absorbed easily by Dodge Brothers dealers.

Other units of the expansion program are the new cranking building, a million dollar addition to the power house, and a mammoth new closed body building. The latter is completed, several floors having been occupied for some time. It is estimated that the total investment represented by these additions, including blocks, will reach $8,000,000.

The erection of the body building in the short space of time established a record. Considering the fact that it is an eight story building, 400,000 feet in floor space, with a total floor space of 60,000 square feet, the time is exceptionally short. It is a striking tribute to the efficiency and financial independence of Dodge Brothers, as all the work was done under the supervision of the factory's own construction department.

Some idea of the magnitude of the undertaking may be gleaned from the fact that 30,000 barrels of cement and 16,000 cubic yards of concrete were used in the building, as well as 4,000 ton of construction steel; 1,464 tons of reinforcing steel; 9,000 window lights; 600,000 feet of maple flooring, and 600,000 bricks. There are seven travelling cranes ranging from five tons to twenty tons in capacity, and four 10-foot high speed elevators, capable of travelling 400 feet a minute loaded. The building is located by the industrial system, cars forcing the washed air down various ducts after it is heated by steam pipes on the roof. Fire protection is insured by 10,000 sprinkler heads, all stairways are safety treated.

While the unit is an enormous building in itself, it is in reality only half a building. The other half was completed two years ago. Taken as a whole, the building is one of the largest single factory units in the world, with a floor area of a million square feet. It will be devoted entirely to the production of all steel bodies—a type of construction originated by and for Dodge Brothers.

MARY MILES MINTER AT GRIFFING IN "SOUTH OF SUVA"

Belleville women will see what Griffin's tonight, Tuesday or Wednesday to see Mary Miles Minter in "South of Suva," will find a most unusual and refreshing story of the always fascinating South Sea islands. Ewart Adamson, the author, has started from the usual South Sea story and given us something that strikes really fresh, a tale of true passion, one successful, the other a prey to the devastating influences of the tropics. The drama, which causes when the English wife of the father arrives to join him gives Miss Minter one of the hardest bits of acting she has yet been offered. And she acquits herself in splendid style.

The two men in the case are John Sowers and Walter Long. We have seen Mr. Long as many times before, but never in one that for sheer quality of sustained and accurate characterization surpasses the one he gives in this picture. The direction of Frank Urson will be found smooth and even. Altogether it is a beautiful picture set and decidedly intriguing picture.

For News, "Paint Hearts" an amusing Charlie Murray comedy, and a two-reel jungle story is announced for presentation on the same program.

HOUSE PETERS AT REGENT IN TALE OF MANY DANGER AND THRILLING ADVENTURE.

Flight! You who have seen a few rattling good movie fights pictures before, but you've never seen anything like the ones in "The Man From Lost River," which is the feature offering at the Regent Theatre tonight to Wednesday, with a matinee daily.

The large part the North Woods is in this big drama. The hero, played by House Peters, is the boss of a lumber camp in a northern Minnesota forest, and you'll never know till the very end whether he's really a hero or villian. Katherine Grey Burt, in her first original story for the screen, has scored one o fthe biggest successes of the season. Beautiful Ethel Grey Terry plays the leading feminine role in the picture.

"The Bronco"—an amusing Sunshine comedy, Ann Little and Fred Thompson in a new chapter of Universal's popular serial "The Secret of the Talons"—and a Hy Mayer Travelogue have also been arranged for presentation on the same program.

TURN ABOUT IS FAIR PLAY

No parents or home could Burt boast;
He was kicked on from pillar to post;
When kids came out they found
There gathered around
The ones who had hurt him the most.

All his life Burton had been pushed even shoved, around from pillar to post. His parents died both died when he was a tiny baby. For several years unwilling relatives took turns at raising him, but one by one they gave it up. "What thanks do you get for raising some one else's young one?" they asked.

And so at the early age of six they turned him out into the streets to shift for himself. You can imagine the hard life the little boy had. Once he was hardly put in a home when he'd be taken to the charity hospital. When his selfish relatives were called they insisted that they had ever heard of the injured boy.

Burton had been adopted by, or bires) about a year ago by Sammy, an old fruit vender. For Burton really took care of the old man instead of him taking care of Burton. All day long Burton sold his papers in the street, while the old man sold his fruit. But at the end of the month it was always the boy's money that went to pay for the bare room in which they lived.

It appeared to Burton that the weather and general business must be poor, or else Old Pete's money had a strange way of getting away from him, for he was not much interested which it was. He loved Old Pete and would rather spend his money taking care of him than any other way.

And so little Burton was heartbroken when Old Pete suddenly sickened and died. He left everything he owned to Burton, which, of course wasn't much. But there were special instructions to take good care of what was in the old chest under the bed.

The chest was so heavy that Burton could not pull it out. He had to move the bed away instead. Then he knelt down and lifted the lid of the chest h could scarcely believe his eyes. There before him was more money than he had ever known existed in the world. All his life Old Pete had hoarded every penny he made until at his death he was a very rich man.

But bold no one. He knew he could not trust any of his neighbors. He paid them generously for helping him the funeral. They took the money greedily, although they naturally believed that it was all he had. Then Burton took the bag of the money from the chest to the bank. He wisely thought that the best place for it. He did not want long before he suspected and taken to court. It looked very odd to the bankers for such a boy to be with so much. Burton told the whole story to the kind-faced judge.

When the story came out in the newspapers all Burton's relatives came to the judge and begged to be allowed to take the child again.

But when the judge asked Burton

Hamilton Man Under Arrest

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Daniel Hoover, thirty, Montreal, and Herbert Wilson, thirty-one, Hamilton, are under arrest here charged with being members of a gang of international bank thieves. Hoover responsible for thefts of thousands of dollars in bonds and securities. When arrested by police and Burns detectives they were riding in an automobile reported stolen in Montreal, two months ago. Both are held on open charges.

The men were arrested following an attempt to cash railroad bond coupons, valued at several hundred dollars, in a local bank. Police say the numbers on the coupons Hoover had in his possession correspond with the numbers on bonds that were stolen in 1921 from a broker's office in Brooklyn.

Police also say that Hoover admits stealing the car. He claims he met the Hamilton man in Montreal three days ago and brought him to Buffalo. He says he found the coupons in a wallet lying on the street in Montreal.

When first questioned Hoover said he never had been arrested, but, according to police, later admitted he had been arrested in Montreal and in Philadelphia. Detectives say he answers the description of a man who cashed coupons of the same number amounting to $1,000 at Belair, Md., a couple of months ago.

D.O.K.K. HAS Big Program At Portland

"Portland, Dr., Aug. 13 (United Press)—With the city packed with its largest convention crowd since the National Shrine conclave of 1920, Portland today opened its arms in welcome to 25,000 lodgemen of the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan, the playground division of the American Order Knights of Pythias.

The thirteenth biennial session of the Imperial Palace has drawn "Potates" from all sections of the country to Portland, and, a program of entertainment is prepared for them which will assure an all-play week. This is the first time in the history of D. O. K. K. that a national conclave has been held on the Pacific Coast, and the Portland lodgemen aided by fraternity brothers from all cities of the northwest are determined to make the welcome a warm one.

Delegates have been arriving for several days, coming in 15 special trains and 13 automobile caravans. There are 175 temples in the Domain of the United States and Canada and almost all of them will be represented at the convention.

The city is decorated largely in purple and gold, the D. O. K. K. colors, with the familiar tiger's head as the emblem displayed everywhere.

Three sections of the municipal camp ground, sufficient to accommodate 1000 cars, have been set aside for motoring delegates, and indications are that all the space will be taken before the convention is well advanced.

The Multnomah hotel will be the official headquarters of the supreme family, while the city's million dollar municipal auditorium will be used for the conventions.

Entertainment features will make the week a merry one.

Roits Continue In Berlin Streets

Berlin, Aug. 13.—The Berlin tobacco manufacturers' association as a result of agreement of the wage question between the strikers and the managers. No street cars are running, however, as a few of the power stations are still on strike.

The latest attempt to end the strike movement was furnished by the North Sea pilots at Hamburg and Bremen who are refusing to work until they are granted additional pay.

There has been continuous rioting at the big industrial plants in the suburbs of Berlin during the past few days, caused by the food situation, the money shortage and wage disputes.

At the giant Siemens-Halske works in Siemenstadt the workers assumed an attitude of passive resistance, refusing to do their work, upon which the management shut down the plants, which normally employ 100,000 men.

At other plants the shop soviets have hoisted the red flag.

The Reichsbank money presses were again in operation today, and Berlin was promised 6,000,000,000 marks in new currency.

FATHER OF LOCAL RESIDENT CALLED

Herbert A. Middleton, of Lindsay Dies Suddenly

Lindsay, Aug. 13.—Death came with startling suddenness to the late Herbert A. Middleton at his residence, Kent St., West, Lindsay, Friday evening. The deceased, after partaking of the evening meal, complained of feeling unwell. He was assisted upstairs to his room, and Dr. Mulligan was summoned. Everything possible was done in an effort to revive his strength, but he passed away about seven o'clock.

The announcement of Mr. Middleton's death came in the nature of a shock to the citizens. The deceased had been about during the day and a number had conversed with him only a short time before the summons came.

"Herb" was an active member of the Board of Trade, and of the Horticultural Society, and was ever ready to do his share in advancing their interests. He was also a member of the Rotary Club, and was the life of the organization at its weekly luncheon. He was an enthusiastic member of the Curling Club and in fraternal circles was a member of the Oddfellows and Masonic Order.

GIVES MAN DRINK TAKES WIFE, CLAIM

Barrister Man Tells Pathetic Story in Court

Kingston, Aug. 14.—When Arthur Smalley, steward of the Country Club, Barriefield, awoke early in the morning of July 24th from a sleep caused by a drink of whiskey given him by his friend, John Carter, who, visiting from Detroit, he found that his wife, Mrs. Smalley, and Carter had eloped and had taken with them about $10 out of the cash box. This was the story Smalley told to his employer given this morning before County Magistrate J. W. Bradshaw when the young couple, Carter and Smalley appeared, charged with robbery and theft. They were committed for trial on both charges and will bring it at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

Mr. and Mrs. Smalley had been employed at the Country Club as steward and cook respectively and John Carter was a friend of both of them. He had come from Detroit on a visit and on July 23rd complained of an attack of malaria. He and Smalley came to the city and obtained two six ounce bottles of whiskey on a doctor's prescription. Back at the club Carter gave Smalley a drink. Later he gave him another drink, the last in the bottle, and Smalley fell asleep. The effect of it by saying that it made him feel funny and, that he was asleep right after. He did not wake up till about 5 a.m. on the 24th and then he found that his wife and his friend had both disappeared, and at about 4:40 was missing out of the club cash box. It had contained about $20 the night before and only about $10.15 was missing the next morning.

He went to the Provincial police and told his story. A warrant was issued for the eloping pair and they were arrested in Windsor, Ont., on August 5th, and were brought back to Kingston by Provincial Officer Roy Clarke. In Windsor, Mrs. Smalley said that Carter had been living in two rented rooms as man and wife. Smalley went to Windsor to look for them and while there talked to them. To him they denied laughing any money in the cash box at all.

THIS GLUE WILL RESIST THE WATER; FREE TO PUBLIC

Madison, Wis., Aug. 14 (United Press).—For four thousand years man has been trying to discover a glue which will resist the action of water.

Recently scientists at the federal forest products laboratory here have derived a simple formula for manufacture of glue from the blood of animals. Pieces of wood stuck together by this glue required a pressure of 200 pounds to break them apart after they had been soaked in water for a month. United States navy tests show the glue only a strength of 130 pounds after a two days' soaking.

In every age man has made use of the coagulating properties of blood for making glue. The Egyptians made it from animal hides and bones they desired to fasten timbers together, so that they would resist the action of water. All other blood glues had to be used while fresh or required high temperatures to remove impurities.

This new glue requires no heat for application. It may be put on with a brush or a mechanical glue spreader.

The glue is made by the addition of a caustic chemical substance—paraformaldehyde, on sale at all drug stores and ammonia, to blood albumin. The blood albumin comes in a powdered form and is a by-product of slaughter houses. The ingredients must be carefully weighed and mixed together, but aside from these precautions, any inexperienced person can use it.

The glue has proved extremely successful not only with thin veneers but with thick wood of light texture, such as spruce. It cannot yet be recommended for gluing thick veneer for dance timber, such as ash, maple, birch and oak, but further tests at the laboratory are expected to develop it for these uses.

It is hoped that it may be developed ultimately for such purposes as making airplane wings, phonograph and other materials which must be waterproof. Numerous synthetic gums and rubbers are now used for such purposes.

This new glue formula is dedicated to the free use of the public. As is the case with all other discoveries made at the forest products laboratory, a patent has been taken out by a member of the staff. This, however, is merely to prevent others from patenting the discovery and charging royalties for its use.

CITIZENS AGAIN 'WAIT ON' LOGAN

Residents Renew Expressions of Hostility to His Presence Here

POLICE CALLED

"Evangelist" Eludes Crowd and Police Fail to Locate Him

Belleville citizens once more vindicated their determination that "Rev." T. J. Logan shall not continue to live in the city when they gathered about the house where he has been making his home and created such a demonstration that it was necessary to send for the police.

The telephone call came into police headquarters last night a few minutes after ten o'clock, asking that officers be sent to the house of Mr. H. Barringer, 60 Octavia street, where Logan has been staying. On arrival there, Police Sergeant A. Harman and Constable K. Wesso found about thirty or forty young men and girls, who were clamoring for the appearance of the erstwhile pastor of the United Christian Workers' Gospel Temple. After dispersing the crowd, the officers searched the house with flashlights in an effort to locate Logan, but he was not to be found.

Logan was in the city yesterday and was seen about the Barrager residence as well as on the streets. Logan took unto himself a wife one day last week and though it was stated that he would migrate to Scotland, he evidently is still in the city.

The Intelligencer was informed this morning that possibly the demonstration might have taken the form of a charivari for the newlyweds, as a dead-ed tomato case seemed to be in evidence among the romantic youths and maidens present in the crowd.

KIWANIANS LEARN OF MARVELS OF MARBLE INDUSTRY IN NORTHERN PART OF COUNTY

D. A. Cameron, of Bancroft visited the Kiwanis meeting "Bull" at the weekly luncheon today, when he spoke on "The Development of the Marble Industry in County" and illustrated his address by exhibiting many interesting lantern slides of the marble quarries and water falls of the northern portion of Hastings county. Mr. Cameron who is a real booster for the district of marble there in a block of 60 acres, and marble all the way down for 200 feet. The marble quarried is varicolored and makes the most beautiful building and decorative stone which it is possible to procure.

At Toronto Exhibition this year a wonderful exhibit of the vari-colored marble and its uses will be seen with a marble British flag worked entirely in marble as a background. Buildings in which this marble has been used are the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, St. Paul's Cathedral Toronto, (done in white, green, red and chocolate marble) the head office of the Standard Bank, palm room of Sir Henry Pellatt's castle at Toronto, and the new Post Office at Collingwood.

High Falls, north of Bancroft, will supply the cheap power necessary to make the marble operations pay, and a dam is now under construction at High Falls. Two large firms will install plants, the cheaper power be made available. One as a lumbering concern, manufacturing hardwood flooring, which will take up 30 acres of land and employ 1,000 men. The other concern is from Sudbury, being a mighty big one, manufacturers of non-metallic minerals.

The one guest speaker to-day was Kiwanian Bull, of Elkhorn, Man., who was born at Desmond, north of Madoc, though now an Kiwanian Bull states that Belleville is a distinctive aggressive and progressive city.

Kiwanian Ray Harris will leave this city permanently this week, and his new home will be Atlanta, Ga. Ray was the recipient of many sincere and kind words from Kiwanians O'Flynn, Ketcheson and Griffin. Greetings were received to-day from Dr. Norman Neilson, London, England, and Kiwanian H. C. McLearny who is holidaying in Quebec. Norm stated that, "Yes we have no bananas," has taken Kiwanian Bull's place.

Calvin Coolidge

A SKETCH.

Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, began life on his father's farm at Plymouth, Vermont, a hilly district nestled in the heart of the Green Mountains. He was born on Independence Day, in 1872. He did the hard work that every farmer boy knows, and to this day relishes many of the quiet ways and much of the homely philosophy of the farm.

But farming was not to be Coolidge's career, for early in life it began speaking to "get to college." His father, John C. Coolidge, and the quiet mother who, before her marriage, was Victoria Moor, both came from a long line of Yankee farmers used to the toil of the soil, and they encouraged the ambition of their son for an education.

Then followed years of hard work, and finally in 1895 Coolidge was graduated from Amherst as an honor student. He at once began the study of law in the office of Hammond & Field in Northampton, Mass. In less than two years he was admitted to the bar, and began active practice in an office of his own.

It is a question whether Coolidge had ambitions in his youth for a political career. His first step toward the high position he holds today came when the county clerk died suddenly. The young lawyer was chosen to serve the unexpired term, but he refused to run for that office when Republican leaders of the town urged him to be their candidate.

The people of Northampton liked Coolidge, and in 1899 he was elected to the city council, although he did not seek the office. At the same time he was made city solicitor and failed in 1900 Calvin Coolidge was quietly married to Grace Goodhue, of Burlington, Vermont. Mrs. Coolidge was then teaching school in Northampton, and so quiet was the young lawyer's court ship that few knew anything about it until the wedding was announced.

From the time Coolidge entered Northampton's city hall his political rise was steady. He was elected to various offices and eventually became mayor.

His entrance into state politics came in 1911 when he was elected to the Massachusetts state senate. He was in the senate for four years, two of which he acted as president of that body.

Coolidge was elected lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts in 1915 while Samuel McCall was governor. In 1918 he was elected governor and in 1919 was re-elected to that office.

Willis Coolidge was well known in his own state, it was not until the Boston police strike occurred, in 1919, that his fame became world-wide. His determined stand in the emergency and his staunch declaration for a policy of "law and order" whatever might come, put him in the national spotlight.

Coolidge was nominated for Vice-President in the national convention in 1920, and on March 4, 1921, this quiet man, who says little but thinks much and acts with decision, became Vice-President of the United States.

Coolidge has the conservative, character of the traditional Yankee. He never speaks without weighing his words long and carefully, and he says what he thinks in few words as possible.

He abhors show and affection and lives a simple life. While in North Hampton, the Coolidges occupied half of a two-family house, for which he paid the moderate sum of $23 a month.

The Coolidges have two sons, John and Calvin, Jr., who are still in their teens.

Mrs. Coolidge's interest has always been almost exclusively in her home, her husband and her boys. She cares very little for society or club life, and outside her home her interest has been almost exclusively in the Red Cross.

It's because we give the most thorough care to everything that passes through our hands.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

EATING AT NIGHT.

Many people eat a hearty meal at night before retiring and yet seem to enjoy good health.

Society this perhaps you have tried it and the results have been disastrous. You have awakened with a headache and a bad taste in the mouth.

Why?

Well, its just this way. You have an occupation that does not entail much muscular work. Perhaps you have a light lunch at noon and then have a substantial meal in the evening. This meal includes meat, vegetables, and dessert. The meat or eggs as you know repair the tissue you have worn out through the day, and the other foods supply the necessary heat for the body's activities.

If however you indulge in another heavy meal before retiring you can readily see that as all the body's functions are in a state of rest, this food, particularly the meats will not get used up, and will lie in the body as waste matter. Hence your headaches.

The person however, who seems to "get by" and eat hearty meals at night is usually one who takes more active exercise than yourself, or perhaps spends more time outdoors, and thus has this excess matter burned up for him the next day.

Now eating at night can be made helpful, if a little thought is used. For instance in many hospitals it is customary to give all the patients a bowl of warm milk or broth about 9-30 in the evening. This draws the blood to the digestive apparatus, away from the brain and induces sleep.

The warm milk or broth is no real tax on digestion, and often fulfils the desire for something to eat before retiring for the night. So perhaps a little milk, cocoa, or fruit will answer the purpose for you.

A BUILDING BOOM.

"Do you think all these automobiles running in your town help it any?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. Think of all the citizens they give employment. Why, we're building four new hospitals."

HOW TO SLEEP ON A BARE FLOOR

IT is more a matter of SLEEP, than of bed or board.

Some people can sleep standing up, standing up, even while walking.

Many people can't sleep in the softest of downy beds; and all of us suffer occasionally from nervousness, worrying, tiring wakefulness at night.

There is always a reason for sleeplessness. Usually, it is a "sour" stomach, a liver that has "lain down" on the job, congested bowels, or biliousness.

Then, just before retiring, take Beecham's Pills. They soothe an uneasy stomach, encourage the organs of digestion and elimination to natural activity, and assure restful sleep no matter what!

WEDDING BELLS

STEWART—TERRILL—

A very pretty wedding took place at 3 p.m. on Monday, August 6th at the residence of the bride's mother, 8 Dundas street when Miss Edith M. Terrill and Mr. J. Douglas Stewart of Montreal were united in marriage by Rev. D. C. Ramsay.

The bride was given away by her mother looked charming in a gown of white canton crepe carrying a bouquet of sweet peas and roses. Mrs. Terrill wore dark grey canton silver trim. The Wedding march was played by Miss Frances Terrill of Wooler. After the ceremony a dainty lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart left on a motor trip, the bride travelling in a navy tailor dress with grey hat, taking the many pretty and useful presents received was a cabinet of silver from the Chartered Bank and Executor Co. of Toronto with whom the bride was formerly employed. They will make at 5 Buckingham Avenue, Montreal.

NOT LESS CRIMINAL.

If a man blindfolded himself, climbed into his car and sped down a thronged thoroughfare his act would be little more reprehensible—or dangerous—than the of the person who, knowing that he takes the wheel of an automobile while in that condition, permits himself to become intoxicated.

The Kingston Standard says it takes a train exactly miles as near only 16 seconds to make the quarter mile to a crossing. And by the same process of reasoning the motorist figures he can get there in 14½ seconds. The ambulance driver is generally called upon to decide who won; if he can't the coroner always can.

EASIEST WAY TO REMOVE UGLY HAIRY GROWTHS

(Beauty Culture)

Here is a method for removing hair from arms, neck or face that is satisfying and is quite inexpensive. Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hairy surface. After two or three minutes rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh as wanted.

GOOD PROGRAM.

A fine program of sports has been arranged in connection with St. Michael's church picnic which will be held tomorrow at the grove in West Belleville. The soft-ball game between members of the Kiwanis and K. of C. clubs will be an interesting event, also the lacrosse match. Many of the events will not take place until after the Belleville-Petrboro ball game. A good orchestra will provide suitable music for dancing which will take place in the pavilion located on the grounds.

SOLDIERS FIGHT FIRE.

A detachment of thirteen Kingston soldiers, were despatched to the scene of the bush fire on the Perth road, on latter part of last week in an endeavour to keep the fire from spreading. The united work of soldiers and firemen, was successful in keeping the fires down, and no buildings were destroyed.

TO-DAY'S MARKET

There were a number of vendors upon the market this morning and the chief products offered for sale were vegetables and fruit. There were some changes in price over those obtained on Saturday. Corn sold at 20 cents a dozen, tomatoes, 60 cents a peck and potatoes 60 cents a peck. Plums sold at 15 cents a box, black currants, 20 cents a box and raspberries, 25 cents a box. The ruling price for apples was 50 cents

FALSE ALARM

Just as Big Ben was about to sound nine bells' last night, it became necessary for him to sound "fire" bells instead. The reels turned out and raced up to 220½ Front street, where the trouble was supposed to be. Mrs. Cora Richardson, who occupies the apartment over Kroch Brothers Ladies Wear Store believed that she smelled smoke in the store below, and sounded the alarm. Firemen found no signs of fire.

SHOCKED BY DEATH

W. H. Hanley, who died suddenly in Ottawa on Friday, last was acting as substitute manager of the bai and cap department of "The Two Macs," the large Ottawa retail store in the acting of the regular manager W. R. Kidd. Mr. Kidd, who is on his vacation is a guest at the home of Mr. C. O. Greenleaf, North Park Street.

News of Mr. Hanley's death came as a shock to Mr. Kidd, who will probably be obliged to curtail his visit here. Mr. Kidd was formerly employed by the Ritchie Company, Ltd., of Belleville.

Recent happenings would seem to indicate that the addition of a few seven-year-old boys to the Toronto detective force would assist materially in the capture and punishment of criminals.

A COAL PHILLIPIC

Despite the fact that chilling sephemeral nights and crisp mornings betoken the approach of autumn, the hot breath of winter, grim harbinger of snow and ice, is waited on to be thrown into the waning summer days, there is little agitation in Belleville over the winter fuel supply. Dealers are by no means pessimistic and householders apparently are confident that their fuel requirements will be met when the need proves a itself.

Not so however in Toronto, according to the views of a writer for the Toronto Daily World. This writer says in part:

"Public dissatisfaction with the coal situation is great, and is growing greater. Public demand is heard that no ordinary consideration or nice distinction shall stand in the way of merging for the coming winter an adequate supply of coal.

"Even on the hottest days of the present summer, people in Toronto and throughout Ontario have shivered at the thought of the coming winter. The coal problem has carried forward into the season of best anticties commonly associated with the season of snow and ice. This mixing up of summer and winter worries has aroused a fever of discontent.

"The people demand action—action taken in a broad and comprehensive way. No excuse will be available for those responsible if, next winter, through strikes, breakdowns or other disarrangements, coal is not available when coal is needed.

"The assertion is heard that the people won't stand for this kind of coal, or wouldn't take some other kind as a gift.

"Would they not?

"Try them.!

"Try them when dread winter is blasting at the walls of their houses, after they have scraped the coal-bin without avail.

"Toronto in winter can as well do without food as without coal. Were there any danger of a food famine, emergency measures of all kinds would be taken to meet the public need. Bread, rather than cake, would be the object of those seeking to supply the public with the means to sustain life.

"Certain kinds of coal are rife in the luxury class. They form the 'cake' of the fuel supply.' But there are other kinds of coal which, if need be, the people will burn and will burn gladly, even if the price be high or the care of furnaces more exacting.

"It is not easy to commence too soon to fill the bin. When the coal strike was settled last year it was freely predicted that there would be another strike in September of this year. That was just cheap talk, some say rightly. But even if there is no coal strike in 1923, will coal be plentiful this next winter?

"What is to be done about it? The problem goes deeper than any contest of wits and bids between dealer and householder. Even the co-operation of retailer and consumer affects the basic facts very little."

* * * * *

"Which fact of the people goes up for coal, fuel for the saving of life, such incidental troubles as may be associated with the use of certain kinds of coal dink into insignificance. The people are all seeing that the only coal they can burn with satisfaction is that supply which is constantly jeopardized by strike, breakdowns or the political and economic demands of the neighboring country. The people of Toronto are not content to face the approaching trials of winter trusting to the United States Government for a primary necessity of life, which is what

By The Side Of The Road

Listen to this:

"Announcement was made at the Conference of Clarksburg, W. Va., of the institution of a plan to insure successful marriages for couples who obtain wedding licenses. Hereafter, a cook book is to be issued with each license."

It might be a good idea also to take the bride's artillery away from her and place both of them under peace bonds.

The editor of the Tilbury (Ont.) Weekly Times, who is missing must have written something that offended one of his readers. We know of an editor who hid in the bush for two weeks because his paper despised the dress worn by a banker's wife at a ball as a "scream" when the word should have been "dream."

The citizens of Peterboro are going to erect a tablet to the memory of an editor. That's one event in which we have to worry about "covering." The subscribers are invited. Those whose subscriptions have always been paid in advance should be accorded the places of honor.

Maybe when those thirteen governors come here next year they and other American notables, who have been invited will elect to remain. In that event we shall profit by another R. E. L. begins.

Premier King says nobody in Canada wants to do. Wonder how he found that out? We're not worrying about the "Whisper of Death" just now as much as we are about the whispering winds which direct our thoughts to the coal bin and the furnace.

"Rev." Logan appears to be making a good job of "farewell" visits to Belleville. The voice of the people has spoken in no mistakable terms. It behooves Mr. Logan to heed that voice.

* * * * *

the people are offered as their only course in recent news despatches.

"The people want coal.

The people want coal from Pennsylvania, Wales, Alberta, Mexico, or wherever it may be available.

"The people may be trusted to find out how to burn whatever kind of coal may be obtained that is different from the kind they have been accustomed to. Given the fuel, the lack of necessity and winter, the people will do surprising things with such fuel as they can get.

"The coal question grows from a private concern to a public problem, and it is high time for those in authority to get together in a joint effort to guarantee a supply of coal for the coming winter. Civic, provincial and federal authorities can satisfy the people only by pooling their resources to the end that householders may be emancipated from slavery to a threatened fuel shortage."

Perhaps it would be wise to give serious consideration to this disturbing philippic.

EMBRYO CITIZENS

The case of the youthful argonaut, held at Napanee after an eventful voyage from Liverpool as a stowaway and a no less eventful journey inland exemplifies the indomitable spirit of youth and the result when this spirit responds to the call of adventure. It might be said rightly that the advent of this 16-year-old adventurer to Canada occurred under inauspicious circumstances, in that the careers of some of the greatest men the world has ever produced were premised in strikingly similar conditions.

The youngster states that he desires to remain in Canada and "grow up with the country." Who knows but that he may become another Lord Strathcona?

This youth's presence has attracted attention because of the circumstances associated with his appearance, yet there are thousands of youngsters pouring into Canada from the British Isles, whose individual cases are fully as interesting and portentous. Since they travel in groups, however, and in the orthodox manner, they attract little notice.

Since the inauguration of the plan by which children and juveniles, whose circumstances in the homeland gave them no chance, are assisted to come to Canada through the co-operation of the various children's societies and the Canadian Government, over 78,000 boys and girls ranging in ages from 3 to 16 years, have been brought to the Dominion and placed in agricultural employment and domestic service. At the close of the last fiscal year 2,638 boys and 975 girls were under the supervision of the Department of Immigration and Colonization and settled in the agricultural districts of the different provinces as follows: Ontario, 2,794; Quebec, 455; New Brunswick, 122; Nova Scotia, 104; Prince Edward Island, 2; Manitoba, 42; Saskatchewan, 31; Alberta, 27; British Columbia, 34.

On arrival, the children proceed to a receiving home and in due course are sent to foster homes selected for them in advance. Information as to the institutions to which the children are first sent, is the Marchmont Home in Belleville. Large number have passed through its portals to begin their lives as Canadians.

Other homes are: Dr Barnardo's, Toronto; Mr. J. W. C. Fegan, Toronto; National Children's Home and Orphanage, Hamilton; Quarrier Homes, Brockville; Catholic Emigrant Association, Ottawa; Salvation Army, Montreal and Toronto; Church of England Waifs and Strays Society, Sherbrooke P.Q.; Middlegore Home, Halifax, N.S.

The value of this particular immigration feature and the annual benefits resulting are set forth in a statement by Mr. C. Bogue Smart, Superviser of Juvenile Immigration. Mr. Smart says:

"As Supervisor of Juvenile Immigration for many years, I have followed the individual careers of nearly 50,000 of these youthful Britons in Canada and have found that in the services the great majority have rendered Canada and the Motherland they have repaid many times the entire cost of their care and education. Seventy-five per cent. have remained permanently connected with agriculture, many have risen to positions of local prominence and all of them, with the exception of a very small percentage, have become good citizens of the adopted country. Of this there is ample evidence in the fact that of the boys sent out by the various organizations over 10,000 enlisted in the Canadian Expeditionary Force and hundreds made the supreme sacrifice."

This would seem to indicate that Canada has profited well by the introduction of this class of immigrants into Canadian society.

PRESS OPINIONS

SAFETY FIRST.

(Kansas City Star)

To know at the time of planting wheat just how much the rest of the world is going to plant and harvest and how much the world will need for a year or two ahead is impossible.

But one thing is certain at the outset: The western wheat grower is in an admirable position to supply from his own farm most of the needs of his family. To that extent, he can diversify at once; and he can further diversify as he finds a ready market for his products.

QUEBEC'S OBJECT LESSON.

(Montreal Le Canada)

In any event, the evolution of the Farmers' party in Ontario must be a striking lesson for the few agitators who have had the enterprise to form a class party in Quebec. And unless they have the good sense of abandon their unhealthy agitation, the great majority of the electors will know how to signify their disapproval here, as it has just done in Ontario.

CROSSING THE DEEP.

Though the steamship is barely three generations old, steam has near ly had its day. The modern liner crosses in a week where the Britannia took a fortnight; it is a luxurious home for 2,000 passengers, instead of a little vessel carrying 100 odd. But change continues restlessly. Great ships are running entirely on oil, electricity has vast possibilities, and new sources of power are already talked about. How shall we be crossing the ocean 23 years hence?

change continues restlessly. Great. (Washington Post)

If any nation neglect to provide means for occupying its own air field it runs the risk of seeing an enemy nation occupy it, and from that vantage point proceed to occupy its lands and waters. The air field of a country may now be compared with its coasts. A nation is more justified in leaving its coasts defenceless than it is in leaving its air territory defenseless; for if it maintains control of the air it can drive out a hostile navy or army, but with coast defenses it can not drive off an enemy air fleet coming as the opening wedge of an army or navy.

BACILLI KILLED BY SUN.

(Sunday Express)

Cyrus, King of Persia, ordered his soldiers to sweat once a day. The sun is wiser than Cyrus. He makes us sweat all day and all night. He is opening every pore, and every eye is clearer, every cheek is fairer. Our waste products are being ruthlessly expelled. The bacilli are dying in the great oven of sunlight. And the curse on the chart of joy is scaring higher every day. A month of sunshine is worth the national debt. And there is no tax on sunlight; and no meter. Let us whow gladly, for the winter cometh when no man can whew.;

RAILROADERS AND PETES CLASH IN FIRST GAME OF PLAY-OFF SERIES WEDNESDAY

BATTLE WITH SOLOMON'S SQUAD BASEBALL CLASSIC OF SEASON

Both Teams on Toes For Gladiatorial Contest — Hopes for Cup and Pennant Honors

Tomorrow's the day and Fair Grounds is the place. What's happening you say? Well here's the whole thing in a nut shell. The Belleville Grand Trunks, co-champions of the province and once runners-up clash with Jakie Solomon's Petes in the big city baseball classic of the present season. This is the first game of the play-off for the championship of the "Big Four". It will undoubtedly be the best game of the present season at the local park. Both teams are keyed up to the highest pitch for the struggle. A win for the Trunks will put them in a commanding position to cop the honours for the Johnston cup and the C. O. R. L. pennant. Jack Williams is cocked and primed for the gigantic tussle. He will be opposed by Al Heckman, the lift-lockers blonde haired right-hander. Belleville fans remember their stirring struggles between those two high class hurlers. Williams is confident that he can stop the Petes back to-morrow and local fandom are behind him to a man. Wilsons is still supreme among the infielders in Ontario and Jake's boys will have to be on their best behaviour. Shield the Indian trim the late from the north to-morrow there is not a shadow of doubt but what Oulette can duplicate the feat. Saturday. The lanky speed-baller maintains that he can beat the winners of the record half right at home.

Meagher who injured his ankle to Tweed will be back at the Keystone rack while Weir will remain in left field. Hagerman will likely do the receiving as Penny's finger is not sufficiently healed to warrant his return behind the bat. The rest of the personnel of the team will remain as it has been all summer.

Mr. T. J. P. Powers of the Parks Board who has charge of the seat sale informed the Intelligencer this morning that sales were coming along in first-rate style. To-morrow the gates will be thrown open to all those desiring bleacher tickets.

Chandler and Frankie Halfass, who are carded to officiate are, without a doubt two of the best arbiters in Toronto, so no doubts may be cast in that direction.

Lesslie will probably play their home game with Oshawa at Peterboro to-morrow. The authorities have not been greeted by very large crowds this season, hence the idea of staging the game in Peterboro. "Mickey" Murray, formerly Peterboro third-baseman is guarding the hot corner for the Peacock crew. A big home crowd should be out in large numbers to see Murray perform.

The Trunks are playing nice ball right now and should pull out with a win to-morrow. Don't miss this game. It is our advice to you.

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 14.—Any bet-maker with a tremendous punch and the heart to come back under punishment, even if he is a set-up for a chopper and a mauler, is a dangerous man against any opponent.

For this reason, Luis Angel Firpo, the huge South American, has a chance to win the heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey when they meet on September 14; or later.

Because he is a crude, rough workman; because he is "dumb" in the orthodox way of judging boxers, and because he is green and inexperienced against first-class fighters, Firpo's chances of beating Dempsey are being laughed at by the wise men, and predictions are being made that the South American will end on the floor as Jack de Dempsey is inclined to stop the fight.

Firpo has so many faults that it would be silly to figure him as a contender to win the championship, but it is almost as foolish to concede him no chance against the champion.

Regardless of Firpo's lack of boxing skill and despite the fact that he has to be reminded that he has a left hand, it is one thing sure that Dempsey will never be ring with plenty in respect for the South American's right hand.

Firpo, in the possession of a right hand that has enough driving power than any right in the business, is physically and at heart patterned much after Battling Mitchell, the Milwaukee lightweight, and Eugene Criqui, featherweight champion of the world for June and July, 1921.

Firpo, Mitchell and Criqui are all highly dangerous as long as they are on their feet. The dynamite in their right hands is always a terrific mental hazard to their opponents, no matter how men they are to subsequent. All three fight back hardest when hurt.

Mitchell is perhaps the most dangerous fighter in the ring when he is just about able to stand. His fight in Madison Square Garden two years ago with Benny Leonard never will be forgotten. Leonard had him out on his feet, punched dizzy and pleasy but Leonard became careless when he was so close to victory and he dropped his guard. Mitchell crashed over a right hand to the jaw and flopped Leonard to the canvas for the count of nine. In many other of his recent fights, which have been losing fights, Mitchell has always finished the valiant dying stand that worried his opponents until the finish.

Criqui had nothing but his right-hand punch and a heart that never permitted him to step back. He couldn't box, but he could fight. Johnny Kilbane made a monkey out of the Frenchman for five rounds, but Kilbane became careless. He opened himself to a right-hand punch and was knocked out.

Johnny Dundee subjected Criqui to so much punishment for fourteen rounds in the Frenchman's next fight that nothing but one of the gamest hearts in the ring kept him on his feet. He was blinded, punched almost out and so weak from the loss of blood that he could hardly lift his arms to a guard, but the dancer of his right hand was so great that Dundee could, after the seventh round warned him to play safe, take no chances and win on points rather than try for a knockout and run the risk of getting a right-hander.

Dundee was boxing so well and he was so experienced that he was able to follow the instructions and keep the Frenchman from getting set for a right hand.

Firpo is something of the same style. He has a heart and he will "take back" when hurt. He showed that in the Willard fight when, in the fifth round, his Jess knocked him groggy with his under the eye. The South American is so good that he shows no ready the effect of a punch, but Willard was too timid about the right hand that Firpo had cocked and he stopped back and gave him the chance to recover.

Dempsey, of course, can beat Firpo's right hand, with a left hook, as long as Firpo continues to telegraph the punch by pulling his shoulder back and his elbow to his side. But Firpo is fast going to be knocked out with one punch and perhaps he will take more than one clean punches before he is through.

When aroused, and when he gets an opening, Firpo charges in with so much fury that Dempsey may have to assume the defensive and he will certainly be taking a chance if he tries to counter-punch.

In all his big fights, it has been shown that Dempsey can be hit. He will be hit in his fight with Firpo, and every time the South American lands a punch he will be hurt. Firpo is no easy man. He is not boxer enough to do his Dundee and play safe for a decision not only because he is not skilled enough to do it, but because to retain what prestige he has left he will have to knockout Firpo.

There is a rather perplexing element of temperament to be reckoned with in figuring Firpo's chances. He is very sensitive, too willing to listen to advice that is not always good, and so frugal that he grudges himself to fatten his pocketbook.

Unless he is doing it for a purpose, and he doesn't seem smart enough to have decided upon such strategy, Firpo's public utterances since he was signed for the Dempsey bout indicate that he may not have the necessary confidence when he goes into the ring.

If he has one doubt that he can win when the first gong sounds, his doubts will become realities in short order. Firpo has been saying that he wanted to wait another year. He had no ideas that until some coffee spillers in the Brazilian bean rooms told him he should wait for two years, and he believed them.

Then, also his desire to save a few dollars caused him to break relations with Jimmy De Forest, his trainer. If Dempsey has any weakness, there is no one who should know it better than Demsey, who coached the same man in the world who could train Firpo properly for such an important fight that man certainly is DeForest.

FERDIE'S ROLLING STONE

Ferdie was small, but so sly
'Twas no wonder he always got by;
Though scared most to fits,
He held on to his wits,
And remained he never would die.

Ferdie Fox was fifty-two years old, very fit, and he was also wise—extremely wise, in short, Ferdie was a fox.

Ferdie was also a good runner. Across the fields, over the hills, and through the woods he fled just as fast as ever he could. Ferdie was in such a hurry because accident (for that was who and sly and also a good runner) was after him. The other fox lived a short distance as the crow flies, too. Poor little Ferdie was frightened half to death.

Faster and faster he ran, until he was so tired he almost dropped. He thought of the terrible fox that was after him, but kept him going. He love to the woods. For a moment he was out of sight of his pursuer. If he could only find a place to hide!

Then, just as though his wish had been answered, Ferdie saw a cave in the side of a hill. It was just the sort of a place he had been looking for in that Ferdie stopped a minute to think before he ran into the other fox would expect him to hide there. Ferdie's footprints would lead right into the mouth of the cave. The fox would follow him in and corner him.

Ferdie had a few feet into the cave, then flopped down and rolled out again. The big fox, seeing no foot prints leading out, would naturally suppose Ferdie was still in the cave. Outside the mouth of the cave was a big stone. Ferdie rolled out of sight behind it. He was just in time, too, for the terrible fox came around a tree immediately.

Ferdie was lying flat on his back. At the sight of the big fox his hair stood on end so that it raised him right off the ground. He was much worse looking than Ferdie had thought. Ferdie trembled so that he

LIMBS AND BODY ALL SWOLLEN

"Fruit-a-tives" Relieved Both Dropsy and Sick Kidneys

The Wonder of Fruit Medicine

Those who know they have Kidney Trouble—who suffer with pain in the back—who are up frequently at night will welcome the statement "Fruit-a-tives", the wonderful medicine made from fruit juices and tonics, will positively relieve Kidney and Bladder Trouble—as proven by this letter.

Mrs. Estelle Girl had Kidney Trouble and Dropsy—her limbs and body were all swollen. She decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". In a short time, the swelling went down. Now, she is the healthiest one of the family.

MRS. WARREN,
Port Robinson, Ont.

had to fold his feet across his stomach to keep them from flying out on all sides of the rock.

"I'll get you. I'll get you," growled the terrible fox through clenched teeth. Ferdie trembled until he bounced right up and down on his back. "Ah, ha. You thought you would run from me, did you?" sneered the fox, following the foot-prints right into the cave. "Well, I thought you had better sense than that. Here's where I get you, sure enough. You can't get away from me now!" Ferdie yelled.

Ferdie quickly jumped up and rolled the stone over against the opening. "I thought you had better sense than that. Here's where I get you, sure enough. You can't get away from me now!" Ferdie yelled.

"If you don't speak directly, man, I shall do you a mischief," exclaimed the little woman, excitedly. "Tell me all you know this instant."

"Well, you see, mum, it was like! that last night was very dark, and my misses said to me, 'Jacky,' she says, 'take the bucket and go down to Brown's pump and get a bucket o' water. Because you see, mum, the sucker being worn, our pump's not agate just now."

"Well!" exclaimed Mrs. Claire, impatiently.

"Well, mum, I goes round by Kitty Rawson's corner, and out back way, and as I come past the blacksmith's shop his arm round Daisy Banks's waist."

"Now, Jacky," exclaimed Mrs. Claire, with a hysterical sob, "you're a lot too truth I'll never, never forgive you."

"Truth, mum," said Jacky, in an ill-used tone. "I've been clerk here a matter o' twenty year, and my father and grandfather before me, and when I tell a lie, do you think! Speak the truth without fear or favor. Ain't that the way now, mum?" cried Mrs. Claire, sharply

"Wasn't I water all the plants mum?"

"No; go away, and if you say a word to a soul about this, I'll never forgive you, Jacky."

"Thanky, mum, thanky," said Jacky turning to go and nearly trampling on Prince.

"No, come here!" exclaimed Mrs. Claire, whose face was working, and round in front, Jacky, and tell Joe Banks I want to speak to him. Tell him I'm in the garden."

"Yes, mum."

"Jacky," she said, calling him back. "Yes, mum."

"Don't you dare say a word about what it's for."

"No, mum."

Jacky went off round by his tool-shed, out into the street, and down to the foundry gates, where, after a word with the foreman he went on across the great metal-strewn yard in search of Mrs. Claire's sturdy foreman.

Meanwhile that lady caught up her dog, and carried him to a garden seat, where, upon being set down, he curled up and went to sleep, his tail and ears combined making a comfortable cover-lid. Then taking off her scissors and placing them in her basket, Mrs. Claire seated herself, sighed deeply, and taking out from a voluminous pocket—which took sundry evolutions with drapery to reach—a great ball of lambswool and a couple of knitting pins, she began to knit rapidly what was intended to be some kind of under-garment for her only son.

"Oh Dick, Dick," she muttered; "you'll break my heart, but you've done."

The knitting pins clicked loudly, and a couple of bright tears stole down her cheeks and dropped into her lap.

"And I did not tell him to hold his tongue before Eva," she exclaimed, sharply. "Tubal—tut—tut! This must be stopped this must be stopped.

The sighing, lamenting phase gave place by degrees to anger, and the pins clicked sharply, and the pleasant gray head was perked, while the lips were set firmly together, even as were the stitches in the knitting, which had to be all undone.

Just then a shadow fell over opened, and a broad-shouldered grizzled man of seven or eight-and-forty entered the garden by the door. Jacky. The man though he was, Joe Banks had been hard at work, and his hands and face bore the grime of the foundry. He had, however, thrown on a jacket, and wiped the perspiration from his forehead, leaving a half clean line over his pale face eyes, white a pleas and smile quickened, even as the sun was not hidden by his closely cut grizzled beard.

"Harvest, ma'am," he said, making a rough bow to the lady of the house.

"Good-morning, Banks," said Mrs. Claire. "Jacky has had set up that wisteria, and mind you don't tumble off the ladder."

Jacky looked injured, but walked off, evidently making a beeline for the tool-shed, one which he did not reach.

"Little on, mum," said the foreman, with a wise nod in Jacky's direction, "Jacky's a monk's illness to be a warnin'."

"It's a pity, Banks, but he will drink."

"Like lots more on 'em, ma'am. Why if I was to get shut of all the lads in the works there who like their drop of drink, I shouldn't half miss 'em."

"I said how are things going on, Banks" said Mrs. Claire.

Mrs. Foreman looked at her curiously, for it was a new thing for his mistress to make any inquiry about the foundry, and she laughed, as she had to make his daily reports, but since Richard Claire had come of age, Mrs. Claire was gradually more and more avoided interfering in any way, handing over the business management to her only son.

"I said how are things going on in the foundry, Banks," said the lady impatiently, as the man laughed, and shuffled from one foot to the other.

"Do you wish me to tell you, ma'am he said at last.

"Tell me? of course," said Mrs. Claire, impatiently. How are masters?"

"Bad."

"Bad! What do you mean?"

"Well, mum, not bad as to work; 'cause there's plenty of that, and no chance o' the way of contracts as is like to suffer by waiting."

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and could not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and as my taking the medicine I at once began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."—Mrs. J. R. McMahon, 151 Darby St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

If women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women," it would be the first step toward health.

Innocents Abroad On Upper Themes

CHAPTER II

London, Aug. 14 (United Press).—Why, well dressed dregs of society will go to any length to ensnare a youthful lordship and conquered youngster from Ain'rica.

Often the victim has never bucked snobbier wiles than those of the perky waitress in his favorite college town restaurant.

It is fish for the trappers and they are catching their game every day of the tourist season. Fond mammas, who warn Calvin against the pitfalls of fearsome Paris, would do well to include a chapter on what not to do in London and why not.

Two college bred Americans, or rather, two who left college young by the grace of the dean and a couple of [additional years' loafing around old Alma Mater, recently were disappointed when a projected "party" in a summer house on the banks of the Thames fell through.

The youths had spent a day at Hampton Court, admiring, often audibly, the remarkable beauties of the old pile with its surrounding gardens.

As they leaned ooglingly against a tiny bridge spanning limpid water, they fell into conversation with a meticulously dressed young Englishman and his, strikingly handsome wife. Mr. and Mrs. Englishman liked Hampton Court, too. They were used to it, however. They had a summer house a mile Below, and from there it was hardly a step to an invitation for a week-end, with a promise of two pretty girls among the guests.

The Americans fell—hard. Would they come?

"They'd say they would," in a chorus.

Before parting Mr. Englishman drew youngster Number One aside and whispered a snappy little secret.

The pretty lady was not his wife; only his week-end companion. If the boys were in favor of it he'd duplicate her twice for the projected week-end.

Were they in favor it? "They'd say they were," but not in chorus this time, as Number One answered for Number Two.

The boys showed up for the party. The girls were there. Two punts manned by excited young Americans went for a cruise on the quiet breast of the stream.

It was a great party, the boys allowed, but not for long. Shortly after midnight, while post-bright drinks were being swallowed by all concerned, who should pull up in a motor-boat but the fathers of the pretty girl companions of the young vacationers!

There were hard words all around.

Fathers had the police in mind. So did the boys. The host effected a comfortable slide under the table with an apparent overload of liquor. The "young wife" wrung her hands and vowed it could never happen.

The situation was saved when the boys peeled off generous bits of the traveler's checks each carried and which most young Americans are known to carry.

After the coats had made a hurried raid for a hoped-for taxi, the fathers of the pretty girls, the supposedly bogus wife, who was actually a real one, and the soft-spoken young Mr. Englishman took another rap at the bottle and counted up the profits.

They were large. The method is a favorite.

Another is to grab the young men who allows his conversation to drift to games of chance and to so rearrange his bank account as to cut a European vacation to a mere two weeks in London.

Kingston-Oshawa Detour Execrated, Expert Asserts

(Toronto Sunday World)

The Ontario Motor League has been advised that contracts call for the completion of the paving of the unfinished sections of the Kingston Road between Toronto and Oshawa by September first. It has spared no effort to have the work expedited, as the detour situation has been much execrated—and not without cause. It seems that the lack of paralleling roads in this section is unique, and due to the fact that when the road surveys were made many decades ago the Kingston Road, which antedated the survey was left out of the picture, so no alternative route or less paralleling road was provided. West of Toronto the Dundas Road roughly parallels the Lake Shore Highway, and between these two lie the upper and lower middle roads. Thus when the Lake Shore Highway was under construction, motorists were not required to drive very far out of their route in making detours.

Detours are necessary evils, and are to be found throughout the state-building world. Many amateur critics, to the contrary notwithstanding permanent pavements can only be laid over night, neither can two half widths of pavement be alternately made anything like as economically, efficiently or expeditiously as the full width. The Department of Highways is to be commended for throwing open the Kingston Road over the holiday. While the passing of cars over roads only partially constructed undoubtedly does considerable damage to such roads, still the cost of repairing the damage is but a fraction of the amount saved motorists on an occasion of this kind, and the motorists are fostering the construction of the provincial highways.

Considerable progress is being made on the construction of the bridges that will link the transcontinental highway with Montreal and by the end of the current season good to excellent roads will stretch from Toronto to Sarnia Windsor, the Falls, Montreal, North Bay, and many other centres in the province. The fall, and more especially next season, the ownership of a motor car will be abundantly more worth while than ever before.

WHAT'S THE MOTIVE!

France went into the Ruhr, and in stopping there—so it has been declared repeatedly—merely to collect her fall dues. She is collecting far less than before she entered the ruhr, and has spent considerable sums in the process; her chance of obtaining ultimately her full dues has been seriously reduced by her action. And the French are the most logical of European nations.

Music & Drama

"SOUTH OF SUVA"—IS VIVID SOUTH SEA DRAMA

"South of Suva," the latest release of Mary Miles Minter, now showing at Griffin's concerns a bride who comes to the South Seas to join her husband only to find that he has fallen under fanatic tropic influences.

Before the girl works her way out to happiness there are some extremely gripping scenes, which include a native attack on a lagoon, their dismal by dramatic, a real full blood cadaballistic dance—all worked cleverly into the warp and woof of a most colorful story.

The accuracy of the picture is guaranteed by its author, who spent five years in the South Seas as the assistant manager of a 12,000 acre cocoanut plantation.

Miss Minter has as her leading man the popular John Bowers, while other players include Fred Kelsey, Walter Long, Winifred Bryson, Lawrence Steers and Roy Atwell. Frank Urson directed.

Fox News, a good comedy, and a thrilling Jungle story completes a very entertaining program well worth seeing.

"THE MAN FROM LOST RIVER" A CLASSIC OF THE NORTHWOODS

The great Northwest woods are really the central influence in the Goldwyn picture, "The Man From Lost River," which is now showing at the Regent Theatre. The action of Katharine Newlin Burt's photoplay takes place in a lumber camp where the men lead crude lives close to nature. The softening influence of women is absent, though in the camp dwells an orphan girl, the pride of the lumbermen. Into this group comes a sophisticated Easterner who falls in love with the girl and marries her. The dramatic conflict over the lonely camp foreman, who has sinisterly adored the girl all the while, and the unworthiness of her husband in a time of crisis that both Femove him from the scene and leaves the worth of a noble man's love.

One of the marvelous scenes in this Frank Lloyd production is that of the lumberjacks in the act of felling a giant tree. The picture was taken on Lake Huntington, in the Catskills, on the government reservation there. For outdoor scenic beauty and thrilling dramatic action, "The Man From Lost River" is one of the most effective pictures Goldwyn has made this year.

A Sunshine comedy, an entertaining Sport Review, and a thrilling chapter of Universal's "Hurricane Kid" serial are also being exhibited on the same program.

Draco, the Famous Herbal Health-Builder Makes Big Difference in Condition of Mr. John Holmes

The remarkable tonic properties of Draco are again demonstrated in the case of Mr. John Holmes, of Scarboro Road, Toronto, a returned soldier, whose health was in a precarious condition, until Draco came to help him. Here is Mr. Holmes' statement of the case:

"My husband, who was a Corporal in the 10th Battalion, Canadian Troops underwent an operation for appendicitis and Gall Stones upon his return. He has never had the same strength since.

"He suffered from pains shooting through his body and also had an occasional fainting spell, his heart being in a very weakened condition. He was very nervous and irritable all the time. His work as a teamster took considerable energy and his system became entirely run down.

"He has taken only two bottles of Draco but it is surprising how much better he is feeling already. He rests better and hasn't that tired out feeling. Pains through the body are greatly improved and he does better than he has for a long time.

"I am sure that if he continues to take Draco for a while, he will be quite normal again. I feel quite happy over the results so far."

Draco tones and strengthens the whole system and improves general health generally. It acts on the important organs of digestion and aids them in proper assimilation of food. As the body responds with growing health, aches and pains, gas on the stomach and other distressing symptoms disappear. Draco contains no Mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. It is a reliable remedy made only from herbs, roots, bark and leaves of known medicinal value, a corrective that may be taken with perfect confidence.

Draco is being specially introduced in Belleville by the Belleville Pharmacy, and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

DANGER OF NEW PARTIZANSHIP

The real threat to Farmer unity lies in the creations of a new partisanship and a new party that Mr. Drury and others frankly admit will ultimately displace Liberalism as the opponent of Conservatism restoring again the two-party system. All Mr. Drury's talk about Progressive ideals will not alter the fact that the linking of the U.F.O. either directly or indirectly with such a party will bring it to disaster.

"Father" of Great U.E.L. Celebration and Notable Project In Limelight

W. C. Mikel, K.C., Subject of "Spotlight" Article in Toronto Daily Star

The "Spotlight" on the Toronto Star was focused on Belleville yesterday and this city and the U. E. L. celebration to be held in 1924 received highly favorable publicity in a sketch in yesterday's issue of the star of which W. C. Mikel, K.C., of this city was the subject. The spotlight article follows:—

"We English-speaking peoples seem likely to become as thick as nine peas in a pod. The newest pilgrimage to be projected upon the international screen has Billy Mikel of Belleville as chief producer. It is to time "De arrived at the Bay of Quinte of the United Empire Loyalists, a hundred and forty years ago next summer. Manager Mikel has this pleasure of announcing that the pageant then to be produced will be witnessed by thirteen state governors.

W. C. MIKEL

Nothing more heroic in American citizenship ever happened than the first into the (then) wilderness of those devoted Britishers, who chose rather to suffer affliction than to join in establishing states which denied allegiance to the British Crown. George the Third didn't deserve such devotion—which only makes our admiration of it the more admiring. It is likely that some of the governors who are coming hither loaned for the first time, through the Mikel invitation, that a great multitude in this thirteen reviolled colonies thought so true of the monarchy, as compared with the treatment they received from triumphant setcders, that they ventured into the wilderness to enjoy its protection. American history, as taught, was apt to leave the impression that the union in the first congress was animated by seven self-denying ordinances; and that the ardor of brotherly affection was melted out to those who desired to render an unquestioning allegiance to the London Parliament. The truth is, of course ,that on this side of the water a hundred and forty years ago about the same quality of intolerance abounded as makes such lurid reading of the history of the struggle for parliamentary reforms in England during the infancy of the American Republic. It was at least an improvement upon the temper of the Stuart monarchs, a hundred years before the stamp act stamped out Jacobitism out of the southern half of this continent.

"But to Manager Mikel of next year's pageant-celebration. He is a lawyer plus; the plus being compounded of a very sincere patriotism and a facility for attracting attention beyond the spheres of his daily activity. It is not critical of his juristic prudential quality to remark that a touch of the showman is in his makeup. He doesn't believe in doing things in a corner, when they can properly be proclaimed from the housetops. In his extensive practice, all sorts of things are at stake, and most of them do not belong to the public eye. But his learning in the law has always tended to public service, and has encouraged him to perform his just share of those public services about which a golden silence need unrigidly be observed.

Eleven years ago he was the efficient and prized president of the Ontario Tercentenary Commission. He represented the province at the investigation into the affairs of the provincial institution for training the deaf and dumb, which is one of the prides and benevolences of his native city. Another task which reflected his public spirit as well as his legal standing, was his representation at Ottawa of the interests of the depositors in the Farmers Bank, which went to smash, and its general manager went to Kingston.

"Billy Mikel (if it is not to dispeat to speak of a king's consort in that friendly way)'as a politician has never practised politics for himself. You do not read his name in candidatorial catalogues. He listed in more national than provincial; but two of her Belleville lawyers gave the city its distinctions at Ottawa, Sir Mackenzie and Billy Northrup—the second was once the champion of easier divorce and a hopeful aspirant of the Conservative leadership in. Mr. Borden's most depressing days, and is now the clerk of the House of Commons who bi-lingually announces the results of divisions.

Mr. Mikel has long been in strong demand when candidates with faltering tongues have needed platform assistance. His Conservative standard has, at times, been tinged with a democratic progressiveness to which his electioneering utterance has not always done the fullest justice.

"In Belleville you can easily hear the story of the Mikel brothers and the war and the Union government during the memorable election of December, 1917. It is common in the first concross was animated by severe self-denying ordinances; and that the ardor of brotherly affection was melted out to those who desired to render an unquestioning allegiance to the London Parliament. The truth is, of course ,that on this side of the water a hundred and forty years ago about the same quality of intolerance abounded as makes such lurid reading of the history of the struggle for parliamentary reforms in England during the infancy of the American Republic. It was at least an improvement upon the temper of the Stuart restorations, a hundred years before the stamp act stamped out Jacobitism out of the southern half of this continent.

Irrigation in Southern Alberta

(1) Bassano Dam, built in the earlier days by the Canadian Pacific Railway Irrigation Company. (2) An irrigation flume. (3) This farmer does not depend on rains for his moisture. (4) Public Gardens, Lethbridge, Alta.

I HAD been told to expect a transformation; that a new order of things was being born in Southern Alberta; that a new system of farming was taking the place of the old. I was told that the days of "scratching" and of "sell mining" were gone days. Nevertheless, I was not prepared for what I saw.

Fifteen years before, I had travelled through this country and had seen only a few scattered farmsteads set out on the "laid-headed" prairie, four square to all the winds that blew. There were no trees, only a stretching expanse of prairie that merged into wide-spread mountains on the west and meeting the sky on the east in an unbroken horizon. A few homesteaders were struggling in. Old cattlemen, trying to save their great range, were spreading stories that farming could never be a success in Southern Alberta.

But the homesteaders came." Then later the big harvests started with their returns and ushered in the prosperous days of the thousand acre wheat ranch. A series of "wet years" made Southern Alberta famous. Nowhere had such crops ever previously been heard of. The Noble Foundation, one of the largest farming corporations in the world, brought in a crop of wheat from one thousand acres that threshed 24,000 bushels! The country was dotted thick with elevators. In 1915 and 1916, Southern Alberta reached the peak of prosperity. Then came the dry, unproductive years followed when rainfall was scant. Some farms were abandoned. Others "sold out" and "got busted up by the wonder harvests of other years."

The question was purely one of moisture and the Government of the Dominion and the Province set about to study it. The soil was of the richest kind. Everything the climate was right. Something to supplement the natural rainfall was wanted. The Canadian Pacific Railway and other corporations had already developed tracts of land by irrigation. It was an experiment, and so a constructive policy of irrigation was commenced, backed by both Governments.

It is in the train of irrigation that the new order of things is coming in Southern Alberta. Today as you motor over the irrigated districts of Strathmore and Brooks, south through the Bow River Project and on into Taber and Lethbridge, the flatness is broken on all sides by farmsteads that nestle among the cottonwood trees and poplars. Taller and taller grow the trees. Hedges are growing where once was barbed wire. Shrubbery is in the beginning. Gardens and fields of Alfalfa, Indian Corn and Wheat. Dairy cows are seen in green pastures. The farms are small, but they are real farms, and the homes are smiling homes of contented people. There is no "scratching" or "sell mining." These are permanent homes on the threshold of a future bright with promise.

In the City of Lethbridge, around which most of the best irrigation development is proceeding, are found tree-lined streets, beautiful homes set in hedge enclosed lawns, and on the hills the High School that Canada can boast. The city has been thoughtfully planned and systematically built up in its entirety in the spirit of a people pledged to permanency.

Everyone who knows Southern Alberta in its history, there is a pleasant surprise, waiting.. Wherever irrigation has touched, it is truly a country transformed.

the affair is being investigated.

Chief of Detective Biron, who has been working on the case, with Detective Lecavalier, filled in a 'report on Saturday, which was made ready and within a few days arrests are expected. An important turn taken by the affair is that the authorities are now in possession of facts, which lead to the belief that the assassination was premeditated and six men are under suspicion, they having, it is said, boasted that they would kill the old game warden. They are said to have been very strict in enforcing the fishing regulations, which had developed ill-feeling against him on the part of some poachers residing in the vicinity of the territory over which he had charge. The animosity had grown to a greater extent this year due to the fact that salmon was scarce for some time in that region and the Bonaventure river was a great source of supply.

To Probe Death Of Game Warden

Quebec, Que., Aug. 14.—Developments, which have arisen in connection with the murder of Joseph Blaquire, a game warden, in Bonaventure county, who was shot dead near the Metapedia Club have warranted the attorney-general to order the re-opening of the coroner's inquest under direct control of the crown. Mr. Lucien Cannon, K.C., Liberal prosecutor in this district, left yesterday for Ste. Florence, where

Premier Sees Bright Outlook

Quebec, Aug. 14.—L'Evenement published an interview yesterday credited to Premier King, who passed through here on his way to Ottawa from Pink's Pic, which he spent the week-end, the guest of Sir Lomer and Lady Gouin at their summer residence. In the interview the prime minister referred to the European situation and made the important declaration that Canada was not interested in Europeca affairs. This came after the premier had been asked what he thought of the situation abroad.

"I believe Canada must not interfere in the affairs of Europe. Canadians would not like to see Europeans intervening in their affairs. This has always been my opinion, and I see nothing which would justify any change in it," he said.

Asked what he thought of the secrets of sensational articles published in the London Star since the head line of "Whisper of Death," Hon. Mr. King stated: "I believe that in Canada no one is thinking of war. Everybody wants to live, and never has there been more reason to do so. In the last few months business has certainly greatly improved, and it will still improve. In Quebec right here you have harbor in the scene of great activity, and conditions are constantly improving."

Yacht Adrift, Is Finally Rescued

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Caught in the heavy off-shore wind somewhere along the city's shore line yesterday night, the Francis, owned by G. U. Siff, of the Oginish apartments and member of the R.C.Y.C., was blown about ten miles out in the lake and sighted by the steamer Cayuga homeward bound.

The steamer immediately went to the smaller vessel's aid, but the passengers on board were at the end of their resources. After three hours' vain search in the dark the rescue vessel put back, shipped a new crew under Acting-superintendent Hilliard Long, and again went out in quest of the drifters. They were towed in yesterday morning.

Those, given to irony, declare that the people must be satisfied with the Lausanne Treaty are the Swiss; they have at least benefited by the presence at the best hotels, over a period of many months of large delegations from a dozen states. These have left in Swiss territory more money than Turk or Greek could have expected by way of indemnity. The manufacture of treaties proves to make up for the deficits of a declining tourist industry.

ABOUT THE SPARK.

After the mixture of gasoline and air is drawn into the engine cylinders and compressed, it must be ignited (exploded or fired) to force down the pistons and give power to the engine. This is accomplished electrically by the ignition system. The electric current is supplied by the generator or batteries, passes by means of electric-tight-insulated wire to the timer and from there to the spark plugs where it jumps in the form of a spark from one spark point to the other.

The principal parts of the ignition system are:

(a) Magneto or generator
(b) Batteries
(c) Starter
(d) Spark Plugs
(e) Timer
(f) Wiring

The electric current is supplied to the ignition system either from the generator or batteries. The generator operates and delivers current only when the engine is running or not. In ordinary running, the generator supplies enough current for lighting the car and keep the batteries yell charged with electricity.

The batteries need careful and regular attention.

(a) In cold weather water should be added about every 14 days; in summer every 7 to 10 days.

(b) Only distilled water should be used; ordinary water may contain impurities that are harmful to the battery.

(c) If a funnel is used, it should be made of glass, wood or rubber. Metal funnels are conductors of electricity and are liable to spoil the batteries.

(d) In cold weather special care should be taken to keep the battery well charged and full of distilled water. If this is done, the danger from the battery freezing is increased. A complete charged battery whose specific gravity is about 1.275 freezes at 90 degrees below zero; if specific gravity is 1.150, the battery will freeze at 20 degrees above zero.

(e) The batteries should be well covered and protected to prevent tools, chains, or other articles from falling on and short circuiting the battery terminals.

The starter is an electric motor which takes current from the batteries and turns over the engine for starting. When the engine starts, the starter is disconnected from the engine automatically. Releasing the starter button brings the starting motor to a stop.

Spark plugs should not be screwed into the cylinder head too tight; they expand when heated and have been known to crack the cylinder.

(a) Spark plugs should be kept clean, otherwise the engine may start hard, miss, or lack power.

(b) Handle spark plugs carefully. A crack in the porcelain weakens the compression, permits leakage of the electric current, and completely spoils a spark plug.

(c) The gap between the points in a spark plug should be about the thickness of a thin dime.

The timer in a car arrangement which automatically opens and closes the electric circuit at different points and at electric sparks are delivered at the spark plugs "at the exact instant they are wanted. The timer of modern type is adjustment and should not be tinkered with except by an experienced person.

Inspect all wiring terminals and connections at least once each month. The majority of automobile fires are caused by improper or defective wires and connections. All electric wires and cables should be kept dry and clean. Dirt, oil, and moistures are liable to cause a short circuit. It is especially advisable to clean off all corrosion which might form at the battery terminals. When cleaning commutators, distributor discs, and contacts, use fine sandpaper (not emery cloth).

Plan to Celebrate Revolution Events on 150th Anniversary

New York, Aug. 15.—State-wide celebration of the 150th anniversary of important events of the American Revolution occurring in New York is being planned, under a recent act of legislation. The New York State Historical Association is formulating a program and is submitting to various historic societies and individuals an outline of a plan with a request for suggestions.

The association proposes annual State appropriations beginning with 1924 for the celebration of the events of the State's magnificent Revolutionary record by providing for suitable ceremonies or other commemorative action at the sites of the most important happenings for aid to localities in their own local celebrations; for markers to designate sites that are of historic significance in the Colonial, Revolutionary or State periods, and for appropriate school exercises." It is proposed that the celebration of the entire eight years of the Revolutionary struggle.

Action by the Legislature to preserve the battlefields of Oriskany and Saratoga as national parks; State aid in providing all major historic spots with improved highways; development of the State highway system, and co-operation of Canada and border States in the celebration of especial significance to them are further suggestions.

The financing of the various celebrations, it is suggested, should be left as a primarily local and is to be obtained from county, city, village and town appropriations, and by private subscription. State funds are to be devoted chiefly to the larger celebrations.

The final report of the association with such amendments as result from the recommendations of various patriotic societies and individuals, will be submitted to the Governor by Feb. 1.

FIRE CAUSES HEAVY LOSS IN THURLOW

Wesley Gray Loses Barn, Livestock, Hay and Grain —Loss $6,000

Mr. Wesley Gray of the second concession of Thurlow suffered a heavy loss on Tuesday last when his barn, 40x80, was, without its contents, destroyed by fire. At 3 o'clock in the morning the fire was discovered by a neighbor, who by means of the telephone aroused Mr. Gray and family. When the barn was enveloped by flames. Three horses were stabled therein and Mr. Gray succeeded in rescuing the latter but one was cremated, also ten pigs and eighty hens. Had it not been for the prompt arrival of neighbors with their heroic efforts, the residence and other buildings would have fallen a victim to the devouring elements. In the barn was stored this season's hay crop, a number of tons and some two hundred bushels of grain, all burned. How the fire or ignited is unknown, but it is thought tramps were responsible as none were seen in that vicinity the previous evening. The burned barn was an up-to-date structure and valued at $4,000. The loss sustained is partially covered by insurance. Mr. Gray is already making preparations to rebuild. It was estimated that the total loss was approximately $6,000.

STORY IS "FISHY" FINED; GIRL AND LIQUOR IN CASE

Fish-Dealer and Friend Visit City in Intoxicated Condition—Arrested

WOMAN TALKS

Efforts to Dissemble in Court Proves Futile—Police Inquisitive

Edgar Chase, of Carleonville, fish dealer, was fined $50 and costs of $9 for telling a story to the court which they did not believe this morning, and if he can't pay it will mean two months on the hill for him. It was not a fish story, but Crown Attorney Donnar thought it was when Chase, one, did Magistrate Masson. It was an Q.T.A. story.

Chase, along with Mrs. Joseph Rousseau of Trenton, was discovered sitting in a motor car on Front street last night at 8.45, Chase blowing the horn unnecessarily for several minutes. No doubt the "ocean was foggy", hence the horn was effect. Both were obviously intoxicated, and were arrested by Police Sergeant A. Harman and P.C. Morris, after the police officers had been communicated with by a Front street merchant who found the pair in his hall way. Neither of the pair remember being taken in, and the woman thought she was in Trenton when arrested.

Chase's story for August 14 is something like this: Drank one quart of pear cider at home at 11 a.m. Entertained Mrs. Rousseau at 4 p.m. Drank more there. Motored to Belleville with Brighton man in his car with two acquaintances, Mrs. Romaine. Never drank a drop from 11 a.m. until 8.45 p.m. but was still very drunk. The story was not believed and Crown Attorney Donnan wished to lay a charge of perjury.

Mrs. Romaine stated that she went to the home of an Italian friend on Front street and had two "hookers" of whiskey with him, then went up on the hill for tea, returned to the Italian's home and had another, and from then on was very much anaesthetized. The officers of the Italian on Front street proved to be the office of an express company, and the story was characterized as a series of "sock and bull" statements. Both men were sober when the left them in Belleville, Mrs. Romaine claimed.

On request of Crown Attorney Donnan, the case was enlarged until tomorrow morning, when the driver of the car, an independent witness, will be produced, in an endeavor to clear up the mystery. Bail was being arranged for the woman in the sum of $200.

"There is entirely too much of this perjury," exclaimed the Crown, "and we are going to put a stop to it."

LIQUOR IN CAR.

Sergt. Harman investigated the story of the woman, but on the home she decided to tell the facts. She stated that there was liquor in the car, and that all three had been drinking.

The woman was fined $10 and costs, which she paid.

BUSH FIRES RAGE NEAR PETERBORO

Menace Believed to Have Been Checked

Peterboro—It was reported late to day that the bush fires north of Peterboro appear to be under control.

Peterboro, Ont., Aug. 15.—Ever spreading forest fires throughout the whole district north of Peterboro had assumed a very serious aspect last night. Two bad fires are reported in Burleigh, and it is feared that the fires of Smadred and G. Stone have been burned out. Another fire, north of the Deadstreet farm, is said to be threatening the limits of the Peterboro Lumber Company, and one hundred men are being rushed to fight the conflagration. Four farms have already been burned out in the vicinity of Apsley and Burleigh. The alarm that had not been checked last night. Other fires are reported at Lake Kushkawagamon and Turtle Lake, several Summer cottages being burned at the latter place.

A call was received at Juniper Island Sunday for volunteers to fight a fire which has broken out about 12 miles north of the Peterboro Rotary Club's Boys' Camp.

A pall of smoke from the various conflagrations hangs over the whole district, and fears for the safety are expressed that some of the Summer cottages may fall victims to the flames. The Peterboro-Lindsay-Lakefield and Cedar Lake bus so far proved a barrier against the path of a fire in that district, but if the fire crosses here into north shore of Stoney Lake will be threatened and Summer fire is reported in centre Dummer.

Only a heavy downpour of rain can relieve the situation which is rapidly becoming alarming. Late last week would have not only quenched the incipient fires already burning, but would have prevented subsequent fires which have started in the vicinity of Peterboro.

Fire Ranger Ellis, of Burleigh district, though heavy, fall of rain which visited Peterboro and Lakefield on Tuesday did not reach the fire, instead the heavy wind which accompanied rain, swept the district, fanning the flames into a fiery inferno at 2 o'clock. A dispute arose between the pair, who were employed on the highway, over possession of a shovel, and it is alleged that Harney struck Sherwood with his fist. The latter collapsed, and Harney, picking him up, found that he was dead.

"As natives of England or descendants of Englishmen you entertain feelings of affection for the old land, and I think you do well to love the Old Land. Whether we have reason for England's historic past, or her part in the Great War, or the part she is playing in the post war readjustments and reconstruction, we may well entertain a feeling of pride that we belong to the British Empire. Remember, this the most trying period in human history, the course pursued by the Common wealth of British nations has been characterized by scrupulous honor, courage, fortitude, self-sacrifice and unselfishness. It is our sincere hope that these great qualities may ever be displayed by the people of the British Empire.

Unearth Buried Ale Behind Farm House

Zavitz, near Grimsby. The ale was buried in the ground behind the house, and to disguise the fact the land had been harrowed over. In one cache was 480 bottles of prime ale and in another 40 feet away, was 80 bottles. Zavitz has a small fruit and fruit drink place on the Provincial Highway. He said he had been in business for about two local divines. Windsor three months ago. He is out on $500 bail.

Menu Card Recalls Visit to Vancouver of Late President

On July 26, last, one day less than three weeks ago, the late President Harding was a guest of the city of Vancouver. On the night of July 26, the newspapermen with the late President's party were guests of the British Columbia Institute of Journalists at a dinner in Hotel Vancouver.

The dinner was an elaborate affair and was one of the outstanding functions associated with Mr. Harding's visit.

Mrs. A. C. McFee, 173 Bridge street, is one of the menu cards, sent her by her nephew, Mr. Kenneth Rose, who was the accompanist in the musical program which was a feature of the dinner.

The menu card, which in the light of subsequent developments, is an interesting souvenir, bears a picture of the late executive flanked by the British and American flags. There were toasts to the King, the President, the Visitors and the Profession.

It will be recalled that the late President failed to have appreciated the attack of apoplexy which caused the late President's death at San Francisco was ascribed to crab meat which Mr. Harding ate. By a strange coincidence, crab meat was served at the newspapermen's banquet, which occurred but a few days before the tragic events at San Francisco. The delicacy appears on the menu as "crab flakes, Neptune."

Incidentally it may be stated that Mr. Kenneth Rose, who at one time resided in Belleville, and left here eight years ago, is one of the leading musicians on the Pacific Coast. He is president of the Vancouver Musician's Club and has achieved Dominion-wide prominence in musical circles, and an authority in music. Mr. Rose is a native of Sarnia. He resided in Belleville for two years and there are many Bellevillians, no doubt, who will be pleased to learn of his success.

CANADA EXHIBIT AROUSES INTEREST

Kingston Man Finds People in France Interested in Canada

Kingston, Aug. 15.—A. D. McConnell, Nelson street, home from France says the Canadian Exhibits, being shown in the cities and towns of France are attracting great attention. The crowds to see the displays are very large. The exhibits mounted in large lorries are motored from one place to another. They are formed up in a hollow square and when halted, one side lifted to make a covering. The goods are displayed attractively. The Nova Scotian exhibit is rare and enlightening. The Northwest is set forth in all its attractiveness. Pamphlets are plentiful.

The receptions given the Canadians in the town visited are hearty and spontaneous. The staff is satisfied with attention, while at Armentieres Mr. McConnell was hunted up by the mayor and invited to the usual entertainments given the Canadians which concluded with a splendid banquet at night. Col. Barrow and Senator Beaubien made captivating addresses. The form of advertising Canada is sure to bring about splendid results in trade and possible emigration.

Mr. McConnell was surprised at the way reconstruction had gone ahead since he left France decadent and disrupted. The French have certainly been aggressive in re-establishing themselves. The grain crop this year is enormous and will do much to bring about wider prosperity. Flour has been rather short during the past year and rye has been mixed with wheat. Much bran was retained to help out conditions.

Sister of Mrs. Mary M. Hutchison Seeks Larger Share of Estate

Kingston, Aug. 15.—A likely contest is expected over the will of the late Mrs. Mary M. Hutchison, who died several months ago in Grand Dien here. The bulk of the money is left to the Hotel Dieu, the House of Providence and St. Mary's of the Lake, all Roman Catholic institutions. A sizeable sum is also willed to various friends of the deceased.

Mrs. Hutchison inherited the money from her husband who was a Protestant.

A sturdy, 17-year-old son of Old England stood up at the dock rail in police court this morning, to answer to a charge of vagrancy. He had taken to the station last night, by a man who gave him a ride in from the country, and the youth was given a bed at the station over night.

The youth came from Liverpool to the farm of Richard E. Boyle, a lumber working in Sidney township. He came to Belleville from "Torquin the Good."

"I'm not a bum," said the lad, "I'm a navvy track," the boy volunteered and he was told to give it a try, and if successful he could have his position tonight, and occupy the same bed room.

Washington Fears Clash Soon Between England and France

Situation in Europe Regarded as Most Critical Since Days Before World War

By A. L. BRADFORD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Aug. 14.—(United Press)—Fundamentally, the peace of Europe is threatened because the peace between Great Britain and France is threatened, according to informed opinion in Washington today.

That was the meaning of England's recent decision to build an airplane fleet to protect the British Isles or offensive strength to withstand any air force or combination of air forces that could be mobilized from Europe, Simply, these observers here state, that England fears the growing military strength of France, particularly France's supremacy in the air, and is determined to put herself in a strong enough position so there will be no need of such fear.

The interests of Great Britain and France are clashing in almost every corner of the globe, according to military, naval and diplomatic advices reaching Washington, but newspaper dispatches that are published every day.

The main clash of interests today, of course, lies in the German reparations question. Great Britain wants a more lenient attitude towards Germany, fearing that the present French policy will crush Germany to an extent that will destroy her economic effectiveness. France vacillates. Turning the pages of world history back for 200 years or so, the basic point out that England and France are traditional enemies.

This is big business in Great Britain that is demanding that the British government check France because France's occupation of the Ruhr is hurting British business. The British government is doing what it can to an economic and diplomatic way, according to diplomatic advices received here, to fears the military supremacy of France.

France is building up a European land's world empire that threatens to equal or even surpass that of Great Britain's. Militarily, of course, France is the strongest nation in the world today, but this is not all that worries England.

The territory that France holds in Africa rivals the possessions of Britain. France' diplomacy checkmated England in Turkey. France is looking beyond the accidental world into the orient. She is beginning to construct great wireless stations in the Far East to protect French interests.

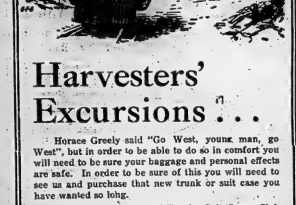

And France industriously has been strengthening her political and diplomatic position in Europe, encircling herself with allies at all strategic points. Her alliances with Belgium amount to a close political and probably military alliance.

Then as other allies, she has spent much time, effort and money in developing the "Little Entente," or Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, and Jugo-Slavia, in closest relations with Paris.

Poland, of course, is completely a protege of France and acts as France's ally and buffer between the traditional enemy Germany and the present enemy Soviet Russia.

So France might be said virtually to dominate Europe today. Great Britain's traditional policy has been to oppose the strongest European continental power. England has her great fleet, but this is undoubtedly largely offset by France's air force the strongest in the world today.

In Germany and Russia can be found the remaining pieces to straighten out the picture puzzle of the present European crisis. What remains of the peace of Europe that is not threatened by a breaking up of the enteente between Great Britain and France is surely threatened in these two countries. The moment that Germany may turn communist, Soviet Russia is expected to attack Poland, and then no one can tell where such a conflagration would lead.

That Body of Yours

SCRUBBING THE TONGUE

There was an item in the paper the other day which aroused considerable amusement.

It was regarding a boy in New York State who swallowed a tooth brush. It seems that after cleaning his teeth the inner end of the tongue looked as if it needed a brushing also, and the boy in attempting to get at it let the brush slip down into his stomach. It was removed but only after considerable difficulty.

But the point in the matter was overlooked by many readers. That is that there can be an accumulation of waste matter on the part of the tongue that is actually poisonous to the system.

Many people with a bad odor to the breath which they blame on their teeth or stomach are able to remove the odor entirely by vigorous rubbing of the root of the tongue with a tooth brush.

Brush scales are of course beneficial at all times and particularly after meals but when the "fur" coat on the root of the tongue only a vigorous scraping or brushing will remove it.

Assume it is generally accepted that the tongue simply reflects the condition of the stomach and intestine, and that a coating on the tongue means sluggishness down below.

But the fact must not be overlooked that the actual deposit on the tongue is a menace to your general health.

So when you think of the boy who swallowed the brush don't forget just what he was trying to do when it happened.

Further, if you keep the brush away from the roof of the mouth there will not be the same tendency to "gag" and perhaps lose your tooth brush.

Tired, Nervous Mothers

are the direct cause of much unhappiness in our homes; their condition reacts on all and wears upon the husband and often ruins a child's disposition. This condition of the mother is often due to some weakness which makes her entirely unfit to perform her houshold duties and bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves. Every woman who finds herself in this condition should remember that statistics prove that 98 out of every 100 women who suffer from female ills are helped by Lydia E. Pinkhams Vegetable Compound, and lose no time in giving it a fair trial.

A few minutes after 10 o'clock the alarm was sounded and Belleville's fire fighting brigade was upon the scene in a short time. As the fire had not gained considerable headway it was put out by an extinguisher thus avoiding the running out of a line of hose. The affair caused considerable excitement in the vicinity and many gathered about the premises. The loss was not a serious nature.

CUISINE CLEANLINESS

Most restaurateurs realize that their patrons are attracted or repelled in proportion to the state of clean liness, or lack of it, about their premises. Most public eating places are immaculately clean, nor for that reason alone, fortunately, but for other obvious reasons.

Yet there are some restaurant and hotel keepers who are enthusiastic about external immaculateness but are careless about the condition of their kitchens. It is evident that a neat dining room and a slovenly kept kitchen is a peculiarly insidious deception and a manifestly unfair imposition upon the public.

But while patrons do not usually have access to restaurant and hotel kitchens, they are not obliged to depend upon the vagaries of circumstances to preserve the food prepared for their consumption from contamination.

Public health boards and inspectors visit all eating places in Canada at regular intervals and rigidly enforce the provisions of the statutes which apply in such cases.

Those officials are particularly alert during the summer months. Garbage must not be allowed to accumulate. Flies and other insects are strictly taboo and all the niceties of a well-ordered and immaculate cuisine must be religiously observed.

We cannot wisely ignore the fact that there are a great many eating places in Ontario that are not maintained in accordance with the standards demanded by both the public and the law. However, the number grows fewer each year, and while it is particularly fortunate, the standards maintained being generally compliant with the civic neatness for which Belleville is noted.

Yet there is perhaps need of improvement in isolated cases and certainly there are homes in the city, in which the standards could be greatly elevated. There is consolation in the fact, however, that we can ingenuously assure visitors to the city that our eating places are "above the average."

A COMMON PLAINT

W. W. Peterson, editor of the Farm and Ranch Review, Published at Calgary, Alberta, asserts that the present maladjustment as between the prices the farmer has to pay for equipment and commodities manufactured in cities, as well as transportation, and that he receives for his own products cannot be maintained without ruinous results as to the basic industry of Canada.

For be it from us to seek to minimize the importance of the faults of which the farmer complains or to disparage his lamentations.

Still it appears from the identical process of reasoning employed by the farmer and his eloquent champions that the urban dweller has reasons for complaint at least equally sound.

The Review editor, presumably dealing with the case of the western farmer, submits collateral evidence in the form of statistics, in support of his case, explaining that the estimates were prepared in a southern state and based on local conditions, but pointing outwhat the position is almost precisely the same on the Canadian side. The statistical evidence follows:

"It takes 6316 dozen (762) eggs to pay a plasterer for one day of

"It takes a hog weighing 175 lbs. representing eight months' feeding and care, to pay a carpenter for one day's work."

Granted that these are economic truths, what about the plasterer, the bricklayer, the painter, the plumber, and the carpenter? Living costs are still amazingly high and these skilled workers are obliged to surrender a large proportion of their earnings to defray their ordinary living expenses. Commodities are not as cheap as they appear, by comparison, to the farmer. Clothing, fuel, taxes or rent—all these must be paid by the city dweller. Children must be clothed and educated, physicians' bills must be paid and many other incidental expenses must be met. As a rule, because of the atmosphere of urban social life and the peculiar economic conditions obtaining, these obligations are greater than in the country. Then there is the unskilled worker, whose wage is much smaller but whose living expenses are not proportionately low. A comparison of tables would show that the professional and business men are not much better off than the skilled worker.

In fact, union organs voice the same plaint as that uttered by Mr. Peterson. We are "all in the same boat" and we all have "a kick coming." Perhaps, if we could penetrate to the heart of the trouble we would find that we are not as frugal and philosophical as were our fathers.

PRESS OPINIONS

A DOUBTING THOMAS.
(Toronto Telegram)

Sir Henry Thornton's latest promise is to consolidate National Railway deficits in three years.

And if these deficits could be eliminated by making speeches and giving interviews, Sir Henry would probably keep that promise.

But everyone knows, who is at all familiar with Canadian railway problems, that Sir Henry is promising the impossible. That Canada has too many miles of railway for her population is a fact that no real lover of public ownership ever tries to controvert.

And the fear is ever present that Sir Henry Thornton, who was hired by the politicians he professes to abhor, is simply raising the hopes of the uninformed in order that the Lemieux settlement, when it does come, will be all the more poignant.

The opponents of public ownership are not only awaiting their opportunity, they are trying to create it. And the moment of that opportunity appears might easily be their opportunity.

PURGING THE BRITISH PRESS.
(Toronto Globe.)

A parliamentary committee in Great Britain has made a recommendation that, if adopted, will put an end to the scandal of the publication of the disgusting reports of Divorce Court cases. Readers of Canadian newspapers who have the acquaintance with the British press have no conception of the license which even many of the most powerful and widely circulated dailies and weeklies in the Old Country permit themselves in recording divorce proceedings. In other respects they may be sober and unsensational, but they seem to think it is an economic necessity to compete with the journals of the gutter in "playing up" the salacities of Divorce Court evidence.

The parliamentary committee now commends that newspaper reports be restricted mainly to the names of the principals, the accusations, and judges' addresses to the juries. The committee expresses the opinion that the unrestrained publicity given to the stories of marital infidelity has caused a great deal of moral mischief. The cry that the freedom of the press is being assailed will be raised by journals that depend for circulation on this kind of garbage, but the sacred name of liberty is dishonored when used in such a connection. Some papers, including the Tory Morning Post and The Daily Herald, the Labor organ, cleansed their columns without waiting for the law.

OUR TRUSTY VISITORS.
(Toronto Mail and Empire)

What a vista of possibilities opens before the imagination of the penal code when he regards the visit of Governor Donahey and his "trusty" companions to Ontario as establishing a precedent! If the immigration laws of another country are no longer to limit the scope of our efforts to reclaim the erring, might we not return the visit?

We are told that we derived many of the principles underlying our Ontario prison system from Ohio. What could be more appropriate than that Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt with a bodyguard of well-behaved inmates of the Ontario Reformatory should undertake a trip to Ohio. It is true that His Honor does not usually travel with a bodyguard, but for the latter the holiday might be a reward for good conduct and something in the nature of a pilgrimage. Perhaps Sir Lomer Gouin might journey to Washington or New York, accompanied by a few lucky brides whose sentences have been commuted. "They are good boys," the Minister of Justice might explain, and have displayed great self-restraint since the Crown exercised the prerogative of mercy on their behalf. When I signed the recommendation of clemency, promised them a visit to the bright lights if they did not do it again."

RUSSIA LACKS REASONABLE NESS.

What the British nations does feel is that its Ministers ought to have nothing more to do with Russia so long as her Government—or the gang of criminals who call themselves her Governt — prove themselves so intolerant, cruel, and treacherous as the Bolsheviks are doing month by month. When they convince us that they have returned to sanity we can reopen diplomatic relations with Russia. It takes two to keep a bargain, to maintain a friendship, and to negotiate diplomatically. In the Russia of today a reasonable temper appears to be utterly lacking. But, if the Bolsheviks are felt severely since alons they may in time display "a more coming-on disposition."

One night when the present King and Queen of Denmark were dining at the United States Legation the King, who was at that time Crown Prince, said to Mr. Egan:

"I receive agreeable reports of your lectures in the Provinces. Do you use a different lecture every time?"

"I always use the same one, your Majesty," the Minister answered.

"But what do you do if people come a second time?"

"They never come a second time," was the answer.

MRS. MALLORY MAY LOSE TENNIS CROWN

By HENRY L. FARRELL,
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 15 (United Press), —While Mrs. Molla Mallory has been a rather disappointing standard-bearer for American tennis in international competition, she has held out for years impregnably against the American girls who disputed her right to the national championship.

Previous to the coronation of Bill Tilden as the tennis king of practically the whole world, the American men's title, over a stretch of six years, was passed around among a small group of stars, including McLoughlin, Williams, Johnston and Murray.

During the same time, Mrs. Mallory was gathering a succession of triumphs in the women's class that had only one interruption,—in 1919, when Mrs. George Wightman won the championship.

Other women players, during her long reign as the queen of the American courts were known and admitted to have more strokes, better execution and a more polished game, but they lacked the aggressiveness the winning temperament and the physical qualifications to stand up against Mrs. Mallory.

After the American champion had proved her superiority over the best of the native born Americans near her own age, it became apparent that she would continue to reign until some young player was developed or until her game began to slip.

As the visiting British girls and the American contenders for the title begin to warm up in the tournaments, preliminary to the national championship, it begins to look like Mrs. Mallory is at last in real danger of losing her grip on the cup.

From her failure to live up to form in her early season play on European courts, it might be concluded that Mrs. Mallory's game has passed the peak. It must be remembered, however, that on her first trip to Europe she was just recovering from an attack of influenza, and athletic trainers say that the effects of "flu" weaken the constitution for months and months.

Even if the American champion succeeds in getting back into first class physical condition in time for the national championships, it is obvious that she will be in danger. The long expected, and somewhat desired development of young stars has been accomplished. In Helen Wills, the seventeen-year-old California girl, and in Miss Kathleen McKane, the youthful British star.

Many of the tennis critics who have been watching the improvement of "Little Willie" signs she came east the first time, believe that it is within her game to win the championship this year without the help of Miss McKane or Mrs. Geraldine Beamish, another British star both of whom have defeated Mrs. Mallory this year.

The most striking thing about "Little Wills," however, is that she is "little" now only in terms of attention. She has developed physically in the surprising proportions since she was here last summer.

She has always played a game of pronounced masculine style and with the strength to back it up, it does not require much imagination or any tendency toward the romantic to picture her as the coming champion. Perhaps not this year, but, some year sure, and not far away.

Mrs. Beamish is a veteran and Miss McKane is regarded as the best young player in Europe; with the exception of the dashing Suzanne. Both Mrs. Beamish and the McKane girl beat Mrs. Mallory because the American champion adopted the distinctive American style of play which enabled Bill Johnston to beat all the foreign net stars.

Miss Wills has a kick in her game like Tilden and Johnston. She has it's the strokes and the polish of their game, however, because she hasn't had the experience. Britisf and French players, who have seen the California girl play, have expressed the opinion that her style of play is the only one that has a chance against Mlle. Lenglen.

While the ethics and culture demand that critics be less frank in discussing the personality of women athletes than they are in talking about male stars, the fact is so obvious that it is not unchivalrous to say that Mrs. Mallory is not a popular champion and that her downfall will not be followed by a public resolution of sympathy.

Mrs. Mallory has been in a state of open warfare for years with newspapermen, and from their point of view her animosity and her delberate attempts to humiliate them on all occasions have been totally unjustified.

Cordial relations between the champion and the other American girl players have been strained also for several years because of the tendency on her part to make most emphatic her superiority over every opponent.

Bill Tilden has been one of the biggest factors in the development of tennis as a national sport because of his unselfish interest in the development of young players.

Sure, it Ain't the Umpire's Fault

Umpire Thercux did Balstone an injustice when he tried to send him out of the game because "someone called me a name." He should have been sure who was the offender, and he should have apologized to Balstone when he realized that he was in the wrong.—Kingston Standard.

We would suggest that President Dedman call an emergency meeting of the executive and demand an apology from Umpire Thercux, suggests the Port Hope Guide. These umpires are drawing big salaries and they are supposed to accept abuse from players and the spectators, and when somebody sneaks up and takes a poke at the umpire when his back is turned he is not expected to retaliate. If the Kingston Standard would publish the names of the young men responsible for these scenes of rowdyism rather than demand apologies from umpires they would be helping to plate the game on a higher level.

We submit much of the trouble could have been avoided if the ball players' mammas had placed greater stress on their training in etiquette.

First Golfer—Flobb's great fault is that he doesn't put his mind on the ball.

Second ditto—Oh, he does that all right, but I guess it gets lost in one of the little depressions.

MARY MILES MINTER
SLINGS A MEAN WALLOP

Walter Long, who plays the villain in "South of Suva" in which Mary Miles Minter and John Bowers are now appearing at Griffin's Theatre, declare that the young Realart star could easily qualify for the bantyweight championship. "She slings a mean wallop," is the way villian Long describes the fair Mary's ring tactics.

And Long knows whereof he speaks for he has several real fights with Miss Minter in the picture—in one of which she lands him a wallop that rocked his usually well-set cock.

"No quarter!" said Mary pleasantly as they began.

"And there wasn't any," said Long grimly. "Later on I had a scene where I had to throw her bodily into a group of savages, and I remembered that punch she had given me!"

All of which, however, aided in putting real, honest-to-goodness realism into "South of Suva," a picture which gives Miss Minter the greatest acting opportunities of her career.

Fox News, "Jungle Flashlight," a two-reel wild animal story, and Charlie Murray in a funny comedy titled "Faint Hearts" are being exhibited on the same program.

HOUSE PETERS AT REGENT
IN SPLENDID OFFERING

A powerful photodrama of conflicting love interest, with its locale a Northwestern lumber camp, is being exhibited at the Regent Theatre to-night, where the "Goldwyn production "The Man From Lost River" is the feature attraction. House Peters gives an exceptionally fine performance of the strong lumber camp foreman. Fritzie Brunette, the girl who cannot see where her true love is, and Allan Forrest is a polished, cultivated weakling.

A Sunshine comedy, Sport Review, and Fred Thompson and Alan Hale in a thrilling chapter of Universal's "The Eagle's Talons" serial are being exhibited on the same program.

JACK HOLT HAS NOVEL ROLE IN "GENTLEMAN OF LEISURE"

A lavish restaurant scene, with a score of men and women in afternoon dress, is one of the many beautiful features of "A Gentleman of Leisure" a Paramount picture, starring Jack Holt in a novel role, and which is the feature attraction at Griffin's tomorrow to Saturday with a matinee Saturday.

The development of the story unfolds a series of amazing adventures on the part of Mr. Holt and Sigrid Holmquist, the latter in the leading feminine role. Starting in London, the story carries across the Atlantic to New York City. Touching high society, it also drops into the underworld. Bordering on exciting adventure, it is full of comedy and romance. In the cast besides Mr. Holt and Miss Holmquist are Cesare Ferguson, Alec B. Francis, Frank Nelson, Adele Farrington, Alfred Allen, Nadern Paul and Alice Queensberry.

A two-reel comedy titled "Dad's Boy," a Kinogram, and William Desmond in a new chapter of the popular "Phantom Fortune" serial have been arranged for presentation on the same program.

NEW GIBSON FILM HERE
REPLETE WITH LAUGHS

A surprise awaits those whose cry has been that motion pictures are not real—that they do not reflect life. At the Regent Theatre, tomorrow to Saturday, matinee daily, Hoot Gibson, that excellent young cowboy-actor, is appearing in "Double Dealing," a Universal release that is as human as humanity. And being human, it is not all drama but is plentifully sprinkled with laughs, which serves to make it a most satisfying film repast. Hoot Gibson is great as the droll Ben Stowbell and he is supported by a strong cast including Eddie Gibbon, Helen Ferguson, Betty Francisson, Ceriznde Clair and Jack Dillon.

A two-reel Campbell comedy, Pathe News, and a Cameo comedy titled "Hurry Up," will also be exhibited.

Almost every day a giant liner pulls away from the pier in New York and steams out to sea, a floating city of lambs. Lined along the railing waving and shouting a fond farewell to relatives and friends on the pier are from hundreds of persons en route to new adventures. Yet it was only expectancy and excitement that I saw on their courage.

They were tired. Nerves were frayed by prostration, germs clinging to the ragged edges. Deluges of perspiration were mopped from their brows by distracted travelers. How glad they appeared to get away. No wonder!

It is a real treat to prepare for a first trip abroad. Few know the "ropes." It really is simple, but the "know-how" can make it difficult. The first thing to do after you have counted the bank roll and definitely decided that the journey is advisable is to begin storming your doorway for a couple of months is to apply for passports from your local steamship company and to simultaneously begin what may develop into an ordeal to get the passport.

GETTING A PASSPORT.

Go to the federal building in your town and you will be told who performs the preliminaries for the issuance of getting the passport from Washington. An American born citizen usually has little trouble though some few important facts on a slip of paper, swearing his life away, signing his name, document and photographic pictures taken and pasted on the required document. Then on the payment of $10 (or less) you are rewarded to the State Department in Washington and in due time a properly executed form of passport. In New York it requires from four to six days to obtain the passport.

A birth certificate and an income tax receipt are handy to have in case of application for duplicate of a foreign born subject should have his naturalization papers. It is possible to make application for a duplicate should you form a contemplated trip. Passports are acceptable for one year and may be renewed for a second year.

It is necessary for the applicant to be accompanied by a responsible person who has known him for some time, at least two years is the usual requirement.

Probably the most excitement in getting a passport—excepting the payment of the $10—is the moment when applicant also photograph made. Like the staff photographers for a rogues' gallery, the passport photographer can make a saint look like Jack Dempsey diving into a knockout attack in the roped arena. Satisfactorily photographed the day. Even his passport picture wouldn't be framed in any of his admirer's homes.

GETTING A VISA.

Having your passport in hand ready to spring on your more or less, probably less, worthy friends, the next job is to get visas to the above mentioned passport. You will have to get a visa for every country you intend to visit. Without proper visas you will simply be "passported up with no place to go." You could get up on steamer without a visa on your passport, but you couldn't get off.

Several countries to which the tide of European travel is heaviest maintain passport bureaus in cities of heavy sailings, such as New York. In case you desire to get a country which does not maintain a bureau you must go to the consul representing that country.

Under normal conditions you merely go to bureau or consul, explain why you are going to that country, pay the fee and get a little signature on your passport book. The usual fee is about $10. The total cost, therefore, ranges from an extensive jaunt through Europe to a transatlantic agent will give you the address of the passport agencies or consulates.

GETTING A COSTUME.

Even while you are dragging around from street to street, for passport and visas, you will be thinking about your wardrobe and accumulating receipts for the cure of seasickness.

Of course, you always want to buy a wardrobe when you go abroad—it's expensive, but it's worse in the salt water swimming pool of the boat on which they were sailing. It is in hers to repudiate. The wardrobe before going abroad. Sometimes you have plenty of time to arrange these affairs, but sometimes you are not known to have new suits made and worn out before their passports are. Yet, that usually is the case.

Passports ready, visas secured, clothing purchased, you settle back to the steamer chair, only to be called a few minutes until you sail. Those are the nerve-racking minutes—wondering whether you have forgotten anything, worrying for fear you will miss the boat, dashed hopelessly about for some seasick on the rail voyage. Having your baggage may go astray and you will be stranded aboard ship with a scant supply of the wearing apparel you have labored to accumulate.

Most steamship companies accept baggage for the trip three days before the boat sails—and up until three days before the ship sails—and for foreign shores. It is well to get your baggage on the pier the night before the boat leaves, properly marked with stickers provided by the steamship companies.

GETTING A START.

The night before the big day finally passes and in the morning the travel er arises early, finishes packing and goes to the pier to board the vessel usually arriving hours before the time of departure.

Many of those sailing visit the boat the day before to view their quarters and request, that they be permitted to select a desirable stateroom. There is more sailing so that they will be sure to be aboard. They inspect the ship the day of sailing, stroll the length of the deck and stateroom a hundred times, watch other voyagers come up the gangplank, peer through the mahogany strum of humanity for the celebrities who are coming aboard and following the newspaper reporters in their quest for news—not a few of them attempting to line up against a railing in the among the favored few "shot" by the photographers.

Guests and well-wishes visit with the voyager. The conversation rambles. It is difficult to concentrate. In the hour before the ship leaves. Pitiful attempts are ordered ashore, the planks are drawn, and the hawsers are cast off and the slow ordeal of the ship leaving the pier begins. As it slips out in to the river, with whistles blowing and voyagers lining the rail waving frantically, tugs pitying giants of the sea—drag the big liner in position and point it for the trip across.

PYJAMAS ARE "OUT"

Paris, Aug. 15 (United Press).—They're thinking of casting all the pajamas in Paris up to the Louvre, so that posterity may see what we men used to wear. Men here have suddenly become old-fashioned and refuse to bobble into a pair of pajamas, according to the complaint of shop-keepers. "Give us the old nightshirt that grandfather used to wear," is the demand.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"Then, what do you mean?"

"Well, you see, ma'am, Mr. Richard don't get on with the men. His wants is have it all his own way, and they want to have it all theirs. Well, of course that won't work; so what's wanted is for the governor to give way best a little, and then they'd give way altogether."

"But, I'm sure my son Richard's management is excellent," said Mrs. Glaire, whose face showed a little as she drew herself up with dignity, and began a fresh row of her knitting.

The conversation ceased slightly, and remained silent.

"Don't you think so, Banks?"

"Well, you see, ma'am, he's a 'tit arbitrary."

"Arbitrary! What do you mean, Banks?"

"Well, you see, ma'am, he turned Finn Slee off at a moment's notice.

"And quite right too," said Mrs. Glaire, hotly. "My son told me. The fellow is a sporting, mouthing creature."

"He is that, ma'am, and as lazy as a slug, but it made matters worse, and just now there's a deal of strikin' about, and the men at other places listening to delegates from societies, and jetting unions, and all that sort of stuff."

"And have you joined one of those clubs, Joe Banks?" said Mrs. Glaire, sharply.

"We join 'em, ma'am? Not I," said Banks, with a pleased manner-cake, but at the idea. "Not I, I'm foreman, and get my wage reg'lar, and I don't want no part in their flummery. You should hear Ann go on about 'em."

"I beg your pardon, Banks," said Mrs. Glaire, "I might have known that you were too sensible a man to go to these meetings."

"Well, as for being sensible, I don't know about that, Missus Glaire. Then you woman folk at home do about what they will wi' me."

"I don't believe it, Joe," said Mrs. Glaire. "Daisy would not have grown up such a sensible girl as she is if you had not had a firm, kind, sensible father."

"God bless her!" said Joe, and a little moisture appeared in one eye. Then speaking rather huskily—"Thank you, ma'am—don't think I'm as Glaire. I try to do my duty by her, and so does Ann."

"I am sure you will!"

"Quite well, thank you kindly, ma'am," said the foreman. "Don't you be troubled about Mr. Richard. He's worked with Richard Glaire, senior, thirty years ago, two working men, and he's the same as ever. Kind of friends both when we was poor, and when I saw him gradually grow rich, for he had a long back to put your husband, while I'd only got a square one. But I stuck to my master, and when the old man he died, leaving me his foreman, you know, Mrs. Glaire, how he left me a present in his will."

Glaire, with a deep sigh, and a couple of tears fell on her knitting.

"And I'll stick to him through thick and thin, "said the foreman, said the foreman, stoutly. "For I never forget that I'm a working man, 'tain't specified to you, ma'am to say Dick, though it comes natural—I never was the foreman among the men, except with his contracts, and getting on to be a big man, I was happy enough; but I'm a working man, and Richard Dick is arbitrary; he is indeed, and he can't feel for a working man like I can feel for 'em."

"He is a more strict, you see, Banks, that is all," said Mrs. Glaire, stiffly; "and the foreman cannot be the friend of a master."

"You advise him not to be quite so strict, then, I wouldn't advise you wrong, as you know."

"I know that, Joe Banks," said Mrs. Glaire, with dignity; "and I'll say a word to him. But I wanted to say something to you."

"Thank you kindly, I was wondering why you sent for me, ma'am," said the foreman bluntly.

"You see," said Mrs. Glaire, hesitating, "there are little bits of petty tattle about"

"What, bare, ma'am," said the fore man, with a hearty laugh. "Of course there is, and always was, and will be."

"But they are about Daisy," said Mrs. Glaire, dashing at last into the matter.

"I should just like to get hold of the chap as tells you about Daisy and my lass," said Banks, stretching out a tremendous fist.. "I'd crack him, I would, that I would. But what have they been saying?"

"Well," said Mrs. Glaire, who found it more difficult than she had apprehended, "the fact is, they say she has been seen talking to my son."

"Well, I'm glad to hear it, ma'am. You heard or known anything?"

"Well, to put it quite plain the gossips say that Daisy and Tom Podmore down at the works there, but the girl hangs back, and I found out from her dad, Master Dick talking to her one night, and it set me a-thinking.

"And you didn't stop it?" exclaimed Mrs. Glaire, sharply.

"Stop it? Why should I stop it?" said the foreman. "She's getting on for twenty, and is sure to begin thinking about sweethearts. And did when she was nineteen , and if I recollect right, little fair-haired Lisbeth Ward was only eighteen when she used to blush on meeting Dick Glaire. I see her do it," said the bluff fellow, chuckling.

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Man-made lightning, which is to be used in the creation of artificial lightning in the course of certain experiments at Schenectady certain results are obtained which approximate natural lightning, if struck by lightning, the circumstances that would enable scientists to learn whether it had been transmitted into helium and immediately less than one in a few billions, and that if the phenomenon of the artificial approximation to lightning which can be made to strike when and where the scientist may wish it to strike.

A simple illustration of what is puzzling the scientists and setting their minds in a speculative mood since lime is given by the action of the artificial lightning when it is directed toward and made to split a block of wood. The block is about one of 12 cleft by a giant battle ax, and down each half, in the direction taken by the lightning on its way into the ground, appears a deep, clean-cut groove, not much larger than would be the path of a boring worm, but far straighter. The question is, what has become of the wood that occupied the space? It has not been burned; there are no ashes, and in most cases no sign whatever of charring on the groove. It appears only that has been pressed aside in the case of a nail-hole, for the grain-making has not obliterated that of the groove. Is it possible, then, these experimenters are asking themselves, that the portion of the wood that formerly occupied the space has been instantaneously and totally transmuted into some other state or stages—say, a gas—by the disintegrating force of atomic structure under the tremendous impact of the man-made thunderbolt?

Behind these words, it is said, though with the greatest caution, there may lie the significant possibility that by the application of tremendous energy at a given moment, changes in the nature of matter may be made in a fraction of a second to attain which by nature's leisurely process hundreds of thousands of centuries. Coal, for example, is millions of years in the making, yet perhaps this long period can be shortened.

The value to science of having artificial lightning within easy reach for the study of it and another series of experiments that will be required for the empirical proof or disproof of this scarcely defined theory is obvious.

Lightning, the engineers at Pittsfield point out, is the most weird and visible manifestation of electricity in its natural state under certain terrific conditions. It is possible that this study of this manifestation may give a clue as to what electricity really is, a thing which is still unknown in spite of the tremendous progress man has made in producing it artificially and in putting it to use and purpose. Here, too, is a field for wide speculation, because of the further laboratory research carries knowledge and volume, the greater is seen to be the apparent part that electricity plays. Hence every knowledge of what this elemental force is would reveal something new. One result that already has been attained in the Pittsfield experiments can be definitely stated, Mr. Peciput declared. It is the fact that the tests have shown that the laws of nature strictly which have been formulated for low voltages continue to apply at high voltages. Formerly it was not certain that electricity at high voltages would behave in the same way that it does lower down the scale. Enough experiments have been conducted in the Pittsfield laboratory, however, for the engineers to be certain now that no matter how high a voltage may be need in producing the problems they will have to meet will be the same. With this knowledge gained, they are now prepared for whatever demands the commercial use of electricity may make on them for many years to come.

SPRING CLEANING.

Dr. Pepin, M. D. Sees Compulsory by Law.

Spring cleaning is, without doubt, one of the most important regular sanitations in existence, and the busy American housewife will be interested to hear how the spring "offensive" against dirt is carried out in the house of the future.

Spring cleaning is not filled with furniture to the same extent as are now the days, and there is a regular ritual of sorting and cleaning throughout the seasons. The smallest fabrics are put away in the huge quantities of personal and domestic linen, and in many houses it is customary to put the linen away after wearing only once, and it has also been stated for a sequence of "washing days" upon a scale that could hold a minimum of discomfort upon the whole household.

Cleanliness in Holland is elevated to a cult, and no self-respecting person would consider that she had done the spring cleaning if the usual surroundings unless there was an upheaval due to soap and water at least once a year.

Probably in no other country than Holland is spring cleaning made under compulsory order. On a certain date, which is known as "mart day" it is fixed by the police on the wooden doors of each Japanese dwelling house.

On the initiated this indicates that the spring cleaning must be undertaken at once, and the police forthwith will be coming round in ten days' time. Thereupon the Japanese housewife performs most gut exceedingly busy, even though she possesses very little furniture to clean. Still, all the floor mats must be lifted, beaten, and the sliding screens replaced.

Just as there are certain little things which mark the difference and proclaim the character of the housewife, so do the cleaning methods of nations indicate much to the observing eye. Even in order cause the paper "shoji" or screens, and such must be meticulously cleaned, repaired and renewed over a torn or soiled section can be seen immediately. The cleaning is continually changing, these thin paper walls, and a visitor can tell on a Japanese latent learns "is to see and not touch" the fragile paper screens of the house.

The kitchen of every Japanese house receives particular attention. All cooking utensils must be scrupulously cleaned, and the floors are scrubbed with disinfectant soap. The cooking range, which is of clay, is scoured with bathbrick, then waxed and polished. Every part of the household property receives the floor of attention.

There are very few "cubby holes" in a Japanese house, and any which are, being tucked away behind sliding panels, are very difficult to discover. These, of course, are turned out at the annual spring cleaning, and all rubbish is then destroyed. During the time the police sign another wooden door sign to show that the Japanese lady neither receives nor makes social calls.

No visitor would be so audacious as to disregard the notice and enter the gate, and embarrass her hostess by intrusion. If disregard in any outside work a married lady will be expected to call at the house of duty in order to superintend the all-important process of cleaning her house. Whenever the police inspector calls he makes a clear through the house, and if satisfied as to its cleanliness he will alter the symbol on the gate to "cleaned farewell." The house may then escape a fine for disregard of official regulations.

Czecho Consolidate Banks.

The year 1922 was notable in the development of banking in Czecho-Slovakia. Efforts have been made and successfully, to consolidate the banks into a system of light control, by which it will be possible, by the application of pressure to limit the of activities, thus cutting out waste and duplication of effort and preventing about greater business prosperity for all the institutions concerned.

One of the most far-reaching changes was the closing of local branches of the larger banks. The closure of these branches, with the collection of deposits, is being taken over by the savings banks, which already cover the country.

For the last four years there has been progress toward consolidation of the financial system of the new republic, and the present year may be hailed by the country's import and exports as the year of consolidation. In 1923 round out this program.

Changes on the Earth.

If the animal Zeeuw could revisit the earth they would hardly recognize their beautiful country if the statements made by one authority can be sustained. Attica has lost its greater part of its forests, the rainfall has decreased and the temperature has increased. Much silver has been taken out of Spain, and it is now a comparatively poor country. Egypt, where Zoonobia reigned over Palmyra, is now a desert, and the once upper Egypt, where only a hundred years ago there was abundant, drought now usually prevails.

Bore Him Out.

An English professor and his young wife were driving in a car, and losing hunting trip and they were telling about their experiences during the war, about their wonderful adventures. At one point the husband of the bore was being drawn, some of the listeners expressed skepticism, where upon the professor said: "I assure you, gentlemen, that I am stating the truth. My young friend Whitley will bear me out." "Certainly!" replied Whitley, "but young men on Australian vessels!—Boston Transcript.

The river Jordan has an average fall of fifteen feet to the mile, and it name means the Descender.

VANISHED AVIATORS.

Disappearance of Two Officers Recalls Other Mysteries.

The disappearance of Col. F. C. Shelly, U. S. A., and Lieut. L. Weber, army aviators, after they started December 7 on a flight from San Diego to Tucson, Ariz., recalls similar disappearances of army fliers since the war and the searches made for them.

No army officials today are being given up hope that Col. Marshall and Lieut. Weber, who left Rockwell Field, Coronado, on a routine flight to Tucson, Ariz., will be found safely. Nevertheless, the belief is still faintly adhered to that their bodies and the wreck of their planes may be eventually recovered.

Either of the two regions in which they may have been forced to land is a desert waste, the Imperial Valley of Texas, where a plane believed to have been theirs was last seen, is extremely rocky and mountainous. Searching might last for months without coming upon the ravine in which the wreckage may lie hidden. The sands of the desert to the west and south of Yuma in which the two or a slight-breeze would be sufficient to cover the wreckage under a dune in a short time.

For many days a fleet of planes searched the region, flying as low and as far as was compatible with safety. Reports came that the missing aviators were seen lying in a gorge near the Imperial Indian reservation, on the border line, was found incorrect by searchers, who made a thorough search.

In March, 1921, five men from the Pensacola naval air station set out in a seaplane flight to the Panama-Pacific Quartermaster G. K. Wilkinson was pilot, and had with him three enlisted flying students. Neither the balloon nor its passengers were ever seen again, a squadron of seaplanes and several dirigibles, aided by a fleet of destroyers, searched the coast for miles.

Then trappers in the Everglades reported hearing voices in the wilderness of the great swamp-land. Airships made flights for weeks over the trackless wilderness, reaching ward, what was believed to be the survivors of the missing aviators were sighted far at sea, and it was finally believed the fliers were lost in the Atlantic.

Raymond White, an accident director, has contracted a case of peril and hunger in the Everglades. He was forced to descend in the swamp and his plane crashed into the almost impenetrable jungle growth around him. Up to the start of his experience. Mosquitoes were his worst enemies. Swarms of them cover face and arms with grease from the engine; he had not protected himself with a signal fire, and was forced to take to trees at night to escape the attacks of the insects. He was almost driven insane by the constant buzzing. But he finally made his way, emaciated and ragged and grasshoppers, to a Seminole Indian camp, and was sent by them to a distant farmhouse, where, after a week, his comrades found him.

Lieut. Weber, Sergt. Carl H. J. Verhyden were two other fliers who lost their lives in the Everglades. They started in the national balloon race from Omaha, but the balloon never heard from until their bodies were washed up by the waters of Lake Huron.

The Little Corporal Mastered.

Napoleon was master of Paris and the continent, but he was not the real master of the students of Paris, who were like other students of the time, of town. In 1810 at the Odeon when Napoleon, "Corporal Violette" Napoleon was belly played, the Quartier Latin students raised riots. They broke up two performances to show their disapproval of the play. At the third period of time and place were disregarded. Weapon the young students of the Latin Lemercier was a favorite, announced that he would attend the third performance and severely punish anyone raising a disturbance. He carried out his threat. The play was given smoothly until the third act, whereupon the scene was changed to the deck of Columbus' ship. When the curtain rose there was consternation in the audience donned nightcaps, shut their eyes, and fell asleep. This comical sight set Napoleon laughing, so his wrath was disarmed.

A Syrian Wed.

When the Syrians besieged Samaria in Elisha's time, the famine was so severe, says II Kings 6:25, that "an ass' head was sold for four score pieces of silver and the fourth part of a cab of dove's dung for five pieces of silver." This "dove's dung" is the Syrian name for chick-pea, through the grass, opening its starry white flowers from early in July, whitening the fields. So the Greeks called it "Cicharchaia," meaning "bird's milk," but the Arabs "dove dung." The bulbs are edible and therefore enough to keep the wolf from a seigh. The Revised Version of the Bible is no correct in the Syrian description, only changing the spelling to "kab." The most striking fact is that this plant is "the Star of Bethlehem."

Three-Coat Cold.

"Three-coat cold day" is a Chinese expression for a chilly day. Some of our tramps and ragpickers know what it means. They wear three coats or three trousers, and three hats; but that has nothing to do with the temperature. They have no homes and must carry their few belongings or their backs like a snail. The Chinese is their sarcastic way of describing people's belongings, too. China coolies have real coolie clothes, which, worked, however, and the Chinese pile on coats instead of coal on cold days.

Not a Laundry.

Washington Close, a Delaware county farmer, always advertises a certain barber shop in High street when he goes to Muncie. Recently Mrs. Close, missing him when she was shopping, went to the barber shop and enquired: "Want to close in here?"

"No, ma'am," replied a barber, "we just give shaves and cut hair."—Indianapolis News.

JOB NOW APPEALS TO EX-CROWN PRINCE

Wieringen, Aug. 15—The ex-Crown Prince, who is living here as a "private citizen" at Doorn; has now returned to his island habitation in the Zuider Zee, according to reports here.

Before leaving Doorn he expressed his opinion on the wretched life he was leading here, and declared that he would be found terribly monotonous, adding that even his holiday on the ex-Kaiser's yacht would be a welcome break in the monotony.

Wieringen was a favorite, announced that he would attend every performance and severely punish anyone raising a disturbance. He carried out his threat. The play was given smoothly until the third act, whereupon the scene was changed to the deck of Columbus' ship. Alaska From the Inside

Scenes of Beauty
Resurrection Bay And Seward Harbor Form a Fitting gateway to the scenic wonders of the "inside." The harbor, owns men on the Hendersland, is among the three safest in the world. You enter it through Resurrection Bay, a narrow, mountain-locked passage, studded with beautiful islands. Gibraltar is reproduced a dozen times in towering rocks, verdant clad to their summits which stand like sentinels along the waterway. It is one of the most picturesque spots in all Alaska.

Then you enter the broad, peaceful harbor, guarded on three sides by massive, fast-looking, snow-clad peaks, and completely protected by their jagged bulk from storms. It is a perfect anchorage for ships of any size, the water beauty beggars description. The somewhat somber, hills town of Seward, sprawled, as all Alaskan towns seem to sprawl, at the base of a mountain, is a desecration of the place.

You don't see telegraph poles in interior Alaska. You see tripods. The reason is the tundra moss. This moss, which covers the whole country thickly, is underlaid by a stratum of muck. Ordinary telegraph poles "sink in this" are pushed out of the ground by the action of frost, so the railroad telegraph lines are strung on tripods made of spruce saplings set on top of the tundra.

Muck is a pick into the surface of interior Alaska anywhere in the great sweep of the Tanana valley, you would go through yielding moss, down muck or soil, and then you will hit gravel ice. The whole land is frozen, the frost goes like a wedge deep down beneath the surface. Some places it is two feet down; others it is 18. Fishing is, perhaps, the principal industry of Alaska, and there are scores of fishless streams in the interior. They come tumbling down with tremendous force from glaciers or ice caps but instead of the clear, icy water one would expect to find there it is turgid, gray flood, so thickly impregnated with gray glacial silt that the gills of fish are clogged and they die.

Taxes, Milk and Butter

They still cows will a one-sponsor in Alaska. The canned milk was one of the "hardships" the party had to endure on the inland trip to the "inside." Some of the boys growed pretty ferociously about it, too. Which reminded Dr. Jorgenson, the agriculture department's Alaskan expert, of a little girl he knows.

"No girl was born in the 'inside' and lived there until she was about nine years old," said Dr. Jorgenson. "Away up there, where they don't get frequent shipments, the butter is usually rancid. One time this little girl's parents took her 'outside' and they got fresh butter.

"'Mamma,' she said, 'I don't like this butter.'

"'Why, son, child? What's the matter with it?'

"'Why, it has no taste at all.'"

Fox farms dot the line of the Alaska railroad. On these, foxes are raised for their pelts. The silver and black foxes are the most valuable. A raw skin of a silver fox will bring $300 in Alaska. It must be tanned, dressed and made up after that, however, which sewers the whole cost. worn, it will cost the buyer at least $400. But sold at retail in the United States it would bring $600 to $700.

The black fox, which is even rarer than the silver, has no distinct streaks. It sells for $400 or more per pelt. Washington will see a good many fox farms go into operation, winter, including a few silver fox and some very handsome cross-bred foxes by members of the Presidential party.

Mink skins of the best quality, selected, sell for from $7 to $10 each. Marten sells from $15 to $75 a skin, an orange-colored skin bringing the latter price. Weasel fur ranges all from 50 cents to $2 each. The red foxes run from $30 to $150, while the blue bring from $125 to $300.

At least two bearskins were purchased by members of the party. One of these, of a small brown bear cost only $25. A large brown bear pelt, not of first quality, sold at $75.

The End

Oak Hill Meetings Continued One Week, Sunday is Last Day

Interest in the special services at Oak Lake have been running so high that the directors have arranged with the evangelist to continue their preaching and singing for another week.

Mr. Greenlaw's marvellous tenor voice continues to draw great crowds to the tabernacle on Sunday. In spite of last Sunday's rain the building was taxed to capacity. The Sunday morning attendance was the largest since the building of the large tabernacle.

Evangelist J. J. Pease has a message of interest for all, and holds his hearers' attention. His messages are living, vital, practical and helpful to a better life.

The evangelists make a great team and should be heard by everyone in this community.

Only a Wednesday night service will be held this week, and on Sunday three services will be held. In the morning at 11 o'clock, afternoon at 2.30 and evening at 8.30.

Sunday closes the camp. All are welcome.

Select "Huskie" Cause Comment

Toronto, Aug. 15—The sailing committee of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club Monday night selected Bermuda and Nutmeg to represent the club in the inter-city class "P" series again- ing Hamilton Wasp, of the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, to be sailed here Sept. 1 and 4.

Mr. Commodore Norman Gooderham will sail Bernice, and Tom K. Wade, of Petrolia, will handle Nutmeg.

How about the Stranger?

She won the Freeman cup, and is leading Bernice in the class cham pionship at the R.C.Y.C.

She was not selected by the committee because her owners could not claim their way clear to sailing her over to the club or another skipper for the Buffalo series.

She has been doing pretty well, thank you, under Skipper H. C. Strange.

Why should they turn her over?

Anyway, Bernice and Nutmeg will represent the R.C.Y.C. against Joyant and Wanita, and there will be no time allowed against Marconi rigs, for Joyant, the Marconi rigged Buffalo champion, lost her Marconi rig aboard 10 days ago, and she has been back to her old gaff rig. Two races will be sailed each day, and points will decide the championship.

LILLIAN GOOD

Every yachtsman in Lake Ontario knows that in average yachting weather—from 8 zephyrs to a 12-knot breeze—Lillian K. of the R.C.Y.C. can lose Huskie, and most of them think that with Norman Gooderham on her Tom Wady at the helm she would hold Huskin in any weather. Huskie is only a smart boat in heavy weather in anything else, despite her great crew, most anything in the Class R fleet can show her the way home. Lillian B. should have been the selection. She not only won the Class "R" championship of Lake Ontario at the L.Y. R.A. regatta at Belleville, where she beat every class R. boat on the lake, but she trounced Huskie in two out of the three races in which they met.

It is certainly unfortunate that Lillian R. was not in the George Cup series. As a matter of fact Letonka II. which represented the Oswego Yacht Club in that event in Crescent Club boat, and was nominated as the Oswego Yacht Club entry after she had been beaten by Huskie II. in the Crescent Yacht Club trials. A proposition to send Lillian R. as representative of the Queen City Yacht Club, of Toronto, and Vivia II. as representing the National Yacht Club of Toronto, before it can be ward Navarro's selection as the R. C. Y. C. challenger, and frowned down as "Yacht Cricket." It looked too much like pot hunting to get further than the suggestion stage at the R.C.Y.C. or indeed, at the Q. C. Y. C. or N.Y.C. either.

To send Lillian R. under the auspices of the Queen City Yacht Club, or Vivia II. flying the red and black colors of the National Yacht Club, would have been as much in fact as to have Letonka II. in there under an Oswego Yacht Club burgee.

Shake-up In Postal Service

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—Announcement of the transfer of E. J. Lemaire from the postoffice department to the privy council marks the beginning of the reorganization of the postal service throughout the dominion. In connection with all the positions that are to be filled, two principles, it is announced, will govern promotion from within the department and a knowledge of postal duties.

Three appointments have been announced, namely:

L. J. Gaboury of Montreal, appointed deputy postmaster-general.

R. P. T. Coolicon of Ottawa, appointed general superintendent of the postal service of the dominion.

L. T. F. Murphy, Ottawa, appointed to take charge of the equipment and supply branch, the post vacated by Mr. Lemaire on his appointment as clerk of the privy council.

HOLD CHIEF POSITIONS.

Messrs. Gaboury and Coolicon at present hold the chief positions in the postal service in the order of seniority. Mr. Murphy, formerly of the foreign exchange branch of the postoffice department, is now private secretary of the postmaster-general. As acting deputy postmaster-general since January 1 last, Mr. Murphy has had occasion to supervise the work of the equipment and supply branch of which he will now be in charge.

The successors to Messrs. Gaboury and Coolican will be chosen from among the present employes. Pending permanent appointments James Bruce of Montreal, will temporarily discharge the duties lately performed by Mr. Gaboury, and H. E. Atwater of Ottawa will be acting western superintendent in place of Mr. Coolican.

MANY IMMIGRANTS HAVE ARRIVED

Montreal, Aug. 15.—Five hundred immigrants were brought in for Quebec and Ontario Monday by various Canadian National trains from Quebec, where the settlers had landed from the steamships Doric and Cassandra. Over 150 for Quebec province came from Quebec by the regular trains, and were distributed at various stations, both east and west of Montreal.

A party of 350 immigrants for Ontario came by special colonist cars attached to the C.N.R. steamship special, with passengers from both the Doric and Cassandra, which arrived at the Bonaventure station shortly after nine in the evening. These immigrants were all bound for Ontario points and their special cars were attached to the night train for Toronto, where they will be distributed to their destinations. Most of the party were from the British Isles, chiefly Scottish and English, but apparently a good many married men and family parties among them.

With them was a good sized party of Norwegians, accompanied by an interpreter. There were a number of Norwegian women in the party dressed more in the Norwegian country style than the men.

There were no British harvesters in the party. The Canadian National passenger officials stated that during the day three harvester specials of Colonist cars had left Quebec with 1,720 of British harvest laborers from the Doric and Cassandra.

X-RAY'S 'ALPINE LIGHT' AIDS THE TUBERCULAR

Baltimore, Aug. 16.—The use of the "Alpine light" in the treatment of tuberculosis is being tried in the X-ray department of Franklin Square hospital. In several cases, according to Dr. S. C. Bowers, Director of the department, the patients have shown remarkable improvement.

Franklin Square was the first hospital in the city to install the "Alpine ray" apparatus, and now has an X-ray laboratory, Dr. Bowers stated, that is next to none in the country.

The "deep therapy" equipment permits of a very high voltage, 200,000, as compared to the 135,000 to 140,000 formerly permitted by the ordinary type of X-ray machine.

The "Alpine light" makes it possible to reproduce scientifically the sun baths which have been found so beneficial at tuberculosis sanatoriums in the Alps.

Here and There

A discovery of excellent ochre (raw sienna) was recently made near Ellersmeade Station on the Dominion Atlantic Railway. The color is uniform throughout with very little gritty matter in the main body. The material can be burnt to produce a variety of colors from reddish brown to black. Prospecting is still going on.

Canadian Pacific S.S. "Metagama" disembarked from Glasgow via Belfast, recently docked at Montreal and Quebec with the record number of British arrivals for the third class passengers. This confirms the report so far this year of the size and type of the "Metagama" Canadian Pacific Steamship Express liners often having a far larger list.

Canadian Pacific Railway officials estimated that 61,000 men would be required to harvest the western crops this year. They expect to move 2,000,000 tons of the prairie provinces and British Columbia and made arrangements to carry over 50,000 from Ontario, Quebec and the east.

United States factories turn out chewing gum to the value of $41,000,000 annually, the bulk of which this product is used in this country. It is astonishing to me, it is known that at the Canadian Pacific Windsor station, Montreal, a man is continually employed in removing gum stains from the marble floor.

Despite the fact that the new Basilica at Ste. Anne de Beaupre is the scene of centuries of pilgrimages many thousands more have visited the shrine this year than in former years, and at frequent intervals the Canadian Pacific Railway has been called upon to add special equipment to its regular trains to accommodate the pilgrims. The Redemptorist Fathers are investigating a large number of cures claimed to be miraculous.

E. L. Richardson, manager of the Calgary Stampede of 1922, held under the patronage of the Prince of Wales and Governor-General Byng, announces that, owing to the enormous success of the great rodeo July 9-14 will be staged annually instead of at intervals of several years, as heretofore. The recent Stampede was attended by 137,000 people.

Only once in the history of Canada was the gold production record set in 1922 exceeded, and that was in 1906, when the Yukon placers reached the peak of their yield. During 1922, 1,883,264 ounces of gold were mined in the Dominion, the value is set at $37,110,000, an increase of 30% over the previous year's figures. In 1906, 1,850,057 ounces of gold were mined and the value was $37,902,153.

Canada's trade is climbing ahead. Total trade in the three months ending June was $462,544,438, an increase of $110,241,056 over the corresponding three months of last year. For June alone total trade was $179,770,014, an increase of $44,344,722 over last year. Domestic exports in the three months increased approximately $50,000,000 and imports approximately $61,000,000.

MARY MILES MINTER WAS BETROTHED

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 15.—A new light was thrown upon the strange life of William Desmond Taylor, murdered movie director and man of mystery, when Mary Miles Minter admitted yesterday she had been engaged to him at the time of his death.

Until Mary told of the engagement to-day investigators of the case had always been baffled regarding the true love of the silent courtesan film player, owned by a score of film-dom's famous beauties.

The death of Taylor, in spite of protracted police investigation, remains to-day an inexplicable mystery.

Mary was forced by her mother to keep her engagement a secret.

One of the greatest sensations of the Taylor case outside the films' glamorous found among Taylor's effects was the discovery of two notes signed by Mary among his letters. The notes were in schoolgirl code and told of her adoration for him. Taylor, dramatic and silent, never gave a hint of the reported engagement to friends. Like all his other affairs, it was shrouded in mystery.

"Oh, if mother had only let me talk and tell of my engagement during those endless hours they questioned me at the district attorney's office," she said. "It was a terrible ordeal, but mother insisted I keep silent. She said it would ruin my career."

CHURCH PICNIC LURES CROWDS

Annual Event of St. Michael's Church Held at Holton's Grove

EVENTFUL AFFAIR

Interesting Sports Program; K.C.-Kiwanis Ball Game Ends in Tie

As usual, there was a large attendance at the annual picnic held yesterday under the auspices of St. Michael's church of this city. The scene was the beautiful grove situated in the western part of the city, which is the property of the church and is admirably adapted for such events. Shortly after the noon hour pienickers commenced to arrive upon the grounds and after the ball game the attendance was greatly augmented. Many of those upon the grounds were from outside of the city and all present thoroughly enjoyed themselves. There was: swings, ball game, etc., for the kiddies and it is needless to say the same were well utilized. Upon the grounds were booths and games and all were liberally patronized. The booths were in charge of the ladies of the church.

From the hour of 4 o'clock until nearly 8 o'clock supper was served and the number partaking can be approximately estimated from the fact that upwards of $600 was the sum realized. The ladies' reputation for providing sumptuous repasts was fully maintained.

During the afternoon and the early part of the evening a program of events was carried out. There were many entries for the children's races.

In the evening dancing was indulged in in the covered pavilion and many took advantage of the ideal opportunity offered for this form of amusement. Mr. Wilson's orchestra furnished the music.

The winners in the various sporting events were as follows:

Boys 9 years and under—Frances Murray, Earl Russell, Borden Brown.

LACROSSE MATCH.

A lacrosse match took place between midget teams representing Belleville and Trenton and the result was a win for Trenton by a score of 7 to 3. It was an interesting game and the boys played well. The line up of the teams:

Trenton—Mack, goal; Bennett, point; Shelley, def.; Plews, point; Riley, cover point; Larry, centre; Johnson, inside home; J. Bohan, outside home; Bohan, spare.

Belleville—Lafferty, goal; Walsh, Nephin, def.; Anderdon, point; Ketcheson, cover point; Lee, centre; Corrigan, inside home; Gilbert, Nicholson, outside home; Doran, spare.

Subs for Trenton were McCauley, Bassett and Turner; for Belleville, Robinson and Murphy.

"Stub" Barrett was referee.

SOFT-BALL.

This game proved interesting to the spectators. The competing teams were K. of C. and Kiwanis. The latter claimed they were victorious, but due to concensus of opinion was that the score was a tie, each team scoring eight runs. Darkness was the cause of the game being called before nine innings could be played. Each home runs was a feature of the game. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

K. of C.—Hurley, p.; Barrett, c.; Frechette, 1b.; Callaghan, 2.; Black, ss.; Hogan, 3b.; Brown, 2b.; Boyle, rf.; Bushard, lf.

TEN RETURN

Toronto, Aug. 16.—To-day is nomination day for the Ontario Ministerial by-election and indications at the Parliament Buildings yesterday were that the entire Ferguson Cabinet would be returned by acclamation. "All the constituencies concerned seem to be delighted with the idea of having a Cabinet Minister represent them," an official of the election department stated.

Only those Ministers who have active portfolios and who, therefore, receive remuneration from the Crown, are obliged to return to their constituents. Ten of the present members of the Ferguson Cabinet, including the Premier himself, fall within this classification. Hon. Thomas Crawford, Dr. Leeming, Hon. J. Hamilton and Sir Adam Beck, of London, are the other members of the Executive Council who do not required to again be endorsed.

The Ministers who will seek re-election and the ridings which they represent are: Premier G. Howard Ferguson, Grenville; Hon. James Lyons Lands and Forests, South Ess. Maria Hon. Charles McCrea, Mines, Sudbury Hon. E. B. Martin, Agriculture Lincoln; Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary, North Wellington; Hon. W. F. Nickle, K. C., Attorney General, Kingston; Hon. J. R. Cooke North Hastings, Hydro Commissioner; Hon. W. F. Price, Parkdale Provincial Treasurer; Hon. George Henry, East York, Public Works; Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, West York, Labor and Health.

In addition to these, the new Ontario Under-Secretary, W. H. Kelly of Port Arthur, will be required to seek re-election, after next session, when his appointment will have been made for nearly a year as stipulated in it.

Hon. F. F. Nickle was the only one of the out-of-town Ministers who returned to his constituency yesterday for nomination. Hon. Mr. Martin is attending the meeting of the American Poultry Association in Philadelphia, and others were all at the Parliament Buildings.

FACTORY COLLAPSES AT ORONO-2 KILLED

Four Others Injured When Falling Structure Precipitates Workmen to the Ground

Port Hope, Aug. 16.—A distressing accident occurred at Orono yesterday morning, resulting in the death of two workmen and serious injuries to several others. A large gang of men were engaged erecting a cement waterroom in connection with the flax factory. It is thought that the lumber used in the walls was green and as the men were nailing on the rafters the entire structure collapsed.

Garnet Woodcock of Haliburton, aged about 45 years, was instantly killed, and Alfred Turner, the contractor for the masonry, died in the hospital. W. J. Fowler, aged 24 years, of Orono, suffered a fractured skull and his condition is serious. Wilbert Scott, of Orono and George Keyes of Bowmanville, were painfully injured about the back and chest, and Alfred Scott of Bowmanville is suffering from serious internal injuries.

All the injured men were taken to the hospital at Bowmanville and an inquest has been ordered.

Messrs. Albert Living, Bowmanville; Mr. Delaney and Roy Thornton, were also employed on the building, but fortunately escaped.

Mrs. Cullough, Cottrille and Tucker, of Orono, and Dr. J. A. Butler, Newcastle, gave immediate attention to the injured, after which Orono and Drs. Hazlewood and Storey assisted at the hospital in Bowmanville.

PEDESTRIAN HURT, CYCLISTS IN COURT

Youths Residing near Tweed Accused by Neighbor

George Smith and Harry Smith, farmers in Hungerford township, near Tweed, appeared in police court here this morning to answer to a charge of unlawfully riding bicycles in a negligent manner, causing bodily injury to George Way, sixty-year-old farm neighbor. Harry Smith who is but 16 years past, and the older brother, both pleaded not guilty through their counsel, C. A. Payne, and elected to be tried summarily.

After hearing the evidence of Dr. J. Denyes of Tweed, the physician who attended Way, counsel for the defendants objected to the continuance of the trial until the complainant be able to appear and give evidence in the court. Dr. Denyes stated that it will be three months before Way will be able to come to Belleville and give evidence, so the case was adjourned until Friday November 16 next at 10 a.m. at the police court here. Bonds for $100 for each defendant and father were accepted by Magistrate Masson in open court, for the appearance of the two defendants on that date.

Way, according to the evidence of Dr. Denyes, suffered a compound fracture of the tibia and fibia of the left leg, which has not recently begun to knit, though the accident occurred on the evening of July 17th last.

MINERS WAIVE CHECK-OFF PLAN

Union Heads in Conference Invite Compromise on the Part of Operators

SUPPLY IN DOUBT

Move Paves Way to Future Negotiations Concerning Wage Scale

(United Press Despatch Exclusive to The Intelligencer)

New York, Aug. 16.—It is believed here that the threatened strike of anthracite miners has been averted by the action of unionists in agreeing to waive the check-off system if the employers will consent to abandon the plan of checking off from the miners' wages the cost of air drills, horse rent, coal, taxes and oil.

New York, Aug. 16.—Union miners and anthracite operators' agreement to abandon the check off, thereby paves the way for early resumption of wage negotiations, but leaves the question of hard coal supply after September 1 nearly as much in doubt as it was before representatives of both met the United States Coal Commission.

The agreement to abandon the check off resulted from a proposal by John L. Lewis that the miners would abandon this feature of their demands if the operators would agree to cease checking from the men's pay charges for rent, supplies and other things, and agree to immediately resume negotiations.

The operators' reply to this was an acceptance "in so far as they might abandon the practice and comply with the laws of Pennsylvania."

HARDING OFFERED $25,000AYEAR

Late President's Services as Editorial Writer Were Sought

Washington, Aug. 16.—When death overtook him in San Francisco President Harding, although apparently confident of his re-election, had already begun to formulate plans against the time when he should finally retire from the White House.

At a private luncheon in a Western city before he went to Alaska he told some of his close friends the reasons which had influenced him to dispose of his control of The Marion Star and discussed the part he expected to take in other fields of activity after his public service was over.

As the story was told here today by those who took part in the conversation Mr. Harding said that in all probability he would accept an offer of $25,000 a year made by one of the leading newspapers of the country for editorial contributions. This, he said, would give him a much-desired opportunity of getting his views before the people and assisting in solving national and international problems.

He also had open, he added, an offer of $750 for each speech he might deliver after the expiration of his term as President.

Germany Celebrates Fourth Anniversary of Constitution

WHAT GERMANY CLAIMS SHE HAS PAID

Berlin, Aug. 16.—(United Press)—Germany and Entente disagree on what Germany has paid as reparations since the war. Various estimates have been given out from time to time—the most recent German tabulation being as follows:

	Gold Marks
Properties in lands ceded under peace treaty, including such as Saar mines, private and government cables, railroads and other bridges, liquidated properties in allied countries, etc.	29,284,000,000
Deliveries from national wealth out of current production such as rolling railway stock, ships, coal, cattle, chemicals, machines, wood, etc.	11,118,800,000
Cash payments in foreign currencies, also of destroyed war materials, Rhineland customs, payments under the British recovery act, etc.	2,140,000,000
Other payments such as clearing house payments, costs of production, restitution deliveries, warships, etc.	3,371,000,000
Internal payments and losses, war material handed to enemy and neutrals, costs of liquidation of industrial disarmament, war	10,482,000,000
Total	56,500,000,000

It is further asserted that if the total value of such areas as Alsace-Lorraine, the German colonies, etc., are considered, the sum will run around a total of 160,000,000,000.

However, a study of the foregoing tabulation will show that even Germany admits her cash payments have been very few, the total shown being only 2,140,000,000 gold marks—a little more than a half billion American dollars.

By GUS M. OEHM

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, Aug. 11, (United Press)—Germany officially celebrated her Fourth of July today—the fourth anniversary of the adoption of the Weimar constitution which made Germany a republic in fact as well as in name.

Throughout the Reich, celebrations were held, centered in the parliamentarian-inspired meeting in the auditory hall in the Reichstag which was attended by high government officials and members of foreign diplomatic colonys.

Germany has gone through much during her four years of democracy. Recoil from within and without the infant government has maintained itself and given promise to continue long, despite vicious plottings and propaganda against it.

President Ebert at the helm during these four years of growing pains of money inflation, internal and external quarrels, reparations payments and non-payments and what not has conducted himself in such a manner that even his political enemies admit he has made good—insofar a German president is permitted to make good.

President With Little Power

But the German presidency was meant to be a presidency in name only—the chancellor and the cabinet with the assistance of the Reichstag being generally considered as the real government. But Ebert, though somewhat reticent, wields a bigger influence behind the scenes than the world—or even Germany—really knows. His four years have been years of confusion and turmoil, but Ebert has led the Republic so satisfactorily that when the time came Sections last summer all parties agreed the best thing to do was to keep him in control until the summer of 1925.

Though Ebert stays, his cabinets come and go with the coming and going of different coalition policies. Cuno, the power today, is the business man's chancellor favoring a policy of building only what the country can meet in the way of reparations payments. Duno came into control of German affairs with the avowed purpose of carrying out the final demand of Wirth's cabinet for "breathing room" for the German people first, then reparations."

Ebert had as his first chancellor Philip Scheidemann, socialist leader, who was in control when the Weimer constitution was drafted, but who refused to sign the Versailles pact making his famous declaration "the hand signing such a treaty would wither." He was soon forced out of power and was replaced by Bauer, another socialist, under whose leadership the Versailles treaty was signed by Foreign Minister Hermann Mueller. Mueller followed Bauer as head of the cabinet and it fell upon him to liquidate the Kapp putsch. Mueller was followed by Fehrenbach whose name was also unpronounceable. Fehrenbach gave way to Wirth who brought forth the "fulfillment policy" which resulted hand in hand with Walter Rathenau, foreign minister, and took over that post, jointly with the chancellorship when Rathenau was assassinated on June 24, 1922. With, was forced to give way to Cuno.

Depreciated Currency

Financially Germany has spent a deadly devastation of the money during the four years of the Republic's duration. From about ten marks to the dollar at the time of the signing of the constitution, the currency has depreciated over 1,000,000 to the dollar.

Germany's president is a Socialist. His party is the strongest in Germany, at first the Republic underwent a Spartacist movement which promised for a time seriously to menace the government of the day. The new republic headlong into Bolshevism. But this movement was put down by the iron-hand by Noske when head of the Reichswehr.

This was followed by the Socialist wave which for a time was real and potent. Movements were underway to socialize the mines and to put across other socialistic movements but the wave slowly wore itself out until now industry and capital have the upper hand everywhere. They are fighting today to kill the 8-hour day and to keep wages low. They have seized the Ruhr and "in the name" provisions, though the 8-hour law still stands on the books.

Menaced From Within

Germany is and has been menaced from within by dissenting groups—communists on the one side and monarchists on the other. Every few weeks or months reports are spread that the government is about to be overthrown, wholesale arrests are made and the Republic swings along.

Observers who have watched the course of events during these four years declare they may be mistaken but it is probable that that the ever-imminent putsches from Left and from Right are largely exaggerated and that though attempts may be made the same fate will await these that befell the famous embassy of Kapp—a general strike will be up the country so tightly that the only resurrection will be a return of the Republic and the Ebert.

And this is assuming something which most people dont assume—another Bonapartist overthrow of the government.

JACK HOLT AT GRIFFIN'S IN "A GENTLEMAN OF LEISURE"

A "Gentleman of Leisure" in a hurry to catch a train, yet finding time enough to shoot a couple of dollars in a dice game is the station Thus we see Jack Holt in his new Paramount picture, "A Gentleman of Leisure," the feature attraction at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday.

Starting in London, the story, a delightful comedy romance, crosses the seas to America where the remainder of the scenes are laid. Mr. Holt is ably supported by Sigrid Holmquist, Casson Ferguson, Alec Francis, Adele Farrington and others. It develops that Sir John and Lady Blount scheme to marry their nephew, Sir Spencer, to Molly Crocker, a wealthy American girl. When Molly decides to return to New York, the Blounts accompany her. To obtain money for the passage, Sir John, unknown to his wife, pawns the Blount diamonds, which are jewels are an important factor in the story. Sir Spencer's courting is anything but a success, and the hopes of Lord and Lady Blount are shattered, when Mr. Holt as the hero steps in and captures Molly. Sigrid Holmquist plays opposite the star.

"Dad's Boy," a two-reel Century comedy, "Fishy Tales," and a timely and interesting Travelogue, and William Desmond in a new chapter of the popular serial entitled "The Phantom Fortune," are announced for presentation on the same program.

MYSTERY HOLDS MEN, BAD LUCK THE ACTRESS

Ethel Grey Terry—she of the tall and blond beauty—while waiting for her scenes in "The Self Made Wife," at the Universal studios found a book bearing the intriguing title, "The Man Who Understood Women." She took it up, but when she opened it she found it was a "Joke" book used around the studio and there was no reading inside.

"I was greatly disappointed," said Miss Terry, for I wanted to read about this veritable man. I have never yet seen a man who did understand women, although I have seen many who thought they did. They are usually the ones who understand least. Personally, if I could meet a man who understood us, I would make a hasty retreat. He would be dangerous. Worse than that, women would not fascinate him. He is the feminine mystery which appeals to men.

TO REDUCE THE COST OF DYING

Oklahoma City, (United Press).—A group of residents of Oklahoma City have banded together to reduce the cost of funeral expenses, associating themselves to have members of their worldly wealth to relatives instead of paying for costly funerals.

"We expect one mortuary to start co-operative undertaking establishment," said Mrs. Kate Stafford, organizer. "Another will make coffins and sell them at a reasonable price and we may obtain a burying ground later where lots may be had at cost."

THE MOWER SANG.

The mower paused to whet his scythe,
And whetting it he sang
Till to the merry tune and blithe
The stretching hay fields rang.

The sweet ran down his sunburnt face,
But deep his breath and glee.
A wind made ripples in the grass
Where still he had to mow.

The whetstone rapped along the smith,
Which hummed beneath the stroke—
The knife that laid low the swath
In ringing triumph spoke.

What words were coupled to the tune
He sang amid the hay?
I only have been a wordless rune
The mower sang that day.

But fully did I understand
The song that then I heard,
As though each note the mower spanned
Was wedded to a word.

And as he sang my dull heart sang
And lifted to the blue,
While all the stretching hayfield rang
And all my spirit, too.

MRS. COFFMAN ILL SEVEN YEARS

Saved from an Operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Medford, Ill.—"I was a nervous wreck. I was suffering from a pain in my left side, which was almost unbearable and I could not even let be the clothes touch me on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years, but not in bed all of the last eighteen months. I was becoming so run-down that I could not look for nobody, and* would rather have died than live. A doctor told me my only hope was an operation. I was all there was left. I would not consent to that, so my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it. I have taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger. Life is full of hope. I do all my housework and had a large garden this year. I never will be without the Vegetable Compound in the house, and when my two little girls reach womanhood I intend to teach them to take it. I am never too busy to tell some suffering sister of my help, and you can use my name and letter to tell her how I was saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine."—Mrs. Ida M. Coffman, R. AN UNFORTUNATE MAN.

Mr. Alex. Foote of Deseronto, who a few days ago sustained painful injuries at Corbyville when tackle gave way which was being used to place a large tank in position, appears to be a most unfortunate man. Mr. Foote has been broken up in several ways. While overseas he was severely wounded and was in hospital for a long time, two years ago he fractured a hip while cranking a car. This latest mishap, however, in Mr. Foote's estimation, was the nearest to being the last.

For New Styles And Pretty Arms

(Beauty Notes)

Women are fast learning the value of the use of delatone for removing hair or fuzz from face, neck or arms. A paste is made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on the hairy surface. In 2 or 3 minutes it is rubbed off, the skin washed and every bit of hair has disappeared. No failure will result if you are careful to buy genuine delatone and mix fresh as wanted.

NO MORE CIRCUSES FOR POOR GERMANS

By GUS M. OEHM

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin (By mail to United Press).—Germany is about to see the end of the wandering circus.

Little Hans and Fritz, back in 1914 could take in any of 20 or 25 big circuses which wandered here and there under their big tops about Germany. To-day only five major circuses remain in Germany and these have dwindled so that they really amount to very little.

The situation results, as almost every other new development, from the economic situation in Germany.

The German public is just as interested in and just as anxious to go see a good major circus today as it was in 1914, but the high costs of feeding animals, employing world famous acrobats, clowns, etc. simply puts the price of tickets beyond the reach of even Germany's millionaires.

Berlin Theatre Bases Prices' On Cost of Eggs and Butter

When patrons appeared at the theatre with butter and eggs as admission tickets, the young woman at the box office explained that she couldn't take payment in kind, but suggested that the food be auctioned off in the foyer. This was done and the owners of the butter and eggs realized a handsome profit above the price of the tickets.

FRENCH SUPPRESS FILM.

Paris, Aug. 15.—The French Board of film Censors has forbidden the screen production of M. Victor Margueritte's much discussed novel "La Garconne." The decision is final. The board is composed of Government officials, several literary men and journalists, including Paul Ostaty.

The motive given for the interdiction is that the film is "unhealthy." When the intention first was announced to produce the screen version Minister of the Interior officials declared it would without doubt be forbidden. Despite this warning, the producer set to work and the film was recently finished, all parts though objectionable being suppressed.

practise is manifestly unfair and should be checked.

It is the duty of every news medium to treat all news matter impartially and to suppress news only when its publication would cause unjust suffering to innocent persons. But arbitrary protection of the rich in this respect is at once undemocratic and unsound.

As a matter of fact, the courts and the police of Canada do not welcome this practise, but, on the contrary, generally frown upon it. Yet the infrequent instances justify the criticism.

PRESS OPINIONS

STRONG TEMPTATION.

(E. W. Howe's Monthly)

Every summer I take a big dose of strawberry shortcake, and suffer the consequences. I love the joy of eating the stuff but know it will jump on me, and exact a heavy penalty. And I do not care for the modified shortcake often recommended: I love only the vicious and good kind.

This issue of the "monthly" is a poor one, because I am suffering a strawberry short cake bout head. The bad effects of a spree stay with me for days. Don't write and tell me I should resist the temptation. I can't do it.

DECREASE OF AGRICULTURE

(Montreal Le Canada)

If we are concerned over the exodus from our rural districts, it is none the less a problem in many countries, in few of which indeed is it altogether absent. It has become a serious question in France, and an economist of that country deplores the fact that one should call that epoch one of progress in which the number of citizens increases, while country people are more and more eager to leave their fields. To abandon the soil hardly seems to us a sign of progress, with the decrease of agricultural production life becomes more and more difficult.

MIS-NAMED SPORT.

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

In modern prize-fighting, even when disguised as boxing, entitled to rank as "the manly art of self-defense?" When two men, especially trained for the purpose, undertake to pound each other and be pounded for a sum of money that to many people would mean a generous fortune, what principle of manliness is promoted? And the exhibitions of prize-fighting encourage manliness in the beholders? A New York paper, referring to a recent exhibition, points out that one of the combatants was received by the crowd with "yells of affection and approval," while the other was received with equally wild "yells of abhorrence."

NATIONAL FAILURE

(Los Angeles Times)

In place of aiding in the restoration of permanent peace we are put on the light of obstructionists. This is perhaps unfair; but our failure to join the League of Nations furnishes at least a pretext for other nations to lay the blame upon us.

The majority who favored joining the league are forced to suffer for the selfishness and narrow-mindedness of the minority which succeeded in blocking the greatest effort ever made by the nations of the world to destroy war before war destroys our present civilization. And no one can truthfully say, in the face of existing conditions in Europe and Asia, that our civilization is not menaced.

COUNTRYMEN NOT LOAFERS

(London Times)

Countrymen are seldom loafers. They make their own recreation, and its form is active. To them profession at games seem vague and remote. The people they watch with the greatest interest are the enemy bowlers whom they must presently face, or the friendly batsmen, higher than themselves in the order of going in, whose disaster will be their opportunity

All their lives their way has been easy for them, as it has never been for men from neighboring towns. There is space in the village; more important, there is a tradition, handed down from the far-off and forgotten days of archery. They can play if they will, and are honored for playing well.

AMERICAN FINDS BRAZIL FULL OF DIAMOND DEPOSITS

By Chas. M. Kinsolving, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 15.—"The diamond deposits in Brazil are more widely scattered than in any other country where diamonds are to be found," said Dr. Oliver Farrington, curator of geology in the Field Museum of Natural History of Chicago.

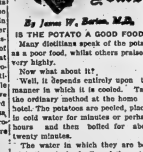

Dr. Farrington has carried on his research work in the Brazilian mineral districts for some years. He is now planning a trip through the state of Bahia, in the north central part of Brazil, in order to look into certain diamond deposits in that state which have as yet received little attention from experienced geologists.

"The peculiar thing about the diamond deposits in this country," continued the geologist, "is the absence of the sedimentary magnesian rock which in most cases accompanies the diamonds in their natural state in other continents. The diamond mines of Minas Geraes, more especially those around Diamentai, are absolutely free from any showing of this strata which has generally served as a guide to geologists and miners in determining the localities where diamonds are to be found."

"The deposits of Diamentina are somewhat disappointing, and it is obvious that other deposits far richer than those already exploited, exist, but they are so widely scattered that it is only a matter of chance as to whether or not they will ever be found."

Dr. Farrington was reminiscent of his recent visit to the iron regions of Minas Geraes, where he found great hillocks of iron in bold relief against the skyline.

When asked if he had seen any indications of oil strata during his journeys through the interior he replied that he had not seen anything to lead him to believe that petroleum existed in the central part of Brazil.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

IS THE POTATO A GOOD FOOD?

Many dietitians speak of the potato as a poor food, whilst others praise it very highly.

Now what about it?

Well, it depends entirely upon the manner in which it is cooked. Take the ordinary method at the home or hotel. The potatoes are peeled, placed in cold water for minutes or perhaps hours and then boiled for about twenty minutes.

The water in which they are boiled is then drained off, and the potato is ready for consumption.

It is the potato prepared in this way that is a poor food.

Why?

Well, there are mineral salts that are absolutely essential to your health. The flesh is full of these salts and the potato like other foods absorbs them into its cells, into itself during its growth in the ground.

When you take the peeling off and boil the potato, these salts to a considerable extent are extracted by the water in the same manner as you would boil a soup bone to extract its nutritive qualities.

It does seem so unwise to throw away this water, doesn't it?

Many people, however utilize the water in which vegetables have been cooked by making a sauce of it and pouring same over the vegetables. In the case of a baked potato these mineral salts are retained and the "roughage" of the peeling itself is helpful in digestion and constipation.

In the training of athletes, the potato baked with the skin on forms a regular daily article of food. You see it is rich in these mineral salts which neutralize the acids in the blood and when the blood bathes as it does, every tissue in the body, it can be readily seen what this means to the body as a whole. And so if you were to consult the menu tables of University teams you would see the baked potato holding a honored place.

I know that many people are fond of fried potatoes. The fat in which they are fried, enriches them, but they are hardly the food for other than the very strong stomach.

So the potato is an excellent food if it is cooked properly.

WHEN HE GETS A CHANCE

Peter was no different from other boys. Sometimes when his sister's friend would call he would entertain him in the drawing-room until Daisy came downstairs.

With a sudden burst of candour, Peter answered: "Oh, rather—when mother isn't there first."

RAILROADERS VANQUISHED BY PETES, 3-2 IN INITIAL CHAMPIONSHIP CONTEST

BUNCHED ERRORS COST TRUNKS FIRST SESSION OF PLAY-OFF-WILLIAMS HURLS GREAT BALL

First Inning Ragged—Railroaders Must Fight With Backs to Wall in Second Clash at Peterboro Saturday

Three costly errors in the first innings on the part of the Trunks gave the first game of the play-off to Peterboro, here, yesterday, the score being 3-2. Aside from this slight error the game was a beautiful exhibition with pretty baseball supplied all around. The Petes shoved across their only three counters during this inning which proved enough to win the engagement. The Trunks came back with a brace in the sixth but these were not sufficient to overtake Jake's crowd. It was a real hard game to lose and places the railroaders in an awkward position with their backs to the wall and they must win Saturday at Riverside Park or hang up their hats for another year. But Johnny Oulette says he can do the trick. The lift-tickers are not invincible at home and have been beaten before.

Manager Trevor sent Williams to the mound and the Indian performed in noble style. He pitched a beautiful game and had he been accorded good support, would have easily come under the wire first. He caused nine men to whiff the breeze, issued but four pass and kept Petes five hits well scattered. His work was pretty to watch and certainly no blame can be placed on Jack Williams's shoulders for the loss.

Heckman, too, was in grand form and hurled pretty ball. He let the railroaders down with three hits, struck out eight but was a trifle wild and issued three men. The blonde right-hander is pitching nice ball this season and the Trunks will need him from their batting togs to win on Saturday.

To start the first, Legon doubled, Hagerman bobbed Johnston's bunt, Heckman grounded to Brownscombe, who saved, Legon scoring. Swanston hit to centre, went through Wicker's legs and Johnston and Heckman scored. There's the whole thing how Waterboro won the ball game and Belleville lost.

It was one of the toughest games the railroaders have lost in some time.

One of the main features of yesterday's game was the pairing of "Red" Legon in left field for the visitors. Legon pulled down three of the prettiest catches witnessed on the local diamond this season. This boy popped across the making of a sweet ball player and is one of the main cogs in the Petes machine.

The Trunks were practically helpless before Heckman's pitching as the Petes were before Williams. Both boys hurled lovely ball and are' no doubt two of the leading pitchers in Ontario.

Peterboro too, had two errors but they did not have any bearing on the run-scoring. Jakie has a nice ball club and if they should get out of the Central Ontario league they will go a long way towards the Provincial championship. Another pitcher would be a great help to them but Heckman has that in far stood up exceedingly well under the strain of pitching two games a week.

The Trunks are an equally strong club and should they beat Peterboro at home and in the third game will be logical contenders. They have not played a sparkling brand of ball in the last three weeks but have won many important games when off the home lot. The Oster tilt at Scarboro in 1919, last year's play off at Oshawa the hilltreet game at Peterboro and the championship game in Guelph are examples of the indomitable spirit which prevails among the players. There is still a straw and let us clasp to it. The Trunks may upset the dope ball and will out of Solomonville with a win tucked under their belts. There is still a loyal band of fans in Belleville who are behind the team whether they win or lose. Saturday's game means a great deal to them, probably the provincial championship and greatest of all the baseball honors of Belleville which they have upheld so well since 1919.

Getting back to yesterday's clash, Babe Casey made a sparkling catch in right field which brought applause from the throngs.

Frankie Hallinan of the Spalding League and Walter Thorne of the Western city league both of Toronto umpired in a most efficient manner. Their work was at all times first-class and no complaint can be registered in that direction.

Allan Meagher did not play, owing to his injured ankle, but instead did the coaching at first-base and he will likely be at his old position on Saturday.

It is rumored that "Big Penny" may do the catching on Saturday. Anyway we'd like to see him in there.

The number of spectators hundred witnessed the game. Rather a small greeting to a ball team such as we have in Belleville.

Legon and shouten were account coubles. Both were hard-hit balls into the outfield, although "Sweazey" went between Wickey's legs advancing the little catcher to third base.

Legon and shouten were accountable for the visitor's errors although both played splendid games apart from these.

Ross and Harry laid down pretty sacrifice hits.

Harold Brownscombe made the only successful base steal of the day, although several attempts were made to perform the acts.

Meagher batting for Casey and Cap' Smith pinch-hitting for Stan Hagerman were both unsuccessful in their efforts to pull the game out of the fire.

The Trunks will go to Peterboro on Saturday to make the final stand against the northerners. Despite yesterday's loss a good crowd will no doubt accompany them. Oshawa won from Leaside in "A" Section 14.

Story of the game by innings is as follows:—

FIRST

Legon doubled to deep centre, Johnson went safe on a bunt, which Hagerman fumbled. Comolli flew out to Casey. Heckman hit through Brownscombe, Legon going home. Weir tossed fifteen out, Swanston singled past second, scoring Johnson and Heckman. Shaughnessy struck out.—2 runs, 2 errors, 2 hits.

Ross fanned. Weir rolled out to Heison. Brownscombe struck out.—0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors.

SECOND

Wolfe was safe on J. K. William's error, but went out stealing second. Collins struck out. Legon rolled out to Weir.—0 hits, 0 runs, 1 error.

H. Mills flied out to Legon. W. Mills singled to centre garden. J. K. Williams flied to Wolfe. Casey flied out to Comolli.—1 hit, 0 runs, 0 errors.

THIRD

Johnston struck out. Comolli rolled out to H. Mills. Heckman rolled out to Brownscombe.—0 hits, 0 runs, 0 errors.

Do You Know?

BY UNITED PRESS.

Q. Who is the world's champion billiard player?

A. The title, "world champion billiard player," is generally associated with the best player at 18.2 balk line billiards, and Willie Hoppe is the champion.

Q. How much is Firpo to get for fighting Jack Dempsey? R.T.C.

A. This question is being asked many times. It is understood that Firpo is to get a percentage of the gate receipts with the condition that the percentage does not run over $100,000. That would indicate that he might get $100,000, but he might lose.

D.V.E.—Ages of women tennis players are not given in the records. Most of them are backward about answering personal questions.

Q. Did the Phillies ask waivers on Clarence Mitchell? A. Gus Dorais.

A. Yes, Waivers were asked in May but due to Mitchell's splendid pitching there was no danger of waivers being claimed by any club. They kept undoubtedly Icon withdrawn.

Q. Is a baserunner permitted to attempt to score on a foul fly? M.P.S.

A. A baserunner is permitted to advance after a fly catch of any kind. However, most outfielders prefer to ignore or purposely muff a foul fly in baseball parlance and so chances of cutting a run off at the plate.

Q. Was Miller Huggins a good batter? T. A. Y.

A. Considering the "lively" ball was not in vogue in his day Huggins batted well. He hit for a grand average of .265 in 1572 major league games from 1904 to 1916.

SCHEDULE ARRANGED FOR CENTRAL-EASTERN PLAY-OFF

Executive Committee of O. B.A.A. Fixes Dates For Finals

Guelph, Ont., Aug. 16.—At the recent meeting o fthe Executive Committee of the O.B.A.A. the first draw was made in the various series for the first round of the semi-final games, which will begin Saturday of a few days. The reports from the different leagues went to show that all were doing their best to have their winners declared within the specified time, the only drawback being that some were having a play-off with their first and second teams, group against the league. The committee is exceedingly anxious to have all the champion ships declared this year not later than the first week in October, and this can be accomplished if there are not too many three-se series games and the weather conditions are all that can be desired.

In the senior series, the first draw brings the winners of the Kent County League against the winners of the Southern Ontario series of another group in the same League, the dates to be August 25, September 1 and September 8, should three games be necessary.

Inter-County v. Niagara District—September 3, 5, and 8.

Eastern Ontario v. Central Ontario —August 25, September 1 and 3.

The winners of the Central Ontario Eastern Ontario series will play off with the winners of the Niagara District—H. A. B. A. series and the winners of the Kent County-Southern Ontario series will play off with the winners of the Inter-County-Lake Erie series in the second round, the leaving two winners for the finals.

Should the T. A. B. A. become re-affiliated or the Riverside League be taken in, as is the present intention, there may be a change in the second round.

"Wickey" Ross is Leader in C.O.B.L. For Stick Honors

"Wickey" Ross, the great little centre fielder of the Belleville team, showed the way to the batters in the C.O.B.L. in the season which closed on Saturday. Ross collected a batting average of .371 in 105 trips to the plate, and thus led the league in runs scored. The average are official insofar as all but the games at Cobourg are concerned, and those are practically official.

The season proved a heavy-hitting one, with the four teams getting .245 hits in 24 games and scoring 554 runs. Kingston led in club batting with a mark of .294, though their best batters were Twigg and Cherry, who were down to .233. By getting 12 hits in his last four games Cherry was able to come to even terms with Twigg. In all 19 players hit for .300 or better, Kingston having seven and batters, Belleville six, Peterboro 4 and Cobourg 2. Ross made the most hits, 39, followed by Weir, his team-mate, with 33; Asselio, Peterboro, 34; Turpin, Cobourg, 32; Wolfe, Peterboro; Cherry, Kingston, 31 each; J. Kenny, Cobourg; Somerville, Kingston; H. Mills, Belleville; Daley, Kingston, 30 each.

Love's Young Dream, With Horsemeat

Berlin, (By mail to United Press)—Prison Rie friend Robert Lange, noted for breaking into houses and out of jails. Besides that, Lange was in love.

So, he broke out of jail in Sonneberg, instead in the girl of his choice, the pretty daughter of a gardener here, asked her parents for her hand, and then set about to get his housekeeping necessaries together.

Aided by another convict friend temporarily also free, Lange singled out a huge van of furniture, drove it off, hid the furniture, took the wagon, again and sold the pieces and—

Then he killed the horses to get a honeymoon banquet for "two", and

The feast was interrupted by the police, who rudely ticketed Lange for Sonneberg.

Directions For Drying

DRYING BY ARTIFICIAL HEAT.

Products may be dried in the oven, on the top of the stove, in trays suspended over the top of the range, or in a commercial or homemade drier. In this way the heat of the stove or the oven is utilized. In using artificial heat, the drying should be started at a comparatively low temperature and gradually increased; for this reason it is necessary to use a thermometer. The temperature at which most vegetables should begin is from 110 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature may be gradually increased to 145 or 150 degrees Fahrenheit. When the temperature is too high at first, the surface of the vegetable becomes hard, while the inside is still juicy.

DRYING BY AIR-BLAST.

This method is perhaps the quickest and cheapest. It consists of allowing a current of air to pass over the product, using an electric fan, either with or without artificial heat.

The disadvantage of this method is that it is very difficult to regulate the drying process, and the material is apt to dry out too quickly, a hard crust forming on the outside and thus preventing the moisture in the centre from escaping.

CONDITION OF PRODUCTS WHEN SUFFICIENTLY DRIED.

The product should be leathery and pliable; not so dry that it will snap when broken. When the pieces are cut or broken open the cut ends should not show any moisture when pressed between the fingers. If the products become hard when dried they will not resume their original shape when soaked. After the products are sufficiently dried it is important that they be "conditioned." This means that they must be placed in containers, preferably boxes, and poured from one box to another at least once a day for three or four days, to mix thoroughly. If any part of the product is found not to be sufficiently dried it can be returned to the drier for a short time.

PROPER STORAGE.

Proper storage is absolutely essential. With the present high price of glass jars it is recommended that other containers be used for the storage of dried products. Cans, such as baking powder cans, coffee cans, etc., with tight fitting covers, also strong paper bags and paraffin lined paper boxes may be used successfully.

If a paper bag is used the top should be twisted, doubled over and tied with a string. If the bag is coated with melted paraffin wax the moisture will be kept out.

It is a good plan to use small containers so that it may not be necessary to leave the contents exposed after opening and before using.

The products should be stored in a cool, dry place, well ventilated and protected from rats, mice and insects.

PREPARATION FOR THE TABLE.

The water which has evaporated must be restored. This is done by soaking for a long time, using three to four cups of water to one cup of dried material. Care must be taken that too much water is not used, as the object is to restore the amount which has evaporated. After soaking for several hours, and in some cases over night, the dried products should be cooked in a covered utensil at a low temperature for a long time. They should be cooked in the water in which they were soaked. In serving dried products great care must be taken that they are well seasoned.

BEANS—Beans must be in perfect condition. Wash carefully and string. Blanch from 5 to 10 minutes, adding ½ teaspoon soda to each gallon of boiling water; cold dip and remove surface moisture. Spread thinly on trays to dry. Dry slowly, increasing the temperature from 120 to 145 degrees Fahrenheit.

CELERY—Wash carefully and cut in inch pieces, blanch 3 minutes, and cold dip. Remove surface moisture with cheesecloth or cloth. Dry slowly, starting at temperature of 110 degrees and increasing to 140 degrees.

CORN—Blanch ears from 5 to 10 minutes to set the milk, adding one teaspoon of salt to each gallon of water. Cold dip and remove surface moisture. With a sharp knife cut off kernels, taking care not to include the chaff. Start the temperature of 110 degrees Fahrenheit and raising gradually to 145 degrees, the corn should dry in 4 to 5 hours.

If the corn is to be dried in the sun, it should first be dried in the oven at 110 degrees for from 10 to 20 minutes, and again, after the sun drying is completed, at a temperature of 145 degrees for 5 minutes.

PEAS—Shell, blanch for from 3 to 5 minutes, cold dip and remove surface moisture. Starting at a temperature of 110 degrees and increasing slowly to 145 degrees, it takes from 3 to 4 hours for peas to dry.

ONIONS—Peel and slice onions into ¼-inch slices. Blanching is not necessary. Dry from 2½ to 3 hours at a temperature of from 120 to 140 degrees.

PUMPKIN—Cut into ½-inch strips and peel, blanch for from 3 to 5 minutes, remove surface moisture and dry slowly 3 to 4 hours at 135 to 150 degrees.

SOUP MIXTURE—Each vegetable should be dried separately and then combined. From 3 to 4 quarts of vegetable soup may be made from 4 ounces of dried soup mixture.

APPLES—Peel, core and cut in slices ¼-inch thick. Dip in a weak salt solution; 1 to 2 tablespoons of salt to 1 gallon of water, to prevent discoloration. Remove surface moisture and dry slowly for from 5 to 6 hours, increasing the temperature from 120 to 150 degrees Fahrenheit. Apples should be tough and leathery when dried.

RHUBARB—Cut into 1-inch pieces. Blanch 3 minutes and cold dip, remove surface moisture and dry at a temperature of from 120 to 145 degrees Fahrenheit.

Note.—The exact length of time for drying cannot be given, as much depends upon the method used.

WINTER STORAGE.

If you have grown the crops, without doubt you have some sort of a cellar. If you have a cellar you should have a storage room in it. You can make one as follows:

1. Select a suitable portion of the cellar.
2. Board it off from the rest of the cellar.
3. Cover the boards with felt paper. Do so on both sides of the partition and do a thorough job. Your object is to exclude the artificial heat from the furnace.
4. Provide a false floor for part of this room.
5. Nail a few slats on one of the walls.
6. Build a few bins on one side of the room.
7. Provide a few hooks in the ceiling.
8. Order a load of builder's sand and store it in one of the bins.
9. Provide a few slat boxes and old bags.

The reason for this above are given in what follows:

CAUTIONS ABOUT STORING.

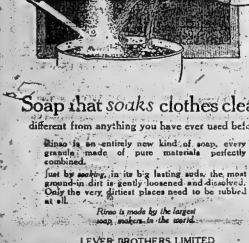

Don't let the frost injure the crops before you take them into the cellar.

Don't bring them in while they are in a moist condition.

Don't cover roots with damp sand if the cellar is hot. They will start to grow if you do. Eat them quickly, can, dry or give away in preference.

Don't let cold winds dry out your potatoes. If you do a bitter taste is the result.

Don't try to store onions, squash or pumpkins in a cool cellar. They will keep better in the attic.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"But that was long ago," continued Mrs. Glaire, excitedly. "Positions are changed since then. My son—"

"Well, ma'am, he's a workman's son, and my lady's a workman's daughter. I've give her a good school ing, and she's as pretty a lass as there is in these parts, and if your son Richard's took a fancy to her, and asks me to let him marry her, and the lass likes him, why I shall say yes, like a man."

Mrs. Glaire looked at him aghast. This was a turn in affairs she had never anticipated, and one which called forth all her knowledge of human nature to combat.

"But," she exclaimed, "he is engaged to his cousin here, Miss Pelly."

"Don't seem like it," chuckled the foreman. "Why he's always after Daisy now."

"Oh, this is dreadful!" gasped Mrs. Glaire, dropping her knitting. "I tell you, he is engaged—promised to be married to his second cousin, Miss Pelly."

"Stuff!" said Banks, laughing. "He'll never marry she, though she's a good, sweet girl.

"Don't I tell you he will!" gasped Mrs. Glaire. "Man, man, are you blind with obstinacy? Can't you see? I must speak. Has it never struck you that my son may have wrong motives with respect to your child?"

"What?" roared the foreman; and the veins in his forehead swelled out, as his fist clinched. "Hah! he ex-claimed, resuming his calmness. "Nonsense, ma'am, nonsense. What! Master Dicky Glaire, my two old friend's son, mean wrong by my lass, Daisy? Mrs. Glaire, ma'am, Mrs. Glaire, for shame, for shame!"

"The man's infatuated!" exclaimed Mrs. Glaire; and she stared wonderingly at the bluff, honest fellow before her.

"Why, ma'am," said the foreman, smiling. "I wouldn't believe it of him if you swore it. He's arbitrary, and he's too fond of his horses, and dogs and sporting; but my Daisy! Oh, for shame, ma'am, for shame! He knows the very ground on which she walks."

"And—and—" stammered Mrs. Glaire, "does Daisy care for him? Fool that I was to let her come here and be so intimate with Eva," she muttered.

"Well, ma'am," said the foreman, thoughtfully, "I'm not so sure about that."

He was about to say more when Mrs. Glaire stopped him.

"Another time, Banks, another time," she said, hastily, "Here is my son."

As she spoke Richard Glaire came into the garden, with his hands in his pockets, and Eva Pelly clinging to his arm, looking bright and happy.

The foreman started slightly, but gave himself a jerk and smiled, and then, to obedience to a gesture from his mistress, he left the garden and returned to the foundry.

Chapter V.

THE VICAR'S STROLL.

The brick, as the vicar called it, was only another piece of slag; but he did not turn his head, only smiled, and began thinking that Dumford quite equaled the report he had heard of it. Then looking round the plain old church, peering inside through the windows, and satisfying himself that its architectural beauties were not of a very striking nature, he turned aside and entered the vicarage garden, giving a sigh of satisfaction on finding that his home was a comfortable, red-brick, gable-ended house, whose exterior with its garden overrun with woods promised well in the graces of former civilisation.

A flag at a fell by the side post of the door brought forth a wan, washed out looking woman, who looked at the visitor from top of toe, ending by saying sharply, in a vinegarty tone of voice—

"What d'yer want?"

"To come in," said the vicar, smiling. "Are you in charge of the house? I am the new parson."

"If yer want to go over I dessay yow must go to Jacky Budd's down street; for the keys. I weren't twice place no more for anybody."

"But I don't want to go over the church—at least, not now. I want to come in and see about having a room or two made comfortable."

"Are yow t'new parson, then?"

"Yes, I'm the new parson."

"Ho! Then yow'd best come in."

The door was held open, and, look ing at him very suspiciously, the lady in charge, in wit, Mrs. Simeon Sles, slowed the vicar to enter, and then followed him as he went from room to room, making up his mind what he should do as he ran his eye over the proportions of the house, finding in the course of his peregrinations that

TREASURES IN CAVES.

They Shed Fresh Storehouses of Ancient History.

The discoveries made in the Swaledale caves at Keader, in the Yorkshire, shed a fresh light upon a race which in the latter part of the earth's period so remote as to be almost beyond our speculation.

They are the more instance of the immense value to modern man of caverns as storehouses of antiquity.

It is largely from the study of relics found in English caves that scientists have been able to trace the past history of the inhabitants of our own country.

The most famous of these caves is Kent's Hole, just outside Torquay, and Brixham Cave, in the former a layer of stalagmite one to three feet thick has preserved an astonishing collection or relics of our cave-dwelling ancestors. These are both impressively mingled with the remains of an extraordinary variety of animals, which include the cave bear, cave lions, hyenas, mammoths, rhinoceros, orus, bison, the giant deer, elk and the reindeer.

To the Cheddar caves, especially Gough's Cave, enormous quantities of the bones of similar animals are mingled with them all sorts of relics of men of the Stone Age. We know, for instance, that these men of long ago kept dogs. From flint implements we can tell that they dressed skins. We know that they had no fire brick, and that they were familiar with the use of fire. From the human bones we can even form a fair idea of their size, height, and general appearance.

In the caves of Italy bones of the same bear have been found mixed with pieces of pottery, proving the age of that early age was a good deal more civilized than has generally been imagined.

Still more startling discoveries were made in Belgian caves at Chaleux, where axes of sapphire were discovered. Now, sapphire is found only in Asia, and the only logical conclusion is that prehistoric man traded quite widely. In these caves were found also flint knives, bone implements, shells from Champagne, and pieces of faceted gems from Southern Russia.

The French caves of Gourdan, and others near Schaffhausen, in Switzerland, have yielded human remains, not on bone or horn, and some of these are of a character which we know as sensitive point of view. There are sketches on the reindeer, the horse, the ibex, the bison, the bear, and the mammoth. Marriage, bear-dancing, head-dressing and various other forms of skill, and scenes of other objects in an almost perfect state of preservation have been found in these caves (says a writer in "Cassell's Family Weekly.")

All over the world, wherever a ligneous formation exists, are relics of subterranean caverns, which invite for exploration to yield their treasures of interest, and to show us how man lived and died in earth's earliest ages.

Leaving the Humble Pickle.

The lowly pickle has come into its own. It has at last been recognized as a beautiful, delicate, delicious thing. It make that the person who recognized it happens to be president of the Pickle Packers' Association; the inheritance thing is that it is so beautiful. More than that, it is claimed by the same gentleman that it is the constant nibbling of the chambermaid delicacy that gave Catherine of Aragon the beauty that won the heart of Henry VIII.

As was to be expected, truckdrivers have already risen to ask why the pickle failed to keep her husband long enough to retain Henry's love. This is, perhaps, a natural question, but Henry put Catherine away he did it in a manner not known, at least as far our modern persons who take a trip to Reno or Sioux City on the train are aware of. Her non-pickle-eating successor, Anne Boleyn, was treated with he such consideration that she was brief day ended. It consequently appears that the real objection to pickles is an argument for the pickle as a beautifier rather than it is for it not only that but a lifesaver as well. —Springfield Union.

West Her Lawrence.

The suggestion is being revived in certain quarters to make Joan of Prot Lawrenceable an honor with a chance limit, but a whole-life affair, as it is at present, and Mr. Bernard Shaw's name is put forward. As a writer of stirring poetry, he certainly stands high, but there are arguments against as well as for the idea of changing our Poet Laureate each year, like the Lord Mayor.

Rigging tells a nice story of a private fancy-dress ball he once attended, when each of the guests had to represent some well-known word. He penciled a long while over one of the cards he was designed as a packet of cigarette lighter, and at last begged her to tell him what this was.

"I represent one of your own books," she replied.

"Which one?" asked Kipling, baffled.

"Why," she said, "The Light That Failed."

Sensible Laws Regarding Food.

Among modern laws, there is considerable cooking is not entirely performed by the mistress of the house (it is the sacred duty and privilege of a wife to prepare and serve her husband's food) a Bavarian court will be summoned even by a man of low caste, but in such a case, no member of the household dare defile the kitchen by entering it. In Bavaria, moreover, will baths before preparing each meal. All food is freshly prepared, and nothing is served a second time. In all such rules as these there are strong remarks against contamination—a protection from disease and the many deaths that pursue unwholesome habits. The laws regarding food, though not forth in severely religious formulae, are a form of science governing health and economics.—Asia Magazine.

ANCIENT CITY OF DAVID.

Archeologists of All Nations Will Assist in the Excavations.

The Palestine administration has issued invitations to archeologists of Great Britain, United States, France and other countries to excavate the site of the ancient "City of David" on Mount Ophel, just south of the Haram-esh-Sherif.

The entire area covered by the ancient city will be turned over to the excavators, according to official advices received here. It extends from the Pool of Siloam, which marks the southern end of the site, northward to the southern wall.

According to present plans, each archeological society will be entirely supplying for permission to excavate will be assigned a certain district within which it will be given exclusive digging privileges, and may keep all it finds.

The size of the district allotted to a particular organization will depend somewhat upon the financial ability. Persons or societies not financially able to carry out extensive operations will not be given permission to undertake such work.

The invitation has been extended to archeologists of all nations having considerable interests in the Holy Land. In making the announcement the Palestine administration stated:

"It is considered that a work of such importance to the world whose memories are sacred to many nations, should not be trusted to the resources, however ample, or to the methods, however scientific, of any single scientific institution or nation, but that it should be a common heritage and share, and already we have been made aware that many are more than anxious to take their part in it."

The understanding is that sufficient excavation work already has been done to warrant the official publication of the city of David. Results obtained by the excavations, he pigeoning with that undertaken by Dr. Frederick J. Bliss and Prof. A. C. Dickie between 1894 and 1897, leave no doubt in the minds of the leaders of the ancient city. However, large sections of the ancient city, including virtually the whole of the stronghold of Zion and the palace of David, as well as the tombs of the kings of Judah.

Missouri Writes His Aids.

Not since the administration of the kingdom of Italy can any one remember such a premier as Mussolini, the man who finds time and strength to do everything and yet to be practical. He never might call his actions trivial, but such an opinion would be ignorance of their significance and effect on the imagination of the people.

When the prime minister goes on a morning street car he creates a deeper impression than if he had delivered a flowery oration in parliament. He knows from an intimate personal experience with an ambassador to a sharpshooting barracks, and he writes his own pennant; goes from there to a school where he examines the children and examines minutely the system on which they are taught to bring trained. Later the premier will personally look after the installed soldiers who have failed to keep sympathetic, and finally, when his staff is worn out with his day's work, Mussolini, by himself, he appears in a box at the theatre sending flowers to a popular actress.

Swifts That Build Edible Nests.

On the Cave-Twei island of the Sulu archipelago live colonies of the little swifts that make the edible birds nests so beloved of the Chinese. These birds have some sort of glands in their throats which secrete a fluid which they stick up against the wall of their cave-like nests, and the saliva, when completed, looks like white isinglass. It is then cut out and sold to the traders for their weight in silver. Sometimes it takes 12 nests to balance a dollar. They are supposed to be made of seaweed, though the broth is in demand for invalids, and the nests are used as a tonic. The birds have their broods.

First Body of Pledged Abstainers.

The first body of pledged abstainers from intoxicating liquors, were the members of the Bible Christian Church, Salford, Lancs., in the year 1809. From the foundation of the church all its members were pledged abstainers from Sab, flesh and fowl as well as from the intoxicating liquors. From this church was formed the first total advocating total abstinence from intoxicating liquors. The tract is one of a series of "Letters on Religious Subjects" by Joseph Brotherton, and was first issued from 1816,10 1857. It is entitled "On Abstinence from Intoxicating Liquors," and bears the date "May, 1831." Mr. Brotherton was Salford's first member in Parliament, a position he retained for 25 years.

Menu for Gourmet.

A Parisian gourmet is so light minter, as Mr. Hermann Norden, the author of "From Monte Carlo to Golden Sun," found out. While in Bangkok he was greatly struck with the light menu was as follows: Chicken kidneys, mushrooms, shrimps, cheese, hard-boiled eggs, fruit, coffee, and brandy. Chinese bird's-nest soup, duck, barley soup, a sweet fruit soup, made of the milk of a coconut. It was served in a coconut shell, and no wonder that "the dinner committee had set up until all hours combining this menu for gourmets."

SUICIDES IN 1926.

79 Millionaires Among 19,000 Persons Who Killed Themselves.

Seventy-nine millionaires were among the 19,000 persons who committed suicide in 1913, it was reported by Dr. Harry M. Warren, president of the Save-a-Life League, which said 64 those who killed themselves were women, the latter was a great-grandmother, one hundred years old, the youngest a child of five.

In New York city 839 persons killed themselves, and an increasing number committed suicide in the beds of subway trains and jumped from high buildings. Some parts of the country reported waves of suicides, and one great suicide club was discovered. Those who took their own lives during this same number as in the preceding year—included Judge Parry, a well-known and highly esteemed personality. There were 41 college presidents, 80 college professors and scientists, 19 preachers and leaders of religious ways, 32 judges and lawyers, 84 physicians, 190 professors and heads of large business concerns, and a number of well-known scientists, one of whom tried ten times to die before succeeding.

Financial reverses were not a low estimate upon the value of human life, having destroyed thousands. Love causes most trivial," said Dr. Warren. "A girl refuses a suitor and she becans depressed after bobbing her hair. A man loses a bet, and is forced to quit playing golf. A woman blows up a dozen cartridges in a train, a man because he feared the fall in a war, and a man for the other because of a row over a cat. A designer was driven to suicide trying to guess the number of buttons used for women. One recently ended his life rather than wear a sweater this winter. A young man killed himself over the loss of $1.50. A coroner found a note saying she was taking poison 'just to get a new hat.'"

"The suicide of children is a matter particularly distressing to the most serious problem, to be carefully considered. There is a contagion in child suicides. In 1920 there were 197. In 1921 the number had increased to 254. In 1922 it increased over 900, or nearly 2,000 in four years. The average of all child suicides is sixteen, girls, fifteen. Most of these poison, the girls by gas. When five school girls in four days commit suicide in a city the public is asked the reason why. The conclusion reached is generally that the children, who are constantly disordered, or their conditions were misunderstood. At that the school system was at fault. All of these are the chief causes for child suicide.

Child marriage is another serious cause. In 1920 there were 9,000 boys and 13,000 girls fifteen years of age in the United States, and 1,000 boys and nearly 500 of them were married. Of those of eighteen, the married boys of sixteen numbered 2,213. Those of seventeen numbered 7,430, those of eighteen, 14,644. Girls who married between sixteen numbered 41,520, at seventeen, 89,930, and eighteen, 156,446. Many of these children left school for installed soldiers who have made a great mistake in their choice, quarrel, separate, get divorced and then one or both of the couples as well as homicides. Parents and teachers should endeavor earnestly to avoid emotional excesses, to meet wisely the ups and downs of child life.

"The inability to procure customary alcoholic drinks and narcotic drugs helped to swell the total of unnatural deaths. Take away the opium hands. Perhaps nothing has given more real sorrow and discomfort than the suicides of so many of our soldiers. Many of these unbalanced and disabled soldiers have found a way to 'relieve despair,' more than by the bullet, by the poisoned needle or cide. This league has given special attention to such cases, and is certain of having saved not a few from their unhappy fate."

Dr. Thomas W. Salmon says that the suicidal suicides are growing. The league has proved that people tempted to kill themselves by poisons and talk it over, and that in some cases they are saved. Others have heard much about our duty to society and country, but we have forgotten our duty to those at war. Every doors ended their lives for the lack of a helping hand from those passing through life's greatest crisis. We do not need investigators, but workers, are well known. Suicide causes fill our papers and society without attracting the slightest attention. We need instant action."

World's Deepest Mine.

Brazil now boast the deepest mine in the world, at St. John del Rey.

It has the deepest workings in know, says the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press, that country has attained a vertical depth of 6,726 feet, where the deepest workings in gold rock is 117 degrees Fahrenheit, necessitating a system of artificial cooling on a large scale.

This has proved successful, the skip-like series of shafts and levels by which the bottom stopes are reached has become so ventilated as to involve an excessive cost in cooling and ventilation.

A more direct entry, by means of a vertical shaft, is now being sunk.

The ore in the bottom workings shows no signs of a decrease in its content, so that the St. John del Rey Mining Co. and the Western Stales, was responsible for starting railroads in Massachusetts. In order to protect itself commercially, commercial and industrial Massachusetts felt obliged to do something to offset the advantages New York gained by the completion of the Erie canal, and for some time there was quite a sentiment for public ownership of railroads.

Saving Timothy For Seed

(Experimental Farms Note)

Tests made at the Experimental Station, Kentville, go to show that the best time to cut timothy for seed is when its own timothy seed. This may be done by sowing timothy at the rate of 10 pounds per acre on land plowed down. Or, 3 pounds of timothy, 6 pounds of red clover and 2 pounds of alsike per acre may be sown on land of clear timothy will be secured the second year after seeding. It is advisable to cut the crop for seed at a stage of timothy somewhere on a farm; such area should be reserved for that purpose. It does not seem a great loss of hay as the straw after threshing is of fair quality and can be profitably used for feeding. It was found that a seeding of timothy alone in 1920 gave in 1921 280 pounds of seed per acre and 2200 pounds of straw per acre after threshing. The harvesting was done August 4th, and the seed was ripe by that time and cured rapidly. This same area produced 787 pounds of seed and 3475 pounds of hay per acre. Such a considerable amount of other grasses particularly red top, was noticeable, as in the United States, the aggregate area seeded in 1920 with the other and timothy mixture mentioned above was 1,000,000 acres, and the total seed and 3052 pounds of timothy straw per acre in 1921. This seed yielded good quality seed in fairly much better than the seed from the area in timothy seed for two years. The chief point to be kept in the timothy that is to be cut for seed standing until it is nicely filled and the heads are ripe. If cut too early are stooked really and allowed to stand for two or three weeks, or until the heads are dry. It is then taken in and threshed in a threshing mill or with a flail. "It sometimes happens that a crop of seed is lost from shelling in which case the sheaves should be taken inside to a barn floor to dry out and until they can be threshed.

Superintendent, Experimental Station, Kentville, N.S.

Nothing Like It Says Mrs. Barbutt

Mimico Lady is Rapidly Improving and Gives All Credit to Dreco

Mrs. S. J. Garbutt, of 55 Robert street, Mimico, is another Toronto lady who has tried and proved the merit of Dreco as a health-builder. Mrs. Garbutt's daughter describes her Mother's symptoms and the remarkable effect Dreco has had on them, in the following statement:—

"Mother has suffered severely from rheumatism for quite some time, causing terrible pains in her joints. Her stomach too, was in a very poor condition. Her food soured, resulting in gas and finally she lost her appetite and could eat hardly anything without suffering afterwards.

"She always had a pain across her back from her kidneys and at times could hardly bend over. Her sight has become very weak and run-down.

"We tried everything possible, but our praise is all for Dreco, as it has done her more good in just a short time than anything else we have ever tried. The pains in her back and joints are almost gone. Her appetite is now very good, she is much stronger and looks better in every way. She thinks there is nothing like Dreco and we are all so glad to notice the change. Dreco has proved its worth to us and we highly recommend it."

Dreco will always prove helpful in such cases if given a fair trial. It corrects digestive ailments and builds up the system generally by the natural action of its herb, root, bark and leaf juices. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.

CHEVROLET MOTOR SALES INCREASING

An analysis of the motor car registrations for the Province of Ontario shows some very interesting facts regarding the remarkable growth of Chevrolet sales this year. For the first six months of 1923 Chevrolet sales have increased 76% over the same period in 1922 while the total increase of all car sales has been only 27%. This increase is over four times that of any other small car.

BRITISH TRADE IS HIT BY IMPASSE

London, Aug. 16.—The Board of Trade returns for July illustrate Premier Baldwin's contention that British trade is suffering from the effects of Europe, although the decline which it records is also due in some degree to the British dockers' strike.

July imports show a decrease of £12,500,000 ($87,500,000), as compared with June, and exports show a decline of £3,330,000 ($16,318,000).

LEASIDE BLANKED BY OSHAWA, 1 TO 0

Oshawa, Aug. 16.—Scoring the only run of the game in the tenth innings, Oshawa defeated Leaside here yesterday in what was probably the most sensational game of ball ever played on a local diamond. After nine and a half scoreless innings Oshawa "got a break" in their half of the ninth when Hoose of Leaside dropped a high fly just a few feet in front of the plate, allowing R. Fair to get to first and eventually score and win the first game series in the playoff for the Section "A" championship of the Central Ontario League.

Dainty of Oshawa and Brecken-bridge of Leaside were the opposing twirlers, The Leaside hurler held Oshawa to five hits. Dainty allowed but four hits in his route to victory and only one of the visitors reached third base. Leaside did not hit safely until the third, and their last safety came in the sixth.

One man was out in the tenth when R. Fair got to first on Keech's error of his infield fly. However, the next man up, proved to second. Roddick singled, scoring Fair at third, and then Walter Fair rapped a single over second, scoring Roddick. R. Fair and Keech the same. A record crowd attended the game.

GALT TERRIERS 'GET JUMP' ON GUELPH

Guelph, Ont., Aug. 16.—Galt Terriers, Ontario senior amateur baseball champions of 1922, got the jump on the Guelph Maple Leafs in the first of home and home games to decide the senior inter-County supremacy of 1923 here this afternoon, the Terries taking the long end of a 3 to 2 count that was allowed to double up till the last of the ninth inning.

SOFT BALL

The first postponement in the softball league, when neither the Grand Trunks nor the Shoemen put in an appearance, occurred last evening. Probably with so many attractions yesterday, there is some excuse, but this must not happen again, and teams will please be on deck at 6.30 sharp. Last night's game will be played at a later date.

The big game of the schedule takes place tonight when the Tiger Tire and Derby Club meet. Both teams are running neck and neck and a loss to either will be a great setback. Marsden has a nifty bunch of kids who will put up a scrappy battle. Coach Platt's veterans have been showing up well and will put up a great fight. It is bound to be the classic of the local soft-ball this season. Archie Leslie and "Bun" Frechette will umpire.

CUBS TRIM TIGERS 7-2.

A very exciting game took place on the Pine street school grounds. "Punk" Wanlaugh drove a home run to deep centre field. It was a three bit. After a very exciting game the Cubs proved to be the winners. The Cubs trimmed the Beavers once on their own diamond by a tune of 6-5, and once on the Cubs' diamond by a score of 2-0. The Cubs are now leading. They won 6 and lost 2. The Cubs have a snappy team and will give the Tennis a hard battle. The line-up for the Cubs was: W. Wardsuth, c.; N. Baker, p.; Brother Hosey, 1b.; J. Lapenter, 3b.; F. Sweet, ss.; A. Young, 2b.; J. Lupernet, rf.; George Cross, cf.; A. Maine, lf. Home runs, 1; 3-base hits, 3; men walked, 2; two-baggers, 2; three-baggers, 2.

THINKS GERMANY IS GOING DRY

U. S. Dry Agent Tells of New Liquor Restrictions There

Westerville, Ohio, Aug. 16.—Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, General Secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, who has just returned from a survey of European countries declares that he was convinced that Germany may become one of the first prohibition countries of Europe. Economic conditions are the main factor, he said.

Dr. Cherrington said the German Government proposed severe restrictions in a new license measure, introduced in June in Reichstag. According to him, local option is provided for in the proposed legislation, a two-thirds vote being required to change conditions in any community.

As another indication, he said, liquor-selling establishments, under recent laws, are not permitted to sell alcoholic drinks to persons under twenty years of age and cannot remain open after midnight. Another provision is that only beer and certain non-alcoholic beverages are permitted to be sold after 10 o'clock.

Dr. Cherrington asserted that temperance sentiment is making good progress in Continental country. Since the war, he said, 17,000 liquor places have closed in Italy. In every country, according to him, there is an organization more or less comparable to the Anti-Saloon League working for prohibition.

CHANGE PRISON VOTING

Geneva, Aug. 16.—Sing Sing's inmate government is no longer an unbridled democracy, but, it was learned today, a limited autocracy.

For a long time after the Mutual Welfare League was founded by Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden, the prisoners elected from among their number delegates to the inmate parliament and delegates appointed sergeant-at-arms, secretary and other cabinet officials.

But, according to a recent ruling, the prisoners must submit a list of candidates to the prison officials for their approval before they can seek the offices. If their conduct in prison is good, they can hold office, but disturbers are forbidden to occupy any offices.

Paris, Aug. 16.—The sports newspaper L'Auto announced yesterday it will organize a swimming race across the English channel next year. Contestants will start simultaneously from a line.

ARRESTS BY U.S. OFFICERS IN CANADA

NO GAMBLING IN LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Mr. R. C. Sidenius Says Properly Supervised - "Y" Billiard Rooms Not Harmful

DISCUSSES CHARGE

Murder Case at Hamilton Introduces Matter to Press and Public

Province-wide discussion has been aroused by reason of the allegation recently made, by the mother of George King, 19-year-old Hamilton boy, who murdered his sweetheart, Erie Johnson, that the youth was first led away by pool-playing in the Y.M.C.A. at Hamilton.

The Y.M.C.A. is investigating the charge and has already stated that if there is an objectionable influence brought to bear on a young man through the game as played at the "Y." Asked why the pool room is not closed to outsiders, one Hamilton official said "It would not be a paying proposition to exclude everyone but Association members."

Mr. R. C. Sidenius, General Secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. when seen by The Intelligencer last evening discussed the situation freely and fairly, and stated that if the billiard rooms in connection with Y.M. C.A.'s were operated as they should be operated, there would be no evil consequences to anyone who indulged in the game.

Of course there is a certain stigma on the word "pool" wherever it is played, as the makers of billiard and pool tables themselves realize. All manufacturing firms have now discontinued the use of the word "pool" in advertising the tables. They are now known either as pocket or carom billiard tables. The horror pool room has grown by reason of careful parents having fostered an abhorrence for that terrible "bucket shop" called "pool," in their sincere orthodox manner, and installed it into the minds of children for generations.

"In one way I am glad the criticism has been made," stated the local General Secretary, "For it has been a laxity in this connection in some Y's it will be a warning to them to be more careful although in all my years connection with various Y.M.C.A.'s I never yet caught anyone playing for money on pocket billiard tables."

Though adverse to the installation of billiard tables in Y.M.C.A.'s earlier in his Y.M.C.A. career, Mr. Sidenius is not so now, having failed to secure any evidence against their use, after a careful survey. .

In Belleville "Y" there are three pocket billiard tables and one American billiard table the billiard table the main floor, two pocket billiard tables in the basement near the bowling alleys and the third table upstairs in the Boys' Department.

In the Men's Department money games are strictly taboo and the understanding is that the cost of the game or game be borne equally by the players; so that no one man or boy is "stuck" for the game. Also the "Y" tables are NOT open to outsiders, although a guest of a resident member, for instance, may be allowed to play out of courtesy to the member. The laws in this connection cannot be too strictly enforced the Institution would certainly be due for unsavoury criticism.

The billiard and bowling department at the local "Y" is practically closed during the summer, but with the Autumn opening, time cards will be used and the names of the players kept on the back of the card. These departments are always under the supervision of Christian leaders and secretary.

Playing customers will be borne equally by the participants and by keeping the cards with the names on the back, it will be possible to determine just how much time a player devotes and how much money he spends in any given period. It is a rule that generally all games are paid in advance. If he is spending a good deal of money, he may be approached in a very friendly manner on the subject, and the officials reserve the right to what him

THRIFT TAKES PLACE BESIDE THREE R'S IN CURRICULUM OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF CHICAGO

Chicago, Aug. 17 (United Press).—Thrift has taken its place beside the three Rs.

When Chicago school children answer the first bell of the fall term on September 4 they will find a course in "How to Save" ranked in importance with reading, writing and arithmetic.

The course, which aims to be successful, allowing teachers to adapt it to their own methods, has been prepared by Peter A. Mortensen, superintendent of schools, after a series of conferences with local bankers.

"Save your pennies" will be drilled into the minds of all pupils from the first to the eighth grades. Pamphlets will serve as texts and will supplement discussions in class, while also being used in reading and arithmetic classes. During arithmetic periods, interest and wage problems will be worked out to show the result of thrift.

First grade pupils are to get their first lesson in thrift from reading "The Little Red Hen." Lessons in thrift will be drawn from the tale of the "Ant and the Grasshopper" for saving of children may be deposited the second graders.

By the time the pupil has reached the fourth grade he will be solving problems dealing with compound interest or stock and bond investments.

Proverbs and maxims, according to Superintendent Mortenson are important factors in impressing the young mind with ideas of saving. Some of the choice ones which the children will learn during the next school year are:

"Take care of your nickels and in time they will take care of you."

"Light purse, heavy heart."

"The penny spent never returns."

"An empty sack cannot stand upright."

"The Wrigley building was built by a man who sold gum."

"Economy makes happy homes and sound nations."

"A penny saved is a penny earned."

Bankers who are co-operating with the schools plan to open special windows in their institutions where deposits of children may be deposited.

Deluge of Hair Tonic Discovered in Chicago By Prohibition Agents

Chicago, Aug. 17.—A veritable lake of hair tonic, 2,412 cases—29,216 pints—sufficient to make Chicago the hairiest city in the world, and keep the barbers' union busy for many months, was seized here by Federal prohibition agents, who found it contained 82 per cent. alcohol, and carried a too-powerful "kick" for the bald pates. The stuff was held in three warehouses. It was made in New York.

"This is the most powerful hair tonic ever seized," said William Taussig, one of the Government operatives. "It is strong enough to grow hair on a door knob."

Loans to Veterans On Canadian Farms Over $100,000,000

Ottawa, Ont. (United Press) Aug. 17.—Loans aggregating more than $100,000,000 have been made to ex-soldiers of Canada in settling them on farms throughout the Dominion, according to Major John Barnett, chairman of the Soldiers Settlement Board, which has had charge of placing veterans on the land.

"Thirty thousand of them," said Major Barnett, "have so far been located on the land, representing a farm community of 130,000 people. Figures show that 65 per cent. of them are making good."

Tourists' Children Believed to Have Caused Fire Loss

King's Wharf, Aug. 17.—A disastrous fire took place on the farm of Mr. Thos. O'Neill, King's Wharf, Wednesday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, when a large barn and contents was destroyed. The cause of the fire is supposed to have been due to tourist children playing with matches, the children being boarders with their parents at the O'Neill farm.

The loss is a heavy one to the owner as the insurance was small.

Work on New Gas Unit Starts Soon

Expert Arrives From England to Supervise Work

Work on the new "assellation" unit to be installed in connection with the Belleville gas plant is expected to start on Monday next.

The actual installing of this new unit an increase in the output of gas will be one important feature, and it will also mean the manufacture of gas of a better quality, also a more uniform quality. The new unit will be attached to the present plant and will not require any new building.

The expense will not be of a serious nature and it is confidently expected that when the new unit is in operation more gas will be consumed and possibly users may have the advantage of cheaper and better gas.

H. E. W. Tully of Millgate, Newark-on-Trent, England, who is in the city, will supervise the work of installation. The material has arrived from the Old Country, where the plant with which Mr. Tully is connected is situated.

TRENTON YOUTH IS DROWNED AT DAM

Frank Keitel Accidentally Falls Into Raging Waters

A very and drowning accident occurred Wednesday night at Dam No. 1, which is situated just below the Grand Trunk, when Frank Gordon Keitel, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Keitel, Byron street, Trenton, lost his life. The exact manner in which the lad, who was last seen about 5.30 p.m., met his death, will probably always remain a mystery, but it is presumed that he got drenched while fishing or from some other cause fell off the dam into the rapids directly below. The boy was nearly 16, his birthday falling on December 1st and he was unusually tall for his age. He was unable to swim, but it is doubtful if any but an expert swimmer could have been able to extricate himself from the swirling waters, as there is a very strong current just below the falls. The body was recovered at an early hour on Thursday morning.

GASOLINE HERE NOT AFFECTED

Belleville Dealers Assert Present Prices Yield Them Little Profit

FREIGHT RATE HIGH

Car Dealers Would Welcome Lower Price—Local Gasoline From Oklahoma

Gasoline prices have not fallen on in Belleville as yet, so leading garage proprietors, and operators of service stations informed The Intelligencer this morning. The price of high test gasoline to the car owner in this city today, is 34 cents, and the cost per gallon of the ordinary gas is 31 cents.

Garage owners are as anxious for the prices to drop as the consuming public, and they state that the present price of gas is too high.

"We hope it drops to twenty cents," exclaimed one of Belleville's leading garage proprietors, "Then we will sell more cars."

The profit on gas is not large for the retailer, and scarcely pays for the handling. One dealer stated that on the whole year, when all overhead expenses were considered. That meant a profit of 1 cent per gallon, and it was not worth while handling it. The dealer explained. There is a considerable loss in gasoline by reason of evaporation. There being considerable evaporation in the filling of a service pump alone.

Almost all Belleville gasoline comes from Oklahoma direct to Toronto, and thereby saves an intervening tale. Tourists often complain at Belleville service stations about the gas being a cent per gallon more than at Toronto stations. The reason is this: All the gas is shipped to Toronto, and is then re-shipped to the towns and smaller cities. The retailer in those small cities and towns must be protected on freight rates, as a gallon of gas costs local dealers 2 cents more per gallon then it costs a Toronto vendor.

Gasoline prices throughout the city are practically the same, but some dealers are selling the low-grade gas at 30 cents per gallon, recommending the high test gas as the only

CURFEW BELL NODS IN ROTTING SPIRE, LOOKS BAD FOR LOWING HERD, SO VICAR APPEALS TO UNITED STATES

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Stoke Pecres, England, Aug. 17 (United Press).—Time threatens to destroy the antiquity of the most beautiful word picture in the English language.

The curfew which "tolled the knell of parting day" will soon inspire its last evening's meditation, unless the curfew bell's lugs, to which the curfew bell, is repaired against the ravages of old age.

"The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea," sang the poet.

But, unless money is forthcoming to stop their encroachments, lugubrious suburban home builders will mar that idyllic spot with stucco bungalows. The herd will become a shiny milk cart.

Stoke Pecres parish church was the scene of Gray's inspired "Elegy in a Country Churchyard."

After years of benign beauty this ancient symbol of English literature must crumble and disappear unless the Vicar's appeal for funds is answered.

The Vicar hopes there are persons in the world with enough love for "Auld Lang Syne" to assist in raising the entire $27,000 needed for the restoration of the country churchyard and its surrounding lea.

The Vicar will accept anything from a penny up as a contribution to his church. America has a stake in the spot. William Penn of Pennsylvania, was the son of a Stoke Pecres parish family. A son of Penn erected Pennsgrove in Gray and it stands in a little plot of three acres, which residents of the neighborhood presented to the church.

The Vicar is hoping to hear from America.

Tourists Not Wanted at Resorts in Germany as Foodstuffs Are Scarce

Berlin, Aug. 17.—American tourists and other foreigners in the mountain resorts of Thuringia are being advised to leave within three days due to the food shortage.

Some hotels are displaying signs announcing that they will not feed foreigners. The shortage has amplified the feeling against all foreign visitors as natives hold that these tourists are eating the food that Germany needs.

Officials in the Ruhr are threatening to strike due to low wages. They also demand that the Ruhr be supplied with foodstuffs.

One Man Holds Wilhelm Chained To His Island Home in Holland

Von Oldenburg Has Told the Former Crown Prince to Wait in the Interest of His Son

By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright in United States and Canada, 1923.)

CHAPTER I.

Berlin, Aug. 16.—The advice of one man is the sole thing that keeps former Crown Prince Wilhelm chained to his desert island off the Dutch coast, instead of returning to his homeland.

Not cowardice, as some say, not lack of affection for his fatherland or his family, nor the opposition of certain of his countrymen are containing him in his exile.

The man whose counsels keep him there is the 68-year-old head of Association in Oldenburg Elard von Oldenburg. This man, known even before the war in the Reichstag as the boss' ruler of the radical parties, has told Wilhelm to bide his time. Rather live a few years more in the pitiable isolation of Oesterland, on the isle of Wieringen, in the Zuiderzee, Oldenburg has told him, than seek now or some back to his wife, his children, his beautiful castle Cecilienhof, near Potsdam, to his home and his sports. Some Germans say the Crown Prince is a coward, but his friends who knew his daring in peace and in war say that is

THE TIME NOT YET.

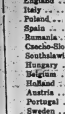

But Oldenburg, from his fine-known castle beyond the Elbe, has told the Crown Prince that he must let time run its course in his own home and in the interest of his 17-year-old son, who is living with the Crown Princess Cecilie in Potsdam.

And Oldenburg has made it clear to him a return now—it could not be hindered—would mean the unleashing of internal troubles which could lead to desperate consequences for the fatherland. Oldenburg is very sad by the young Crown Prince that study of the young Hohenzollern and the former officer corps would take his return as a signal for many ill-considered deeds, which, in turn, would be answered by communists attempts to proclaim a Bolshevik terror in Germany.

Oldenburg has been a friend of the Kaiser's family throughout his life. He is owner of a castle and a large estate in Cecilienhof and is one of the leaders in the monarchistic movement, which has its breeding ground among the Junker estates of East Prussia and Pomerania.

OBJECTED TO MARRIAGE.

Oldenburg is counted as one of the sharpest opponents of the ex-Kaiser's marriage to Princess Hermine, but the fact that he disliked the father's action only served to bind him closer to the

MUSTAPHA KEMAL

Kaiser's son. Even before the war, Oldenburg was in the position to counsel the Crown Prince and his weird influence—an influence surpassing even the ordinary influences of friendship—makes it possible for him to keep the youthful Hohenzollern patiently in exile.

Meantime while many monarchists wait for the return of the Crown Prince, others are setting their hopes in the prince's oldest son Wilhelm, a boy 17, who is being educated by his mother the former crown princess of Potsdam. His well-bred manner and other good qualities inherited from his mother make him as especially popular figure for many who want to see the Hohenzollern regime restored.

(END CHAPTER I)

MORE SHIPS NOW THAN BEFORE WAR

By F. M. EARL

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, Aug. 16 (United Press).—A marked increase in the world's total tonnage since June, 1914, is revealed by the latest edition of "Lloyd's Register," which shows how the world has made up for the ravages of war.

The total tonnage of sea-going iron and steel steamers and motor vessels owned by the principal maritime countries of the world in June, 1923, was 57,929,000 tons compared with 42,564,000 tons in June, 1914.

The largest contributor to this increase is the United States, with 10,570,000 tons; while Japan, 1,700,000; Italy, 1,330,000; France, 1,347,000, and Holland, 1,135,000 are next in order. Great Britain's share of the increase is almost negligible for a country with such a shipbuilding record, amounting to but 200,000 tons.

England Falling Off

The percentage of world shipping owned by Great Britain has fallen from 44½ per cent. in 1914 to 33 per cent., while the United States, in pre-war days, almost a negligible factor, has leaped into second place with 21.4 per cent. of the world's total (or 10,410,000 tons).

Despite prevailing economic conditions in Germany, that country has made remarkable strides since 1920. Germany's pre-war maritime fleet had a tonnage of 5,459,286 tons, but this has fallen to 672,681 tons in 1920. Today, however, the figure is given as 2,560,073 tons, indicative of the tremendous effort put forth by Germany to regain her old maritime prestige.

Among the interesting mass of information listed by Lloyd's the gradual supercession of coal by oil fuel is indicated. In 1914 68.34 per cent. of the world's shipping used exclusively on coal, but in 1923 the figure had dropped to 63.37 per cent. Oil fuel for boilers in the same period rose from 2.55 to 34.33 per cent., while oil, etc., for internal combustion engines rose from 0.43 to 2.56 per cent. Ships relying on sail-power only now number but 4.34 per cent. of the world's shipping, compared with 8.06 in 1914.

Great Britain still occupies pride of place for ship-construction, more than half the tonnage now building in the yards of the world being in British hands. America and Germany naturally have the most new tonnage, the United States figure being 37.3 and Germany's 32.6. It is noteworthy that of the world's shipping, only 12 per cent. consists of vessels, 25 years old—which may be considered almost ready for the shipbreaker—whereas 25 per cent of existing tonnage is less than five years old.

That the question of race suicide is being given a serious consideration in Germany is indicated by recent stories in the German press. France, as always, is busy attempting to solve this, her most difficult problem. Recently in Paris, according to press reports here, the National Union for Increase of the French Population was founded and offered a prize for the best essay on how France could increase her birthrate.

Vacation—Before and After Taking the Tin.

Beautiful countryside, sprinkled with dew—
Gleam of the ocean, surpassingly blue;
No more alarm clocks, no rush hour crowd,
Clatter of "L" or steam sirens shrieks loud.
No more of hurry and scurry and rush,
Harking of grunches of bosses no. more;
No smoke and cinders to cause you to cough,
Off for vacation—and glad to be off!
Cooling electric fans, stirring a breeze;
Sit in your home and take life at your ease;
No more mosquitoes to wake you at night . . .
(At least if your screens are sufficiently tight).
No more sick waitresses, food in the tin.
No more expenses (till next bills come in),
No sanitary shoulders, no beefsteaks burned black—
Back from vacation—and glad to be back!

HARD TO EXPLAIN

The little daughter of a popular preacher was complaining to her mother about her father's frequent absence from home.

"Other people have their daddies," she said, "but mine only seems to come home for clean collars."

OBSEQUIES

MISS MARY COLLING

On Wednesday afternoon the funeral of the late Miss Mary Colling took place and was attended by many relatives and friends. At the deceased's late home, 9 Cedar street, a brief service was held by Rev. A. L. Geen, also by the Eastern Star Society, of which deceased was a member. Mrs. Jas. Reid and Mrs. W. H. Nugent conducted the service. The body was then conveyed to Christ church where the pastor, Rev. C. E. Clarke, M.A., conducted the burial service of the Anglican church. Interment took place at Belleville cemetery. Floral tributes were many and beautiful in effect. Bearers were nephews of deceased, namely, Kenneth, Clen, Charles and Harley Colling, Fred and Charles Foster.

HOME REMEDIES OF OUR ANCESTORS.

Almost every man and woman in America can remember the botanic recipes of our mothers and grandmothers for the treatment of disease and they were wonderfully depicted also too. Every fall there were stored away in the attic thoroughwort, pennyroyal, catnip, sage, wormwood, rue, etc., for treating ills of the family during the winter months that followed. In 1873, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was first prepared from one of these botanic recipes, and the demand for it has never ceased to such an extent that hundreds of tons of roots and herbs are now used annually in its preparation. It has recently been proved that 98 out of every 100 women who try it have been benefited by its use which is a marvelous record for any medicine to hold.

FORT HOPE SKIRMISH.

Col. W. T. Sherman always said war was hell. Still keeping Sherman in mind, a Peterboro man, H. Donahue, recently told a Fort Hope "cop" to go to "war." The argument was over Donnie's failure to obey traffic rules. When he appeared in police court yesterday at Port Hope before Magistrate Campbell, the charge was changed to reckless driving, damage to autos, and Donnie was fined $50 and costs, when he pleaded guilty. Constable Cash has no idea of going to "war" either.

Miss Parker and Schuster are enjoying a vacation at Rev. Canon Armstrong's cottage on the lake shore near Consecon.

off" if he begins to spend too much money and time at the games.

In the Boys' Department, the members are not allowed to play any old hour of the day. There are set hours and the Boys' Secretary, supervises their play, merely by being present with the boys, and without any unnecessary "grinding down" methods. No boy under 14-years of age is allowed to play in the Boys' Department.

"Of course any organization is not perfect," truthfully stated the Secretary, "and another remarkable thing is that invariably when the boys become of age to play pool at the "Y" they already know all about how the game is played."

The Hamilton newspapers within the past few days have carried lengthy denials of the specific charge at Hamilton, said statement having been prepared by the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. there. The statement is a story of the good accomplishments of the "Y" by reason of its Christian influence, its interest in men and boys, the ideal conditions under which each department is handled, and other facts which are too well known to the public to mention.

The directors further state that the criticism has been made by some one who is either unfamiliar with "Y" work, or else has been misinformed possibly by someone who is prejudiced against the Y.M.C.A. as there are few people in every town and city who are so prejudiced.

The following letter has been received by the Hamilton Herald:—

Editor Herald,—I received copies of the Herald of August 9 and 10, and have read the case of George King. The statement of the boy's mother is correct in regard to the Y.M.C.A., for I myself went there at the request of his mother, whom I rounded with, for four years and took him away from the Y when he was playing pool (no money that belonged to his mother). The boy himself is not a criminal, but is mentally deranged. I was present at the time he tried to strangle himself. If he is examined by doctors, I am sure he will be sent to an asylum.

SIGNS AND THE TOURIST.

A contemporary suggests that "Business, villages and even large towns can double their business and confer a boon on travellers by putting up signs showing what their names are."

This is a moderate commission. Surely we are not presumptuous when we venture the assertion that in the remote day of the authorities of every municipal centre from the smallest hamlet to the greatest metropolis to erect such signs in conspicuous places along all thoroughfares entering the centre. This is nothing more than common courtesy and much more could be done without advancing beyond the province of courtesy. The speed limit, and the distances to other centres at least should be added.

It is to be desired to create a favorable impression upon the minds of tourists, motorists and other travellers the signs can be attractively designed and courteous legends expounding the centre. They should be displayed. It is imperative, however that the proper effect may be secured, that these signs be kept in good condition. Travelers, who, quite frequently, drive down any municipal street to reach a beaten objective, changing willy-nilly from its thoroughfare, are not likely to be favorably impressed. Although it may appear trivial, this is really important and still cannot be too vigorously advocated.

While it is, of course, not feasible to greet all travelers with a brass band and invitations to Rotary and Kiwanis luncheons, nevertheless, rudimentary courtesy and the amenities of the open road should be observed.

Localities desiring to advertise their beauties, business opportunities or other attractions can profit materially by such a practice advanced to a degree short of apparent ostentation.

Good business, if not common courtesy, would dictate that the idea be projected to include the designation of streets in large towns and cities. A system of neat, legible signs is at once attractive and convenient. The plan could be profitably adopted in Belleville. We have streets dimly but the system is not complete and some of the names are not legible. Perhaps, if the City Council is not in position to take care of the matter, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs will step into the breach.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT.

On the subject of civic improvements, the Kingston British Whig says:

"Improvement costs in all progressive communities are looked upon generally as gilt-edged investments.

"Sidewalks must be built. Municipal buildings must go up. Sewers, roadways, parks and municipal playgrounds to keep citizens physically fit are as necessary and as vital as the purchase of food is to the individual.

"Men and money are attached to cities that are growing. Few individuals casting about for a new place to live will choose a city that already is built.

These are obvious truths, but, as petty generally. In this connection parks, playgrounds and athletic fields are important. Evidences of contentment and prosperity care a city's most effectual form of advertisement. Keep the taxes down as low as possible, but do not hamper civic improvement with the resultant progress.

By The Side Of The Road

"Is the hot weather to blame for so many assault cases coming before the police court?" queries the Kingston British Whig, after citing numerous cases of persons being haled in to court as a result of encounters in which physical violence featured.

We have heard of persons becoming "crazy with the heat," but surely that doesn't happen in Kingston, people.

A story is being told at a Picton lady, who is a confirmed prohibitionist. She was discussing the evils of drinking with a male servant and was delighted to find that his views apparently co-incided with her own.

"No, I don't think it's right the way they drink homebrew in some of these here places," he agreed. "You know, they all crowd around and some fellow gits it all and some don't git any."

They are going to confine Eamon DeValera in the Mount Joy jail. That will create a decidedly incongruous situation if names have any significance. There's certainly no joy for a belligerent Irishman in being penned up.

The ruling of the U. S. judge that the deportation of wives in home selected by her husband won't spell anything to a good many wives. Their husbands can't provide homes.

An iconoclos is simply a person whose liver is out of order.

Fishermen at the summer resorts are making big catches. So are some of the young ladies at said resorts.

Now they say the Ontario Betting Act is "ultra vires." Knew they were doing it some, but really didn't expect a judge to come right out like that, you know.

An 80-year-old Saskatchewan man mer committed suicide because he was tired of life. Well, he gave it a fair trial, anyway.

Apropos of the above Latin term there is the story of the newly rich wife, who was taking her leave of a neighbor at the door.

"Au revoir," said the lady of the "400." Avoirdupois," replied the n. r. lady sweetly.

The Whig observes, there are those in every community who attempt to belittle each improvement as it comes up for public approval and lament the costs, overlooking the advantages.

It is reasonable to expect that those, in whom is vested the power to administer the affairs of a community, will avoid extravagant and unnecessary expenditure. However, the pruning knife should not be applied to such an extent as to hinder progress. Communities, cities especially, do not remain stationary in the matter of development and progress; they either forge ahead or retrograde.

Increased population demands further civic improvement; civic improvement invites increase in population. The two are interdependent and, once this mutual movement is inaugurated, material progress is assured. Streets and sewer systems that were adequate ten years ago do not meet the requirements of today in cities that are not losing step with the world. Schools, hospitals and other public buildings soon grow too small. Prompt recognition of this fact and prompt action to remedy the situation, if commonsense dictates the plans, cannot be justly condemned or criticised, since the growth consistent with the proposed improvements is already attained and additional progress will be added profit on the investment.

Progressive people and capital are attracted to progressive cities. It has been amply proven that improvement programmes, even closely approaching extravagance, have been vindicated by results. Well built and well kept streets, adequate sewer systems, pure water supplies, commodious and modern school buildings attract prospective residents and investors. But the fact should not be overlooked that these improvements serve to stimulate the activities of the citizenry and the business enterprises already established in the community, that they nourish civic pride and make for contentment and prosperity generally. PRESS OPINIONS

SLOPPING OVER EVILDOERS.

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

The Toronto Star is fairly slopping over with maudlin sentiment on behalf of the jealous and brutal murderer of young Eva Johnson in Hamilton. The other day it published three photos of the murderer in various stages of his career with the dramatic caption:—"Curly-headed baby who went wrong." One picture shows a very pesky curly-headed child, a second depicts a youth in athletic suit, while the third portrays a young man of very pleasing appearance with a pipe in his mouth.

None of these suggests the criminal in any way. They are pictures of normal babyhood and youth, but the evident object of the Star is to arouse sympathy for a calloused man who shot and killed an innocent young girl just on the threshold of life. An interview with the mother is stirred with telling pathos and the toy responded as a mere tool in the hands of wicked associates.

This is all very well. There is no one who does not sympathize with the innocent sharers of a man's misdeeds. The most fallen of women may suffer perhaps far more than the criminals themselves. No mother expects her boy to grow up wicked, nor he does it is the undying mother-love that stands by him through thick and thin. But while the Star draws a vast amount of sympathy for the heartbroken parent it should not be used as a means to gain sympathy for the son.

There is always a certain class of hysterical sympathy that promptly goes forth to the criminal. Evidences of such misplaced condolence is shown in the flowers, candies, letters and favors of many kinds that find their way to the prison cell.

Mercy is all well in its place. "It is an attribute of God himself," as Portia quoted in the famous trial scene. But justice should exercise mercy. No man should be allowed to feel that he can take life with impunity, finch a belief would turn the world topsy-turvy in short order.

COMPLEXITY OF WOMAN.

(Washington Post)

So it will be with the present craze for artificial complexions. Preachers, scientists, even editors, may condemn it, but, despite them all, it will run its alloted course. Then presto! It will disappear on a sudden, as some new vagaly becomes the vogue, and no woman will appear in public with a painted face unless some hopeless case like "the Serpent of old Nile" in "Dombey and Son." Until that psychological moment arrives the medical editor is merely beating the air in his attempts at a general reformation.

GOOD OF THE CHILD.

(Philadelphia Ledger)

Child welfare is a many-sided subject, revolving on a single pivotal point—the good of the child. Usually it is the good of the poor child. The best the welfare workers may hope to do is to help that child to clean, healthy, honest manhood or womanhood. That, to be sure, is a tremendous best; and most institutions and most welfare agencies are found to fall short of it. But it is a mark to be shot at; and the more shafts that can be made to hit the butt, whether or not they cleave the bullseye, the better for the community.

ARMS AND THE MAN.

(St. Catharines Standard)

What's the use of arming police-men or bank messengers with revolvers if, when they shoot, they can't hit the broadside of a barn? Seems they never shot at anything previously? A revolver is really a jumpy weapon, unless the hand which presses the trigger is trained, as any man will attest who has learned the intricacies of good marksmanship.

PROSPECTS FOR C. N. R.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

What enables greater confidence to be placed in the prospect of better returns from the National railways is the much more satisfactory condition in which the United States railroads now find themselves. The remarkable manner in which Canadian exports are being maintained, and the manner in which new foreign markets are now being sought, renders it not unfairly optimistic to look for conditions here corresponding to those expected south of the border.

PAYING FOR IT

"A piece of beef for roasting," he ordered briskly.

The meat was thrown on the scales.

"Look here," remonstrated the man, "you're giving me a big piece of bone."

"Oh, no, I'm not," said the butcher, blandly; "you're paying for it."

MAKING UP FOR IT

Pretty Girl (who has been taken to church and had displayed more than usual interest in the sermon, in which the origin of Eve had been dwelt on at some length.

On his return from service, there being guests at dinner, he had also displayed a good deal of interest in the cabbage, especially the pig and cakes.

Some time afterward, being missed, he was found sitting quietly in a corner with his hands pressed tightly over his ears and expression of awful anxiety on his face.

"Why, what on earth, is the matter?" asked his mother in alarm.

"Momma, I'm afraid I'm going to have a wife," little Johnnie replied.

Why are motor cyclists always in such a hurry, and what do they do with the time they have? asks the Nashville Tennessean.

It might pay the dramatic producers to buy up German marks for use as stage money.

FREQUENTLY.

"I'm sorry to hear of your husband's death. Did he leave you much?" "Nearly every night."

LONG WEARING.

Husband—I see they're wearing gowns longer this year.

Wife—Well, if they wear them any longer than I do, they'll have to make light of your line.

QUITE PUT-OUT

Wife—You used to say I was the 'em out of sheet iron.

Hubby—Yes, but I didn't suppose you were going to get put out at every little thing.

CANNING WITH FARRELL

RUTH A. L.'S MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (United Press) — Babe Ruth got such a bad deal this year from pitchers, who refused to give him something good to cut at, that he was deprived of the chance to establish a new home-run record.

No one contends that pitchers should lay them in the Babe's groove for the mere purpose of letting him kill the ball, but it is maintained that something should be done to place restrictions on the intentional pass.

Several years ago, when the fans, who paid money to see the Babe crash out, complained that the opposing pitchers were not giving him a chance to do this, the law-makers of the game sought means to curb the abuse of the intentional pass, but as yet they have tried has been successful.

In a tight game it is but the part of managerial strategy to let a dangerous batter go down and the practice of passing a heavy hitter in a pinch was in vogue long before the Babe came into prominence. It has become a custom, however, since Ruth started to change his style of play in the big leagues.

Lee Fohl, lost his job as manager of the Cleveland Indians because he permitted a pitcher to pitch to Ruth in a pinch several years ago, and some other managerial heads might be cut off if the same thing were done, now with a lot at stake on one game, but when a team is hopelessly beaten, it is not strategy to pass the Babe when even a clout for the four bases would not have a vital effect on the game.

Pitchers, when there is not too much at stake, should try to get the Babe, instead of taking the easy way out of it and giving him a pass. Many pitchers, no doubt, would like to do it. It doesn't make a game to-gether feel very courageous to admit his inferiority by letting him go down on four wide ones, but most of them have to do what the bench dictates.

Ruth has leaned enough to live on, and instead of decreasing his value as a player and a drawing-card, the practice of making it hard for him has only served to make the Babe bigger than ever and a better ball player than he ever was.

The Babe changed his style this season, with the result that he has a fine chance to lead the American League in batting. He still tries to knock homers, but only on the first two strikes. When he gets two on him he chokes his bat and tries for just a common, ordinary hit, and he has become very successful at it.

Figuring that he still has two out of three chances to do his stuff every time he is at the bat, his new system is sound, practically and mathematically.

Ruth is most sincere in his ambition to become the batting champion of the league. He has always taken as much pride in his ability as an all-around player as he has in the glory that attended him as the greatest distance hitter of all times. He always resented the inference that as soon as his home-run hitting slump-ed he would be through.

Fielding splendidly, hitting so well that he may finish the season as the champion batter and home-run hitter, running the bases with the best of them, and playing baseball like it is the only thing in his life, Ruth has assumed the role this season as the greatest and most valuable player in baseball.

With Sisler out o fthe game, his position at the top of all of them in the American League cannot be questioned and there are no players in the National League who can do so many things as well as the Babe can.

Last winter, at the well-remembered dinner for the sport writers when Senator Jimmy Walker reminded him of the duty he had toward the "dirty-faced kids in the street," Ruth promised that he would devote the off-season to training and that the 1923 season would find him in condition to play ball and that he would confine all his attentions on and off the diamond to baseball.

His resolution, in view of his conduct in the past, was accepted by baseball in general with the attitude: "We shall wait and see."

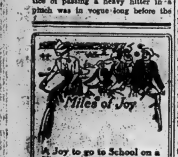

Ruth lived up to his promise. He is living cleanly and he is saving his money. After learning how much it benefited him to keep his promise this season, there is little doubt that Ruth will have to take a resolution this winter to be good.

He has a new contract to talk over this winter and, since his reformation was such a vital factor in bringing the whole Yankee ball team around to such a fine game this season, there is little doubt that Col. Jake Ruppert will be in a mood to listen and agree if the Babe should ask for a raise.

Ruth, playing as he has been this season, is worth every cent of his $50,000 contract. By his example, his spirit and his work on the field he has done more than anyone else to make the Yanks a runaway in the American League this year and add a world's series in the immense new Yankee Stadium will be worth twice as many to his club.

Baseball owes Babe Ruth a debt it can never pay. If he did nothing else, he practically saved baseball when it was on the rocks, after the 1919 scandal.

And here were no Ruth feats of batting the following year to talk about the fans might have been talking about something else.

A Joy to go to School on a Bicycle.

LEASIDE PROTESTS GAME AT OSHAWA

Former Victorious by Score of 12 to 5

Oshawa, Aug. 17.—The Leaside team have filed a protest with the Secretary of the Central Ontario League on the game played here Wednesday, when Oshawa won by 1 to 0 in ten innings. The disputed play occurred in the fifth inning, with two Leaside men on and Mahoney on third. Mahoney attempted to steal home, and was caught a short distance from the plate. Leaside claim that Tyson, the local catcher, stepped in front of the plate to receive a ball which was delivered to the batter, and was therefore guilty of interference. On the other hand, Dainty, Oshawa's twirler, declares that he was not in the box, and therefore not in a position to deliver the ball to the batter. The umpire who gave the decision behind the plate declared the runner out.

The protest will be heard by the Protest Committee at an early date. The return Oshawa-Leaside game scheduled for Saturday has been transferred from Leaside to Oshawa. It will be a part of a doubleheader, the other game being an exhibition lacrosse fixture between the local Shamrocks and the touring Oxford-Cambridge team.

Walker To Try Channel Swim

Cleveland, O., Aug. 17.—Carbis A. Walker, Central Y. M. C. A. swimmer, who two weeks ago conquered Lake Erie by a thirty-three mile swim from Point Pelee, Canada, to Lorain, Ohio, will attempt to shatter all existing records for the English Channel swim the first week in September.

Walker was in Washington today, having his passport vised. He will sail on Saturday on the Leviathan. Walker's headquarters will be in Dover. After a week's training he will attempt the swim from the British side, heading for Point Grisnez, in France. According to H. S. Uhlan, his trainer, Walker will go after the record of Enrique Tiraboschi, Argentinian, who negotiated the Channel swim in sixteen hours, 21 minutes.

The Cleveland swimmer, a will use the trudgeon crawl stroke through-out. This is the same stroke he used in his lake swim. He is supremely confident of success.

Walker is backed by H. A. Stahl, Cleveland realtor, who, with associates, W. L. Douglas, W. M. Morris and W. T. Whitmore have advanced the $900 necessary for expenses.

Naval Officer, Out of a Job, Starts a Bar

By CLARENCE DUBOSE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Tokyo, Aug. 16.—The Washington Conference has added another bar to Tokyo's Great Wet Way.

A good many Japanese naval officers have found themselves out of a job as a result of naval reduction. Among the lot left high and dry was a young lieutenant, who had learned a lot of things in the navy besides the operation of ships and guns. It seems that as he journeyed up and down and around the globe he specialized, as a sort of side-line, on the intricate art of mixing cocktails, learning in each land visited all the lore he had about the gentle art of cocktail compounding.

So, when the Washington Conference smiled that navy job, he simply hired himself a cozy little place in the heart of the downtown district and began to concentrate on all that he had learned about cocktails up and down the South Seas.

The sign out front of this place reads "American-Style Bar." He is insistent upon being recognized as a gentleman amateur and not a professional in the cocktail industry.

His invitation to patrons reads: "I have been in all climes and places throughout the world, where I have picked up the art of mixing cocktails of all varieties, kinds and colors. There is no cocktail unknown to me, and I can invent many. I can satisfy the most discriminating taste in liquor."

An American read that, walked in and asked for a Volstead cocktail. The amateur bartender, without batting an eye, shook him up a bunch of plain water and charged the usual price.

DERBY CLUB WINS OVER TIGER TIRES

The Derby Club and the Tiger Tire teams furnished some real baseball for the fans in the sod-ball league at the High school grounds last night. After seven innings had been played Maracle found work on the long end of a 12-5 score. The youngsters got to Hay's offerings in the first innings for eight runs. After this it was a real good game with sparkling baseball aplenty. Weighmaking for the Derbymen, has a pretty, under-arm delivery with plenty of speed, although his control is rather wild at times. Lankford, his battery mate, is a hard-working catcher and tries hard. Symons on first base for the Kids played down several high foul balls in grand style. Post and Wardaugh were in the limelight through their batting features. Cook and Hunter also figured in nice games. Wardaugh, Weir, Dennis and Cornell led in the hitting. The kids have plenty of pep and appear to be headed for the cup donated by Mr. H. A. Fish. A fair crowd of fans enjoyed the baseball served up.

Batteries:—Tiger Tire—Langdon and Knott, the Tiger Tire's two pitchers, have secured positions in another city and the veterans were somewhat handicapped in this respect. They still have a good chance, should see of the other teams from the Derbyites.

Another League struggle behind the bat, "Stub" Barrett on first and L. Cook at third. S. Curry acted as official scorer. A large attendance was realized, which goes to defray the expenses of the league.

Black Cats And Ball Players

"There is not a bit of superstition among the local baseball team," piped the Kingston Standard, but two strange things happened recently. When the team came out of the hotel on the way to the grounds Harry Bateson discovered that he had put on stocking on his right foot inside out. "That is a good luck sign," he said. On the way to the grounds a black cat crossed the road in front of the leading auto. "Another good sign," said one of the players." Some time after with a white stripe down its back may cross the road in front of their auto and the chances are that will be bad luck, adds the Port Hope Guide.

Canning Directions

VEGETABLES (IN DETAIL)

POTATOES.—Condition—Dig on a fine day and let lie on the ground for a few hours; they will be in ideal condition. Brought into the cellar in a wet condition, the keeping quality will be impaired, and often sprouting sets in rendering results from the same cause.

2. Darkness—Store in a dark part of the room. Light advisably affects quality.

3. Temperature—The ideal temperature is from 33 to 35 degrees F.

4.—Ventilation—Place the potatoes on the tiled floor and against the wall or on which you tacked the slats. Large piles of potatoes should have upright ventilating shafts, say four, made three by 8 inches—inch boards together in form of V-shaped trough.

5. Sorting—Occasionally, for decayed tubers. In the spring break off all sprouts except from those reserved for seed.

CABBAGE—Pack or complete outside storage for cabbage is the most successful way. They should not be brought into a warm, cellar in the early autumn.

Method—Place in piles in the garden and cover with dry leaves. Early in the winter pile in and plant in the bins, or on shelves. Sometimes they will keep well if tied in bunches of three and suspended from the ceiling. Another method is to stack soil cover with a larger quantity of leaves. Keep in this way until needed, when the pitting method is also successful.

CELERY—Celery may be kept outside in trenches or inside in boxes with the roots well covered with soil. When kept inside it is important to keep the roots moist and the leaves dry. If the foliage is wilted it accounts to disease. Take up before it is injured by frost. Leave the roots on and place upright in shallow boxes containing several inches of moist sand. 3. Inspection—Inspect tubers frequently about the depth of the celery and a foot to sixteen inches wide. The trenches should be made on a side hill or a well-drained spot. Stand the plants upright in the trench and leave until the leaves are touched by the early frost. This will reduce their moisture content. Then cover with leaves. Leave one end of the trench open in order to get at the celery as it is required for use. When brought into the house place in cold water for a few days and then pack in soil when freshen and blanch.

BEETS, TURNIPS, CARROTS, SALSIFY and PARSNIPS—These roots may be stored similar to potatoes. They may be kept, however, in better condition in a covering with sand. Conditions of the place of storage and of the roots themselves should determine whether to use the sand dry or slightly moist. If they start to shrink, moisten the sand. When tubers are stored a little damp and should be placed in the bottom of the boxes, then alternate layers of vegetables and sand. When piled on the floor a covering of sand is generall sufficient. In drying beets the tops should be twisted off and not cut with a knife, as this will cause "bleeding." loss of color and very often decay.

ONIONS—Store in the attic. They should be dry and thoroughly well cured before they are placed in bags for storage. Dampness causes decay. They will keep well in slat boxes or shallow trays.

SQUASH, PUMPKIN—These are more difficult to store. They require a slightly warmer temperature. Placed in barrels or boxes and packed in straw or sawdust and in a part of the cellar next to the furnace they may keep for some time. They should be carefully handled as to avoid bruising. Set over frequently for spoiled ones. Others may be placed in the attic as a temperature of about 50 degree is better for them.

TOMATOES—One of the best and most convenient methods of ripening tomatoes in the late autumn is to wrap each fruit in paper and place in a closed box or drawer located in a warm room. Another method is to pull the vine before any signs of injury from frost and suspend from the ceiling in a warm room or the cellar. In some cases, if conditions are suitable, the fruit will go on ripening until Christmas. A dark place is preferable and a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees suitable.

4.—Don't forget to watch your storage rooms and sort out any decayed specimens before the trouble spreads.

Don't forget that a cheap thermometer is a good friend in a storage room as it is impossible to provide a special storage place, as suggested, unless that part of the cellar farthest removed from the furnace and where the greatest amount of air circulation takes place.

FACTORS IN SUCCESSFUL CELLAR STORAGE.

Temperature—The ideal temperature is one ranging from 33 to 40 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature which drops a few degrees lower will seldom injure the stored crops. Potatoes which are stored where rapid changes in temperature are not possible. If the temperature is allowed to fall at night and 40 degree in the day, for example, more injury will result than if it drops to 32 and remains at that for a few days and then gradually rises through several more days to the right temperature.

Humidity—Humidity is the second important factor in successful storage. The less moisture there is in the air the stored products will dry out. This results in a serious deterioration and shrinkage. The air should be slightly moist. Under a special partition it is difficult to keep the air of the ordinary city cellar, containing a furnace, moist enough. Moulds are due to excessive dampness. Better ventilation will reduce the dampness. Rapid changes of temperature also produce damp conditions.

Sand, Soil, Etc., for Covering—Many of the roots, like carrots and beets, will keep better in cellar storage if covered with sand or dry soil. Building paper is ideal. In some cases it is better to have it slightly moist (not wet). If the cellar is very dry, and not too hot, and the roots are stored on a cement floor, it may be found necessary to moisten it occasionally. On earth floors which give off some moisture this would be less necessary. If the earth floor is very damp a slatted floor about two inches from the earth should be provided.

Ventilation—Good ventilation, as suggested, is extremely important, and every means should be adopted to prevent the circulation of the cellar air in and around or amongst the stored crops. The large losses which occur every year from insufficient ventilation, especially of the potato crop, are very serious. Even in moderate quantities the saving in the produce would more than offset the cost of installing a very simple ventilation system. This can be provided by means of upright, square troughs placed in the heaps, or by nailing slats to the walls so that the air can circulate around the heaps. When root crops are stored in boxes, they should be of the crate type, with one between the slats to allow a circulation of air.

PITTING OUTSIDE.

Pitting the roots in specially constructed, but very simply made pits in the field or garden is also successful, and where large quantities of potatoes have been grown it may be used as a useful method of storage for the small householder. It is a method which can be used for surplus produce.

The method is as follows: Select a well-drained spot in the garden and fill in sandy or gravelly soil. Mark off an area five feet wide and any desired length. Dig out the soil from this to a depth of about 8 inches, placing it well back from the edge of the space. In this shallow trench place a layer of straw and on this pack the roots so that they will come to a neat pile about 4 feet high. Different kinds of vegetables may be placed in the same pit, if necessary, but should be separated by a thin partition of straw. Cover the pile with several inches of coarse straw and then on the top form a V-shaped trough, which should protrude from each end of the pit to provide ventilation, then cover the whole heap with about three inches of loose earth. Later on in the fall, about the end of November, either add another covering of straw and another covering of earth, or increase the covering of earth to about 8 inches, or even 10 inches. It may be advisable, in exposed place, to give a third covering of straw and earth. Alternate layers of straw and earth provide better insulation than the solid earth covering.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"I say, what is your name?"

"Martha," said the woman, as if resenting an impertinence.

"Your other name. I see you are a married woman."

He pointed to the thin ring on her finger.

"Oh yes, I'm married," said the woman, bitterly, "worse luck."

"You have no children, I suppose?"

"I do."

"I am sorry, for that."

"Sorry I'm not. What should I have children for? To pine, while their slack of a father is idling about town and talking?"

"They would have been a comfort to you, may be," said the vicar, quietly.

"I hope your husband does not drink?"

"Drink?" said the woman, with a harsh laugh. "Yes, I—almost sent him mad did I not drink with him—talking!"

"Is he a workman—at the foundry?"

"Sometimes, but Mr. Dicky Daisy's turned him off again, and now he's doing nowt."

"Never mind, don't be downhearted. There must, when they come to 'the worst.'"

"No, they don't," said the woman, sharply. "If they did they'd have mend ed for me."

"Well, well," said the vicar, "we will talk about that another time;" and he took the two pieces of slag from his pocket, and placed them on the table before the little study, where they were now standing.

"Have you taken these home?" said the woman.

"Yes," said the vicar, smiling.

"Then you're a fool," said the woman, "to take strangers here."

"So it seems," said the vicar. "But you did not tell me your name, Mrs. Slee."

"Slee, they call me, Slee," was the sharp reply.

"Well, Mrs. Slee," said the vicar, "I have had a good long walk, and I'm very hungry. Before you the money will you get me something to eat while I go down the town and order a few things for this little room and the bedroom above?"

"Why, to be sure," said the woman. "You're never coming into the place that how?"

"Indeed, Mrs. Slee, but I am. There's half a sovereign; go and do the best you can."

"But the place ought to be clean before you come in."

"Oh, we'll get that done to-degrees. You will see about something for me to eat. I shall be back in an hour. But tell me first, if I went to get into the church who has the key?"

"Mr. Budd—Mrs. Slee pronounced it Bood—"has 'em; he's churchwarden, and lives over yonder."

"What, in that little old-fashioned house?"

"Nay, nay, man, that's the 'owd vicarage. Next house."

"Oh," said the vicar, looking curiously at the little, old-fashioned, thatch-roofed place. "And who lives there?"

"Owd Isaac Budd."

"Another Mr. Budd; and who is he?"

"Th' other one's brother."

"Then I shall find the clerk—what is his name?" said the vicar.

"Oh, Jacky Budd," said Mrs. Slee. "He lives down south road."

"I'm afraid I shall get confused with so many Budds," said the vicar, smiling. "But let the Mr. Budd who leads the singing?"

"Oh, no, that's Mr. Ned Budd, who lives down there. He's nowt else do wi' Jacky."

"Well, I'll leave that now," said the vicar. "But I want some one to fetch a portmanteau from Churley. How am I to get it here?"

"Mrs. Budd will fetch it."

"And who is she?"

"The landlord's corpse carrier."

"Good; and where shall I find her?"

"Over at Tol Budd's yard—the Black Horse."

"Budd again," said the vicar. "Is everybody here named Budd?"

"Well, no," said the woman, "not very body, but there's a strange sight of 'em all over the town, and they're most all on 'em cousins or sum'at. But there, I must get to work."

The woman seemed galvanized into fresh life by the duties she saw before her, and almost before the strange visitor had done speaking she was putting on a print hood, and preparing to start.

"It will make a very comfortable place when I have got it in order," said the vicar to himself, as he passed down the front walk. "Now to find some chairs and tables."

This was no very difficult task, especially as the furniture dealer received a couple of crisp bank-notes on account. In fact, one hand-truck full of necessaries was dispatched before the vicar left the shop and made up his mind to see a little more of the place before returning to his future home.

Perhaps he would have been acting more wisely if he had sent in a load of furniture and announcements of his coming, with orders for the place to be put in readiness; but the Reverend Murray Selwood was eccentric, and knowing that he had an uncouth set of people to deal with, he made up his mind to associate himself with them in every way, so as to become quickly identified with the people, and become one of them as soon as possible.

His way led him round by the great works of the town—Glaire's Bell Foundry—and as he came nearer, a loud hum of voices increased to a roar, that to him, a stranger, seemed too great for the ordinary transaction of business and so it proved.

On all sides, as he went on, he saw heads protruded from doors and windows, and an appearance of excitement, thought he seemed in his own person to transfer a good deal of the public attention to himself.

With Sensation Comes to Mankind In Three Stages.

To every one whose lot it is to finding the average and to experience the average train of life, there are three stages of fear," says a writer in Scribner's Magazine.

"First is the fear of childhood: of the bogey man, of darkness, of mere loneliness. It is the time when mother is the only solace. It is the time when the shaggy dog and the bear-looking man send terror through our hearts. It is all imaginative, but it is real. And second is the fear of youth. To many this fear is not to the last degree of life the same. The third fear of life is the fear of old age. It is by far the business man to be business. It is the fear of a man not to have accomplished enough.

"It is a more mature fear, a fear of more wealth, work, but it is not, not dig-no more sincere nor one to be more worthy than the fear of childhood or of youth. And now let me tell you of the fear of youth, and the fear under which I and all others live at 40. The fear of youth is just the fear of childhood with added material and spiritual needs; it has not yet reached the fear of age.

"The fear of nineteen is the fear that forever will consider him a boy; nineteen; the fear that acquaintances will consider him the son of Livingstone's and the others' pens. The fear of being considered still only a 'kid.' Nineteen wishes to be considered a man with a responsibility. He dislikes to be babied; he likes to be thought handsome; he likes to be considered a man of the world, and most of all sophisticated. He likes to be thought blase. He is self-centered of the Kaiser's sort of the world. He is the fear of not succeeding in business life, to become a Napoleon, a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

"Then is the fear of youth. It is the fear that upon the shoulders rests the fears of younger and older brothers, the heart-rending fears and fears of the others, and means as much as a man's happiness as all of them together."

President Tyler's Love-Affairs.

John Tyler, tenth president of the United States, was married twice, in each case it was a marriage of affection. Only wife was a beautiful Christian daughter of Robert Christian of the best known family in Virginia. It might almost be called a boy and girl affair, for Julia Christian and Tyler lived happily together for 29 years. Only child of this wife was President was Julia Gardiner. She married the president while he was in office, and after his death went to Richmond, where she spent the remainder of her life.

Most Americans—especially him in the White House—think of Tyler as one of the prosaic, matter-of-fact presidents of the United States. But in the words of Miss Christian "he possessed an ardent temperament—the temperament of a love-sick boy," and romantic young man.

Comparatively New Game.

The history of the game of rackets, the world's championship for which was recently disputed in New York, is comparatively short one. It is only came into vogue early in the nineteenth century. Dickens in "Nicholas Nickleby" in his "Pickwick Papers" in connection with Fleet prison, where debtors were confined, gives a description of their life by playing rackets in a shed. It was also referred to at the back of taverns.

Downfall of the Drama.

An old actor was wont to claim that he had never been married and starred, a distinction that got him considerable attention wherever Thespians gathered. Oldest Account of Fall of Man

Dr. Edward Chiera, assistant professor of Assyriology of the University of Pennsylvania, has deciphered a cuneiform clay tablet of about 2100 B.C. which contained an account of the fall of man parallelling the well known story in the book of Genesis.

The account is in the form of a dialogue between a man and a god. It recounts how Ishtar, after in obedience to a forbidden food, to the disobedience of man, to man's unlawful attainment of knowledge, to his being driven from a Garden and compelled to labor. His adoption of clothing as a result of knowledge is also indicated.

The god—when Babylonian god is not indicated—drives man away in self-defence rather than as a punishment. Man is accused of aspiring to a place with the gods, a theme which has been common to other Babylonian literature. The moral consideration is subsequent to the fall. Babylonian legend, man's position being like that of Prometheus, a criminal in the eyes of a god, but a patriot from the point of view of man.

"The date of this tablet is about 2100 or 2100 B.C.," said Dr. Chiera. "The writing of the Hebrew account of the fall of man is similar with the Ishottite, at some later date than 1000 B.C." The tablet is in the Sumerian language, and forerunning Babylonian, and the writing is similar to that of the tablets found at Nippur, now in the possession of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, and numbering several hundred tablets.

According to the Assyriologist, the ancient Babylonian story was separated from the story of the Hebrews, and adjusted to fit their monotheistic system. He puts forward a long series of arguments to prove that the cuneiform account is the original Babylonian, and that, while the Hebrews modified it, they retained many features of the old legend which are inconsistent with the Hebrew theology.

In his argument for the priority of the Babylonian account over that of the Hebrew, Dr. Chiera says—

"The first point of difference in Genesis from what we would expect to find in a Babylonian account is that Hebrews is the fact that they place the scene of the fall in a garden, supposed an agricultural state. We would expect to find a more nomadic Yahweh, or Jehovah, did not dwell in a garden, but, as a god of a nomadic people, he dwelt on the mount of Sinai. Therefore the placing of the fall in Genesis in a garden shows that we are to regard the story of Hebrew origin.

"The Hebrew prophets are constantly battling against the syncretistic element of an agricultural colony, and they seek to deal with it by going back to the primitive simplicity of nomadic life, they should we imagine that they would fix the beginning of the race at a place where they did not want their people to be later on.

"The Sumerian text just deciphered is the oldest account of the fall of man. Subsequent references in it have been found in clay documents of the same age, but nothing whatever is related to the fall has been found of an ancient a date.

The Hebrews, in the opinion of Dr. Chiera, regarded the story not during the captivity, but some time before that. By this he does not he says, the Sumerian story had probably reached the consciousness of the Semitic-Babylon language, which replaced the Sumerian as the language of diplomatic documents in Egypt of a date shortly before 1000 B.C., indicates that Sumerian and Babylonian were the diplomatic language then prevailing, and as the most international message by the Babylonians, Egyptians, Hittites, Assyrians and Syrians in Palestine was the cross-roads between Egypt and Babylonia, the great centres of early civilization.

The Hebrews on the Babylon could easily master the Babylonian-Semitic language which was spoken in the land of their own, and drew largely on it for their culture and for the illustration of their religion, according to Dr. Chiera.

The Babylonian tablets of the University of Pennsylvania are the fruit of four expeditions to Nippur, the first of which was made more than thirty years ago. To date only about ten per cent. of them have been translated.

In the monosyllable languages the words are composed of simple and monosyllable roots isolated and, as a rule, independent of one another. In this elementary form of language the same words correspond in their essence to different conceptions only, and are unrestricted by any notions of gender, number, case, mood, tense or relationship. The principal monosyllable languages are the Chinese, Annamese, Siamese, Burman and Tibetan. Probably not since his invention has the setting up of a radio set been watched by a more interested group of spectators than that which followed the movements of Rev. Charles W. Hare and two employes of the Porto Rico Telephone Company as they installed the instruments. Not that there was much animated conversation or boisterous enthusiasm. Half a bare, shackless roof on which the hot sun's rays beat fiercely, and behind which the cool trade winds usually, is not conducive to an exuberance of feeling.

Movie-Struck Girls Now Behind Store Counters

Tide of Potential Mary Pickfords no Longer Surging Against the Walls of Hollywood

By Robert A. Donaldson, United Press Staff Correspondent.

CHAPTER I.

Los Angeles, Aug. 15.—The department stores of Los Angeles are filled with pretty girl clerks who thought they were potential Mary Pickfords. (Mary Pickford Clerks Swoon," is now chewing gum and punching a typewriter, as stenographer in the office of a studio where she first went hoping to win her way to fame and fortune on the silver screen.

Fortunately, however, the tide of screen-struck girls who come from all parts of the country to Hollywood, has been checked.

Despite reports from tourists that everywhere girl hikers are "on their way to Hollywood," but of them are arriving than ever before in the history of the movie game.

Apparently the recent widespread publicity given to the small chance that a girl has to win fame in the movies and the starvation facts which usually confront her on arriving in Hollywood, have taken effect.

"STARVED WITH GIRLS.

"STARVED WITH GIRLS.

During the war and after the war to the big movie shrine of Hollywood, but of them are arriving than ever before in the history of the movie game.

Apparently the recent widespread publicity given to the small chance that a girl has to win fame in the movies and the starvation facts which usually confront her on arriving in Hollywood, have taken effect.

"STARVED WITH GIRLS.

During the war and after the war to the big movie shrine of 1920, Hollywood and Los Angeles were literally swamped with would-be movie queens. New companies were springing up like mushrooms, and many of these separate to film fame actually found there, where they obtained some degree of recognition. In some cases they opened stock.

But the "roaring twenties" have changed the movies are now on a different and very much more efficient basis.

Casting directors and welfare workers are unanimous in declaring that with the greatest talent and the best of luck, and the barest of luck, no unknown girl nowadays can hope to make more a small reputation in Hollywood inside of two years.

The Y.W.C.A., the city police bureau, and similar organizations obtained many of them jobs in department stores, in stores and offices, or if they knew typing, as stenographers. Others were rescued by friends or parents who sent the price of a return ticket back home.

Since that time producers have aimed to spread the truth over the country that the average, unknown girl has only about one chance in a thousand to make a living in the movies.

"Our problems have greatly decreased in the last two years," said one police mother. "Before that morals were more lax in the movies, and besides, so many girls came who, unable to make a living in the movies, took to desperation, what they believed to be an easier way. Now movie morals have improved somewhat, and the girls are arriving in smaller numbers and I believe are of a better type."

Music & Drama

JACK HOLT IN EXQUISITE COMEDY-DRAMA AT GRIFFIN'S

Jack Holt's latest, Paramount star picture, "A Gentleman of Leisure," was shown for the first time at Griffin's Theatre last night and scored a decided hit.

The star has the role of a young American of wealth and leisure, who, returning from an extended trip abroad, meets Molly Creedon, played by Sigrid Holmquist, daughter of the Deputy Commissioner of Police of New York City. For him it is a case of love at first sight. On a wager he enters Molly's home, accompanied by a crook whom he has taken on his adventure presumably for the purpose of instruction, but in reality to obtain aphotograph of Molly —for he had wagered that he would not only obtain her photograph within twenty-four hours but would also have it suitably inscribed by the girl herself.

Unfortunately, while Robert Willoughby Pitt (Jack Holt) and his companion, Spike Mullen, are in the Creeden home, "Big Phil," the Commissioner, returns, and recognizes Spike as the man he had freed that very morning, because of lack of evidence. He mistakes Pitt for an international crook and many interesting scenes follow in quick succession before the angle is straightened out. The picture has a decidedly novel climax. Supporting the star is a cast including Sigrid Holmquis, Cassori Fergusen, Alec Francis, Adele Farrington, Frank Nelson, Alfred Allen, Noreen Paul and Allie Queensberry.

"Flahin' Time," a timely and beautiful Travelogue, a good Century comedy, and a gripping chapter of Universal popular chapter-play "The Phantom Fortune," preceded the exhibition of the feature offering.

ETHEL GREY TERRY AT REGENT IN APPEALING STORY

Mother love, father love, and selfish love, cross and tangle and trash and thrill various desirable things in six thrilling reels. Tender affection, cold, calculating scheming, and all Mother's tears mingle in an epic of real life on the stage and in the home which will carry the audience out of itself and into the atmosphere of one of the most gripping and appealing dramas seen on a local silver sheet in some time. Now playing at the Regent Theatre is "The Self Made Wife," with a cast of unusual merit, including Ethel Grey Terry, Alfred Kent, Dorothy Cumbings and Phillis Smalley, and is one story that will appeal greatly to every woman besides carrying a great moral lesson.

Two good comedies and Pathe News are being exhibited on the same program.

Ferguson Ministers Are Returned by Acclamation

Toronto, Aug. 17.—The final stage of the formal constitution of the Ferguson Cabinet was passed yesterday by acclamation at the ministerial nominations.

Nine ministers who hold portfolios and who hence receive emoluments under the Crown were required to seek again the endorsation of their constituents.

Abbe Delorme In Good Health

Montreal, Que., Aug. 17.—Pending the reopening of the Delorme murder trial with a new judge and a fresh jury, the accused man, Rev. Adelard Delorme, is apparently taking a philosophical mood his enforced retirement at Bordeaux jail.

An enquiry at the jail yesterday elicited the information that the prisoner is in the best of health, smart, well groomed as usual, eats well, sleeps well, reads and seems to find means of keeping himself from wearying.

"He never leaves his cell, where he is treated as any other prisoner, in like circumstances would be treated," declared the jail keeper Superintendent regarding the prisoner this morning.

Lawyers and others interested in the case are reticent as to any preparations under way for the next trial. L. Lachapelle, K.C., the crown prosecutor, had an interview with Premier A. L. Taschereau during a recent visit of that latter to Montreal, but no information could be elicited as to the nature of the interview. He premier declaring that it was not of interest to the public.

Confusion May Follow Ruling

Kingston, Aug. 17.—Just as Hon. W. F. Nickle was entering the city hall to attend his re-election, he was asked it the ruling of Toronto police magistrate that the Ontario betting information act is ultra vires of the legislature would be appealed.

"I think we should appeal against the judgment," replied Mr. Nickle.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—The return of the attorney-general was awaited here with considerable interest as the judgment had raised some interesting questions. Once all these is whether or not prosecutions could be instituted pending an appeal.

"Judge Denton's law is correct," said an authority, "but I think that prosecutions can still be laid, but no judgment would likely be given until the Lichtiman case is finally disposed of."

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Crown Attorney Ritchie, commenting on Judge Denton's judgement at Toronto, said that he was at loss to say what would happen in the event of the Rasney anti-betting law being finally declared ultra vires. He pointed out that all the cases tried in Ottawa under this act had been disposed of and fines imposed. He doubted if refunds of the fines would be made as they had been merely nominal.

George D. Kelly, counsel for the Daily Racing Form in its test cases against both the Ontario statute and the dominion amendment to sections 228 of the criminal code, stated that if the Ontario act was ruled ultra vires, it would discriminate between racing papers published in Ontario. Those published in Ontario provided they conformed with the purport of the dominion law would be able to sell anywhere in Canada while those published in the States would be barred.

Toronto Horse, Cobourg Victor

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 17.—Ideal weather again greeted the Horse Show yesterday at its third afternoon. Nearly four thousand people were present. Although not quite so many as on the previous afternoon. In the ch class Charm, a beautiful stepping black gelding, owned by Crowe and Murray, of Toronto, won first prize. Second and third were Lady, owned by E. W. Hewett, Toronto, and Jim, owned by J. White, Peterboro.

R. J. Fleming's Pendritch, ridden by Murray Fleming, won the heavyweight hunters, which was one of the big events at the Cobourg Horse Show. The chestnut excelled in its jumping. Second was W. G. Beadmore's Admiral, ridden by Thomas Merrie. R. J. Fleming came into the money again for third place with Tyrone.

Best Cough Mixture Is Home Made

Acts With Speed—Loosens the Phlegm —Stops the Irritation and Coughing Ceases

Fine for Chest Colds Too and Is Cheaply Made at Home.

When you can make, in two minutes, a world beating remedy that acts directly on the membranes and often overnight causes stubborn coughs and even hard chest colds to disappear, why trifle with things that will probably disappoint?

Hawking and snuffling and also soreness of the mucous membrane go and you will feel fine in almost no time.

Just get an ounce of Parmint (double strength) add to it a little sugar and enough hot water to make a half pint and you've got an inexpensive remedy better than you can buy ready mixed.

Its soothing, healing action on the membrane is the reason so many people use it for Catarrh and acute nasal colds.

Money Transfer To Be Discussed

Buffalo, Aug. 17.—Several Toronto stock-holders in the L. R. Steel merchandising bubble will be in this city today to ascertain at a hearing to be held at 10 o'clock whether or not money they have subscribed for the purpose of re-organization shall be transferred from a Toronto bank, where it is being held to this city.

Depositors in various sections have approximately $100,000 deposited in Buffalo banks for the same purpose. If the fund is increased, which may be the outcome of today's meeting, the money will be used to acquire property in which all the Steel stockholders will benefit, under the terms of a protective trust agreement.

The conference will discuss the possibility of raising sufficient funds to get them out of bankruptcy, about $2,000,000 being required before this can be accomplished, it is estimated. It s also expected that at this meeting several new proposals will be presented regarding possible reorganization of the various Steel enterprises. The meeting will be held in the Steel offices in the Lincoln building.

Explosion Near San Pedro Causes Residents to Flee In Panic

DISASTER FEARED

Explosives Stored in Magazines near Scene Threatened By Flames

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 18.—A boiling lake of burning oil bubbled and seethed 200 feet at Point Macarher's magazines at San Pedro during the night. Trenches were dug between the oil and the magazines to divert the fiery flood. Two hundred men united with plans and shovels in the inflame. Residents living near, abandoned homes and fled. Five started when an explosion occurred in a 150,000 barrel tank of the General Petroleum Company early Friday. It burned all day. Dykes were thrown up to hold back the oil but in a few hours the liquid flames were lapping almost at the brink of these earth works. Homes covering two square miles would be endangered if the break in the bank grows larger.

BANTING RETURNS, ELUDES REPORTERS

Discoverer of Insulin Arrives From England

Quebec, Aug. 18.—The Canadian Pacific steamer arrived at Quebec yesterday morning. Montcalm from Liverpool in command of Capt. Rennie, O.B.E., and the Burton from Southampton. The Montcalm brought 1,202 passengers, the cabin, largely composed of returned Canadians, and 1,276 third-class, out of which were 278 British immigrants, en route to the prairie provinces, all young and healthy in keeping with British manhood.

Among the prominent cabin passengers on the Montcalm were Dr. F. G. Banting, of Insulin fame, of Toronto, who hid himself away from newspaper reporters who met the ship on its arrival at Quarantine Dr. Banting continued by the Montcalm to Montreal from which city he will proceed direct to Toronto.

Hard Coal Strike In U. S. Seems Inevitable

New York, Aug. 17.—With an anthracite strike two weeks away, the United States Fuel commission said today amidst discouraging circumstances to draw the miners and operators into conciliation.

Failing in their final conferences to day, the commission will lay the facts before President Coolidge for action.

The joint conference met after the commission had called before it John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and S. D. Warriner, chairman of the general policy committee of the anthracite operators, and gave them a later demanding a complete answer from both parties as to what each would do to prevent a suspension of operations. The joint conference is scheduled to report to the committee by 3 p.m.

Mr. Lewis reiterated his dissatisfaction with the "qualified manner" in the operators' refusal to abandon the checkoff as regards supplies advanced to the miners. He declared the "miners stood ready, as was announced the day the conference opened, to abandon their demand for the checkoff on union dues, but that a requisite of the agreement must be "absolute abandonment by the operators of the checkoff.

British Business Turns From Europe For Other Markets

Change in Commercial Policy Likely to Affect Cabinet Standing

(Written for the United Press)

London, Aug. 18, (United Press).—Premier Stanley Baldwin, of Great Britain, is facing a revolt within the conservative party against his European policy.

A complete change in the British attitude toward France and Germany is in the making, and the new Prime Minister will have to accept the altered viewpoint of Britain's diplomats and international traders or he will be forced to resign.

The dangers of political entanglements on the continent of Europe are now being regarded by "Big Business" in Great Britain as too costly a price to pay for commercial progress in that area. Premier Baldwin is being warned that Great Britain wants him to arrange his policy so that if a new war breaks out between Germany and France, the British Empire will not be involved. The Franco-Prussian war was fought with Great Britain a neutral. A new war can be waged under similar conditions if the Germans let Belgium alone and the English Channel ports, thereby leaving Great Britain unmolested.

KEEP ENGLAND OUT

If Germany were to agree to these conditions, the Germans would be given a free hand in a war of revenge, according to the conditions being laid down by British financiers and manufacturers. The American policy of avoiding entanglements abroad, is appealing to the British, as suitable to their own present needs.

Instead of pushing into continental entanglements for the purpose of gaining foreign trade, the British are now seeing their commercial future in the development of the world's British colonies, the Far East and South America have been examined by London's experts and have been found to possess better possibilities for commercial expansion than the European continent.

Premier Baldwin has not yet got his full point of view. He is an shrewd a politician and has always paid attention to precedent and inherited opinions. But Britain's attitude in favor of industrial development for generations has been to maintain a certain balance of power in Europe and to concentrate her efforts upon making customers for herself among the European nations, thereby with the commercial incentive the British have been involved in numerous European wars. The wars have been had to pay many times over in improving commercial intercourse among the new prestige added to the British Empire.

But the City of War went too long for commercial advantage to be reaped within the borders of Europe and the whole commercial policy of Britain has won additional security through Germany's downfall, but at the same time in overturned commercial markets.

Nevertheless, the full force of present opinion favors the reform in the policy of the British government. The search for new markets amid the ruins of Europe has been an important part of British constructive statesmanship. The search since the London and Paris conferences, however, has been with little success.

While the politicians persist in the time-honored custom, the British financiers and business men, who always have to work the markets created by war trends, have become convinced that new ground must be broken. So the Baldwin ministry is being urged to cease its fruitless discussions with France and Germany and turn to other parts of the world.

Already the cry has met with some success, as the construction of the new railway from Singapore shows. But it will have to be heard in whole if a ministerial break-up is to be avoided by the Baldwinites.

Dusseldorf, Aug. 17.—The Belgian authorities have imposed a fine of 2,000,000,000 marks on the city of Duisburg as a penalty for the bomb explosion on a train near that city late in June. Ten Belgian soldiers were killed and two more other injured in the outrage.

HOME BANK OF CANADA CLOSES

Institution Suspends Business Because of Serious Losses Sustained

MAKE STATEMENT

Announce Suspension of Payment Because Liquid Resources Depleted

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Home bank of Canada has closed its doors owing to serious losses sustained in a number large items and investments. Bank notes of the institution are good and good face value in any bank of Canada.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—The following statement was issued from the Head office of the Home Bank of Canada this afternoon at the o'clock yesterday afternoon:

"The board of directors of the Home Bank of Canada announce that they have received from the recently appointed assistant general manager of the bank an official report of a serious character as to the amount of bad and doubtful debts among the assets of the bank and as to the extent of appropriations necessary to be made in respect of a number of large loans and investments.

"It is apparent from this report, and from inquiry with respect thereto, by the board, that the assets of the bank have been seriously impaired. As no readjustment of capital or reserve to meet the situation disclosed can endeavor has been made by the board to have the assets and liabilities of the bank, as at present, taken over by some other bank, or banks. This has been found impracticable.

"In the circumstances stated, and as the immediately liquid resources of the bank have been practically depleted, the directors for the purpose of preserving the assets of the bank for the protection benefit of its depositors and other creditors, according to their best estimates, respectively, have decided to suspend payment.

"The Canadian Bankers' Association, having been notified of this action on the part of the board has, in accordance with provision of the Bank Act, appointed a curator to supervise the affairs of the bank and protect the rights and interests of its depositors and note holders. It is with the deepest regret that the board of directors announce that find themselves obliged to make this serious announcement to its depositors and the public generally and it is their earnest hope that with careful administration and realization of the assets of the bank heavy losses may be avoided. The suspension in no way involves the value of the bills of the bank in circulation, which may be deemed at their face value on presentation to any of the other chartered banks."

"Evolution Gives Us Hope of Immortality"

Chicago, Aug 18 (United Press).—"Evolution is the hope of the race, for it gives us strong proofs of immortality," declared Dr. Franklin Davis Barker, professor of zoology at the University of Nebraska, who is a member of the Northwestern university summer school faculty.

"Evolution is a fact as surely as gravitation. The comparative study of the nervous system of animals shows an evolution headward! Man's brain has freed him from the slavery of environment and is the physical basis of his personality and his soul."

"The observable trend 'brainward,' if projected, foretells the nature of the future super-man. That which has required millions of years to bring into being, will not be scrapped at death."

Moscow Fireman Has New Radio Invention

By JOHN GRAUDENZ, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Moscow (By mail to United Press).—To listen to a radio concert given in Moscow by the famous Russian basso cigaret case is the latest sensation here.

The inventor, a simple fireman, created the soldier's corner of the "Working Moscow" and asked whether the editor would like to listen to a radio concert right in his room. He then produced an ordinary Russian wooden cigaret case, held one end of the attachment in his mouth and the editor could hear the music in perfect clearness. Later he heard the wireless messages Roota was receiving.

Alexej Ivanovich Semenof, the inventor, said it was all very simple and inexpensive. He had used the old coil and a few sheets of tin foil which he got out of a tea packet, bored holes at the bottom and a piece of wire from an old door bell and an old gramophone membrane which was the most expensive thing of the whole affair.

Girl's Slayer King Breaks Down With His Mother

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 17.—George King was committed for trial this morning by Magistrate Jelfs in the police court on a charge of shooting Eric Johnston on Tuesday, August 7th, at her home on Kinrade avenue. He failed to enter any plea.

Half an hour before the hearing was scheduled to take place a crowd of curious men and women gathered in King William street outside the court house in the hope of catching a glimpse of the accused youth. The court was filled to capacity when King was led in and placed in the dock. He looked utterly weary, and, though his manner was composed, he wore a dogged stare that beckoned dull despair.

Mrs. E. King, seated on the far side of the court room, was unnerved by her son, and her lips moved but uttered no sound. George Johnston, father of the girl victim of the tragedy, sitting erect and tight-lipped, just glanced at the prisoner and his expression grew stern and grim. Beside her father sat Iona Johnston. Her eyes went swiftly to the dock and then fell as her gaze met King's.

The charge was read, and Magistrate Jelfs put the question: "How do you plead, guilty or not guilty?" King raised dumbly at his inquisitor. "Did you hear what I said?" queried the magistrate. "He has nothing to say," volunteered the police officer in charge of the prisoner.

Don't Hang on to Paddle When Your Canoe Tips

(Dr. Bruce Ridpath, in Toronto Sunday World.)

A bad fault peculiar to amateur paddlers is hanging on to the paddle when it catches the water and goes under the canoe. In such a case, the thing to do it to let go, for if one retains his hold the paddle has a tendency to pull you in one side of the canoe, and in nearly every case, the craft goes over. This mishap is liable to happen to the bow man much more easily than to the man in the stern as, if the latter's blade should go under the canoe, it would reach the end and pass free before doing any damage. This is where having an extra paddle comes in handy because, if you did not have the extra blade you would be in a bad way, especially in rough water, and the mishap is much more liable to happen in rough water than in calm.

The tendency to grasp the gunwale when unbalanced, and the tendency to hang on to the blade when it goes under the canoe are two of the most difficult things to overcome in canoeing. Once the novice has mastered them, all he has to do is to paddle often and gain experience in the handling of his craft.

There is one stunt that every canoeist should try and accomplish in case of mishap, although very few have mastered it. This is "The Shakeout." First you get at the centre of the canoe; then you push the craft away from you, with the gunwale a little under water, and bring same quickly up again with your wrists. By repeating this several times the water will be shaken out of the canoe. This is a very hard trick to do and requires a great deal of practice; however, if you do not get it at first, do not give up, as it will come to you in time. Once you have learned the trick, it will never be forgotten.

I have done this stunt in several seconds, from the time the canoe was full of water, and hung up with the water all out and myself back in the canoe. In case of accident, when you cannot right your canoe, go to one end and catch it. Do not put all your weight on it, but just enough to keep you up, treading with your feet at the same time. Above all do not go to the centre of the canoe and start it rolling around by catching hold of one of the gunwales. This would soon exhaust you and increase the danger of drowning. If two persons are in the water they should get on opposite sides of the canoe and grip hands over it, putting their feet underneath; all their weight may be placed on the canoe and they may rest easily until rescued.

They should get as near to the centre as possible; if not, one end of the canoe is liable to go down in the water. In case one of the pair is a lady and becomes excited, the other should catch hold of her hair or dress, since if she catches hold of him he can do nothing with her. Once she is held her companion should get on the opposite side of the canoe and then catch hold of her hands, making sure that he holds her hands and she does not hold his. Once an excited person in the water has hold of anything it is very hard to loosen the grasp.

Every canoe club should have as instructor one whose business of doing the "Shakeout" and showing how to handle a canoe in general, if only for a few weeks in the Summer.

YOUR GROWING BOY OR GIRL

I've often wondered if the man or woman who is fond of animals or flowers would permit them to grow with as little supervision as they give their children.

The baby gets wonderful care as a rule, and the tiny tots are usually well looked after. But what of the girl or twelve and the boy of fourteen?

Well, at this time they are growing into womanhood and manhood. Do you notice that as your girl or boy grows that they carry themselves properly? Is the spine straight? Are the shoulders well back and even? Do they eat sufficient vegetables, or do they fill up on meat and dessert? Do they get outdoors at all, or do they stay in the house and read all their spare time? Do they go to the movies every night? Have you as a mother taken your girl aside and explained all about the sex function? Have you as a father done the same with your boy? This important point is neglected or avoided by parents and the girl and boy learn about it often from improper sources.

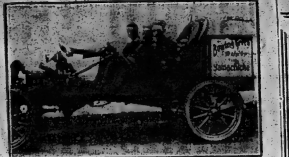

And it is just here that so much can be done for your girl and boy. If at this time they are encouraged to get outdoors, to indulge in games, to go on "hikes", there will not be the time for introspection, and the tired bodies will seek rest and sleep. This is a recognized factor in preparatory schools for boys and girls of the teen age.

Further, if you encourage your youngsters to get into games, to mix with other children their own age, they will overcome shyness timidity, indecision and like things. They will learn to think and act for themselves, to have self confidence, and to give and take.

Woman Proves Too Wily For Bootleg Ring

Washington, Aug. 17.—A woman, seated at her desk in Washington, has brought to justice the biggest bootleg ring in the United States, after two years of relentless effort.

She is Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assisting attorney-general in charge of prohibition prosecutions. The ring was shattered by eighty-four arrests made in Savannah yesterday.

Fleets of vessels were operated between the Bahamas and the Georgia coast, convoys were provided to distribute liquor inland. While booze known to have passed through the hands of the ring has been traced by federal agents as far as St. Louis and Cleveland, where it was being sold.

A special intelligence service maintained by the ring to protect its operations hampered Mrs. Willebrandt's pursuit by causing her on two occasions to substitute an entirely new force of operatives for agents who had been compromised.

Symptoms of Anaemia

An Inherited Tendency to Anaemia May be Overcome.

Some people have a tendency to become thin-blooded just as others have an inherited tendency to rheumatism, or to nervous disorders. The condition in which the blood becomes so thin that the whole body suffers comes on so gradually and stealthily that anyone with a natural disposition in that direction should watch the symptoms carefully. Bloodlessness, or anaemia as the medical term is, can be corrected much more easily in the earlier stages than later, it begins with a tired feeling that rest does not overcome, the complexion becomes pale, and breathlessness on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, is noticed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a home remedy that has been most successful in the treatment of diseases caused by thin blood. With pure air and wholesome food these blood-making pills afford the correct treatment when the symptoms described are noticed.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, postpaid, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the newborn babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

BOWLING TOURNEY

"Solid South" Now Wants Both The Candidate And Convention

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 18 (United Press). The "Solid South" is going to demand payment for the four years of loyal service to the Democratic party. The bill, now considered overdue by Southern politicians, will be presented in the form of an invitation for the party to hold its next national convention in the Southland and a request that the candidacy of Senator Oscar W. Underwood for the presidential nomination be endorsed.

Organized efforts are under way to flock up the item regarding the national convention. Atlanta late-date leaders predicted important persons in the party are long support for its plan to hold the coming convention in Dixie. A number of party leaders have pledged their co-operation.

Atlanta, aside from the claim that it is a moral obligation of the Democrats to meet in the South this year, will point out that it has ample quarters for the convention session, adequate hotel arrangements and is equally as accessible as San Francisco.

Senator Underwood is a virtual announcement of his candidacy for the presidential nomination, in a speech in Montgomery, Ala., sounded the keynote of the South's plea for endorsement of a "native son."

The time has come, Underwood declared, when the "Solid South" should ask of the democratic party that "a son of the Southland should once again bear the banner of democracy."

"I am sure that our brethren from the north are no longer considering as a vital question the state from which the candidate hails; but their first thought is the principles for which he stands and their second is the character of the candidate."

The South plans to use only moral suasion to secure payment of its bill, but it considers it has a legitimate claim and will press for payment.

DIVORCE RATE IS LOWER IN FRANCE

Figures Show Curve Has Turned Downward After Increase

By JOHN O'BRIEN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Aug. 17.—Divorce is on the decline in France. Official figures show that, after a decided upward tendency—between 1913 and 1920 the annual decrees rose from 19,000 to 35,000—the curve of marital infidelity has turned downward, registering 34,000 for the year 1921 and a little more than 30,000 for 1922.

Of the latter number Paris alone furnished 9,200. Examination of the statistics demonstrates that for the last 20 years couples without children have furnished more than 65 per cent. of the applicants for liberation from the matrimonial bond.

Infidelity, contrary to general belief, is the motive in only 26 per cent. of the cases which come before the courts. The most common cause is cruelty.

Recent Regatta and Bay of Quinte as Home for Tourists

A very prominent American judge who attended the recent Regatta predicted while here that the Bay of Quinte would, at an early future date, become a permanent summer home for those living in Northern New York and such cities as Rochester, Syracuse, Watertown, etc.

Our sunsets were featured in his eloquent talk upon the wonders of the Bay of Quinte and suggested that these should be capitalized the same as they are in California. Sunsets such are in evidence here are certainly unusual.

A scheme has been suggested to have representatives from Belleville, Trenton, Deseronto, Picton and Napanee hold an early meeting to formulate a plan to advertise this district, and some progress has already been made towards this end. A boat will likely be chartered, and representatives from the City of Belleville and other towns on the Bay of Quinte, together with newspaper representatives and photographers, etc., will make a trip through the Bay, and money will be secured from the different corporations to carry on an extensive campaign of advertising in the cities of Northern New York, Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Cleveland.

The revenue from tourist traffic is attracting wide attention through all the principle cities in Canada, and there are no localities where nature has been more liberal than this section, and it is firmly believed that we are on the eve of a great tourist boom, largely brought about by the recent Regatta.

FRANKLIN SEDAN PRODUCTION 100% AHEAD LAST YEAR

Syracuse, N. Y.—More than twice as many sedans were produced by the Franklin Automobile Company during the first seven months of this year as were turned out by Franklin during the corresponding period of 1922. In fact, the number of sedans produced in the Franklin plant during the period beginning January 1 and ending July 31 showed a 9 per cent. increase over Franklin sedan production for the entire year of 1922. Orders on dealers' books at end of July showed 21 per cent. for sedans.

GASOLINE COSTS

One of the greatest travesties of democracy the world has ever witnessed was the monopolization of the petroleum output of the United States by John D. Rockefeller. The evil magnate by his unscrupulous shrewdness, supplemented by a reasonable amount of good luck and a ridiculous attitude of indifference and tolerance on the part of the American people, was enabled to arrogate to himself supreme control of vast natural resources and impose a tax upon an essential commodity which netted him a colossal profit.

Although the former combine has been dissolved by processes of law, the law has been largely circumvented and enormous profits are still "rendered unto Caesar."

The advent of automobiles created an enormous market for one particular petroleum product—gasoline. Now, in spite of numerous contemporary firms, the Rockefeller interests, still influence gasoline prices. Retailers of gasoline are able to realize but a small profit, when they sell at 34 cents per gallon, the wholesale cost and the operating expenses are extremely high.

However, the bottom appears to have fallen out of the market in certain sections of the States and it appears that gasoline may recede to a more humble level in Canada as a result. It is to be hoped that a downward re-adjustment will be made pronto. Since gasoline is now offered for 10 cents a gallon in Oklahoma, one of the most productive fields, it is obvious that the operators and magnates can realize a handsome profit from a much lower retail price without forcing the retail er to share the burden. A healthy economic condition cannot be attained until prices of commodities reach reasonable legels.

THE GERMAN CRISIS

The following editorial expression by the New York Times, voices an apparently general view of the situation in Germany:

"It ought to be kept clearly in mind that the German Government is reaping what it has been sowing. It has fallen as a result of discontent and misery largely of its own creating. Primarily, the disturbances now afflicting Germany are matters of internal politics. Foreign relations have very little to do with them. The discredited rule of Cuno Government, the mounting dissatisfaction of the working classes, the dizzy rise in prices, the strikes, the protests, the rioting, all flow from the worst Government financiering that could be imagined. For recklessness or stupidity it has not been surpassed even in Soviet Russia. This is not simply the verdict of outsiders. Intelligent Germans have roundly condemned the financial policies of the Government. Professor Bonn, for example, characterized them only the other day as "frankly amateurish". And the ablest financial periodical published in Germany, Die Banke, has for months past been warning the Government of the precipice toward which it was pushing the country.

* * * *

"The best hope is that a new Government will promptly be formed, strong enough and sagacious enough to undo the errors of the Cuno Ministry. Stresemann, the new choice as head of the Government, has pledged himself in speeches to those days of the packaged, roasted and ground bean. We call it a bean, but it actually a seed.

"The coffee bean with which the consumer is familiar is only a small part of the fruit," to quote Mr. Ukers, "The fruit, which is the size of a small cherry, has, like the cherry, an outer fleshy part called the pericarp. Beneath this is a part like tissue paper, spoken of technically as the parchment, but known artistically as the silverskin. Next in position to this, and covering the seed, is the so-called spermoderm, which makes seed skin, referred to in the trade as the silver skin. Small parts of this silver skin are always to be found in the cleft of the coffee bean." Each fruit normally has two seeds, placed with the flat sides together.

ARMS AND THE GIRL

(Chicago Evening Post)

A New York banker recently entered the list against the sleeveless gown, insisting a ukase regarding its appearance in his institution. Already there are ominous rumblings which may shake it to the very bottom of the underground safety vault. The king of finance may find his crown toppling when he thus seeks to invade the inalienable rights of his stenographers to keep up with the style.

The banker's theory is good. The sleeveless gown is no cooler than the flimsy material which creeps down somewhere near the elbow. In spite of the scarcity of material, it costs no less, being in style it really costs more than its predecessor. It is not needed for the advantage of comfort, economy and cleanliness which enable the short skirt to survive rather sharp criticism. It lacks altogether the appearance of bobbed hair, the latter characteristic applying to those who do not wear it hanging straight down in the Indian. Seen in an office, the sleeveless gown raises a passing wonder whether the wearer had time to go home after a ball on the preceding night or after a breakfast at the one-arm had come directly to work.

The American girl outdistances all others for looks, but still there are arms and arms, and many of them are afflicted with elbows. The well-dressed person is said to be the one whose clothing harmonizes to such an extent that no shred or bit of adornment attracts special attention. A protruding elbow and an arm which lacks the necessary degree of soft roundness are merely inviting trouble for the wearer of the sleeveless gown, at least when office garb prevails the countervailing influence of frilly evening attire. Now that the theory of its impracticability has been proved, it only remains to state that theory will not survive a test for the simple reason that the girls will not have it. Having decided what the style permits, they will proceed to wear it, and no commonplace individual like a bank president can change them. The New Yorker who started the rumpus had best beat a strategic retreat to the seashore.

SURE, HE'S JEALOUS

The following effusion was culled from the Peterboro Examiner. Bet the writer is jealous:

"Residents along the gravel road object to the spooning that goes on at their doorsteps every night. They say the motor parties that make the lanes and byways a rendezvous night after night are a positive nuisance.

"One side-road in particular, about two miles from the city is nightly the scene of parking and sparking parties, and has the hypocrites verandah of the city completely eclipsed. The spooning motor is the latest pest that the rural community is praying may be extinguished by rain, one man said.

"A parking law forbidding the stopping of cars between sundown and sunrise has been talked about but it was found that the township councils have no power to make such a by-law.

"Another alternative is that parents may take hand in the affair and put a stop to these spooning parties."

PRESS OPINIONS

TAXATION IN CANADA

(Ottawa Journal)

Dominion revenue for July totalled $32,000,000. What does this mean? To the party politician it means opportunity for pungent rhetoric about national prosperity. To those who take a more serious view of public affairs it has a graver aspect. To them it measures the appalling burden of taxation which is being imposed upon the country. And, unquestionably, it is appalling. Imagine nine million people paying out a million dollars a day! Imagine this country paying as much in a month now as it paid in a year less than twenty years ago! Consider a scale of taxation which, if the American people paid its equivalent, would cost them $300,000,00 a month!

Before the war people complained of customs taxation. Today customs taxes are higher than ever, and direct taxation is higher than customs taxes. Before the war we had no direct taxes at all. In July the Sales Tax alone amounted to $11,000,000. Before the war we had no income tax; in July it totalled $4,000,000. And so to the end of the chapter.

The effect is only too obvious. It is seen in millions of capital diverted from development channels. It is seen in timidity and depression in industry. It is seen in a cost of living that will not come down. And it is seen in emigration figures that tell their own tale.

There are but two ways to develop Canada. The first way is to bring in capital; the second to bring in immigrants. But capital does not come where taxation is high, and immigrants do not come where living costs are high. Hence the existing depression.

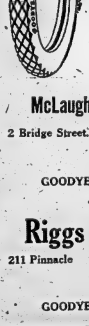

The Government may try to ignore the facts. It may go on talking about "buoyant revenues" and "unbounded resources" and all the other catchwords of unthinking optimists. But the people are not fooled. They are feeling the pinch of taxation, and they are preparing to deal hardly with politicians and governments that will not quit their extravagance.

FIGHT MANAGER FLYNN HAS SOME IDEAES

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 18.—Just recently, Jimmy Jones, a young welterweight from Youngstown, won a referee's decision in Boston from Dave Shade. The New York Boxing Commission which had previously awarded the welterweight championship to Shade because Mickey Walker, the official champion, would not fight, was then put under the job of picking up a new champion.

Leo Flynn, manager of Shade was called before the commission and asked if he could produce any reasons to show why his fighter had not lost her title.

Flynn is an crafty manager as there is in the business, and rather surprised the commissioners when he, with little fuss, said:

"If Shade had any claim to any kind of a title he certainly blew it when he blew that decision. Jimmy Jones is the champion."

#Considering that the main idea of practically every boxer and every manager is to get a title and then hold it, the attitude taken by Flynn in passing away a championship without an argument was surprising.

Flynn has the largest string of boxers in the country and his earnings are said to average over $200,000 a year. He has to have some ideas to have made such a success of his business and some of theories are unique.

"What did that title mean to us?" he asked, in explaining his ideas.

"There are only two titles that have any great value, the heavyweight and the lightweight championships. The others are mainly a bother and they cause a lot of trouble.

"There may be some glory and fame in being a champion or the manager of a champion, but there is a lot of grief with it. Say what they may, boxers and their managers are in the game purely as a business proposition. If not, why are they not amateurs? Smart boxers know that the fame they get out of championships is short-lived and that they are soon forgotten when they drop out of sight. Consider how many great fighters there have been in the past and how many of them are remembered today.

"Take the case of Dave Shade. He is the greatest drawing card in the ring outside of Dempsey and Leonard. He has had forty fights in the last two years, and because he fought often for good purses he finds himself at the age of twenty-one fixed for the rest of his days. In two more years he can retire for the rest of his days, if he wants to.

"Shade gets a lot of work because he draws better as the fighter who could beat the champion if he got a chance, then the champion who is always being held up by other managers as dodging their fighters.

"With no title to worry about, we can send Shade in any place with any referee, in any kind of a decision fight, be often and for as much money as we want. If he loses a decision, it is forgotten after he has his next fight.

"With a title we would have to arrange and fight about referees, weight forfeits and a hundred other things and just as soon as he lost the title or was jobbed out of it, he would cease to be such a drawing card. Former champions have little butte.

"Since Shade is considered all over as the next man to the welterweight championship, we get more offers than we can handle and with our services so much in demand, we can raise our bid for a champion's crown. Other managers, with 'hopes,' figure: 'If we can beat Shade we can make our fighter.' It all makes business for us."

Flynn made a fortune for himself and now up the honors of the Big Four section. Bellevill, however, can be expected to put up a great battle for a victory tomorrow and their only hope if they wish to stay in the running for the O.B.A.A. honors.

Heckman is almost the certain choice for the mound work for the Petes with his usual battery mate on the receiving end. It is likely Jack Oulette, of last season's Greybirds, will be on the rubber for the visitors, though there is a chance that the dusky southpaw, Williams, may be given a chance to even up his defeat of Wednesday.

Feeney Mills was back in the game Wednesday but his broken finger was not sufficiently recovered to allow him to take his place behind the bat and he was sent to the outer gardens.

Hallinan and Berg, both of Toronto, are scheduled to do the umpiring for this game. These two men handled the Belleville game and in spite of the Belleville reputation there was not a single objection to any of their rulings. They had completed the whole game at every minute and every decision was given fairly. Their work was in fact a decided change from some that has been dished up by the indicator men during the season.

RAILROADERS FACE ACID TEST OF FIVE-YEARS CAREER TODAY

Oulette Will Perfown on Slab in Crucial Battle.

The Belleville Grand Trunks left for Peterboro this morning where they face the acid test of their five years' career this afternoon, when they stack up against the Solonomites at Riverside Park. Beaten on Wednesday at home by a 3-2 score, the Railroaders are out for revenge this afternoon. It is do or die with them. Should they lose today they will be out of the running and will hang up their hats for another year.

Jack Ouelette will do the hurling for the Trunks and the right-hander should be in excellent form after a two-week's lay-off. The ex-Greyhill says he can trim the northerners right at home. The boys are optimistic as to their chances of winning. A good crowd of supporters accompanied the team and it is rumored they took along some money.

The Examiner says:

The Petes will be at full strength for tomorrow's little scrap with Belleville. Hop Harrison will be on hand and it is expected that Charlie Arnaldo will be sufficiently recovered to take part in the game. The locals are right out to trim the Trunks for the sixth straight game and rap Bill Brennan by capitalizing Brennan as a trial horse for other heavyweights.

"Brennan has been through for three years, but he made a lot of money, while other better fighters were not getting the breaks. That was simple. We held Brennan up as the only man, up to that time, who had gone twelve rounds with Dempsey. Other managers with eyes on the heavyweight title figured that if their fighters could stop Brennan in short time that Dempsey did they would have a big fighter. We got the business," Flynn said.

Along with others, Flynn has raised his voice in protest over the side-tracking of Harry Wills as the next opponent for Dempsey in a heavyweight championship fight.

"This color thing doesn't go in the fight game," Flynn said. "They're all just fighters under the skin. Wills is getting a raw deal. He could take all the contenders in the division and lick them one after another in one evening. If he tried to fight the bums that Firpo has been knocking over, he would have an injunction served on him. He has sparring partners, that could stop Firpo before he got his right hand back.

"Remember a couple of years back when Bob Martin, a real white-fighter, whom the public should have backed to the limit, was working up for a championship fight. Martin was fighting a lot of stiffs and the public got so mean about it that Martin was practically run out of the business.

"Then, take the case of Flynn, a foreigner here for nothing but the money. He knocks over worse bums than Martin ever thought of, and in less than a year he is shoved into a bout with Dempsey.

"You will be wondering why I have all this interest in Wills, and I'll tell you.

"If Wills knocks over this color obstacle, they'll have to listen to Kid Norfolk's challenge for the light heavyweight championship and Panama Joe Gan's challenge for the middleweight title.

"They are both colored boys and—they are my fighters."

THE GUMPS—HONOR—WHERE HONOR IS DUE

Woman's Sphere

UNVEILED.

With miracle and wonder rife,
The earth with beauty glows,
But o'er the landscape of man's life
A leveller springtide flows.

Its glory is surpassing fair,
Its light is ineffable,
Its sweetness, rich beyond compare,
Nor pen nor tongue may tell.

No sordid mists, earthbound, unknown,
To sadden, to blind, to pain,
To sadden man incarnated,
To faith and hope and love, alone,
The vision is revealed.

O, richest life, to none denied,
O goal and guerdon blest!
It is the heart's dear Eastertide,
The soul's eternal rest!

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Smith Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Trenton, Ont.—"I am writing to you in regard to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would not be without it. I have taken it before each of my children was born and afterwards, and find it a great help. Before my first baby was born I had shortness of breath and trembling in my arms. I felt as if I would never pull through. One day a friend of my husband told him what the Vegetable Compound had done for his wife and advised him to get a bottle at once. After the fourth bottle I was a different woman. I have four children now, and I always find the Vegetable Compound a great help as it seems to make confinement easier. I recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. Frank D. Barry, 4 Dundas St., Trenton, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intended. Thousands of women testify to this fact.

Underthings in Silk

By HEDDA HOYT
Fashion Editor of the United Press
(Written for The United Press)
New York, N.Y., Aug. 15.—(Uniter Press).—

Little girls at the ball
Don't you wear no slays at all?
Don't you wear no chemise-skirt?
Don't you wear no petti-skirt?
Ain't you cold?

Women wear fewer undergarments to-day than ever before and the only reason that the manufacturers of undergarments have not gone out of business because "quality not than quantity" is their slogan. The little department store girl to-day wears better underwear than Queen Elizabeth wore, garments of the softest silk, which were ushered in by the ladies of Elizabeth's day.

True, the undergarments of the department store are not many, but the whole idea for under appare seems to be to wear as little as possible, and leave that little as beautiful as possible. Present day fashion call for scant underclothing hence the cut of the heavy corset, the old-fashioned petticoat and the nainsook chemise.

The little Miss of to-day wears a little silk vest, a brassiere and step in combination, round garters and a frock and Voila! she is ready for the street.

The brassiere and step-in combination that has recently been introduced is becoming extremely popular with the girl of to-day, as it does away with the necessity of a corset cover and its additional waist band and at the same time offers a solution for holding the brassiere at the waistline instead of letting it bind in under the bust. A brassiere that doesn't extend to the waist is bound to be uncomfortable.

The brassiere portion of such a combination is darted in to fit the figure and is attached to the step-in by a beading so that what fullness there is about the waist can be pulled in by a tiny ribbon with ties in the back. The brassiere looks all in the back and the step-ins according, ly have a back plocket which permits the garment to be put on easily.

Fleshcolored silk is ideal for a garment of this sort though almost any fabric may be used. During the warm Summer months women prefer to wear only the undergarments that are absolutely necessary and since the brassiere and step-ins are the two most essential garments, the combination of the two is particularly attractive.

Fifteen years ago almost every woman looked plump. The corpulent figure is almost universal. The change can not be entirely attributed to diet and exercise. Scant underwear has accomplished a great deal toward the seeming change in the size of women. Anyone would ook plump in a starched petticoat trimmed with ruffles and tucks.

Even the corset has a tendency to give one pronounced and mature lines. A slender girl looks more slender without a corset than with one. Just as long as it remains fashionable to be "lank and lean", women will insist upon as little underwear as is absolutely necessary.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

A minute or two later, and he found himself nearing a crowd of people o distinct workmen, who were being harangued, by a tall thin man, in workman's costume, save that he wore a very garish pink and white spotted neckerchief, and a very conspicuous pair of wrist-watches.

This man, who was swinging his arms about, and gesticulating energetically, was shouting in a hoarse voice. His words were disconnected, and at each, but two words, "gorgeous plutocrats,"—"British pluck,"—"working man,"—"slavery"—and "tyranny," reached the vicar's ears as he drew nearer.

Suddenly there was a movement in the crowd, and the speaker seemed to be hustled from the top of the stone post which he had chosen for his rostrum, and then, he could yells and howlings. It seemed that the crowd had surrounded a couple of men who had been hemmed in while making their way toward the great gates, and they now stood at bay, with their backs to the high iron rail, while the men formed a semicircle a few feet from them.

It was rather hard work, and wanted no little elbowing, but without a moment's hesitation, the vicar began to force his way through the crowd; and as he got nearer to the hemmed in men, he could hear some of the scurrilous remarks made.

"Why, one of them is my friend, Mr. Richard Claire," said the vicar to himself, as he caught sight of the pale trembling figure, standing side by side with a heavy grizzled elderly workman, who stood there with his hat off, evidently bent on defending the younger man.

"Yer come out of that, Joe Banks, an' leave him to us," roared a great bull-headed hammerman, who was evidently one of the leaders of the mob.

"Keep off, you great coward," was heard.

"Throw him a blob, Harry; gie him a blob," shouted a voice.

"My good men—my good men," cried the vicar, excitedly trying to make himself heard; but there was a roar of rage and hatred, and the men who had been momentarily scattered by the vicar's appearance, began to close up with them the vicar, and too intent upon their proposed victims to take much notice of the strange figure elbowing itself to the front.

"Where are the police, Banks—the police?"

"Yah! He wants the police," shouted a shrill voice, which came from the back of the red waistcoat. "He's trimpled down the rights of man, and now he wants the brutal mummy-dons of the law."

"Yah!" roared the crowd, and they pressed on.

"Banks, what shall we do?" whispered Claire; "they'll murder us."

"They won't murder me," said the foreman, stutter.

"But they will me. What shall we do?"

"Fight!, said the foreman, sturdily.

"I can't fight, I'll promise them any thing," groaned the young man. 'Here my lads," he cried. "I'll promise you anything."

"Yah! You wasn't keep your promises," roared those nearest. "Down with them. Get hold of Banks!"

The big workman made a dash at Richard Claire, and got him by the collar, dragging him from the wall just as the foreman, who tries to get before him, was good-humoredly nailed by half a dozen men, who took his blows for an instant, and then held him helpless against the bricks.

It would have gone hard even with the young owner of the works, for an English mob, when excited and urged to action, is brutal enough for the moment, before their manly feeling resume their sway, and shame creeps in to stare them in the face. He would probably have been hustled, his clothes torn from his back, and a rain of blows have been upon him till he sunk exhausted, when he would have been kicked and trampled upon till he lay insensible with half his ribs broken, and there he would have been left.

"Police! Where are the police?" shouted the young man.

"Shut themselves up to be safe," roared a hoarse voice, and the young man grew dizzy with fear, as he gazed wildly round at the sea of menacing faces screaming and struggling to get at him.

As he cowered back in blow struck him on the temple, and another on the lip, causing the blood to trickle down, while the great hammerman held him, struggling helplessly in his grasp.

At that moment, when sick with fear and pain, Richard Claire's legs were failing him, and he was about to sink helpless among his men, something white seemed to whiz by his ear, to be followed instantly by a heavy thud. There was a jerk at his collar, and he would have fallen, but a strong arm was thrown before him; and the fight was over, for at once the big workman Harry had staggered back among his friends, as a loud voice exclaimed:

"Call yourselves Englishmen? A hundred to one!"

The new vicar's bold onslaught saved Richard Claire for the moment, and the next full back, freeing the foreman as they did so. It was only for the moment, though, and then with a yell of fury the excited mob closed in upon their victims.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

DOES YOUR CLIMATE SUIT YOU?

Most of us take what comes in the matter of climate. Perhaps we step to the window and the Eskimo pets out of life up there among the ice, snow and terrible cold.

Perhaps people about the equator wonder how those of us in a temperate clime ever put up with our long winters.

As I said in a former article, you will probably do well in your own particular climate if you are in good ordinary health.

Perhaps a word for our less fortunate friends might be in order.

Now, you seek a different climate for one of two reasons. It is because it is a "bracing" climate or a "soothing" climate. So as in other things let your common sense be your guide. For instance you have always had good health, have been very robust, and some acute illness comes upon you. You make the ordinary recovery, but it is thought wise by your physician that you get away to a "different" climate for a while.

In your case then, you should go to a bracing climate, because your good buoyant health will come back to you generally speaking dry climates are bracing, and moist or climates high in humidity are soothing.

Usually a dry climate is subject to greater variety of changes, which in themselves are stimulating to the naturally healthy individual. Moist climates have a very even temperature and few changes, which are of course soothing to the less healthy person.

You can readily see then that in the high or mountainous climate living and exercising outdoors, you would develop an appetite for anything and everything, and so build up your system. In the soothing climate your whole aim will be the important thing, and food would be a secondary matter at first.

Okanagan and Fruit Conservation

The view is that of a Dominion fruit district in the Okanagan Valley near which Mrs. Smith (inset) has resumed her philanthropic activities.

THE fruit products industry of Mrs. R. M. Smith of Haremaia, Okanagan Valley, is a story of Canadian initiative that has assumed large proportions. After extensive research work and experimenting on a small scale, Mrs. Smith is this year opening up a large plant for the dehydration of fruit at Poplar Grove, between Naramata and Penticton, where seventy fruit products will be prepared instead of eleven as sent out by Mrs. Smith from her ranch on the benches.

The site of the new factory is a point in the very heart of the fruit district and convenient to the railway, a city on the Kettle Valley Railway will be run into the premises.

The most important factor of the enlarged scope of the work is that the new industry will utilize much soft and perishable fruit that would otherwise go to waste as most of the fruit must be in a tree-ripened condition for dehydration and therefore much too ripe to ship.

Mrs. Smith was visiting on the prairies in the early stages of the war when conservation of food was beginning to be a vital question. She saw dried vegetables for the first time, and it set her to dwell on the possibilities of the dehydration of other fruits and vegetables. Later, visiting in the Okanagan Valley, she was much concerned over the large quantity of fruit and vegetables that could not be shipped so, with broad vision and patriotic idea, she began the evaporation of fruit. Mrs. Smith made an experiment of the work and persisted, despite the fact that men of experience declared that she could not dry fruit other than apples. Now she is in the unique position of being the first one in Canada who has dried fruits, other than apples, on a commercial basis. Her dried peach is the only totally peeled peach on the market, either in Canada or the United States.

Mrs. Smith, being very much interested in movements to promote the practical usefulness of women, declares that there is a large opportunity for women in this work. Having no desire to keep a monopoly of the new industry of which she may be said to be the founder, she hopes that all women in fruit growing districts may start small evaporating plants to care for their surplus fruits, not only for their own households but also for export.

By dehydration a large part of the fruit and vegetables which otherwise spoil is saved. The products are also reduced in weight and bulk that one railway car or one ship will carry as much dehydrated fruit as ten of fresh.

Mrs. Smith, in continuing to make a study of conditions, is spending a part of her time and demonstrating that women are the natural housekeepers of the race.

St. Louis Man Gets World's Largest Orchid Collection

Dr. HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 18 (United Press).—Now the natives in the South American Andes are wise that "Americanos" are easy.

Consequently the rare and appar ently romantic job of searching for large quantities of orchids is nothing but dull diplomacy. This is the report of G. R. Pring, horticulturist of the huge Missouri Botanical Gardens, who has returned from South and Central America with 5,000 orchid plants, giving the gardens here the largest collection of orchids in the world.

Pring's shipment was the only quantity importation of the rare plants into this country for the year on account of a quarantine. This will be said in a mammoth "mail display" here this fall.

"Orchids do not lay their beauties at the feet of any passerby." Pring said. "They hid away upon the inner crest from sight, one hundred feet in the air.

"Orchid hunting is real hunting. Frequently when the plants are located, it is necessary to fell the tree to get them."

Pring's rosy dreams of wealth cut and picking the best of the plants by the roadside were dispelled when he got to Bogota, capital of Columbia. Through American residents he bargained with Indians, who brought the orchids out. But before saw the Indians who secured the orchids, the residents explained that "Fifth Avenue prices" would be charged anyone not known to be a resident.

The orchids secured in South America were of two principal classes the "Cattleya Trianae," a gorgeous rich mauve flower with broad purple lip, and "Schroederae," another mauve flower with a blended purple lip. The cases of cattleya secured by the native took thirty days' "freight time" to reach Bogota.

In Panama, Pring obtained from an orchid enthusiast 200 plants representing 100 varieties, making the largest, most diverse collection in Panamanian orchids ever brought to the United States, and including one of the only two known specimens of an albino cuerve orchid. As in animal life, albino types are scarce among plants.

In Jamaica, Pring secured 30 more rare orchids.

"We made 260 miles by motor a day between New York and here, he said on his arrival. "But it took four days to travel 110 miles by horse over the mountains coming out of Bogota to an ocean port."

The 5,000 plants will produce about 10,000,000 worth of flowers in their ten-year life, Pring said. Each plant produces about eight flowers a year valued at $2 each. But none of them will be sold.

Hays Getting Money To Build Studio Home for the Girls

Hollywood Wants Fewer Drifting Girls, Who Are Dangerous to Themselves and to the Movie Game

By ROBERT A. DONALDSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHAPTER IV.

Los Angeles, Aug. 18 (United Press).—A campaign is now under way in movieland to raise the dimity of "extra" work ad to form a colony of "extra" work and to form a colony reasonable-living and form a substantial part of Hollywood life.

for. The Studio Club has always been filled to capacity. The two weeks rule has never been enforced, and girls were housed there for several months, until they could get on their feet financially.

Membership in the Studio Club is not limited to girls who aspire to be movie actresses, but is open to all girls who work in the movies—stenographers, film cutters, scenario readers and secretaries.

Hays' Campaign

A campaign, headed by Will H. Hays, movie czar, and the big producers, to raise $150,000—for a new Studio Club building, to house 100 girls and serve as a recreation center and club house for all movie girls in Hollywood. Girls would be permitted to live at the new club for as long as a year, unless the rush of girls to Hollywood becomes greater than at present.

"The majority of girls who come to us are of good type, clean, wholesome and serious-minded," one of the club's secretaries told the United Press. "Most of them are from small towns, and are generally girls who have gained some fame in home-town amateur theatricals. Most of their families are in moderate circumstances. Of course, a large number of them are quite unsophisticated as to the ways of the world and the dangers that beset a single girl in the motion picture or any other large business. I feel sure the club has saved a great many girls from going astray. Where girls have told us of improper advances we have taken the matter up with the studio heads and usually have put an immediate stop to such of the cast invitees.

Must Work to Live

"After a few weeks many girls who have come with high hopes of becoming stars run out of money, and confess to us that they must have work to live. Then we try to get them located in other lines in the movies where they can make a good living, if they are qualified for the work, or if not, we try to get them work of some sort in Los Angeles stores.

"For too many girls who have only small savings come to Hollywood only to realize too late that even if they have the ability, it takes time to break in to a point where they can earn enough on which to live. Any girl—if she must come to Hollywood, ought to have enough money to live for six months at least. She should also have a good wardrobe as a girl without plenty of clothes for all occasions cannot qualify for the wide variety of scenes which require extras.

"Of course," the secretary added "we see only a part of the girls who come to Hollywood. From a fair test, we hope to win success in another way, and the last place they would think of coming would be the Y.W.C.A."

(THE END)

Hollywood wants fewer drifting girls—girls who are given to chance acquaintances, find who, because of lack of proper environment, are tempted to listen to improper advances by men influential in the studios.

Several years ago the Y.W.C.A. in Hollywood started the Studio Club, a temporary home for girls coming to Hollywood to go into the movies. It housed 20 girls. They were supposed to stay only for two weeks, while they got located elsewhere, although hereafter they were urged to make the Studio Club a social cen-be presented at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday, is a story of Canada but there isn't a mounted policeman in it. The story deals with the trading of the North and the love of a fur buyer's daughter for a young and intrepid sheriff. It affords Miss Brady an excellent opportunity for a new screen character.

One of the thrills in this picture is a mountain snow-slide, actually photographed, which buries most of the little Canadian village where most of the action takes place.

Miss Brady is surrounded by an excellent cast, including Wallace Ryan Mario Majeroni, Stephen Gratton, W. M. Cavanaugh and Margaret Morgan. "The Detective," a good Larry Semon comedy, Sport Review, and an interesting Jungle story are being exhibited on the same program.

"THUNDERING HOOFS" GREAT RACING FILM HERE MONDAY

Another big racing picture is coming to the Regent Theatre, this Monday to Wednesday, when "Thundering Hoofs," and features charming Peggy O'Day is dashing and fearless rider, a girl star who can ride a horse as well as any man and one who never demands a double. "Thundering Hoofs" is full of dramatic situations all leading up to the big race; which it will be said, ranks one of the best races ever appeared.

"Toonerville Topics," another of those popular Fontaine Fox rural comedies, Fox News, and Fred Thompson and Ann Little in a new chapter of Universal's great of serial "The Eagles Talons" have been arranged for exhibition on the same program.

Music & Drama

HOLT IN DELIGHTFUL PICTURE

Proving a delight in every respect Jack Holt's new Paramount stellar vehicle, "A Gentleman of Leisure," a light comedy drama of love and intrigue, is the feature offering at Griffin's today, matinee and night. Sigrid Holmquist is Mr. Holt's leading woman, and the strong supporting cast includes Casson Ferguson, Alice Francis, Frank Morgan, Warren Paul and Alice Queensbury.

This is one of the finest productions in which Mr. Holt has appeared for many months. The role of Robert Pitt, a wealthy young American, is one especially suited to the particular style of acting. "A Gentleman of Leisure," affords Mr. Holt a role of signal power, of which he makes the most.

A good Century comedy, a Kinogram and William Desmond in Universal's "The Phantom Fortune," serial, are being exhibited on the same program.

ETHEL GREY TERRY AT REGENT IN AN ENTERTAINING OFFERING

Nobody thinks taking pills if they are sugared. In "The Self Made Wife," a Universal attraction, at the Regent Theatre, today, matinee and night, Charlotte Ives, who wrote the story, dispenses mental pills with a free hand for the mistaken little housewife, who has not kept in the path of progress and has got somewhat out of the awkward slovenly age. She makes one of the characters say to Ethel Grey Terry who plays the leading role:

"It isn't that you are not pretty, it's your dress and hopeless expression"

It was a bitter dose for the little housewife when she realized it all her own fault, after all—but there was plenty of sugar in the dose, as will be seen by Ethel's screen fans who visit the Regent Theatre this afternoon or evening.

In addition to the above excellent offering, the comedies and Pathe News are being exhibited.

SIR HARRY LAUDER TO APPEAR HERE

Noted Entertainer Will Inaugurate American Tour in October

William Morris, director of Sir Harry Lauder tours, has received a long cablegram from the famous Scottish entertainer, announcing that he will arrive in San Francisco October 15, preparatory to inaugurating his eighteenth tour of the United States and Canada. He will open his season the following day at Santa Rosa, California. San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and other Pacific Coast cities will be played, followed by a trans-continental tour which will reach its floodtide in New York City the week of February 18, 1924. The tour, which will cover a period of twenty-five weeks, will be the singing comedian's longest and most comprehensive American season in several years. Included in the itinerary are: El Paso, Ft. Worth, Dallas, Houston, Little Rock, Memphis, Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Montreal, Portland, Me., Boston, Philadelphia and Washington.

Sir Harry closed his last American season in San Francisco, early in February, and returned immediately for Melbourne, Australia, where he appeared for several weeks. Engagements in New Zealand and New South Wales followed. At Honolulu on his return trip, the ship will dock for twelve hours to enable him to give a performance for his Hawaiian admirers. The comedian, it is announced, is bringing back a big budget of new and characteristic songs to share the program with the popular old favorites.

Sir Harry and his company of entertainers will be seen—and heard—in this city at the Griffin Opera House this season.

NINE LOSE LIVES IN MUSKOKA HOTEL FIRE

HONOR MEMORY OF WAR HEROES

G.W.V.A. Holds Impressive Services in Connection With Decoration Day

UNVEIL MEMORIAL

Signal Honor Paid to Memory of Private Albert Woodrow Green

"Every Belleville soldier who laid down his life on the battlefields of Flanders during the Great World War, inspired by no doing, that he was making a sacrifice life unto that of the Great Founder of Christianity, who likewise gave up his life for his friends, and was first to say, 'Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends'."

Thus was the philosophy expounded by Rev. Dr. Marr of Edinburgh, Scotland, who is in charge of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church here for the summer months, and who was chief speaker at the Decoration services of the Great War Veterans' Association of this city, held Sunday afternoon. Dr. Marr, who was a chaplain in France with an Imperial Contingent, said that he firmly believed that Christ had taken such brave and unselfish men with Him to His eternal home.

"We may have forgotten some of the beautiful sentiments of the Great War," he continued, "but we shall never forget those men who laid down their lives that we might enjoy liberty, honor and peace."

Speaking from the standpoint of the Motherland, Dr. Marr pointed out that the one great unforgettable fact in the mind of the Motherland at the outbreak of hostilities in 1914, was the fact that Germany's 'dream' and hope that the bonds between England and her colonies would snap when war once was purely a dream, for Canada, Australia and all colonies said "We are your children, and we are ready to aid our mother." Accordingly the colonial troops left all that was dear and dear to them, to vindicate the principles of truth, love and liberty, which is presented in its truest form by Christianity.

"The lives of Canadian soldiers were not laid down in vain," continued the Scottish divine, 'for had they not died for us, we would now be under the iron heel of Germany. We would not be allowed to spend one five-cent piece without her permission, and would be denied of all freedom and liberty which we now enjoy. The liberty and freedom which we are now enjoying justifies us in saying this."

Dr. Marr, who travelled the length and breadth of Germany last year, and studied conditions there, asserted that workers in that country are suffering, but there are evidences also of wealth and luxury. Prices remember 1914, and little wonder she demanded that the same sacrifice be made by others as that their fathers made in 1870.

Impressive Services

Belleville's be-ribboned war veterans, many of them battle scarred and in uniform, attended the G.W.V.A. parade at 2 p.m. on the armouries lawn following the parade from the G.W.V.A. memorial building at 1 p.m. The 15th and 15th Argyll Light Infantry band under command and leadership of Lieut. H. Hinchey.

As the service opened and the band softly played the opening hymn the throng which assembled stood reverently, the men with bared heads, throughout the service.

A huge flag-draped platform, which was literally smothered in flowers, afterwards used in the decoration service, at the cenotaphs, provided a fitting setting for a beautiful white cross which bore the legend, "In Memory of Our Dead Comrades." Mr. H. F. Kerr, Belleville called as chairman, and on the platform with him were Lieut.-Col. R. Vandewater, D.S.O., officer commanding the 15th Argyll Infantry Battalion, Rev. Dr. Marr, M.A., Rev. J. L. Gees, Col. Barragar, Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., Adjutant Cranwell of the Salvation Army, Major Bennett and Mr. Robert Bogle. The detachment of marching veterans were commanded by Major T. D. McManus.

The service, though short, was appropriate, and its modest sincerity seemed to make it just that much more appreciative.

Following the closing hymn and the National Anthem, Adjutant Cranwell of the Salvation Army pronounced the benediction and Last Post was sounded by Drum Major R. Fickle and Bugler Dave Crere.

No Alluvial Gold Found in Labrador, Prospector Reports

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

St. Johns, Aug. 20.—Patrick Cofrane, mining engineer, who has just arrived from Labrador, reports his prospecting party found no signs of alluvial gold deposits in that territory. He says men reporting gold in quantity at Stag Harbor are liars.

Closing of Home Bank Doors Causes Flurry at Lindsay

Lindsay, Aug. 20.—Local depositors in the Home Bank of Canada were greatly excited when it was announced that this well-known banking institution which received its charter in 1854, had suspended payments. Most of them gathered in front of the bank anxious to receive information as to the actual condition of affairs, but there was nothing given out but the bald statement posted on the door that payments had been suspended.

A great many depositors reside in the country and the announcement of the bank's suspension came in the nature of a bolt to them when they reached town. They stood in groups in front of the bank and discussed the situation.

A prominent local depositor who was at the bank early Saturday morning was not at all depressed or excited ,when he read the announcement on the door. He felt satisfied that the depositors would be fully protected.

MOTOR ACCIDENT VICTIM SUCCUMBS

David Babcock, aged man who was struck down by a motor truck at the corner of Bridge and Front streets early two weeks ago, and who has been in the General Hospital here since, died at that institution this morning. An inquest will be held today.

Deceased, who was aged 78 years, had not been in good health prior to the accident, and his advanced age militated like recovery.

Born here in 1845, the late David Babcock was a son of Mr. and Mrs. David Babcock. For a number of years, deceased was a widower, and had resided with a daughter, Mrs. A. Davidson, 110 Dale Avenue. One son, William, and three daughters survive. The daughters are Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. William Hicks and Mrs. James Templeton, both of Toronto.

Demonstrate Value of Radio and Plane Against Forest Fires

Temagami, Ont., Aug. 20.—A demonstration of the use of radio and airplane in the detection and fighting of forest fires, marked the feature of the program arranged for the delegates to the British Empire Forestry Conference which have been formally commenced in a sale place, though unknown to the aviators attached to the forestry department who were using the flight to this point from Sudbury. The aviators, however, caught sight of the fire from their plane and sent a wire message to the Chief Forester's station here. The message being distinctly heard by the delegates to the conference who were grouped around the receiving set at the time.

The party spent the night at Temagami and proceeded by their special C.N. train for Toronto Park Saturday morning. They left Iroquois Falls Saturday night for Minaki where some hours were spent at Minaki Inn. Their special train was due to reach the C.N.R. station at Winnipeg at 10:30 o'clock Sunday night. During their stay in Winnipeg they will make their headquarters at the Fort Garry Hotel.

Death Caused By Overdose of Acid

Peterboro, Ont., Aug. 20.—J. L. Feeley died here Saturday as the result of taking an overdose of carbolic acid. Feeley, whose mental condition has been slightly affected through his wife service, was employed at Purdy's mill, just outside the city. At five o'clock Saturday morning he was sitting in the kitchen talking to members of the family with whom he boarded. They left him to go out to do the milking and on their return discovered lying on the floor dead.

POLICEMAN SLAIN IN DETROIT HOLD-UP

Seven Bandits Shoot Two Women and Four Men

Detroit, Aug. 20.—A seven-man band of killers held up the Alandale Inn, West Warren avenue, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, shot two women and four men, robbed nearly all the 150 roadhouse guests, and concluded their murderous debauch five hours later in Monroe, Mich., by killing a motorcycle policeman who tried to question them.

The dead policeman is Oscar Reinhardt, 30-year-old war veteran, who died in the Monroe Hospital without regaining consciousness, two hours after he was shot.

BELLEVILLE GIRL EARNS HONORS

CHARGE AGAINST CARTER DROPPED

Ernest Pope was charged with driving a carriage wagon in the city without a license, in police court this morning. He was defended by Col. E. D. O'Flynn and pleaded not guilty.

Pope is drawing gravel to the Standard Paving Company from Rose's pit but the gravel which he is drawing is not Rose's gravel, but his own. He purchased 4,000 loads from Rose at 40 cents per load, and paid for it. He now is drawing it to the Standard Paving Co. and receives $2.75 per load delivered on Station street. The accused maintained that he was not driving for Rose, hence did not require a license.

The charge against accused was dismissed.

DEPOSITORS MAY GET PERCENTAGE

Officials Believe That Levy on Shareholders Will Be Necessary

PROBE LAUNCHED

Acting Minister of Finance Declines to Comment On Situation

Toronto, Aug. 20.—Although the announcement of the suspension of the Home Bank of Canada has come as a severe blow to the thousands of depositors in Toronto as elsewhere, strong hope is felt that when the assets are realized upon to the fullest extent, though probably at the cost of a levy in part at least upon shareholders under the double liability provision, persons whose money has been deposited with the bank will be indemnified to some extent against loss.

The curator, Mr. A. B. Barker has announced that all the funds the Home Bank will be accepted at par at any other banking institution, thereby relieving any anxiety among nobody timorous holders.

So far as the depositors are concerned they are likely to have a percentage of their money within ninety days, the period for which payments of the Home Bank have been suspended, while other payments will likely be forthcoming as the process of liquidation progresses.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—Hon. J. A. Robb, acting minister of finance, when spoken to Saturday in regard to the suspension of payment by the Home Bank, stated that the finance department had not yet commented at the present time. Meanwhile, it is understood an investigation by officials of the department is proceeding.

The returns which have been made to the finance department by the Home Bank up to the present have been under the Bank Act as it existed before the recent revision. The returns of the new act which affect returns to the government do not come into force until October 1.

In connection with the question of the soundness of the Home Bank's notes, it is pointed out that there are a first charge against the assets of the bank, and that, further, there is a circulation fund maintained by the 10 banks which, is available for meeting the notes of the Home Bank.

According to the list of shareholders of the Home Bank issued on December 31, 1922, the Journal says:

The largest holder was one of 2,114 shares in his own name and 494 shares are held in trust for him by others. The value of his stock is said to $211,400 and $49,000. Twenty thousand shares are held by the bank itself, or sold, the majority being held in the west and in the vicinity of Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—While it appears inevitable that the shareholders of the Home Bank of Canada will not only be called upon for the full amount of the double liability, hope is entertained in financial circles that the depositors will not be seriously affected.

Much depends upon whether the assets and liabilities will be taken over upon the market or whether they can be conserved and sold when the market is better and more may be realized. The belief that the depositors' losses will be slight is based upon the following figures:

Reserve	$ 50,000
Profit and Loss	50,000
Real Estate Value over and above bond issue	250,000
	$ 850,000
Capital	2,000,000
Double Liability	1,000,000
	$3,850,000

Available before depositors are affected .... $ 3,850,000

Toronto, Aug. 20.—The last statement of the Home Bank would indicate that that institution has some very real assets against its $17,367,522 of savings deposits. Its total assets are placed at $27,918,063, of which assets which seem reasonably certain are worth at least $20,000,000, or over 81 cents on the dollar of savings deposits. These assets include $4,000,000 of Dominion government notes; notes of other banks and balances due by other banks in Canada some $2,170,000; balances due by banks abroad over $1,120,000; Dominion and Provincial Government securities at not more than par $345,000; municipal and British and foreign public securities, $221,239; railway and other bonds, debentures and stocks not exceeding market value, $2,998,372, and call and short loans in Canada on bonds, debentures and stocks, $1,272,000.

In addition to this total are real estate, mortgages on real estate and bank premises totalling $600,000. Added to this is the big total of $15,737,200 of "current loans and discounts in Canada." In this big sum will presumably be found the loss. Supposing every dollar of this were lost, $1,000,000 would remain, which, with the "safe" assets above would bring the total up to over $21,000,000 as against $17,287,522 of savings and $4,764,737 of current deposits at total of a little over $22,000,000. The situation for depositors, therefore, does not seem by any means a very black one.

Toronto, Aug. 20.—The Home Bank, which closed its doors Friday, has 57 branches in addition to the head office. Fourteen of these are in Toronto, four in London and four in Montreal. The locations of the outside branches are as follows:

Alliston, Ont.; Amulet, Sask.; Aurora, Ont.; Arnprior, Ont.; Bell River, Ont.; Belton, Ont.; Blairmore, Alta.

The head office of the Home Bank goes back almost seventy years. The institution had its beginning in the sanctum of a certain Catholic bishop, who took after the financial affairs of his flock.

It began as the Toronto Savings Bank in 1854, reorganized in 1872 under the name of the Home Savings and Loan Company. James Austin was the first president, and the vice-president was the late Senator Sir Frank Smith. Eugene O'Keefe and John Foy were on the board of directors.

The institution prospered and in 1903 it applied to Ottawa for incorporation as the Home Bank of Canada. The late Senator Smith became the first general manager of the Home Savings and Loan Company and became general manager of the bank.

FOUR DROWNED WHEN SKIFF IS CAPSIZED

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 20.—Four persons met death by drowning as the result of a skiff upsetting in Colins' Bay, Glenburnie, seven miles north of Kingston, shortly after noon yesterday. The victims were Joseph Sakell, proprietor of the Superior Ice Cream Parlor, Princess street, aged about 32 years, and three young lady clerks, Misses Evelyn Gallagher, Rose Myles and Isabel Turnbull.

A party of eight left for the lake in the morning to fish. They engaged two boats. There was a strong wind blowing and the skiffs were leaky. One with the three girl victims and one young man sank. In trying to make a rescue, Joseph Sakell, who was in the other boat, was himself drowned.

TWO ARE FINED FOR DRUNKENESS

Merry Party Has Aftermath in Court—Two Others to Face Trial

John Coughlin was fined $25 and costs of $9 by Judge Wills this morning on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place, William Pennyfeather was assessed $10 and $9 costs on a similar charge, and Jack Hunter, charged similarly, had his case laid over for one month. During the month, if Hunter violates the law in any way, he will get a jail sentence as he is an old offender, though a young man! The fourth man in the party, Fred Tanner, did not appear this morning.

These four men were arrested Sunday afternoon in a laneway, and were intoxicated. Coughlin stated that he drank ginger wine also Wilson's fluid wine, and became very ill. He has been unwell of late he explained.

"You should get married, and spend your money on a wife and family instead of on this stuff," suggested Judge Wills. "And if you are not well have a doctor prescribe for you, not two painters, who will prescribe varnish."

Mr. Penny ever misrepresents himself again to a physician to procure a prescription for alcohol in this city he will go to jail. He is a persistent offender.

It was a merry party evidently and while others were building factories in the air, this quartette were mixing alcohol and wine. The alcohol was procured by Penny and Hunter, the quantities being one pint and 10 ounces respectively. Coughlin supplied the $10, Penny supplied the broken leg, and Hunter "talked fast" to the physician. Two or three bottles of wine added to the alcohol caused the condition of the four men when arrested.

Survivors Tell Graphic Stories of Escapes From Death in Building

IDENTIFIED DEAD:

Miss Margaret Bowker, aged 16, daughter of C. G. Bowker, General Manager, Central Region, Canadian National Railways.

Miss Annie Leigh, 4 Russell street, Toronto, (employed in hotel).

Mrs. James Alexander, 4 Dover street, Toronto, (employed in hotel).

Mrs. Barrett, Toronto or Hamilton (employed in hotel).

Miss Phyllis Saranda, Thor (employed in hotel).

Miss K. Rogers, Cleveland, Ohio.

MISSING:

Elizabeth Keegan, Cincinnati, Ohio.

INJURED:

Mrs. Simpson; Mrs. Young, thought to be from Toronto; Miss Kitty Carey, New York, all employed to help in the hotel, and Miss Mary Millar, Miss Nellis Smith, guests at the hotel.

Huntsville, Ont., Aug. 20.—A fire broke out at the WAWA Hotel, Lake of Bays, Muskoka, at 12.30 o'clock, yesterday morning and within fifteen minutes the entire building was burned to the ground.

The dead, so far as known at present, number nine, but this, it is feared, may be increased.

Mr. C. G. Bowker, general manager, central region, of the C.N.R., Toronto, occupied a suite in the hotel with his wife and children. He succeeded in getting the whole of his family out of the building. Mr. Bowker went back in the burning hotel, and it is believed that the youngest of his three daughters, Margaret, aged 14, dreached herself from the family group in the darkness, and in attempting to follow her father, met her way in the corridor and was fatally burned.

The fire originated in the elevator shaft near the baggage room and has first discovered by George Myers, the electrician, while an alarm was raised almost simultaneously by Mr. Taylor Henry and Dr. Shaver of Toronto. There is no fire-fighting system in the hotel but owing to the rapid spread of the flames and the confusion and fear apparently prevailed at such a time of the night when practically all the guests and employees had retired, it was impossible to bring it into full requisition.

There were 200 guests and 80 employes in the hotel at the time of the fire. The building was a two-story frame structure and 80 rooms. It was made a third storey, where the employes usually slept.

The guests owe their escape in their night attire, many leaping from windows. Boats from the Nipwin Hotel, across the lake, assisted in carrying the survivors to that place, men and women being provided with blankets and other temporary clothing to protect them from the cool night air. So generous was the subsequent response for clothing that when the special train left for Toronto all the survivors were well cared for and were as comfortable as could be made possible under such circumstances. There were many thrilling rescues.

A FAR-FETCHED THEORY

The theory that boys may become poolroom habitues as a result of playing billiards and pool in Y.M.C.A. clubrooms seems rather far-fetched. In fact, statistics do not support this contention, which, however, is infrequently made. The cry of a heart-broken mother whose 19-year-old son is charged with first degree murder cannot be accepted as a serious charge.

The environment and atmosphere of Y.M.C.A. quarters are such as to develop manliness and clean minds rather than to provide influences which may indirectly prove harmful.

Boys and girls who frequent Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. rooms can only be improved by the admirable affords. If the efforts of those in charge are ever in the slightest degree effective the danger of the young people succumbing to harmful influences is much less than would be the case under circumstances in which influences such as those wielded by the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. did not figure.

It is important, however, that the work of these institutions be supplemented by proper appreciation on the part of parents and proper home influences. Such institutions are entitled to co-operation to this extent at least. When this is assured, the value of the work is naturally greatly enhanced.

THE REAL DANGER

The reputation of a banking institution is like that of a woman—"one breath of suspicion" is likely to prove disastrous. For this reason banking officials must exercise extreme caution regarding drastic changes in policy and the dissemination of information concerning financial reverses.

When the Union Bank and the Standard Bank encountered shoals the officials of those institutions succeeded in regaining safe financial waters and explained, for the benefit of depositors, bond holders and others concerned, the causes for the losses followed and the details of the remedial measures adopted.

When the Home Bank of Canada found it necessary to suspend payment a similar policy was adopted and a detailed statement concerning the transaction was given to the press.

While the future of the Home Bank is by no means bright just now, the situation is highly creditable to Canada in view of the history of banking adventures in the United States. If an institution of relative importance in the United States had closed its doors an incipient panic would have been an immediate result and it is probable that a serious financial catastrophe, nationwide in scope, would have been averted only by prompt governmental action.

Of course, more serious consequences could be expected in a nation with the vast commercial structure and wide financial scope of the United States. Yet panics were not uncommon there during the first half of the nineteenth century.

The great underlying and illuminating feature of the recent difficulties in banking circles in Canada is the calm, logical attitude everywhere evident. There is no hysteria, no frantic search for scapegoats or rumors of impending disaster. This same attitude, a characteristic peculiar to Canadian civilization, materially mitigates the effect, in the case of the Home Bank, of the suspension of payment.

Naturally, the common-sense attitude evidenced is due in no small measure to faith reposed in the government and in the regulatory system by which the great banking institutions of Canada are controlled and supervised.

It appears that the probability of loss to depositors of the Home Bank is remote. The bank's figures show that the sum of $2,000,000 is available before the interests of the depositors are jeopardized. Bond holders and holders of real estate securities are protected and the shareholders of the bank will be first affected. Under the Canadian law, the shareholders are subject to double liability. The feasibility of this provision is readily apparent when it is considered that the shareholders are responsible for the policies followed by the bank. They naturally would hesitate to endorse any policy likely to affect the financial standing of the institution and, collectively, perhaps would evince a keen interest in the bank's affairs because of the double liability provision.

While a philosophical view of the bank's misfortune is commendable, it does not follow that an ostrich-like disregard of the financial situation responsible for the difficulties encountered in the banking world of Canada is advisable. When a great banking institution with deposits of $17,000,000 and with 60 branches is forced to close its doors and when two other great institutions, the Union and Standard, are forced to adopt heroic measures to prevent embarrassing losses, a serious financial situation exists.

Losses on large loans are ascribed as the immediate cause of the bank's difficulties. Whether these losses were due to depression in Canada or to reactions unforeseen by astute financial leaders and predicated upon developments not invited in the calculations is not explained. It is probable, however, that the depression from which Canada is emerging was in a measure responsible.

Whatever the causes, it now becomes the duty of the Dominion Government to locate the troubls and to apply emergency treatment.

Canada is facing another winter, the unemployment situation is still a problem in some sections, wheat prices are low and the facilities for grain transportation are not satisfactory. Further failures will greatly aggravate the condition. Finance Minister Fielding should take immediate steps to carefully diagnose the situation and to utilize the great power of the government in bring relief. Certainly, experienced and far-sighted government officials, in view of the urgency of the need, will, instead of hampering him, lend their wholehearted support.

BELLEVILLE SCHOOL DAYS

Have you ever gone up the river when the drive was coming down,
When millions of logs of honest pine, was racing towards the jack?
Have you balanced-a home-made pike pole, in hands that were tough and brown,
When the school bell closed for the summer and the sun had burned you black?

Have you noted the buoyant cedar go tumbling below the dam,
Diving straight down to bed rock,
then leaping into the spray;
To fall on the back of a tamarack,
and form the key of a jam.

To be smashed by the weight of the elms, and shouldered along to the bay?

Have you watched, as a long boom timber came skidding across the slide;
Then raced over spruce and hemlock for a ride through the rapids below?
Then you and I must be "illiterate, for I think you have taken that

Chapter VI.

MOTHER AND SON.

The rains were swelling in Tom Podmore's forehead and he glanced at Seely as any at his master, but the vicar's advice seemed like a new law to him, and joining himself to his defenders, with the great hammerman, they backed slowly to the gate, through the wicket, by which Richard Claire darted, and the others followed, the vicar coming last and facing the crowd.

The little door in the great gates was clapped to directly, and then there came heavy blows with stones and a few kicks, followed by a burst of hooting and yelling, after which the noise subsided, and the little party inside began to breathe more freely.

"Thanky, Tom Podmore, my lad," said Banks, shaking him by the hand. "I'm glad you turned up as you did."

Tom nodded in a sulky way, and glowered at the master, but he pressed the foreman's hand warmly.

"I'd fight for you, Joe Banks, till I dropped. If it was only for her sake; but not for him."

Meanwhile Harry, the big hammerman, was walking round the vicar and inspecting him, just as a great dog would look at a stranger.

"Say, parson, can you wrastle?" he said at last.

"Yes, a little," was the reply, with a smile.

"I'd may be like to try a fall wi' ye."

"I think we've had enough athletics for one day," was the reply. "Look at my hand."

He held out his bleeding knuckles, and the hammerman grinned.

"That's my head," he said. "'Tis a hard un, ain't it?"

"The hardest I ever hit," said the vicar, smiling.

"Ah, parson—is it now?" said Harry, with his massive face lighting up with pride. "Hear that, Tom? Hear that, Joe Banks?"

He stood nodding his head and chuckling, as if he had received the greatest satisfaction from this announcement; and then, paying no heed to the great bruise on his forehead, which was plainly puffing up, he sat down on a pile of old metal, lit his pipe, and looked on.

"I hope you are not hurt, Mr. Claire?" said the vicar. "This is a strange second meeting to-day."

"No," exclaimed Richard, grinding his teeth, "I'm not hurt—not much. Banks, go into the counting-house, and get my some water. Curse them, they'd dragged m eto pieces."

"Well, you would be so arbitrary with them, and I told you not," said Banks, "I know'd there'd be a row if you did."

"Fetch!" cried Richard, "are you going to side with them?"

"No," said Banks, quietly "I never rides with the men again the master, and never did; but you would have your own way about taking off that ten per cent."

SOME "PLUCKED" CANDIDATES WILL APPEAL--OTHERS WILL "TRY AGAIN"

Because of the number of students "plucked" in the Belleville Middle School exams, it is expected there will be some appeals. Others will simply "try it again." The following announcement explains the provision for appealing to a "higher authority":

"Where a candidate fails to obtain the fifty per cent. standard on a paper, the marks will be entered on his certificate. If, however, the answer paper has already been re-read by the Appeal Examiner, this will be indicated by the letter "R" inserted after the marks. In such a case, no further appeal will be considered. In other cases of failure, the candidate concerned may have his paper or papers re-read by making an appeal to the Deputy Minister before September 1st and submitting therewith a fee of $1.00 for each paper he desires to have re-read up to a maximum of $5.00, or after September 1st by submitting a fee of $2.00 per paper up to a maximum of $10.00. The fee will be returned if the appeal is sustained.

"In his letter of appeal the candidate should be careful to state (1) the name of the examination, (2) the subject at which he sat, and (3) the names of the papers he desires to have re-read. Before submitting the appeal, the candidate is strongly advised to consult his Principal or the teacher of the subject concerned.

"Where a candidate has obtained credit for a paper, no appeal for a higher standing will be considered."

John Johnson Brown scratched his head; "I'm sick of this business," he said.

"Going up and then down;
It's no wonder I feel queer.
I'd like something lively instead."

John Johnson Brown stepped into his elevator and seated himself on the stool. Before him stretched eighteen hours of going up and down. John Johnson hated it. He scratched his wooly head and thought that his life was going to be an elevator—every time he went up, he always came down again. "I'm a potty mesh cherub, too. I always come down with a bump."

There had been that time when his mammy had let him go a-riding with his elevator had gone to the top floor. But it was only for a month, and then down he had come with a bump. His mother had taken the lumbago. John Johnson had had to stop studying and go to work. He was disappointed. He wanted to be something worth while, but every time his elevator went around it was brought down to him a reminder that he was a negro. Was there nothing for a negro boy to do but to run an "elevator life?"

John came out of his thoughts with a start. He realized that the 'bell-hop' of him was buzzing. If he didn't tend to business more strictly he would lose even his menial job. He shot his car to the fifth floor for his passenger. He was relieved to find a kind old gentleman waiting. Instead of the harsh words he expected because of his delay, the gentleman smiled. "What is the matter, sonny?" he asked.

"Nothin' much, sah," John stammered, not knowing what to say. And then, because the old gentleman looked so kind, John suddenly found himself telling him all about his worries.

"Do you ever have time to read?" asked the old gentleman.

"Yes, sah. Some mechanics them isn't much to do. That's one reason I hate this job so. I just sit beah waitin', with nothin' to do but think." The old gentleman went around the corner. He was back in a few minutes with a new book, which he gave to John. It was the life of Booker T. Washington. Early the next morning he came back again.

"You aren't getting along very fast," he remarked, noticing that John was still reading the first chapter.

"I finished it long time, I'm readin' it ovah," John said. "If Mistah Washington had had my chance, I'll bet he would have been a greater man than he was."

A Man's View of Perfect Wife

The following are extracts from an article in the Metropolitan Magazine, by Mr. W. L. George, who sets forth his view of the perfect wife—

"I do not hesitate to say that the first quality of the perfect wife is to be attractive. I am for beauty first, every time, believing as I do that beauty is not merely a quality with which nature endows one, and that not, merely with which nature, is responsible for the triumphs that many women achieve. A wife cannot think too much of the enhancement of her good looks. Probably she is not born beautiful, since few are. But she has a Kindly countenance, knows that green does not suit her, and does not forget to connect every look with its object. These are the sole advantages with which she starts; it is left to her to make herself into a spectacle that will always charm.

"In the matter of clothes, the wife's great danger is the tendency to imagine that her husband is merely her husband, the person before whom one wears the mistiting coat and skirt which one must wear out; the person who always sees the old slippers. The idea is that Jack never notices. The same applies to untidy heads of hair. It happens that I need not only washing but manicuring. In this sense, too, the theory is that Jack never notices. But Jack does notice things. He does observe details, since no really decent man knows enough about them to forget, but he observes her in general. He has an impression of a woman, which is made up of the details that do not strike him.

"It is only that I can imagine the reader saying scornfully that a man who lays so much stress on his wife's appearances cannot really care for her personality. I think that he would not mind. But the perfect wife is not unconscious of the fact that she has not a perfect husband; believes being a husband is a man. Indeed, the longer he has been married, the more he will be conscious if the grace of his wife, the ease of her manners, the charm of her vivacity, increase the pride which he is only too glad to feel of her.

"The perfect wife is the wife who would be perfect; she may prove herself by loving. She is conscious of the issue in of paradox, but I do maintain that while it is easy to be too cold, it is equally risky to be to affectionate. Many a foolish wife overwhelms her husband with caresses at the moment when he is going out in a hurry to go out, when he is reading the newspaper with the light behind him, when he is generally he submits, but that should not content the perfect wife. Her husband is not a child, but a male. He should be left alone. She should choose her own appearance or her words, and she should wait. The time will come when his affection draws him to her; then let her resist him, not as if he were resisting his rights, but as if she were resisting his love. Never let her give a kiss as a favor always desires another soon.

"One road that must be followed if the wife is to preserve her personality is something that most wives seem to ignore, namely, the practical spirit. Many women cultivate with men a helplessness which they think pleasing; they deliberately pretend not to understand politics or finance, and think that this charms them. It does charm him at first, when he is in the state to be charmed by anything, but after marriage the time often comes when lips are kissed unless they speak wisdom."

Glad to Get Away.

I was in the music department of a department store. Two girls were playing records on the small phonographs which were on the back various parts of the room. I decided to try some. I was not familiar with the piece, but now know from my experience that it was a descriptive piece of electronic representating thunder. I soon realized why every one was staring at me. My music was so loud it drowned out all the rest.

A kind clerk came to my assistance and asked if I wished to buy the record.

I meekly answered "You paid him, and hurriedly left the place.—Exchange.

The Unknown Waste.

A Russian steamer, the Polotofski, which was caught in the ice at Saint Michael's, Alaska, in 1913, did disappeared the next spring in the great storm off Cape Nome. It was a total addition to the Arctic phantom fleet. According to Popular Mechanics the abandoned steamship was seen by Eskimo hunters, who planned to board the vessel, but the ship broke up swept the ship away into unexplored waste. Every winter hundreds of unknown ships are seen in the mists of the frozen sea, but the Polotofski's name plate could be made out.

Former Kaiser Is Resigned To Fate; Not So His Wife

She Is Believed to Favor Attempt to Seize Royal Power and Murder the Republic

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright in United States and Canada, 1923)
CHAPTER III.

Berlin, Aug. 18 (United Press)—Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm has resigned himself to his fate.

Not so his followers, and, according to the belief of many strong monarchists, not so his wife, Hermine.

Advocates of the Hohenzollerns, as at least advocates of the monarchical idea, are extremely diligent for a return of the monarchy and they are, to put it mildly displeased that Wilhelm now shows no interest about again mounting the throne in Germany.

Some quarters believe his wife, ambitious to an extreme would like to be a second Zita, and force him to attempt o become again the ruler of the Reich.

The monarchists are not despairing, though they realize that never in the world's history has a deposed dynasty returned to power if it resigned itself to its fate, as Wilhelm is doing.

Wilhelm Indifferent

Such followers as Wilhelm still had, accuse him of too great indifference and too much laissez-faire toward the question of the fate of the Hohenzollerns who almost 300 years long ruled as the barbaric over the mark Brandenburg, who 900 years ago set upon their heads the kingly crown of Prussia, and 50 years ago assumed the kaisership over a united German Reich.

It may be said that the kaiser party is more haitery than the kaiser himself. The Kaiser has the decadent supporters when he and Princess Hermine are soon after the death of his faithful Kaiserin, Augusta Victoria. Some said it showed a lack of piety; and a posthumous infidelity toward the woman, who, for 30 years, was his true and sacrificing companion.

Wife Is Helpless

Others, however, say that the Kaiserin herself probably would have approved this outcome, for she realized the weakness and the helplessness of Wilhelm II., a cripple from birth and crippled by an operation on his mother at that time.

The Kaiser's coolness to his mother and his dislike for the English—his mother, Queen Victoria's daughter—are probably traceable to that event.

The former Kaiserin spoiled the Kaiser. Her herself made his breakfasts, poured his tea, buttered his toast and carved the meat. Her death left him even more helpless and almost tragically lonesome.

However, the opposition to the new marriage, both within the Hohenzollern family and in kaiseristic circles, is abating somewhat and hence the pro-kaiser politicians are again veering to raise their voices for action out of Doorn.

BELLEVILLE WINS THE SECOND GAME OF PLAY-OFF FROM PETERBORO, SCORE 7 TO 2

CHAMPIONSHIP OF BIG FOUR TO BE DETERMINED IN FINAL CLASH AT COBOURG PARK WEDNESDAY

Playing a lovely brand of ball behind perfect pitching, the Grand Trunks won from Peterboro at Riverside Park on Saturday by a 7-2 score. After being beaten at home on Wednesday last and fighting like demons with their backs to the wall, the Trunks displayed one of the greatest exhibitions of gameness and stick-to-it-eveness witnessed in thee parts in many a moon. To be trimmed at home on Wednesday was a sore touch, but Saturday's game was a much bitterer pill for Jakies gang to swallow. They imagined that it was a mere formality of winning and then hopping into the play-off for the championship with Oshawa. But brother Heckman got a little wild and Belleville batsmen began to pelt his offerings it was an entirely different proposition. Every one of the boys from manager to mascot performed in wonderful style and after the glorious victory are ready to tip-top shape to step into Cobourg and administer another trimming to the Petes. It was a great game as those that were present will tell you and Belleville was well-represented by a loyal band of fans who were confident that the Trunks were the superior team. Twenty-five hundred Peterboro rooters worked their weary way homeward disappointed that their favorites failed to come home first and feeling rather doubtful as to the outcome of Wednesday's game.

Manager Gerow sent Jack Oulette against the Northerners and the plucky little hurled a wonderful game. He allowed seven hits, struck out seven and issued two free tickets. Besides this he gathered three hits in three times up. Oulette maintained that he could trim Peterboro on their own diamond and the team were soldily behind him. He has performed the trick and deserves the credit. the hits. Oulette hurled that sphere as if it was a cannon-ball and Stan Hagerman held him up in fine style. Manager Gerow has not divulged his pitching selection for the final game. Both boys are going great guns and we are confident that either of them can turn back the Solonmulies at Cobourg Horse Show Park. After losing Saturday's exhibition the morale of the Hi-lickers has decreased about one hundred per cent. while Belleville's hopes have risen to the skies. It is estimated that five thousand fans will witness the third game.

Al. Heckman, too pitcher a nice game but was erratic at times issuing five passes and forcing two runs, both of which came in the sixth inning. Heckman whiffed seven batters, the same as Oulette but allowed nine hits. The blonde-haired boy was done for a blow-up and it came on Saturday. The strain is bound to tell on a pitcher. He is, however, a great pitcher and a merry battle may be expected at Cobourg. Heckman's team mates were chalked up with five errors, two at least were excoriment in the run scoring. When Collins failed to get under Browne combe line-drive and Ansaldo bobbled Harry Mills hit in the sixth innings the fun started and three runs were shoved across the platter. Not content with these the ballroosters went to work in the ninth and ran the tally up to seven and put the old ball game away in the bat bag.

Harry Brownscombe was the fielding star of the game. In the eighth with Swanny on first and Comolli at bat, the Petes hurley third—batman fooled to left field foul line. The ball came down within a few feet of the crowd, Browny running like a deer pulled down in wonderful style and turning quickly he whipped the ball to Weir at second in ample time to tag Swanny. It was easily the best play of the day and Belleville supporters present delicious with Harry Beal's third cur peppery little short-stop execpt od five chances. He had one error when he threw the ball five feet over Mills' head, but however it did no damage. Browny is playing a lovely game right now and his work is the talk of local sporting circles. "Big Penny" Mills, "Crock" Williams, Oulette and Brownscombe had a hits apiece. Vern Weir got the other safely. Weir, Oulette and Brownscombe were each responsible for an error, but practically all of them were excusable.

In the sixth Comolli singled with Collins on second. Wickey relayed the ball to Oulette who in turn threw to Hagerman in time to catch Frankie at the plate. It was a close play and Jakie protested but the Umpire waved him back to the bench.

Charlie Ansaldo was back at short stop and as usual was responsible for an error. Ansaldo is generally responsible, for at least one misplay.

Hagerman caught a lovely game and never once did he make a wild throw. Stan and Oulette work well together and we wouldn't be surprised if they'd work again Wednesday. But Williams worked beautifully last Wednesday here. Both twirlers can be relied upon to turn in a good game.

Peeny Mills' two hits were mighty clouts and came at the right time.

"Big Hap" Harrison was back in the Petes line-up, although he failed to show any of his old-time form.

"Crock" Williams played a peppery game at third and was much in the limelight.

Harry Mills made several pretty stops at first.

Vern Weir at second had four putouts although on one occasion he made a wild throw to Harry.

Allan Meagher coached at first base.

Wednesday's game should draw the biggest crowd of the season.

Hallinan and Thorne gave excellent service as umpires and will officiate again on Wednesday.

A goodly number of Bellevillians were among the spectators present. Naturally they were much elated over the result.

PURSES GETTING BIGGER, SAYS FARRELL

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 16.—When Shelby flopped its historic flop on July 4 by making a world's record host of the Dempsey-Gibbons heavyweight championship fight, the point was made by some observers that the day of big money fights had passed.

Predictions have been made to the same effect for several years, and while the day may come when spectators will not pay huge sums for ringside seats, and when champions cannot get up to a half million for their end, that day has not been yet.

Instead of facing the prospect of a slump in their business, the big promoters of New York are bothered with the problem of getting a place big enough to hold the crowds that want to see any kind of a good fight attraction.

Anyone who was on the scene at Shelby during the days leading up to the Dempsey-Gibbons fight knows that it was not the stiff prices that scared away the customers.

There were at least 20,000 fans around the northwest and as far east as Chicago and New York who would have bought tickets for the fight if they had been assured from the start that their tickets would be any good and they would see a fight if they bought them.

The absence of customers at the fight was not a protest against high prices or against commercialism, but it was the result of lack of confidence in the promoters who were trying to put on the show.

Taking some recent examples in New York, it seems certain that as long as the present high tide of interest in boxing prevails, there are thousands and thousands of boxing enthusiasts who will pay big money to see contests staged by a reputable promoter.

Any promoter who can assure prospective buyers that they will get the seat that their ticket calls for, that they will not be manhandled by officious cops and that they will be in no danger of roughnecks, will get a capacity house when he provides a card.

During the short space between July 21 and July 26 three great attractions were staged practically in New York—the Firpo-Willard fight in Jersey City, the Leonard-Tendler lightweight championship fight and the Dundee-Criqui featherweight championship.

Alternate, who saw the advance program and the scale of prices, turned their thumbs down and said: "Too much. That is an overdose."

But all three fights drew huge crowds and brought in more than a million dollars at the gate. They were three great fights, they were handled perfectly and the fans seemed to have the interest and the dough.

Tex Rickard bowled over the statistician's figure how much each of the attendees, bank officials and school teachers make a year, when he announced that he would pay Dempsey $300,000 and that Carpentier and that the Frenchman would draw $200,000 for his end.

Astute Dempseyites wondered what Rickard expected to collect for his end, and "all" he drew was $1,600,000, minus the expenses of the passes, the cost of the arena and the operating expenses. The seven more than paid for itself by its use since then.

Dempsey then set his service fee at $300,000 and he was figured as having a poor chance at ever getting that much again. Under ordinary conditions he would have received that much at Shelby, and under adverse circumstances he had to be satisfied with $245,000.

In his next fight, with Luis Firpo, Dempsey will get close to or over $500,000 for his end. His manager, Jack Kearns, the best business man in professional sports, said while he was in Shelby that Dempsey's next fight would bring him 50 per cent. of the gross receipts. Kearns, on some reasonable grounds, takes the stand that Dempsey is the real attraction, regardless of whether the has a large personel following as the champion or whether the fans pay in the hope of seeing him licked. He argues that if he can attract a gate of over a million dollars that he is just as much entitled to half of it as the promoter.

Whether Kearns is right or wrong depends upon personal opinion of the individual, but the fact remains that he gets what he gets after, and when he has promoters must feel that he is not so wrong.

No exact information about the purse for the Dempsey-Firpo fight has been given out by Rickard but it is understood that he agreed to give Dempsey 50 per cent. of the gross receipts.

Rickard figures that the gate will run almost as high as the $1600,000 Dempsey-Carpentier receipts, and as he has decided on a $5 to $25 prices and he expects to have 80,000 see the fight.

Dempsey's end of $300,000 for one fight almost as high as the $1,600,000 Dempsey it is to be figured on the "so-much-minute basis." A purse of $500,000 may cause Congress to do something, but it must be remembered that when the governments gets through taking its tax out of the purse and when Dempsey has whacked up the cash with Kearns, there isn't such a whole of a pile left.

If the public decides that Dempsey ought to be denied the privilges of making so much money, the public ought to quit going to see Dempsey fight. As long as the fans are willing to pay the freight, it follows that Dempsey should be allowed to collect.

TERRIERS LOSE 5-FRAME CLASH

Galt, Aug. 20.—Before the largest crowd that has ever witnessed an amateur ball game in Western Ontario, if not in Ontario, estimated at 7,000, with exactly 5,881 paid admissions at the gate, the Terriers were beaten in a five-inning contest, called on account of rain, on Saturday, by the Guelph Leafs, 6-2, and the play-off for the inter-county title is now tied, with the third and deciding game to be played at Riverside Park, Preston, on Wednesday afternoon.

Despite threatening skies ball fans from all over the province poured into Galt for the big game with fully a hundred autos parked on the grounds by the commencement on Page Eight

PEARL OYSTER BREEDING.

An Interesting Industry Conducted in California.

Nearly all the pearls that go to make up the gorgeous and expensive strings now so much affected by fashionable women and chorus girls are derived from a bivalve mollusk called the pearl oyster. In the Gulf of California a successful effort to breed this bivalve has been made.

A lagoon is cut off from the waters of the gulf by a massive barrier of stone-work, and behind the latter is a long sig-zag canal built of concrete. The canal is for the purpose of having pearl oysters, and its entrance is screened by gates of wire net to keep out marauding sharks, star-fishes and other enemies.

During the breeding season heavy, funnel wire-covered crates containing bullion trays of wood are placed on the bottom of the lagoon, in order that the free-swimming infant bivalves may attach themselves thereupon and proceed to grow. To make sure that there shall be plenty of "seed spat," a number of mature pearl oysters are put into each crate.

The burying of the lagoon is composed of plank growth and has been paved with stones by divers in armor. When the pearl oysters are one or two in diameter they are brought to the canal, cleaned of any of the weeds their shells may have acquired and placed in shallow trays in stone racks, being thus supported above the bottom and exposed to the tidal flow of the water.

Through the canal the tide flows and ebbs, carrying multitudes of minute plants and animalcules for the growing oysters. A thatched covering rises above the whole in order to protect the bivalves against the heat when the water is low.

After eight or nine months in the canal the oysters are returned to the lagoon in the crates, and left there to grow until they are three years old. Smooth, lustrous pearls are secured along the sloping beach facilitate the transportation of the crates, each one dragged over them into and out of the sea.

By this ingenious method the pearl oyster, hitherto wild, was reduced to a sort of domestication, and making the pearl-culture a productions a hazardous business, is deprived of its dangers. The production of pearls is necessary more or less accidental, but the shells, so highly valued for buttons and other uses, are secured, thus the bulk of the industry being preserved from the sea terrapins.

The blindness of breeding pearl oysters is an industry in itself, though this is not generally known.

Pauci's Interesting History.

A gruesome story attaches to a Flemish glass panel of the fourteenth century, which was on exhibition in London. Rug., with other stained glass work recently sold. The panel is represented the suicide of Judas Iscariot, with vividly realistic facial and morbid details. In old books of the period reference is made to a glass painter, known as Charles of Ypres, who is known to have executed a great part of the most remarkable work of its time. Charles hanged himself to a tree. This and other evidence makes it probable that the panel was the actual work of this very man. Another panel represents what is probably the only contemporary portrait on stained glass of Richard III. It recently came to light after being stored away in an Essex mansion for 311 years.

Nation Without a Language.

The Swiss constitute that curious anomaly a nation without a national tongue, and in this they are alone among all the peoples of the earth. This is all the more remarkable when their intense patriotism is considered and their wide knowledge of the country. The official languages are German, French, and Italian, and these three being the recognized "mother tongues" of almost all the Swiss inhabitants. About three-fourths of the people speak German, while the remainder divide four other languages among them—namely, French and Italian—the languages varying as a rule, according to the proximity of the people to such country tongue they speak.

Long-Time Tenant Rewarded.

Stories extolling the virtues of a landlord are heard so seldom that they bear repeating. This one comes from Paris:

An aged woman in a tenement in the Latin quarter not only is no longer compelled to pay rent but is supported by donations from the landlord and tenants of the building. Such unusual generosity is due to the fact that the woman has lived in the same apartment for 75 years. Neighbors called the landlord's attention to the woman's plight and a search of records showed that not a single quarterly rent payment had been missed during the last 75 years.

Eclipse Facts.

An eclipse of the sun is one of the simplest things imaginable. It is caused by the moon coming between the earth and the sun when they are on the same level.

There are three kinds of eclipses—total, partial, and annular. The partial eclipse is the one that usually happens before a part of the sun; a total one is when the moon covers the whole of the sun from view; and an annular one is when the moon, being farther from us and appearing smaller, leaves a ring of light outside its own disc.

Meteors and Steel.

A study of the great collection of meteorites in a European museum, has led to the interesting conclusion that meteoritic iron, as it falls from the sky, and the various steels produced in our modern steel works are the results of essentially similar chemical and physical causes, and even of the most striking characteristics noted in meteoritic iron may be the presence of a considerable quantity of nickel.

AN UNKNOWN INVENTOR

HE GAVE THE WORLD THE TYPEWRITER, BUT FEW KNEW HIS NAME AGO.

Other Attempts Had Been Made to Produce Artificial Writing, But Christopher Latham Sholes Was the Man Who Turned Out a Practical Invention—The Fiftieth Anniversary Will Be Celebrated.

The Herkimer County Historical Society of New York will this year celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the inception of the manufacture of the first practical writing machine. The invention of this machine was largely due to the patience and persistent labors of Christopher Latham Sholes, printer, editor and dreamer. In February, 1873, soon after he had obtained his letters patent, Sholes sent his model to Ilion, in the Mohawk Valley, where there in the year the first typewriter was manufactured.

Sholes was not by any means the first man to conceive the idea of a writing machine. The records of the British Patent Office show that as far back as January, 1714, a patent was granted to an English surgeon, Henry Mill, for "an artificial machine whereby all writings may be transcribed one after or parchment so neat and exact as not to be distinguished from print." Mills left no drawing or model or description of the machine. None is known to exist. He wrote his ideas down in history, however, as the first person known to have conceived the great idea.

The first American patent on a writing machine was granted in 1829 to William A. Burt, of Detroit. The only model of this machine was destroyed by fire in the Washington Patent Office in 1836, but a replica of it was made from the original description and exhibited at the Chicago world fair in 1893. Other writing machines were patented by Americans, among them Oliver T. Sheppard, of Boston; J. M. Jones, of Clyde, N.Y., A. Ely Beach and Dr. Samuel W. Francis, of New York, and John Pratt of Centra, Ala. The usual description of these machines was "it did good work, but it was too complex. It was not practical for at this stage the outstanding merit of the writing machine lay in its timesaving service. The typewriter did not relieve drudgery. Every year new machines were invented whose merit appeared in speed the utmost possibilities of the human hand seemed the limit.

In the winter of 1866-67 in a small basement room in the outskirts of Milwaukee began the acquaintance and association of three men who invented the machine to be manufactured by the Remington Arms Company. "It did good work, but it was too complex. It will never be practical. It will never be thrown aside." The typewriter as history! But there was much speculation in the early days of their new regarding its value, the telephone and the automobile. Sholes did not know until the last years of his life how near he had come to fame. Twenty-five or thirty experimental models of typewriters had been made before Sholes seemed to have failed to see much in their inventive efforts, the introduction of the typewriter was heed with many discouragements. It is a curious thing that the patent catalogues indicate that the first in the list of prospective users of the typewriter were lawyers, editors, authors and clergymen.

The business man was apparently considered the poorest prospect, for at the end of the list we find "The merchant, the last, and the business men, can perform the labor of letter writing with much more saving of time." The typewriter made its initial bow to the public at the Centennial Exposition held at Philadelphia in 1876. Curiously there was in connection with it "but it was rarely exhibited with some ridicule and very little serious inquiry." The machines were sold; about the only typewriting done in the early days was from samples of typewriting sold as curios by the exhibitors. Sholes is said to have sold his royalty rights for $12,000. "This was the only reward, so far as we know," says Mr. Biography, "that he ever received for his priceless invention, and the years of labor he had bestowed upon it." He died in 1890. When near death someone told him he had done a wonderful thing for the world. He replied: "I don't know about the world, but I believe I have done something for the women who have to work for a living, so that they will enable them more easily to earn a living."

PERSIAN RUGS.

How Possible to Reproduce Wonderful Blues and Reds.

Thanks to the vegetable and chemical chromatics created in American and European laboratories, it is now possible to reproduce the wonderful blues and reds in Persian rugs that have been puzzling scientists for centuries, according to Prof. A. De Forest Wards, the English Oriental rug expert.

Mr. Edwards and his American wife have been in Persia for the last fifteen years, making long journeys from their home in Tehran to find the strange mountains and undiscovered places searching for ancient rug patterns that have become almost extinct during the turbulent uprisings of the Near East.

Despite the fact that for generations we have become accustomed to thinking that the beautiful colorings of the rare specimens of Persian antique tapestries and carpets—could never be replicated, Edwards in his most reassuring in maintaining that the secret processes of these dyes are ours.

After experimenting for several years he is now using the new dyes in factories maintained by him near the Caspian in Persia, and has secured such excellent results that an importer in Philadelphia affirms that the rugs of Persian carpets from the hand looms of the orphans and widows of the late American carpet.

The secret of the radio and other modern achievements, it is not difficult to be conceived, is the twentieth century science, which has so much to do with chemistry and color and the dyes of antiquity," commented Mr. Edwards, in discussing the secret in Persian rug making. Mr. Edwards further affirms that Persian carpet rugs now being made in Near East relief orphanages are reflecting the most wonderful blues made for the Shah Abbas in the sixteenth century, and which were made with the dyes that royal patron of weaving was able to produce.

Out of the mountains of the Karabagh in North Persia Edwards and his passes above the rock inscriptions of Behistun, and three days' ride over plateaus to Ispahan, the villagers go down for yarns which are dyed for them by shilled chemists.

But the making of rugs is done with the same primitive cleverness of native fingers as in other days, when the Persian princes sitting in the stride simple looms fivetched between pegs in the ground, working the wonders of the hillside shepherd's flute.

Whatever part the modern civilized science has provided nothing to interfere or mar the ancient art of weaving. In the Persian city factories where yarns are dyed, there is the inevitable shadowy romance that belongs to the dyes created by the forgotten arts of the ages. Here in the great workshop of the American orphanage, where rug-making is not done for profit, but rather as a place where sullen, play, and certain western ideas mix in with the weaving, there is only one factory in Persia where the rug workers do not bite and discourage visitors. Here are gems like catacombs around the mosque and bazaar of Ispahan, the capital of the hillside shepherd's flute.

Shafts of sun, yellowed with dust of ages, penetrate through narrow holes through narrow holes in the roofs, illuminating rows of looms where the fanciful trees growing carpets. There is the pungent smell of sheep's wool, pounding wool on the loom, the silky sigh of the knots, and the monotonous chant of the loom master singing the count to guide fellow-workmen as the number of knots required in the pattern of blues and rich old rose.

Recovering Tar Products.

A combination distillation and burning process in which the tar products are driven off from coal before being burned under boilers, is now being noticed in connection with Coal from the bunker is fed to the boiler furnace through a distilling chamber in which it is a distilling chamber facing the glowing fire on the coal discharge into an extraction apparatus similar to Soxhlet, and the tar, ammoniacal liquors, and other products are recovered. The method is said to be more efficient than the separate process in gas plants.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Odd Experience.

One evening 'while entertaining company, our automobile was parked in front of the house. Several times during the blanket was taken from the car. We thought it strange at the time but soon found out.

Next morning when I went to get blanket was found on our front porch, neatly folded and the note attached: "Dear folks," it read, "I took your blanket from the car last night, being because it was very cold and I was forced to sleep in the car. Because I am an honest man and do not steal, and trust you will pardon me under the circumstances."—Chicago Journal.

Unproductive Land in U. S. A.

The annual report of the Secretary of the Forest Service calls attention to the immense and constantly increasing area of unproductive land in the United States. The sawmills make bare four per cent, but the rest of the land, improved farm land, particularly in the Southern States, is being exhausted rapidly. An American scientific expedition says the land is being turned into an unused state calls for some feasible and comprehensive plan for reforestation.

Prehistoric Cliff Dwellers.

Several skeletons of prehistoric beings estimated to be from 1,500 to 1,500 years old have been unearthed in the Casas region of Missouri. These people were cliff dwellers, but they should not be confused with the cliff dwellers who lived high up on the rocky sides of the canyons of New Mexico. Many crude weapons and implements were found with the bodies interred in the dry soil under the overhanging cliffs.

THE MOTOR PROBLEM

(Halifax Herald)

As the number of motor car accidents increase it is likely that greater consideration will be given to the question of responsibility. It is likely the effect that the law of "decdand" should be revived. According to this law a moving object or animal which caused the death of any "reasonable creature" it was at once forfeited to charitable purposes. That confiscation of motor cars responsible for causing death, while drastic would undoubtedly result in a very salutary thought, in some cases, the court might have difficulty in deciding what was a "reasonable creature."

Ex-Kaiser's Second Son Farms For Food and New Waist Lines

Eitel-Friedrich Plows and Sows Daily on His Potsdam Place

By CARL D. GROAT

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

(Copyright in United States and Canada, 1923).

CHAPTER II.

Berlin, Aug. 18.—(United Press).—Prince Eitel-Friedrich, the ex-Kaiser's second son, has turned farmer.

He has obtained a small farm in connection with his Potsdam holdings and there daily he may be seen following the plough or strewing seed from a sack bound round him, or performing other tasks of the ordinary farmer.

His farm work is partly intended to reduce a waist-line growing alarm lastly large despite his youth—he is only 39. And it is partly, to the fact that the royal prince no longer has plentitude of gold which was his in the days when Germany was a monarchy.

KEEPS HIS UNIFORM

Besides being farmer, the Prince finds time to ginger up the manifold affairs of the Hohenzollern house, its struggles to get a financial settlement with the new republic, and also from time to time put on the field gray uniform for monarchist meetings. As guest of many such celebrations, he fires the imaginations of those who hark back to the days of Germany's military splendor.

Such circles like to think of him as soldier and officer, leading his troops, sword in hand, against the foe. He and the aged Hindenburg share honors on the occasions of monarchist reunions in the peaceful village of Potsdam, which has not yet learned that another day has dawned upon the fatherland.

The public hears from time to time that "Eitel-Fritz" and his wife, Princess Sophie Charlotte von Oldenburg, six years older than himself, are having marital difficulties. As a matter of fact, the wedding of the wealthy princess is neither happy nor unhappy, merely conventional.

THE OTHER SONS

The other kaiser sons lead, for the most part, an even less eventful life than Eitel Fritz.

Prince Adalbert — the marine prince—lives in Potsdam with his wife Princess Adalbert, third and fourth sons of the emperor, have a life without much material care. They live in Potsdam with his wife the Countess Ina von Bassewitz, former court lady of the kaiserin, who received the title Countess of Lappin as she was not of equal birth, and who after the revolution became Princess Lappe.

Prince Adalbert lives in a beautiful villa in Hornberg over the Havel near Frankfurt am Main. His wife was the wealthy heiress Princess Adalheid von Sachsen-Meiningen.

Prince August Wilhelm, the fifth son, sometimes called the civil prince, or within the family "Auwi," is a victim of unrequited love. His extremely beautiful wife, the Princess Alexandrine von Schleswig Holstein, left him several years ago, divorced him three years ago and wedded Captain Lieutenant Ramsaun, with whom she now lives happily in Munich.

"Auwi" has the title of Doctor of Social Science from the University of Strassburg, and after the war he tried his hand at business. He was no great success, so to speak, he lives from the modest sum his father grants him plus the small state pension he obtains as lieutenant colonel.

LAST SON KILLED HIMSELF

The last of the kaiser's sons, Prince Joachim, deserted by his wife Princess Marie Auguste, ended his life in 1920 at Potsdam at the end of a spree which brought him home penniless.

The princess has led a mad career in the Bavarian resort town Berchtesgaden, though of late her escapades have rather dropped out of sight since she has given herself to an artificial swindler, whose case is still pending in the courts.

In general, it may be said that the new freedomi in Germany has been a blessing to the Hohenzollern princelings, for while they lack for some of the gold and luxuries of the pre-war time they nevertheless enjoy a freedom which was not theirs under the despotic family tyranny of the kaiser.

FAVOR COLLEGE FOR GIRLS HERE

Student Body of Albert College Said to Indorse Plan

PLAN RE-UNION

Old Students To Meet at College September 5 and 6

Agitation in favor of converting the present Albert College school building into a college for girls is reported to have gained considerable headway among the student body of the college as well as among others interested in educational matters in the district. The new college which will be completed in 1925 will be open only to male students, whereas the present system is co-educational.

It is argued that the college at Whitby can take care of the girl students of this district for a few years, but proponents of the plan to convert the present college building into a girls' school assert that approximately 200 girl students could be enrolled and that they should not be forced to go to Whitby. It is believed that the present building could be remodelled and equipped to accommodate 150 or 200 young women at little cost.

A meeting of old students of the college from Belleville and the Belleville district was held in the school room of the Bridge Street Church this afternoon. Plans were made for a re-union of old students to be held in the College on Sept. 5 and 6. During the re-union the oil paintings of the late Dr. Albert Carman and the late Dr. W. P. Dyer, former principals of the College will be unveiled."

OSHAWA MAN IS HELD UP ON HIGHWAY BY AUTO BANDITS

Oshawa, Aug. 21.—Edward Luke, a young man in the employ of Jame Lewington, Oshawa, was held up shortly after midnight at the point of a pistol by two unknown men near Thornton's Corners, two miles south of here, on the Kingston road and relieved of $175 in cash and two packages of cigarettes.

Mr. Luke, whose home is on the highway nearby, was walking home after spending the evening in Oshawa, when, at the point on the road near his home, a motor car came along from the west and stopped a few feet in front of him. Two men leaped out and demanded Luke throw up his hands.

Luke, who could not see the pistols in the darkness, thought a prank was being played on him, and began talking away. A shot was then fired by one of the men, which brought Luke to a quick stop. While one of the men covered their victim the other hurriedly searched him. The men ten leaped into the car and drove away, leaving Luke with a sore gold watch which they overlooked.

ADJOURNMENT IN INQUEST INTO DEATH OF VICTIM OF AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

The inquest held following the death of David Babcock in General Hospital, Sunday, as a result of a collision with a motor truck at 4.45 p.m. on August 9th, was adjourned sine die Monday afternoon until Thursday evening, August 23rd at 8 p.m. at the police court room.

At 4 p.m. yesterday the jury met at Tickell's Undertaking Rooms and viewed the remains, which were identified by a son-in-law, Mr. Alexander Davidson of 612 Easy Moira street, while sitting. Davidson, with whom Babcock resided, stated that Babcock was not well for more than a year. His trouble was bad, and he was mentally deficient and in Davidson's estimation, not fit to walk the street alone. He was constantly watched by the household while away on the day of the accident, by getting through a window.

Detective J. Truesdell told of his investigation of the accident and his visit to the hospital where he found the condition of the injured man to be as though he had lost his reason following the accident.

Chief witnesses at the inquest on Thursday evening will be eye witnesses of the accident and attending physicians. Alexander Gilmore of Roseneville, was the driver of the motor truck.

An inquest will be held at Madoc on Friday night into the death of Errol Jones at Ingoldsby Corners on Friday evening last. The inquest will be held before Coroner Dr. W. R. Harper of Madoc, and County Attorney Donnan will conduct the examination of witnesses.

The tragic death of Jones is the most peculiar which ever occurred in this locality. He was working on the straw stack at a threshing machine on the farm owned by Robert Broad, 4 miles north east of Madoc. About 6 p.m. a ball of fire was suddenly blown out into the straw stack, through the mouth of the straw blower. Immediately the stack landed, as did Jones' clothing, and he was terribly burned by flames. Mrs. Broad was summoned and made the trip to the farm in 15 minutes, but the unfortunate man was literally burned to a crisp. Jones was found Jones died Saturday morning. He was buried Sunday.

The origin of the fire is supposed to be caused by a straw or straws, hay tag become entwined in the boxing of the shaft, taking fire by friction. Ingoldsby, season's crop, stack, and mill were burned to the ground.

U. S. Negroes Study Arabic; Prepare For Return to Africa

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 21 (United Press).—With visions of some day returning to Africa and becoming "first citizens" among their less favored brethren in their "native land," scores of St. Louis negroes are taking up the study of Arabic.

Their leader is "Sheik" Ahmid Din who holds weekly Moslem religious services where the language is being picked up by the St. Louis negroes. Ahmid Din, is his Moslem name; He was christened P. N. Johnson, his father being an Arab and his mother a negress.

Attired in ordinary street clothes with the exception of a glaring green turban, Ahmid Din each week preaches the doctrine of "Al Hum Do Lilal Rahim Al Ameen," as he says it.

Beginning his lessons with a religious service, Ahmid Din drops a chapter in the Koran, proclaiming "there is but one God and that is Allah." Songs are then sung, followed by chanted prayers.

With characteristic negro fervor the negroes are flocking to "Shiek" Ahmid's school to be initiated into the mysteries of Islam and to "talk Arabic."

Already one hundred converts in St. Louis and I have been here six months," the "Shiek" said. "We are gaining rapidly.

TRAIN ROBBERS MAKE RICH HAUL

Secure Valuable Registered Mail Shipments in Oklahoma

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

Bartlesville, Okla., Aug. 21.—Train robbers escaped with valuable shipments of registered mail after holding up the Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger train, No. 23, near here at midnight. The train was nearing the end of a long grade and curve, moving slowly through a desolate country one mile east of Okesa when the engineer saw a red lantern waving across the tracks a short distance ahead. Brakes were applied with a jerk and the train jolted to a dead stop within a few feet.

A dozen masked men, all heavily armed, began firing as they covered the engine crew, express messengers and mail clerks. The express and mail car was cut from the train and the engineer, ordered to move ahead against his back, obeyed the bandits orders and pulled the car about 300 yards from the passenger coaches.

PUBLIC SCHOOL RATE 4-10 MILL LESS; FINES SHOW BIG DECREASE

Expenditure for Public Works $14,000 Lower Than Last Year—Fines and Fees Fall Off $5,000—Reductions Noted In All Revenue Sources of City

The estimated receipts and expenditures for the city were adopted by the City Council last night at a lengthy meeting which lasted from 8 p.m. to after 1 a.m. this morning. The report, which was discussed and examined by the city fathers in committee, is a very encouraging one, and shows a material paring of the assessment of the city.

It will be noted that the public school supporters' rate is 4-10 of a mill lower this year, being 27 6-10 mills. The Collegiate school is up one mill, while high and grade schools are up 7-10 of a mill. Despite this fact, however, the general tax rate is down 1 1-10 mills lower than last year, the rate this year being 27 3-10 mills.

Public works expenditure this year will be less than last year. The estimated expenditure on this department last year was $29,000, but the actual expenditure was $24,000. This year the estimate for the Public Works department is $30,000, which is less than 50 per cent. under the former figure.

In the estimated receipts, there has been a very noticeable falling off in fines and fees, it being one source of receipts which registered the greatest falling off. Last year this department netted $7,000. This year the receipts are $2,033, which means a decrease of $5,000. Market tolls this year also fell off, some $700 from last year, as well as billiard and pool license receipts, which are $175 less this year. Each of the 18 sources of income to the city has reduced from last year's standard, there being $2500 reduction in the receipts from hall of pool estate since last year.

WOULD CHANGE NAME OF STATION STREET; ENLARGE SEWER SYSTEM TO INCLUDE FOSTER WARD, PLAN

Three recommendations and two motions were put before the city council last night. All recommendations carried. They are:

Recommended that the City Engineer and Chairman of Public Work be empowered to employ contractor, other than Holmes Bros. for the necessary maintenance of sidewalks, as the contract with above firm is understood intends to refer only to the construction of new sidewalks. (Carried).

Recommended that a committee composed of Ald. Robinson, Donohue, Adams, French and Greenleaf be appointed to confer with J. D. McNiven. (Carried).

In a letter submitted by Mr. Mc-Millan to the council he states that the management of the Canadian National Railways are having considerable confusion in distinguishing between the C. N. station and the old Grand Trunk station. Were Station street changed in name to Front street, the C. N. depot might be called the C. N. Church street and the other depot C. N. Front street.

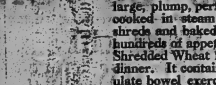

Recommended that property owners on the west side of Lingham street between Pine street and Victoria avenue, be notified to move all sheds and buildings from the city property back to the street line and that the Engineer be instructed to see that this matter is carried out. (Carried).

On motion of Ald. Thompson, seconded by Ald. French, City Engineer Campbell was instructed to make an examination and survey of the Foster Ward area with a view to joining it with the city sewage system. (Carried).

On motion of Ald. Adams and Donohue, the second hand and junk dealers on Station street and Mill street will be requested to build a tight board fence, six feet high along the street line in front of their property, for the purpose of concealing the unsightly appearance of their premises.

Few of the Girl Applicants Get Into Trouble with the Law—Was Different Four Years Ago

By ROBERT A. DONALDSON, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Los Angeles, Aug. 20.—Despite the fact that many gay girls from all parts of the country come to Hollywood seeking a butterfly life in the movies, police reports show that remarkably few of them get into trouble with the law.

During the past year only ten girls have become cases for the local board of charities and corrections.

Probably 30 or 40 girls a year are taken into custody by the juvenile department, but many of these cases come about not because the girl has gone wrong but because her parents have asked that she be held until they could arrange to bring her back home.

Four years ago the number of girls who went wrong or were juvenile cases was much higher, officials state. During the latter part of 1918, and during 1919 and 1920, approximately 150 girls a week came to Los Angeles and Hollywood, movie casting directors estimate.

MOVIE LIFE GAG THEN.

Movie life was much gayer then—that was before Fatty Arbuckle's arrest, the slaying of William Desmond Taylor and the the appointment of Will H. Hays to the post of movie censor. Girls fell in with a wilder crowd, and were subject to more improper advances by various men connected with the studios, police matrons state.

Now, according to the Hollywood Y. W.C.A., the Service Bureau, which hires the extras, and prominent casting directors, not more than a half dozen new faces appear at the studio wicket each week, and most of the girls who do come are serious-minded, have a fair idea of the hardships they must endure.

The problem of girls under age is the big one, all sources agree. One big studio has each extra sign a questionaire on which must be given the name of parents or guardian. The parents or guardian are then sent a card informing them that the girl has applied for work in the movies. Many frantic telegrams come back saying that Nellie is only a girl of 16 who is "screen-struck" and has run away from home, and that "pa and ma" are worried and want the authorities to send her back.

Contrary to the best dime novel precedents, it is usually not the simple unsophisticated girl who gets into trouble with the law in Hollywood, but the ultra-worldly-wise girls—the "jazz babies."

THE DIXIE TWINS.

There are many girls like the "Dixie twins," who come to Hollywood seeking fame and notoriety. The "Dixie twins" hiked all the way from Pensacola, Florida, arriving in Hollywood in overalls, looking for work. They danced and sang to make their way across the country, they said, and hoped to get into the movies on the strength of a handful of clippings garnered en route. But the juvenile authorities took them in charge.

"Why, we're not juveniles," both stalled when questioned by the authorities. "We're both married. Feature that—calling us kids. Why actresses. Say, this town must have some class when they look a girls up because she doesn't wear silk. We had some other clothes but a funny old landlady in Denver seized our trunks."

But the juvenile authorities were adamant and, learning that the girls' mother lived in Denver, took steps to determine their age, and learn why they were wandering so far from home.

So it's not girls as the "Dixie twins" who meet in the movie set when [illegible] that is where the studios are.

CANADIAN NATIONAL MAKES RE-ADJUSTMENT IN RATES

Montreal, Aug. 21.—The Canadian National Railways have decided to abolish the difference which has hereto existed between Portland and St. John on the one hand, and Halifax on the other, in export and import rates of traffic to and from British and foreign countries.

Under an agreement entered into many years ago between the then Canadian Government Railways and the Grand Trunk Railway, the port of Halifax was placed on an arbitrary basis of one cent per hundred pounds, or classes add commodities, over the rates in effect on the traffic above referred to, to and from Portland and St. John.

Large expenditures have been and are being made to improve the Port of Halifax; and in order that these facilities may be utilized to the fullest extent possible, it has been decided, as above stated, that, about October 1st, Halifax, Portland and St. John will be placed on a parity insofar as rates on European traffic is concerned.

This change will not affect the present furtherance rates to Halifax on what is known as coastwise traffic, or on business destined to Newfoundland.

Movies Big Aid to the Silver Miner

New York, Aug. 21 (United Press).—The use of silver in arts and manufactures has developed into an important factor in the silver market, which constantly growing demands on silver production, according to Robert Linton of New York, president of the North Butte Mining Company, in a statement on "The Outlook for Silver."

"The amount of silver required for use in arts and manufactures," says Linton, has shown a steady increase, rising in the United States from 18,217,264 ounces in 1900 to 36,252,595 ounces in 1918, from which point it dropped to 29,643,626 ounces in 1921, or a net increase for the period of over 100 per cent.

"The most important single factors in this increase have been the development of the motion picture industry and the growing popularity of amateur photography. Approximately 5,000,000 ounces of silver are used annually in the United States alone for these purposes, and what is used in other countries doubtless brings the aggregate up to a large figure."

A SLIGHT DIFFERENCE.

A.—"What's the difference between a drama and a melodrama?"

B.—"Well, in a drama the heroine merely throws the villian over. In a melodrama she throws the villain over. In a cliff!"

"What's the News?"

WHEN Columbus and his caravels returned from the New World, the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the news?"

That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider, the soldier returned from the wars, the man who had been down to the settlements, or the neighbor back from the general store.

To-day, you find the answer in your newspaper. Through the newspapers the news of the world and of the community quickly becomes public knowledge. And remember this—it takes two kinds of news to make a modern paper complete.

The first tells of happenings near and far—of fires, sports, elections, accidents, marriages, deaths, great men, great events.

The second tells of things you eat, wear and use—things you buy, things being sold to your friends and neighbors. This news is advertising.

It's just as important to keep up-to-date on the advertising in this paper as it is to read about what's doing in the world of events.

Advertising is an essential news service. It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by it.

GERMANY TO BE NATION OF 200,000,000 OR RUSSIAN PROVINCE IN 100 YEARS

By GUS M. OEHM
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, Aug. 21 (United Press).—One hundred years from today Germany will either have a population of 200,000,000 or be a Russian province, according to Professor Dr. Gruber of Jena University.

Pointing out the rapid strides being made in England, the United States and South American countries in the matter of eugenics, Dr. Gruber declares unless Germany wakes up to the need for spreading information on this subject Germany is due for national extinction.

"It will be necessary for us, if we do not wish entirely to withdraw from the battle of peoples, to interest ourselves in the spreading of eugenic knowledge," Dr. Gruber said, "other wise we will either disappear or become a meaningless people. We will either have a population of 200,000,000 or become a Russian province within the next 100 years.

"No where in Germany are the universities and schools of higher education interesting themselves in the matter of maintaining the German racial stock. The example of England and her colonies, North America, the Latin countries of South America and more recently Sweden and the results of their endeavors should awaken Germany. We at Jena are taking an initial step in the right direction—in an effort to purify and lengthen human life. We have established a course in eugenics which we hope will be the forerunner of similar courses throughout Germany. Our national existence depends upon how we take it."

Richest Farming Community In World Is To Have "Cheese Day"

Monroe, Wis., Aug. 20 (United Press).—Cheese, great round wheels of Swiss cheese, will be given away in a million sandwiches when this fertile dairy country "The Switzerland of America," celebrates its first cheese day since the outbreak of the war.

One-third of all the Swiss cheese in the world is produced in Green County. On October 2 and 3, the cheese-makers are prepared to welcome 50,000 from a half dozen states. Seventy-five years ago a little band of 193 sturdy Swiss trekked west in covered wagons to find a land where they had been told about before they left their Alpine home.

Today the 24 square miles in which the descendants of this little group live represents the wealthiest farming area in the United States. There are only four people to every acre in the county. There are three cows for each one of the 10,000 inhabitants.

On Cheese Day the sports of old Switzerland will be revived. There will be Swiss yodeling, alpine wrestling and dancing in the public square. Dairy maids, in the quaint costumes of the Alpine valley, will display the Holstein, bedecked with ribbons; in the $25,000 sales pavilion, built by the dairymen.

Underneath Monroe stretch miles of darkened tunnels where thousands of tons of cheese are aging in that proper degree of sharpness to command highest prices on eastern markets. It is all Swiss, limburger, and other foreign varieties.

Negro Janitor Paints Picture of Christ Child

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 21 (United Press).—Interest of art critics in an old painting portraying the "Child of Christ", which hangs in the Union station here, led today to the discovery of the unknown artist: Allen Jackson, Negro janitor and former coal miner.

A group of critical art lovers, gathered about the painting, exchanging comments of wonder that such a first-class original could be discovered in such comparative commonplace setting. Such paintings are rarely found outside the walls of the best art galleries, they agreed.

Jackson, in his grease-covered overalls, with a monkey wrench in his hand, came up from his workshop in the basement at the request of the station-master, and told the critics briefly his love for art, and the work he had done on all paintings after hours in his little home in the colored section here.

"You might call this my masterpiece," the negro said. "I have done many small paintings, but this is my best. I worked on this canvas every night after working hours, for four months."

Jackson told his audience he had never studied art, although several of them insisted before they met the commoter this spring showing 99,999 miles.

Those three cars give the driver a total of 813,840 miles more than twelve times around the earth, in addition to what he had driven in a limousine, for which no records are kept. '57 roadster and a new '23 given.

Dreco Proves Wonderful Help to Mr. Simpson Who Feels Very Much Encouraged as a Result

"For several years I have suffered from stomach trouble," says Mr. R. A. Simpson, of 101 Willard Ave., Toronto, "I had billious attacks and it seemed as though something was lying in my stomach. My food didn't seem to digest properly. My system in general was in fairly good condition until one of these gastric spells came on and then I was unable to eat but very little for several weeks and had to be extremely careful of what I did eat.

"It seemed impossible to get a stomach remedy that would give me very much help. I heard about Dreco and decided to buy a package. It put me right to the root of the trouble at once. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or other harmful drugs, but is made entirely from herbs, roots, bark and leaves. It has put thousands on the high road to better health. Let it help you too. BASEBALL FANS CATCH RECORD STRING OF FISH ON WAY TO GAME

The Belleville-Peterboro game Saturday was responsible for one of the season's best "fish" stories. The narrators of this story, by the way, are willing to take an affidavit as to the truthfulness of it.

Mr. Charles ("Nick") Carter and party were en route to Peterboro on Saturday, when they stopped on an ordinary looking bridge where a small creek over a modest stream flowing into Rice lake. This is about seven miles out of Belleville. What appeared to be a hungry trout in the shallow, clear water, drew the attention of one of the party and also prompted the suggestion that a few casts be made. Carter, who is an enthusiast, always carries the rod and line, so was immediately responded to, along with some improvised tackle consisting merely of a hook and piece of line. Then came the fun of trying for the elusive trout, then the start.

The first catch could be said to be brief, the two line had landed 20 pounds of (not trout) but black bass. There were eight altogether, and the catch weighed four pounds each, and two of the eight were landed with the improvised line, at that.

The party then proceeded to Peterboro and were in time to witness five innings of the ball game, the remainder being scored by either team until the party drove in with Lady Look. The fish were bagged at Kenny Bros., who live in Peterboro and taken to Belleville.

Mr. Carter has been an ardent disciple of Izaak Walton for 25 years, but Saturday's catch eclipsed all former records, he told The Intelligencer today.

"For quality and quantity of fish caught in such a short time, Saturday's record has them all stopped," he asserted.

It was certainly one hour and a half of "reel" fun.

ROTARIANS FROLIC AT COUNTRY CLUB

Instead of holding the regular week ly luncheon on Monday, the Rotarians held an informal dance at the Bay of Quinte Country Club last night. It was ladies' night, and Rotes together with their wives and guests numbered one hundred and thirty.

At 7 p.m. those present enjoyed a chicken dinner at the club house, after which a jolly sing-song was held. Dancing was then indulged in until 12:00 p. m. when the party disbanded. For those who did not dance, interesting bridge games were arranged.

Music for the dancing was supplied by Al Wilson's orchestra. During the evening, Rotarian Bruce Hepburn rendered a solo in his usual good voice. Mr. Al Wilson playing the accompaniment.

CHINESE BOYCOTT HITS JAPANESE

Latter's Exports to China Show Slump of 70 Per Cent.

By CLARENCE DUBOSE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1923, by United Press).

The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods is digging deeper every day.

Japanese trade in China have now slumped 70 per cent, and the slump is getting worse steadily.

Japanese in China, Singapore and India, as well as in China proper, have quit buying Japanese goods as the anti-Japanese boycott refused to return to China the South Manchurian, or Kwantung leased territory, assumed under the "twenty-one demands."

Feeling against the Japanese is extremely bitter in China, and this is up and up the Yangtze river. There have been numerous fights and destruction of property in Shanghai.

Throughout Japan Chambers of Commerce and business groups of all kinds recently held meetings and have urged the Tokyo government to do something. Tokyo has sent a stiff protest to Peking, but there is no hope of no government in China it doesn't amount to much.

Official hints say that Japan will go very far in enduring indignities in China—but not too far. They say that Japan cannot afford to avoid having to use force to protect her nationals and their property in China, for fear of encouraging again of trying to grab the country.

It is indigned unofficially that Japan declines to be drawn into fighting perhaps informal, with America and England, before she takes action in China, whatever the provocation.

LOCUSTS AS FOOD

They Were Used Often Way in Ancient Times

Locusts, when the think of them as food, are almost inseparable in our minds from the wild honey. In fact, where locusts are still in some condition a staple article of diet the combination continues to be appreciated—when it can be obtained; but there are plenty of other ways of preparing and serving locusts than with honey.

Locusts were used in very ancient times is proved by the Biblical record in the ruled of Nineveh. They were also used by the Arabs in Egypt and are seen in the markets more often than not in Palestine. The use of the insect as food was permitted to the Jews, and locusts are still eaten in Palestine.

Our Eastern readers might be puzzled how to prepare locusts for the table, but it is no trouble for the natives of Arabia Petraea. The insects are to be found in swarms all or they may be dried, ground and used as flour for bread.

In Madagascar they are baked in pans, when fried in a grease and eaten with rice. In Algeria they are boiled and salted. Among the Arabs of various localities they are ground, baked, roasted or eaten with camel's cheese and dates. That unpractical would not be so bad in the eyes of the dietitian, as it contains a fair proportion of protein, carbohydrates and fats; it is indeed concentrated nourishment.

In southern Russia locusts are smoked like fish. Their flavor is said to be strong when they are raw but mild and agreeable when they are cooked. The broth made from locusts has a fine flavor for chicken broth.

Nevertheless, every one will agree that in this country the taste for locusts must be acquired. Certainly we have none of as acquired it yet; nor do we find the Biblical idea of our locust-loving immigrants have imparted their acquired taste. But our queer oddities are certainly sent for by foreigners. Witness the fancy diets by foreigners homesick for their native dishes.

Among them are included oysters from the coasted with lime; mummified duck eggs, which, when the shells are removed, discloses a small, black, unborn duck of unappetizing appearance; various animals preserved in alcohol, the nature of which dogs and rats pickled whole are the most frequent—and some of the rice worms rolled out into thin flakes and dried.

Glycolists Too Moderate.

The Girondists were a party of moderate republicans in the national assembly and initial constituent during the French Revolution, so called because their chief leaders, Vergniaud, Gaudet, Gensonne, Grangeneuve and Buzot, were deputies to the department of La Gironde. Their opposition in the November 1792 session, and to the execution of the king in January, 1793, brought on a struggle between the Girondists and the Mountain party; and July 2, 1793, the Girondists, after an ineffectual attempt to impeach Robespierre, Danton and 31 of their opposites were arrested, 29 of whom a short number were tried and sentenced to death, and of these all perished by the guillotine on the following day. Buzot escaped to Normandy, having stabbed himself on hearing the sentence pronounced.

Eggs Used to Announce Birth.

When a neighbor receives hardboiled eggs dyed red in China he knows that a baby has come to keep him company from which the eggs come. The color to such occasions is always red. Whether to touch This is believed to insure that the baby will be a healthy child that the neighbor will not quarrel with it when it grows up. It grows up. This unique custom has been in vogue in China for centuries and the Chinese are fully confident that it has the effect of insuring both peace and good will. It is considered a breach of etiquette for anyone not to touch the eggs, and trouble and strife are said to follow. Also and there, even though baby is small enough to fit in the bottle.

The Proper Thing.

A man went into a bakery the other day. "I'm getting married next week," he said, "and I want to buy a wedding cake." "I suppose you know, sir," said the shopkeeper, "that it's the latest thing to choose wedding cakes which harmonize with one's business or profession. For instance, if the bridegroom were a coal merchant a cake with a motor car and a little engine his friends a sponge cake, a basket of roses and a wedding cake. "What, may I ask, is your calling?" "I am a doctor," the bridegroom answered. "In that case, sir," said the girl, smiling, "we would of course prescribe an angel cake."

Enormous Whale's Skull.

A whale skull, so large that it had to be put into eight pieces for handling and crating, was recently found on the shore of Alitak bay, Kodiak, by a representative of the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, who was in the territory investigating the fur seal breeding industry. OLD BOY CELEBRATIONS

In view of the fact that "Old Boy" has been "all the rage" in hospital circles for some time, the following article from the current issue of the Financial Post is of interest:

"The failure of recent old boys' gatherings would seem to indicate that the popularity of these events has run its course.

"Merchants, who from time to time have been called upon to contribute generously towards the preliminary expenses, hoping that when the event was staged they would get their money back plus a substantial profit, have found of late that things were not working out as they used to. In other words, one very essential element has been conspicuous by its absence—the old boys with their buying power.

"The recent celebration at London and the 1922 celebration at Windsor stand out as the most conspicuous cases. There has been a great deal of pre-publicity but little business. The old boys did not come home because there were no cheap fares on the railways, and the old girls and boys at home quit buying to celebrate. The result is that merchants found that the celebration made for a decline in regular business rather than a generous boost in turnover.

"True to its mission, the Post views the institution solely from a financial standpoint. The article will certainly disturb the "old" boys and girls in those home towns who dwell on the spoils of loss and their "sin folk."

If the sentimentality spirit is as dominant in these celebrations as the Financial Post would have us believe, another cherished tradition has been rudely discarded, the day feet of another idol have been exposed.

Personally, we believe that the Post "is talking through its hat" and that the business men of the average village or city are as eager to welcome the "old" boys and girls as the latter are to visit the old home town and, further, we believe that the said business men would be willing to "go down into their pockets" if necessary to insure the success of such celebrations. In Ontario at least, romance is not dead.

LEST WE FORGET

On Sunday the Belleville G.W.V.A. organization, with pomp and ceremony befitting the occasion, formally demonstrated that profound respect which Canada bears for the memory of her war dead.

However, the decoration of the graves of departed heroes was but the physical manifestation of that spirit of reverence, that legitimate patriotism, which is the richest attribute of a wholesome and vigorous civilization. It was a symbolic gesture as significant in its import as was the decoration here yesterday of the "graves" of those whose mutilated bodies were interred in the blood-steeped soil of France and Belgium or those whose bodies were never found: It is a symbolic gesture as profoundly impressive as was the unveiling of the memorial to Private Alfred Woodrow, Green, the Belleville soldier, who was reported missing after the second battle of Cambrai, October 1, 1918.

The Rev. Dr. Mc Mar in his address which formed a feature of Sunday's services, said: "We shall never forget those men who laid down their lives that we might enjoy liberty, honor and peace." The Rev. Dr. Mc Mar, himself a veteran of the great war, knows the British heart; he knows that, despite the vicissitudes and the ingrate of post-

Some women are so romantic that they can't write a note to the milkman to be left on the doorstep without leaving out a hint of expectations.

The National Safety Council in its safety lessons for auto drivers gives this advice: "If an accident happens, keep your head and do not leave the scene until you are justified in doing so."

A careful driver would undoubtedly endeavor to keep his limbs and other parts of his anatomy as well as his head. Of course when he is hurled down a hill or through a fence a distance of 50 or 75 feet his departure from the scene may be said to be justified.

Safety Lessons for Auto Drivers—No. 1. Don't mortgage your home to buy a car.

2. Keep your money in the bank.

3. If your wife drives a car, have her heavily insured.

4. If you must buy a car, don't ride in it.

5. Keep a horse and buggy, or walk. Do most of the latter out in the open country.

War civilian life, despite flagrant instances of utter misconception of the tremendous importance of the services rendered and the sacrifices made, time cannot dim the lustre of the achievements of Canada's soldiery wherever a British heart beats true.

Militarism, as a political institution which engenders war with its carnage and horrors, is a national heebus, but that patriotism which inspires men (and women) to cheerfully make the supreme sacrifice for their country is one of the great blessings of civilization. It is this spirit that creates the vital spark of nationalism and as long as it exists the graves of our war dead will be kept green. When we cease to remember those who died in defense of our "liberty, honor and peace" we shall have become a decadent nation.

For this reason the spectacle of a poignant and peaceful people reverently decorating the graves of its soldier dead is truly momentous in its significance.

PRESS OPINIONS

EH, WHAT!

(Toronto Globe)

In presenting each member of the Ferguson Government with Bibles the Lieutenant Governor once again shows that he may always be relied upon to do the right thing at the right time.

INTERNATIONAL COMITY

(Hamilton Herald)

Canada is told by the New York press that delay in putting an embargo on pulpwood would be "an act of comity on Canada's part." Suppose we had said before the Fordney tariff came into force that delay in the introduction of that tariff which is aimed specially at this country would be an act of comity on the part of the United States, does anyone believe that the plea would have delayed the application of the tariff by one second?

BROAD-MINDEDNESS!

(Hamilton Spectator)

In objecting to amateur instrumentalists taking part in the orchestra being promoted to accompany the pageant chorus at the Canadian National Exhibition, the Musicians' union of Toronto is not likely to enhance its reputation for broadmindedness.

POLITICS DOWNCAST.

(Hamilton Herald)

It would be impossible to picture a more expressive revelation of the mentality which feeds on "force," and arrogantly justifies "usurpation" of governmental power than is furnished by the Morning Chronicle when yesterday, in a paroxysm of partisan rage, it described Conservatives in Nova Scotia as "a gang of Communists, Socialists and Liberites."

BULLDOG SOLE LEATHER

MANS AMUSEMENTS.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

It is a curious thing how much suffering there is in the world for the sake of sport. It would seem that a person would need to be brought up to it in order to find enjoyment in a bull fight; but the Spaniard, who is accustomed to it, would probably say that it is no more cruel than chasing a fox or a hare across the country with a pack of hounds, or shooting beautiful and harmless birds and animals. Is there cruelty involved in pulling a fish out of the water by means of a barbed hook and allowing it to gasp its life out in the air? The oi dexzuse for cock-fighting was that the birds enjoyed it. The same can scarcely be said of the fox or the hare or the fish.

IN SPITE OF DIFFICULTIES.

(Department Of Agriculture)

Look back over the path Canada has trod. The French colonists, cut off from civilization by three thousand miles of sea, faced a continent—a wilderness—without the aid of even a blazed trail. They had to fight savages, fevers, scurvy, loneliness and starvation. The United Empire Loyalists subdued an unbroken forest in one generation.

The Selkirk settlers came to Manitoba when the prairie was a buffalo pasture, and grew wheat where none had grown before; and where those who knew the country said wheat never would grow. Today the Canadian prairies grow the finest wheat in the world, and, in proportion to population, Canada stands among the wealthiest nations in the world.

MODERATE MAJORITIES

(Montreal L'Evenement)

Considering the circumstances surrounding the electoral campaign in Cape Breton, we must appreciate the good sense of the labor voters in having condemned by their attitude the aspect given to the strike at Sydney by the Bolsheviste.

It is evident that in that difficult constituency there is a majority of artisans who are utterly opposed to the spirit of revolt and the destruction of property. Canadian opinion is happy to recognize this fact and will hold it in mind when the grievances of this community of workers are once again declared by the leaders of the moderate majority.

(Brantford Expositor)

Taking one consideration with another the monarchical system, as exemplified in the British Empire, still continues to possess many points of advantage over any other plan yet devised by man.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST HOUSE FLIES

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

A contemporary comments upon the fact that grocers in a certain Ontario city leave fresh fish exposed to flies and do not disinfect by modern methods. While this is not practised to any extensive degree in Kitchener there is nevertheless room for improvement. There are vendors of fruit and other wares who leave vegetables and perishable goods in front of their stores. After a time they look anything but attractive. Wilted by the sun, and as a picnic ground for numberless flies, and made dingy by the dust which sweeps in from traffic laden streets.

It is poor business to say the least. One glance at edibles thus exposed is sufficient to make one pass on in search of what one requires. It is a temptation to buy when one sees fresh-looking fruit and vegetables displayed in a cool window and properly protected from the filthy and ubiquitous fly which is acknowledged as a menace to health.

The same is true of other commodities. Attractive cakes and pastry are displayed in a window but their appearance is spoiled by the sight of a dozen or more flies having first taste of the delicacies. Storekeepers who would not tolerate a single fly in their dining-room or kitchen of their home seem entirely oblivious to the hundreds that swarm in their shops and pollute the goods offering for sale.

Proper precautions and, occasionally care will keep down these pests and it is the duty of every vendor to see that what he offers the public is clean and untainted.

GONE ASTRAY

A certain chemist advertised an infallible protection against influenza. A customer was indeed the shop one day and bought a bottle of the concoction.

Two days later he returned, complaining that he had drunk it all, and felt no better.

"Dreadful stuff, that," growled the chemist. "My dog says that was a solution to rub on the soles of your boots to keep the wet out."

A CLASH IN THE FUTURE

Mr. Johnson invariably made long calculations about anything important that happened in his life. He became engaged, and his marriage was announced to take place on a Thursday. One day he informed his future mother-in-law that it must be celebrated on a Wednesday.

"Why?" she demanded in surprise.

"I have been making a calculation," he said, "and I find that my silver wedding would take place on a Friday. That would never do, as it is the evening on which my lodge meets."

ALL HE COULD AFFORD

A young man who had heard that radium was going to cure the world of all its ills, entered a chemist's shop and asked:

"How much is radium an ounce?"

The chemist smiled and named a figure which made the young man gasp with dismay.

"Really?" observed the customer.

EVERY SPORT AT A GLANCE

SANNING FARRELL

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug 21 (United Press) While 1923 may have been the year of big busts for champions, several headliners of sports have successfully survived the test of the year and will be back next year defending their titles.

Foremost, perhaps, of the superchampions who have passed the 1923 test safely, is Miss Suzanne Lenglen, the queen of the world's tennis court.

The great French girl, who says she has completely recovered her health, was away so far with the championship at Wimbledon that she gained encouraged the tennis experts of "Sporting Life" (London) to write:

"If anything Suzanne is better than she ever was. Can she improve?! If she does, what hope is there of regaining the championship for perhaps another fifteen years?"

Enthusiasm over the form shown by the French girl, together with which she walked through the tournament and the possible dearth of material in England may have aroused enthusiasm to the point of exaggeration in estimating the length of Suzanne's reign as queen of the courts.

Age and increasing years do not affect the penalty among tennis players with the same severity suffered by other athletes. Brookes remained a star until he was an "old man" and several of the star women players of the United States "carry on" long past the age when the ego when the average athlete could have been counted on as having passed the peak.

Disregarding the promise shown by Miss Helen Wills, the California girl star, it is only logical to figure Mlle. Lenglen is not a champion for an indefinite period.

The French girl, regardless of what was said about her heart when she retired at Forest Hills two years ago, is none too strong and she has had a very strenuous career on the courts. She may retain her stroke and her technique, but her physical resources cannot go on forever.

"Little Helen Wills is building a strong game of distinctive masculine style, due to the fact that she learned the game and developed it against male opposition. She is developing great strength and unless the experts are all wrong, the time is years yet to be counted on one hand when she becomes the champion.

England, beyond doubt, feels chagrined by the latest lambasting tennis prestige in a sport that is almost as distinctively British as golf. Victories of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and that great little American sportsman, Bill Johnston, in the singles at Wimbledon, have come again both the British titles and they caused it to be asked with some concern—"What is the matter with British tennis?"

The same writer in "Sporting Life," who paid tribute to the game of Mlle. Lenglen, advances the following theories in answer:

"It is the cult of the hard court which has been responsible for the loss of our supremacy at game which was invented by an Englishman. The hard court has reared a series of foreign and colonial champions, who have gained their successes mainly by taking of the ball on the top of its bound.

"Nearly all of best men are tainted with the theory of baseline perpetual motion and what use is it when pitted against the modern school? Did it affect Tilden, worry Patterson, or threaten Johnston?

"All these three world's champions thrived on this warfare of attrition and regarded it with the scorn and the contempt that it so richly deserves. Their whole game is full of virility and the devil. We have heard enough about grandmotherly legislation. How about grandmotherly lawn tennis?

"The means by which our present champions held their sway are now, like the old fashioned gunboat, out of date and fit only for the scrapheap. They had to angle for their openings in a weary and exhausting way. The new champions angle for no openings. They simply hit the balls and mighty hard too.

"Champions are now bred on hard on sun-baked grass courts and not on uneven surfaces, such as are experienced in this country."

Vinnie Richards, who won his way into the British hearts, lost during the Wimbledon tournament because of his inability to hit hard off the ground, in the opinion of the same writer. "His great volleying certainly remains a partial success," he is commented.

EXAMINER SAYS SATURDAY'S GAME WAS "HEARTBREAKER" FOR PETES; COMPLAINS OF "CLOSE" DECISIONS

(From the Peterboro Examiner)

The Belleville Grand Trunks evened up the series for the Big Four section title by defeating the Petes 7 to 3 on the Riverside diamond, Saturday. The game was a heartbreaker for the Petes, with the breaks of the game going against them and the hits and errors all coming at the wrong time. For the first five innings the game was a pitchers' battle of the best order between Hedman and Jack Oulette, the Lindsay star of last year. Neither team was able to make any headway though the locals carried a slight margin by virtue, of four hits to three for the visitors.

In the sixth, however, everything went bloozy. A bad error followed by a hit gave the Grands their first counter and then after two were out and two on the runaways Heckman weakened, walking three and forcing in two runs. He then tightened up and fanned the next man retiring the side but the damage was done. The Petes went right out to even the count in their half but a close decision at the plate went against Collins and ended a promising rally after one run had been scored. Belle's triple in the seventh came too late and in the eighth the Petes again threatened but Brownscombe went right to the ground ball of third base to take Comolli's foul fly, and by a snappy play doubled Swanston at second.

In their half of the ninth the visitors sewed things up properly by batting four runs and Heckman made the only earned run of the game. Oulette started it with a single to right and Heckman's drive on Wirth's attempted sacrifice left both runners safe. Brownscombe scored them both with a double and came home himself on Percy Mills' triple. Harry Mills sent a sacrifice fly to right to score his brother.

The Petes made their final bid for the game in the ninth when Collins started off with a two bagger. He scored from second on Oulette's error but the next three men went out in order and the visitors walked off with the game.

A close decision in the sixth frame was given against the Petes when W. Mills was called safe at third. Had the umpire seen the play as many of the fans did the visitors would not have scored in that inning.

With the exception of the sixth and ninth innings Heckman pitched a good game allowing in all but eight hits, three of which were crowded into the last frame. He fanned eight in all and five Oulette also pitched a fine game but weakened a little in the sixth. Williams was sent back of the grand stand to warm up but the right-hander tightened up again and finished the game, going strong. He had plenty of speed and kept the seven hits he allowed well scattered. He was equal with Heckman in the matter of strike outs and issued one complimentary.

Wolfe and W. Mills divided the receiving honors, the former with a single and a triple each. Collins got a double and a single and Oulette scored twice in two official appearances.

Wolfe pulled one of the best fielding plays of the season when he made a great catch of W. Mills fly to center in the fourth frame. He made the catch with his back to the plate and rolled over two or three times but managed to hang onto the ball.

Sandy Lockington Would Give to Pitcher Oulette a "Hoose" and a "Wee Wifie"

Sandy Lockington of the Port Hope Guide unburdens himself as follows:

"Jack Williams, an Belleville south paw, was presented with a furnished house for his splendid performance with the Belleville team last summer. After Saturday's exhibition Jack Oulette should be given a furnished home and a winsome little maid to keep the house in order. It was the return game of the Peterboro-Belleville series and Peterboro won at Belleville last Wednesday, were strong favorites. A win for Peterboro carried with it the championship of the Section 'B' while the Belleville nine could pack up their kit for another season and call the fall in come through. But where there is life there is hope and Jack Oulette stepped into the box determined to lead his team to victory. His eight team mates were equally as determined and they played the game as if their very livelihood upon the outcome. That infield worked just like a machine, clean, clever fielding with an accuracy and speed to the throwing which was the admiration of every fan on the circuit who found himself in trouble a couple of times and when those trying moments arrived Jack was there with the goods and he sent that old sphere across un til it looked like a pea. Peterboro's best batters, including Heckman, fell victims to his benders and Hap Harrison who was brought down from North Bay especially to do the circuit clouting didn't even make a foul. And for nine innings Oulette steamed them over and was going as strong in the final as when the umps called play ball.

Brownscombe, at short stop also handled everything that came his way and finally went into the crowd in left field for a foul fly and after pulling it down nipped Swanston off at second base. No more spectacular play has ever been witnessed in the Central League and it would do credit to any Big Leaguer. And just to show that he was a real ball player he knocked out a liner that registered two runs.

For five innings Peterboro put up a splendid exhibition but Heckman suddenly weakened, passing three men and forcing in two runs.

Belleville's victory places them in a tie with Peterboro and the deciding game will be played at Cobourg on Wednesday.

DETROIT SECURES "RED" WINGO, TORONTO'S RUTH, FOR $50,000

Toronto, Aug. 21.—"Red" Wingo, Toronto left fielder and candidate for the International League leadership in hitting and in home runs, has been sold to the Detroit club of the American League. The deal was closed in New York yesterday, but the details have not yet been given out. The battle between the major leagues and the class AA minors makes the exchange of players from the majors to the International impossible at this stage, but it may be modified before next spring. The cash secured for Wingo was large—the largest ever received by Toronto for any one or any group of ball players— and runs to the neighborhood of $50,000.

Wingo, came to Toronto by purchase from Augusta, Ga., in the spring of last year.

He will report to Detroit after the International season.

FINAL CLASH IS SCHEDULED FOR TOMORROW AT COBOURG

All roads lead to Cobourg to-morrow where the third and final game for the championship of the "Big Four" will be decided. After losing at home and winning in Peterboro the two teams are on even basis and the Cobourg Horse Show has been named as the scene of to-morrow's conflict. Kingston, Lindsay and Bowmanville were named as probable places but Cobourg was the only logical selection, this being favorable to both Peterboro and Belleville managements. The grounds are being put into the best of shape for the last week's horse show. It is predicted that five thousand people will throng the lakeside park tomorrow afternoon. Practically every fan in Belleville and Peterboro will be found in Cobourg at 3.30.

At Heckman, Manager Solomon's fleet-footed pitching card, will be the mound for the Petes, Manager Grow when seen this morning stated that he had no rash promises to make but indicated that chances for a win are bright. The boys will be fighting tooth and nail the whole nine innings. Walt has not yet announced who will perform on the hillock, Hallinan and Thorne will officiate. All aboard for Cobourg!

PROMOTER SKIPS WITH FIRPO'S WAD

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 21.—Relieved from worry over the condition of Joe Downey, Columbus, Ohio, boxer, who collapsed after an exhibition contest with Luis Angel Firpo here principals concerned in the entertainment planned to meet later in an effort to straighten out the financial tangle enveloped the whole affair. Downey, who was rushed to a hospital following the bout, will be discharged according to Harry Sulty, his manager.

Downey took a bad beating, and was outpointed all through the fight. He was saved from a knockout only because Firpo was forced to push his ponderous hands into sixteen ounce gloves.

The bout itself was but a small part of an evening of great excitement in which a riot was threatened several times. Arguments about the purse, the size of the gloves, and the ring kept the crowd waiting until 11.40 and it was only after Mayor Hanks had threatened to call out the police that the exhibition started.

Howls arose from the crowd when it was announced that it was to be a four-round affair, and the mayor again took charge and threatened the fight unless the promoters live up to their end on ten rounds.

Firpo expressed amusement later over the difference between boxing and fighting and his tour manager, Hugh Garland, said that the South American had a terrific job keeping out of jail.

"They told us that a knockdown by either fighter would put us all in jail as that would make it a prize fight instead of a boxing exhibition. We had to put pillows on Firpo and then we were afraid all through the fight that he would let one go with too much on it. Firpo only got 'coo grand' for the fight and think he deserves credit in accepting the fight under the conditions just to please the crowd," Garland said.

Joe Dooley, the promoter, disappeared with the receipts and the federal tax and a warrant is out for his arrest.

True Flapper of Late Summer a Demure Thing

By HEDDA HOYP, Fashion Editor, of the Intelligencer.

New York, N.Y., Aug. 21.—Though little fears a way with them, the flappers say, "away with them."

Brilliant colored baths, Egyptian prints and huge flaxed effects have no place in the wardrobe of the average flapper. Colonnade of flapper opinion seems to be that flatint effects are not for youth, but for women with sufficient bulk to carry them.

Young girls between sixteen and twenty-one years of age have altered so greatly in the past year that flapper will soon become an obsolete expression. It is hardly believable that the demure little girl you see these days dressed in organdy frock, poke bonnet, lace mitts, etc., is the same person who cavorted last year in full-skirted flapper attire—extremely short shirts, wild hair, and saucy-upturned hat, to say nothing of the roguish eyes.

Girls would rather be demure than unique, it would seem; this season. They gather on the golf links and at the smart country places, where one would expect extremists in dress and other effects, in simple little sweaters with white collars and cuffs. Their colors are usually subdued ones, such as tan, grays, delft blues, etc. Their hats are rakish little ribbon-trimmed affairs of felt or leghorn. It is only the matrons who feel kindly disposed towards blatant effects this season.

FLAPPER IN THE EVENING.

Evening finds the flapper dressed in organdy, mull or French voile cut in simple manner with slender bodice and full skirt. Ruffles are the favored bodice effects are not for her. For dances at the country club she varies crisp organdies with pastel chiffons and fairy-like frills.

Even the youthful "bob" is losing its popularity—changing from Fiji Islander effect to the more feminine "bun" over the ears. Those who cleave to bobbed hair wear theirs without a sign of permanence wave, but instead a boyish fashion with straight bangs over the forehead. Often the hair is cut so short that the ear can be seen.

One wonders what has taken the "flap" out of flapper. Perhaps she realized to compete with the slender matrons one sees in sleeveless gowns, bobbed hair, sandals, etc. At any rate, she has become a very pretty little thing with a decidedly feminine slant toward life and we love her for it.

MRS. DAVIS' NERVOUS WRECK

Tells How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"I cannot speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and had to give up myself to do my work. I had the doctor of my own children and he could do me no good. I thought they did not get enough from me, so I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said he could do nothing for me. My husband's brother advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and I started in at once. I have taken it for you'll once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a fine healthy baby and am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I cannot help recommending such a medicine, and any one seeing me before I took it, and seeing me now, can see what it does for me. I am only too glad for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. Rainy Davis, 791 McGee Street, Winnipeg, Man.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"I'll take off twenty now," shrieked Richard, stamping about like an ass as he did. "I have been punished for this outrage. I'm a magistrate, and I'll punish them. I'll have the whole crew over from Chorley. Its disgraceful, it's a regular riot, and not one of those three wretched policemen to be seen."

"I see one of 'em comin', growled Harry, grinning; "shd he went back again."

"Had you not better try it on, my dear, with your work-people?" said the vicar. "I am quite new here, but it seems to me better than force."

"That's what I tells him, sir," exclaimed Banks, "only he will be so arbitrary."

"Provocation!" shrieked Richard who, now that he was safe, was in furiated. "I'll persuade them. I'll charge the lot from the ringleader to the meanest."

"Don't you wear those gaiters. Stop," shrieked Richard.

"But it's th emiserable cows," said Banks, and he peeped through a crack.

"Open the gates, open the gates," cried a dozen voices.

"I don't think you need fear now," said the vicar; "the disturbance is over for the present."

"Fear. I'm not afraid," snarled Richard; "but I won't have those scoundrels in here."

"I'll see as no one else comes in," said Harry, getting up like a small edition of Golding; and he stood on one side of the wicket gate, while Banks opened it and admitted Mrs Claire with Eve Pole, who looked ghastly pale.

Several men tried to follow, but the gate was closed by the united efforts of Harry and the foreman when there arose a savage yell; but this was changed to cheers as the posing once more, "Three cheers for the misses" and they were given with a will, and then, during the next minute twenty heads appeared above the wall and gates, to which some of the prisoners did climb.

"Oh, Richard, my son, what have you been doing?" cried Mrs. Claire, taking his hand, while Eve Pole ran up and clung to his arm, gazing tremblingly at his bleeding face and at his disordered apparel.

"There, get away," cried Richard impatiently, shaking himself free. "What have you girls to do with these scoundrels been doing, you mean?"

He applied his handkerchief to his bleeding mouth, looking at the white cambric again and again, as he saw it was stained, and turning very pale and sick, so that he seated him self on a rough bench.

"Dick, dear Dick, are you much hurt?" whispered Eve, going to him again in spite of his repulse, and lay ing her pretty little hand on his shoulder.

"Hurt? Yes, horribly," he cried, in a petitish way. "You see I am. Don't touch me. Go for the doctor, somebody."

He looked round with a ghastly face, and it was evident that he was going to faint.

"Run, pray run for Mr. Purley," cried Mrs .Claire.

"I'll go," cried Eve, eagerly.

"I don't think there is any necessity," said the vicar, quietly. "Can you get some brandy, my man?" he continued, to Banks. "No, stay, I have my flask."

He poured out some spirit into the cup, and Richard Claire drank it at a draught, getting up directly after, and shaking his fist at the men on the wall.

"You cowards!" he cried. "I'll be even with you for this."

A yell from the wall, followed by another from the crowd, was the response, when Mr. Selwood turned to Mrs. Claire.

"If you have any influence with him get him inside somewhere, or we shall have a fresh disturbance."

"Yes, yes," cried the anxious mother, catching her son's arm. "Come into the counting house, Dick. Go with him, Eve. Take him in, and I'll speak to the men."

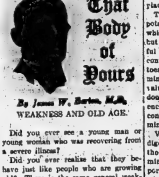

"I'm not afraid of the brutal ruffians," cried Richard, shrilly, "I'll not go, I'll—"

Here there was a menacing shout from the wall, and a disposition shown by some of the men to leap down; a movement which had such an effect on Richard Claire that he allowed his cousin to lead him into a sitting room close at hand, while the vicar's eyes following them as they went.

"I'll speak to the men now," said the little lady. "Banks, you may open the gates; they won't hurt me."

"Not they, ma'am," said the sturdy foreman, looking with admiration at the self-contained little body, as, hastily wiping a tear or two from her eyes, she prepared to encounter the workmen.

Did you ever see a young man or young woman who was recovering from a severe illness?

Did you ever realize that they begin to look younger than they actually old? There is the same general weakness, perhaps lack of appetite, and some inability to concentrate, mental dullness. And practically the same thing is happening.

The eyes are ill or sunkown every effort tires or fatigues you. You see your blood carries around to all parts of the body, not red substances and so all the tissues get poorly nourished. These symptoms are all sick nature, while your blood is alkaline. Thus you see it is your inability to throw off these acid toxic products that keeps all your tissues from being in good shape. In an old person the tissues have done their best for years with the repeated illnesses or perhaps periods of lowered vitality, and gradually wear out—so more lighting power.

And how does the young person getting over an illness get strong again? Well, as you know, he gets his weakness from the poor quality of the blood.

And how is the blood improved in quality?

Only in one way. By common sense eating of good nourishing food.

You know enough in the acid man starts to eat the victory is usually won. And so if just a little more wisdom were given to this in the home, in institutions, and the camp hospital, the re verses would be infinitely more rapid.

If, when the crisis of the illness is past, and the patient is beginning to recover, the food is tastily prepared, and there is plenty of variety, it will work wonders.

Why, we never attempt to prepare athletes for rowing, boxing, football or other sport without giving very close into the matter of their food. We want them to be strong. This is the strain of the training table with many clubs. These athletes must have pure, rich blood, stimulating foods so as to fight and remove these acid products. And so if you want to manufacture good rich blood in people who are run down you must exercise the same judgment. Therefore you use foods that will render the blood more alkaline, using peas, beans, whole wheat, vegetables, egg yolk and greens. Yo uwill add a few ounces of meat daily as they get stronger.

EAT VEGETABLES FOR VITAMINS

(L. F. Burrows, Secretary, Canadian Horticultural Council)

Comparatively recent is the addition of the word "Vitamin" to our vocabulary, and even though the use of the word is now common, its meaning is not yet understood. Physicians have long recognized the value of vegetables in the daily diet and we are now told that this value lies largely in the fact that they contain vitamins, and the vitamins are necessary to life. Some vegetables contain great or qualities and of different kinds than others. Three distinct kinds of vitamins have been named "A", "B" and "C".

Vitamin "A" is a mysterious element in food, without which children cannot grow, but which grown folks also need. Shortage of vitamin "A" leads to disease of the eye, skin, and kidneys; and it may cause bad colds, diarrhoea, pellagra, and other ailments. As a rule, seeds of all kinds are rather deficient in vitamin "A", although green peas contain appreciable amounts. Leafy plants, on the other hand, are valuable foods in this regard. Spinach and chard are probably the richest of the common leafy foods in this respect, followed next, with cabbage holding third place.

The roots and tubers vary, sweet potatoes and carrots ranking first, white white or Irish potatoes contain but a small amount, and the same is full if beets, rutabagas and parsnips contain appreciable amounts. Tomatoes however, are very rich in vitamin "A" and Hubbard squash is also a valuable source. Little work has been done on the fruits but there is evidence that apples, bananas and oranges contain small amounts of this vitamin.

Vitamin "B" is guardian of good digestion and proper functioning of the liver and other glands. This vitamin is found in the germ and branny portion of cereals, in the skin of wheat, however, this vitamin is so completely removed that the finest grades of flour are entirely lacking. This does not mean that we should condemn the white breads, starchy foods, white rice, etc. It merely means that we must choose our foods intelligently and eat more vegetables. Potatoes, corn and wheat contain appreciable amounts of vitamin "B", although the turnip and onion are when taken from the water.

Hairs Will Vanish After This Treatment

You can keep your arms, neck or face free from hair or fuzz by the occasional use of plain delatone and in using it you need have no fear of marring or injuring the skin. Delatone is made by mixing some of the powdered delatone with water. Then spread on the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and all traces of hair have vanished. Be careful, however, to get real delatone and mix fresh.

MAKING MONEY AT HOME

Curious Wedding Custom Still Observed in Wiltshire

In the North of England Wiltshide is a great name for weddings, and about curious superstitions connected therewith. No matter how happy a bride may be, she must shed some tears on her wedding day, or, as the expression is, she can never expect to be anything but miserable.

She must always ride to church with her back to the driver, and will, if she rides in the best seat, always marry second place in her husband's estimation.

She must not on account touch a dinner or any cooking rig nor her wedding dress, or she will be a domestic drudge all her life.

In the old days, at Whitsun, Eggbaking used to raise funds for the church by sale of Whitsun or church ales. Another custom, which fell into abeyance in 1879, was the distribution of bread and cheese.

The food was cut into little squares, carried in baskets to the church, and on the conclusion of the solemn marriage service thrown all over the building to be scrambled for. As young men and the farmhands were transferred to the churchyard, and then formed the churchyard gates; so that quite an ordinary wedding in Wiltshire was to see parishioners struggling in the roadway for the food.

For many years, at a village in Devon, a lamb, draped with garlands, was carried round the parish on Whit-Monday while money was collected from passers-by. On the evening the lamb was killed and roasted whole in the middle of the village green, and the roast being sold cheaply to the poor.

This custom was rooted in a local tradition. Once the neighborhood suffered from drought, and all the people prayed a spring of water, it is said, appeared in an Ashleigh field. As a thanksgiving a lamb was sacrificed to the people.

Can Go Long Without Food.

Some weeks ago a pig disappeared from the yard of a Cornish farm. Search was made, but the animal could not be found, and was given up for lost.

Twenty-four days later a man passing an old mine shaft heard something below, and made a search. There was poor piggy at the bottom, feet down, quite unhurt, and it was speedily got out.

It was thin, but otherwise not a bit the worse, and at once started grubbing ravenously, says London Answers.

It takes a long time to starve a fat pig, which can actually lose half its weight before it dies. But smaller animals can go without food for a long time, and can lose as much as two-fifths of their weight before succumbing. An exception is the mole, which, when deprived of food, starves to death in less than 24 hours.

A healthy human being can fast for days if he or she takes plenty of water. A case is on record of a woman going 14 days without food, during which time her weight decreased from 141 to 98 pounds.

Children cannot fast for long without fatal consequences. Cats collapse after a fast of three to five days, and lose a quarter of their weight.

Snakes, of course, are the champion fasters. The big python in the zoo never eats more than two years without a meal.

Interesting Tobacco Tests.

Some very interesting tests have been made to determine which smoke contains the most nicotine. In the glass tubes, in one end of which the cigar, cigarette, and pipe were ignited, the other end being connected with an exhaust pump, are used in the test. The nicotine is absorbed in a blue paper. These tests showed conclusively that cigarette smoke contained the least amount of nicotine. For example, Virginia cigarettes containing 1.49 per cent. nicotine, gave a smoke containing only 0.13 per cent. nicotine. Turkish cigarettes, containing 1.34 per cent. nicotine, gave a smoke with only 0.51 per cent. nicotine. Egyptian cigarettes with 1.74 per cent. of the alkaloid yielded a smoke with only 0.21 per cent. of nicotine. A Havana cigar, containing only 0.64 per cent. nicotine, yielded a smoke with 0.19 per cent. of the alkaloid. Tobacco, smoked in the pipe, containing 0.63 per cent. of nicotine, yields a smoke containing 2.30 per cent. of nicotine. Porto Rico shag tobacco, containing 9.33 per cent. nicotine, gives a smoke containing 0.25 per cent. of nicotine in the pipe.

Post Office Romances.

In the museum of the British post office there are many curious exhibits. One of these is a time-worn oil-can—a mail bag—a reminiscence of a daring mail robbery. This bag is over 100 years old, and was forcibly taken by an armed footpad one evening in February, 1788, from the postboy who was carrying the mails between York and Selby, Eng. A reward of £300 was offered for the apprehension of the robber, but no trace of him was found until exactly eighty years later. The discovery then came about in a most singular manner. In 1788 an oldwayside inn was being demolished at Acaster, near Selby, and in the rafter the workingmen found, amongst other things, the long-lost mailbag. It having evidently been hidden there by the highwayman in 1788, after being despoiled of its contents.

Romance of Captain Cook

An English Farmer's Son Became Famous Explorer

Recently some unpublished journals of Capt. James Cook, the explorer, were sold by auction at Sotheby's, and they have aroused interest in the present generation of the really great Englishman's the story of whose unfortunate death is recalled in the trials in the long annals of exploration.

James Cook was the son of an agricultural laborer, was born at the Yorkshire village of Marton on October 27th, 1728. The village in which he was ushered into the world has practically disappeared, but the hall in which it stood is still standing and is day school. He then became apprenticed to a shopkeeper at Staithes, near Whitby.

But even in those early days he seems to have heard the call of the sea. At any rate, his master awoke somewhat later from his usual day dreaming in the July of 1746 to find that the young apprentice had left his employer says that he robbed the till of a few pounds, and had gone to London.

Finding his way to Whitby, Cook secured a position as a ship's boy on board the Freelove, a coal brig of 450 tons employed in the coal trade and owned by a man named Walker.

He appears to have been a ready learner. As Mr. Walter Besant has written, "the rope's end was seldom required to start him, and the mate, though a disciplinarian, found it unnecessary to cuff the boy unless he could not understand his reach."

After cruising for some years he joined the Navy in 1755 as an A.B. four years later becoming master of the Pembroke. His great ability soon recommended him to the Admiralty for promotion, and he was duly appointed surveyor of the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts.

For the next four years he was engaged upon this work, in the course of which he explored a great portion of Newfoundland and drew a map of the coast which was still in use.

In 1768 he was given command of the Endeavour, which was fitted out for a cruise in the Pacific with the object of observing the transit of Venus. The observation took place on March 3rd in June 3rd, 1769.

Cook's next and most stirring voyage (that New Zealand was circumnavigated, Australia explored, and a great portion of the east coast receiving the name of New South Wales. After a voyage of three years and two months the ship returned on June 2nd, 1771.

The following year Cook was given command of an Arctic voyage to complete the discovery of the Southern Hemisphere." His ship, the Resolution, accompanied by the Adventure, left Portsmouth during the June 1772.

It was the best-equipped expedition that had at that date ever quitted the shores of England. Cook's attention to sanitation deserve special mention. On the previous voyage his crew had suffered terribly from scurvy, but Cook set himself to grapple with this disease, and his methods have been concisely summarized by Sir Walter Besant:

"He put on board wheat instead of oatmeal, sour krout instead of vinegar, oil, and a quantity of malt, sauerkraut, portable soup, inspissated mutton, rob of lemons, mustard, marmalade, oil, sugar, and inspissated juice of wort and beer. Some of these things were unknown, others failed to produce any good effect. He was the first known for their antiscorbutic properties.

The first time in the history of navigation a carefully-prepared scheme was to be made in the prevention of the sailor disease."

During the voyage Cook, after cruising in the Antarctic and the Arctic waters, explored the New Hebrides and discovered New Caledonia. On the morning of Sunday, July 30th, 1775, the ship arrived in Kerguelen or Spithead.

Early in the following year Cook's services were recognized by his elevation as a Fellow of the Royal Society. He was not, however, to enjoy a period of rest for long. He had now been at sea for thirty-four years and might reasonably have contemplated the prospect of retirement, but on May 24th, 1776—less than a year after the return of the Resolution—he was set out in the same vessel on his third and last voyage. This time he was to explore the North Pacific.

On March 7th, 1777, the Sandwich Islands were discovered, and after a cruise lasting nearly a year the ship was paid to the islands in the following January.

There appears to have been some trouble about a stolen cutter says a writer in "John of London's Weekly," and the natives, who had begun by welcoming the white visitors as gods, became hostile.

On the morning of Sunday, Feb ruary 14th, 1779, Cook went ashore to enter a friendly hamlet in the bay, Kaianlopun, and on his way back to the boats was murdered by one of the islanders.

The Salmon's Scales.

A single scale from a salmon will tell you its owner's age. When viewed through a microscope, the scale will reveal tiny lines, which have developed at the rate of sixteen a year. Since fourteen lines appear, the salmon must have been living well. Lines widely spread indicate a scant diet.

Here's a Chance to Make Elephant Movies

Washington, Aug. 21 (United Press).—At last a fitting test of the noble American movie hero's lion heart!

"The Pursuit of the Shadowless" is a scenario suggested by the Department of Commerce, in announcing today that elephant catching operations on a colossal scale will begin in Bengal in November and will continue through January, and that motion picture rights for this remarkable hunt are open to American offers.

The Department is prepared to transmit bids for any American producers. A box of not less than 50 of the beasts is expected, according to a cable just received from Calcutta. It is hoped to apprehend and execute a number of rogue elephants, who have been terrorizing the peaceful population of Bengal.

Quaintest Town in America

Ocracoke, N.C., Aug. 20 (United Press).—In Ocracoke, the chickens are the crime and no peace officers. Lodging costs ten cents a night. Supper of fish, chicken, oysters, cakes and figs, costs 50 cents.

Thousands of chickens roam the community property.

Cats have destroyed all mice, rats and snakes.

Bathing here the mountains descend the village and wild cattle roam along the beach in droves.

The shimmy and tango are unknown. Instead of "Yes, We Got No Bananas" the popular song is "Pop Goes the Weasel."

Oil lamps are used for illumination and the one negro in the town is considered independable.

Ocracoke, N. C., Aug. 20 (United Press).—Ocracoke, a throwback to the days of the English explorers and a queer mixture of the romance of the South Seas, the seclusion of the Pyrenees and the civilization of the Nineteenth century, is the quaintest little town in America.

The eight hundred inhabitants who have spent their lives here, following the fishing vocation of their fathers and grandfathers, live from the fish of the sea, the fowl and the figs as free of government taxes as the wild life of the mountains in their backyards.

The main street of Ocracoke is the beach. There is no asphalte or concrete, only fine, footpath running close to the beach, or connecting the old fashioned, clean-swept cottages. Here day after day dwellers, with that of another. There is not an officer of the law in Ocracoke although once upon a time shoes have ticks, relics of bygone days, the keys long have been lost and forgotten.

The town is on an island by the sands name, fifteen miles in length and a mile and five hundred feet journey by boat from the mainland. The island of Ocracoke is within sight of the graveyard of the Atlantic. Hatteras's wrecked shoals are occasionally at dawn the natives have arisen to find a new consignment stranded almost in their yards.

Horses run wild outside this little town, just as the mustangs in isolated sections of the Western plains. Cattle, as wild as the pampas of Argentina, rove the open lands to the northwood. There are no dogs on the island, but cats have multiplied until there are hundreds. Having fed the village of mice and rats, the felines have almost eradicated the many snakes which once thrived in Ocracoke.

There are thousands of chickens about the place but they are communistic property and no fences to restrain them are in evidence anywhere. Tame geese, hindia and ducks also are numerous. They are used to decoy the millions of Labrador wild fowls which swarm in the marshes of Ocracoke and Currituck to feed.

Old Fashioned Dancer

The people are just as unusual as the town itself. They dance almost nightly, but their dances are the ones introduced by their grandfathers and the shimmy, tango and hot trots are as strange here as critic on Jazz critic melody of the island orchestra is "Pop Goes the Weasel." Lamp light is the only illumination after dark.

The great lighthouse of the village sheds its beams over Ocracoke as it flashes out to sea to warn away navigators. Meals in the town cost eighty cents and lodging can be procured for ten cents. Hosts usually are angry if their guest does not eat heartily at the supper, which ordinarily consists of fresh fried fish, fried chicken, fried ham, stewed oysters, clam chowder, baked potatoes, rice, hot cakes, coffee, and fig preserves.

The town has a single citizen in Ocracoke but there is one negro permitted to reside here and he is practically indespensable. He is the island sexton.

There are two churches, both Methodist. The natives tell a simple story of the division in the church. The original church was the Southern Methodist. An elder seceded, an organ and another said the idea was preposterous, insisting musical instruments had no place in houses of worship. When the progressives rolled the organ into the building he played a miscionary established the Northern church. The congregations now are about equally divided and equally strange is the fact that although in the heart of the "Democratic south" most of the men of the village are Republicans. Democrats are those of the Southern branch are republicans.

Ocracoke is without a peace officer as there is no crime. A magistrate gave up his commission last year after holding office eight years without trying a case. Tragedy has stalked through the little community but that was when seafaring residents battled with the elements and lost. The islanders are as expert boatmen as the Kanakas of the Pacific and they ride outriggers to ballast their tiny fishing crafts.

While most of the men have journeyed from home, visiting port towns few of the women have been farther away than the little settlement on the mainland, where the Ocracokers go on occasions to attend the theatre or visit a doctor. The villagers are a big sun-kissed lot, running to blue eyes and freckles.

The town is one of the historic spots in the Southland. The first English-speaking colonists to arrive in the Western world landed first at Ocracoke. They were the lost colonists of Virginia Dare, who went to Roanoke Island and vanished.

Edward Teach, the pirate "Blackbeard," caroused here, gave the place its name and met his death, according to legend. He was killed when a British naval expedition attacked his two ships. Teach, confident of victory, longed for daybreak, the villagers say, and cried "O, crow cock," and from that phrase with alterations came the name Ocracoke.

Ontario Farms Need 10,000 Men

Toronto, Aug. 21.—"The best thing this department can do to help the Ontario farmer is to get an adequate supply of farm help," said Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture, Martin last night, when asked if he had determined upon his policy as minister of agriculture.

"Because of that shortage I am sending for Mr. W. C. Nixon, Conservative general in Ontario," continued Mr. Martin. "I want to talk over with him plans for securing more agriculturist workers from the Old Country.

"Right now we need 10,000 farm help in this province. We can absorb that number in two hundred bona fide applications for farm help to the government this spring and I am sure that you think we got? Just twelve. That kind of thing discourages the farmer."

Mr. Martin said that there was apparently no use trying to persuade the unemployed in the cities to go on the land. The Dominion could try to do that for, but the province would not bother. There is a want from Ontario to help keep in the harvest on the prairies, but it was the trip they went for; they did not mean to stay on the farm and nearly all would return.

"I have the source of the premier that he will have no to the limit in improving matic s for the farmer," declared Mr. Martin. He was not able to outline his min's policy yet.

FOXBORO MAN WEDS BRITISH MAIDEN

On the 19th of July, 1923, the marriage took place in London, England, of Miss Ethel Fulforth of that place, and Mr. Milford Burrows, of Foxboro, Ont., the ceremony being performed by the Rev. W. P. Iddison in St. Mary Magdalene church at high noon. After the ceremony the bridal party was served at the home of the bride's mother. The happy couple left Waterloo station by motor to spend a short honeymoon in Devonshire, whence they returned, to sail on the 3rd of August for Canada, arriving in Foxboro on the 14th, where they spent a few days at the home of the bridegroom's mother Mrs. Robert Burrows. They went from there to Clearfield, Pennsylvania, where Mr. Burrows holds a lucrative position.

NUTRITIOUS BANANAS

The producing power of the banana crop is enormous as great as that of the potato. The ripe fruit is readily converted into nutritious food; it may be also manufactured into sugar, beer can be made from it, while the skin can be turned into cloth, and the juice made to do service either as ink or vinegar.

Montreal Bandit Shot to Death

Montreal, Aug. 21.—One man is dead and another is under close guard as police headquarters following an alleged attempted motor car robbery in Notre Dame de Grace yesterday morning.

The dead bandit is Jacques Maiboid, aged about 23, the son of an occasional count there.

The man in custody as a material witness is Silvermatin, who is also well known to the police.

Constable Lebreton of station No. 33 did the shooting in the course of the duty.

Coroner McMahon will open an inquiry.

The story of the shooting and immediately, subsequent events is one of the most sensational in Montreal police circles in some time.

Poincare Speech Muddies Waters

London, Aug. 21.—Downing street was in an unusually pessimistic mood yesterday while awaiting France's latest note on the reparation question, and Premier Poincare's title tone of Premier Poincare's speech yesterday, together with protestes that the forthcoming note would show no alteration in his attitude, struck a chord of discouragement among those identified with the foreign office. The officials there feel that if the document is as contentious and belligerent as the press forecasts say, there is a little hope of bringing the interminable reparation dispute any nearer to solution, and a further exchange of ponderous and disparsive notes is foreseen.

One official expressed the hope that the French premier's note would at least indicate France's willingness to reduce the occupation of the Ruhr to "invitable" proportions if the return of Germany of pagpire resistance by Germany, and also that the document might serve to pave the way for a meeting between Premier Poincare and Prime Minister Baldwin when the latter passes through Paris on his way to his vacation stay, at Aix-les-Bains.

There appear nothing but indecent action on the part of Great Britain in dealing with Germany, but are not prepared to take any further separate measures would be likely to take.

Detroit Thugs Missing Bandits?

Toronto, Aug. 21.—Were the seven-man band of killers who held up the Hamilton-to-Toronto Mail Express, Detroit, on Sunday morning, the same men who staged the daring robbery of the bank messengers in Toronto? It is the opinion of F. H. Furlong, prominent lawyer of Windsor, who is conducting the case for William S. Morton, brought from Detroit as a suspect that they may be likely to be the same gang.

"That sort of thing has been going on in Detroit for two or three months now," Mr. Furlong said, in a conversation with The Star. "The general opinion is that they are a band of young "wops" from Montreal who don't care anything or anybody and shoot without rhyme or reason."

Mr. Furlong drew attention to similarities between the action of the Toronto bandits and those who held up the Allendale Inn.

In the first place, in both cases, those hold-ups men, instead of going to the unfrequented spots, chose the places where there are the most people.

At the Allendale Inn there were more than 150 guests. The gunmen stooped down in two cars. The first notice of their arrival was a fusillade of bullets at the ceiling. Two men remained in the cars. The others came in by all entrances into the premises. Weapons were profuse. Each man had a gun in each hand and particularly dark gangsters of his left hand to do most of the searching while his kept two guns moving in his right. While this member of the gang frisked the guests, another young man, not more than 18 years of age, kept shooting without hesitancy wherever there was the slightest tremor of opposition or resistance.

The indiscriminate character of shooting that marked the Toronto holdup occurred again in Detroit when three days later in Monroe, Michigan, one of the same bandits threw the murder and kidnapping of a motorcycle policeman who tried to stop them.

Somehow or other, the opinion is widespread in Detroit that this terrorizing band is from Montreal, and in both cases, similar terrorizing tactics give more than credence to the suspicion.

It is believed that this similarity has been recognized by the police from the first, and that it is on this account that they concentrated their attention upon Detroit in an attempt to find the Toronto bandits.

PEGGY O'DAY AT REGENT IN THRILLING RACING FILM

Seldom, if ever, has a star of the silver screen been called upon to perform such a daring and thrilling act as is called for in "Thundering Hoofs," the big racing film now being exhibited at the Regent Theatre. Peggy O'Day, the popular little star of the photoplay, rides one of the most daring and sensational races ever photographed. And Peggy really does the riding throughout. She is one star who does not employ double. Little Peggy O'Day has ridden horses ever since she was five years old and it was no stunt for her to mount "Donie" and ride him to victory against real jockeys who had difficulty in keeping up with her.

A new Toonerville trolley comedy, Pop News, and a new chapter of Universal's popular stunt serial completes a really worth while program.

ALICE BRADY AT GRIFFIN'S IN STORY OF THE FAR NORTH

Alice Brady's latest Paramount picture, "Drifting Sands," had a successful premiere at Griffin's Theatre last evening. Miss Brady plays Flynn and Jack Easton in the cast.

Annette Lerous, recently returned from school in Grande Quebec, causes a stir in the village of La Paix and has a romantic attachment for Andre Poret, the village belle.

Annette's father kills William Charlie, a trap robber. Paul Grenal witnesses the murder and demands for his silence the hand of the beautiful Annette. To save her father from the gallows, the girl consents to marry Gerard; then follow many other tender and thrilling scenes and a smashing climax.

Miss Brady's acting is faultless, and the work of Mr. Flynn is especially commendable. Others in the supporting cast include Jack Easton, Marie Shotwell, Nick Thompson, Stephen Gratton, W. M. Cavenaugh and Margaret Morgan.

A Vitagraph comedy, a new Sport Review, and an interesting two-reel drama titled "The Kaffir's Sacrifice", were also exhibited.

Prince of Wales a Canadian Rancher

HIS Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will for a month or so become a simple Canadian rancher. That he will remain incognito on his ranch, as he does bet mean that he will travel in disguise but that he will not take part in official functions or make official visits, and when approached with regard to his stay in the Canadian Dominion he has always stated that his time will be fully taken up by the affairs of the E. P. ranch.

The Prince of Wales exhibits a deep and marked interest in the ranch 36 purchased year-Calgary on the picturesque banks of the Bow river, alongside which the Canadian Pacific railway runs. It is but a fresh indication of the interest he has taken in it and the work it is doing. Immediately after purchasing the ranch, and long before returning to England, the Prince made arrangements for the shipment of some of the best of the British Isles to the Canadian West. Thoroughbred horses came from the Royal stud, shorthorns from the Sandringham herd, sheep from the Windsor flocks and Aberdeen Angus cattle from the Prince of Wales' own herd. Altogether 36 pedigree animals, the finest importation of the kind ever made, were conveyed in a thoroughbred state to the Canadian ranch. Since then the Prince has demonstrated that his purchase of the ranch was not a matter of sentiment or commercial profit, but a genuine desire to foster the breeding of pedigree animals in the West. His efforts have been eminently successful. At all provincial exhibitions the animals from the High river ranch are attractive features, and the Calgary Stampede each year, constituting the first and last Canadian shows to be visited, conducted by top commercial sales on the ranch have established a high record.

Cattle from the E. P. exhibited at the stock show at the Calgary Stampede were heavy prize winners, and the Shorthorn bulls bred from the same cattle created an unparalled standard.

The Prince of Wales purchased his ranch in 1919, when the war was the flag ship of the 10th Cruiser Squadron on Northern, east coast duty during the War in the most up-to-data vessel of its type and is most suited to the accommodation of its Royal owner. Before the war was conditioned after the war, this ship is one of the most comfortable vessels in trans-Atlantic service. It holds the record for all. Its large and comfortable suites and spacious dining saloon, numerous and excellently appointed public rooms and promenade decks make it one of the most popular ships in the Canadian Pacific fleet.

Rush Plans for Suspension of Work by 155,000 Workers in Anthracite Fields.

Coolidge Says Nation Will Not Suffer for Fuel as Result of Walkout

United Press Despatch

Atlantic, N.J., Aug. 22.—Mine workers' leaders today made final arrangements for suspension of work in the anthracite fields September 1. Union chiefs rushed to completion all details incident to the walk out of 155,000 men.

Washington, Aug. 22.—President Coolidge today faced his first national crisis, as impending strike in the hard coal fields. Beyond his announcement that the public would not suffer for lack of fuel in the event of a strike and his advisers' declaration that Mr. Coolidge is depending solely upon public opinion as a weapon, he has given no hint of his course of action.

Atlantic City, Aug. 22.—Miners and operators' wage conference ended abruptly when the miners refused to go into arbitration with any demands. President Lewis announced they will fight for their rights.

Atlantic City, Aug. 22.—Refusal of the mine workers to permit their eleven demands to go to arbitration caused a break in the negotiations between anthracite operators and miners today.... This proposal was made following a refusal by the operators to give the contract workers a 25 per cent. wage increase and the day men a $1 daily increase.

Arbitration was made the subject of a resolution by the operators which called for agreement that there be no suspension of work on September 1, and made no downward provision in wages be made by the arbitrators. This the miners flatly rejected.

The mine workers, according to President John L. Lewis, "are prepared to fight to the very limits of their existence, and to administer to the anthracite operators on these issues the most complete trouncing of their career."

DAMAGE CAUSED BY WIND STORM

High Velocity of Wind Impairs Hydro Service—Trees Uprooted

STREETS BLOCKED

Damage in Vicinity Believed to Total Several Thousands of Dollars

Considerable damage chiefly to trees and Hydro Electric wires, was caused by a heavy wind and rain storm which swept over the city about 4.30 p.m. Tuesday. The storm was of short duration, but played havoc with many of the city's stately shade trees.

Branches of trees littered the streets in the wake of the storm and several huge trees were broken off and later uprooted over the electric wires or nearby fences. Many apple and plum trees went down and a huge walnut tree on Bleecker Avenue was torn from its foundation, but fell in such a manner as to cause little damage.

The telephone pole service was also severely crippled, many poles being broken off and others uprooted. Hydro wires were also laid low.

Pedestrians walking along Bridge street and Foster avenue yesterday afternoon were warned away from "live" Hydro wires which had been broken by the storm. This occurred also in other sections of the city. Transformers were put out of commission and the power service was impaired for a short period, However the Hydro crews acted promptly to repair the damage and there was little inconvenience.

The street department was also kept busy clearing the walks which were blocked by huge limbs thrown across the pavements. The velocity of the wind was sufficient to bend down corn in gardens and considerable grain in this district, not yet cut was lodged. It is believed that damage in this vicinity will total several thousands of dollars.

PAIR ARRESTED IN MICHIGAN CITY

Port Hope, Aug. 22.—The local police received word yesterday that George Kinsdon and John Lewis had been arrested in Mount Clemens, Michigan, on a charge of chicken stealing. The police of Mount Clemens were anxious to secure the records of both young men and this information will be forwarded by our police.

Kingdon, it will be remembered, was sentenced by Burwash for stealing a battery from an automobile belonging to James Arkless. After serving a portion of his sentence he escaped from custody in the jail, now that has been learned of him since.

A warrant is held here for John Lewis on a charge of theft of chickens from Oldham Farm, the property of Mr. L. N. Clarke.

TWO ARE SERIOUSLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Two men are in General Hospital here and three other persons were slightly injured as a result of a serious motor car smash up on the Trent road near Trenton last night.

The men in the hospital are Sam Hall and Rube Milan, both of Kingston. Both are suffering from shock and were unconscious most of the night. Today, however, according to the attending physician, Dr. R. Branscombe, they are conscious. They were severely cut but have suffered no fractured bones or internal injuries.

The accident occurred at 9.15 p.m. yesterday, about three miles east of Trenton. Hall and Milan were driving towards Trenton, while another Ford coupe was being driven towards Belleville by S. M. Muir of Albany street, Toronto. Two young ladies were in the car with Muir. The two cars collided head on with great force, the Toronto car turning over into the ditch, and practically breaking in two pieces. The other car turned around completely on the road facing east. Both cars were considerably damaged, two wheels of one being found quite a distance down the road.

Both girls were almost thrown clear through the wind shield, one being found lying across the hood of the car, and the other hanging partially out of the broken wind shield. Miraculously, neither girl was hurt or cut, but naturally suffered from shock. Muir also escaped injury. Muir, who is a commercial salesman was registered at a local hotel yesterday and had been out for a drive when the accident occurred.

NICKLE WILL NOT ACT IN BANK QUIZ

Attorney-General Does Not Believe Probe Function of His Office

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Attorney-General Nickle does not believe it to be the function of his department or of the Provincial Government to take any steps towards investigating any phases of the Home Bank failure. Asked this morning if any such steps were contemplated, he said:

"No; I have not received any letter from Mr. Church asking for a probe. I believe the probe should be instituted at Ottawa. It appears that nothing can be done during the tenure of he curator. The next step seems to be the preparation of a report by him.

Mr. Nickle added: "I am doubtful if we could legally enter into any investigation, provincially. It is a matter for Federal authorities, as all banking matters are under Ottawa."

SIR WILLIAM MEREDITH DIES

Chief Justice of Ontario Supreme Court Succumbs to Illness

NOTABLE CAREER

Prominent as Jurist and Conservative Leader in Province

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Hon. Sir William Meredith, since 1913 Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario died at 10.15 last night in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, following an illness of about a week's duration. Sir William, who was in his 84th year, succumbed to an acute intestinal malady brought on by a chill he suffered last week while bathing in the sea at Scarboro Beach, Maine. It had been thought that his splendid constitution would, despite his advanced years, enable him to recover, but yesterday afternoon it became evident that the end was near. His death removes one of the most brilliant members of the Canadian judiciary, whose reputation knew reputation for keen, incisive reasoning had been established during his tenure of office as leader of the Conservative Opposition in the Ontario prior to his retirement from politics to the bench in 1894, when he became Chief Justice of Common Pleas of Ontario. A splendid figure of a man, he retained his mental alertness in remarkable degree, and only within recent months he was appointed to review the Ontario Statutes. Apart from his judicial duties, his main interest for years had been the affairs of the University of Toronto, and his long service as chancellor of that institution was marked by earnest effort to advance its welfare.

Sir William Meredith, Chief Justice of Ontario, was born in Westminster Township, Middlesex County, on March 31, 1840, being the eldest son of the late John Cook Meredith, M.A., a graduate of Trinity College. Dublin and Sarah (Pegler) Meredith, of London, Ont. The members of the family, eight sons and four daughters, were born on a farm about eight miles, from London Ont.

Sir William's legal mentor was the late Thomas Scatcherd, M.P., into whose office the future Chief Justice went as a student. Mr. Scatcherd represented successively two of the constituencies, North and East, William Meredith forged ahead. At 19 he obtained a scholarship which entitled him to two years at the Law School at Toronto.

In 1861 he was called to the bar, and, returning to London, entered into partnership with his former mentor. He was created a K.C. in 1875.

That as a lawyer he was in great demand home he was popular and esteemed is attested by the survivors of that generation. Among the veterans of the town he was greatly admired—his talents impressed them with awe. Many stories of Meredith's abilities were highly regarded.

In the year 1872 the new man making it impossible for a man to sit concurrently in the Dominion House of Commons and the Provincial Legislature, deprived the late Sir John Carling of his seat at Toronto. The constituency of London became vacant. William Meredith, who had meanwhile succeeded Mr. Scatcherd as the party solicitor, was elected as Conservative candidate and in a by-election which followed he was returned by an overwhelming majority. So began the political career of the young lawyer—a career which was to last 40 years.

That strong personality which later distinguished him on the bench was not slow in making itself felt in the "arena." He had not served six years in the Legislature before he had attained to the position of leader of the Opposition. In 1891 Mr. C. Cameron resigned the leadership to go on the bench; he was sorely needed at once by the representative for London. For sixteen year thereafter Mr. Meredith was a min

Expect Jam at Play-Off Game

There was a large exodus from this city to Cobourg today, the attraction being the big play-off game between the Grand Trunks and Petersboro for "Big Four" honors in the C.O.B.L. The winner will play Oshawa, champions of Division "A" for the C.O.B.L. honors. The game started at 3.30 p.m.

Cobourg, Aug. 22.—Final arrangements were completed with the local home show executive for the staging of the play-off between Belleville and Peterboro for the championship of division B of the Central Ontario baseball league at the home show park here this afternoon.

Secretary Jack Nott, of Oshawa, has been in town since Monday morning making preparations, and men are at work putting the grounds in shape for the battle.

Both line-ups have been announced, although Manager Walter Cover of Belleville is undecided whether he will send his right-hander, Jack Oulette, who turned in such a good performance as Peterboro on Saturday last when he stopped the Lift Lockers in their winning streak right back at the Peter, or call on the dusky Indian southpaw, Jack Williams, to do the hearing.

The line-ups of the teams are as follows:

Belleville—Weir, 2b.; Rose, 1f.; Brownscombe, ss.; W. Mills, c.f.; H. Mills, 3b.; J. K. Williams, 3b.; Casey, r.f.; Hagerman, c.; Oulette or J. H. Williams, p.

France Firm In Stand on Ruhr Policy

In Reply to British Note Poincare Refuses to Quit Ruhr Until Payment Is Made

NO CUT IN DEBT

France Demands 26 Million Gold Marks for Her Part As German Indemnity

United Press Despatch Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

Paris, Aug. 22.—France stands pat. The reply of Premier Poincare to the British representations note, made public today, infers that the French policy toward Germany refusing evacuation of the Ruhr until payment is made and rejecting any proposal for reduction of the amount of the German debt.

Paris, Aug. 22.—France will not renounce "one centime" of reparations. France rejects the proposals for a commission of experts to determine Germany's capacity to pay. France denies the British charge of illegality of occupation of the Ruhr. France will discuss modification of the Ruh occupation only when German passive resistance has ceased. France asks 26 billion gold marks for herself. France assumes England will insist on any payments in the French debt until the question of reparations is actually settled. France does not think she owes to pay the interest on her debt to England until she has received the payments from Germany to restore her devastated regions. These statements constitute France's final ultimatum.

EFFORT TO SECURE NEW INTAKE PIPE IS REVIEWED BY COUNCIL

Mayor Bennett, Aldermen Thompson and French were appointed a committee by the Council last night to wait on City Solicitor S. Masson, with a view to securing the consent of the Ontario Board of Health for the raising of funds to install the new intake pipe in connection with the city water system. Recently a committee waited upon the provincial board regarding the matter but were advised that the contemplated improvements must include a filtration plant.

As the need of a larger intake is very urgent and the construction of a filtration plant is not possible at present, another effort is to be made to secure the co-operation of the city water system. Recently a committee waited upon the provincial board regarding the matter but were advised that the contemplated

AVOIDING DISASTERS.

The practice of "locking the barn after the horse is stolen" is a commoner human failing. After every great disaster which claims its toll of lives, the reaction from the shock of the catastrophe produces a frenzy of precaution and "regulation". In a school building is burned or collapses, snuffing out lives of children, there is an incessant clamor for better protection, more fire escapes, incombustible building materials and so on. If a crowded theatre is converted into a holocaust and scores are cremated in the greedy flames, a cry goes forth for different styles of theatre construction, more accessible exits, and other safety measures. Responsible officials head the popular call, investigations are launched and after much public discussion elaborate precautionary measures are adopted.

The years pass and apparent immunity induces a false sense of security; the need of precaution appears less urgent and, in many instances the protective regulations are perfunctorily enforced. Then comes another disaster and the drama is re-enacted.

The tragedy at the Wawa hotel in the Muskoka district in which eleven lives were lost has produced a similar re-action and an investigation is now under way.

All this is quite proper and undoubtedly serves effectually to check disasters. Moreover there is no reason to assume that either the hotel management or the municipal officials were derelict in their duties regarding safety provisions and regulations.

Occasional disasters are unavoidable and perhaps even a superlative degree of precaution could not prevent them, yet it seems unfortunate that there is no way in which such catastrophes can be eliminated.

During the war the ships of the Allies or of the high seas were constantly on guard against submarines. Vigilance never lessened and "lifeboat drills" were held with a military precision and regularity. The practise is not so assiduously followed now. And the loss of life in the event of a disastrous collision would probably be greater than would have been the case during the war years.

While we seldom dwell on the following the same routine day after day, we are impressed by their proficiency and their smart appearance, but we are likely to overlook the fact that these "pretty" manoeuvres are really grim preparations for war.

The army motto is "if you want peace prepare for war." Ours should be "if time of security prepare for disaster."

EDUCATION FOR GIRLS

It is reported that there is marked agitation among the student body of Alberta College in favor of the establishment of a college for girls in the present college building. There appears, however, to be a diversity of opinion among educators interested in the problem of education for girls in the district served by Albert College.

Since it is planned to discontinue co-education at the present institution when the new building is completed in 1924 there will be no provision thereafter for girls who would normally have enrolled at the college had co-education been continued.

Those who are not enthusiastic about the immediate establishment of a girls' school believe that the matter should not be broached until the new college is completed. Proponents of the plan, on the other hand, assert that the girls should be considered immediately.

Those who hold the opposite view contend that the Whitby College can provide for the girls of the Belleville district until a college is established here. The Whitby institution ranks highly, being a successor to Hamilton College, once considered the leading institution in the Province.

No doubt both viewpoints are well founded, but it seems that it should be possible to provide for the girls in their own district. It would mean an additional educational institution, but the equipment of the present college building could undoubtedly be remodelled and equipped to accommodate 150 girls for a few years at least; after which the situation might warrant further expenditure in interests of education for girls.

By The Side Of The Road

There's no danger of the hunters who perform in the play-of series at Cobourg today developing "Charley horse" even though they "strut their stuff" over the links from grounds. It's too late in the season.

The City Council should have incorporated in the milk by-law a clause requiring all milk dealers to install up-to-date water supply systems.

We sometimes have blamed the puritanism of the past. We have said that it suppressed natural desires. It did have its faults. But it was a great discipline. It developed consciences; it created character and strength; a feeling that conduct mattered.

In relaxing the discipline which governed conduct formerly there is danger of going too far; of assuming that because some of the innocent pleasures of life may be suppressed we are, right, then it is right to gratify every impulse and whim.

GROWING LIKE A WEED.

(Rock Island Argus)

Farmers and amateur gardeners often wonder why crops can't grow as scientifically and with as much strength as weeds. This is the answer: Weeds grow wild, with no helping hand, and they have to fight hard for existence or perish. They fight hard. That's why they survive.

Take a lot of garden vegetables receive almost constant aid from man. They are in effect pampered. Then every generation they have more to "expect" this outside aid, in the sense that by having this aid supplied they have come to look much of the natural vigor and initiative of vegetable life in the wild state.

Progressively, as you take the obstacles away, the garden truck becomes weaker in ability to complete with existence with other growing things. So wild all of us. Obstacles are sent to make us strong, thereby developing our powers, our strength.

PRESS OPINIONS

PRESERVING PEACE.

(Chicago Tribune)

American treatment of British naval strength is a question frequently raised in Parliament, and we do not see what good it does to have it really explained constantly strider by members who could be avoided. It ought to be entirely practical to arrange methods of inspection of immigration which would give a passport visa only to a person whose qualifications to enter Heaven are guaranteed to a virtual certainty. Then the immigrant would not tear himself loose from all his native likes and attachments and means of livelihood until he knew that his reception in a new land was virtually assured.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Munville Fenn

Before the gates could be opened, however, an ambassador in the person of Eve Pelly arrived from Richard Gilaire.

"Not 'ppen the gates, child?" exclaimed Mrs. Glaire.

"Richard, dear, Richard says it would not be safe for you and me, now the men are so excited."

For a few minutes Mrs. Glaire forgot the dreadful sense she had evidently entertained of "my son" and calling the message "all in the light, she exclaimed, angrily—

"Eve, child go and tell my son that if he give the strong locks and bolts on the door that his father had placed there after we were M'd'ered by the workmen ten years ago, and he can lock himself in if he is afraid."

The Reverend Murray Salwood, who heard all this, drew in his breath with a low hissing noise, as if he were in pain, on seeing the action taken by the fair bearer of Richard Glaire's message.

"Aunt, dear," she whispered, clinging to Mrs. Glaire, "don't send me back like that—it will hurt poor Dick's feelings."

"Go and say what you like, then, child," cried Mrs. Glaire, petulantly. "Yes, you are right, Eve; don't say it."

"And you will not open the gates, aunt, dear?"

"You are afraid of the men, Eve?

"I, auntie? Oh, no," said the young girl, smiling. "They would not hurt me."

"I should just like to see any one attempt it," cried Mrs. Glaire, as the big hammerman, giving his shirt sleeve a tighter roll, as if preparing to crush an opponent into injuring the little maiden. "He should make him sore, shouldn't we, Tom Podmore lad?"

"Oh, nobody wouldn't hurt Miss Eve, nor the missus here," said Tom, gruffly. And then, in answer to a word from Banks, the two workmen threw open the great gates, and the yard was filled with the crowd headed by Sim Slee, who, however, hung back a little—a movement imitated by his followers—until seeing that Mrs. Glaire stepped forward to confront them.

Chapter VII.

MRS. GLAIRE'S SPEECH.

"It's all right, lads," roared Harry in a voice of thunder; "Three cheers for Mrs. Glaire!"

The cheers were given lustily, in spite of Sim Slee, who mounting on a pile of old metal, began to wave his hands in protestation.

"Stop, stop!" he cried: "it isn't all right yet. I want to know whether we are to have our rights as British workmen, and our just and righteous demands heeded to us. What I want to know is—"

"Stop a moment, Simeon Slee" said Mrs. Glaire, quickly and a dead silence fell on the crowd, as her clear sharp voice was heard. "When I was a girl, I was taught to look at hands first. Now, tell me this—before you began to put matters straight, do you think all you have done right at home?"

There was a laugh ran through the crowd at this; but shaken, not daunted, the orator exclaimed—

"Oh, come, that won't do for me, Mrs. Glaire, ma'am—that's begging of the question. What I want to know is—"

"And what I want to know is," cried Mrs. Glaire, interrupting, "whether, before you came here, inciting these men into mischief, you provided your wife with a dinner?"

"Hizzy, hizzy!—that's a good one," some down, Sim.—"The missus is too much for yet! were amongst the shouts that came from sides, mingled with roars of laughter; and Sim Slee's defeat was completed by Harry Gilt's big hammer, which, inciting thereto by Banks, shouted—

"Three more cheers for the missus!" which were given with a hearty good will, and three more after that, the workmen forgetting for the time being the object they had in view in the defeat of Simon Slee, who vainly trying to make himself heard from the hill of old metal, was at last fairly pulled down and lost in the crowd, while now, in a trembling voice, Mrs. Glaire said—

"My men, I can't tell you how sorry I am to find you fighting against the people who supply you with the work by which you live."

"Not again you, missus," cried half a dozen.

"Yes, against me and my son—the son of your old master," said Mrs. Glaire, gathering strength as she proceeded.

"You come back agen, and take the works, missus," roared Harry. "Things was all right then."

"Well said, Harry; well said," cried Tom Podmore, bringing his hand down on the hammerman's shoulder with a tremendous slap. "Well said, Hooray!"

There was a tremendous burst of cheering, and it was some little time before Mrs. Glaire could again make herself heard.

"I can and do that," she said, "but I will talk matters over with my son and you shall have fair play, if you will give us fair play in return."

"That's all very well," cried a shrill voice; and Sim Slee and his red waist coat were once more seen above the heads of the crowd, for, put out of the gates, he had managed to mount the wall; but he was little heeded now as an independent body of stiffness, is—

"Will some on yo' get shoot of that chap, an' let missus speak," cried Tom Podmore.

This was a hit of a rush, and Sim Slee disappeared suddenly, as if he had been pulled down by the legs.

"I don't think I need say any more," said Mrs. Glaire, "only to ask you all to come quietly back to work, and I promise you that my son shall have No, no, in yours," cried a dozen.

"Well," said Mrs. Glaire, "in my son's name and in the name of the name that you shall all have justice."

400,000 NEGROES DESERT SOUTH

Exodus Under Way Brings New Problem to Two Sections

MANY CAUSES

Boll Weevil Blamed and Also Low Wages and Discomfort

By J. F. BELMAN,

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

(Copyright 1923, by the United Press)

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 22 (United Press).—The South today is in the throes of its second great crisis—an economic revolt, against traditions and conditions.

The boll weevil has stampeded the negro and, with the unorganized, orderly exodus, hundreds of farm, and factory hands daily, is going into Northern labor supply, low wages and the life of comparative leisure which the Southland has enjoyed since before the first shot crisis—the Civil war over the freedom of the negro.

Agricultural experts, bankers and students of economics view the situation with some alarm, as estimates from official and unofficial sources show that 400,000 negroes—men, women and children—are searching for the end of the rainbow in Northern industrial centers.

The feeling of apprehension is for the south—where the cotton and tobacco planter has been forced to pay higher wages for labor in the face of a doubtful profit on his crop—and for the north, where congestion already is being increased and lower wages are in prospect.

Plantation owners and land holders are daily being brought face to face with the fact that they, their sons and neighbors are going to have to go and take the field to help pick the cotton and otherwise tend the crop.

Negro Gives Up Fight

The negro for years has worked for the whites as a "crop-sharer," doing the labor under the plantation owner's supervision and assistance and dividing the proceeds. But the boll weevil, a tiny insect which began its ravages in Texas,

EVERY SPORT AT A GLANCE

FANNING WITH FARRELL

SPORT FANS FROM INSIDE THE GATES

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 18.—Col. John Ruppert's notion of an ideal baseball game, according to the semi-factious remarks of his friends, is one in which the Yankees would score fifteen runs in the first inning and the other side wouldn't get a hit or a man on base in nine innings.

Col. Ruppert is the owner of the New York Yanks, a terrific baseball team and a great sportsman, but he has a decided aversion against close games.

When the Yanks were sharing the Polo Grounds with the Giants, the Colonel used to be a daily occupant of the premises, and the fate of the game could be registered from his seat. When the Yanks would be way out in front, his chair would be occupied with a smiling, chest-puffed colonel, but when a pinch came, with a thrilling rally of the opposition, the chair would be empty. The Colonel would have retired to the darkness under the stands to inquire there what the noise had abated and something had happened one way or the other.

It is not a lack of courage that impels the owner of the American League champions to give way under the pressure of excitement. He hasn't the same temperament in business, or he never would have amassed a fortune that runs into millions. Perhaps it may be that he can't see some enterprise at his leising when he is powerless to have a hand in getting on the line in glorious himself.

In marked contrast is the case of Harry Sinclair, who of late years has made a couple of millions selling peanuts, "dogs", cones and soda to the crowds at the races and the baseball games in New York.

Stevens has his office and headquarters in the dark caverns under the concrete stands at the Polo Grounds and he escapes, listens, outlaws and peeps spying profusely, only when the big excitement is on.

He has too much to do to sit through the monotony of a one-sided game that thrills Col. Ruppert, and he has so thoroughly learned the meaning of frantic yells and shouts from the crowd that he knows what is going on and when to come out just in time for the big doings.

Another good type of the fan unusual is Perry Crogan, the genial wire chief in the two New York parks, who has been watching baseball every day for more than twenty years. Millions of words about thousands of games have passed over the wires that Crogan sets up every day for the writers. Perhaps because he has seen so much of it, read so much of it and heard so much, Crogan has long ceased to be a fan.

He can't name the cleanup man in two of the sixteen batting orders, he doesn't keep track of Babe Ruth's home-run record, the noise of the crowd bounces off his ears and the only time he shakes an air of bored lassitude is when some shout comes up the line for "My wire's open to the Star."

Sport writers are supposed to be the most cold-hearted, callused reactionaries of all games. Yet some of them—a few, it is true—are the wildest of the line.

One Cincinnati writer, who has been following the Reds for many years, says he is so wild a rooter that he is known all over the National League circuit as "Wild Bill." He becomes so excited when the breaks are going against his team that his shouts arise in a high, screeching crescendo over the noise of the crowd. Once, not so long ago, Bill Klem, dignified umpire, stopped the game and threatened to have him ejected from the press box, in New York, if he didn't cease to differ so loudly with the umpire on his judgment of balls and strikes.

Another former sports editor in New York, now one of the most famous and widely read of columnists, gets so worked up over the Yankees that he occasionally shouts "Robber" at the umpire like a regular bleacherite.

Then there is one of the country's best-known cartoonists, a baseball and boxing expert for years, whose heart has been built on him. His doctors have forbidden him to watch a baseball game or a fight, through the fear that excitement would kill him.

On the other hand, there are many competent baseball writers who couldn't tell you the score an hour after the game without hesitating to make sure.

KINGSTON STADIUM IN GOOD CONDITION

Richardson Gridiron Now Ready For Fall Contests

Kingston, Aug. 22.—Thick, velvety grass of a brilliant shade of green covers the entire playing field of the George Richardson Stadium, the careful and unceasing work of the groundsmen all summer being rewarded in having one of the finest football gridirons that could be asked for. The achievement is all the more remarkable, considering the burnt and scorched condition of every other open field in the city, when it is remembered that this spring there was hardly a blade of grass left on it and that the copy now there was raised entirely this summer.

Before the final game, the Dominion Championship last fall, the field was covered with straw and to sweep it clean the city street sweeper was used. It swept of the straw, but it took with it as well most of the grass. This spring when it was seen that only a few patches of green were in sight, Mr. George Hyland, foreman of the Queen's grounds, decided that it would be better to start all over again. The Athletic Board of Control was also anxious to have a better surface on the field, the day which was used last year being very slippery when wet. For that reason 200 yards of sand were brought to the field and spread over it to a layer one inch thick. Into it the first seed was placed and then it was harrowed, seeded again, rolled and sprayed. Four times in all seed was put into the new surface and when the young grass was coming up it was covered with fertilizer. This was gradually worked into the soil and now there is only the thick green grass to be seen. Under foot the ground feels very soft and springy and it will be a splendid field for rugby.

BOYS' HOME IN MEXICO

Mexico City, Aug. 22.—Mexico (United Press).—Mexico City is to have an agricultural home for poor boys. The Rotary Club is giving the project its support.

When Benny Leonard was flopped for the count of nine in a fight several years ago with Ritchie Mitchell, his manager, Billy Gibson, became so excited he stricken in his corner that he couldn't speak. His mouth went through all the motions, but not a sound came from his helpless vocal organs.

Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, became so excited during a fight that he works almost in a daze. After Dempsey's fight with Carpentier, Kearns was asked and wanted to bet that he didn't offer enabling aids to the champion and the Frenchman's fight was that famous right hand in the third round. Kearns refused to believe that he had neglected and such signs of concern until he saw himself in the act when the pictures were shown. Dan McKetrick, Leonard's chief second is the most known of the fight managers, loses control of himself so much in the corner that he has been known to throw out of the bottle instead of offering it to his fighter.

There is the opposite temperament in Dan Morgan, manager of Jack Britton, the former heavyweight champion. Dan never shows a sign of excitement, and it is good that he was so constituted when Britton was in his prime, for the two handled each other like so many a jam if he had a handler back of him who was ready to go on any kind of provocation.

A. Money could hardly buy the young Giant second baseman. When McGraw paid $75,000 for Jimmy O'Connell and when major league clubs are offering $150,000 for Joe Boley, the Baltimore shortstop, you might get an idea of the valuation of a young star like Frisch, who is not a regular, like green players from the minors.

PAPYRUS READY FOR RACE IN U.S.

Will Be Matched Against Best U. S. Three-Year-Old

London, Aug. 22.—Ben Irish, owner of the Derby winner, Papyrus, stated yesterday that while he had received cables from Major August Belmont agreeing to a race between Papyrus and the best U. S. three-year-old, he was awaiting return of a signed agreement before making definite plans for the event.

The reporter, who visited Mr. Irish at his home in Sawtry, quotes him as saying: "If they agree to my terms I will agree to ship the horse, provided he is well and shipping arrangements can be made. I have received cables from Major Belmont saying the terms are accepted, but as you know cables are not binding documents and I am waiting for the real agreement in writing before I fix the date for shipping my horse."

Mr. Irish is anxious to have Steve Donoghue, premier jockey of Great Britain, ride his horse if the Belmont-Irish meeting is arranged and said he was negotiating with the jockey to make the trip.

Although undecided as to the date of the horse's shipment, the owner said he hoped to have time to give him four or five days' rest after reaching the U. S. and three weeks' training before the race. Papyrus will be in good condition at present. Gossip in racing circles was that he was lame for three weeks after winning the Derby. Last week, however, according to Mr. Irish, Papyrus went over the St. Leger course and displayed form such as he had never surpassed.

"DOUG" HUESTIS IS SENT TO LONDON

Will Be Unable to Row in the Double Blue Eight Against Leaders

Toronto, Aug. 22.—"Doug" Huestis, the clever wing player who performed well for the Argonaut football team during the past three years, has been sent to London by his firm, and will, therefore, be unable to take his place in the Double Blue senior eight, which rows against the London crew at the Canadian National Exhibition, or with the football team in the next Interprovincial Union race. The Argos will miss his sterling service, as he was equally effective in the two lines of sport—major leagues in lacrosse and football.

Huestis was weight only about 165 pounds, possesses unusual strength, and in addition was a great man on getting the ball. As a punter he was one of the best ground gainers in the "Big Four" and his passing was also high class. He developed as a speller at St. Catharines and made a good showing.

Previous to joining the Double Blue, Huestis played football and rowed for the University of Toronto.

Argos will not have the same team which represented them last fall in the interprovincial race. Moss McCormick—Speedy—Ed Hanna, Lionel Conacher's affiliations with the University of Pittsburg and the loss of Huestis will leave gaps which will be hard to fill. Others, too, may not be available but this style of advice is not unusual in football and the Argonaut Blue will undoubtedly round out another formidable aggregation.

Young Joe Wiggs' new stroke of the 4 go senior eight will try for a place on the football team and give promise of developing into another Conacher. He is a powerful built boy and only needs experience to advance him up among the oarsmen.

LONDON NAMES BECK MEDIATOR

Will Secure Price on City's Transportation System

London, Aug. 22.—City Council has appointed Sir Adam Beck, M.P.P., to act as mediator for the city, to secure a price on the London Street Railway System, on which a vote of the people may be taken in December.

Mayor Wenige and Aldermen Watt, Hendrick, Colbert and McKay offered stiff opposition, but were unable to defeat the recommendation of the Special Transportation Commission.

Supporters of Sir Adam's appointment contended that the Hydro chief had the confidence of the people, and that he had more expert knowledge than the mayor or aldermen. The final vote was 9 to 6.

If Sir Adam is able to secure a fair price by negotiation, the heavy cost of arbitration will be saved.

Lord Chaplin Victorian Squire

"A Victorian Squire" is the apt title given by the London Mirror to the celebrated sporting peer, the late Lord Chaplin who died a couple of weeks ago. He had a long record of public service, which, if it was not distinguished by brilliance, was marked by fidelity to principles and strict discharge of his special responsibilities, which in some departments, was substantial. During the war he held the onerous special role of Leader of the Opposition. When the Coalition Government was formed in May, 1915, and nine like Jews, Law and Balfour agreed to serve under Asquith it was felt that a kind of Opposition ought to be formed to control the old custom of House of Commons dictation, and of this he was, by common consent made leader. It was not a fighting opposition, but an opposition of suggestion and friendly criticism, of support of the measure of the Government's and Chaplin had been behind him and nothing to do with the agitation against the military service bill. He kept his last appearance in the public eye by taking a railway trip to the widely sought admittance to the Senate Casino House meeting which took upon the revolt from Lloyd George's leadership, and resulted in the election of Bonar Law.

Henry Chaplin came of an old Lincolnshire county family, his father being a "squarson" who owned a great deal of land and was a keen and highly profitable interest in the early ramifications of railways in the eastern counties. He went to Harrow and Christ Church, and on coming of the leaving Oxford was elected to Parliament. At this time, though he started encouragingly, he did not make a leading position, a fact that was largely due to his keener interest in horse racing. Later on he became the noted owner of racehorses to be recognized as the leading British authority on racing in England, both as regards sport and agriculture. In the first Salisbury Government he was president of the Board of Agriculture, a post created for him, he held until 1892. His political advancement had been hampered by the bitter enmity of Lord Randolph's scheme for the reform of the Conservative party. He introduced many important bills and was on several important commissions where his great knowledge on all subjects relating to agriculture was of great value.

He was always the doughty champion of the farmer and the land owner, and was opposed to the Free Trade because he believed it worked an injustice to the tiller of the soil. He was one of the earliest and strongest supporters of Imperial Preferential. But his name will be longest remembered not for his Parliamentary career, but for his connection with the turf. The sporting world think, will never be forgotten as long as there is a turf, for he happened to be the owner of the last of the sensational Derbies ever run, and in every one of the greatest thoroughbreds registered in the Stud Book, a horse bred in one of the great studs of the breed. When he was 26 he won his first big race honor, and astonished the world by paying the sensational price of 11,000 guineas for two. He also brought a yearling for 3,500 guineas and called it Hermit. The colt ran fairly well as a two-year-old and began a real career about for the Derby. One bet of $5,000 to $250,000 was made on him by Captain Machell, who received odds from the young Duke of Hamilton, the most reckless nobleman of his time. Fortunately for him the bet was called off hysterically a month before the race.

Not so Derby was the Marquess of Hastings, another noted sportsman who bet £10,000 against the horse. It was fitting that Hastings should lose for there existed a strong rivalry between him and Henry Chaplin. He was engaged to marry and married to Lady Florence Paget. The wedding day was set, the presents received, when without the slightest warning Lady Florence became the bride of Henry Chaplin. It is said that in the morning she was with Chaplin, and in tearful haste called off to the marquess to be married. Or mark his belief that Chaplin had meant for hard luck the bridegroom laid heavily against his rival's horse, and Chaplin got some of his money up at odds of 100 to one. So much before the race it seemed that this was a moderate, for there was little being given a trial gallop at Newmarket by the noted jockey Custance when he stopped suddenly and was poured from his mouth. He had burst a blood-vessel. The horse became speedily known and it was not believed that would ever be entered much less a winner at Epsom.

Nevertheless, he did start in that famous race that was run in a snowstorm. Hermit and the other horses got early away from the field and made all the running, the Chaplin horse winning by a neck from Marksman. Hermit won other races later, but without distinction, and it seems to be supposed that Hermit was the last sensational, indeed the last to some others that have won the Derby, for, fortunately, he was soon retired to the stud, and in two or three years Hermit's name was well known in any part of the world that was interested in race horses. Here was his and fortune poured in on Chaplin. It is said that for many seasons Hermit brought him in £15,-000 a year. As became a wealthy Lincolnshire squire, Mr. Chaplin was a keen sportsman and shot and rode to hounds till almost the end of his life. He was a singularly handsome man, but troubled by excess of flesh, and it was only by tremendous exertions that he got himself down to 224 pounds. He was made a viscount in 1916.

Plan Exhaustive Probe of Disaster

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Coroner's inquest into the death of Wawa Hotel fire victims will take on the aspect of a thorough Government probe following arrangements made yesterday by Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer, and Hon. W. F. McRae, Attorney-General. While the Honorable coroner, Dr. T. J. McDonald, will conduct the inquest as usual, W. A. Boys, K.C., of Toronto, has been selected as special counsel to represent the Attorney-General's Department, under which the inquest is held, and Inspector Archibald, of the Fire Marshal's office, will be present on behalf of the Fire Marshal. Messrs. Price and McRae have been instructed also to attend the sessions of the probe.

Attorney-General Nickle stated today that complete instructions have been issued to make the inquest probe as thorough as possible, with special instructions to go into the cause of the fire, the fire protection and water pressure provided.

THIEVES RANSACK PORT HOPE STORE

Port Hope, Aug. 22.—The bank bandits in Toronto have nothing on Port Hope thieves, who, not content with customers passing in and out of the store and citizens going by the front door, meanwhile, thieves entered twenty-seven dollars in cash from the till in F. Solme's store, Queen street. Mr. Solme was in the store all day and evidently the thieves watched for the opportunity when he was at the rear filling a cheese order. Certainly they were acquainted with the lay out of the store as they went direct to work rapidly not to be detected.

"SAFETY" RULES IN ACCIDENT CASES

Advice to Car Drivers Designed to Avoid Confusion

The following advice to car drivers prepared by the Ontario Safety League should receive particular attention:—

Prepared by the National Safety Council, issued by the Ontario Safety League.

Springs, Frame, Loading and Tires Broken suggestions and many serious accidents may be avoided by:—

(a) Keeping spring clips tight.

(b) Using correct shackles.

(c) Lubricating springs properly.

(d) Proper loading.

(e) Careful driving, especially on rough roads.

The frame can be kept in good condition by:—

(a) Frequent cleaning. This prevents rust.

(b) Keeping all bolts tight.

(c) Replacing all loose rivets.

(d) Proper maintenance and adjustment of brakes.

When loading:—

(a) Avoid overloading one side.

(b) Do not pile loads to carry more than the rated capacity of the car.

(c) Do not pile too high; neither should the load be too heavy at the heavy articles on the bottom and light articles on top.

(d) No part of the load should extend beyond the sides of the car.

(e) Neither should the load extend beyond the back of the car. If pipes or other articles are loaded which must project beyond the end of the car, a bright red flag in daytime and a red light at night should be attached at the far end of the projection. Be careful to avoid accidents when turning corners to make sure that you do not swing around and strike pedestrians, objects, or other vehicles with the projecting load. Tires sometimes cause accidents.

(a) A blowout, especially when on a front wheel and when speeding, may overturn the car or result in some other serious accident.

(b) It is dangerous to run a car with a soft tire, especially if the rims are of the clincher detachable type. Soft tires, especially on front wheels, make steering difficult, consume extra power and may accidentally be pulled off the car easier than if they were properly inflated. Throwing off tires is dangerous. If the car is traveling at high speed it may even cause the car to overturn.

(c) If tires are worn of the split-rim type, look rim properly before it is put on the wheel. Be sure wedges are fastened up tight.

(d) Do not over-inflate the tires. Air expands when heated. A tire which tests at 90 pound in a garage may show over 70 pounds after the car has been driven at a good speed over a hot road.

(e) If wire wheels are used, be sure they are securely locked, not simply door by relying on the "liability of the car to skid, but it is extremely hard on tires.

FORMER KAISER ADMITS PLOTTING

Monarchial Aspirations of Hohenzollerns Substantiated

The Hague, Aug. 22.—The Deutsche Vorkszeitung, an ultra-radical German periodical published in Holland, prints what appears to be a genuine interview with the ex-Kaiser and his wife, obtained by the editor, Herr Prell. This paper appears to have been chosen for Wilhelm's utterances for some very good reason which is not yet apparent.

What is perhaps the most striking feature is that, in the course of the interview the ex-Kaiser admits the activities of the Hohenzollerns in Holland during the past few months which he and his officials here had insistently denied.

Herr Prell relates that the ex-Kaiser appears to be in good health, with no sign of the nervous look displayed by many photographs. Laughingly the ex-Kaiser shook his head at the suggestion.

"If you want to hear me on politics, then you must have patience."

"That is almost unbelievable," is her of the reports of intrigues, nightly visits, etc.," replied Herr Prell.

"Yes, you are right. Naturally, I have read about it," said William, "but who can blame me if my children visit me here? Do you blame the Crown Prince for wanting to leave his lonely island to seek distraction in Doorn?"

FLINT CONE POINTS SCIENTISTS BACK TO THE FIRST AMERICAN

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 22 (United Press)—A real "honest-to-man" may have lived in prehistoric times in America, according to recent discoveries by a Smithsonian Institute investigator in Missouri.

Most everyone knows that, before the Indians, there were the mound builders. But lack of any evidence of a real "primitive man" such as the Neanderthaler and the Cro-Magnons of Europe, has led zoologists to believe that the Americas may be a newer continent.

Gerald Fowke, anthropologist, working under the direction of the Smithsonian Institute, however, has just returned from Stratman Cave, on the Gasconade river, in Maries Co., with a flint cone from which arrowheads had evidently been chipped, in a stratum many feet below the strata which carry evidence of the earliest Indians.

In the layer above the rock stratum in which the cone was found, Fowke found remains of what are thought to have been Indians, but of a more primitive type than any now known. The jaws were "prognathous," that is, the jaws protruded far forward from the head.

No other evidences of human activity were found in the stratum with the more ancient cone. Fowke said that examination by the ethnology experts of the Smithsonian Institute had brought the statement that the cone of "chert", a quartz-like stone, had undoubtedly been worked by human. The chipping was quite regular.

"Nothing quite like it has ever been found at such a depth in this region, and the experts say it is doubtful if anything like it has been found in America," Fowke said.

There are hundreds of caves along the Gasconade in the Ozarks, and Fowke has made excavations in many of them in recent years, in search of evidences of "the first American."

Missouri is Submitting Many Amendments to Her Constitution

By HERBERT LITTLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 21 (United Press).—Missouri's constitutional convention is scheduled to adjourn September 1, after an 18-month session and its proposed changes in the state basic law will be submitted to the people of the state in 1924 in the form of about 16 amendments.

The convention is profiting by the example of New York and Illinois, both of which spent large sums in redrafting their constitutions, only to have them turned down by a referendum.

The $400,000 spent on the convention would be a complete loss if the proposed changes and the old law were submitted as a "new constitution," leaders say, as both the Illinois and New York constitutional conventions had their entire work nullified by this process.

Abolishment of nepotism, increasing legislators' salaries, and abolishing technical requirements in criminal indictments are leading features of the proposed changes.

The anti-nepotism amendment is aimed at the practice of officeholders of giving their relatives positions. Bills to effect this change have been before the legislature for years, but have been defeated by the politicians.

Under the present constitution the state supreme court has declared that men solely because of the omission of the word "the" in the indictment. An amendment will provide that it will be enough for the indictment to state in concise language the facts constituting an alleged offense.

Other Amendments

The per diem pay, of members of the general assembly would be raised from $3 to $10 a day for the first 70 days of the legislative session, and from $1 to $2 a day for the remainder of the session, by another amendment.

Another guarantees the three biggest cities of the state, St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, home rule in police and all other purely municipal affairs.

A considerable change in politics' methods may be effected by another amendment which, if approved, would make it optional with political parties whether they nominate their candidates by direct primary or by delegate convention, and empowering the legislature to pass a law to enforce this. Missouri now has a direct primary law.

Full naturalization will be required of foreigners before they can vote according to another amendment. Foreigners now can vote after residing in the state for one year and making a declaration of their intention of becoming United States citizens.

For Short Sessions

Other amendments would allow greater leeway for local schools to limit the amount legislators can spend for clerks, create a budget system, give the governor power to cut local police from any section of the state to assist in keeping the peace, in time of emergency. This last is attacked by the labor advocates as a "state police provision in disguise."

Changes in taxation and increases in the number of courts also are being discussed.

The convention is composed of 67 elected delegates. It has been nonpartisan in functioning, none of the divisions being party lines. It met first in May, 1922, recessed in December, met again last April.

Log Raft Is Weather Prophet

Boniface, Mich. (United Press).—Only a lake full of cedar logs, but the people of this city of 1,000 have last cent on it as an accurate barometer of the weather.

During the last fifteen years, as far back to the time when cedar logs were first dumped into Bass lake along whose shores Boniface is located, this barometer has never been known to fail, citizens say.

Bass Lake has for many years had millions af feet of cedar logs floating in it. These logs were cut by the Boniface Lumber Company and dumped into the lake until the sawmill was ready for them. The water keeps them fresh, citizens say.

Ordinarily this great mass of logs lies along the edge of the lake forming a belt about 50 to 75 feet wide. Always within about fourteen hours of a rain the logs will start to act queerly. Single logs will break away from the mass around the shores and drift slowly out into the middle of the lake.

What causes these logs to do this, or what causes the whole number along the shore to loosen up from the compact mass, no one has been able to explain. It is a fact known in the locality, for the lake is too small to have currents. It is not the wind that causes these logs to break away —they do it when there is not a breath of air stirring.

If at evening they look out over the lake and see the cedar logs all floating close inshore they know that the morrow will be clear. If the surface of the lake is dotted with single logs they are certain it is going to rain.

All Employees Share Profits and Have Vote in Paper's Control

Emporia, Kans., Aug. 21 (United Press).—William Allen White, head of the Emporia Gazette, has established American communism here in Kansas and has made it profitable.

All signs of talking everyone on the newspaper into partnership has reduced expenses to a minimum and made every man in the plant work vigorously, not for the weekly pay check, but for the common good. All of the employees, from the greenest cub and freshest "devil" to the boss himself, are members of the society. Not only share in the profits but have an actual and powerful voice in anything that goes on in the publication, even the editorials to the buying of paper.

The plant is the practical application of doctrine long preached by White in his novels, editorials and magazines. He wasn't satisfied with just profit sharing.

"Unless employees have a part in the management of the business," he said, "profit sharing is only a farce. It is little better than a hike in wages, unless the workers help determine the editorial practices which make the profits and losses.

So all the thirty-one employees have a vote in the affairs of the plant. For many years White stood out against the code strike. Then the Kansas typographical union threatened a strike. Then in a meeting of the "soviet" the composite strip was recommended as a step to avoid the strike. White vetoed it. It was passed a second and third time only to be vetoed again. The fourth time it was passed, the editor gave in, and the increased street sales and home circulation proved the employes' contention.

Many problems are thus solved by the autocratic employer. There was the trouble of tardiness. A time clock was installed without the assertion of the editor.

Then a night between Christmas and January 1 of each year the Gazette "sere gathers at a dinner and at each place is a check representing the employe's share in the fiscal profits. His share depends on the number of years' service on the force and upon the amount of profits.

Besides the profit sharing, to each employe who has been with the Gazette a year, White issues a certificate for $50. For those who have been employed more than a year, the certificate is $50 multiplied by the number of years service. The certificates are not negotiable, but the the employes receive interest on the amount varying from three to twelve per cent, according to the number of years service.

It is not an organization for the betterment of living conditions of newspapermen, according to William Allen White.

"There is nothing altruistic about it," he said. "It is slimy with self interest. If coalition news gives more milk, why shouldn't contented newspaper workers produce a larger per cent. of cream?"

ALICE BRADY AT GRIFFIN'S IN THRILLING STORY

Alice Brady in her latest Paramount production, "The Snow Bride" is the attraction at Griffin's tonight. This is a story of the Northland, with all its trials and hardships, plots and romances. It is an altogether thrilling tale and one that will be remembered by picture lovers for considerable time to come.

Maurice B. Flynn has the male lead in "The Snow Bride" while the supporting cast includes Mario Majeroni, Jack Baston and others.

A Vitagraph comedy, a New Sport Review, and a good wild animal story are being exhibited on the same program.

BIG RACING PICTURE AT REGENT THEATRE TONIGHT

Realism in pictures is demanded today by the public. With this in mind Director Francis Ford when he was ready for the big scenes in "Thundering Hoofs," the big racing picture now at the Regent Theatre, took his whole company to Mexico and staged the race right on the race track with the proper background and real jockeys and race horses. The result is that Mr. Ford has made one of the most thrilling and realistic horse-races that has ever been shown on the screen.

Little Peggy O'Day who plays the lead was selected for her part not alone for the fact that she is a great dramatic actress but for another reason, she is a great horsewoman and can ride a horse as well as any man. Miss O'Day rides the great "Dorie" a thoroughbred race horse, in this race and rides him throughout.

A Toonerville Trolley comedy, a Fox News, and Ann Little and Fred Thompson in a new chapter of the "Earle's Talons" serial are being exhibited on the same program.

DOROTHY DALTON'S "FOG BOUND" WAS FILMED IN FLORIDA

Florida, the winter playground of the rich, is shown in all its phases in "Fog Bound," Dorothy Dalton's latest Paramount picture which Irvan Willat produced and which is the feature offering at Griffin's today and tomorrow Saturday with the usual matinee Saturday. So far as is known this is the first time the fine points, beaches, huge orange groves, beautiful estates and placid lakes of Florida have all been shown in one picture. Many pictures have shown one or two of these phases of Florida life, but in "Fog Bound" they are all blended on the screen.

One of the sequences of the picture deals particularly with the fast gambling set at Palm Beach, showing a fashionable Inn where gambling goes on in a riotous state, as a complete antithesis to this the modest home of Gale Breen, on the edge of the swamplands is shown bemused in by the fog which holds Gale (Dorothy Dalton) and Roger Welnwright (David Powell) bound in a impenetrable vapor. The fog as the title indicates, has an important part in the motivation of the story.

"The Skipper's Policy" another of those popular Fontaine Fox Toonerville Trolley comedies, a Kinogram, and William Desmond in a new chapter of Universal's popular chapter-play of big business "The Phantom Fortune," will also be exhibited.

HELLO GIRL BLUFFS WAY INTO SOCIETY

Tim Flanagan was a good telephone lineman, but his forte was as the annual Lineman's frolic was terrible. But he was persistent and when this girl threw him down for a kid who was more nimble in a footrace, he broke up the party. Eddie Gribbon furnishes a lot of laughs in the role of Tim in "Crossed Wires," the Universal attraction starring Gladys Walton, which is the feature attraction at the Regent Theatre, tomorrow (to Saturday with a matinee daily. Miss Walton is captivating in the role of Marcel Murphy, the little telephone girl.

Two good comedies and Pathe News are being exhibited on the same program.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE ACTS TO PREVENT FUEL FAMINE

ALBERTA COAL DISCUSSED HERE

Men Interested in Western Fuel Meet with Local Business Men

STUDY PROJECT

May Sell Alberta Product Here for $11.00 Per Ton

Mr. Howard Sintchmy of Edmonton, Trade Commissioner Alberta; Mr. E. L. McIntyre, of Toronto, Chairman of the Special Fuel Committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and Mr. A. M. Irwin of Toronto, Travelling Secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, met with Belleville business men at the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon to discuss the possibility of shipping Alberta coal to Belleville. The meeting outlined the coal situation in Alberta and expressed the belief that coal could be shipped into Ontario at a reasonable rate.

It is believed that Alberta coal can be purchased here under proper conditions at least $1 per ton. The meeting was in progress at press time.

It will be recalled that Sir George B. Fliney, an Edmonton business man recently made the following statement regarding Alberta coal:

"We are quite sure that we will be able to sell the coal here for the sum of $11 per ton, and as a matter of fact, we hope later to be able to sell it for less. Although we have not started work yet on the proposition, we are ready to take orders for coal, and we expect confidently to be able to start delivering coal here in October. That there is a great demand for Alberta coal here now is no doubt, and the province of Manitoba, which formerly had the same coal difficulties as Ontario, has arrived at a solution by means of Alberta coal.

"There is enough coal in the province of Alberta to supply the rest of Ontario for the next two hundred years, and I think that the time will come when Alberta coal will be sent to the United States. There is going to be a year when Ontario realizes that Alberta coal is as good as American and much cheaper, but we are cheaper than the Americans.

"There are two reasons for this. The ore is that our coal is surface coal and, therefore, we do not have to employ union miners to get it. We use steam shovels and ordinary cheap labor. The other is that we do not have to have expensive mine equipment, but get the coal with steam shovels. We are going to work on a co-operative basis, and it is my intention that every workman shall have a share in the profits. We are going to sell shares in the company in Toronto and we are going to undertake to see that all our shareholders are supplied with coal. That the coal is good household coal there can be no doubt, and the latest analysis we made at the University of Alberta and showed 13.8 per cent moisture, 33.8 per cent. volatile matter, 47 per cent. fixed carbon and 5.7 per cent. ash. The ash content is remarkably low.

"One great advantage of the coal is that it can be carried without injury in open trucks, and we will have a plant in Ontario here, where it will be refined, and briquettes will be made there as well as side line. We have acquired the right to use a secret German process for this briquetting, known as the Molecular Process.

"The Canadian National Railway system, through our friend Mr. Howard Ashley, 100 miles southeast of Edmonton, on the Red Deer river, and the coal taken from the ground with steam shovels, can be loaded direct on to cars. At present the company owns about 2,400 acres of coal lands and has 25,000,000 tons in sight. This would supply all Ontario for about three years, and in addition, we have the option on many other rich coal lands, so we have a good source of supply in sight."

BRIGHTON YOUTH SERIOUSLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK DOWN IN PATH OF AN AUTOMOBILE

James Gillett, a twelve-year-old boy, of Brighton, is in a serious condition as a result of being struck by an Oldsmobile car driven by Benjamin Coyle of Colborne yesterday afternoon in the outskirts of the town of Brighton. He sustained a fractured limb and severe cuts and bruises.

It appears that the boy was on his way to the ball game in Cobourg and during the day rather shifty he decided to stop the Ford car which he was driving, at a house and procure an overcoat. Stopping the car on the right-hand side of the road, he stepped from the left side of the car. Mr. Coyle, coming directly behind, turned out to pass the Ford when young Gillett ran directly in front of the oncoming motor. Mr. Coyle was unable to apply the brakes in sufficient time to avoid an accident. The boy was struck and severely lacerated about the face and head. He also suffered a fractured limb. He was unconscious last evening but it was ascertained this morning he had partially regained consciousness. Concussion and hemorrhage of the brain have also developed Dr. F. M. Dare of Brighton announced this morning. Dr. Dare holds out hope for recovery, although the lad is in a very serious condition at the present time.

Mr. Coyle was greatly distressed by the accident, although no blame can be attached to him in a mild.

The injured youth is now at his home in Brighton.

MOTOR PARTY ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURY AS CAR TURNS TURTLE

Jack McCauley, grocer of Frankford, his brother, Frank, and two auto campers had a narrow escape from serious injury when the Overland car in which they were driving turned turtle about three miles west of Brighton last evening about 7 p.m. The party were enroute home from the ball game and upon the approach of another car, the driver turned out to allow it to pass. Striking some loose gravel the car skidded into the ditch and turned completely over. The top was torn, the windshield broken and the upholstery and the body were damaged somewhat. The four occupants were very lucky to escape with minor bruises and cuts. Mr. Jack McCauley was unconscious for some time but first aid was rendered and he soon regained consciousness. His injuries were attended by Dr. F. M. Dare of Brighton. It was miraculous that the men escaped without much more serious injury. The car was taken to Brighton for repairs. A large crowd of baseball enthusiasts were on the scene shortly after the scene of the accident. The car had only been driven a short time and was a practically new model. The party were able to return to their homes last evening.

WORKMAN SEVERELY INJURED IN FALL FROM LADDER—SPINE HURT

After he had fallen with considerable force on his back, across the upper step of a flight of stairs, when a step ladder on which he stood slipped, Harry Loft, fence and sign painter and hanger, was rushed to the General Hospital this morning at 9.15 o'clock. It was feared at first that Loft's back had been broken, but later it was discovered that such had not been the case.

Loft, who is employed with Howard Simpson, decorator, was standing on a step ladder painting in the house at the corner of Ashley and Bridge St., Ameliasburg, owned by the John Butterfield estate, and recently the scen of a fire. The two men were working in an upper room when the accident occurred, and the lower part of Loft's spine violently struck the edge of the top stair step. The police ambulance was immediately called, and rushed to the residence. Dr. J. Robertson arrived at the same time and attended to the injured man, who was later removed to the hospital.

Harry Loft is a cousin of the late Franklin Loft, who met with a tragic death on the Trent road, in a car crash some few years ago. He is married, and his family resides at Ameliasburg, but while working in this city, he has been residing with his esther here.

U. S. TOURIST IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Nineteen-Year-Old Youth Injured When Cars Crash on Trent Road

Trent road furnished the setting for another serious accident on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when two cars collided on the highway, about 8 miles west of this city. As a result of the collision, one 19-year-old American tourist is in the hospital at Trenton, and several are slightly injured including G. P. Fitzgerald of this city. Both cars were badly wrecked. The names of occupants of the other car were not procured.

Fitzgerald, with Mr. Demo of this city, was enroute to the ball game in Demo's car. The American car, almost a new machine, was approaching from the west. Suddenly it turned as though to enter a farmer's road gate, but evidently failed to see the road again. Then it was that the crash occurred. It appears that the occupants of the other car were searching for a farm house along the Trent road where they were to camp. Throwing on the wind shield was badly bent by cut about the face and hands. He was taken to the hospital by Mr T. Thompson. Fitzgerald was injured about the legs and suffered from the shock.

Attorney General Rules Against Cuban and Mexican Booze Booths

In avoiding the appearance of evil Attorney-General Nickle has made a decision which will not be popular with the thirsty citizens of Ontario.

It was the intention of the six thorities in charge of the Cuban and Mexican exhibits at the C.N.E. to have as a part of their show a section devoted to a display of several thousands of dollars worth of choice liquors and beverages manufactured in these countries. Prohibitory law of Ontario were a snag in the way of bringing in the wet goods, and recourse was had to Mr. Nickle.

"The difficulties were insurmountable," said the Attorney-General to the press. "As I joyfully told the deputation, their proposed exhibit would be provocative of thirst in a dry province."

"The liquors are to be barred?" queried the reporter.

"Yes, that was foretixable."

BAIL NOT GRANTED IN BOHAN CASE

Bail has not yet been arranged in the case of James Bohan of Trenton, who was committed for trial by Police Magistrate S. Masson on Wednesday morning, at the usual Criminal Court of Competent Jurisdiction, on two serious charges.

E. Guy Porter, K.C., M.P., counsel for the accused, indirectedly made application for bail, but today Acting Crown Attorney Donovan stated that owing to the failure on the part of the accused to produce certain evidence required by the statutes, bail was refused for the time being.

Dyer Favors 3 1-2 Per Cent. Beer Bill

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 23 (United Press).—Beer will help enforce the Eighteenth Amendment, according to Congressman Leo Dyer, St. Louis. With this in view, Congressman Dyer plans to introduce at the next session of Congress a resolution to amend the Volstead Prohibition Enforcement Act by authorizing the manufacture of beer with an alcoholic contents of three and one-half per cent.

"Such a beer will be mild and will good beer," is the way Dyer put it "They would then help enforce the law as to intoxicating liquors."

Dyer's amendment would fix the alcoholic content of beverages at 2.77 per cent. by weight, which would account to 3.50 per cent. by volume.

"This quantity of alcohol in beer is not intoxicating, and I have abundant proof of that assertion from hearings held before the house judiciary committee, of which I am a member," he said. The committee will receive the resolution for consideration after its introduction.

A similar resolution will be introduced in the senate.

"All this turmoil, dissatisfaction and unrest should convince a congressmal that a change is desired. The law is not being enforced, even though a horde of prohibition agents is at large. This failure in enforcement is inducing disrespect of law and making more law violators."

Express Belief That Tie-up Will Be of Short Duration

Governors Will Confer On Emergency Measures

Washington, Aug. 23.—President Coolidge today speeded up plans to insure a fuel supply to the public as government officials here virtually abandoned hope of averting a hard coal strike.

Atlantic City, N.J., Aug. 23.—Breakdown of authracite mining September 1st, may mean a cost famine, John L. Lewis, President of the United Workers of America warned today. At the same time Samuel Warriner, chairman of the Authracite Operative Policy committee, declared that such a suspension would mean no more than "a slight inconvenience" to customers.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—Toronto is quite a long way from the mines, but dealers one after another yesterday afternoon did not hesitate to hazard the opinion that if a strike or a stoppage of work at the mines on September 1st, the cessation would be of short duration, and would not interfere seriously with the coal supply either in the United States or Canada. Four dealers placed the duration of the threatened strike at a month, till of them gave practically the same reason. They said September is a bad month for strikes, owing to winter being so near at hand. Self-preservation, they said, would prevent largely into negotiations for holding strike ordered.

According to the dealers, the mines have not recovered, financially at least, from the last strike and are generally reputed to be in need of money, chiefly because the union funds had become depleted. Two dealers said there is very little hard coal stored above ground at the mines, and the men themselves will be needing some to keep them warm. All of the dealers saw hope for the consumer, too, in the change of Administration at Washington. President Coolidge is expected to act with a strong hand in efforts to avoid a strike.

It is said that Mr. Campbell admits that he is still pretty weak and quite under weight. He hopes to return to his work in October, but wishes to get an inside job for the winter.

The condition of the messengers, Duck and Harris, still remains unchanged at the Toronto General Hospital. It is thought by the doctors that they will be able to leave the Toronto General Hospital,

Dr. Steinach Working on New Theory of Human Rejuvenation

May Revolutionize the Whole Theory of Youth and Age, Says Dr. Schmidt, His Pupil

By CARL D. GROAT, United Press Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1923, by United Press Associations)

CHAPTER I.

Berlin, Aug. 23.—Professor Steinach, Vienna, discoverer of a fountain of youth, is now working on a startling improvement of this rejuvenation method.

It may, according to his colleague, Dr. Peter Schmidt, revolutionize the whole theory of youth and age. What the basic principle is, neither Steinach nor Schmidt will now reveal. But Schmidt in an interview with the United Press, hinted that another quarter will see the birth of an idea, surpassing even Steinach's previous marvel-workings or the rare accomplishments of the noted Paris operator, Voronoff.

The new scheme, Schmidt hinted, may add even more years and more strength to human life than the present method—a method, which he says, has no harmful effects, but generally great benefits.

"Incidentally," he commented, "my experience and the experience of other Steinach operators has proven that, in the most instances, a man once operated on does not relapse to a condition worse than his initial state at the time of operation."

While the treatment is wonderful for humans, it also has a very practical application for animals. It can be used to fatten beef cattle before slaughter; or it can be made to improve fur and skins of animals.

"Sociologists come to me and are astounded at the results," Schmidt said. "They say government ought to investigate and adopt the Steinach idea. They say it helps the human race to produce better and to think better. They do, however, urge that it be so regulated that the aged will not be permitted to bring forth children.

"And I must admit that I bear considerable from the clergy. They say this is an interference with the laws of nature and hence, sacrilegious. Our answer to that is, 'Is anything surgical or medical is, in a sense, an interference with certain things in nature; but it is for the betterment of mankind.'"

Illinois Party Will Attempt Ascent of the Grand Teton

By HARRY W. FRANTZ
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Aug. 23 (United Press)—Arrangements now are being made here for an ascent of the Grand Teton, to be attempted about the end of August by a party under leadership of Dr. A. R. Ellingwood of Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill.

This peak, the most difficult to climb in the United States, has been ascended to its summit only twice in 50 years, the last time in August, 1898.

The Ellingwood party will first visit the Yellowstone National Park and then proceed southward past Jackson Lake to the nearest point to the Grand Teton, which can be reached by road, probably in the vicinity of Bradley Lake. Besides the Grand Teton the party also will attempt to climb Mount Moran.

The attempt to ascend the Grand Teton drives added interest from the fact that the late President Harding recently announced his strong personal approval of the proposed extension of Yellowstone Park to include this and neighboring peaks. The Grand Teton and vicinity affords the finest Alpine scenery in America.

Sign Post to Pioneers

The ascent of the Grand Teton was first accomplished on July 29 1872, by Nathaniel P. Langford, superintendent of Yellowstone National Park and Captain James Stevenson of the United States Geological survey.

The second successful ascent was made on August 11, 1898, by Rev. F. S. Spalding of Erie, Pa., W. O. Owen of Wyoming and two assistants John Shive and Frank Peterson.

Finding no marks on the summit to indicate previous ascent, Owen challenged the claim of Langford and Stevenson to first ascent, and started a controversy which has waged 25 years among mountaineers. A survey of the evidence by General Chittenden favored the claim of the Langford-Stevenson party.

A dozen other attempts to climb the Grand Teton have been unsuccessful. The great difficulty confronting climbers is the traversing at a point about six hundred feet below the summit of a ledge not over 16 inches in width, 40 feet in length, skirting a cliff about 3,500 feet high. Ice conditions also weigh heavily in any attempted ascent.

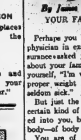

Owen, who was in the second successful ascent, now is a resident of Los Angeles, Calif. He returned to Jackson's Hole, Wyo., this summer to survey conditions with a view to climbing the peak against next summer.

Sign Post to Pioneers

After inclusion in the Yellowstone Park and the development of travel in the Teton region, the ascent of the Grand Teton will doubtless become a popular pastime with mountain climbers. Besides its marvelous scenic beauty, the Grand Teton is famed in Western history because of its service to pioneers crossing the plain as a guide-post. It rises very abruptly 7,000 feet above Jackson's Hole, and in clear weather is readily visible at more than one hundred miles distance.

The mountain was named Grand Teton by early French trappers because of its fancied resemblance to a woman's best. The country nearby, Jackson's Hole, was known in the early-western history as the rendezvous of outlaws and cattle rustlers and now regards itself the Last Frontier of America.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.
YOUR FAMILY HISTORY

Perhaps you have wondered why the physician in examining you for life insurance asked you so many questions about your family history. You say to yourself, "I'm well and strong, am the proper weight for my height and I seldom sick."

But just the same you come from a certain kind of stock. Life was breathed into you, but into what kind of a body—of body tissue, did it come?

You are of the stock of your parents. If a man with many of your mother's characteristics predominating and if a woman, then with those of your father.

And so the physician wants to know about your parents and about their parents before them.

Were they strong and vigorous?

Did they live their three score years and ten? Did they have any rheumatism, kidney or heart trouble?

In other words did they wear out early in life or was their old age one of good health. If they died early in life, was it through some inherited tendency, or did they hasten their death by strain, worry, exposure or excesses of any kind.

You see, we do not all start off even in this world insofar as our bodies are concerned. And so the physician knowing this, with just the laws of common sense, heredity and average, at his disposal, along with the clinical evidences you present to him in your appearance tries to figure out just how long you are likely to live.

If your family history shows tendencies toward any weakness of particular organs, just exercise ordinary care in the matter. This knowledge should be no source of worry to you. It should simply be a guide. Ordinary rational living without excesses.

And so if you have a wonderful body and a good family history don't take foolish chances. You see the fellow with the strong body takes such chances owing to his strength that hidden damages is not discovered until it is too late.

Sells Wife and Family For $100; Then Disappears

Steubenville, Ohio, Aug. 23.—John Miller sold his wife and seven children to Michael Davis of Beech Bottom, and then disappeared. Brooke County, W. Va., authorities are seeking him. Davis, however, is in Wellsburg jail on complaint of Mrs. Miller.

"I am tired of married life," Miller is reported to have told Davis, "and I will sell my family for $100."

Davis so informed Sheriff Stephens and said he accepted the offer. When he called at the Miller home for the family, Mrs. Miller drove him away and swore out a warrant.

What charge will be made is uncertain. He is held now for "disorderly conduct."

Favor Dry Law For Latin America

Rio De Janeiro, (By mail to United States)—The Fifth International Congress of Mutuality and Social Providence meeting here recently with delegates present from Mexico and leading South American countries, approved a resolution urging all Governments represented to adopt an Alcohol prohibition law.

An original resolution urging the countries to adopt a law based on the United States dry law seemed to have been in favor with the majority of the Congress, but due to objection by the Mexican Ambassador to Brazil, who was heading the delegation from his country, the words "based on the United States Law" were struck from the resolution which was then unanimously approved.

The Mexican Ambassador, during the debate on the project, declared, the Mexican delegation could not accept that part of the resolution containing reference to the dry law of the United States.

Marooning of Britons Probed

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—The government has instituted an inquiry into the conditions surrounding the marooning in Western Canada of certain British immigrants who came out to engage in harvest, and who have been unable to secure work.

The department of immigration, which has officials on the other side, realizes that it has a certain responsibility in the matter and will do everything in its power to alleviate the situation. Little apprehension is felt here with regard to the future of the new arrivals and it is hoped that they will all in early date be satisfactorily settled and will remain in the country.

TO PHOTOGRAPH SOLAR ECLIPSE

U. S. Army Service to Make Observations at Altitude of 20,000 Feet

Washington, Aug. 22.—The Army Air Service will make a series of photographs of the solar eclipse, September 10, from an airplane at an altitude of 20,000 feet above San Diego, Cal.

Lieutenants John A. MacReady and A. W. Stevens have been ordered to proceed to Rockwell Field to make final arrangements for this flight. MacReady is known internationally on account of his high altitude flights and as one of the pilots of T-2 which crossed the continent in a non-stop flight. Lieutenant Stevens is one of the most expert photographers in the service and also has made many high altitude flights. He recently in a parachute jumped from a plane at an altitude of 24,206 feet and landed serenely.

Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Air Service, approved the project for taking solar eclipse pictures far above the clouds in order that photographs of the astronomical phenomenon might be made available to scientific bodies regardless of cloud conditions close to the earth.

From a 20,000-foot altitude on a clear day it will be possible to secure photographs of the earth, surface features and shadow, for a considerable part of the interval between the beginning of the eclipse and the totality.

The moon's shadow will pass over the surface of the earth at a speed of more than 1,000 miles an hour. From his high altitude, Lieutenant Stevens should be able to see the shadow for more than a minute and to secure photographs of it in its states of approach. Should clouds be present between the plane and the ground it is expected that photographs of the moon's shadow thrown on the intervening clouds will be obtained. During the translation after the shadow has passed, if the wind is used as a photographic guide of the sun itself in an effort to get effects of the photosphere, protuberances, chromosphere and corona.

Lieutenant MacReady will note the variations that occur in his magnetic compass at the 20,000-foot elevation. These data also will be available to scientists interested in terrestrial magnetism and the relation between the magnetism between the sun and of the earth.

ALL NATIONS MARCHING TO ARMAGEDDON

We invite you to the Regent Theatre next Sunday evening at 7:30 for a message of cheer, that although a very dark cloud is settling down over the earth there is a silver lining—"For unto you the Son of the Millenn' now living who will never die."—B. Bush's, Wellington.

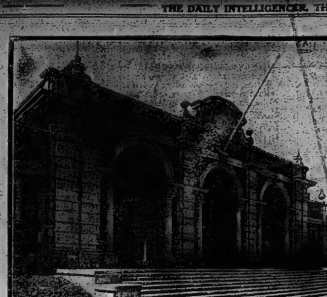

Make the Rinso liquid first

Do not put Rinso direct from the package into the tub. Mix half a package of Rinso in a little cool water until it is like cream. Then add two quarts of boiling water, and when the froth subsides, you will have a clean amber-colored liquid. Add this liquid to the wash tub, until you get the big lasting Rinso suds. Then soak the clothes clean.

Rinso is as splendid for the regular family washing as it is for fine fabrics.

Quebec, Aug. 22.—The provincial Government and the Quebec Liquor Commission have not changed their stand regarding the status of the medicated wines in this province, and their talking over by "Quebec Liquor Commission as provided for by legislation adopted at the last session of the Legislature." This was evidenced when orders-in-council were passed placing the ban on twelve brands of alleged medicated wines, which, had not yet been affected. In all 32 brands are now under the control of the commission. These orders-in-council were passed previous to the adoption of the necessary resolutions by the commission, which will likely be passed at the next meeting of that body. Imports of Canada's Dairy Products By States is Increased

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—That the United States is increasing its importation of dairy products from Canada is shown in a report dealing with the dairy industry, issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In July, 1923, Canada shipped to the United States 437,579 gallons of fresh cream, valued at $255,046 as compared with 339,620 gallons in June and 245,898 gallons in July of the preceding year. The figures for the first months ending with July are 2,036,587 gallons, valued at $1,345,093, as compared with 1,320,055 gallons, valued at $1,706,068 in the preceding 12 months. Exportation of fresh milk to the United States shows an increase, though not so great as in the case of cream. In the 12 months ending with July, 1923, 1,402,445 gallons of milk were shipped, at a value of $202,233, as compared with 1,062,893 gallons at $240,253 in the corresponding period of 1922. During July the United States imported 143,000 pounds to her credit at $20,294. The 842,648. Figures for the United Kingdom are not given, and China appears on the list as the next greatest importer of Canadian butter,* with 130,000 pounds to its credit at $36,324. The United Kingdom leads in Canadian cheese importation, 134,000 cwt. having been shipped to that destination in July, valued at $2,178,000.

GLACIER CAVES AWESOME TO EYES

Nakimu District, British Columbia, Now Being Further Explored

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—The continued exploration of the Nakimu caves, situated in the Glacier Canadian National Park, British Columbia, is one of the fascinating activities of the Dominion Parks branch this summer. New caves are being discovered, and increased facilities evolved for visitors to examine them. Although the caves were discovered in 1904 by Charles H. Deutschman of Revelstoke, it is within the next few years that these awesome, or as they have been described, gruesome wonders, wrought during a succession of glacial periods assisted perhaps by seismic disturbance, will come to be known to any large number of tourists. A train journey has to be made, succeeded by a seven mile hike on foot or by pony in order to "take in" the Nakimu caves.

Although guides have been set for scaling precipitous descents, and ropes are arranged to aid the traveller to follow the guide, the tour of the caverns remains "a most thrilling adventure." There is almost continuous darkness and the vibrating roar of the subterranean waterfalls will keep the adventurer's nerves at a tension. One dimly lighted cave the masses of water leaping tween the black walls, while overhead the marble is carved into a variety of fantastic shapes. A. O. Wheeler, secretary of the Canadian Alpine Club said after a descent into these shadowy regions that the effect was so great to make it easy to imagine Dante seated upon one of the spurs of rock deriving inspiration for his inferno.

AMUNDSEN'S NEW PLAN

Will Attempt Polar Flight Using Spitzbergen as a Base

St. Paul, Alaska, August 22.—Captain Roald Amundsen, Norwegian explorer, who was forced by an accident to his airplane to abandon his proposed first flight from Alaska to Spitzbergen over the North Pole, has indicated that he will make another attempt, using Spitzbergen as a base, according to officers of the coast-guard cutter Bear, which has arrived here from a voyage where the explorer made his base. The explorer's new plans, the officers of the Bear said, contemplate a much better equipped expedition. Amundsen was said to be greatly interested in the type of airplane which recently made a non-stop flight across the United States.

Both officers expressed the belief that spending from the Spitzbergen side and with a properly equipped plane of sufficient personnel, the flight would add one more to the list of the long line of successful endeavors, which include discovery of the South Pole, discovery of the Magnetic Pole, and the first voyage by ship through the Northwest Passage.

U. S. Training Ship Sinks During Gale

Washington, Aug. 22.—The U.S.S. Gopher, a training ship attached to the ninth Ohio naval reserve district, was sunk in the Gulf of St. Lawrence during a gale, according to a message received by the Navy department, in which there was no loss of life.

The ship went down in 36 fathoms of water, said the message.

The Gopher was listed in the official "ships data" of the Navy department as an obsolete gunboat. She displaced 840 deadweight tons, was of wooden construction, and steam, and was built at New York in 1871. Her last station was Toledo, Ohio, as a reserve training ship with the ninth district.

The Gopher's armament consisted of three 3-pounders, her gear being half the size of those now used in the navy for firing salutes.

SMALL PRODUCTION BIG PROBLEM OF AUTO MANUFACTURER

The Canadian manufacturer, because Canada's population is small, has always labored under the disadvantage of limited production.

This has been partially true of the Canadian motor car industry. Canadian manufacturers have had to build a number of only seven or eight million people, Canadian conditions, the size of the home market and the motor car manufacturer was hard put to it to hold his organization together on such a small scale. For this reason, export business has been particularly attractive to the Canadian motor manufacturer, because with the big companies have worked strenuously to develop it.

It is rumored that Grey-Dort Motors Limited, of Chatham, have received an order which will keep them busy well into the summer of 1924.

Questioned regarding its accuracy, Mr. Wm Gray, Vice-President and Assistant General Manager of the Grey-Dort interests, stated that it was correct "While the new Grey-Dort Six and Four models have kept us very much occupied," said Mr Gray, "we were glad to receive this order at this particular season of the year As you know, the fall and early winter months are usually the busiest in the automobile industry and this order will help keep us more fully employed I may say, also, that our organization is unusually compact at the present time and able to fill such an order in the most effective manner"

THE CAMEL'S BACK

Francis Lamb, of the United Mine Workers' organization declares that 115,000 workers in the anthracite fields will "walk out" on September 1st.

The decision to strike was made after the mine operators had refused to grant the contract workers a 20 per cent. increase and the day men a 20 daily increase. In coal, hydro and kindred terms large, but these are working conditions to be considered and it is unjust to criticize the demands of the miners without making an exhaustive study of the work situation in the coal mining industry.

So that so it may, the obvious fact remains that the strike will serve to hasten the day of government control of all coal fields in both Canada and the United States.

To permit employes to jeopardize industry and to cause millions to suffer in order to emphasize their demands by a show of strength on the public opposite is a method of procedure impossible in their ultimatum to disparage democracy and belittle the power and dignity of government.

It is apparent, however, that the long-suffering public on both sides of the border must make the best of the situation and secure their fuel supply at best they can.

Canada is obliged to pay an additional $2 a ton for anthracite coal under normal conditions and the situation of cutting off the supply when winter fuel is in demand is so apparent that perhaps the Canadian Government will be stung into activity with a view to preventing a recurrence of such injustice.

Various channels through which coal might be procured have been discussed, but no tangible results have been achieved. There is Alberta coal, Nova Scotia coal, Oklahoma coal and scores of others, but plans for utilizing these sources all appear to have drawbacks. Yet we must have coal and during the under present conditions we are at the mercy of, practically every one concerned in the mining and distribution of coal, let us endeavor to evolve a plan whereby we could avoid all friction, sabotage, humiliation, economic loss and physical suffering.

THE "ENTENTE MORIBUND"

The Franco-British entente appears to have received a mortal wound from the bellicose rapier of Premier Poincare. The French high minister's latest thrust has virtually eviscerated the once formidable alliance.

While Britain has consistently maintained a conciliatory attitude throughout the negotiations which began with the first offensive military movement by France, the latter nation has stubbornly refused to consider other interests than her own. Her recent reply to Britain apparently precludes any possibility of agreement which requires of France the slightest recession from her stand.

Poincare flatly states that France will not renounce "one centime" of reparations. In the same connection he spurns the proposals for a commission to determine Germany's ability to pay. He denies the British charge of illegality in connection with the occupation of the Ruhr and declares that France will consider modification of the Ruhr policy "only when German passive resistance has ceased."

Poincare further advises the British Foreign Office that France demands 26 billion gold marks as her share of the reparations and cannot pay even the interest on her debt to England until she receives payments from Germany with which to restore her devastated regions.

France remembers Sedan and the Treaty of Paris of which France was a humbled signatory over half a century ago. She also remembers the tragic spectacle of trainloads of gold rumbling over the border into Germany in fulfillment of the terms of the treaty. Her present attitude, as a manifestation of national emotion, might have been justifiable in 1919. But it is now nearly five years since the armistice was signed and during the intervening years various political and economic changes have occurred.

In the light of 1923 France's position is untenable. Her contentions are sophistries, specious but palpably unsound.

She sees only her own fixed goal and is determined to blindly pursue her single-pursposed course regardless of the wishes or interests of her allies. If success to her programme were assured and if the objectives upon the Treaty of Versailles were predicted were possible of realization through her policies, it might be conceded that there was "method in her madness". But since the economic situation in Germany offers such a hope appear almost quixotic her dogged persistence only reacts in a manner detrimental to her own national interests.

France is showing herself in a false light in her international representations have acquired extrinsic characteristics. As a justification she flaunts the "bloody shirt. One might be justified in applying to her own descriptive phrase "pattes de velours".

France has spoken, but Britain will speak again and this time the growl of the British lion may be distinctly heard across the channel waters.

COLD WAVE HITS NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 23.—New York yesterday shivered in the coolest August 22 in the history of the weather bureau. The temperature was 52 degrees at 8 a.m., the lowest two degrees lower than the record set in 1876.

By The Side Of The Road

Attorney-General Nickle certainly exhibits a keen sense of the "eternal fitness of things" and consideration of the feelings of others in proposing the plan to display Cuban and Asiatic flowers at the Toronto Exhibition.

There are many reasons why this should not be done. Firstly, it is tantalizing to persons with a refined thirst whose faithfulness has been gradually developed. Secondly, there is a possibility of a repetition of the Toronto hold-up with the liquor as the objective. Thirdly, the proper word to be surrender a speech to our own government wares and our best brands of moonshine and home brew.

If Harold Bell Wright could be induced to build a novel around the philosophies and psychology of the modern young woman he might entitle it "The Calming of Barbara Worthless."

A Stratford boy is said to have died and to have returned to life temporarily. There are others in Stratford who are dead but have succeeded in "fooling" the undertaker for, by, these many years.

The Hastings and Orillia lacrosse clubs have abandoned a plan to play a sudden death game at Peterboro. Peterboro were'nt welcome any such arrangement. It would be a too painful reminder of the "sudden death" of their championship hopes at Cobourg.

Coal strikes are becoming annual events in the States. If the miners refuse to work 3 days then in July and August and work double-shifts during the next three months considerable mental as well as physical distress might be avoided.

Wonder if any of the Trunky players happened to pick up a horseshoe on the Hastings Silver Grounds at Cobourg before the game yesterday?

PRESS OPINIONS

(Montreal Le Presse)

Demonstration of the impracticability of this project, so loudly declared to the public as an enterprise destined primarily to convert the ports of the Great Lakes, including Toronto, into ocean ports, will hence forth be considered so well established that the promoters themselves having ceased to make it a plank nowadays only talk of harnessing the Saint Lawrence to exploit the hydraulic power.

From the very outset, this was in fact the only object of the promoters of the[y] enterprise; the rest of the campaign was only a ruse to frighten the public and capture its support.

LIBERTY ENCHAINED.

(Buffalo Times)

Man is a creature of mental as well as of physical habits. For centuries ago he was taught to slave conditions and accustomed to slave thoughts. Then on the horizon of man kind broke the dawn of Freedom's day and Liberty's ideals. From month to month among the nations of the earth these words were communicated to an uplifting of mankind, and to the establishment of governments whereby all ages might be lifted up.

The madness, the sorrow, the wrong and the disaster of present conditions is that the words "Liberty" and "Freedom" have lost their horror, and to that degree their meaning and their inspiration to men. This is quite practical as well as spiritual fact. The world is poorer for the evil done. Justice is weaker. Right less potent. And man more doubtful of the Truth. Liberty is not dead! But it is not pleasant to see her in chains.

FARMING AS A SCIENCE.

(Montreal Le Soleil)

Farming is not only an occupation, it is a science. The man who makes use of the latter is always assured of a sufficient revenue to live comfortably, while those who neglect it lose a substantial part of the fruits of their labor, become discouraged and in the course of time subjects for immigration or at least slanderers of an agricultural career, whenever a crisis takes place.

If all the cultivators of Quebec followed but half of the advice which their instructors can give them, the harvest would be doubled in less than ten years. Improvished soils would become thirty per cent richer, farm products, butter, cheese, beasts, vegetables, fruit, would be of the best. In better condition, would realize better prices, above all, if sold in co-operation, and the annual revenue of each farmer would be more proportionate to the energy which he exerted.

MR. HARDING'S IDEAL.

(Toronto Mail and Empire)

Mr. Harding recognized that the first duty of a newspaper was to seek truth. He demanded accuracy and he urged his staff to remember that there were two sides to every question. In six words, he preached a sermon worthy of consideration by all men: "Be decent, be fair, be reasonable."

He counselled his staff to avoid pessimism and needless infliction of pain upon anyone. He knew that the innocent often suffer from the misdeeds of others, but he urged that wherever possible the innocent be spared from ignominy in the relation of the misfortune of a relative.

He ordered that all serious questions be treated reverently, and insisted that no salacious or suggestive story be printed. "I want this paper so conducted," he wrote, "that it can go into any home without destroying the innocence of any child."

In his instructions to his staff, Mr. Harding showed not only his own love of truth, fair play and decency, but also his shrewd appreciation of the qualities which make a newspaper respected by the vast majority of its readers.

BIG FAMILIES NOT POPULAR

Big families are more or less a curiosity these days. The stork calls very infrequently and then with small bundles. Twins create a mild sensation in a community; triplets furnish material for a week's gossip; if septuplets, quintuplets—well, they always were more or less upsetting!

The Grimsby quadruplets, who became nationally famous as dime museum attractions in 1902, still are living. Their mother, Mrs. Josephine K. Grimsby, is farming at the outskirts of Chicago. She was 36 years old when she married Charles Grimsby, in 1894. Her children came as follow: 1895, a boy; 1896, twins; 1897, a girl; 1898, twins; 1899, triplets; 1900 a boy; 1901, quadruplets. Fourteen children in seven years! The quadruplets consisted of three sons and a daughter.

A noted clergyman was one day basking in the sun in the park, hoping thereby to ease his rheumatic aches. After sitting for some time on a bench, he attempted to rise and found it difficult, almost impossible, to do so.

MEMORY WAS FIRST CLASS.

Binks, after telling his friend Jinks to dinner, was telling him about the remarkable memory of his little son Bobby. "And do you think he will remember me?" asked Jinks.

"Remember you? Why, certainly he will!"

An hour after they entered the house and after Jinks had greeted Mrs. Binks, he called Bobby over to him.

"And do you remember me, my little man?"

"Course, I do. You're the man that put enough holes last year and made us so wild about it that she didn't speak to pa for a week."

THE MOWER SANG.

Maurice Morris in New York Herald

The mower paused to whet, his scythe, and
And wheeling it he sang
Till to the merry tune and rhythe
The stretching haybalds rang.

The sweat ran down his sunburnt face,
But deep his breath and slow,
A wind made ripples in the place
Where still he had to mow.

The wholetone rasped along the snath,
Which hummed beneath the stroke—
The knife that had laid low the swath
In ringing triumph spoke.

What words were coupled to the tune
He sang sand the hay?
It may have been a wordless rune
The mower sang that day.

But fully did I understand
The song that then I heard;
As though each note the mower expanded
Was wedded to a word.

And as he sang my dull feet sang
And lifted to the blithe
While all the stretching hayfield rang
And all my spirits too.

HELD ON TO THE AIR.

A motorist meeting an old colored man trudging along the dusty road generously offered him a lift.

"No, sah, thank you, sah!" said the old man. "Ah reckon mah ol' laigs will take me 'long fast enough."

"Aren't afraid, are you, uncle? Have you ever been in an automobile?"

"Nevah but once, sah," was the reply, "and den Ah didn't let all mah weight down."

Agitate for Community Action in Control of European Corn Borer

No single farmer can expect to keep his corn crop free of the European Corn Borer unless all his neighbours are also fighting the pest. For this reason some sort of co-operation is essential. You can organize your whole neighborhood by arranging a mutual plan of campaign whereby each farmer undertakes to account for the Corn Borers on his own farm.

This plan will assist in bringing the Corn Borer under control, but without such co-operation, satisfactory results will not be obtained.

A Very Important Point

Cut corn crop low and as soon as it is ready. Burn all corn stalks. Garden sweet corn should all be pulled early and burnt.

Plough down all corn stubble very carefully. Seed to winter wheat where possible. Write for pamphlet, post free.

TRUNKS COP "BIG FOUR" CHAMPIONSHIP

TO MEET OSHAWA FOR C.O.B.L. FLAG AFTER 7-3 WIN FROM PETES

Railroaders in "Garrison Finish" Cinch Game With 5 Tallies in Eighth and 2 in Sixth After Five Barren Innings—Williams Proves Master of Quaker Outs Squad

BELLEVILLE Grand Trunks, by staging a "garrison finish" won the play-off game with Peterboro at Cobourg yesterday by a score of 7-3. Incidentally coupled with the victory goes the championship of the "Big Four," and the right to meet Oshawa for the 1923 honors of the Central Ontario League. The game was witnessed by five thousand fans and fanatics, representing practically every town from Kingston on the east, to Oshawa on the west.

Belleville had a great representation and they made their presence known. Peterboro had a strong delegation but they were outnumbered by local rooters. The Peterboro management arranged for a special train to carry the Quaker City fans. That event home a disappointed crowd.

Belleville staged one of the greatest finishes witnessed in these parts for some time. After being in the rear for five innings with nary a run they forced two to the sixth and added five to the eighth and tucked the old ball game in the hat bag. It was a great combination, and will long be remembered by Belleville supporters who were present.

Walter Gerow started Jack Oulette, regular, hockey and baseball teams.

Swankon the Petes, sitty Billie cabber drew the applause of the crowd when he went back to the wire screening to take Brownscombe's fast. Hickey Rose pulled down a nice catch. The locals for the first five innings could not seem to hit Heckman at all. He was going along at a great clip but the blow-up was bound to come and when it did come it came with a crash. If Peterboro should have won it is doubtful if they would have gone far with one pitcher. Belleville with Williams and Oulette should go a long way into the finals in quest of the Ontario championship. If they win from Oshawa, St. Pat's of Ottawa will be their next opponents. Belleville rooters with their Ker and N. P. North at the helm made a gallant showing against Peterboro's forces.

Cobourg Park is a very pretty place. The green verdure contrasted with the waters of Lake Ontario in the background. The stands filled with a bowling mass of fans made the lake-side park ring with their shouts of applause. The cheering was in the centre of the stands shaded the fans from the hot rays of "old sol." Could Oshawa and Belleville stage the series the third game should go to Cobourg who stuck through the second half under heavy financial difficulties. An airplane piloted by Kardey Wilmot made a pretty landing in the field adjoining the park and predicted if he paid admission. Specifications were made for cars but none materialized.

Frankie Hallinan and Walter Thorne were the officials and handled the big game in excellent style. They are regular "Big League" umpires and are right on top of the plays. Several close decisions were called but we feel confident that the umps were in the right. The same two will umpire the Oshawa series with the first game in the motor town on Saturday. Oshawa have a good battery in Dadzy and Ryan, and the Trunks will need to be on their toes.

Hallinan was hurt by two pitched balls but gamely continued.

We noticed an ambition sale on the way to the ball game. Another will be held in Peterboro when the ball and bats will be dispensed with and are of no further use this season.

Jakie congratulated the boys after the game and attributed the win best of luck. It was a sore blow for Jake but he took it in good "sprits." A commotion was caused in the fifth when it was found that our own Jackie Williams had vanished. He was however, located behind the stands with "Doc" Simpson. Jack said he was unable to stand the excitement.

A large crowd will not doubt follow the team to Oshawa on Saturday to witness the final game for the O.B.L. championship.

Allan Meagher coached on first and worked hard. One garment after another was shed while Allan continued his good work.

Three auto accidents marred a perfect day. It is hoped that no serious consequences will develop. The road to Cobourg was transformed into a regular Hamilton Highway yesterday. We are wondering if Peterboro Jake will do with Ansaldo and Connolli his two imported stars.

The crowd was handled in perfect order by the gate-keepers.

Cobourg was the mecca for thousands of baseball enthusiasts and the hotels, cafes and peanut stands did a thriving business.

President Dedingal Past-President Parsons and Secretary Nott were among the celebrants present.

GOYER'S PLAYERS LOSE PENNANT

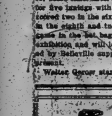

Galt Terriers Trim Maple Leafs 5-1 in Championship Match

Preston, Ont., Aug. 22.—The Galt Terriers are again champions by defeating Guelph Maple Leafs 5-1 in the play-off at Riverside Park, Preston, yesterday afternoon, before a crowd of 6,000 fans, which included hundreds from both Guelph and Galt, while Preston citizens turned out in full force. Kitchener, Hespeler, Brantford, Paris and all the sporting towns and cities were largely represented.

It was the largest attendance that ever witnessed a game of ball at Mineral Springs town and the interest was at fever heat all through the game, which went 12 innings. While both teams having many chances to score there was not a run crossed home plate until the eighth inning, when Galt scored the first run of the game in the first half, and Guelph came right back in their half and tied the score. Then for five straight innings both teams failed to get a run across, but in the thirteenth frame, which was Galt's inning, was that which proved disastrous to Guelph. The Terriers came home with four runs, while Guelph failed to tally.

In this frame, with two on, Hines was safe on Lucas' error, when both counters, the other two being scored on a passed ball on Pequegnat. Graham, the may ball pitcher of the Terriers, pitched the entire game, and by some clever pitching got out of many a bad hole. Goyer started the game for Guelph and pitched excellent ball, but he was sent to the showers in the eleventh inning, with three men on bases and one out. Henry took up the mound duty and retired the side without a score. The shortstop starring was his undoing, a couple of hits and two errors losing ascendancy for four runs.

With the Terriers and Maple Leafs on even footing, both teams having won and lost three home in the two games of the playoff, the third and deciding game was necessary, and the game was played at Riverside Park, Preston. The Terriers, champions of Ontario in 1922, displayed the same kind of ball in the game being did all last season, and they deserved to win.

Mrs. Evans Freed from Female Weakness by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"I had female weakness with pains in my back, and could not stand on my feet for any length of time. I was working in a factory but had to quit as I was so much on my feet. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Mass. I thought to me, and I can honestly believe it myself that I am well. Oh, it is a grand thing to have your health! I feel well all the time and can go and do other women and not feel that awful torture. When I took your medicine first I thought it would cure after the first bottle, but I am glad my husband got me a 2 lb. I have had nine bottles and now I am well."—Mrs. Jerry Evans, 1604 La-fayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.

If you are suffering from displacements, irregularities, backache, nervousness or other forms of female weakness, you should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For the reasons given in letters like these, and we have published thousands of them, you may expect that a medicine that has helped other women will help you. Try it.

FAIR WOMEN AND PORTRAIT PAINTING

London, Aug. 23.—Portraits do not appear in fashion but behave the end of the fourteenth century. The first real portrait painter of modern Europe was Jan Eyck, who is generally considered to be the ancestor of our portrait of today. The oldest Madonna-like portrait known is one of St. Bernard of Siena, by an engraver whom we call the Master of the Playing Cards (his chief production), since we do not know his real name. His drew Bernard probably a year or two before A.D. 1443 and engraved the plate soon after Bernard's canonization in 1450.

Now it is very strange what a comparatively small percentage of all the portraits ever produced are portraits of women. Nearly proverbial is the scene in anywhere here. By the way, as often as not the chief of power who is also over-facts, and something like that obtain in this case.

During the early enlarged portraits of his father; of his mother he made only one drawing. He never painted a portrait of his mother, and he left of himself, however, he painted at least half a dozen.

EVEN IN FRANCE.

Take the period of Louis XIV, and Louis XV., and Louis XVI.—Versailles—and one of the finest in the history of the art. That genius Nanteuil engraved Mazarin, and a number of these wonderfully fine, but only eight of women. For Edelinck the figures are 199 for 18, for Morin 80 to 6, for Masson 20 to 1.

Yet that was a time when women as a class were important part in national life, not only socially but politically. There have been specialists, of course, but even their production does not affect the percentage very much when the entire mass of portraiture of the period is considered.

What makes the fact more remarkable is that something which concerned us all is involved, namely, beauty. As regards the figure, no doubt male humanity has its points and the question is not above argument. But portraiture deals with the face, and there the consensus is so general that there is no doubt as to who is meant when "the fair sex" is spoken of. "Fair" sex! It is very funny in what constant terror Englishmen are lest it should seem as if their feelings were running away with them. When an Englishman is thoroughly impressed he does not admit that a thing is very fine; it is only "rather fine, don'cherknow." The French man, the German, the Italian, call it the "beautiful" sex, but the Englishman's "fair" means the same.

WHAT IS BEAUTY?

What constitutes "beauty"? Leonardo da Vinci, Durer and hundreds of others of the greatest have struggled with that problem, and every one of them gave it up in the end. They could not come to a satisfactory conclusion in considering artistic beauty, how much less hope is there for anyone subjecting the human face to inquiry.

One thing seems certain—usage is an important factor, perhaps the factor in determining the best of our criticism. The better acquainted we are with a thing, the more chance there is of our finding it beautiful.

When you happen to migrate to a new country you do not fancy the faces of the women there at all; the mannerisms of them at home are still with you. But they always grow upon you and in time you declare them to be beautiful. Hardly anything surprises you more than when you see portraits of women such as Mary Stuart, Queen Elizabeth, Anne of Austria (Queen of France), once far-famed as beauties. That is because their types are utterly new, utterly foreign to you.

How do such types come to pass? A strange intertwining of the factors determined by nature and by art produces them.

HAIR AND ORNAMENTS.

If there is such a thing as beauty in a man—and we do call some men "handsome" at least—he owes it to nature pure and simple. There is no "make-up" involved, but there always is in the case of a woman. Think only of the important part played by the hair. Every woman can totally change her looks by the way she does her hair. Ever and above this there are the ornaments which she has at her disposal. Famous beauties depend upon the jewels, the diadems, the ropes of pearls, the combs and the feathers they wear in their hair, and upon what they wear around their necks for the greatest part of the effect which they succeed in producing.

A sitter can alter her appearance totally, by showing herself to the painter in a low-cut dress, instead of with a high collar around her throat. By adding flowers in the hair or at the bosom, a completely different shade can be given to the complexion. All these things, a good deal more than the simple fit of the features, determines the style of a woman's beauty, and they are the essentials for the portrait painter.

Every now and then some woman looms up with ideas of her own on the subject of personal beauty. The dress of her face and figure in accordance with these new ideas.

And now art has its innings. If the question is fortunate enough to engage the interest of some able painter, he may make a fine portrait of her, which presently becomes the rage, and all the women who see it hasten to adopt the style which seems likely to be the dignity of having become a type. Thus it was that Sandro Botticelli created new type of feminine beauty in the days of the early Florentine Renaissance; than Mary Stuart induced her contemporaries to remodel their looks after her own example; thus, at a much later date, fell into routine theme and treatment—no exception to the rule—and freer fancy.

The attractive, luminous garden paintings by Mr. Priebe, which might be called the American Renoir from his more and more airy, delicate delineated canvases of women surrounded by tremulous bloom of plant and shrub under the blaze of summer sunlight, only serve to emphasize the modern independence of the one and the reminiscent, though undeniably charming tendencies of the other.

It is no derogatory sense that one man is set above or below his neighbor, for such is the give and take of the market place. After all, slow Time is the unremitting harvester who garners in due season, whose granary is a pantheon for all who have had high aim and endeavored accordingly.

ARE YOU BILIOUS

As a student I was told that there was no such word as "bilious" in the medical dictionary. That was perhaps true twenty years ago but it can be found there now, not because it is a new discovery but because usage of the word necessitated its insertion in an up-to-date dictionary.

What does it mean?

Just what it did years ago. A combination of symptoms that make you feel that life is not worth living. There is the severe headache, vomiting, and acute abdominal pain, and you feel "fed up" on everything and everybody.

What has happened

It's hard to say, but certainly there has been an "upsetment" of your liver and bile apparatus.

This does not necessarily come from overeating. I'll admit that overeating or wrong eating is most frequently the cause.

But any exciting emotion, and severe shock, mental strain of any kind, even the strain on the eyes of poorly filled glasses may bring on these attacks.

Sometimes our old enemy constipation, simply backs things up so badly that the liver and bile quit working.

Now what's the treatment?

Well, if it only occurs once in a great while, Nature will take care of you all right. If you keep eating for a day or two.

But if these attacks come at frequent intervals, consult your physician and he may be able to locate the cause. Remember the symptoms of being "fed up" generally only need the treatment.

You are "fed up" actually and literally, so go to the other extreme. If fed up on too much or too rich food, avoid food for two days, and drink plenty of, water. Perhaps a dose of castor oil would help matters.

If fed up mentally, take thought on the matter and if it be caused by strain or worry, try to get control of yourself—for your own and the family's sake. A good brisk walk or a change of scene for a few days will help the mental condition.

However, the first thought as ever you know, is the elimination of the waste of the body.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"That's all right, missus," cried Harry. "There more cheers for the missus, lads!"

"Stop it!" cried Mrs. Glaire, waving her hands for silence. "Before we go I think we should one and all thank our new friend here—our new clergyman, for putting a stop to a scene that you as well as I would have regretted to the end of our days."

Mrs. Glaire had got to the end of her powers here, for the mother and child in as she conjured up the trampled, bleeding form of her only son; Bobby's pure to work, the tears streamed down her cheeks, and, trembling and sobbing, she laid both her hands in those of Mr. Selwood, and turned away.

"Ralght, missus," roared Harry, who had certainly partaken of more grog or ale than was good for him; "Ralght, missus. Parson hits harder nor any man I ever knowed. Look here, lads, here wur a few more cheers for new parson!"

He pointed laughingly to his brim, and forehead with one hand while he waved the other in the air, with the result that a perfect thunder of cheers arose, during which the self-instituted, irrepressible advocate of workmen's rights made another attempt to get heard; but his time had passed, the men were in another temper, and he was met with a cry raised by Tom Holmes.

"Put him under the pump."

Simon Else turned and fled, the majority of the crew after him, and the others slowly filtered away till the yard was empty.

Chapter VIII

DEAR RICHARD

"Take my arm, Mrs. Glaire," said the vicar, gently; and, the excitement past, the overstrung nerves relaxed, and the woman reassorted itself, for the doing mother now realized all that had gone, and the risks encountered. Trembling and speechless, she suffered herself to be led to the counting-house, and placed in a chair.

"I shall be—better directly," she panted.

"Better!" shrieked her son, who was pacing up and down the room. "Mother, Mother, it's disgraceful; but I won't give way a bit—not an inch. I'll bring the scoundrels to reason, I'll——"

"Dick, dear Dick, don't. See how ill poor aunt is," whispered Eve.

"I don't care," said the young man, furiously. "I won't have it. I'll——"

"Will you kindly act a gleak of wisdom for your mother, Mr. Glaire?" said the vicar, as he had held up the trembling woman in her chair, and knew hard to keep the disgust he felt from showing in his face—"I am afraid she will faint."

"Brandy—the water! No," roared Richard. "I won't have it—I—I say I won't have it; and who the devil are you, that you should come poking your nose into our business? You'll soon find that Dumford is not the place for a meddling parson to do as he likes."

"Dick!" shrieked Eve; and she tried to lay a hand upon his lips.

"Hold your tongue, Eve! Am I master here, or not?" cried Richard Glaire. "I won't have a parcel of women meddling in my affairs, nor any kind of old woman," he continued, disdainfully glancing at the vicar.

There was a slight accession of color in Murray Selwood's face, but he paid no further heed to the young man's words, while with her face crimson with shame Eve bent over her aunt, trying to restore her, for she was indeed half fainting; and the cold clammy dew stood upon her fine hand.

"Here's a nice o' water, sir," said the rough, sturdy voice of Joe Banks, as he filled one from a salt; and then he threw open a couple of windows to let the air blow in more freely.

"Don't let anybody here think I'm a child," continued Richard Glaire, who the danger passed, was now white with passion; "and don't let anybody here, mother or foreman, or stranger, think I'm a man to be played with."

"There's nobody thinks nothing at all, my lad," said Joe Banks, sharply, "only that if the parson there hadn't come on as he did, you'd have been a pretty figure by this time, one as would ha' made your poor mother choother again."

"Hold your tongue, sir; how dare you speak to me like that?" roared Richard.

"How dare I speak to you like that my lad?" said the foreman, sniffing. "Well, because I've been like a sort of second father to you in the works, and if you'd listened to me, instead of being so arbitrary, there wouldn't ha' been this row."

"You insolent——"

"Oh, yes, all right, Master Richard," all ralght," said the foreman, bluffly.

Onaka, Neb., Aug. 23.—The westbound transcontinental air mail plane was forced down west of Cheyenne by a damaged wing, has been repaired and resumed its journey, according to word received here by Assistant Postmaster-General Paul Henderson, directing the flying trials.

"Hold your tongue, will you?" he shrieked. "Look here, you Banks," he cried, "if you dare to speak to me like that I'll discharge you, I will, for an example."

Ancient British Customs

Some of Which Dates Back More Than Thousand Years

The famous old custom of horse-blowing in the market-place at Ripon which evening is over 1,000 years old, that is by no means the oldest custom they have in England.

When the oldest English schools, that is "Cathedral" or "Monastic" schools" was founded, about A.D. 1149, the monks who taught there, seeing that they had to find some medium for conveying learning all over the continent, ordained that the subject should be the principal one taught.

Thus began the custom of classical tuition in British public schools which has continued down to the present day.

The ancient bell was well known in England long before the arrival of the Normans, and the curfew bell still tolled every night at Chertsey, may be worth mentioning in this connection that at Chertsey they have one of the thrilling episode which gave us the famous old song "Drake's drum and ring to-night."

In Modern times the administrators appointed an official known as "Guardian of the Seas," to look after the coasts of Kent and Sussex.

Later, the official under the Normans became known as "Warden of the Cinque Ports," an office which survives to this day. The present warden is Lord Beauchamp, whose residence is Walmer Castle, which has for centuries been the warden's official house.

But there are some surviving customs which are even older than any of those already described. What of the Devonshire practice of "Wassailing" and Derbyshire one, too—of "Going to see the Lambs" once on Easter Sunday?

Edgar Phillpotts gives a splendid account of this in one of his Dartmoor novels, showing that it is varying in Devonshire. But it arose in the days of the Britons, or Celts, long before the Romans came to England.

Then it was the Early Britons, after being converted to Christianity, who first marked their cakes with a cross on Good Friday, to celebrate Saviour's death. This custom has persisted ever since, so it is probably now at least 1,400 years old, if not more.

The King, as far back as A.D. 500, summoned his parliament, but it was first called the Witan, or Parliament. Many laws were also recorded at that time and the custom has never been abrogated since that period. The summons, the "great men of the King"—are to-day summoned to Parliament by His Majesty's own writ, and not by an outside official summons or commands. Knights, too, are still made, and also quite 1,400 years old.

But undoubtedly the very oldest custom of all, still in vogue, is that of cutting down one tree annually and decorating the house with it.

The ancient Druids did this before Julius Cesar first landed in Britain, 2,000 years before Christ was born. Our forefathers continued to do it long after they had been made Christians and embraced Christianity.

Flower Substitutions.

It is particularly in Scotland that the necessity of which he believed is allowed with mystical properties. That the tree is of equal rarity as a lucky one in the Isle of Man, where you will still find people carrying bits of it in their pockets, as a charm against evil influences. Along the side of many a country road you may find, if you look for it, a rowan tree, at least plant, with a spike of very small, pale, blue-colored flowers. This is variously called the little rowan, or once the holy herb of many great nations. Thousands of years ago the Persian Magi carried bunches of vervain in their hands when they approached the altar. Later the Greek and Roman priests made special use of vervain, while in the Middle Ages vervain had great reputation. No doubt the herbalists of old are responsible for some of the queer beliefs about plants that still survive among us. Not merely ancient, for instance, is occasionally used to make a wash for sore eyes, while cowslip flowers are also in form a tonic for improving the complexion. The pink mallow, again, is of great repute, but as a lucky plant, and a preservative against witchcraft.

"You Eat Too Much."

Among the anecdotes with which Mr. Oscar Browning's recently published book, "Memories of Later Years," is packed is one of Princess Metternich's wife. The remark remains she made to King Edward, "at the first dinner given in honor of Mr. Disraeli she was invited, and said to the king with her customary tact and truth, 'Your Majesty, you eat too much!' But she had no further opportunity of repeating this advice."

Not unnaturally the king never again went near her, "and let it be known that he did not wish his friends to do so." Another story, "told in bottle" which we hear was a favorite of the Shah's visit to Queen Victoria in 1187, when Mr. Browning was one of the guests at Windsor—"He was a very handsome man, and the queen was much interested in him. . . . As they walked into dinner, arm in arm, she said to the Persian, you were ship the sea, do you not?' He replied, 'Yes, madame, and so would you if you ever saw it!'"

Profitless Occupation.

An Indian in the Punjab writes in talk in Arabic a verse from the Koran on a grain of polished rice. The verse is written by the projected and polished finger nail of the writer and the Arabic characters are so beautifully traced that one may read them with the aid of a lens. The Arabic, a middle-aged man, has been doing this kind of work for years.

Effects of the Migratory Birds Treaty Act

By J. B. HARDIN, Commissioner Canadian National Parks.

When the white man first came to the North American continent, one of the attractions, not least among the many which appealed to those early settlers, was the great abundance of bird life, which not only afforded pleasure to both eye and ear, but was also a definite and unfailing source of food. Since then, the hunting and killing of game birds has been continued by succeeding generations, though the most low obtained is no longer one of the principal means of subsistence. Men of to-day hunt more particularly for the sport of hunting and for the sake of the recreation afforded by an outing in the unpeopled outdoors. Many a tired business and professional man looks eagerly forward each year to the annual excursion to the woods, where with his gun he may spend a week or two of sure joy, away from all the cares and worries of his daily life back in civilization, returning after his brief sojourn in the wilds, rested and strengthened, with renewed ambition to pursue his share in the battle of world's work.

The early hunters brought back with them large bags of game. Then the sun grew smaller, and gradually it became evident to thinking men that, on game birds were in danger of extermination if the decrease in their numbers was to continue. In fact, a number of species, once plentiful have actually become extinct, these include the Carolina Confare, the Labrador Duck, the Passenger Pigeon and the Great Auk. Others, such as the Whooping Crane and the Trumpeter Swan are in exceedingly grave danger of extinction at an early date.

While probably everyone will admit the great need for preserving our game birds as a natural asset, not everyone, perhaps, is fully aware of the value to be farmer and indirectly to all humanity, of the insect-eating birds, because of the immense quantity of injurious insects devoured each year by these birds. Should their numbers become reduced, a marked increase might be observed in the damage to field crops, orchards and forests, caused by insect pests—damage which is estimated to amount to millions of dollars annually in Canada alone.

Many of our Canadian birds, both of the game and the insect-eating variety, spend the winter months in the Southern United States, or even beyond the United States in the course of their migration, and come back again in the spring to nest and rear their young. It came evident some years ago that any measure, taken with a view to the protection of our migratory birds, must be carried out in co-operation with the United States, if it were to be effective The fertility of prairie birds in one part of the country, only to have them killed in another section, was also recognized by the United States authorities, who, in 1913, enacted their Federal Migratory Bird Law, which gave uniform protection to migratory birds throughout the various States of the Union, with similar open season for Canada in accordance with local conditions.

There was now uniform protection throughout the United States, and the conservationists both of that country and of Canada immediately took steps to bring the necessity for an international treaty for the protection of migratory birds. Their efforts were finally crowned with success when, in August, 1916, the "Migratory Birds Convention" was signed by the representatives of Great Britain and the United States. This treaty provides for the absolute protection in both Canada and the United States of game birds during the Spring months and of insectivorous birds throughout the year. It also provides for an open season of three and a half months, during which the sportsman, wherever he may live, is free to hunt game birds, fully aware of the fact that he is not being discriminated against, but has an opportunity to do his share with all other sportsmen in either country. Regulations setting forth the dates when open seasons shall exist in Canada, may be obtained from Mr. J. B. Harkin, Commissioner, Canadian National Parks, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, by whom the Dominion Act based upon the Treaty is administered.

As most of the provinces have amended their game laws to conform with the Migratory Birds Convention Act, thus making it possible for them to enforce the terms of the Treaty within their respective jurisdictions, with a view to the Federal Department, in this connection, is the education of the people as to a knowledge of the laws and the benefits and the encouragement of a sympathetic attitude towards bird protection. As the area of the Great Lakes, Ontario, such as the Whooping Crane and the Trumpeter Swan are in exceedingly grave danger of extinction at an early date.

Fuel Shipments From East Through Lake Ports, Plan Proposed by Hamilton Man

To the Editor:

Dear Sir,—The most interesting problem of Vast supply for Ontario, it would seem, is far from being solved. One thing is evident, Canada has within her borders almost unlimited supplies—of wood, peat and coal for heating, smelting and other purposes; the outstanding difficulty facing us is: How can they be delivered to the consumers with the least outlay?

Sir, the writer years ago advocated in the Belleville Board of Trade the linking of other Boards of Trade throughout Ontario for the purpose of shipping coal from Nova Scotia all up through our Lake ports, establishing by degrees a fleet of vessels for that purpose, and guaranteeing those vessel men return cargoes, in wheat, timber, ores, etc., back to the eastward. It might be possible for vessels of 1,000 to 2,000 tons to come right up, supplying coal to the various lake ports and surrounding territories.

Why, sir, there is a substantial ring about shipping our coal west and hauling our wheat, timber and ores east by water carriage.

Proceeding, coal from the Maritime provinces (all water route) is 760 miles nearer to Toronto than the all-rail haul from Alberta in that city, a great advantage for Nova Scotia coal.

The quality of coal is it bituminous, suitable for home and factory uses. Another matter of considerable importance is, such would be developing our own natural resources, besides encouraging a splendid inter-provincial commerce, keeping in our own country annually about one hundred million dollars, hitherto expended outside our Dominion.

Regarding the coal supply to this province, W. O. Sealey, Hamilton, has rendered valuable information. He determination that Canada shall supply us with coal calls forth our thanks. Quoting those data from one of his many letters on the coal situation, so pertinent to our welfare, here are some of the interesting facts:

Pennsylvania coal, bituminous, f.o.b. in cars at Hamilton, $6.68 per ton.

Nova Scotia coal, bituminous, f.o.b. at Hamilton docks, $6.50 per ton.

Alberta coal, bituminous, f.o.b. in cars at Hamilton, $10.00 per ton.

The above quotations clearly indicate that Nova Scotia is the best and cheapest buy for Ontario, with Pennsylvania second and Alberta, third.

Might it not be worth while to direct the Premier of the Province and his cabinet to the value of all water route for Nova Scotia coal to all our lake ports?

1. The cost per ton.

2. The distance in carriage (ten hundreds of miles).

3. The facilities for transportation are all in favor of the Maritime Provinces coal.

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick coal beds are the natural coal bins for Ontario.

Yours truly,
THOMAS WICKETT.

Hamilton, Aug. 20, 1923.

No Time Was Lost In This Case

Mrs. Luckhurst Quickly Discovered That Dreco Possessed Remarkable Health Giving Qualities

NO TIME WAS LOST ....

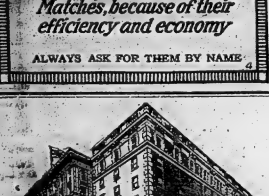

Every woman should read the following statement from Mrs. J. Luckhurst, of 765 Durie Street, Toronto, Ont. It portrays convincingly the true merit of Dreco, especially emphasizing the quickness of its beneficial action.

"For several years I have suffered from indigestion," says Mrs. Luckhurst. "I had gas on the stomach, acid risings and smothering spells. The pains were very severe across my back and I felt tired out all the time. My liver was sluggish and I was chronically constipated. Had constantly to take a laxative which gave me only temporary relief. I didn't rest well and my appetite was very poor. The food I did eat gave me no nourishment because it was not properly digested.

"No remedy ever gave me the amount of good results that Dreco has and I have only taken a half bottle. I had only taken a few doses when I could feel the difference and it seems to act so differently from any other medicine. It has gone to the root of my trouble. I am sure, and I feel positive that by continuing the treatment I will get real good results. I haven't been troubled with those terrible bloating spells and shortness of breath, nor have I any pains through my back and back. I eat well and sleep soundly and am indeed happy that I can recommend Dreco."

Dreco acts quickly and with sure helpful result, because it is made from Nature's own materials.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist everywhere.

To Study West Coal Shipments

Drumheller, Alta., Aug. 23.—Alberta coal producers will discuss the question of shipping coal to Ontario in case there is a shortage of coal from the United States next winter, when the Red Deer Valley operators' association meets here on Thursday, Willem Gouge, a prominent member of the association, told the Canadian Press last night.

Mr. Gouge said it was probable that plans would be made to cope with the situation in the event of the people of Ontario deciding to ask the west for coal, should the threatened suspension of work in the United States anthracite fields hold, up shipments of coal to Canada.

Regarding the question of high freight rates which would undoubtedly enter into the situation, Mr. Gouge said it was to be hoped that the Canadian National Railways, in the event of a shortage, would see fit to extend the special coal rate to Ontario made by Sir Henry Thornton for the summer months only.

Youth Held For Manslaughter

Toronto, Aug. 23.—As a sequel to a motor accident on North Yonge street near De LaSalle college on July 31, when a Ford car jumped the embankment and overturned on the Metropolitan tracks, one of the occupants being killed, John Andrew Cunwell, 17, of Aurora, was charged before Magistrate Brunton in the county police court yesterday afternoon with manslaughter.

Cunwell was driving a Chevrolet, and it was alleged that as he passed the Ford, taking "hood to hood" with Wilson Lake to Aurora, he was in striking the front wheel and caused it to jump the embankment.

The car overturned and one of the occupants, Allan Bull, was killed. The others sustained minor injuries.

County Constable T. B. Kirk was the first witness called. He identified a sketch of the scene of the accident as one made from measurements taken by him. Hugh Brown, photographer, identified pictures as photos he had taken in connection with the accident.

Reginald Lloyd, Aurora, said on the night in question he had been to Wilcox Lake. He left there in his Ford with a party at about nine o'clock. They were returning to Aurora. Just after leaving Schomberg Junction, Cunwell, in a Chevrolet, passed. At Humes Hill he passed Cunwell, who then was going slowly. When they got to a point on Yonge street just south of De LaSalle college, Cunwell's car passed them again, and as it passed it "cut in." I felt a jar," said Lloyd, "it was a directed wheel. Then I was thrown out of the car, which landed across the Metropolitan rails facing south. All the occupants were thrown out and Bull was thrown on his back on the west rail. His head was broken. I have since learned he is dead."

Cross-examining, T. W. W. Evans, of Bradford, elicited the information from Lloyd that all he knew was that Cunwell passed him, cut in, and he felt a jar.

Wawa Disaster Toll But Eight

Huntsville, Aug. 23.—Manager Thompson now says that total list of dead is eight. He explains that what seemed to be the remains of three unidentified are really part of the remains of the three servants who were burned to death.

Fire Marshall Heaton says that there was none any official report by a member of his department on the fire prevention conditions at the Wawa Lodge when he was there. Two years ago when there was a small fire there and one or his men went to make inquiries but failed to get to look the place over, but the investigation was not official, said Mr. Heaton, and he has not the power to make such reports.

Orilla, Aug. 22.—Mike Elizabeth Carroll, one of those injured in the fire at the Wawa Hotels, who was brought to the Orillia soldiers memorial hospital yesterday, has not yet regained consciousness, but is reported to be holding her own and doing as well as can be expected.

DOROTHY DALTON'S 'FOGBOUND' FILMED IN BEAUTIFUL PALM BEACH

Society folk are not the only people that spend several weeks of the winter season at Palm Beach. For the entire production unit making the Irvan Willat Paramount production of "Fog Bound," in which Dorothy Dalton is the star and which will be the feature attraction at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, with the usual matinee Saturday, was transported there on location to shoot scenes for the picture.

Among those who made the trip were Miss Dalton, the star; her leading man, David Powell; Martha Mansfield, Maurice Costello, Jack Richardson, Mrs. Ella Miller, William Cooley, William David, Warren Cook, the director, Mr. Willat; Henry Cronjager, the photographer; carpenters, electricians and many minor players. Here, not far from Palm Beach, practically all of the exterior scenes were shot. Scenes that will not be duplicated for many a day to come. Ranch scenes, in swamps and on a fog covered lake, in fact Florida, the winter playground of the rich, is shown in all its phases.

"Fog Bound" as adapted for use on the screen from Jack Bechdolt's story by Paul Dickey, is the story of a girl living on an orange ranch in Florida, who finds the man she loves accused of the murder of her father, a revenue officer. Torn between loyalty to her parent and love for the accused, Gale Ireson, portrayed by Miss Dalton, is given the finest opportunity of her career to display her talents as an emotional actress. "Fog Bound" is an interesting and thrilling melodrama from start to finish, and it is said to be one of the foremost successes of the current season.

"Skipper's Policy," another of those popular Toonerville mirth-provoking trolley comedies, A Kinogram, and William Desmond in a new chapter of Universal's "Phantom Fortune" serial have been announced for presentation on the same program.

GLADYS WALTON AT REGENT IN 'ROLE OF 'HELLO GIRL'

She pushed plugs for a living.

Know what it is to say "pushing plugs" Well, it's the telephone operator's duty. She pulls and pushes them all day long, and when people say, "Oh, for heaven's sake, wake up and give me my number!" she keeps her temper and replies sweetly, "Just a moment please!"

Marcel Murphy is the heroine of "Crossed Wires," one of the most unusual attractions Universal has presented the public in some time. In fact it is a satire on two things—telephone service and society. The Blue Book and a bad connection are the connecting links between the switchboard and the social upper strata for the heroine. She gets in the "Crossed Wires" and uses her wits—with results both humorous and dramatic.

Gladys Walton will be seen in the starring role as Marcel Montmorency Van Deusen, alias Marcel Murphy. Miss Murphy has played many flapper roles and this is one she has not before essayed—the "hello" girl.

Other players who will be seen in "Crossed Wires" at the Regent Theatre, today to Saturday, with a matinee daily are George Stewart, lobther of the popular Anita Stewart, Kate Price, Eddie Gribbon, Louis Guise, Lillian Langdon, William Robert Daly, Eloise Nesbit and Louis Kaufman.

Two good comedies and Pathe News are announced for exhibition on the same program.

Mexico City, Mexico (United Press) —Many permits for the drilling of new oil wells were requested of the Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Labor during the month of July. A number of new wells are being operated in all of the fields of the country.

VALUABLE ADVICE TO AUTO DRIVERS

The following advice to motorists, prepared by the National Safety Council, should prove valuable.

"No matter how trivial or how serious it may be, all the facts about every accident in which your car is involved. These facts should be written on paper at once, for they may be of great value to you, your employer, or to your insurance company.

"The important points in such a report include:

(a) Name, acx and address of injured persons, other drivers, and witnesses.

(b) License numbers of other cars involved.

(c) Exact location of accident (street, house number, etc.).

(d) Date, and time of day or night.

(e) Weather conditions (rain, snow, clear, dark, etc.).

(f) Street conditions (dry, wet, asphalt, brick, etc.).

(g) Nature and extent of accident (persons injured, damage to property, another of your own car, etc.).

(h) Circumstances of accident and direction of other vehicles involved, were horns used or proper signals given, etc.).

(i) Was brake built

(j) A pencil sketch showing as much detail as possible.

In case of accident, do not hesitate to give your name, address, name of the car owner, and license number to anyone who may ask.

"If an accident happens, keep your head and do not leave the scene until you are justified in doing so. The driver who runs away after a person has been killed or injured almost invariably pronounced guilty. Drive the injured person to the nearest doctor's office or hospital, and report at once to a policeman or at police station.

"If you are held over for an inquest, you may be released on bond. It is best not to make any statement, to anyone except your attorney. Be sure to appear for the inquest at the exact time specified. If held for trial, you may again be released on bond. Do not fail to report for your trial at the exact time specified. An attempt to evade the law is always construed as an admission of guilt."

"CANADA COUNT FOR CANADIANS" IS URGED

BRITAIN PLANS BIG AIR LINE

Government Accepts Plan For Air-Route, London To India

SUBSIDY OFFERED

Ship to Carry 200 Passengers and 10 Tons Of Mail

By P. M. BARL

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHAPTER I.

London, Aug. 24 (United Press).—Steps are being taken to establish Mauretania—racing through the air at 80 miles per hour and landing 200 passengers in India four days after leaving London, such is the idea that will be conveyed from an ideal's dream into solid fact within a year or 18 months.

That is not a dream, or a propaganda stunt, is proved by the fact that unemotional business men are pulling up real money with the idea of making big profits. The British government stands behind with a carefully graduated subsidy, which is dependent on the British-England airship line proving a practical business proposition.

The Imperial Airship Company, of which Commander Dennisten Burney, member of Parliament and late of the Royal Navy, is the leading light, proposes to establish a bi-weekly airship service between England and India—eventually to extend similar service to Australia—and will start construction work as soon as possible probably before October.

The British government has lent its endorsement "in principle" and only a few details need official sanction. These will be discussed by the Imperial Conference which meets in London during the next few weeks and will probably lead to extensions of the scheme.

Present plans provide for the construction of a huge, rigid type of airship of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity, able to transport a minimum of 200 passengers and ten tons of mail on non-stop flights of from 2,500 to 3,000 miles—Atlantic without cargo. The designers compute it could stay in the air for 25 days and range over 54,000 miles at an average speed of forty miles per hour.

London to India

It will thus be possible to get from London to India in from three and a half to four days—instead of fifteen by the present fastest mail and passenger ship fare, and it will enable mails to be carried much more cheaply. When the route has been established to Australia, it is expected to cover the full distance from England to Australia in a week instead of from a month to five weeks.

The first capital subscribed for the company will be 400,000 pounds, to which the British government will add a further sum of 400,000 pounds as a loan, repayable out of future profits.

When the first airship has flown to India within a contract time of 100 hours (the promoters actually expect to do it in 72) the government will provide an extra capital of 400,000 pounds for three years ,also on a loan basis, and the company's capital will be increased to 1,700,000 pounds.

The government will have no further liability until the company has maintained for three months, a weekly airship service to India, when it will guarantee a further subsidy of 250,000 pounds annually for fifteen years—the capital of the company being raised to three million pounds. For this the government will have the right to send officials and troops to India by air, the use of all stations and plant, without charge, and the right to take over the whole air fleet in an emergency.

Build Ships in Four Months

It is estimated it will take eighteen months to get the first airship in the air ready for the voyage, but after that other airships can be built in four months. There will be no necessity for expensive airship sheds at the main stations. Probably one each in England, India and Australia will suffice as "drydocks," while the airships will be moored to special towers. Passengers will be carried on elevators to the tops of the towers for embarkation.

Treaty Exchanges With Japan Indicate Step is Contemplated

Washington, Aug. 24.—Secretary of State Hughes and Ambassador Hanihara have signed an agreement extending for another five years the old arbitration treaty between the United States and Japan.

While the signing of the agreement was wholly perfunctory, significance was seen in the announcement that at the same time notes were exchanged by the United States Secretary of State and the Japanese Ambassador to the effect that the present the Senate should assent to the Bendelsohn proposal for the participation of the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice, the two Governments will consider the making of an agreement under which disputes of the nature described in the treaty, could be referred to the Court instead of being submitted to arbitration.

REPORT BANDITS TAKE PRIEST

Pekin, Aug. 24.—Chinese bandits have captured a French priest at Yunnan, according to a message here today.

NO FLAW IN ZEPPELIN

Negligence Is entertained of rejections of the Zita disaster, as the airships will be constructed on a different principle, and will be practically accident-proof. No petrol, the cause of most airship fires, will be carried. The engines will be run by a combination of kerosene and hydrogen, and as an additional precaution, the gasbags will be surrounded by a "layer" of non-inflammable gas.

Zeppelin Manufacturing Company will be made with the existing British government airships, R33, R36, R80 and the ex-German R71, whose the proposed air-routes with a view to adding to present-day knowledge, but the experiments are entirely no difficulty about turning out an "aerial Mauretania," according to scientists.

The first airship to be built will probably be at Cardington, near Bedford; which is handy to London. The Indian depot will be either at Karachi, Bombay or Calcutta.

But apart from the actual intention of such an airship to the next chief interest lies in the possibility of further extension—England to United States and Australia.

Canada Is In Better Shape Than Last Year

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Bureau of Statistics announces that the Dominion fuel situation is better than last year and Canada is better able to stand a coal strike in the United States. Large development of the British supply is the new source responsible for better conditions.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Rumors were flying thick and fast of the menace of a sympathetic bituminous strike, today while the Administration today sought to increase pressure on the anthracite miners and operators to settle their differences.

London, Aug. 24.—America has begun to place orders here for Welsh coal in preparation for the threatened anthracite strike. An order for 250,000 tons of Welsh anthracite to be delivered in Boston has just been received according to Swansea dispatches. The Welsh coal can be laid down in Boston at a price which, including freight charges, is one shilling less than American anthracite costs there.

Hard Coal Supply For Half-Year Is Already Out of the Ground

Culm Banks Are Fast Disappearing and Operators Think "Bone" is Good Fuel

The following article is of interest in view of the fact that a strike is impending in the anthracite coal fields in the United States:

By A. ROBBINS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright 1923 by The United Press)
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 24 (United Press).—Production of anthracite coal is proceeding at the greatest rate the industry has ever known and all records for summer mining have been broken this year.

Both operators and miners have been bending every effort to speed up production. A new record has been set up for the first seven months of this year and mining is proceeding unabated.

For the calendar year to the end of July 48,885,000 tons of hard coal were mined and production was then proceeding at the rate of slightly more than 3,000,000 tons a week, a high figure in the industry at any time, and heretofore unknown during the summer, usually a dull season.

The cause of this unusual summer activity is principally the shortage last winter. Consumers of anthracite started stocking up for next Winter, almost at once, and the demand has continued unabated.

Allowing 9,000,000 tons per week, approximately 68,000,000 tons of anthracite will have been produced this year up to the end of this month. Not all of this, however, will be in the hands of the consumer. Usually there is a surplus on hand April 1, also as hard coal users stock early in the winter, but this year, owing to the suspension in 1922, every available ton of hard coal was grabbed up as fast as it came from the mines right up till the end of the cold weather and on April 1, 1923, stocks and storage were bare.

Half a Year's Supply

However, it is estimated that the consumer now has on hand almost a half year's supply of anthracite. Since April 1, instead of storing coal as usual at the mines it has been rushed to market as rapidly as the railroads could supply cars and it is estimated that the consumers already have almost 40,000,000 tons, making allowances for fuel burned since April 1, to start the winter season.

Because of the bitter complaints last winter of the poor quality of hard coal and the high percentage of "bone," slate and other non-inflammable material it contained, some changes have been made in the methods of speeding up production, but the operators are said to be still doing things that would have been considered unethical before the war.

One operator told the United Press that operators are still running coal through the breakers that ten years ago would have been thrown away. Some types of hard coal are being sold today at good prices, which heretofore have been considered worthless.

The operators deny that they have been "speeding up" the automatic pickers, thus allowing a higher percentage of "bone" and slate to pass through with the coal.

Charles Dorrance, head of the Hudson Coal Company, one of the largest producers in the anhracite field, stated at a recent dinner to retail coal dealers that "bone" (a mixture of slate and coal) was good fuel and that the public must get used to using it, as the time had passed when it could be thrown away. The anthracite slate pickers are supposed to eliminate "bone" and slate, which has heretofore never been allowed in greater quantities than 4 per cent. to a car. That was back in the days of keen rivalry for markets.

Shipping From Culm

Culm banks were used in 1922-23 for the first time, and today material is being shipped from some of these banks. Culm is the "bone," slate and waste material from the coal and is wheeled from the breaker and piled nearby. The banks grew to enormous size and were a menace to secure all over the hard coal region, but every observer in the region has noticed how they have settled and sometimes disappeared during the last year.

The operators claim that outsiders have come in and bought up culm banks and shipped the contents as coal. They claim that they themselves have not been touching the banks, but it is generally reported that many of them have been selling culm. Well-informed observers here say that while outsiders have often shipped culm as coal, a great deal has gone through the collieries.

A trip through the hard coal fields will convince anyone that the culm banks are disappearing and here and there you will see cars being loaded direct from the banks. Culm, once regarded as a sheer waste, has brought in many thousands of dollars.

There has been no reduction in the retail price of hard coal in the coal region and the operators have raised the price to their employees—the miners. A miner now pays from $5 to $15.50 per ton for coal that last winter cost him around $4.50 delivered. The price to the ordinary consumer here has varied from $10 to $12 per ton.

No accurate figures as to the profits of the operators are available, but the United Mine Workers in their recent report to the United States Coal Commission cited several instances in which the miners claimed coal companies made from 36 to 118 per cent. in 1921, the last full year. Royalties on absentee ownership of coal lands add greatly to the cost of coal, running sometimes as high as $2 per ton, the miners say.

Anthracite mining is one of the most hazardous occupations in the world. More than 500 miners are killed every year and thousands are injured, according to the best available figures. Then disease, such as miner's asthma, and other ailments peculiar to the mines, cut down the vitality of the men, working far underground and shortens their lives.

Local strikes, shortage of cars at times, and other conditions have hampered production somewhat, but so far and in spite of it all this year has been a banner one in the anthracite industry.

Safety Lessons For The Auto Driver

Safety Lessons for the Auto Driver. Prepared by the National Safety Council; issued by the Ontario Safety League.

THE SAFE DRIVER

A man may have a mechanically perfect car, but, because of careless driving he may cause an accident that results in serious injury or death to himself or others.

Reckless driving is not a demonstration of skill.

A moment or two saved today by reckless speeding is not efficiency, for speeding tomorrow may result in a smash that will lay up the car for several days and you for several months. Hurrying to get ahead of a train, a car or another vehicle saves only a moment or two at the ultimate destination and is not worth the game with the price; there is too much danger of accident.

The best drivers are especially careful at dusk or twilight. There is then neither enough daylight nor sufficient artificial light to make objects distinguishable at ordinary distances.

Slow up for all turns in the road. Blind corners are dangerous. When it is impossible to see what is coming from around the corner, be prepared to stop. Sound for a short distance before the corner.

Don't zig-zag from one side of the street to the other.

When installing chains on the rear wheels, instal them on both wheels or none at all. Only one chain may result in a serious accident. Chains on all four wheels help the steering of the car.

There are ruts at the bottom of almost every hill. Hitting these ruts at too high a speed may cause the driver to lose control of his car.

Drive slowly at bridges and at culverts. A bad rut or a stone in the road may throw your car against the abutments.

When attempting to pass another vehicle going in the same direction, start increasing speed when you are 75 feet to the rear. If you get up too close your view of the road ahead is obstructed and you may turn directly in front of another car coming toward you. When you have passed a car do not cut back into the road or slow down too soon.

Always be careful when backing. Sound them three times; signal other cars, and look back (not ahead) to see where you are going. Mirrors are valuable at all times.

Clean windshields give you a clear view ahead. Every car should have a secondary windshield (rain visor) or windshield wiper which will prevent snow or rain from obstructing the driver's vision.

When driving, do not attempt to carry on a long conversation with others in the car. Small children should preferably sit in the rear of the car, they should never be held in or from the arms of the driver. Safe driving demands your full and undivided attention.

Be sure and signal when driving toward or away from the curb.

You should shut off the engine, remove the ignition key, and set the emergency brake, when leaving the car. Cramp the wheels to prevent the car from moving accidently.

Tomorrow—Co-operation with the Traffic Officer.

Hamilton Citizen States No One Could Have Suffered More From Stomach Trouble Than He Did--Thanks Tanlac For Full Restoration

"I feel fit as a fiddle, fully twenty years younger and just like a new-born child," declared Thomas Beeching, 156 Rebecca St., Hamilton, Ont., while discussing his experience with the Tanlac treatment.

"I don't believe anybody in the whole Province of Ontario had stomach trouble worse than I did. I suffered so I was sick all over and at times could hardly hold my head up. My appetite was all but gone. I often went all day without eating, and at times even the sight of food would nauseate me so I would have to leave the table. My nerves were all undone, and I was so restless nights I almost forgot what it was to get a good night's sleep. It was a real effort for me to do any work, and nights when I got home I just could put one foot before the other. I had no energy and much pride of Tanlac. I went up to the corner and bought a bottle. It was the luckiest day of my life, for I started to pick up as soon as I began using it. My appetite is so big now I rat like a hungry wolf and can eat three times as much as before. My nerves are back to normal and I sleep all night without waking up. Mornings I feel chipper as full of life and ready for work. In fact, Tanlac has made a new man of me, and that tells it better than anything else."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 27 million bottles sold.

MAN PRISONER IN WELL 26 HOURS

Unable to Climb Out Sleeps in Temporary Prison

London, Aug. 24.—A remarkable adventure has befallen Frederick Tuff, a workman on the Chilham Castle estate, near Canterbury. He fell into a disused ice-well, from which he tried in vain to escape by means of a ladder of pegs, and remained a prisoner for 26 hours.

Tuff had heard fellow workers talk of the well and out his way home from work on Saturday he decided suddenly to investigate it. He pushed open a door, walked along a passage, and in the darkness stepped over the sill and fell to the bottom, a distance of 30 feet, amid a shower of bricks, bruised but not much hurt.

Shouting failed to attract help, and he tried to make his own way to safety.

Pegs For Climbing

"I found some bits of board on the well bottom," he said yesterday "and shaped six pegs. Then I dug holes with my knife in the cement between the wall bricks and pushed the pegs into them. Each hole took about half an hour to make.

"When I got half-way up I found I had not got enough pegs. I came down again and tried sitting in the lower pegs, and then as I went up, pulled them out behind me to use higher up.

"I had got almost to the top when the peg I was standing on gave way and let me down. After that I gave up. At the time I could hear a cricket match being played in the field outside and children playing round about.

Peaceful Slumber

"I could also hear," (I presume that Tuff's shouts were heard, but nobody could discover where they came from). I cleared the tools that were in the well down a drain to have the place to myself, and tried to get to sleep. It was very cold and uncomfortable, but I slept fairly well. I heard it had a 6 o'clock strike and then nothing till the church bells woke me.

"Just before 2 p.m. I heard my brother-in-law shouting and I answered. He then found me and fetched a ladder and got me out. I walked two miles home to Shotenden and had a jolly good dinner."

Tuff is little the worse for his adventure and has been able to resume work.

WEDDING BELLS

TWIDDY—ARCHIBALD

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev. Mr. R. Farquharson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Archibald of Camelton on August 22, when their youngest daughter, Miss Gladys, became the bride of Harry Percival, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Twiddy of Thurlow.

At high noon the bride entered the parlour to the strains of the Bridal Chorus (Lohengrin), played by Miss Bernice Johns, cousin of the bride, and looked charming in a grey flat silk crepe dress, wearing a string of beads, a gift from the groom, and carrying a bouquet of pink and white gladioli. Little Miss Margaret Smallbone, another cousin of the bride, acted as ring-bearer and was daintily attired in a pale blue organdie frock.

Luncheon was served to a large number of guests and the table was prettily decorated with sweet peas and fern.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. Pringle of Madoc, grandfather of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Alcorn, brock of St. Catharines, uncle and aunt of the bride.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and rice for a motor trip to points west and Buffalo, N.Y. The bride travelled in a navy blue trioctine suit with a pan velvet picture hat to match.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts, among them being a famed oak piano from the bride's parents, and a famed oak dining room suite, a gift from the parents of the groom. Upon their return they will reside in Thurlow. Their many friends wish them soon voyage of married life.

CALLED BY DEATH

JOHN BRUEIN

One of the pioneers of this district, and one of the oldest residents of Hastings County, was called home last evening when the late John Bruein, aged 86 past away at his home in Ameliasburgh after a lingering illness, extending over a period of one year. Deceased had been laid fast since one year ago past July.

Eighty-seven years ago, deceased made the perilous voyage to Canada from North of Ireland in a sailing vessel, along with his father, mother, brothers and sisters. Diphtheria broke out aboard the boat and every member of the family save the deceased, were wiped out by the scourge being buried at sea. On landing in Canada, alone and at the tender age of nine years, he was kindly cared for by friends, and spent his adolescent years in Eastern Canada.

When a young man, the late John Bruein moved to Lonsdale where he was employed as a wood worker and later married Miss Katherine Hamilton of Napanee. Later he went into business at Lonsdale as wood worker and undertaker, and remained in business there continuously, until ten years ago, when he retired, and has lived retired in Lonsdale since that time.

Six daughters and two sons survive. The sons are John of Detroit, Mich., and Albert of Belleville. The daughters are Mrs. Jos. Vollerman of Russell, Man., Mrs. Mary E. Scott, Northport, Mich., Mrs. William Davis, Northport, Mich., Mrs. Alec McLaughlin, Prescott, Mrs. Harry Bryan, Belleville, and Mrs. Lester Rose of Belleville.

Twenty grandchildren also survive. Miss Wilma Rose of "The Intelligencer" staff, being one of the twenty grandchildren.

Funeral will take place from his late residence, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment Lonsdale cemetery.

MRS. ELLEN LAWLER

Death removed one of Belleville's oldest residents, when the late Mrs. Ellen Lawler was called to her eternal reward last night. Deceased, who had attained the ripe old age of 96 years, was the widow of the late John Lawler, who predeceased her some years ago.

Born in Ireland in 1827, the late Mrs. Lawler came to Canada when young, but had lived in this city but seven years, having moved to Belleville from Cobourg with her daughter, the late Mrs. Alice Callaghan. Deceased was a member of St. Michael's church.

Two daughters and one son survive. They are Mrs. W. E. Haines, Cobourg; Annie, at home; and Thomas, of Burnside, Ont. Three grandsons, Leo, Wilfred and David Callaghan, also survive.

The remains were shipped to Cobourg from the late residence, 205 Albert street, where interment will take place.

Large Funeral For Dr. Vrooman

Throngs Assemble to Pay Last Respects to Napanee Member

Napanee, Aug. 24.—The funeral of Dr. J. P. Vrooman, M.P.P., took place Wednesday afternoon, and the immense concourse of people, old and young, rich and poor, who assembled in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene to pay their last tribute of respect and affection, was a great tribute to the worth of the man who had passed to his rest and reward.

Although the hour of the service was announced as 2:30 p.m., the people commenced to arrive about two hours before, and by the time the church, in such numbers that the wardens had to refuse admission to about two hundred by one o'clock. Consequently the approaches to the church and the streets surrounding it were densely filled with the crowd of mourners.

The funeral was under the auspices of the Masonic order, of which the pall-bearers were W. S. Harrington, K.C., K.C., C. Miller, A. Wilson, A. Daly, John S. Robinson, T. B. Wallace, W. A. Grange, Herbert Daly, John B. Allison.

Ten Millions Disabled by World's War

Geneva, Aug. 23 (United Press)—That at least ten million combatants were disabled during the great war, is disclosed by the statistics issued by the International Labor Office, regarding the number of the forces of principal belligerent countries now receiving disablement pensions. The figures are:

Germany	1,537,000
France	1,100,000
Great Britain	1,170,000
Italy	800,000
Russia	775,000
Austria	320,000
Jugo-Slavia	184,000
Serbia	164,000
United States	127,000
Belgium	110,000
Rumania	100,000
Canada	45,000
New Zealand	30,000
Australia	18,000
Finland	10,000

This totals 7,124,000, but no official statistics are available for Turkey, Bulgaria, the Baltic States, Portugal, Hungary and Japan. There is ample evidence, however, says the bureau that to put the total of disabled men in the world war at ten millions, would not be an over-statement.

NO BLAME

"I cannot conceive of the extent of his injuries causing death in a normal man," was Dr. Stobie's opinion when asked if he believed the injuries caused Bishop's death.

Officer N. Maker did not believe Deceased was in a walk about the city by himself, owing to his poor eyesight. He walked feebly. Or the day of the accident the officer first saw deceased when, he was lying on the pavement after the accident. Indications showed that the man must have walked into the side of the truck. His hat was in the back of the truck. After being removed the man was taken to Dr. Stobie's office, thence to the hospital.

Frederick Collister, 30 Commercial street, Assistant Manager, Bank of Montreal, witness of the accident, stated that Babcock walked deliberately into the truck, opposite the rear wheel as he crossed the street intersection. As he crossed he appeared to be looking up at the top of the Bank of Montreal. The truck driven by Gilmore was travelling very slowly, in second gear, as a delivery wagon just in front of him impeded his speed.

William Day, billiard room proprietor, corner Front and Bridge St. saw man Babcock on sight after the accident. He was standing in the doorway of his place of business. He did not witness the accident proper, however.

Alex. Gilmore, Redeemville, driver of truck which figured in the accident, told of driving his truck west on Bridge street about 10 miles per hour. On the corner of Front Street, a grocer's wagon, which was ahead of me, caused me to slow down to about 4 miles per hour, the car being in intermediate gear," witness stated. I sounded the horn, and my first intimation of the accident was when my two boys, riding in the back of the truck, exclaimed, "Look," and when I looked I saw the man lying on the pavement."

Dr. Beaucrosche who attended Babcock at the hospital, in the public ward, after August 19th, stated that Babcock was suffering from kidney disease, and disease of arteries which in turn affected the mental condition of the person afflicted. The man died about 11 a.m. August 19th.

The injuries sustained did not hasten death, was Dr. Beaucrosche's opinion, but death was due rather to heart and kidney disease.

Dr. Bridgwell, one of the nine Jurymen, was sworn, and also gave evidence, he being an eyewitness of the accident. Babcock walked into the side of the truck, witness stated, while apparently gazing upwards, was turned about by the mud guard, and fell on his face in the street. Witness had known deceased for the past twenty years, and did not believe that he was in fit condition to walk the street alone, as he had had a paralytic stroke, and was a feeble, old man. He frequently stole away from the house, and went down town, Mr. Bridgwell asserted.

Believe Bride is Held Prisoner

Simcoe Choir Girl Thought To Be Captive of Criminals

Detroit, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Sadie Wilis, 16-year-old choir girl and bride of a few weeks, is held prisoner by a band of criminals, was the belief expressed by the girl's relatives.

William H. Perry, her uncle, and a private investigator, of Simcoe, Ontario, said today that the girl told him several months ago she had been threatened by a gang because she had witnessed a sensational robbery about a year ago. Mrs. Willis disappeared Saturday, in an auto mobile driven by several men.

Both the girl's father, Arthur Perry, and the husband, William H. Willis, a wholesale paint shop operator at 1416 Michigan avenue, were of the same opinion, although neither had known of the girl's confession to the uncle until today.

PREVENTATIVE MEASURES

Wednesday appears to have been a day of disasters. The chief disaster of course was the debacle on the Horse Show grounds at Cobourg, but indirectly connected with the doings were the many other mishaps, some of which were near tragedies.

It is perhaps unnecessary to explain that the mishaps referred to were motor collisions and accidents on the highways. Because of the crowds which were attracted to the diamond contest, traffic was congested. If the number of motor accidents reported in the Belleville district on Wednesday is a criterion, highway and police officials must prepare elaborately to cope with conditions a few years hence, when cars become more numerous congestion of traffic becomes common.

Statistics prove that the number of cars is increasing at a rapid rate. Traffic on highways on holidays and Sundays is now a problem which is beginning to demonstrate its formidableness. Ambulance calls, investigations, inquests and prosecutions occupy much of the time of the police and the courts. These will increase to a point where they will virtually monopolize the time of officials concerned unless they are effectually checked.

Experience in other localities where the problem exists have proven that expenditure of time and energy in efforts to prevent accidents lessen the "post-accident" burdens upon officials in far greater proportion. Among the preventative measures which have been introduced are policing of highways by motor-cycle patrolmen, rigid enforcement of special highway regulations, such as limitation of speed, signal light and general code requirements, use of dimmers, etc.

Thorough investigation of all accidents, even those of a minor nature, and consistent prosecution of every case wherein fault is found to rest with any of the parties concerned is an effective deterrent. As far as investigation and prosecution are concerned Belleville officials have not been remiss. While many of the preventative steps have not yet been taken—motor cycle patrolmen will be provided sooner or later as necessary adjuncts to the police system. The sooner the better.

ALBERTA COAL

The plan to use Alberta coal in Ontario appears to be a feasible one. The Alberta product is a good grade of lignite and while not possessing coherence and heat-giving properties of American anthracite is nevertheless an excellent fuel. Its value has been amply demonstrated in Winnipeg and practically all of Manitoba where it is in a large measure replaced the anthracite from the other side.

The difficulty experienced in introducing Alberta coal in the East has been due chiefly to the fact that conservative consumers hesitate to experiment in the matter of fuel supply fearing disastrous consequences.

However, since exhaustive laboratory experiments have proven that the coal possesses a high carbon percentage and its production of heat

By The Side Of The Road

The crudite leaders of Bolshevik Russia solemnly have found twenty-six "powerful reasons" for "observing religious rites" in that long-heralded Communistic Utopia. They have decreed that "no one can be a real Communist and practise religion at the same time."

Shades of the Pilgrim Fathers and the Huguenots! Religious toleration has always been the mark of democracy.

The Bolsheviks won't get very far by that system. Religious inhibition is practically impossible and intolerance in respect of theological preference has caused most of the wars of history. The Soviet leaders are charging a mine beneath their feet.

The Ohio man who sold his wife and seven children for $100, was a shrewd bargainer when economic values and moral obligations or sentiment are considered. By the same token, the purchaser must be a philosopher. We can appreciate the politics of a man who would be willing to pay $100 for a well-mannered wife, trained for household duties, but to take over seven children is like buying a home, heavily mortgaged and paying for the latter as a privilege.

The motto of a great many motorists seems to be "They Shall Not Pass."

Anyway, that Alberta coal should be acceptable just because it comes from Alberta. Everything they produce in that province ranks as "first division."

Premier Poincare's Ruhr policy is likely to develop into a "reverback."

The Canadian National Exhibition opens tomorrow. Watch your pocket books!

tions to bituminous coal as winter fuel. But it has been proven that the Alberta lignite is not "smoky" or sooty to an objectionable degree and is readily combustible when properly handled.

Hence the matter of freight tariffs is left as the chief obstacle to be overcome in the effort to introduce the Western fuel into Ontario as common fuel.

No argument can be logically advanced in favor of lower freight rates on coal from the West in which due allowance is not made for the enormous cost of railway freight transportation in a country like Canada, where a population of approximately nine millions is distributed over an area as large as that of the United States. Long hauls mean high transportation costs with practically exorbitant freight schedules.

Yet, with eastern Canada confronted with the immediate prospect of stoppage of its anthracite supply from the States and with this coal hovering far above a reasonable price per ton at all times, the situation would seem to justify heroic measures.

Surely some plan can be evolved by the Provincial and Dominion governments by which the almost inexhaustive supplies of Canadian coal can be utilized in Canada. Re-adjustment of the east and west tariff over the Canadian National Railways by which coal could be hauled in returning "empties" from the West during slack seasons should serve to minimize the tariff tolls. A freight tariff of $1 per ton with a maximum cost of even $15 per ton to the consumer is high, but when compared to anthracite in the neighborhood of $20 per ton it is not noticeably disproportionate.

Householders should not confuse the Alberta bituminous with the soft coal generally sold in Ontario. The former, as has been explained, is a grade closely approaching anthracite in substance and combustion properties.

THE PROVINCE OF A NEWSPAPER

Lindsay Post)

It would be comical, were it not somewhat pathetic, the way newspaper offices are besieged every day by their friends urging them to "roast" this and that; to "see to it" that this and that is corrected; to have this and that done in the town and county; to start this and that kind of movement. These friends actually appear to believe that it is the newspaper's business to handle all these affairs. But a self-respecting newspaper, though ready and willing to carry on reasonable suggestions, must remind its readers that they—the people—are the authority upon whom rests the responsibility for the present state of affairs, local, provincial and national. A self respecting newspaper tries to reflect the views of, not actually happens. The relation of such a newspaper to the general public is not always understood. It is the duty of a newspaper to be in a position to support any good act and to criticize any bad act of public policy. This relationship cannot exist where favors are asked for and granted. Honesty is the best policy for a newspaper. If objectors do not like the way things are going they should qualify as voters and then raise cain about it.

The Whig hits the nail on the head. The newspaper has a duty to perform but it is not expected to play the role of a common scold or become the scapegoat of those who are desirous of making trouble. No community is immune in this respect, and nearly every newspaper office in the country is bothered with this type of individual.

BURBANK AND BIRTH CONTROL

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

Lovers of flowers and of gardens are generally familiar with the name of Luther Burbank, that wizard of the floral world whose magic touch surpasses that of King Midas. The fabled monarch created gold; Burbank creates beauty.

Santa Rosa, California, is now celebrating the golden jubilee of her most famous citizen. But if the poisonous doctrine of birth-control had been believed in and practised by his parents the world would today have been poorer and Luther Burbank would never have gladdened the heart and the eye by his discoveries in the kingdom of flowers. He was the thirteenth of fifteen children. From his mother he inherited a passionate love of flowers and his earliest memories are associated with his mother's garden.

In our day the mother of fifteen children—if such a thing could be imagined—would be trying to evolve sleeveless and neckless gowns for her flapper daughters, or would be at present time in the trousers of her butterfly sons. She would have at time for a garden or for outdoor activities. But the mother of Luther Burbank had a taste for flowers and the power to keep her offspring within bounds. In this environment her thirteenth son passed his childhood and today ranks as the greatest authority on flowers and their cultivation.

Advocates of birth control will find it difficult to account for Luther Burbank's greatness with their silly clap-trap of having one child and raising for him to be a superman. Raising him to be a molly-coddle is far more likely to be the result.

Sport Critics' Views on Game

That everyone who witnessed the big Playoff ball game at Cobourg on Wednesday were well satisfied with the value which they received for their 50 cents, is evidenced by the medium of expression the newspapers, of at least two of the most interested towns in the district.

When either Sandy Lockington or "Josh" Craig expresses their opinion on a ball game, it is wise to hear or read them, for though local fans may not always agree with their views, yet their reviews always prove interesting. The former incidentally offers some constructive criticism in the hope that Belleville may sweep the Province and bring glory in baseball history not only to Belleville but to Central Ontario and the C. O. A. B. L.

Mr. "Josh" Fred Craig, Sporting Editor of the Peterboro Examiner, and one of the best baseball authori ties writing, gives a most concise and true account of Wednesday's big game at Cobourg. Mr. Craig says:

CRAIG 'SEES' HIGHLIGHTS

Timely hitting, especially by Pennyan and Harry Mills and great relief pitching by Jack Williams enabled Belleville to come from behind and grab off a victory from the Peterboro's in the play off game at Cobourg yesterday, thus winning the championship of Section of the Central League. Over 5,000 fans from all parts of Eastern Ontario saw the game and they were rewarded by a thoroughly brimful of excitement, fast fielding and great base running worthy of the occasion and the big gathering.

In the early stages it looked all over like a Peterboro win. After being outhit the last two innings, and whether he would use Collette or Williams on the mound, Manager Orvis decided to send the ex-Lind say speed artist back at the, Price but he was not the Collette of last Saturday. The Solomon over got off him for two runs in the first inning added another in the fourth and were on their way to more when the derrick was applied and Williams sent in to save the day. He went in with one out and two on bases, yielded any scoring in that frame and from then on the Indian southpaw had the Price at big mercy, allowing only two hits for the balance of the game. Williams' control was well nigh perfect and the Price were stopped completely.

Had Williams wavered when he took over the pitching burden, Belleville were through. But he was as cool as the breeze that came from the northwest, put an end to the Peterboro hitting and the Trunks rallying behind his steady twirling kept picking away at Heckman until finally they found Brought his chance in the eighth frame and put the game on ice.

The Price went down fighting. Defensively they gave their best exhibition of the year. They had nothing that looked like an error and Anslow, Swanston, Nelson and Legon pulled off plays that fairly sparkled. Anslow cuffed down a vicious roller from Brownscombe's bat and cut off the runner with a beautiful throw. Swanston went back to the stand and pathered in a foul fly in circus fashion, Nelson made a fine stop of a hard hit ball from Brownscombe, and Legon's running catch of Casey's slashing drive over short earned bracketts.

Bunched hits beat Heckman. Six of Belleville's eight safeties were crowded into two frames and on both occasions a charity was thrown in, so that these six massed hits were responsible for seven runs. Outside of those two innings the Price's writher had a big edge on the winners, twice retiring the side on strikes and fanning nine. Heck has carried the pitching burden all season and the strain of pitching three hard games in a week doubtless played its part in making the eighth inning rally possible. It was a heart-breaking wind up for the hard-working hewer who has pitched many more innings than any other Central League pitcher and whose season's record speaks for itself.

The Price are through for the year so far as the championship series are concerned. They have put up a great battle for the honors, were only nosed out of the first half by one game, won the second half by a two game margin and forced Belleville to go three fixtures to finally settle the argument. They have provided the fans with a lot of good baseball and deserve credit for what they have accomplished in spite of their defeat yesterday.

The game was well handled by Umpires Hallinan and Thorne of Toronto, the field was in splendid condition, the crowd was well looked after and in every respect—save that the Price lost the decision—the fixture was a fitting wind up to a good season.

"WILLIAMSITIS"

Wednesday before a wild and exciting crowd of ball fans, the Peterboro team developed a serious case of Williamsitis in the third inning and succumbed before medicinal aid could arrive. The obsequies were held at the Horse Show Park Cobourg, and the chief mourner was Jake Solomon. So says Sandy Lockington in commenting on THE game.

Last Saturday Peterboro suffered from too much Collette, while Wednesday at Cobourg they hadn't enough Collette, but too much Williams.

Heckman weakened as in the game last Saturday and when Belleville locates a weak spot they take full advantage. Then they did real ball ball; they drove it far over the field ers' heads and had an automobile not stopped in the drive by Pennyan Mills he would have been credited with a home run. As it was, he covered three sacks and brought in two as fleet-footed as some of his junior team mates. Belleville is to be congratulated upon their splendid showing, not only Wednesday but all through the season, and here is hoping that they score through to bring the honors to the Province to the Central League camping grounds Peterboro played a plucky game but fans throughout the section congratulate both victors and vanquished.

PICKING TENNIS TEAM FOR CUP FIGHT

By HENRY L FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor

New York, Aug. 24.—Selection of a team of four players who will be delighted to uphold the prestige of the United States as the champion tennis nation of the world is now occupying the attention of a special committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

It is no light task devolving upon this committee and they pursue no haphazard method in selecting the four best of ten or more fine tennis players. One is aware of the greatest care about from tourney net to tournament watching the candidates. Their scrutinize their game, carefully note their strong points and make note of their weak sees. Records of the part are considered only with the idea that the experience gained under previous times might make a less brilliant player more valuable than an unseasoned star.

The challenge round of the Davis Cup matches, which is to be played at Forest Hills the last of next month, is the "world's series" of tennis. In fact, it is the only sport tournament carrying a legitimate claim to such a world's championship.

The Davis Cup, emblematic of the world's court championship, is now held by the United States. Seventeen nations fought it out for the privilege of playing the American team, the only survivor of the preliminaries will meet the Americans in the challenge round.

While no selections for the American team have been announced so far, it is certain that Bill Tilden and Bill Johnson will be among the four members of baseball men were to pick a team for a world's series, it is certain that they would name Babe Ruth and Roger Ex Hornsby without a thought and along the same line of reasoning the "two Bills" are sure of places.

Tilden and Johnson will be expected to carry the burden in the four singles matches, but the task of the challenger against the challengers in the one doubles match of the program is causing the committee much concern.

Tilden and Vincent Richards teamed up in the doubles against Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, the Australian stars, last year, and they were given a lesson in how two-men teams should work.

Johnson and Richards hardly could make a better showing than was made last year if they should have the same efficient team work of their opposition and unless the committee takes a chance on throwing away the doubles and winning by a score of 4 to 1 or 3 to 2, it is possible that young Richards might not be named for the team.

With a rather flattering idea that two doubles stars make a team a good doubles team the United States has not kept apace with some other nations, the British and Australians especially, in developing doubles players. This is true in both the men's and women's classes.

The Australians showed last year that doubles play is departures all in itself. Pat Wood was only an ordinary performer in the singles, but when he was teamed with Patterson he was as brilliant as any player seen in years.

Richard Norris Williams and Watson Washburn formed the doubles combination when the United States was battling for the cup three years ago, but they have fad.J

Bill Johnson and Clarence Griffin are a likely pair of performers, but it is doubtful that the committee will want to overtax the brilliant Johnston, who is anything but a rugged player.

Griffin's partnership as a member of the team, however, would make it possible to name Vincent Richards as the emergency member of the team, for work in the singles if anything should happen to either of the Bills.

The two Kinsey brothers from California have a lot of backing to claim a place in the team, but they have played together for three or four years and they are really as good and reliable a combination as seem to be found among the American players.

They are also good singles performers and either could fill himself justice if he had to step in and play in one of the singles matches.

Bill Johnston is playing as well as he ever did and that means that popular Little Bill is just slightly under thirty pounds of being the best plays in the world. He won the British championship at Wimbledon and will go with everything on his side if he had always been good enough stamina to last up the strain and his scientific qualifications that he possesses.

Tilden, always willing to do mission work, will be asked, has signified by season competition in the east and Tilden during the Pacific Coast will Manuel Alonso.

So far and he has been pressed sufficiently to have brought out any weakness, Tilden has not displayed on his game thrown off by the amputation of his finger last winter.

In carrying Alonso along with him Tilden is giving the Spaniard a lot of valuable schooling, and it will be no surprise to see Alonso having something to say about the national championship this fall.

Accused Reds Deny Charges

Bohne and Duncan Declare They Were not Guilty of Gambling

New York, Aug. 24.—Charges that two Cincinnati players were approached by gamblers recently on the eve of a crucial series with the New York Giants will be sifted to the bottom, John A. Heydler, president of the National League, announced last night after a hearing before him which lasted all day at which the players, Second Baseman Sammy Bohne and Left Fielder Pat Duncan flatly denied the accusations.

The charges were published last Saturday by Collyer's Eye, a Chicago weekly sports paper, and were the official recognition given them was at today's hearing in the office of the National League executive, who established a precedent by inviting Cincinnati newspaper men traveling with the club to attend. The paper alleged that Bohne and Duncan in addition to a third player, whose identity was not revealed, had been approached by gamblers with an offer of $15,000 each to influence their play in the series with the Giants at Cincinnati the first week of August. Color to the gambling charges, it was declared, was added by the fact that the reds lost five straight games to the Giants in that series.

Today, however, both players declared, under oath that they had been approached either directly or indirectly by gamblers, while President Heydler, after the hearing, asserted "the charges against Bohne and Duncan appear to me to be silly and unfounded." Nevertheless, the league executive emphasized every effort would be made to trace them to their source.

After hearing the players yesterday morning, President Heydler called them to institute legal action against the publication. He also urged that the Cincinnati local take similar action, a suggestion which was followed by an immediate declaration by August Hermann, president of the club, that he would back the players in any legal course they took.

"Teddy" Orr Is Strong For Trunks, Says Post

"Teddy" Orr, of Lindsay, whose heart is with the Trunks, and who formerly lived at Belleville, was one of the best fans Belleville had at the game, Wednesday says the Lindsay Post, and he intends following the team the rest of the season.

* * *

Freddy Goyer, the scout-saw from Belleville, who went to Guelph last season, has again been nosed out of a championship. Goyer should have remained with his old home team, adds the Post. However, it is not Goyer's fault, as he pitched a great game at Preston and made the O. B. A. A. champions go 13 innings.

Do You Know?

Q. Is Babe Ruth's hitting the result of using a new bat? D.W.

A. It has been suggested that the new bat which Sam Crawford gave the Babe increased hitting power, but it is hard to tell if he would not have done so well with his old bats.

Q. Is Joe Sewell, the Cleveland shortstop, considered good at his position? A.T.M.

A. Sewell is not only good, but many experts believe him to be the best in the American league and the best of the season in the major leagues.

Q. Are there any prizes given to the batting champions in the big leagues? S.W.D.

TRUNKS PREPARE FOR CRUCIAL CLASH WITH OSHAWA TOMORROW

Pitcher Oulette Expected to Start in Contest At Oshawa

The Trunks are working put at the fair grounds every afternoon in preparation for the crucial game with Oshawa tomorrow. Oshawa, champions of section A, and Belleville, winners of B section, will lock horns for the championship of the Central League, with the first game in the motor town. Oshawa won from Leaside only after two hard games and are reported to be a nifty aggregation. In Dainty and Tyson they have a good battery. Dainty beat the Trunks out in 1921 with Freddie Goyer pitching. Tyson did the receiving for Cobourg last season and is a first-class catcher. Walter Pay, "Rip" Rowden, Ray Belding, "Bucko" Wilson and the rest of the Oshawa squad are well known to Belleville fans. Oshawa will in all probability rely on Dainty to twirl both games with the railmakers. Patton is still on their roster but his best days are over. Jack Oulette will likely start in Oshawa, while Jack Williams will be spared for the home game. Fans who have seen both teams work favor Belleville to cop the series. But Oshawa are no soft pickings and the boys are protesting hard. With good train connections a large crowd will no doubt accompany the boys.

The teams are being eliminated all over the province. One of the big surprises was Guelph's defeat at the hands of the Galt Terriers, St. Pats of Ottawa are waiting to meet either Oshawa or Belleville.

Hallinan and Thorne will umpire. A record crowd is expected.

Would Stimulate Iron Ore Industry

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Special committee appointed by the Ontario Government to investigate the iron ore industry of the Province finds that "in all Canada no iron ore is being produced, and all the important steel industry is wholly based upon a rapidly dwindling foreign supply of iron ore that is within reasonable distance of extinction."

The committee recommends that the iron ore industry be encouraged and developed by a bounty of one cent a unit of iron; half to be paid by the province and half by the Dominion; also that a properly qualified geologist be permanently assigned to the work of studying and reporting on Ontario iron ore deposits; and that a mining engineer be retained and charged with keeping the Department of Mines continuously in touch with "improvements made in act of ore dressing, concentrating and sintering of low grade iron ores." They also recommend that section of the Mining Act prohibiting export of iron ore be repealed in order better to encourage entrance of foreign capital for developing this industry.

U.S. LIFE INSURANCE BUSINESS INCREASES

Toronto, Aug. 24.—In July over $455,000,000 worth of new business was done in the United States by the old principal life insurance companies, a gain of 18 per cent. over last year.

Decrease of 16 per cent. from June, according to the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, was seasonal.

Sales for the first seven months of 1923 total $3,402,105,000, a gain of 19 per cent. over last year. July gains were principally in the west and south. Only one state, New Hampshire, fell below 90 per cent of the record for year, when more insurance was sold than in any other year except 1920. Indications are that 1923 will break all records.

BRITAIN MAY TAX U. S. MOTOR TIRES

CUTTING GENERAL NOW IN THE WEST

Threshing in Manitoba—More Labor Needed Later

Winnipeg, August 22.—Harvesting is now underway throughout the Prairie Provinces and weather conditions during the past week have been comparatively favorable, fair and moderately warm, with local showers and cool nights, states the weekly report issued by the agricultural department, C. P. R., here today. At present the supply of labor arriving is adequately meeting all requirements, but a heavy demand is anticipated when threshing begins. Current wages range from $3.50 to $4.50, with an advance when threshing begins.

Wheat cutting in Southern Manitoba has been completed in numerous districts, while other districts report from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. finished. From 10 to 25 per cent. of the crop is threshed and threshing returns reveal a yield of from 10 to 12 bushels an acre. In central and more northerly portions of the province cutting is now under way.

IN SASKATCHEWAN

Harvesting is well under way in the southern and central districts of Saskatchewan with from 15 to 30 per cent. completed, and becoming general in districts farther north, with probably about five per cent. of the cutting already accomplished. As a result of recent rains grain in numerous districts has lodged, and this, combined with the heavy stand, is making cutting somewhat difficult.

The crop outlook continues favorable in Alberta. The first car of fall wheat from the Stirling district yielded 14 bushels an acre and graded No. 1. This is a lot below the average for the district, as many crops will go as high as 40 bushels, and practically all will grade No. 1. Ten to 15 per cent. of the wheat has been cut in the southern districts, but the more northerly sections will not commence harvesting extensively for a week, cool weather having retarded the ripening.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

Banks laughed, and followed the raving man to the other end of the great reading-house to whisper:—

"No use wasn't, lad, not you."

Richard started, and turned of a sickly hue as he confronted the stately old foreman.

"Think I didn't know you, my lad, eh?" he whispered; and dirtying his elbow at the same time into the man's chest, he pushed up his face, and gave him a knowing smile. "No, you wasn't start me, Richard Glaire, I know. But I say, my lad, don't be so hard on the poor lass there, your cousin."

"Will you hold your tongue?" gasped Richard. "They'll hear you!"

"Well, what if they do?" said the sturdy old fellow. "Let 'em. There's sport to be made of you. But there, you're popped now, and no wonder. Get you home with your mother."

"But I can't go through the streets."

"Yes, you can; nobody'll say a word to you now. Get her home, lad; her home."

It was good advice, but Richard Glaire would not take it, and his mother gladly availed herself of the vicar's arm.

"You'll come home now, Richard," said Mrs. Glaire, as the vicar took and uneasily from her son to the foreman, as she recalled their conversation in the garden, and felt unwilling to leave them alone together.

"I shall come home when the streets are safe," said Richard haughtily. "They are safe enough for you but I'm not going to subject myself to another attack from a set of brute beasts."

"I don't think you have anything to fear now," said the vicar, quietly.

"Who said I was afraid?" snarled Richard, facing sharply round, and then as he bent to the remonstrant looks of cousin and mother, "I should think I know Dumford better than you, sir, when to go and when to stay."

The young man's eyes met for a moment, and Richard Glaire's shifty gaze sunk before the calm, manly look of the man who had so bravely interposed on his behalf.

"Curse him! I hate him," Richard said in his heart. "They're both too strong, and big and manly, and he does nothing but degrade me before her. I hate him! I hate him."

"What a contemptible cad he is," said Murray Selwood in his heart; "and he is not, he has his good points, or that sweet girl would not love him as she evidently does. Poor girl, poor girl! But there: it is not fair to judge him now."

"Of course, you must know best, Mr. Glaire," he said aloud. "But I am quite a stranger. I will see your mother and cousin safely home, and I hope next time we shall have a more pleasant meeting. You are put out now, and no wonder. Good-bye."

He held out his hand with a frank, pleasant smile upon his countenance, and the two women and the foreman looked curiously as Richard shrunk away, and with a childish gesture thrust his hand behind him. But it was of no use, the firm, unblenching eyes seemed to master him, the strong brown muscular hand remained outstretched, and in spite of himself, the young man felt drawn toward it, and fighting unsuccessfully against the influence the while, he ended by impatiently placing his own limp, damp fingers within it, and letting them lie there a moment before snatching them away.

Directly after, leaning on the vicar's arm, and with Eve on the other side, Mrs. Glaire was being led through the knots of people still hanging about the street. There was no attempt at molestation, and once or twice a faint cheer rose; but Mr. Selwood was fully aware of the amount of scrutiny that drew from door and window, for the Dumford people were not at all bashful as to staring or remarking.

At last the awkward steps were reached, and after supporting Mrs. Glaire to a couch, the new hero returned to go, followed to the door by Eve.

"Good-bye, and thank you—so much Mr. Selwood," she said, pressing his hand warmly, "I did not think we should meet again so soon. And, Mr. Selwood—"

She stopped short, looking up at him timidly.

"Yes," he said, smiling. "Don't be afraid to speak; we are not strangers now."

"No, no; I know that," she cried, eagerly. "I was only going to say—to say—don't judge poor Richard harshly from what you saw this morning. He was excited and hurt."

"Of course," said the vicar, pressing the little hand he held in both his. "How could any one judge a man harshly at such a time? Good-bye."

"Good bye."

"And with such a little ministering angel to console for him," muttered the vicar, as the door closed. "Heighol these things are a mystery and it is as well that they should be, or I don't know what would become of the poor erring man."

The Canadian National Exhibition is now in its forty-fifth year. It started in 1879 but really dates back to 1846, when the Association of Ontario Arts and Agriculture was formed, an institution that had its start with the first fair in Canada established at Niagara in 1792, when the Grave settlers decided to grow flax for the purpose of furnishing the raw material for the canvas that provided the motive power for the British Navy and Mercantile Marine of that day.

MAYORALITY PROBABILITIES

Toronto, Aug. 24.—A rumor current in municipal circles credits both Controllers Hills and Foster with the intention of being in the field for mayor on New Year's day. Controller Singer has already announced his intention to retire, so this would leave three vacancies on the Board of control.

HOW ARE YOU THIS MORNING?

This salutation is addressed to you so often that perhaps it means nothing to you now.

And yet did you ever think that your actual feelings, your temper, your disposition may vary with the day?

It was Lord Chesterfield who said: "A light supper, a good night's sleep, and a fine morning often make a hero of the same man who by indigestion, a restless night, and rainy morning, would have proved a coward."

Don't misunderstand me. Many a man is here irrespective of food, sleep, or weather. Our boys proved that in France.

But the point I wish to make is that you must expect to be grouchy, not your real self, with lowered capacity for work, and your courage at low ebb if you neglect the ordinary common sense rules of health. And in these days of close competition of speed, and nerve tension, you've got to be at your best.

As the head of a university once said: "The constipated man is not responsible for his actions mentally, morally or physically." Strong language, isn't it?

And so with hard work mental or physical on the morrow try to remember Lord Chesterfield's saying.

We all need every ounce of courage and stamina these days. Let us then not do the foolish physical things that keep us from being our best.

BROWNING.

Some of the Provocative Points in His Poetry.

"Browning gives the taste of life, with its oddity, color, and splendor, its surprises, its joy and sorrow, as no one else has done," writes Elias in "A Survey of English Literature." The letters of Calliban, and the blasts of St. Praxed's, and Bruits, and a score of others, are not so much the author's personal expression of the contemporaneous.

"Browning the stir of realism, knew the subtlety of poetry; yet using the kind of poetry out of which he built, Browning often goes, with a strained originality that seems to be rather intensified by his many revisions (indulgence or complicity being far from his) to the short of that he moves joyously above ground, with a certain good-natured impatient contempt for the average nature, and also a clear vision of it; the contempt distinguishing him from Shakespeare, as it does from Chaucer, to whom Landor compared him. His world, nevertheless, is amply peopled. Yet with whom, or with what? He has more dramatic sense than any poet of his time; but, while all the characters have colored their way into the general memory? Possibly Pippa, or Pompilia; more probably Mr. Sludge. No one else, despite all these brains and books. There is no Hamlet, or Lear, certainly not even a 'New Don Juan!'

"It may be said that the test is too hard, and that Browning speaks to the leisured public. But his 'Karshish, Cleon, Norbert, and the fifty,' for all their liveliness and eagerness, are scarcely persons. Some indeed are types not to be forgotten, and Gelda and Fra Lippo are more than that. And it is a great thing to create types, as Chaucer created them. But Browning's new are more often spokesmen—voices of his own ideas on love and art and faith; and they are little more for all the color and detail that surrounds them. They are, from what point of view, wonderful inventions.

"His women are more real and satisfactory, especially when they speak for themselves. They tremble, weep, and sometimes, like the lady in 'the Inn Album,' they have a poetic reality. Sometimes they too are types and profoundly representative—men, like the speaker in 'My Wife to Any Husband.' But not only approach Browning's safest and least hindered mode of speech, which is once more, the lyrical. How and then, as in the case of Pompilia, the impression is lyrical, while the form is not so. Browning presents situations, but his skill is through them to present passion—anybody's passion; and to present thought, too, with the shadowy thinker behind it."

Harcourt and Victoria.

Sir William Harcourt was always persona gratissima with Queen Victoria, whom he treated with a masterly tact, knowing how to say the right thing in the right way. In his "Life of William Harcourt," Mr. A. G. Gardiner publishes the following letter which Harcourt wrote to Gladstone in 1886, on the subject of his daughter's marriage: "I think all women are better married—a sentiment for which I was much reproved by my Sovereign, when I expressed it to her in the case of my son and my daughter's marriage. She said: 'I entirely differ with you, Sir W. I think no woman should marry, except under exceptional circumstances.' I replied: 'Madam, you are as bad as Queen Elizabeth, except that she was a spinster and Your Majesty was, I think, rather pleased at the comparison.' 'Yesterday one of whom talk was of her dolls,' says Harcourt in 1891; 'she is a much delighted at the notice taken of them, and says she is sorry she is not married till she was fourteen. Of course the tone of the whole conversation is that of the most vehement Jingoism. When you are face to face with her she is very reserved and constrained, and I soon shunted the conversation on to domestic matters and family gossip."

Medieval Manners.

"How Our English Ancestors Lived" formed the subject of an interesting lecture delivered recently at McGill University, Montreal, by Prof. Waugh. Noble families in the Middle Ages, he asserted, "shared common plates and cups, used fingers instead of forks, licked their plates, wiped their teeth on the tablecloth, and scrambled for the largest portion." Books on etiquette issued in the 15th century pointed out that these things were not good manners. The art of cooking in the Middle Ages flourished, however, cooks excelling at artistic and rich confectionery. Dancing in medieval times was true to its name. Dancers really moved with nimbleness and agility instead of slowly posturing round the room in the manner of modern dancers. The noble and his family and servants lived and slept in the great hall of the castle, with next to no privacy. A better state of things evolved gradually, more rooms being added and more windows put in, paving a greater seduction for the lord and his family.

A Multitude of War Stores.

Three billion dollars or more have been collected by the British Disposals Board, and a surplus of about $100,000,000 will be handed to the government as a result of the war the department employs 1,000 people, but there are 2,000 more who have been engaged in clerical work with remnants of stores worth $50,000,000.

These "stores" include timbered lands and factories, hotels, houses, railways, armchairs, rifles, guns, horses, battleships and thimbles of other items.

Bank Doors Shut Equally.

The doors of the Bank of England are so finely balanced that a boy's, by pressing a button under his desk, can close the other doors instantly and they cannot be opened again except by special process.

EAT VEGETABLES FOR VITAMINS

(Second Instalment)

Vitamin "C" prevents disease and promotes the general health. Lack of it gives the skin a bad color and makes the heart weak. It has long been known that lemons, limes, oranges, and fresh fruits are curative in scurvy. It was only known in recent years that we have understood that this curative effect was due to vitamin "C"'s. While oranges have been used for a number of years in the treatment of infantile scurvy, it is only recently, that it has become the common practice to supply orange juice to infants, as part of the regular feeding practice. More recently it has been discovered that tomato juice is practically equivalent to the juice of an orange in this regard, and many physicians in the poorer districts of the large cities are prescribing strained tomato juice in place of orange juice. The juice of canned tomatoes seems to be very similarly rich in this respect, indicating that the canning process is not particularly destroyed in so far as vitamin "C" is concerned. Berries are known to have beneficial curative properties, although little investigational work has been done.

The Swedish turnip or rutabaga is very valuable as a source of vitamin "C" and the same is true of the carrot. Young carrots are apparently somewhat richer in this vitamin and this appears to be true for many vegetables. As a rule, it is probably safe to state that the more vigorous and rapid the growth of vegetables is highest at the time that the vegetable is most prized from the standpoint of appearance and taste. Potatoes, onions and parsnips are also considered valuable anti-scorbutics. Dried peas, beans, lentils and cauliflower must also be included in the list, while lovers of cabbage salad and "slaw" will be glad to learn that raw cabbage is one of the best sources of vitamin "C" that we have known. Even the juice of sauerkraut carries necessary to human health. Most vegetables have one or two but almost all have some.

It is probably best to eat our fruits and vegetables in the fresh form when in season, and the artificial amount of vegetables and fruits purchased the year, it will not matter if a small proportion of the vitamins are destroyed in the cooking processes. As a rule, long continued heating or cooking is considered undesirable, and air should be excluded as far as possible.

It is not necessary that we be vegetarians. We should be reasonable about our diet, and the average individual, especially that of growing children should contain milk, butter, eggs, fresh vegetables, and fruits daily. If we expect to obtain the best results.

Various fruit and vegetable canning recipe books have been issued from time to time, but the best that has recently come to my attention is the publication of a bulletin by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. These booklets contain recipes which have been thoroughly tested, are practical and economical. They may be had free upon application to the Fruit Commissioner, the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

To Discontinue Note Exchanges

London, Aug. 24—Recognizing the futility of a further exchange of wordy "notes" on the reparation issue, Prime Minister Baldwin has decided to meet Premier Poincare upon the former's return from his vacation at Aix-Les-Bains, it became known today.

The British premier will not formally ask his French colleagues for an appointment, but will make known hisdesire through a second parties his readiness to discuss the whole reparations problem, in the light of the French government's latest note.

The British premier feels that while in France he should profit by the impression contained at the end of M. Poincare's note that France was ready to discuss the indemnity problem verbally. It is thought possible Lord Curzon, secretary of foreign affairs, may participate in the conference, since he plans to remain for some time at Bagnoles where he is at present recuperating.

Will Push Soft Coal Shipments

Washington, Aug. 24.—Assurances were given the government here that the railroads are ready to handle an increased production and movement of bituminous coal in the event of a strike in the anthracite fields.

M. J. Gormley, chief of the car service division of the American Railway Association, who will be the association's representative at the New York governors' conference today conferred with Commissioner Potter of the Inter-State Commerce commission on the situation.

Gormley declared that he will tell the New York conference that the railroads are in shape to "do" whatever they are called upon to do in the way of transportation and distribution of bituminous coal in the event of a strike.

Oppose Wind-up of Bank Affairs

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Home Bank depositors yesterday afternoon passed a resolution requesting the Minister of Finance to appoint a man thoroughly qualified and independent of the Canadian Banking Association to act with Curator Barber in making a report of the bank's situation.

Dr. J. Williams of 162 Carlton street, moved the resolution and it caused a hot discussion before the opening of Solicitor J. F. Edgar.

The unanimous opinion of the depositors was that no liquidation proceedings be allowed until the curator has reported a report.

The resolution was as follows:

"We, the depositors of the Home Bank, have met together this day and unanimously opposed to any winding up proceedings being taken until the curator has made his report and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the minister of finance."

There were 300 Home Bank depositors from various villages and towns as well as the city. There were present many women, most of whom were dressed in mourning.

Exclamations, shouts, calls for silence and noise featured the meeting.

It was suggested that depositors in branches throughout Canada organize and send their name to the secretary. This was favored by the meeting which then adjourned pending the committee's call when the information is available for addresses and names of depositors are received.

Child Is Killed By Street Car

Toronto, Aug. 24—Little Clarence Lee, 2½, years of 174 S. Clarence avenue, met a horrible death at 3.45 yesterday when he was struck by a College street car, his body being dragged four and a half blocks.

The boy, who was with some playmates, was struck at College and Dufferin, Clarence, and apparently fell beneath the car, the remains being dragged as far as 1157 College street.

The peculiar feature of the tragic death is that the train crew on the street car did not know of the accident, and no one, following the accident, knew what street car had killed the lad.

A portion of the child's body rolled out from beneath the moving car as it travelled east. A man walking on the south side of College street, near 1157 saw the remains and called the police. How the child got beneath the car unobserved and carried so many blocks is puzzling. The police want to the car tprmist to check up all College cars and examine the under machinery for blood.

GLADYS WALTON AT REGENT

IN HER FIRST FILM OFFERING

Life on the society trail from the third tub in the laundry to the Blue Book is described in "Crossed Wires," a Universal attraction starring Gladys Walton, which opened last night at the Regent Theatre.

Miss Walton has the role of Maxcel Murphy, a telephone girl with aspirations to get into society—and she eventually gets there.

The story centers around the little Irish girl whose greatest vision is that of herself in the exclusive social circles of the city's "four-hundred." This ambition is encouraged by her mother who also dreams of a certain exchange of views until the British government expects, charged with the study of reparation questions have made a careful examination of the French note and after which the cabinet will discuss the whole matter.

BELGIUM REPLY TO-DAY.

Brussels, Aug. 24.—The Belgian reply to the British reparations note will be sent to Paris to-morrow evening, and will be forwarded to London on Monday, it was announced to-day.

It is felt there is no need of such some day seeing her daughter in the center of the social whirl. Her dad is an easy going old "Mick" who considers their humble position on the social ladder good enough.

Marcel is determined to carry out her ambition and by means of a clever manoeuver on the telephone switchboard, obtains an invitation to a party given at the home of the Bellamy-Benson's. The Bensons are pretty well established in the society columns, but they've still aspirations to get "anchored" there.

Marcel puts on her best finery and appears at the party as Miss Marcel Montmorency Van Deusen and had what she would have termed a "whale of a time."

Supporting Miss Walton is a cast of well-known screen players that was carefully chosen for the play, including Lillian Langdon, Tom S. Guise, George Stewart, William Robert Daly, Kate Price and Eddie Gribbon.

Pathe News, and two comedy offerings were also exhibited during the evening.

DOROTHY DALTON IN "FOG BOUND" SCORES AT GRIFFIN'S

The Paramount picture, "Fog Bound," starring Dorothy Dalton, was successfully shown for the first time at Griffin's Theatre last evening.

This a thrilling melodrama, in which the hero (David Powell) is pictured as a man unjustly accused of murder. Wounded, and making his escape through the California fog, he is discovered by Gale Brenton (Dolly Dalton) living nearby. The girl cares for him and they manage to get safely as the sheriff and his posse arrive.

When Gale learns that Wainwright (Mr. Powell) is supposed to have killed her father, a revenue agent, she becomes convinced that Institutes a search, coming upon Roger in his own home. But here a woman recognizes one of the sheriff's men as the real murderer. He is taken in tow and Wainwright set free to show his unprejudiced love for Gale, who had helped him in his hour of need.

Individual honors go to Miss Dalton, with Mr. Powell splendid in the leading man's role. Others worthy of mention are Martha Mansfield, Maurice Costello and Warren Cook. Irvin Willat directed the production.

"Skipper's Policy," a funny Toncrwith Trolley comedy, an entertaining Travelogue, and the latest chapter of "The Phantom Fortune" serial completes a worth while program of the agitation in favor of Alberta coal. Many here who have used it in the west declare it is similar to the Welsh anthracite. Two carloads of Alberta coal will be shipped to Ed. Edmonton, when be addressed an interested body of Belleville manufacturers and citizens at the Chamber of Commerce here on Thursday afternoon. Mr. R. L. McIntyre, chairman of the provincial committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, also addressed the meeting.

"In recent tests with Alberta coal which were widely distributed throughout this Province, it was proved that western coal is suitable for Ontario requirements, does not go into 'mush' when reported, and does not crumble and dust the house," declared Mr. Tuckbury. "Of course, there are '57 varieties' of western coal," he continued, "and some varieties will go mushy. The Alberta domestic coal, however, will not separate for many days' time unless exposed to rain or sunlight, and it is dustless and smokeless. Domestic coal has been in use for eight years, during which time it did not flake or mush."

Alberta has 16 per cent. of the world's coal supply, 62 per cent. of the supply of the British Empire, and 80 per cent. of the coal in Canada, so there should never be a "coal situation" in the Dominion. Up until three years ago, Winnipeg secured 95 per cent. of her coal supply from U.S.A. That was prior to the campaign started there, for the use of Alberta coal. Now it is at least at the close of 1922, from 85 to 90 per cent. of the coal used by that city was mined in the Province. And it is suitable for the cold climatic conditions of Winnipeg, it should suit Ontario also.

The helpless plea of Canadians that they may freeze to death if there is a coal strike in the United States, is besmiliating to Mr. Butchbury, when there is such a bountiful supply right in Canada. Letters were read by the speaker from satisfied users of the coal, who state that it gives heat without fuss, prayer or good luck, is equally successful in the ordinary furnaces in general use in this province and burns down to a fine white ash. To start a fire with this coal, you simply bank two or three cross sticks and scatter over them a pulverized lump of coal. When it catches fire, shut off all drafts, and you have a steady burning, lasting heat, said by her mother who also dreams of a the U.S.A. annually for coal. If Alberta coal can be delivered cheaper than in western grain is moving, would be put to work, and employment would be given to many Canadian miners.

At the request of the Ontario and Alberta government, Sir Henry Thornton agreed the case for one day in Montreal in May last, and had the freight rates reduced from $12.70 to $9 per ton. The Americans however, who have spent their surplus money in development rather than pay taxes on it, are well prepared to drop their prices $1 per ton, if the Albertans drop their price 50 cents per ton, but in the long run we win, heads or tails. We either buy western coal or cheaper Ontario coal.

The smaller, by-product coal from Alberta sells at $2.75 per ton at the mines, and the best domestic coal is selling today in Stratford for $14 per ton. There are 371 mines in Alberta, and a specimen of the coal taken from one of the largest mines was produced for inspection.

Mr. McIntyre told of the mission and of holding from three to four meetings per day. He stated that Sir Henry Thornton had effected a freight saving of $7 for the wide distribution of from 4000 to 6,000 tons of the western coal in Ontario for demonstration purposes.

President Mac. Robertson of the C. C. P. presided, and the following men were present: Messrs Walter Scott, F. Dickens, A. McGie, Wm. Springer, T. W. Powers, Ald. G. W. French, Dr. J. Caldwell, George Jones, H. Greenleaf, H. E. Fairfield, W. C. Reid, F. M. Clarke, Mayor Bennett, Chas. Hanna, E. Wells, and T. Colling.

DIPLOMACY.

Have There Been Changes for the Old to the New Way.

The Right Hon. Sir J. Rennell Rodd, a famous ex-ambassador, deals with the old and new diplomacy in the Quarterly Review.

"Diplomacy by conference," he writes, "is no new discovery, as those who claim to see in it a panacea for international difficulties appear to think. But the cases proper for its application occur but rarely. In other respects advantage would appear to lie in leaving the management of foreign affairs to the expert who has been trained by life-long experience in the art of negotiation. It is he who is best able to advise on the correct time for the critical question of the moment with a number of other issues, the interdependence of which may not always be apparent to the politician, whom the interests of the internal situation rather incline to the opportunist solution.

"The successful handling of foreign relations, notably with Latin peoples and with the Near East Orientals, if experts' business, and demands experience and special education, no less than any art or other function of life. The conduct of correspondence in the newspapers has called attention to the striking contrast between the terms of the Treaty of Paris in 1815, under the wise guidance of Lord Castlereagh and the Duke of Wellington, and those of the Treaty of Versailles. When in the millennium comes; when there are no more rival international interests that men have no longer reason to be other than brothers, diplomacy there will be no more need for professional diplomatists.

"How often in recent times after conferences have broken up with the assurance that agreement has been reached, and even the publication of a formula to which the several parties have consented, have we learned a few weeks later that divergencies have arisen as to the interpretation of the formula! It is often discovered that in essentials there has been no real agreement. A further conference has to assemble to discuss the interpretation, and seldom is the more postponed.

"The principals engaged in the new diplomacy, rarely endowed with the gift of tongues and, therefore, at a disadvantage in being only able to appreciate at second hand the position adopted by their fellow negotiators, not moreover accustomed as were the old trained representatives to weigh the import of words and phrases with precision before accepting them, are found only to have agreed to disagree. Whereas after apparent agreement is put to the test, it is discovered that the difficulties since the late Lord Salisbury likened the work of the diplomatist to that of bees in a glass hive. We shall not advocate the return to the methods the hive discreditably. Not altogether unsuccessful were the old methods of the opportunities afforded therefore by a new factor unknown to the old diplomacy the first revealed its influences in the late war.

"Under the new system of propaganda has been, and will probably be more and more used to create currents of opinion in certain quarters in order to promote specific aims. Constant vigilance, intelligent observation, and perception of the forces at work in other countries will be necessary to estimate real values, to detect the sources of inspiration, and, if possible, to counter them. The peace and prosperity of the world will in the future, as they have been in the past, depend on the manner in which international questions are handled.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Berry, M.D.

THE MORPHINE HABIT

No one will attempt to deny that addiction to morphine is on the increase. You have seen at least one of these victims at some time, and the heart-rending tale of a blighted life has likely made its impression upon you.

How does it get its hold on its victims?

It sometimes is the result of the careless use of paregoric or laudanum to pacify young children. Fortunately mothers are learning more about these things and this cause is certainly decreasing.

It may be due to the thoughtless treatment by the medical profession. That it may be necessary in emergencies is admitted, but the patient should never have just what he is getting. There are other pain relievers, and a systematic change of preparations will avert this terrible habit.

However, physicians and welfare workers now generally agree that it is the doctor and the druggist, through medication you give other diseases is merited by the drug addict.

Why does he take it anyway?

Well, he may be feeling blue and may be in severe pain. He injects the drug into his body and immediately he is a changed man. He becomes energetic, almost brilliant in his talk, and has a feeling of buoyancy and well being. He then calms down into a quiet contentment with himself and the world. This is shortly followed by the third stage when he is in a "sloppy," drowsy condition, followed by complete unconsciousness. He later awakes in a most wretched, pitiable condition. He trembles like a leaf and his experience is one of most intense unrealness and restlessness. He must then secure another dose to relieve him from this fearful depression.

Fortunately they can now cure these cases. Institutions, you compose jails, are doing good work in getting these unfortunates back to health.

What is the method?

Just good hard common sense when you study it out.

The first idea is to drive the drug from his system, and so good colonic purges followed by castor oil is the treatment for the first few days. Then take the place of all the loss of liquid, and to keep the blood vessels filled, two or three quarts of distilled water is injected into his vessels. Of course he is in a desperate condition in his desire for the drug, and we do give other less harmful drugs to keep him quiet for the first few days. This is the extreme or keynote of the treatment. It is like giving an anaesthetic for a surgical operation.

CHURCHMEN VISIT NICKLE

Toronto, Aug. 24.—The committee of Scottish churchmen studying prohibition conditions in Canada visited Attorney-General Nickle at the parliament buildings yesterday. This afternoon they are interviewing representatives of the Moderation League.

SECRET OF HIS SUCCESS

One of the most noted, successful and richest men of this country in a recent article said, "Whatever I am and whatever success I have attained in this world I owe it all to my wife. From the day I first knew her she has been an inspiration and the greatest help-mate of my life." Health is the first essential of every woman who wants to be a helpful wife and to hold the love and admiration of her husband. If a woman finds her energies flagging and dark circles appearing under eyes, she has backache, headache, nervousness and "the blues," she should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the medicine which holds the record for helping 98 out of every 100 women who try it. There is nothing better.

There are reports that hail has damaged the crops south of Regina. In middle districts cutting general about 25th. South of Saskatchewan was visited by heavy storms and considerable hail damage in a small area." Warm weather badly needed, Threshing there are interviewing representatives of the Moderation League.

"Alberta has fair weather in the north Saskatchewan river should be up to 25 bushels per acre.

"In southern part of Alberta the weather has been favorable for all crops. In some localities wheat cutting has commenced and should be general about 28th. In some localities weather has been cool and showery. Crops are exceedingly heavy and in some places which were visited by storms crops have lodged.

"Generally, Manitoba crops poor, Saskatchewan fairly good and Alberta good."

BIG FUTURE IS SEEN FOR RADIO

Expert Declares Wireless Will Be Effective In Checking Forest Fires

IMPROVEMENT NEEDED

Dominion is Now Well Established as Enthusiastic "Radio Country"

That radio will be used very successfully in the near future in the prevention of the annual summer forest fires in Canada, was the opinion of Mr. F. N. Sherwood, radio inspector for this district, when interviewed by The Intelligencer last night. Mr. Sherwood was in the city yesterday, inspecting amateur radio sets and issuing licenses to those who had not yet procured their operating licenses for the current year. He was kept very busy at his headquarters, the Canadian National Telegraph office.

"An airplane could patrol a great expanse of forest land, and such fire rangers would be able to detect a fire before very readily," observed the inspector. "Then of course by sending a radio message, they could secure assistance right promptly, making it much less probable that a fire would get beyond control than under present conditions.

That radio would some day supplant the telephone and the telegraph was not nearly as probable in Mr. Sherwood's mind, because the telephone and telegraph are well established, give quick service at reasonable rates, and are beyond all the greatest fault attributable to radio in this connection. It has been impossible up to the present to make radio sufficiently private to be used in such a public service.

Pictures taken in one place have been sent to a distant point by radio, but little is heard about developments along those lines of late. While this might be an advantage for a metropolitan newspaper, continued Mr. Sherwood, it would be quite an item." At least that was the opinion of the inspector.

"Do you believe that the interest of the people will be held, as it has been during the past year, and radio further developed merely in a strictly amateur sense?" he was asked.

"Yes, I believe it will" was the answer. Canada has been hard hit by the radio idea this year, and has just established herself as a 'radio country'."

As an evasion, one strong point in favor of continued advancement was the fact that in May of this year, professional radio inspectors were first appointed in Canada. Of course in the summer time the radio activity naturally drops off, but this winter, the "radio bug" is expected to hit Canada hard and will no doubt applaud the "spooning parties" of midsummer which have been the pride of a large number of sections of rural Ontario this season.

Mr. Sherwood is inspector for the city of Belleville, and another for Prince Edward Island, and a second for Peterville was added to his jurisdiction. He is required to inspect each set in his district at least once each year. Though a young man, Mr. Sherwood is an expert on radio, and an expert telegraph operator also at Peterboro, where he is assistant manager of the Canadian National Telegraphs branch office. He reports that he has inspected many fine radio sets in this city.

Under the regulations of the Radio Telegraph Act, every radio set must be licensed whether used for transmission or reception. A penalty of a fine of $50 is provided by law for infringement of these regulations.

46 STATIONS HERE

It is estimated that there are about 46 radio receiving stations in Belleville. The license fee for receivers is $1.00 per year. There are still a number who have not paid the fee, but are expected to do so within a short time.

INEXPERIENCE WAS TRAGEDY CAUSE

Jury in Case of Drownings at Collin's Lake Returns Accident Verdict

Kingston, Aug. 25.—Accidental death, due to the swamping of one boat through inexperienced handling and the upsetting of the other when the girls jumped up to see what had happened to the first boat, was the verdict rendered by the Coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Evelyn Colloghy, Rosie Metts Isobel Turnbull and George Eckell, who lost their lives by drowning on Sunday last at Collins Lake., Evidence was submitted from rescued occupants of the boat whose stories of the tragedy coincided, and also showed that the boats were not overcrowded. Coroner R. J. Gardiner in receiving the verdict, remarked that it was exactly as he had expected, as having been on the scene of the tragedy soon after it occurred and having inspected the boats used and heard the stories of eye-witnesses.

The Police Court was crowded to the doors when the inquest opened and many outside were unable to gain admittance. In the room were some relatives of the deceased people, including Mr. Thomas Turnbull, father of the late Miss Turnbull. Coroner Gardiner informed the jury that it was unnecessary to view the bodies, this formality being now considered not always essential.

SAY LABOR COSTS ARE NOW DOUBLED

Have Increased in Nine Fields from $1.62 to $3.93 Per Ton

Washington, Aug. 25.—The cost of labor in production of one ton of anthracite increased from $1.62 in 1913 to $2.97 in the first quarter of 1923, the United States Coal Commission has announced in a report giving the result of its exhaustive study into production and costs of the hard coal industry. The report called attention, however, that while labor costs formed 61.8 per cent. of the sales realization price in 1913, they had dropped to 59.5 per cent. in 1923.

In the case of ten railroad companies, the commission found the labor expense factor to be $3.22 for the first quarter of this year, compared with $2.00 in October-December, 1922, applies unchanged at 71 cents, general expenses 91 cents, compared with 87 cents, and the total "Coke" was $3.54, compared with $3.48. With a sales realization of $6.56 per ton, this gave the companies under study a "margin" of $1.04 a ton, as compared with $1.01 in the final quarter of last year.

Operating representatives independents were shown to have paid $4.44 a ton to labor in 1923, against $4.45 in October-December, 1922; 80 cents for supplies against 68 cents, and $1.66 for general expenses instead of $1.07, the total cost of production being $6.82, against $6.54. With an average sales price of $7.57 this year, the independents received a margin of $1.25, against $1.16 in the fourth quarter of 1922.

"This margin cannot be considered adequate return to the investor," the report said. "It is practically equivalent to net operating income before payment of interest or federal income tax and not a good measure for trying to arrive at relative results of different operations."

Average cost of supplies was given as 35 cents per ton in 1913, when it was 12.3 per cent. of the realized price, and 72 cents per t onin 1923, when it formed 10.7 per cent of receipts. Similarly, "general expenses" was shown to have decreased from 33 to 32 cents per ton in ten years, but to have decreased from 12.5 to 11.5 when figured against

German Nation Not Hurt By Collapse Of Its Currency

Expert Says Currency Can Be Stabilized When Government Wills

By J. W. T. MASON.

(Written for the United Press)

New York, Aug. 25 (United Press).—Industrial collapse in Germany is not imminent, nor has the real economic strength of the German people been sapped by the fall of the mark. Despite the fantastic inflation of the collapse of Russian rubles by German paper currency dollars, there is reason to anticipate that in other respects Germany will go the way of Russia.

Russia's currency degeneracy was coincident with nation-wide starvation and depression of industry. There is no unemployment in Germany and though many classes have been made the victims of food profiteers, there is ample food in the country for all. Expansion of German industry has not suffered because of the fall in the exchange rate.

German shipbuilding is second only to Great Britain's. Hundreds of new buildings is proceeding in the principal German centers at a good rate. The industrial plants of Germany are improving their plants and putting in more modern machinery. Recreation when marks are worthless is the order of the day. Germany is not LET UP IN PRODUCTION

The decline in the value of the mark has not been caused by any real letup in production. The German people have the goods with which to pay the government's expenses if the government would only assess taxes on a proper basis. This would automatically stabilize the mark. The artificiality of Germany's depressed currency is demonstrated by the fact that the actual wealth in goods of the German people is in fact substantially increasing while the mark falls.

There has been no loss in wealth through the German nation through the decline of the mark. Wealth has changed hands inside Germany, but the German nation as a whole has gained enormously because marks purchased abroad will purchase more and more German goods as the purchase price. Americans in large numbers bought marks as a speculation when marks were bought at from one to four for a cent. The drop from that price to forty thousand for a cent means the hundreds of millions of American dollars used for speculating in German currency have been transferred from that to the pockets of American pockets to pay for raw materials which are providing a continuing wealth for the basis of Germany's present prosperity.

WILL NEVER COME BACK

The mark will never come back. There is no record in history of a currency depreciated far less destructively than the German mark ever returned to parity. To do so would be too costly for the industrialists and financiers who made so much profit by the mark's decline. Germany will fix a new rate for the mark, whenever the time seems appropriate to those in charge of German world policy. That rate whatever it is, will not harm the German people.

Stabilization in Germany is a mechanical matter of making taxes equal expenses. The German government can do this any time it desires, because of the real prosperity of the country. It will make no difference for the future on what basis the mark is stabilized. It can be done at a million marks to a dollar or ten million. Whenever a stabilization level is reached and is maintained, prices in Germany will quickly adjust themselves to the new base. Thereafter, world price levels will be reached and the German people can resume saving, knowing that marks will purchase approximately the same one week as the next.

Both boys spoke highly of the kindness and attention they received during the time they were in the hospital.

SAY PRINCE WILL WED LADY THYME

Rumor Again Links Name of Marquis' Daughter With Future King's

Ladies Aug. 25.—Dame rumor is again saying that Lady Mary Beatrice Thynne will occupy a place on the throne beside the Prince of Wales when he becomes king.

The romance between the eldest son of the British rulers and the graceful miss who can trace her ancestry back to the eleventh century is the principal topic of conversation in the smart London drawing rooms.

Various phases of the romance were thoroughly discussed at a dinner party given at the ancestral abode of the Marquis of Bath, her father, in Somerset, Wiltshire, and the engagement, it is said, will probably be announced in the autumn when the Prince returns from his Canadian tour. Lady Mary is just 20 years of age and is considered one of the great beauties of the junior circle that attends soirees at Buckingham palace and St. James. One of Lady Mary's sisters married the sixth Marquis of Northampton while another is the wife of the Hon. Oliver H. Stanley, a son of Lord Sheffield.

PETERBORO' MAN ELECTROCUTED WHILE WORKING IN BASEMENT

Burke was repairing steps leading to the cellar and reached to the electric light, apparently to draw it closer to his work.

splendid treatment they received in Belleville. They are thankful to escape with their lives and consider themselves and the occupants of the other car very lucky to be living at all. The car in which the local boys were driving was going about twenty-five miles an hour at the time.

CITY ALLOTTED THREE CARLOADS

Stove and Nut Sizes Will Sell at $14.50—Lump Higher

RATES TO GO UP

Dealer Declares Low Rates Can Only Be Secured in Slack Times

Announcement was made today, by Mr. G. Jones of Belleville that three carloads of Alberta coal, Belleville's allotment of the consignment of approximately 5,000 tons of the western fuel to be shipped to Ontario under the arrangement made by Sir Henry Thornton, will reach here in two weeks. The coal will be shipped at a freight rate of $7 per ton in accordance with the terms of the agreement.

Mr. Jones and Mr. R. Wells will distribute the coal here. There will be three grades, two carloads of stove and nut coal from the Drumheller district and a third carload of lump coal from the Mountain section. It is expected that the lump coal will retail at $14.50 per ton, while the other will command a higher price. Prices in the initial months range from $3.75 per ton up.

Mr. Jones stated today that he believed it possible that the freight rate on the coal from the West would be increased perhaps to $12.75 per. "The fall and winter is usually a time of great congestion on the railways," he said, "because of the movement of grain. The only time to secure low freight rates is during the slack seasons of spring and summer."

THIEVES SECURE PRIVATE STOCK

Cobourg Man Affected in Vital Spot,—The Cellar

Cobourg, Aug. 25.—Some time Monday night burglars forced an entrance into the cellar of Henry Fitzhugh, "Northumberland Hall," and stole a quantity of liquor. It looks like the work of professional burglars, as three large heavy doors were forced with jimmies and the beer wine cellar, where the liquor was stored. So quietly did they work that the occupants of the house did not hear a sound. Chief Rose was sent for in the morning when the theft was discovered and had out detectives during the night in an endeavor to ascertain the guilty parties. Included in the list of the stolen liquor is 14 cases of rum and 48 bottles of Vickers' dry gin. The liquor was valued at nearly $100. There appears to be a gang working in this district who are making a practice of breaking and entering from the number of thefts that have been pulled off in this district of late.

They are staying with Mrs. Sills, 367 Barrie St., and Mrs. Sidenius and her eldest daughter will join them the first part of next week by train down the river before returning home.

DOROTHY DALTON A RANCHER

Once a stager, now a rancher. Quite a jump, to be sure, but Dorothy Dalton makes it gracefully in her latest Paramount production, "Fog Bound" which is the feature attraction at Griffin's today, matinee and night. Not so long ago Miss Dalton was seen as an untamable daughter of wealth in her Paramount production, "Dark Secrets," but in "Fog Bound" she is agamingly different girl, as Dorothy Dalton has never seen before and she got still went to see.

Florida, the winter playground of the rich, is shown in all its phases and serves as the background for this capital picture. David Powell has the leading role opposite the star. "Skipper's Foiley," a very funny Cosbeerville Trolley comedy, a Kinograph, and William Desmond in an interesting chapter of Universal's "Phantom Fortune" serial are being exhibited on the same program which is well worth seeing.

GLADYS WALTON AT REGENT

IN ENTERTAINING OFFERING

It was a far cry from the fine men's ball to the Bellamy-Benson's grand reception, but Marvel Murphy attended both functions and carried off the high honors at each party.

At the fine men's ball she and her partner won the prize dance and at the reception she won the heart of the son of the house. Gladys Walton, pretty Universal star, has one of the most versatile roles of her seven career as Marcel Murphy, a telephone girl who broke in the "Blue Book," in "Crossed Wires," the Universal photodrama which will be shown at the Regent Theatre today, matinee and night. Pathe News and two fun-ny comedies are also being exhibited on the same program.

AGNES AYRES PLAYS POOR GIRL WITH RICH GOWNS

A destitute girl with plenty of gorgeous gowns! The role played by Agnes Ayres in her latest Paramount picture, "A Daughter of Luxury," which will be seen at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday, is that of a girl who is reared in luxury, but whose parents die and leave her penniless. The role of the destitute girl who is forced to make her own way however, does not mean that Miss Ayres will not wear several gowns in the picture, as one of the principal assets of the character in question is a large wardrobe of fine clothes. Paul Powell directed the production, which is an adaptation of the successful play, "The Impostor," by Leonard Merrick and Michael Morton Tom Galley is leading man.

"A Social Error," a two-reel comedy featuring Charlie Murray, a new mistress of a strange Chinese lover of the seas and Richard Dix as the mighty-fisted treasure hunter will amuse in every soul the inborn love for stout hearts and glorious adventure.

For News, a one-reel Sunshine comedy, and Ann Little and Fred Thompson in a new chapter of "The Eagle's Talons" serial will be exhibited on the same program.

RICHARD DIX AND HELENE CHADWICK AT REGENT MONDAY

Those who look back with undimmed delight to the first adventure story of youth will recognize an ancient thrill when "Yellow Men and Gold" by Gouverneur Morris, is shown at the Regent Theatre, this Monday to Wednesday, with the usual matinee daily.

All the color, action and romance that made Robert Louis Stevenson's adventure stories the joy of our childhood are present in Goldwyn's fascinating picture-play of buried treasure on a volcanic island of the south seas.

They will make their local appearance at the Griffin Theatre Wednesday and Thursday evenings, September 5 and 6 with everything in their programme entirely new.

The season's innovations include many magnificent new costumes. New and elaborate stage settings and brilliant electrical effects that have never been seen here before, in fact the lighting effects have never been excelled by any travelling theatrical organization before. The music, skits, sketches, single, double and concert numbers offer hundreds of novel surprises that the Originals or no other theatrical Company has ever attempted.

The great popularity everywhere of "Bill" Newman, Jimmie Goode, Arthur Holland and the other well-known members of this company which comprises the overwhelming majority of the Original Dumbell troupe, holds entertainment of its kind ever seen in this city.

MRS. BUDGE SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

River Desert, Que.—"I used to have a severe pain in my side. I would be unable to walk fast and could not stand for any length of time to do my sewing or washing, but I would have to lie down to get relief from the pain. I had this for about two years, then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had had good results. I certainly had good results from it, too, as the last time I had a sore side was last May and I have not had it since. I am also glad of having good health for my baby, and I think it is your medicine that helped me in this way."—Mrs. L. V. BUDGE, River Desert, Quebec.

If you are suffering from those torturs of a displacement, irregularities you should at once try this remedy, or a pain in the side, you should use no time in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write for it to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario. This book contains valuable information that every woman should know.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, Mexico (By mail to United Press)—Recognition and the establishment once more of friendly relations between the United States and Mexico will see a big influx of Americans to this country.

It is expected that an ever-increasing number of Americans will make their homes here. American firms doing business with this country must have representatives stationed here and these are destined to be largely Americans, because Americans generally best know Americans ways of doing business.

Capitalists, promoters, manufacturers, independent American business men in all lines of endeavor are already returning in increasing numbers to the Mexican capital.

It is natural to suppose that the influx of Americans to Mexico has scarcely begun. The field of foreign endeavor here is immense and the rewards for intelligent endeavor and the careful and considerate investment of capital are inviting.

Americans are participating in almost every activity of Mexico's national life, apart from the political. Americans have built railways and harbors, vast power plants and extensive highways, telephone and telegraph lines. They have established modern plantations and irrigation plants, opened thousands of new mines and given life and renewed activity to those long established, by the introduction of modern machinery and methods. American capital has been largely instrumental in the development of the vast Mexican oil fields.

U. S. GETS THE BUSINESS.

It might be said that the United States now has two-thirds of all the foreign business of Mexico and is moving steadily forward to the conquest of more.

Not so many years ago the American in Mexico was a being apart from the life of his own country and the intellectual movement of Mexico. He was a sort of unsettled character and few men brought their women-folk to Mexico. As in all other countries, the missionaries were the first. They established a few schools and social centers, chapels and other places for American reunions.

One of the most interesting incidents of the activities of Americans here in early days is that told about the request for property for an American cemetery. This request was made by the United States government to the Mexican authorities and was bitterly opposed in the chamber of deputies. Many were the around that it was to be a non-Catholic cemetery, causing religious prejudice. Juan Sanchez Azcona, a brilliant poet, orator and dramatist, carried the motion for the dedication of a piece of land by a humorous argument which has become historic. He said:

"You know I'm as good a Catholic as any of you and that I hate Protestants. But, nevertheless, I'm in favor of this measure as one of sweet charity and utility. Americans are coming here in increasing numbers; and, unfortunately, they die on our hands. There is only one of three things, we can do with them. We must either burn them, bury them or bury them. The day of burning heretics is past since the Inquisition went by the board; and for my part, while a good liberal that I am, object to eating a Protestant. So I move you, gentlemen, that there shall be nothing left for us to do except to provide a place in which they may be buried."

AMERICAN DENTAL AND SCHOOL

Two institutions in Mexico City which are of inestimable benefit to the American colony, are the American hospital and the American school. From a very modest beginning the hospital has steadily gone forward until it is now one of the best conducted and equipped private institutions of its class in Mexico.

Of all institutions established here the American school easily stands first on account of the more intimate connection which it sustains not only with American families, but with those of the other English speaking colonies of Mexicans of middle and upper classes.

The first American school was founded in 1894. The school building today is 237 feet long by 56 feet wide and contains in addition to 23 full sized school rooms, all necessary offices, dormitories, laboratories, libraries, lunch rooms and other adjuncts of a modern equipped college. Seven hundred and fifty students can be accommodated. It is interesting to note in connection with this school that Mexicans constitute slightly over 51 per cent of the total attendance. This means that hundreds of Mexican students are not only learning English and receiving an American education, but they are imbibing American ideas and forming relationships which should be mutually beneficial to Americans and Mexicans in the coldstart future.

THE AMERICAN CLUB

One of the oldest American institutions of the capital is the American Club, which, in its long history, has insisted on its rule practically all the Americans of note resident here, among them some who have left their names indelibly stamped upon the history of Mexican progress.

Much younger than the American Club, but not less active, is the American Chamber of Commerce which has since its inception of few years ago, dedicated its energies to promotion international trade between Mexico and the United States.

The American Benevolent Society has had an especially heavy burden upon its shoulders for the past few years, owing to abnormal conditions created by the revolution.

All the American Protestant denominations have churches here and each in its way is contributing to the social life of a part of the community.

Among the institutions which were primarily American are the Y.M.C.A., the University Club, and the Country Club, and though these have become international all, except the first, have still a large American membership.

The American Legion and the Boy Scouts form an active part of the life of the American community.

O. SHAW, A win from Oshawa ought to be easy if they "peter out" like Peterboro' did.

From the Port Hope Guide—

A SOUND DOCTRINE

In the resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce the authors have sounded a note which is stitched to the whenever of a great doctrine—national self-reliance.

They urge that, regardless of relative values, regardless of economic disturbances, the policy of "Canada's products for Canadians" be religiously followed. They were concerned with the fuel problem and their specific recommendation dealt with the consumption in Canada of coal mined within the nation's borders to the exclusion of the foreign product.

It is not the purpose of this article to project further the discussion of the merits of the specific objective of the resolution—promotion of the shipment of Alberta coal to Ontario—but rather to attempt a brief analysis of the major theme.

World history furnishes conclusive proof that only those empires which were in a large measure self-sustaining were able to survive the instability of international relationships, the vicissitudes of time and the ravages of conflict. It does not follow that the surviving political bodies did not succumb—by reason of the fact that they produced within their boundaries commodities and materials sufficient to meet their domestic needs.

They became dominant empires either because they controlled production beyond their borders or because they were able to export goods and supplies as sorely needed by the nationals with whom they trafficked as were the imports they required.

It was necessary that these countries intensify their industries and develop domestic commerce to a degree where their contributions to world commerce were important.

This policy caused the Roman Empire to flourish, it was the policy of Peter, the Great and Charlamagne It is the policy of the British Empire to-day.

The Dominion Commonwealth embraces a vast domain; her population is relatively meager, and, because of the juxtaposition of a wealthy and powerful nation, she can conveniently supply all her needs by importation. This, besides tending to discourage domestic production, and heavily taxing the nation's finances, places the nation in a position of dependence upon foreign industry.

Obviously, the course which Canada should pursue is stimulation of correlated domestic industry and commerce. By utilizing her vast natural resources to supply her own needs in commodities, such as coal, and other mine products and in raw materials, she can in time meet a large percentage of her domestic demands for finished products.

By this course Canada would eventually become an important exporter and a relatively indifferent importer, thereby becoming nationally self-reliant. While this course is now being followed in Canada, there have been few exhibitions of the required Spartan-like persistency. "Canada's products for Canadians" is a slogan with a real import.

LOW MARKS, AND THE REASON.

Results of the 1923 examinations in the Upper Department of the Belleville High School are said by parents to constitute the most unfavorable showing made by the department in years. The published list of results fairly bristles with "C's", which indicate a per cent. of 50 to 59, which is barely above the line of demarkation between the failures and the successful candidates.

Those interested in educational matters in Belleville attribute the poor showing to conditions at the High School. It is asserted that the building is not properly equipped or heated and that last winter the students were obliged to wear their street wraps a large part of the time in the classrooms.

The principal was ill for some time and members of the staff were frequently indisposed, the cause in nearly every case being the housing conditions of the school, it is charged.

Numerous failures among the boys are attributed to the fast that extremely young women, who were comparatively inexperienced instructed them in French and Latin during a considerable portion of the year.

The seriousness of the retrogade is accentuated by the fact that among the failures was a gold medallist.

The Intelligencer has no desire to belittle Belleville's educational system, but it believes that the facts concerning the glaring faults of the administration and equipment of the High School should be made known.

Coming to the Griffin Theatre, September 5, 6 with the famous Originals in their mammoth new revue "Rapid Fire." "Rod" Newman, the star of all comedians and Belleville's favorite entertainer.

If the Belleville Board of Education is neither prepared nor disposed to better the conditions the matter should be made the subject of thorough investigation by the citizenry.

The High School years in the lives of young men and young women are the period in which much of the foundation of character is laid. Moreover, in the majority of cases they represent the final classroom training of those who are soon to take their places in society as men and women. For these reasons the educational facilities of the High School should not be slighted.

(Omaha Bee)

The farmer who owns his lands or his tools is independent, because he works for himself, employing his own capital as well as his own labor. While this condition prevails in America, the Republic is in very slight danger of revolution, for citizens so substantial as they are not given to revolt. They may combine to effect changes, but they do not strike at the foundations of liberty.

NOT ALL ROSES.

(St. Catharines Standard)

"How many baskets did you pick today?" was the enquiry fired at a small boy coming home from a raspberry field the other night. "Thirty-five," was the reply, and he got three cents per basket. His lunch with him, paid his five-cent fare on the car, walked two and a half miles after that. The grower of these raspberries trimmed the bushes last fall, ploughed through the rows and harrowed the ground. He waited a couple of years at least before the bushes were fruit-bearing. Now he is marketing his crop. The cost of the baskets and the crates are added to the overhead. Raspberries have brought a fairly good price this year on the Toronto market, but at 20 cents per box who will say the grower has been getting any too much? There is a hazard in fruit-growing, from weather to market and labor conditions, over which the farmer has no control. After all, that man with a weekly stated income should not be too envious of the farmer.

TRIUMPH OF GOODNESS

(Montreal Star)

Is there then a God to be loved and worshipped, known and served at all? If life is really what we see it to be—a place of suffering, storm and cruelty, as well as of happiness, sunshine and kindliness? The answer to that is written deep in the hearts of men and women, written in varied characters, but with one intent. It is that good is better than evil; love better than hat; that wherever of hate and evil and misery there is in the world, there is even more potent and commanding love, goodness and joy.

NECESSARY CONSERVATISM.

(Cape Argus)

It has been asserted not once, but dozens of times, that the banks do not give credit as freely as may reasonably be expected of them. What seems to be forgotten is that the first duty of a bank is to its depositors. Moreover, the necessity of keeping the bulk of their assets liquid should prevent bankers from embarking capital in speculative enterprises however seductive. It is, therefore, idle to rail against them when they refuse to depart from the consecrative methods which long experience has shown to be the sole guarantee of stability. It is true that in other countries institutions which finance speculative enterprises are called banks; but they are not banks in the well-accepted British sense of the term, and analogies that are founded on a mere confusion or nomenclature have no validity whatever.

EVERY SPORT AT A GLANCE

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 24.—(United Press)—America's male stars have held an unbroken reign of supremacy on the world's tennis courts for the past three or four years. The few court classics that have not fallen into American hands failed to do so in "those United cases because no American set out to win them, as was the case with the Wimbledon championships last year.

Foreign nations, England particularly, found some consolation in their position by making the point that while the American men were vastly superior to the best any other country could offer against them, the American women stars were inferior in almost the same degree.

The inability of Mrs. Molla Mallory, the American champion, to do much on European courts, and the failure of the four other American girls who set out from time to time after international honors, gave the impression in this country also that "our girls" had much to learn to establish a claim for the American woman's tennis that had been earned in the male competition.

The class of the American women stars was judged by Mrs. Mallory. Her dominance over all her rivals in this country has been so long and so pronounced that perhaps it was only logical that Europeans should figure that the class she represented was inferior when she showed herself a poor standard-bearer on the foreign courts.

Admitting that critics were right in their judgment of the playing ability of the American girls, it follows, from recent examples, that the figures will have to be juggled around and some new deductions made that the fair Americans are doing better, if they have not been underestimated in the past.

Adequate tests of all-round playing ability were provided in the recent international matches between the American and British teams for the Wightman trophy. The American girls won the cup, the first time it had been played for, by a score of 7 to 0.

The superiority of the American team was so pronounced that the British team was able to run only two matches into three sets.

It is only fair to admit that the British women might have had excuses for not playing their best game. They lacked the time to get themselves thoroughly acclimated under strange weather conditions and on strange courts.

American girls, who have been going to Europe year after year, did not have the same handicap and they were all more or less familiar with European courts and rather well customed to training for the weather conditions on the other side.

In good sportsmanship, the Britishers did not complain, and E. Wallis Myers, foremost of the British critics who accompanied the team to America, went so far as to say that the English players played as good as they ever did and as well as they could, but the Americans played better than he had ever seen them before.

This first meeting between England and the United States for the Wightman Cup, no doubt, is the beginning of another big epoch in international tennis, as it certainly has established a competition for women players that promises to become as interesting and as internationally recognized as the Davis Cup contests in the men's class.

The Davis Cup, now one of the world's greatest sport trophies, started on the same small scale, with only England and the United States competing. This year there were seventeen nations among the challengers, who aspired to play the American team for the cup.

Plans for the future Wightman competitions, of course, are rather indefinite, but it is proposed to make the contests alternate each year, between England and the United States until other nations become interested, when new plans will have to be decided upon.

The Walker Golf Cup, which alternates its play between the two countries, has proved very successful because it does not impose the heavy financial burden of sending a team, year after year, to the cup-holding country.

* * *

Visionaries, who have seen the Davis Cup grow, think that it will not be so many years until the Davis Cup and the Wightman Cup will be contested for in the same tournament, if the same nation should hold both cups. For several years some nations, especially France, were considering the appointment of a woman star on the Davis Cup team, but when the Wightman trophy becomes thoroughly established and recognized as a world's championship trophy that will not be necessary.

Freak Weather Is Ascribed to Ice Floes in Arctic

Abnormal Conditions Reported in Atlantic and Pacific Oceans

Washington, August 22.—Weather experts display keen interest in the theory presented that unusual ice floes in the North Atlantic influence this year's weather conditions, and are responsible for some of the freak features. Possibility of early frosts in northern Canada is believed to be closely connected with this condition.

Presence of unusual amounts of ice in northern waters is regarded as having a close relationship with the abnormalities of the last year, and even the most conservative scientists, who insists that all weather is abnormal, admit it may have some bearing on the discovery made by Dr. C. G. Abbot, of the Smithsonian Institute, that the sun is giving off less heat than usual.

Existence of abnormal ice fields in the North Atlantic and in Hudson Bay has been verified by the Hydrographic and Geodetic Survey offices. In the early season icebergs were "very heavy" south than usual before, and ships were warned to alter their courses.

The rate of ice in melt the usual amount of ice and thus compel recession of the Arctic refrigeration by the usual distance north, is ascribed the late spring and the heavy snows which swept across New England and northward late last winter and early in the spring.

The sun is already half way back from its annual southern trip, with the result that the unusual accumulations of snow and ice have not been melted. The accumulated cold of the Arctic has a good start on its yearly journey southward, a fact that promises an early fall, according to some weather experts.

GULF STREAM AFFECTED.

During the spring and early summer, it is pointed out, gales lasting weeks swept against the eastern coasts of Greenland, causing disturbances which displaced large quantities of ice from the Arctic regions. This eruption, it is believed, caused disturbances in the ocean currents, preventing the usual modifying effect upon the climate of England and of Western Europe by the Gulf Stream, resulting in their late spring.

This, it is believed, caused the displacement of the permanent "Azores low" which this summer has permitted the winds from the Sahara to furnish the same section of Europe with a continuous Turkish bath. The marked presence of ice in the North Atlantic has been duplicated in the Pacific Arctic regions, and lending meteorologists of Japan already have predicted a rice famine in that country, because of the damaging effects of the air currents blowing over Japan from their origin in the ice fields of the Siberian and Alaskan coasts. Projection of the Asiatic coast ice boundary toward the South this year has been marked.

Whether or not the tendency of the ice boundaries of the north to project southward has affected crop conditions in the United States, is a question upon which Government scientists are divided.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

PAINFUL KNEE

Being consulted by a patient with a painful knee, a physician diagnosed the trouble as a strain of the inner ligament that helps hold the bones of the upper and lower leg together.

He bound it up and some relief was obtained but it was not long before the patient was back again.

The physician then went carefully into the history of the case. The patient was middle aged, of good weight, and his work necessitated his standing by a bench or table all day.

In other words, the muscles of the feet would be bearing all his weight without any actual movement of the "arch" muscles.

And when the feet were bared, a real flat foot was exposed on the same leg as the painful knee. As the knee was so painful that he was incapacitated for work, severe and immediate measures had to be taken. A plaster cast was made of his foot, and an arch support obtained. He secured instant relief and was able to continue his daily employment in comfort. As was mentioned in another article the exercise raising on the toes, and walking on the sides of the feet will usually bring up a fallen arch.

Many people whilst combing their hair, dressing or undressing establish the habit of walking about the room on their toes or on the outside of the feet. Every time they descend the stairs they walk on their toes. You walk down stairs frequently so you can readily see how easily benefit may be derived.

And so if you have a painful knee on the inner side, not due to a wrench or twist, take a look at your foot, and see if the arch is all right. Or better still see your physician and talk over with him the possibility of it being due to a poor arch.

Do You Know?

Q. Is Ty Cobb to be replaced as manager of the Detroit Tigers? R.O.E.

A. It was reported that Bill Donovan was going to manage the Tigers next year, and that Cobb was going to buy into a major league club. Since then it was understood that Ty signed a three-year contract, after Frank Navin had failed to secure Kid Gleason to manage the team.

Q. Was the dismissal of Lee Fohl as manager of the St. Louis Browns an indication that he was a failure as a manager? F.R.T.

A. You can put your own construction on it. However, Fohl left a pennant winning team for Tris Speaker when he was discharged in Cleveland, so he came with one good year winning the pennant with the Browns last season and was kept out of the world's series only because George Sisler was injured, and so he kept the Browns in the first division this year with one pitcher and no first baseman or third baseman, it might be concluded that he was no punk as a manager.

Q. Who is coach of the Yale football team? For Boy. W.A.D.

A. Tad Jones is football coach at Yale, and indications point that he will be there some time. He recently became interested in the coal business in New Haven and, apparently, is planning to make his home there for an indefinite period.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR COMPANY LIMITED ANNOUNCE IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENTS

Dodge Brothers have not simply brought out a complete new line of motor cars. They have done something infinitely wiser and better than that.

They have brought new beauty, new riding ease and new mechanical perfection to the product on which their reputation as builders has been founded.

They have built a better and a more desirable line of motor cars—yet basically and fundamentally the identity of their product remains the same.

The same sturdy engine is under the hood; the same dependable chassis, improved in numberless details, underlies the body.

But the rear springs—now underslung—have been materially lengthened. The wheelbase, too, is longer, and the combined result is a notable improvement in riding qualities.

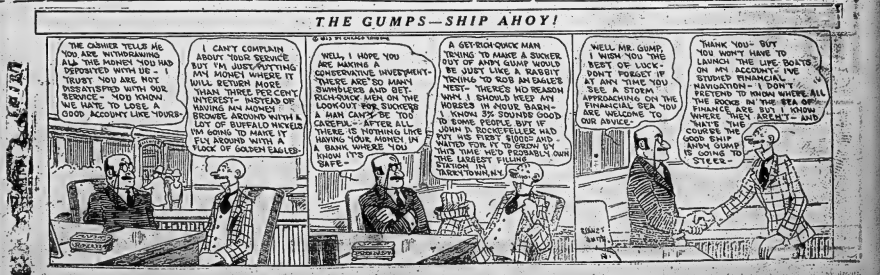

Bodies of all types have been designed to give improved appearance, and greater comfort. Lower, longer, with deeper seats and more leg room, the lines of these new cars are low-swung and graceful—the interiors are comfortable and roomy.

New head lamps and fenders, especially designed by Dodge Brothers to conform with the general lines of the car—a long straight hood and cowl effect—longer and wider running boards—unusually wide doors—combination stop signal and tail lamp—and instruments attractively grouped on raised panel—are a few of the numerous body innovations common to all types.

Combining these features with important mechanical improvements too numerous and technical to enumerate here, it is not extravagant to predict a reception for these cars unprecedented in automotive annals.

DELICATE GIRLS NEED NEW BLOOD

Rich, Red Blood Means Health and Strength

The anaemia of young girls may be inherited, or it may be caused by bad air, unsuitable food, hasty and irregular eating, insufficient out-of-door exercise and not enough rest and sleep.

It comes on gradually, beginning with languor, indisposition to mental or bodily exertion, irritability and a feeling of fatigue. Later comes the palpitation of the heart, headaches, dizziness following a stooping position, frequent backaches and breathlessness. In a majority of cases constipation is present. There may be no great loss of flesh, but usually the complexion takes on a greenish-yellow pallor.

Cases of this kind, if neglected, become more serious, but if taken in time there is no need to worry. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which are free from any harmful or habit-forming drug, are just the tonic needed to remedy this wretched state of health. Though it is not noticeable, improvement begins with the first dose. As the blood is made rich the pallor leaves the face, strength and activity gradually return and the danger of relapse is very slight.

If any symptom of anaemia appears, prudence suggests that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be given at once, and the sooner they are taken the more speedily will their action improve the blood. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

By G. Manville Fenn

Chapter IX.

AN ENLIGHTENED ENGLISHMAN.

On reaching the carriage, Murray Selwood found one of the rooms made bright and comfortable with the furniture that had been sent in, and the table spread ready for a composite meal, half breakfast, half dinner with a dash in it of country tea.

Everything was scrupulously clean, and Mrs. Slee was bustling about, not looking quite so wan and dishevelled as when he saw her first.

"I've scrubbed a few things together she said, acidly, "and you must make shift till I've had more time. Will you have the pot in now? I put the bacon down before the fire when I saw you coming. But, lord, man, what have ye been doin' to your hand?"

"Only bruised it a bit; knocked the skin off," said Mr. Selwood, smiling.

"Don't tell me," said Mrs. Slee, sharply. "You've been fer them that "Well, I knocked a man down, if you call that fighting," said the vicar, smiling, as he saw Mrs. Slee hurriedly produce a basin, water, and a coarse, brown, but very clean, towel with which she proceeded to bathe his bleeding hand.

"Oh, it's nothing," he said, as he took out his pocket book. "You'll find scissors and some sticking-plaster in there."

"I don't want no sticking-plaster," she said, taking a vial of some brown liquid from inside a common ornament. "That's cure in directions."

"And what may this be?" said the vicar, smiling, as he saw his tea-cup shaky the bottle, and well soak a small piece of rag in the liquid.

"Yap Jack's oil," said Mrs. Slee, pursing up her lips, and then anointing and trying up the injured hand. "It cures everything."

"And your daddy, not being without a little faith in homely country simplesy and then the rag was neatly sewed on, and an old glove cut so as to cover the unsightly bandage.

"Did they upset you?" she then queried.

"Well, no," he said; and he briefly related what had taken place. "By the way, I hope that gentleman is the red waistcoat is no relation of yours. Is he?"

"Is he?" retorted Mrs. Slee, vicious ly dabbing down a dish of tempting bacon, with some golden eggs, beside the crisp brown loaf and yellow butter. "Is he, indeed! He's my master."

Mrs. Slee hurried out of the room, but came back directly after.

"You've no spoons," she said, sharply; and then making a dive through her thin, shabby dress, she searched for some time for a pocket-hole, and then plunging her arm in right to the shoulder, she brought out a packet tied in a bit of calico. This being undone displayed a paper, and within this another paper was set free. Carefully folded, and fitted into one another, within this were half a dozen very small-sized, old fashioned silver tea-spoons, blackened with tarnish.

"They are quite clean," grumbled Mrs. Slee, giving a couple of them a rub. "They were my grandmother's, and she gave 'em to me when I was married—worse luck. I keep 'em there so as they shan't be drunk. He did swallow the sugar-tongs."

"Does your husband drink, then?" said Mr. Selwood, quietly.

"Is there anything he don't do as he oughtn't since they turned him out of the plan?" said the woman, angrily. "There, don't you talk to me about him; it makes me wild when I don't want to be."

She hurried out of the room again, shutting the door as loudly as she possibly could without its being called a bang; and then hunger drove everything else out of the young vicar's mind, even the fate of Jezebel, and—a minor consideration—his bruised hand.

"A queer set of people indeed," he said, as he progressed with his hearty meal. "What capital bread, though. That butter's delicious. Hah," he ejaculated, helping himself to another egg and a pink brown piece of bacon; "if there is any fault in these eggs they are too fresh. By Samson, I must tell Mrs. Slee to secure some more of this bacon."

Ten minutes later he was playing with the last cup of tea, and indulging it with more than the normal proportions of sugar and milk, for the calm feeling of satisfaction which steals over a hearty man after a meal—a man who looks upon digestion as a dictionary word, nothing more—had set in, and Murray Selwood was thinking about his new position in life.

"Well, I suppose I shall get used to it—in time. There must be a few friends to be made. Hallo."

The ejaculation was caused by some one noisily entering the adjoining room with—

"Now then, what hev you got to yeat?"

"Nowt," was the reply.

The voices were both familiar, for in the first the vicar recognized that of the man in the red waistcoat.—"My master," as Mrs. Slee called him.

"You've been cooking something," he continued, loudly.

"Yes. The parson's come, and it's his brakfast."

"Brakfast at this time o' day? Oh, then, it's him as I see up at foundry wi' them Glaires."

"Don't talk so lad, of he'll hear you," said Mrs. Slee, sharply.

"Let him. Let him hear me, and let him know that there's a free, enlightened Englishman beneath the same roof. Let him know that there's one here breathing the free—free light—breath of heaven here. A man too humble to call himself a patriot, but who feels like one, and moans over the sufferings of his down-trampled brethren."

Fair Sex Going Back To Grandmother's Day For the New Styles

By HEDDA HOYT, Fashion Editor of the United Press.

New York, Aug. 23.—Styles never stay put in Paris. "As you were" has no meaning in the fashion world, but "as you wear" has sufficient meaning indeed.

The attempted return to the early Victorian styles comes as a complete surprise to womenkind. Mannequins of the big gown houses of Paris are parading at the races and on the boulevards of Longchamp in wide crinolined taffeta and organdy gowns with tight-fitting bodices and tiny puffed sleeves. They wear old-fashioned poke bonnets, trimmed in lace and ruching and they carry small lace parasols. It is as if the ghosts of our grandmothers tripped among us.

Instead of bobbed hair, corkscrew curls peek from under their bonnets and bob about pretty fresh cheeks. Longer curls dangle over the shoulders. Shoulder shawls of lace and net worn over slender bodices tie in fichu fashion in front. Mittens of sheer lace recall the belles of other days, as do patent pumps with white silk stockings.

Whether the crinolined gown will really become a set fashion or not is difficult to say. If the Parisians have their way it will have a fixed place in the fashion world this coming season. The slender silhouette has become so popular that it has become a fixture and for street and every day wear it will in all probability hold its own for some time. Evening gowns and gowns for dress occasions, however, are doomed to a change. Hence the sponsoring of the crinoline.

POPULAR PARIS SHADES

Changeable taffetas lend themselves beautifully to bouffant, crinolined effects. The most popular shades in Paris at present are blue, green, rose, lavender and bronze. Skirts are often a mass of frills from hem to waistline.

Bodices are figure-molding, sleeveless or with puffed sleeves and the off-the-shoulder neckline predominates.

Parasols are very popular at Parisian resorts just now, due to the warm weather. They follow the crinolined effects in soft shades as yellow, rose, blue, mauve and other pastels. Small poke bonnets trimmed in moss roses and long velvet streamers are worn with them.

Needless to say, the crinolined frock is long. Skirts reach the ankle and are usually three or more yards in width. Waistlines are either placed at the normal waistline or just a trifle lower. There is a tendency to droop the bodice in front and back. Owing to the higher waistline, corsets are demanded, as the fitted bodice with normal waist is unsuited to the crinoline figure.

New York will probably see the crinoline only in evening models this Fall. It will depend on their popularity as evening frocks as to whether they will become the current style for next year.

AIR RECORD BROKEN.

Hempstead, N.Y., Aug. 23.—All records for a flight across the continent were broken when Pilot Wesley Smith, of the air mail, service landed here at 11.14 o'clock eastern standard time, completing a relay mail flight from San Francisco in 36 hours and 14 minutes.

WHERE HAS WORD SUE PAVE.

Wild Creatures Congregate on Rock on the Coast of Scotland.

"It certainly is the most wonderful citadel I ever looked upon. Its sides rise straight from the sea, and if you stand on St. Paul's cathedral by its side the crows would only just top the giant. Words are inadequate.

Every available ledge on this lowering rock contains its life.

In the past the Bass rock, in the Firth of Forth, was a famous prison fortress, holding out for years against all hostile array. Now it is the birds' citadel, and there they are safe in the spring and summer.

"If you look at the scene from below it is even more wonderful. Rows looking down on the birds from above. There are thousands of them, giant birds sailing around, crossing and recrossing in what looks like a net of darting and living creatures.

One moment there is silence, and that is the most beautiful moment of all, for it is like a scene from fairyland—then the wings flapping above you. The next moment a gannet, with its harsh note, and all the thousand birds reply until there is a deafening chorus. Then again there is no sound save the wash of the waves at the base of the cliffs.—London Mail.

Hunter's Remarkable Adventure.

What it is like to be bitten by a lion is told by Mr. Arthur Hunter, who is his recently published book "The Memoirs of a Lion Hunter." He shot, who site in the Australian Commonwealth Parliament, was invalided to Tempsford West Africa in 1912 when he was charged by a wounded lion.

"After knocking me down," says Mr. Weithoft, "the lion rushed in on my right side, and before I could defend my hand his jaws were closed on it. I felt it all had hold of, my radial bone. He bit savagely on the several times, biting right through and crushing the bone in his part of the stock. Then he seized me and bit me several times through the left arm, breaking it badly and splintering another bone about the elbow. I was hurt like fury at the moment; it was like a nine-inch nail being continually driven through one's hand. The lion was very quickly, and with a horrible silent ferocity."

These followed, this extraordinary narrative states—"Several times above the wrist and a big bite crashed into the bone of the forearm below the elbow. My biceps caught the hand. This whirled me round to the front, the muscle opening out like a cut in a leg of mutton. A bite through a muscle of the shoulder followed. As weakness made me lower the head, the lion, with a quick shuffle of his forefeet, closed up with a whipping down his big head and biting me twice on the chest. These bites, too, though not very bad, hurt badly, and the sight of his big, hairy head, so near that we almost rubbed noses was unlovely and offensive."

Mollie's Story of Kitchener,

Apropos the world-famous song, "Home, Sweet Home," the centenary celebration of which took place recently, Dame Melba tells the following story: "When Lord Kitchener arrived in Australia he was so feted, and so many parties were given for him, that I felt it would only be worrying him to write a letter saying, 'Dear, I received a letter saying, 'Don't you think it is unkind of you not to send me a line?' I thought a welcome in your own country!' The result was that I dropped in to dine with him and the Governor-General and the Governor's wife, and at Government House, the next evening. After dinner the three were suddenly asked to kneel to me. 'I know what you want,' said, 'but I won't sing. You never drew me apart. 'Madam,' he said, 'I have been on active service eight years. Will you not sing just one note for me?' So I sang 'Home,' sat down at the piano, and when I had finished there was silence. Kitchener rose up to me and kissed my hand. And down his face two great tears were rolling. If 'Auld Lang Syne' prima donna, "anybody tells me that Kitchener had no heart I have my answer ready."

Ontario Can't Launch Probe

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Attorney-General Nickle yesterday afternoon sent a letter to exMayor T. L. Church, M.P.P., in relation to the Home Bank. The letter in part, follows:

"Inquiry into the conduct of the affairs of this bank does not come within the Ontario Public Inquiries Act. This act is strictly confined to matters connected with or affecting the good government of Ontario, or the conduct of public business thereof, or the administration of justice therein and then only when required by any special law. Inquiry into the affairs of the bank would also, as you appreciate, necessitate the investigation of numerous matters outside of this province, and such an inquiry appears to be regulated by the special law already referred to.

"I may say, however, that while penalties under the Bank Act are in general recoverable and enforceable at the suit of His Majesty instituted by the attorney-general of Canada, or by the minister of finance, prosecutions in Ontario for violations of the criminal code and for certain violations of the Bank Act may and will be instituted by my department in connection with this matter should future developments appear such a course being pursued.

"Accept my assurance that careful attention is being given to development of affairs, and that the department will continue to keep closely in touch with what transpires and will be read to act should circumstances arise under which it can be of service in supplementing the efforts to protect depositors and investors."

Elizabeth Carroll Ninth Fire Victim

Hunterville, Aug. 23.—The latest victim of the Wasaga fire is Miss Elizabeth Carroll, one of the maids who was severely injured in a fall off the roof while trying to escape from the burning building. Suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries, she had been removed to the Orillia hospital a few days ago and late Thursday afternoon she died there.

Coroner Dr. Macdonald, of Huntsville was immediately notified by the hospital authorities and ordered the body to be handed over to the girl's relatives who live in Brampton.

Elizabeth is the second member of the Carroll family to lose life as a result of the fire, her sister, Annie, having been burned to death.

Simple Rites For Late Jurist

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Notwithstanding the fact that the funeral of the late chief justice of Ontario, Sir William R. Meredith, yesterday afternoon was of a semi-private nature, it was attended by so many persons that the music room in which the body of Sir William was lying surrounded on all sides by the trees was filled to the door during his life, was crowded, and the majority of those present had to stand outside on the lawn.

The sun shone brilliantly while Canon Plumptre conducted the simple service at the late residence, 41 Lincoln road, and the gathering of distinguished men on the lawn stood silently, bareheaded, impressed by the very simplicity of the service that was being conducted.

After the service in the music room the honorary pall-bearers came out of the house and lined each side of the steps, and then followed persons carrying the wreaths that had been sent by persons all over the Dominion with messages of sympathy attached.

When the cortege approached the cemetery a thunder storm broke, the sun was hidden, and in a downpour of tropical violence the remains of the late chief justice were lowered to their final resting place on earth. In the most private corner of the St. James cemetery, looking out across the ravine from the side of a small hill the grave was located on the family plot, and Sir William now has close to where his son was buried some years ago.

Says Steinach Operation Ennobles the Human Race

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1923, by United Press Association).

CHAPTER II.

Berlin, Aug. 24.—(United Press).—The Steinach operation should be reviewed, said Dr. Peter Schmidt in a United Press interview, as a means towards smoothing human ways, for prolonging life, and uplifting man's usefulness.

It should be considered an attempt to shatter or postpone "physiological death"—that is, a means toward diminution of mind and body senile sclerosis and the like, that "hasten the coming of the grim reaper and the decay of the mental and physical structure.

It is time, he says, to junk the salacious jokes about "Steinachism." Instead, put it on pedestal and take it for proven that:

1. It is a tried and tested method whereby old age can be retarded.

2. It can head off or cure many ailments that come as age comes on.

3. It can strengthen man's mental and physical capacity, thus delaying the human race to himself and to the world.

"The world some day will look back and sing the praises of this ingenious Vienna scientist, Steinach," said Schmidt. "At present he has a wholly false impression abroad as to the scientific fundament of the Steinach process."

Sitting in his study in the Bamberg gerstrasse, the 33-year old surgeon Schmidt then proceeded to explain that the Steinach theory is not based on "gland transplantation" in the main.

"It is quaint," he commented, "how folks come here and say for instance, 'Must I buy a set of monkey keys?' or ask, 'Do you guarantee that my bald head will again be thatched?' or even, 'Where shall I get my glands?'"

He explained that the operation consisted simply in constricting certain ducts within the body, thus conserving vitality. It is a matter of twenty minutes, under local anaesthesia, to make the surgery and then the patient lies perfectly still for days in the clinic. Sometimes this operation does not suffice; then, other glands' tissue be transferred.

Berlin, Aug. 25.—Penniless but undaunted, Prof. Steinach, successor to Professor de Leon, is working 18 hours daily under almost despairing conditions on his new rejuvenation research.

Having sunk his crown, yet too proud to ask aid, Steinach is digging in, with only the aid of a young assistant, hoping in a few months to startle the world by his results.

The student, it was hinted to the United Press by Dr. Peter Schmidt, is responsible for supplying the private laboratory with dogs or other materials for experimentation.

Guinea pigs are beyond Austrian or German medical pocketbooks these days.

So the student gets his dogs and cats as well, Dr. Schmidt didn't make it just clear where. But anyhow there are homeless cats and dogs enough if one hastes for them.

Steinach, 55, active and enthusiastic, spends his day at 5 o'clock and works until late evening. He intends keeping on somehow—if his faithful student friend is willing to stay along for the price of experience.

Steinach,—Schmidt hinted, will one day be famous—he he wants to live long, be active, and he does not hesitate "trying his own medicine."

So far none of Steinach's many successful rejuvenated patients have helped him with gifts. Only one gift has come—that a wealthy KDG, now enlighted Japanese, who had been rejuvenated by the famous Steinach disciple Prof. Sakaki of Japan. The patient wanted to show he appreciation for the boon the Vienna professor had made possible, Schmidt said. The actual sum passed only to Dr. Schmidt in the number of successful Steinach operations performed.

THE END.

Endorses New Domestic Fuel

Ottawa, Oct. Aug. 25.—The possibilities of coke as a domestic fuel were discussed by J. L. Lamb, of the domestic fuel board, at the Canadian Gas Association convention yesterday. Coke, he stated, was a satisfactory domestic fuel and the favorite in households where it had been given a fair trial. The coke produced by the retort process in use in most city gas plants in Canada was generally inferior to that produced in the by-product ovens. He advocated the installation of these ovens as being among the gas companies' continuous supply of high-grade fuel for household purposes, and high-grade coke for industrial purposes which gave employment to hundreds of persons in their sale and manufacture.

Mr. Lamb said that while the anthracite coal situation was not optimistic. He stated that he could not foresee any reduction in the price of anthracite coal as the general tendency was upwards. The anthracite mines were working to capacity and greater production could not be hoped for. On the other hand bituminous mines were not working to half capacity and this coal could be converted into coke that was as good if not better, than anthracite coal if manufactured in the proper way. Nova Scotia coal was being successfully used for coking.

He classed the majority of present day city gas plants as obsolete as they produced inferior coke and other by-products, and the expense of operation was too great. Coke produced by by-product ovens could be graded in sizes similar to anthracite and used in the regular heating installation with good results and it was cheaper than hard coal.

Bobbed Hair Held Not De Regour in S.A.Lassies' Ranks

Chicago, Aug. 20—Captain Mildred Olson of the Salvation Army in Chicago is on her way to Lake George, N.Y., to face a situation that eclipses her war experience. She has long blonde hair bobbed, and gossip has it that she has been summoned by Commander Evangeline Booth to explain why the innovation. Miss Olson is 25, a fine swimmer, and lives at 267 West Oak street. It was swimming and diving that brought about her shorn locks. She found long hair a nuisance in the water, hence the bob.

Commander Booth is to rule whether bobbed hair is or is not a breach of discipline.

Next Monday Captain Olson is expected to return to Chicago bearing the news of her fate.

Salvation Army officials recall that during the war Mary Booth niece of Commander Evangeline, had her hair bobbed while in France, and that, while she returned to London, General Bramwell Booth ordered her to return to Paris and stay until it grew long again.

ADVICE TO GARAGE WORKERS

In spite of the great number of accidents which have resulted from gasoline explosions, drivers and garage workers continue to do things which endanger not only their own lives, but also the lives and property of others.

It seems needless to caution against the use of matches, cigars, cigarettes, and other open flames near gasoline, or near oil-soaked rags and clothing.

In drawing or pouring gasoline from one container to another, static electric sparks may be developed. It is advisable always to keep the two containers in contact with each other or to attach a chain to the funnel or container, which will maintain the contact. This will lead off the electric charge and prevent sparking.

Sparks often result from striking together two pieces of metal. It is best to use brasscast instead of gasoline when cleaning oil and grease from metal parts.

For gasoline fires probably the best fire extinguisher is one of the foam type. Never use water on a gasoline or oil fire, it will spread the fire. A mixture of sawdust and soda (about 10 pounds of bicarbonate of soda to a bushel of saw-dust) is good to put out oil fires. Sand is also used effectively.

The dirty pan, side pans, and cans in general should be kept clean and free from excessive oil. If properly excessive oil may do much to spread the flames in case of fire.

If extension cords are used for portable electric lights, it is necessary to guard against electric shock and fires resulting from electric cause. It is therefore advisable to use vapor-proof fittings, a keyless sock-

LINK BRITISH EMPIRE BY AIR

Establishment of Air Service Between England and India, Planned

MAY REACH ANTIPODES

"All-Red Route" Will Be Similar to Network of Railways

By P. M. BARL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
CHAPTER II.

London, Aug. 26 (United Press).—The project for the establishment of an aerial service between England and India, with eventual extension to Australia, which is being undertaken by the Imperial Airship Company under British Government auspices is far more than an interesting scientific experiment or a plausible commercial undertaking.

It has far-reaching Imperial politics and aims, and is destined to be one of the whole British empire with the mother country and further develop the "All Red Route" idea, which will make the British empire independent of other countries for transportation and communication.

That the subject is to be thoroughly discussed at the forthcoming Imperial Conference indicates the importance attached to it by Imperial and Colonial statesmen. The project of a direct air line eastward to Australia will undoubtedly be supplemented in the near future by a westward line to and across Canada, while an automatic development of the eastward route is a "branch" Cape-to-Cairo line connecting Egypt with the great British dominion of South Africa. A trans-Pacific service from Vancouver to New Zealand and to the West Indies and South America would complete the chain of Imperial communications which has been the dream of many famous British statesmen.

But it is now more than a dream. It is a practical, commercial possibility, and will be pushed on energetically by Imperial commercial pioneers.

Commander Denniston Burney M.P., who is the organizer of the England-India project, now getting under way, declared in an interview with the United Press that the automatic establishment and development of long-distance airship service was assured. The England-India project is but the first step.

Just Like Railways

"The ability of airships of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity, carrying 200 passengers, or troops, to reach Port Said (from Cardiff) in 31 hours is of imperial strategic importance, but that only represents a scratching of the surface of the problem of air transportation," Burney said. "The three airships which we propose to run each way weekly to and from India will provide for us the equivalent of the three trunk railways of America.

"Just as America by the agency of these railways has been able to build up itself politically and economically into an entity, and thereby become the richest region in the world, so can the British Empire be developed by the aerial method."

"I suppose," he added, "there will still be people inclined to scoff at

INSTALLATION AT CASH PLANT HALTED

Work on the installation of the equipment of cash plant in the Grier school building has been halted by the illness of Mr. Wesley, one of the men from Brantford in charge of the work. It is expected that the installation of machinery will be resumed in a few days.

Four looms have been set in place but are not ready for operation. Four more looms will be brought from Brantford and four others, making 18 in all, are being shipped from England. The latter are New looms and are being sent from the home factory at Coventry, Eng.

The four looms now in place will probably be in operation in ten days but the others may not be installed and prepared for operation within a month, it was stated today.

Missing Youth Found On Farm, Returns Home

Maxwell Shorey, 14-year-old Belleville boy, who had been missing from his home here since Thursday last, has been located, and has returned to his home on Portia street. The boy had been out with farmers from town since his disappearance. The youth's father found the boy on a farm and brought him home. The boy had set out to "get a little experience."

Assassination Brought Short Skirts to Sofia

Sofia (By mail to United Press).—Stambouliski's dead, now let's get some real shoes' was what Bulgarian society women said in effect when the peasant premier met an untimely end.

The immediate fruition of the peasant statesman and high born lady may not be apparent, but Bulgarian women had long groaned under Stambouliski's dress regulations. The sturdy old peasant could see no excuse for high heels, and, among other things, he ordained that corpses must wear shoes, with flat heels Dodsons were also ordered to be worn long, and the police were authorized to check dress lengths by actual measurement if necessary.

The women raged, sobs and curses, but Stambouliski's ordens had to be obeyed. Immediately on the news of his overthrow and death, fashionable Sofia rushed the stores and indulged in an orgy of high heels and Quaker boots, short skirts and similar frivolities. So great was the demand that Sofia storekeepers were unable to meet it.

The new revolutionary government has not yet ventured to interfere with the height of heels or length of gowns.

BANTING SPEAKS

To-day is Automotive Day and Elaborate Program is Provided

Toronto, Aug. 27.—The World's Greatest Annual Fair—which is the Canadian National Exhibition—opened its gates on Saturday for its 45th session, and justified its proud position by achieving a record. An attendance of 76,000 was attained, which constitutes a new high figure for opening day. Last year the attendance was 71,000.

It was fitting that this year's exhibition should have commenced thus auspiciously, for no detail was lacking which could make success a thing well merited. The grounds were beautiful to a degree; the buildings, substantial and slightly, were in a splendid state of preparedness; the numerous attractions were ready to perform their mission of mirth to the thousands of annual patrons of the gay Midway. In brief, the big fair was ready in all its phases and was thus justifiable in undertake the gigantic function of education and amusement which it yearly performs.

Continuously from early in the morning the crowds streamed through the gates until in forenoon it seemed that the success of the opening day was assured. Lowering skies could not daunt those to whom the take justifiable pride in

MOTORISTS JARRED WHEN CARS COLLIDE ON MURNEY HILL-ONE UNDER ARREST-CHILD INJURED

Charles Wilson of Bayside, charged with operating a motor car while intoxicated, was granted bail of $200 by Magistrate Masson, in morning police court, when $100 being supplied by himself and $100 by Mr. Ross. The case Trial date was set for September 5th at 10 a.m. by request of counsel for accused, C. A. Payne, and by consent of the Crown.

Wilson was taken into custody last evening shortly before six o'clock by P. S. Arthur Harman and P. C. Arthur Booth, following an accident in which his touring car figured on the Murney hill with another touring car owned by James S. Finn, electrician, Campbell street, and driven by Eugene Doyle, 70 South Front street.

The Wilson car was being driven west on Bridge street and the Finn car was proceeding eastwards on West Bridge street. At the fork in the street at the Murney hill, the cars collided, causing considerable damage to the Finn car. The side of the car was stove in, one wheel broken an axle, fender, the front door and the radiator also broken and bent. The car is insured.

Jack Tisdale, 5-year-old brother-in-law of Doyle, who was riding with him in the car, received a nasty cut under one eye. Apart from that injury, occupants of both cars escaped injury. Dr. J. Robertson attended the injured boy. The accident occurred at 5.40 p.m.

Finn, who was sitting on his verandah, was informed of an accident. He jocularly remarked that it might be his car. Later on visiting the scene of the trouble, he found that it was his car which had been badly smashed.

STUDENTS FROM FAR-OFF LANDS TO ATTEND BUSINESS COLLEGE

The fame of the Ontario Business College appears to have been widely spread. Principal I. L. Moore stated to-day that enquiries indicate that a large number of students from a distance plan to attend the institution during the winter.

Among those who have announced their intention of coming is a young man in Jamaica, West Indies, several in Bermuda including a young woman and several from the Barbadoes. In addition, enquiries have been received from a number of French and English young men and women in Quebec, several of whom are expected to arrive in a few weeks. The usual heavy quota from Ontario is also apparently assured. One student, Arthur Grammon, arrived at the school from the Bardadoes several weeks ago.

Complete business courses are provided at the college, including: bookkeeping, commercial law, typewriting, stenography, accountancy, business correspondence and banking.

"Bad Eggs" Feature Of Court Action; Interest Is Keen

"Some Eggs Had Chickens in Them" Charge—Action is Dismissed

Politicians who have met them, state that an overdose egg is the sweetest and most fragrant fruit in this wide, wide world. One Belleville man believes there is nothing more provoking in the world than to purchase eggs at Belleville fruit and vegetable market, which are overdue, or unfit for human consumption.

On August 16th last Joseph Waddell purchased 2 dozen "fine" fruit from Mrs. Elizabeth Howell at 25 cents per dozen. The eggs were represented as having been "minted" and gathered during the week of August 12-18. Waddell took the eggs to the place of business, the Church Street C.N.R. depot, where he candled them, and discovered that they were not all fresh, he said. They were candled 5 or 6 hours after purchase. On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Howell were requested to call at the C.N.R. station and took the eggs away with them. They did, but refused to take the eggs back, maintaining that the eggs sold were the best obtainable. The matter was produced in police court to-day. One egg, when broken contained a chicken and was thought to be stale, and possibly "overripe".

"Some were absolutely bad, and others only fair," Waddell stated in stated complainant. Mrs. Howell maintained that those examined were fresh and were laid by Waddell's own hens. The eggs were gooky, and complainant wrote the woman's name on the shells of each egg, so that on the next purchase, and she was suspicious as to the condition of the eggs, he said.

Col. E. D. O'Flynn, who defended the accused woman, is himself a poultry fancier, and he explained that eggs sometimes do not keep as well as they should

PROMISING FACTS

The current issue of the Financial Times, contains some interesting facts concerning Canada. For instance, while the population of the United States is 31 persons to the square mile, that of Canada is less than 3 per square mile. Other comparisons are: Europe, 120 per square mile, Asia, a little more than 50; France, 187; Belgium, 658; England and Wales, 485; Japan, 350; Germany, 311 and Switzerland 236.

The area available for crop production in Canada is in the neighborhood of two million square miles of over one a quarter billion acres.

According to Government estimates, there are in the four western provinces alone 120,000,000 of fertile arable land as yet untouched, 30,000,000 acres of which lie within 15 miles of existing railways. "In others words," says the Times, "the western provinces are capable of absorbing nearly three times their present settlement and accounting yearly for three times their annual agricultural production."

Surely these facts bear great promise for the future Canada.

QUALIFYING THE GRADUATE

In a number of High Schools in the States, especially in the eastern section, there have been introduced practical curricula which provide, for male students, training in the skilled labor trades, which corresponds to thorough apprenticeships. While theoretically it is undesirable a development of manual training there can be no doubt that it is not the result of the growth of an educational theory, but is rather, a radical step prompted by urgent economic needs. In other words, it appears that educators have realized the vast differences between the "wages" received by the young skilled worker and the "salary" paid to the average High School product.

One of the new courses is designed, to qualify students, after four years of instruction, for the bricklayer's trade. Others train the student as carpenters, plumbers, boilermakers, etc. The feasibility of the plan can be readily appreciated when it is understood that master masons or bricklayers in New York receive a daily wage as high as $15. The average High School graduate rarely receives more than $20 per week during his first year after graduation.

There is a marked trend among educators toward more extensive practical instruction in all educational institutions. Many of them have openly entered the lists in favor of "honest toil" instead of pedantry as the open sesame to success of the school or college tyro.

The philosophy of the new order is set forth in a succint manner in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post:

"So far as pure learning goes, the four-year college course could easily be compressed into half the time. But the value of acquaintanceship and social position is stressed, because they are assumed to be better assets than the capacity for drudgery and self-discipline. We therefore see thousands of young men turned out of college who have never learned how to work, who would scorn to yield to the obligation to do any kind of manual labor other than golf or tennis. Certainly there is no objection to sport or wholesome exercise, but to make it a fetish in the expense of character will not get us anywhere as a nation.

"The question may be raised as to whether, after all, the first step towards genuine culture is not the ability to support oneself, to make oneself useful. Recently it has been emphasized by more than one authority that the next war, if it comes, will be one in which practical industrial ability will count much more than mere military training. Doubtless that has always been true. If every American boy were compelled to serve two years at hard labor our aggregate annual debt be lowered, our labor problem largely solved, our national character solidified, and our defensive strength so increased that we might easily control the peace of the world. There is nothing more ennobling than useful drudgery. There is nothing so subtle in its weakening effect as the hypocritical pretenses of the intellect, masquerading under the guise of "ideals."

Clara Belle Thompson, in another writer on economical subjects, approaching the subject from a slightly different angle, but with the same philosophy, says:

"College will have to face this indictment, however; it does not prepare people even for the professions. I am familiar with the various arguments beginning somewhat in this vein: 'College does not claim to equip you to make a living; but a man is even more than half believe them. I would not surrender my years of college for any possible financial reimbursement. But it is too bad to find that while you are making a life, you have not the tools to make the living.

"The common belief seems to be that college is a philosopher's touchstone that transmutes common lead into gold. College is to harry us on the tools in the kit bag. But if there are only two or three tools, college can only sharpen two or three. It cannot put a razor edge on six."

It appears that the lowly trowel and spade are to be given positions of honor among the taxis bu Greek roots and Elizabethan poetry.

Some girls have a complex, and others have a complexion.

The anthracite coal strike will be hard on consumers, but it will be pretty "soft" for the bituminous dealers.

A High School student equipped as a bricklayer and with a profound knowledge of such light subjects as Aragonite's Law, the Multiharmonic Theory, Epigenesis and crystallography should be well armoured for worldly combat. Every bumble scholar in Napoleon's army carried a Marshal's baton in his kit bag. This was simply a shrewd bit of philosophy on the Little General's part. How much more certain of realization are the hopes of the modern High School or College graduate!

But what about the girl students? The answer should be simple—teach them to keep home properly and insure to them a culinary proficiency "as good as mother's." It might be well also to instruct them in the mysteries art or millinery. Truly this contemporary investment bids fair to brighten home life.

A prisoner in the Milton jail might be well termed a consummate villain. THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"I tell you he'll hear you directly, and we shall have to go."

"Let him hear me," shouted Simeon, "and let him drive us out—drive us into the free air of heaven. It'll only be a new specimen of the hoof-pitted crowd trampling down and gloating over the sufferings of the poor. What's he—a-coming down here with his cassocks and gowns to read and riot on his five hundred a year in summer like this, when a hard-working body of brothers on the Real plan can properly count, parting it written down, and wi'out cassocks, for less and get nothing for it but glory! Let him hear me."

"Then, Simeon! hold thy stupid tongue," cried Mrs. Sles——

"Never!" exclaimed Simeon, who felt his opportunity after his long baffled in the forenoon. "I'll be trampled on no more by any blooded oligarch of a priest, or simpering Levite been a slave too—too long. I'm starving now, but what then! I can be a martyr to a holy cause—the only cause of freedom. Let him riot in his food raiment—let him turn us out, and some day—soon day—I say—I say——"

Mr. Sles paused in his oratory, for he had put his hand over her hand over his mouth; but just then the door opened, and the vicar stood in the doorway.

Mrs. Sles dropped her hand, while Simeon thrust his right into his breast, and stood there, and the vicar entered with a jerkin dignity.

"How do, Mr. Sles?" said the vicar quietly. "I came before this morning; I merely came to say that I can no help hearing every word that is spoken in this room."

"The words that I said—" began Simeon.

"Pardon," continued the vicar, "I have quite done, if you will clear away, Mrs. Sles. I am going to see about a few more memories for the place, and to look out for a gardener, unless your husband likes the job."

"Gardener!" said Simeon: "I dig!"

"I often do," said the vicar, coolly. "It's very healthy work. Famous for the appetite. By the way, Mr. Sles, I heard you say you were hungry. Mrs. Sles, pray give some refreshment on the table; the pots are quite welcome."

He walked out of the place, and Mrs. Sles, her poor wounds looked ravenously hungry, hastened to spread their own table.

"That for you," said Simeon, snapping his fingers after the retreating form. "I care that for you—a bloated priest. Of course you're on his side, Sles—a swine-fish lauryus. No; I'll rather starve than be treated so." (Spy and family tyrant, then hil-somet" exclaimed Mrs. Sles, "and thank the Lord there is something

POTENTIAL MURDERERS.

Alcohol and gasoline is a mixture dangerous to the public. If drivers are drunk to any degree they are liable to drunk to operate cars on Washington streets. If they are not too far under the influence of liquor to manipulate the gears of an automobile, they are sober enough to know that they are doing wrong. Those guilty of such offence should be given time behind bars to ponder on the coolness of such transgression and to resolve that they will never again risk punishment as murderers.

SELFISH ALOOFNESS.

(Woodstock Sentinel Review)

The worse the trouble in Europe becomes, the more some people in the United States rejoice at their freedom from European entanglements, and the more other and perhaps more thoughtful people regret a policy of isolation which has prevented their country from doing the work it might have done in the work of restoration. The United States delayed getting into the war in the hope of keeping out of European entanglements; but eventually, and when it was late in the day, the United States was forced to get in. Eventually the United States may find that it is impossible for her to keep out of the after-war entanglements.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

Some facts about cigarettes.

Orison Madden, editor of the Success Magazine, says "The moral depravity which follows the cigarette habit is something frightful. Lying, cheating, impurity, loss of moral courage and manhood, a complete dropping of life's standards all seem the lines are its general results."

Magistrate Crane of New York city says, "Ninety-nine out of a hundred boys between the ages of ten and seventeen years who come before me charged with crime have fingers discoloured by yellow cigarette stains. . . . There is something in the poison of the cigarette that seems to get into the system of the boy and to destroy all moral fiber."

Another New York city magistrate says, "Yesterday I had before me thirty-five boy prisoners. Thirty-three of them were confirmed cigarette smokers. To-day, from a reliable source, I have made the gruesome discovery that two of the largest cigarette manufacturers soak their product in a weak solution of opium."

University records show that within the past fifty years not a student at Harvard University who used tobacco has been graduated at the head of his class, although on an average, five out of six use tobacco.

Leading business firms all over the country have put the cigarette on the prohibited list. In Detroit alone, sixty-nine merchants have agreed not to employ the cigarette user.

The superintendent of the Street Railway of St. Louis, says "Under no circumstance will I hire a man who smokes cigarettes. He is as dangerous on the front of a motor as a man who drinks. In fact he is more dangerous; his nerves are apt to give way at any moment."

TRUNKS' MANAGEMENT PROTESTS SATURDAY'S GAME WITH OSHAWA

ERRORS COST TRUNKS INITIAL C.O.B.L. MIX FOR LEAGUE PENNANT

Oulette Hurls Steady Game but "Breaks" go Against him — Dainty Keeps Opponents' Safeties Well Scattered; Four Thousand Fans See Homesters Administer 5-2 Whitewash to Railroaders.

Newton Thompson, secretary of the local ball team, has filed a protest of Saturday's game, played Oshawa, on the grounds that Harold Dainty is illegible to participate in further exhibitions owing to the fact that he was a violator of the residence rule. Mr. Thompson had advised to protest the above course after being in communication with Mark Dulmadge, secretary of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association. Mr. Dulmadge wired Saturday morning that Dainty was not a resident of the motor town until late in the Spring. The residence rule of the Central League distinctly says that a player must be a resident of the town in which he is to play by January 1st. Dainty was a violator of the rule and the Oshawa club are aware of the fact and why should they allow Dainty to continue pitching. St. Pats of Ottawa are now waiting and a winner of the Oshawa-Trunks series must be declared before Saturday. Secretary Nott and President Denman must take immediate steps in the above matter.

Oshawa ball team, champions of the C.O.B.L. were good enough to pull out a win from the Belleville Grand Trunks, and administer a tight application of whitewash on Saturday, when they defeated the railroaders at Alexandra Park, Oshawa, on Saturday afternoon, by the score of 5-2. This is the first game the old rivals have played this season as the C.O.B.L. was operated in two sections this year, and the two above mentioned teams are the respective champs of each section. Alexandra Park was packed by thousands of eager baseball fans from every town and hamlet in Central Ontario to see the league game ever played in Central Ontario baseball history. The "air tight" sign, the enemy had sent over 3 big runs which looked like a million planks in a game so close to the finish, for the amateur Baseball Championship of the Province.

As in the first big play-off game with Jake Solomon's nine in this city the railroaders had spotted the Oshawa nine 3 runs, before the game had gone two innings, and though they clamped the lid on tight-then, and held their opponents scoreless for the remainder of the fray, they discovered that they were unable to break through with their bunch hit tactics, for a tally, and discovered that they should have played a 10-00 game instead of doing any "spotling." "Duke" Dainty, southpaw moundsman for the Automotive outfit refused to "crack" and his mates "stayed in there" all the way.

Oshawa scored two of their three runs in the first frame, and old man her three in the second inning. After that it was deadlock baseball, neither squad disfiguring the score board. Belleville were lucky in that they though Bill Mills nicked a safety off Dainty, Branscombe was the closest base runner to the plate, when he was nipped going to third for the third down. Oshawa had a lot of fun with "their ball game" and a complimentary, and when Rowden grounded to J. K. Williams, "Jake" bungled his throw to second, in his hurry to make a double play and all were safe. Tyson's timely tap to left garden, netted the host line, sent Jacobi home, and Dainty's single through second scored Rowden.

In the second frame after Oulette made a nifty start by fanning Morrison, Hagerman made a painfully bad throw to first, after fielding a scratch hit by "Buck" Wilson, who went to second on the play, Jacobi struck out, but Walt Fair sizzled one between Brownscombe's legs to the outfield, Wilson scoring, and Fair making second where he "died" when Rowden rolled out. Then and there the scoring "or the afternoon ceased like, and thereafter the mound "put the knitting needles to work".

In no inning did more than five succeeders have a seat at the home plate, and in four distinct innings, but three Belleville batsmen faced Dainty. In three distinct innings, but three men faced Oulette also. That possibility explains how nine innings of baseball may be played in 60 minutes.

Possibly the only inning of the fray in which it appeared as though the Trunks might stage their usual come-back, and probably pull out a win by overcoming the 3 run lead, was in the 9th inning. Bill Mills pounded one of the hardest hit drives seen this year, at Fair in centre pot, Fair making a good run in, but missing the catch. Harry Mills followed with a clean cut, sure fire single to centre field, and it looked like a case of "going after bacon." J. K. Williams sacrificed the Mill brothers around a base, for first down but Casey and Hagerman failed to come through with the much needed safety, both going out on high flies.

Belleville nine lost because of their unfortunate, loose fielding, behind Pitcher Oulette, who was being touched rather freely by the Oshawa artillery.

They can hit Dainty, although the sturdy southpaw did baffle some of his Trunks bearcat clouters. Now for honest alibis. Cold weather and strange diamond are offered, but the Trunks squad did not display any flannel underwear, and doubtless were as susceptible to weather as the Oshawa squad. The umpiring was absolutely perfect, so "robbery with violence" etc., cannot be entered or accepted as an alibi. One thing is certain, however, and that is the fact that Mademoiselle Luck was with Oshawa together with their snappy playing. Continuously the Trunk's hitters would simply crash the old sphere right into their fielder's mitts, and every ground ball appeared to be timed to bound "just right."

Oshawa has a nifty ball team. Fielders and hitters and if Dainty is a regular "boots" for punishment, and is able to stay in there for three games, they will make the Trunky step right into town to win. With Dainty working "in the pink," however, as they worked against Peterboro at Peterboro one week ago, Oshawa would have to take second place, unless they could show something better than they exhibited on Saturday.

They have a capable receiver in "Duke" Dainty's offerings in Tyson with "Kip" Rowden at second and the hard hitting Jacobi on third, they have two good infielders, Moreland at short is a new graduate from Intermediate ranks and though uncertain with the willow, is a very good fielder. Walt Fair, in center field, is a hitter too, and with Ray Belding and Roddick (another yap fans) nabbing the high outs, Big "Buck" Wilson holds down the initial sack position.

There were no stellar lights in the Trunks lineup Saturday. They all worked hard, and meant well. Rose wrenched his leg in the eighth inning, and Meagher finished in the centre field position.

Dainty had 4 strike outs and passed 3. Oulette struck out 5 and issued but one pass. Trunks out hit Oshawa 5-3, but also "out errored" them 6 to 1.

Umpire Walter Thorne kept the game going "full blast," and inaugurated on action, plus plenty of pepper. The clerkix of Autumn seemed to stir Thorne, who appeared as though he could do "the dance of the woo nymphs" on one car. He and Frank Hallinan, both popular umpires in Oshawa, amateur leagues in Toronto, are two of the most satisfactory officials who ever "called em" in this district. Hallinan was on the bases Saturday, Thorne donning the cage and "life preserver."

Diamond Dust

Belleville lost to Oshawa 5-0, in the first of a series "at home and" home games for the Central Ontario Baseball League pennant, and the Johnnies cup.

If a third game is necessary to decide the issue, (and Belleviteans believe it will be necessary to play three), the game will likely be played at Cobourg.

"I know of four thousand people who did not go to Toronto for the opening of the Big Fair", observed one fan, and he was right. There was a wonderful crowd at the big game.

Umpires Thorne and Hallinan were all that could be desired, and the "peppee" which Thorne, who was behind the plate from start to finish, kept the players, was largely responsible for the speed to which the game was accelerated.

"Duke" Dainty was never supposed to hold any great terror for the Trunks' heavy-artillery; but he pulled the big surprise on Saturday. On the Belleville nine with Mills brothers, Jacobs, Williams and Brownscombe hitting "on all six," as they were at Peterboro and Cobourg, they will knock Dainty into a cocked hat.

The Grand Trunk baseball team left Oshawa on the early evening train, and stayed at at Cobourg, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Green, Proprietors of the Dunham Park refreshment supper. They returned to this city on the midnight train.

Oshawa is supposed to be a town where work is abundant and money plentiful. If, so, the natives must be hiding their money, or else they have already decided that their team cannot carry water" to the Mogul.

The "Branded in the hide" baseball fans of this city were at the game singing the same melody —

"We'll follow them where e'er they go, From Portland, Maine to Mexico."

The spectacular catches of the day were supplied by Brownscombe and left fielder Roddick. Roddick ran backwards and sideways into centre garden, and reached up to the full extent, to pull down a drive which should have gone for a homer, for Weir who hit it. Brownscombe ran backwards into the outfield, and dragged down Morrison's Texas leaguer. Ross got some "dillies" also in the outfield also, and Jacobi nearly had his name scrolled on the page of fame, when he hurdled the crowd, and almost caught a foul, which many baseball men would never have attempted.

Mart Shultz, hefty manager of Oshawa team urged Manager Devere to put Williams in, and see how they would hit him. Shultz may see Williams in action much too soon.

Among officials present were Ex-President Enos "Parson" of Oshawa, Secretary Jack Nott, Oshawa; Messrs. Sandy Lockington, of Port Hope; and Fort Moyses, of Lindsay.

As usual, Mills brothers started the fun works in the swatting circle, and though Casey and Hagerman hit the ball hard in an effort to come through, it failed, and the final chance of pulling the game out of the fire, was gone.

Fair seemed to have decreed that Trunks should not win.

Everybody pays admission at the Oshawa gate. Their thrifty gate men are right after the dough. Evidently they "know" it.

Oshawa streets are so badly torn up that their ball team should be escorted into fair Belleville via Station street, else they will not feel at home.

Yes, "Slats" Kerr was there.

Lucky were they who attended the game, and made exposure.

Next game, next Wednesday, here at three.

The Printers and Shoemen meet to-night in a soft-ball game at the High School grounds at 6.15. Stan Nurse and "Sun" Frechette will umpire.

the Sahara, cutting off the shortest until we drop them. That the RS was able to make the return trip to the United States safely a couple years ago—at the first attempt—should convince the most confirmed pessimists of the future of this form of aerial traffic. The doubters generally point to the ZR3 disaster as an example of the dangers, but the first critics of the railways raised their voices in triumph when the first accident occurred. The ZR3 was an unfortunate and isolated incident, and naturally we have profited by the experience.

"You will remember when Lord Biorlot first flew the Channel a dozen years ago, there were people who said: 'Oh, yes, just a right stunt—interesting, but not likely to be of practical value.' Yet, setting aside the military flying during the war, trans-Channel flights are so common to-day as to be worthy of no more comment than the passing of a street-car. During the month of June, the Hamble-Le Touquet service alone carried over 1,000 passengers from London to Paris.

No Longer a Novelty

"What a commentary on the doubters who called Blériot's pioneer flight a 'trick stunt'! Now we read of hundreds of thousands of people all over the world who have made aerial plane flights, and to whom the idea is no longer a novelty. They will become just as accustomed to the use of big, rigid airships."

Discussing the England-India service, Burney explained that the Imperial Airship Company would start a bi-weekly service of six airships to India, the trip taking three, and a half days or four, if a half-day stop was arranged at Cairo. Except for special cases there was no need for violent rush, for there would be a ten-day saving on the fastest steam ship route. The cost of operation would not be as heavy as some had predicted, and it would be possible to carry passengers to India for 70 to 80 pounds—slightly less than the regular steamship fare.

"The importance of rapid transportation to Anglo-Indian commerce," said Burney, "is obvious. Even although like it will be an inestimable boon to the Anglo-Indian 'exiles,' who nowadays are lucky if they get home to their mother country every two or three years. The Anglo-Indian will be able to make a flying visit to his home whenever he gets a fort-night's vacation if he wants to."

Aerial Supervision

There is only one fly in the ointment, according to superpatriots—and that is the question of British air supervision will be necessary, but still British airship constructors and mechanics have become more used to this form of aviation.

Germany's superiority and experience in developing Zeppelins, is freely recognized and expert German designers and mechanics will be installed by the Imperial Airship Company; until Britishers are capable of working the scheme efficiently on their own.

Karachi, Bombay or Calcutta will be the Indian terminus of the line, and the Australian extension will be headquartered at either Darwin, Perth or Melbourne.

THE END.

ATTENDANCE AT CHURCH

lion realized by washing, shaving and going to church.

"Throughout our life, we must continuously fight the "sloppy" tendencies, and must resist the tendencies to allow ourselves to drift into a more-nature old age," further explained the speaker. "We must help to keep the world fit. That is what civilization up, as by placing restraints on ourselves throughout life, we make men of ourselves."

Rotarian Cairns feels that just a little more of our fraternities' so-called nonsense would be the correct thing for this fast age, for it was only here-tofore up for us our physical frames and characters.

Rotary is just now being criticised and satirized by another in a recent book. Rotes are believed to be a crowd of hypocrites. That is why Rotarians must live right up to their code of ethics in order to prove to an ever-watching public that they are not hypocrites. They must further carry the practice into their business, where they must be good fellows as well as at the weekly luncheons. They must not be ashamed to hang up the code of ethics before the office door, be strong-regarded and say "I am trying my best to live up to those rules."

Testimonial letter to Rotary were described briefly by the speaker, who mentioned the man who felt that it took too much money to belong, consequently, had never assimilated the true spirit of the club, the grumbler, who even objected to the grub, the ultra-enthusiast with the good ideas mixed with wild cat schemes, and who occasionally needs a governor to keep the steam cock regulated, the procrastinator, who was useless on any committee, the shy chap and who thinks everyone else is "cold" while he himself is too cold to be approached by a letter, remember, "You must first be a friend, to make friends."

Guests today were Rev. A. B. Bell, of Elkhorn, Wis. (a Kiwanian), E. B. Gage of Montreal, Dr. R. M. Day of Harrowsmith and J. W. Hewson of Toronto.

Rotarian Charlie Dolan attended luncheon at Old No. 1 Rotary Club, Chicago, last week, and reports a wonderful time. There were 400 out, and it was enjoyed as well as fel men's days. Everyone was weighed at the door, and the heaviest man, a champion swimming instructor who weighed over 300 pounds, won a "big ham" as his prize. Chaplin's orchestra and Bill Beaudry, song writer and singer supplied the music, and Wm. Jennings Bryan was a guest.

AUSTRALIA CHIEF BUYER OF CANADA'S CARS LAST MONTH

Ottawa, Aug. 25—Australia was Canada's best motor vehicle customer during the month of July, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, which shows that the Commonwealth imported 1,487 automobiles and 569 trucks in the month. Next came New Zealand imported 707 automobiles and 126 trucks and the United Kingdom 263 trucks and 479 automobiles.

Total exportation figures for July show 1,172 trucks shipped out of Canada, at a value of $426,674, an increase of 52 vehicles over the June record and an increase of 961 when compared with the number exported in July of 1922. During the twelve months which ended with July, 9,076 trucks were shipped from Canada, valued at $3,423,702, as compared with 1,545 trucks and a value of $640,000 in the corresponding period of 1921-22.

Exportation figures for passenger cars also show a great increase. During the month, 4,341 automobiles were shipped out of Canada, valued at $1,963,160, as compared with 2,169 cars, valued at $1,098,196 in July, 1922. It is shown in the report that 51,181 cars were exported during the twelve months ending with July as a value of $28,139,945, as compared with 22,326 cars and a value of $12,955,000 in the corresponding period.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To Editor of The Daily Intelligencer:

Dear Sir—

Kindly allow me a few remarks re your editorial in Saturday's paper about the low marks in the High School examinations and some remarks in reference to the beating of the building.

When this school opened I attended it for several years and I do not remember there ever being any complaint about it not being sufficiently heated. I judge, therefore that the present expensive and elaborate and up-to-date system is not being in any good as the old, not withstanding the wanted superiority of all things up-to-date over the old.

Now regarding the very poor show on the exams. This is due to many causes, viz—lack of discipline both in the school and the home, no home work, lack of interest of the parents and lack of help from them, too, for teas, time in school on account of longer vacations and many more of them and in spite of the large salaries paid to the teachers today, also the large expense per head the days spent in the school. They are not as competant as the old staff and they certainly are not as conscientious—and lastly, too much time and thought given by teachers and pupils and parents to the promotion of the inferior worldly pleasures and fads and amusements of all kinds

When I matriculated we had plenty of home work and my father sat down with me after supper and helped me with it, and we had to stay long, "fancy father doing this today." Too much lodge and club and sofort, after which I was allowed to play till nine o'clock then to bed. Well we know what time the boys and girls used to be tod today and what time they get up and how they feel in the morning! sarcasm forgetting that good old adage about early to bed and early to rise makes one healthy, wealthy, happy and wise. Then the time one about one hours sleep before midnight being worth two after.

Such is a sample of our present day system, but of course all up-to-date systems are infinitely better than the old ones and to be met with contemptuous stamps one as belonging to the old fogy out of date class.

Well in my school days (the result of the "Old Fogy" system many on us youngsters passed into the high school at ten years of age and passed out again at thirteen and fourteen: myself did and in that time I had gone through the Horatius and nearly half through the latin reader, I had obtained a smattering of Greek and French, I had gone through several books of Euclid and one of Algebra and had acquired a thorough pro-

Scarcity of English grammar, which I used to think was taught in school principles have not to-day, as I heard one a few days previous while riding in an auto and comparing the country roads say, "This road is the smoothest and the shortest" But for the fact that I am sure that you would not take the too soon I would have gone up for my matriculation which I would in all probability have passed as I never once missed an examination previously. After leaving the High School I was for three years in Upper Canada College and at-tained some credit in classics and mathematics, thanks to the training I got in the public and High School from those incomparable and self-sacrificing pioneer public clitinarians, coupled with the help I got from my parents in every way and the kind and sensible way they brought me up.

Owing to all this I got a very early start in commercial life, being entrusted over $3,000 at one time, before I was twenty-one years of age. Now I am not telling you this because I am proud of it, but because I am sure that many young men of to-day, realizing the necessity of a good education, will be encouraged to stick to their books and not be ashamed to hang up the code of ethics before the office door and be strong-regarded and say "I am trying my best to live up to those rules."

Testimonial letter to Rotary were described briefly by the speaker, who mentioned the man who felt that it took too much money to belong, consequently, had never assimilated the true spirit of the club, the grumbler, who even objected to the grub, the ultra-enthusiast with the good ideas mixed with wild cat schemes, and who occasionally needs a governor to keep the steam cock regulated, the procrastinator, who was useless on any committee, the shy chap and who thinks everyone else is "cold" while he himself is too cold to be approached by a letter, remember, "You must first be a friend, to make friends."

Guests today were Rev. A. B. Bell, of Elkhorn, Wis. (a Kiwanian), E. B. Gage of Montreal, Dr. R. M. Day of Harrowsmith and J. W. Hewson of Toronto.

Rotarian Charlie Dolan attended luncheon at Old No. 1 Rotary Club, Chicago, last week, and reports a wonderful time. There were 400 out, and it was enjoyed as well as fel men's days. Everyone was weighed at the door, and the heaviest man, a champion swimming instructor who weighed over 300 pounds, won a "big ham" as his prize. Chaplin's orchestra and Bill Beaudry, song writer and singer supplied the music, and Wm. Jennings Bryan was a guest.

Death of Toronto Woman Opens Anew Ether Controversy

Toronto, Aug. 27.—The death of ...patient under ...anesthetic previous to an operation, in the General Hospital, on Wednesday morning of this week, caused Wilbert Coon, coroner, to hold a brief record of the death appeared in the paper, with the announcement that the coroner would hold an enquiry.

Toronto professional circles took much greater interest than did the general public in this hospital incident. It has revived a controversy regarding the use of ether at the General Hospital, which, a few months ago rang through university halls and hospital corridors, and even led to warm speeches in the Ontario Legislature.

May Not Supply Coal to Canada

Washington, Aug. 27.—The expectation here is that the question of the placing of an embargo on shipments of anthracite to Canada by the west of a strike will come up at the Governor's conference in New York tomorrow. Persons in close touch with the situation predict that there will either be an embargo on hard coal to the Dominion or such a system of priorities on the railroads as practically it make it impossible to ship anything into the usual amounts there and that Canada will very largely have to depend upon soft coal. The official view of the situation, however, continues to be that work will not be suspended in the anthracite mines.

AGNES AYRES AT GRIFFIN'S IN "A DAUGHTER OF LUXURY"

Suppose you had been reared in luxury, trained to do nothing and to wear expensive clothes—and then your fortune melted away like snow in the sun? Suppose, in addition, a young and beautiful woman—what would you do?

This is the situation that confronts Agnes Ayres in her role of Mary Paxton in "A Daughter of Luxury," her new Paramount starring vehicle which will be the feature attraction at Griffin's tonight to Wednesday.

How does she solve the problem? It is solved for her by a set of circumstances which develop from her chance meeting with a man who has married money in the shape of a wealthy "clinging vine."

She is thrust by tortuous circumstances into the home of social climbers who are trying to keep up appearances in the face of financial disaster and who believe her to be an heiress —and the rest of the story is one of startling situations.

"His Social Error", an amusing Charlie Murray comedy, a new Sport Review, and beautiful Patricia Palmer in a two-reel wild animal story titled "Martha of the Jungle" are also promised for presentation on the same program.

RICHARD DIX AND HELENE CHADWICK AT REGENT IN RED-BLOODED TALE

From the moment that Richard Dix is called from his study to help a dying man to learn of a cache of buried treasure he hasn't a moment of peace until the final fade-out of "Yellow Men and Gold," a thrilling Goldwyn adventure picture which will be shown at the Regent Theatre, tonight to Wednesday, with the usual daily matinee.

Gouverneur Morris is the author of this vivid picture-play of love and adventure in the tropics which he has selected for his hero are: capture by a band of criminals who drug him, take a treasure map from his pocket and throw him into the harbor; rescue by a beautiful white girl, mistress of a strange Chinese sailing vessel; battle with a gang of ruthless villians on a lonely tropical isle; conflict with a fierce tur-bute on a dizzy cliff, struggle in deep water with a ruffian and other

Discovery of Oil Is Celebrated at Titusville

Titusville, Pa., Aug. 27 (United Press).—Today marked the passing of 64 years since the striking of oil in the well drilled by Col. E. L. Drake at Titusville, Pa., formally ushered in what has since become the great petroleum industry.

In recent years celebration of Drake's "Black Day" has been held locally, but with increasing interest at Titusville, Bradford, Pleasantville, Oil City, Warren and Butler, in Pennsylvania, and at Tulsa, Okla., this year the celebration was national, both in character and regional representation.

There was no drafting of political, sectional or competitive lines in the shaping of the program which in addition to its reunion and social features brought practical messages from leaders in the business, with A. C. Bedford, chairman of the board of managers of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, as the chief speaker.

There will be 16 distinct branches of industry and the product of 53 leading British firms shown in the "Made in Great Britain" display at the Canadian National Exhibition.

the world's greatest annual fair and they gathered at the grounds eager to see this year's offering and to appreciate the many details of improvements which greeted them upon the grounds.

The day was set aside to jointly honor the Canadian Warriors and the Canadian Scientists. The special features connected with it on this account were both brilliant and impressive. At almost three o'clock the warriors, headed by the militia and with several bands playing, marched through the Dufferin Street gate, representatives of those who dared the hazards of war in order that freedom and greatness might be possible for Canada. At the same time Dr. F. G. Banting, himself the hero of the Military Cross for his war time exploits, was officially opening the Fair.

Dr. Banting, in his address, spoke in part as follows:

"The greatest monument in all Canada, and one scarcely known to Canadians, is situated twelve miles south of Toronto. It can be seen from as far distant as Japan and China, New Zealand and India. It covers 00 acres of ground. This monument will ever stand to the memory of Colonel Goodrham, its builder, and Drs. Fitzgerald and Defries, its sculptors and designers, and will ever grow as a living and lifegiving memorial to the unselfish patriotism of a great Canadian—I refer to the Connaught Antitoxin Laboratory of the University of Toronto.

"We have need of more monuments such as this. Canadian schools, colleges and universities turn out plenty of well-trained men with ideas and ideals. They mingle in their veins the English, Scotch, Irish and French blood that caused our forefathers, in their restless temper of investigation, to explore, discover and develop. Our graduates, in their generation, with also to travel upon paths untrodden and carry forward the torch of science.

"To-day, in formally opening the Science and International Year of the Canadian National Exhibition, I make bold to hope that Canadian science and Canadian industry, depending as they do upon the efforts of individual minds, may progress hand in hand and in harmony with the progress of other nations, until that day is reached when they shall have contributed the maximum of good to the greatest number, and have brought the people at large to realize, as we realize now, that science is the search for truth, that a true knowledge of God's creation dispels superstition, fear and disease, brings happiness, peace and prosperity, and leads to that humility with which the informed intelligence recognizes the omniscience of the Creator."

LINER TO BE TOWED ACROSS ATLANTIC

Tug Will Begin Attempt of Feat To-morrow

New York, Aug. 27.—Alongside the discarded liner, St. Paul the little Dutch sea-going tug, Jacob Van Heem skerck, is dwarfed as a great lion by a spaniel. Yet tomorrow the tug will begin a feat unique in United States shipping by attempting to tow the liner 4,000 miles across the Atlantic to Wilhelmshaver, Germany, in fifty days.

The tug made the trip from Rotterdam to New York in eighteen days, arriving last Friday. Jan Kalkman, her 23-year-old captain, said yesterday that his tug could stand the rough est weather and still keep a tow line fast to the liner.

3 YEAR-OLD CHILD KILLED BY TRAIN

Lindsay, Aug. 27.—A shocking accident took place at Kinsdale, a depot on the Canadian Pacific Railway, a few miles from Tweed, Friday afternoon, when the little three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, was instantly killed, and a baby brother of five years had a very narrow escape.

It appears that the two little tots were playing with a toy wagon on the platform of the station, just as a freight train began to move out of the station. The little wagon ran down, the slight incline at one end of the platform, the wheel struck some small obstacle, and the little girl was thrown on to the tracks, under the wheels of the train.

Mr. Spencer, the conductor and one other man were standing on the platform at the time and saw the accident, but were powerless to save the little girl. The father made a mad rush for the spot and was successful in rescuing the little boy from further danger. The sad accident has cast a gloom over the neighborhood, and caused a pang in the hearts of all employees of the system, especially station agents.

TRAIN DERAILED AT THAMESVILLE

None Injured When C.N.R. Passenger Train Leaves Track

London, Oct., Aug. 27.—C.N.R. train No. 115, leaving London at 902, left the track Saturday night about 100 yards west of Thamesville Station, tearing up rails and ties and causing several thousand dollars damage. The baggage car and three coaches left the track when the front truck of the coal tender derailed. This is the only explanation available. Fortunately none of the passengers on the train suffered any injuries, and it is said that when the train left the track is level, or fatalities would have resulted. The passengers were picked up and taken to Windsor by a special train.

At six o'clock Sunday night the railroad officials reported the road operating again. An auxiliary train 88, running from Windsor to London worked from daylight Sunday morning replacing ties, rails and derailed coaches.

COMMERCE BANK IS NOW LARGEST

Bank of Hamilton is Absorbed by Bank of Commerce

FULLY SOLVENT

Merger Creates Powerful Banking Organization—Finance Minister Approves Move

Mr. Leonard Crook, Assistant Manager of the Belleville branch of the Bank of Commerce, commenting today upon the absorption of the Bank of Hamilton by the Bank of Commerce, stated that the merger would make the Bank of Commerce the largest banking institution in Canada. "This is my belief," said Mr. Crook and I do not think there can be any doubt of it."

Mr. Crook said that the local institution had not been advised of the move until after the announcement had been made public, Mr. A. V. Finch, Manager of the Belleville branch of the Bank of Commerce is away on his holidays.

"The Bank of Hamilton is absolutely solvent," declared Mr. Crook. "It has 154 branches and has a deposit of somewhere like $50,000,000 of them in Ontario. Some of these will now undoubtedly be absorbed by the process of overlapping. The capital of the former institution is $5,000,000 and the capital of the Bank of Commerce is $20,000,000 with a reserve of an equal amount. Hence it can be readily seen that the merger will make the strongest banking organization one. There is no branch of the Bank of Hamilton in Belleville.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—Amalgamation of the Bank of Hamilton with the Canadian Bank of Commerce will be effected as a consequence of the consent of Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, it was announced last night. The Bank of Commerce takes over the assets and liabilities of the Bank of Hamilton, and the latter passes out of existence, after a career of fifty-one years. This marks the passing of one of Canada's staunch financial institutions, which will be regretted from a sentimental standpoint.

The total assets of the two banks were $453,643,000, according to the last statement issued by the Bank of Hamilton to the Minister of Finance, the date being June 30. At that time, the united liabilities of the two banks were $413,210,482.

The Bank of Hamilton shareholders will have their stock exchanged for Canadian Bank of Commerce shares.

From Hamilton comes the statement that the amalgamation of the Bank of Hamilton with the Canadian Bank of Commerce will be on a basis of "share for share," while a prominent and interested financier of Toronto says there will be on a basis of a valuation of Commerce stock at 195 and of Bank of Hamilton stock at 185. In this case the holders of Bank of Hamilton stock would have their shares taken over on the two shares of the Commerce, plus $60, for three shares of Bank of Hamilton.

Officials of the Bank of Commerce stated last night that the amalgamation was being made on terms that were extremely favorable to the Bank of Hamilton. There was no question of financial difficulty, it was stated, but a big consideration was the fact that under present keenly competitive conditions, banking could be carried on much more economically by other larger units.

Toronto Aug. 28.—Sixty-seven thousand people paid tribute yesterday to the growing popularity of Canada's Big Fair, when the turnstiles of Exhibition City recorded an increase in attendance of 8,000 over the figure for the first Monday of 1922. For the first two days of the Exhibition the lead in attendance over 1922 has already reached a total of 14,000.

From the opening of the gates, steady stream of motor cars entered the gates, and parking space, both within and without the grounds, was a premium, as Exhibition visitors turned their thoughts to the manufacturing centres of Toronto's Industry Day. Vast Progress throughout Canada in the manufacture of motor vehicles of every description was the keynote which brought huge throngs to gaze at the mechanical marvel housed in the Transportation Building and Coliseum.

Recognition of the international aspect of the industry in Canada featured the directors' luncheon when Sir William Letts, outstanding representative of the British field, and Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American motor manufacturer, and known as the premier fighting pilot of the U. S. Air Service, delivered their messages to Canadians.

During the whole day, even quite the music of many bands, and the hundreds of counter-attractions, the motor exhibits occupied the chief place. New developments in construction vied for first honors with the glistening bodies and trim lines of the new finishes. Thousands were wires alike took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the "latest shine" which every day they hoped to make their own.

In the evening the centre of the whole Exhibition stage was occupied by the premier presentation of the Cleopatra spectacle, and long before the hour set for the beginning of the performances long lines of automobiles were ready to pack the huge Grand Stand with a capacity audience.

Inspectors Find "Grape Juice" Scotch At Bowmanville

Port Hope, Aug. 28.—Liquor found in the Bowman House at Bowmanville was all put up in grape juice bottles. The raid was conducted by Inspector A. E. Sirois, of the O.T.A. enforcement department and Provincial License Inspector C. A. Mason, of Oshawa. In the bottoms they found a large number of grape juice bottles containing Scotch whiskey. The bottle held about two good drinks each and the evidence was that there was sold a dollar a piece. That bottles containing liquor were mixed up with others containing the regular grape juice, and a four hundred in all were taken by the officers.

A further search of the premises was made and in the cellar were found some twenty sacks containing bottles of the liquor. The room shipping tags from Valleyfield, Que.

The hotel proprietor, pleaded guilty and was fined $450.00 and costs. The authorities intend having an analysis made of both the whiskey and beer.

Outlook is Encouraging Says Bank of Commerce President

Toronto, Aug. 28.—An encouraging message regarding the financial situation in Canada, particularly in connection with banks in Ontario, was given to the press yesterday by Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He could see no reason whatever for anyone thinking that such an occurrence as the Home Bank of Canada's suspension should be repeated. This he regarded as extremely unlikely. There had been improvement in Canadian business affairs during the past year, and, with ordinary care, conditions would right themselves gradually.

Officials here state that both the Union and Standard banks are recovering rapidly and that the outlook in banking circles is much brighter generally.

BOARD OF EDUCATION COMMITTEE INSPECTS KING GEORGE SCHOOL REPORT EDIFICE SATISFACTORY

The committee on School Management of the Belleville Board of Education, of which Mr. F. S. Deacon is chairman, inspected the new King George School building yesterday afternoon for the purpose of making a report to the Board.

Mr. Deacon stated that the committee found the building substantially completed and in a very satisfactory condition. Installation of furniture and other equipment will be completed this week.

A special meeting of the Board will be called for a visit as soon as possible after school is opened. The report of the committee, Mr. Deacon said that acceptance of the building by the committee would be a mere formality as it is acceptable to every way. The new school, including its equipment, has cost $120,000. Twenty per cent. of the building cost has been withheld and will not be paid until after school is officially accepted.

A feature of the King George school is the heating and ventilating system. The Dunham system has been installed, which provides for automatic control of the temperatures by the modern thermostatic regulation method. Although the building has 16 rooms, only ten will be utilized at present. There will be a force of eight teachers and it is expected that 350 pupils will be accommodated.

Modern systems of fire prevention and protection have been installed and the building has been designed so as to afford the most ready progress possible in an emergency. The school is equipped with Terrazzo floors (concrete with polished marble slabs) and steel stairs with Mastic Tread. This style of stairs is very durable than the type heretofore used in Belleville school structures and the Mastic Tread equipment renders them soundless. It was stated today that in one of the schools recently built here it is necessary necessary to replace the stairs twice.

The rooms are tinted to avoid a white glare and the lights are also equipped to eliminate glare.

Room For Delinquents

Members of the Board stated yesterday that a plan to set aside a room in the new school for delinquent children in charge of a specially trained teacher had been discussed.

The new building will probably be dedicated on September 4th. It is possible however, that the ceremony may be delayed because it is desired to bring here for the services leading educators and public men of the Province. A sub-committee meeting to discuss the matter will probably be held tomorrow afternoon.

Fine Assessed for "Taking" Gravel

While the moon was desperately trying to shine through the heavy clouds last night, James Archer, this city, was loading gravel into his waggon in William Rose's pit, Sidney township.

Today James was charged with theft of gravel by Provincial Police officers and the case of which was called $10.

"I have drawn 24 loads from that pit this season," Archer explained, "and Rose told me to help myself when Archer believed had leased the pit from Rose) for some of the loads."

The pit, however, had been closed down removed for some time, and that the pit is being torn down, the gravel there being taken unlawfully. He accordingly locked the gate, and declared anyone from entering.

Archer was fined $10 and costs. He threw the gravel upon the bank first, then relayed it into the waggon on the road, and carried out the load with the gate unfastened, he explained.

James was given until Saturday next to hustle $4.50 court costs to the Provincial Police headquarters, or be in free again. A wife and eight children are the mitigating circumstances in the case.

BIDDER AT AUCTION SALE TOO LIVELY

There usually is plenty of action at an auction sale, but there was a sale of household effects on Monday after noon where the "actions" of one bid der were too noticeable. Bidding was brisk for this man started every thing off for the auctioneer. After purchasing two "souvenirs of the sale," he created such a scene, that a call went in for the police.

Today Frank Evans contributed $10 and costs to the court coffers on a charge of disturbance.

He is a "cash and carry" customer and he stuffed the "souvenir" right to the police station.

Wm. Rodbourne Ends Life in Front St. Store

William Rodbourne, proprietor of a trucking and draying establishment at 207 Front street, committed suicide at 8.45 p.m. to-day. The body was found hanging to a rope in a rear room of the store by Frank Hogh, an employee.

Sergeant Boyd, who was called, found an empty bottle which contained carbolic acid on the floor near by and there was evidence that the man had drunk the acid previous to hanging himself. Dr. Robertson who was immediately summoned, stated that there was no doubt that Rodbourne had taken the acid before hanging himself as there was carbolic burns about the mouth.

Rodbourne, who was about 65 years old, had resided in Belleville practically all his life.

An only son, William, died several months ago and it is believed that despondency caused by his son's death prompted the man's action. Mrs. Rodbourne, the dead man's wife died here a few months ago and he was prostrated. Rodbourne, a prominent member of the Independent Order of Foresters. Coroner Boyce announced, after viewing the body, that no inquest would be necessary.

Scots Don't Wear Kilts Except In Spot, Says Dr. Marr

Rev. Dr. Marr, who is in charge of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church here for the summer, was speaker at Kiwanis luncheon today. Rev. Marr's address was short and informal, being a resume of his impressions of Canada. He viewed agricultural areas and glad to see that the Canucks were not "wild and woolly" and did not carry six shooters, but were tame and may. He explained that the idea prevalent among Canadians, that Scotsmen wear kilts is incorrect. Only in the extreme highlands, are the kilties worn.

Germany, In Need of Gold, Finds It in Her Mountains

Old Mines, Worked Years Ago, Re-opened and New Discoveries Gives Hope of Continental Klondike.

By GUS M. OEHM

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

Berlin, Aug. 27.—(United Press).—Germany, in dire need of gold to stabilize her finances, is turning to the mountainous regions of her south land, where gold—in greater or lesser quantities—is to be found.

German prospectors, working with governmental sanction, are wielding the pick and sifting the sands as the lure of gold, with which to pay reparations, stalks the mark, and enrich the individual draws them to the old and new fields.

BAGS OF YELLOW DUST

That their efforts are not entirely in vain, and that the possibility of striking a really paying vein of gold, is evidenced by the fact that already small bags of yellow dust and even an occasional valuable nugget are found.

This—though it may be slight—reward is sufficient to keep workers plugging away from early morning until late at night, and should gold be found in paying quantities, it is hoped, much of Germany's misery would be at least partially alleviated.

One of the principal fields now being worked is in the Waldau region. Back in 1586 gold prospectors gave up the idea of finding sufficient gold in this region, and the mines were closed. However, recently this section has been showing paydirt again. Ore has actually been uncovered in an area, covering 25 kilometers, in this region, which according to analysis in Berlin, shows 40 grams of gold to the ton.

PROSPECTORS AT WORK

Prospectors, encouraged by this showing, have real hopes of finding heavier and more lucrative deposits. A region nearby, which, though here-tofore unexplored, will in the immediate future probably become what Germans hope will be a continental Klondike. The government is co-operating and plans are already being formed to extract such gold as is found by means of a chemical process, whereby less than 10 per cent. of the gold recovered is lost.

"Everything points to a prosperous resumption of this mining," Dr. Belschig, mine expert, declares, "but of this new gold production we hope will come a strengthening of the productive powers of our poverty stricken fatherland."

Besides, the possibilities in Wald. Gold," has taken over the territory and is prepared to begin work on a large scale. In 1646 gold was mined in this district, but following the 30-years-war efforts to continue were given up.

REOPEN THE MINES

This summer German prospectors re-visited the area with an experimental expedition and found that there was sufficient gold available to warrant re-opening of the mines. From the results of these trials it is believed that it will be possible immediately to excavate 70 tons of stone per day and obtain at least nine grams per ton—or more than 600 grams of gold daily.

The company evidently is in earnest, having obtained a staff of experts from South Africa, who know the gold mining game probably as no other group of experts in the world. These men declare their opinion is that the Fichtel mountain district will yield as much gold per ton of waste as the mines in Johannesburg.

Summer Gambling Vogue This Year At Monte Carlo

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

Monte Carlo (By mail to United Press).—Gambling at the famous casino here is beginning to be an all-year-round proposition.

Summer time is usually respite time around the green tables where the games of chance are played. But this summer, contrary to expectations, promises to break all records for attendance and gambling enthusiasm.

Every table every afternoon and evening is filled with gamblers—and they are not all tourists from the States as one might think.

"The French themselves are sticking this summer," one of the attendants declared to the United Press. "Many of the big hotels in Nice and Monte Carlo, which always closed during the summer season before, are staying open this year because business is so good. We are getting a lot of Americans, but a look around the place will show you that the French are here in droves."

A look around proved that very thing. Admitted to the gambling halls without question when an American passport is presented, tourists find the place alive with the workers after weeks—and most of them are French.

"I don't understand it," the informant declared, "unless the people are getting more reckless as time goes on. I guess it's the jazz age—folks seem to blame the jazz age for everything."

Mexican Railways Begin Advertising and Colonizing

By FREDERICK G. NEUMEIER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, Mexico (By mail to United Press).—The industrial department of the National Railway Lines of Mexico is beginning a big advertising and publicity campaign in the United States.

Offices have been opened in Chicago and lecturers will tour the United States and Canada, exhibits will be established and advertising matter sent to all parts of both countries.

This is the first step since the revolution taken by the industrial department of the railways to advance industry in Mexico.

In view of the fact that recognition of Mexico by the United States seems in the offing, the National Railway Lines of Mexico is expecting a big influx of commercial representatives and tourists to this country and an impetus in freight as well as passenger business.

J. B. Rowland, well known in the middle west and western parts of the United States, is the chief of the industrial department. He is preparing a plan of advertising and propaganda which will extend through the entire United States and Canada.

He is at present terminating arrangements with a group of capitalists from Kansas City and San Antonio for colonization in Mexico. Offices of this colonization organization will be established in the leading centers of the United States and Europe.

Particularly choice lands owned by the government of Mexico will be turned over to this company, which will work in close harmony with the industrial department of the railroad.

U. S. Scientists Ready in Mexico For Sun's Eclipes

Philadelphia, Aug. 27 (United Press).—Deep down in the hills of Mexico, near Yerbanis State of Durango, an American astronomical expedition, headed by Dr. John A. Miller, vice-president of Swarthmore College and director of the Philadelphia Sproul Astronomical Observatory, is waiting to observe a solar eclipse on September 10.

The scientists, while observing the eclipse of the sun, plan to test the Einstein theory on the blending of light. Dr. Miller claims that if the Einstein theory is true, the ray of light coming from a star, near so large a body of the sun, would be sent out of its course.

Stars apparently in the neighborhood of the sun would not appear in the same position at the time of the eclipse as they did some months before.

The test of the theory will be made in a comparison of the starry field made on the day of the eclipse with the photographs of the same field made some months before.

Dr. Miller, also aims to solve the problem of the release of energy by the sun, which he believes may be comparable to the release of energy by the atom. The tests will be made by a sixty-foot camera.

Ten other similar groups of scientists will observe the same eclipse from different points and then compare their photographic records on the phenomena.

Professor W. W. Campbell, of the Lick Observatory, last year virtually verified the Einstein theory when he photographed the eclipse from Australia. The value of the work was lessened by a small refraction and Dr. Miller plans to further carry on the verification.

With Dr. Miller are Mrs. Miller, Prof. R. W. Merritt and Mrs. Merritt; Prof. R. W. Wright, of Swarthmore; Prof. H. D. Curtis, director of the Allegheny Observatory; Prof. Sinsmere Alter, of the University of Kansas; three students from Swarthmore and two students from Harvard.

COMING HOME WITH RICHES FOR MUSEUM

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Four expeditions of curators in the service of science, who have been exploring uncharted wilernesses in several parts of the world, are expected to return soon to their home institution here, the Field Museum of Natural History. The Museum has seven parties in the field at present.

Dr. E. S. Riggs is penetrating the unknown interior of Argentina in search of prehistoric animals, declared by scientists to be a most perilous task. The investigator has to face hostile tribes, irresponsible workmen and the danger of climbing precipitous cliffs in search of specimens. Sometimes he must employ a small army to bring back his finds.

Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of the department of anthropology, is penetrating southern China in an effort to discover the century-old secrets of that land. He will make a study of the language and culture of strange aboriginal tribes said to have lived in China long before the Chinese came.

Dr. O. C. Farrington and a party is studying the diamond mines of Brazil. Dr. F. C. Cole is in Java where he has been studying the customs and culture of the people. Contrary to the belief of the explorer, Dr. Cole is said by the curators to have been able to learn from the latest reports by automobile with the greatest ease.

Dr. J. Allen Mason is in Colombia, where he has been studying the ancient civilization of that land, thought to be entirely destroyed centuries before the coming of the Spaniards. Another party is headed by Dr. W. H. Osgood, who will remain in Peru and Chile, where he has been collecting rare tropical birds.

LIQUOR 'PLANT' IS FOUND IN BARN

Officers Seize 1,500 Gallons of Alcohol Near Whitby

Whitby, Aug. 8.—Following a liquor seizure near here early Saturday morning by 13 provincial officers under Inspector Paxton of the Provincial Police, the Government dispensaries were enriched with 1,500 gallons of alcohol worth $40,000.

In connection with the raid two Willys-Knight touring cars bearing Ontario licenses and a Buick coupe bearing an American license were confiscated. The liquor was found stored in a barn in four gallon containers on the farm of Mark Holiday. Holiday disclaims any knowledge of how the liquor got there.

The police had been working on the case for several days, and were in possession of information that the liquor was being shipped from Montreal to Whitby by boat.

Joe Fiemers, of Niagara street, Toronto, was arrested in connection with the seizure, and it is believed further summonses will be served. When the Provincial Police came upon the men, License Inspector Mason fired several shots. The gang took to the woods, leaving their cars behind, but Joe Fiamora was captured.

On investigation it was found that 997 four gallon cans had been buried in the grain fields.

It is believed that the liquor was brought to shore late Thursday night, unloaded, stored away, and was ready for delivery when discovered. Everything was brought to the city today.

CHILD'S LETTER TO "UNCLE" HOOVER

Moscow, Russia (By mail to United Press).—Herbert Hoover may be "The Honorable" in official and diplomatic circles, but to about five million Russian youngsters he is "Uncle" Hoover. Of the hundreds of letters daily pouring into American Relief Administration headquarters in Moscow perhaps the most appealing are those addressed to "Uncle" Hoover from his tiny "nephews." Here is a typical child letter translated literally.

"Dear Uncle Hoover: For half a year sister and I have had dinner in your kitchen in Petrograd. Had you not thus helped us, we should have died of hunger. God bless you and your children for that good deed. Now we are better off, papa is working and on Sundays we even eat meat. We should like very much to correspond with somebody of the American children. We can write in Russian and German. Yours gratefully, Ernest and Norah Pirvits, Kazanskaya 45, flat 36, Petrograd."

Italy Seeks Famous Gem From ex-Empress

Geneva, Aug. 28 (United Press)—Rome newspaper indicate that the Italian government will try to prevent ex-Empress Zita disposing of the famous diamond known as the "Florentine," which formerly adorned the family jewel chest of the Habsburgs.

The stone was pledged, with other jewels, by the ex-Emperor Karl to a Swiss bank, to defray the last illfated dash for the Austrian throne, but as Zita needs money urgently, she is understood to be selling her rights of redemption of these jewels.

The "Florentine" is one of the world's most famous diamonds and weighs 139½ carats. It is valued by experts at 30,000,000 Italian lire. Its early history is tragic. Four and a half centuries ago a peasant, looting the dead among the walls of Metz (France) during the siege of that city by Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, discovered the jewel on the finger of a body which had been half-eaten by wolves. The body was that of the Bold Burgundian.

The peasant sold the ring to a Jew for a few silver coins, and through various channels, and at every increasing price, the "Florentine" found its way to the coffers of the famous Austria family. Throne in the course of years, and by methods which have always been regarded as of doubtful legality if touched the Habsburgs.

At the downfall of the Austro-Hungarian empire, the Italian government claimed the "Florentine" among its share of the Austrian crown jewels handed over under the Versailles treaty but the Emperor Karl had other views and took it with him when he left Austria hurriedly. Karl used it to raise money, but the Italian government never admitted the legality of his possession of the jewel, and now that Zita is reported to be selling it, the Rome authorities are taking action to prevent the sale.

By The Side Of The Road

J. K. Pappenheimer, the Toronto bargain man, who has been hailed into bankruptcy court, says he is worth $100,000 in the north. Apparently his creditors feel somebody has been "going south". However, if Mr. J. K. Pappenheimer doesn't make any use of his $100,000 he will be O.K.

He hasn't resided long enough in Oshawa, it is charged. It would seem that one day would be "long enough" to fire in Oshawa. Anyway, if Dairy Lamb soother winster here tomorrow there will be some who will want him to "get off the earth" completely.

Premier Poincare's attitude is to mindful of the signs in some bowling alleys—"If you can't pay don't play."

A NEGLECTED HERITAGE

The plea of Estavian William Gillies for more regular and general attendance at church and more orthodox observance of the Sabbath, otherwise, would sound strange in the ears of our long-suffering forefathers who were oft-times afflicted by the early Christians, to assemble clandestinely for their devotions.

Many of the great epoch-making migrations to the new continent had their inception in the desire to escape religious intolerance. Faithful members of various religious sects struggled heroically to establish themselves in a wild and hostile land, suffering well-night unbearable privations for the sake of their faith which to them was a fetish.

To-day we, their descendants, possess the priceless heritage of religious freedom, largely because of their transcendent reverence for what we hold it lightly. We play golf and motor on Sunday or, as Mr. Cairns shrewdly observes, pass the day "trying about the house unshaven and unclean."

Over in Communist Russia and in other European countries, Rev. Mr. Kechnie tells us, Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians and those of other denominations are being persecuted and imprisoned because of their faith, but are persevering even as did our ancestors.

We, in Canada, with stately piles, covering ideal accommodation, at our disposal, many of them empty, hear the parson's gospel at the morning and evening services in our respective churches. Yet in those trying early days our ancestors foregathered in rude log cabins, 100 per cent strong, to worship God, which services took place in the wilderness about them and Indians intent upon massacre skulked about their crude houses of worship.

We have thoroughly competent, highly trained and splendidly educated preachers, and we can listen to well-balanced, interesting and instructive sermons. But we don't.

Perhaps if we were to give religion the consideration it deserves and bring to the churches some of the co-operation and energy we contribute to our business affairs the great heritage we have received from our forefathers would not be so lightly held.

AGRICULTURAL GAINS

Just now, with the eyes of thousands of prospective emigrants in the Old World, focussed on Canada, the statistical record of her agricultural development during the past three years is illuminating to potential Canadians and well worth the consideration of native Canadians.

Canada's total wheat crop in 1920 was 263,189,300 bushels, the average yield per acre being 14.50 bushels. Her wheat output in 1921 was 300,888,100 bushels and the average yield per acre was 16.57 bushels. In 1922 the total yield was 399,734,400 bushels, an average of 17.75 bushels per acre. This shows an increase of 136,597,100 bushels or more than 51 per cent.

There is however, indication of a slight decline in the production of other products. The corn output in 1920 was 14,343,900 bushels (husking) and 8,641,780 bush. (fodder). The figures for 1921 were 14,904,000 bushels (husking) and 8,361,600 bush. (fodder). In 1922 the yield of husking corn was 13,798,000 bushel and the fodder corn output was 8, 879,000 tons. Potatoes show a mark of decline as do roots, but a clever show a fair increase over the three-year period and the alfalfa yield has mounted from 683,790 ton in 1920 to 806,400 tons in 1922.

Despite the drop in the production of potatoes the amount of "certified seed" potatoes shipped to the southern Atlantic seaboard, increased from 597,852 bushels in 1920 to 1, 208,289 bushels in 1922.

Swine increased from 3,516,671 head in 1920 to 3,916,684 in 1922 milch cows from 3,530,238 head to 3,746,804 head; other cattle from 5,947,142 to 5,974,065 and poultry from 30,505,810 to 31,422,210. On the whole a marked gain is evidenced.

The figures indicate a healthful and flourishing condition and they emphasize the need of an increase agricultural population. A large number of farmers will eventually stimulate intensive and diversified agriculture, thus increasing the production of supplementary crops and avoiding the risks attendant on the "one crop" plan. Settlers can accomplish this and become wealthy in the accomplishment. Canada has the land, the opportunities and the need. Europe has the settlers. An introduction of these settlers into Canada is a great movement of mutual benefit which should be stimulated and encouraged on both sides of the Atlantic.

BLUE MONDAY'S TRAGEDIES

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

"Blue Monday" seems fairly fated to bring in its train a list of weekend tragedies. This time the burning of the steamboat Scotia on the Lake of Bays caused a thrill of horror in the hearts of those who are familiar with the resort as well as of those who know it only by name.

The most tragic part of the situation is that the fire was most likely due to carelessness. It is supposed to have been caused by a cigaret which was carelessly thrown into an elevator shaft.

A large building destroyed in about sixteen minutes, several lives lost, and a number of guests and employes burnt or injured—all through the carelessness of one person—how did not stop to think.

Most accidents are caused by lack of forethought. In nine cases out of ten tragedy could have been averted by an exercise of care on the part of some individual. And yet there are many who never will learn a lesson from such a catastrophe as that of last night at the popular boating. Men will continue to throw lighted cigars or coals into places where inflammable material soon does its part, towards promoting a tragedy. Glowing matches will still find their way into waste-paper baskets and similar receptacles. "Millions" will be wasted yearly in the demolition of forest lands owing to the indifference of campers and careless travellers.

Experience is a costly teacher. In spite of all, there are some who never will learn from lesson and the sad part of it is that these are the unscrupulous fellows from their own folly. As in the case of Sunday night's fire many careful and practical people lost their lives or had them endangered by one careless and impractical individual who never stopped to think of the very consequences of one small act of folly.

VIRTUOUS ONTARIO

(New York Times)

The (Ontario) Government derives a revenue from race-track gambling, while the traffic betting is a crime, to be encouraged by every good citizen for it fattens the provincial treasury. The bookmaker is a privileged and protected character at the tracks. There betting is mortally noble, legal economically sound but the mere record of past betting elsewhere is a contamination from which Ontario must be preserved and a crime for which the vendor of that record is punished. A race-track bookmaker is a prop of the state, its partner, its beneficiary. A poor devil outside the track, who ventures to trespass on the Government monopoly, must pay $100 and costs or go to jail for three months for keeping betting odds in his store.

We understand that the Institute of France will award the next Monthyon prize for "the work most useful to morals" in the year 1923 to the Ontario Legislature.

MOST UNPATRIOTIC CITIZENS

(Flint Journal)

It's a strike done come and the Pres ident lives up to his reputation and sets with a strong arm, we believe this country will have gone far to wards ridding itself of enslavement to the operators and miners of the Pennsylvania coal district. As was brought out in these columns the other day, according to a member of the coal commission the difficulty between operators and miners over the check-off and wage agreement could be settled in twelve hours. But it isn't being done. The whole nation is going to suffer inconveniences if the lock-out is decided on. We nominate as the most unpatriotic people in America the operators and miners of the anthracite coal mines.

MOULDERS OF CHARACTER

(Washington Post)

While professors, statesman and are as liable to all the imperfections of humanity as any other group of individuals, still the average nation in their calling tends to hedge them around with a certain aura of respect and, therefore, to give them a position, a high standing in public esteem. It is plainly inadvisable to drag them down from this pedestal on which popular opinion has places them. The education of the young is a noble task and the interest in their future those who conduct it should not only be, but should also be considered, good and honorable and of irreproachable character.

FINANCIAL CRIMES

(Flint Journal)

A prominent expert attributes the increase in financial crimes to discontent, envy, unpopularity, desire for the deposit earning capacity, carelessness of people whose funds are stolen, unfairly gotten, and widespread disrespect for property rights and law, caused partly by the World War." That last reason may be the most important one. Comparing the national crime bill with the total income of the American people, about one dollar in each fifteen dollars or twenty dollars that is produced by honest effort is stolen by the parasites.

Wit and Humor

LITTLE PLACE-NAMES.

"There are villages in Great Britain and Ireland whose names are written with two letters only. In Derbyshire has a population of 200, while Ta is the name of an island in Vancouver Point, Queen Charlotte. There are two Ba's in Scotland and Ba is a town in Donegal. One of Switzerland is a T—and we could go on indefinitely."

Canada appears to have no post-office with two-letter name. New Brunswick has Roy, Quebec has Bic, Cyr, Oka and Low, Ontario has Ash, Ayr, Ivy, Don, Rmo, Hay, Ivy, Leo, Oba and Tay. In the western provinces there are Dot, Ink, Fox, Gem, Ida, Kew, Leo, Orr, Ste, Ste, Ron, Roy, Uno, Uxk, and Wye.

PEACE AT ANY PRICE

Two women in a train coach argued concerning the window, and at last one of them called the conductor.

"If this window is open," she declared, "I shall catch cold and will probably die."

"If the window is shut the other announced," I will suffocate."

The two glared at each other.

The conductor was at a loss, but he remembered words of wisdom which he heard. These were: "First, open the window. That will suit one. Next shut it. That will fill the other. Then we can have peace."

"Don't you despise gossip?"

"Not always," replied the film star. "It may be made a first-rate advertising medium."

FAITH IN COOLIDGE

Mr. Coolidge will surprise the nation if he does not act definitely on this vital matter of fuel as soon as he can determine what is the proper course to take. The man who broke the Boston police strike will not be supine in a national emergency.

The Bull and The Bear Discuss The Business Situation

Explanatory Note:—While this article is intended for business men, it takes for the names of its characters the well-known "Bull" and "Bear" of the Stock Exchange. On the Stock Exchange the man who takes a bright outlook and declares stocks are going up is called a "Bull." The one who takes a gloomy view and says stocks are going down is known as a "Bear."

IT was a bright, sunny day and Bull was whistling cheerily as he turned a corner quickly and almost bumped into an old acquaintance, Mr. Bear.

"Why, hello Bear, isn't this a glorious day? Makes a fellow glad he's alive."

"It will take more than a bit of sunshine to make me forget how bad things are in this country," growled Mr. Bear.

"Oh, come now. You'll feel better after a good meal," said Bull, with a smile. "Let's drop into the Blueberry Inn."

"Can't afford it, Bull. I'm economizing. Just a sandwich and a bottle of milk."

"Rot," snorted Bull. And taking the protesting Bear by the arm he led him to the Blueberry Inn.

Lunch ordered and the soup on the table, Mr. Bull gently inquired—

"What's upsetting you, Bear? Your business hasn't gone to the wall, has it?"

"Well, no," grudgingly admitted Bear. "But things will never be any good in this country. We are swamped with debt." And a tear dropped out of Bear's eye into his soup.

"Nonsense, Bear. Canada's national debt is only $300,177 per head—and a large part of it is excellently invested in national railways, and public works. The National Railways are getting on their feet. The Dominion Net Debt was reduced $6,000,000 during July. Our debt is now only about one-third per head of that of Great Britain. Do you mean to tell me a Canadian cannot carry a third as much debt on his shoulders as an Englishman?"

"But we are so poor," whined Bear.

"Don't be ridiculous. We are not poor. And by way of emphasis Bull brought his fist down on the table with such a bang that the salt and pepper shakers danced a fox trot. "At the present time," continued Mr. Bull, "Canadians have one and three-quarter billions of dollars invested in Dominion of Canada Bonds. In 1918, Canadians only held 18 per cent. of Canadian Government Bonds. Now we own 68.7 per cent. of them. A positive full sign of financial strength. We also have one and a quarter billions in the Savings Banks and half a billion in demand deposits in the Banks."

"But the individual Canadian, Bull. He has no money. He's up against it. It's pretty tough."

"Beg pardon," broke in the solicitous waiter. "Did you say the lamb was tough? I thought it was very tender and juicy!"

"No, it's all right," Bear replied.

"You were saying the individual Canadian has no money," said Bull. "Well, he has savings in the banks equal to $800 per family. During the past three years he has increased his per capita investment in Canadian Government bonds no less than 35 per cent. Experts declare that the wealth of Canada figures out at 92,000 per head, not counting undeveloped water power, farm land and mineral fields."

"Is that so, Bull? That's surprising. I had a bad idea we were that well off.

But if all you say is true, what makes business so rotten?" And Bear was so overcome with emotion he choked on a piece of carrot!

"Easy there, Bear. Business isn't rotten. In fact, our international trade is very large, and our exports exceed our imports which is a very healthy sign. Our foreign trade per head of population stands among the highest of commercial nations, being $102 per capita in 1922-23 as compared with $135 in 1918-19, the "peak" year before the war.

"Furthermore, Bear, just look at the number of new residences that have been built in Canada—one hundred million dollars worth of them during the past twelve months. People can't build all these houses unless they have money.

"There's hardly any unemployment, either—a sure sign that business is good."

"May be so, Bull," half-heartedly admitted Mr. Bear.

"There's every probability business will be better. Canada is going to have good crops. The wheat crop in the west is a very satisfactory one. That should make a pessimist like you give three rousing cheers."

Mr. Bear smiled for the first time at this remark, which encouraged Bull to continue:

"Canada cannot help but go ahead, Bear. Not even the pessimists can stop her, though they can hold her back.

"Canada has greater natural resources than all the countries of Europe combined. No other country has as large an area of rich virgin lands open for settlement. There are only 50,000,000 acres under cultivation out of a total of 350,000,000 fit for tillage.

"Right here along Canada's sea coasts and in her lakes and rivers are the world's most extensive and best stocked fishing waters. In our vast forests is the greatest supply of pulpwood in the world. And Canada takes the lead in furs, too."

"That's most interesting, Bull," broke in Mr. Bear, and would have continued, but Bull silenced him with a wave of his hand.

"Wait 'till I finish, Bear. Do you know that 85 per cent of the world's production of nickel and Asbestos is produced in Canada? 85 per cent of the world's supply of nickel is mined here. We are now one of the greatest silver and gold producing countries of the world. Our riches are almost unbelievable, Bear. Why, man alive, if there is any country in the world that is certain to enjoy good times it is Canada.

"Perhaps you're right, Bull. But all the same business isn't good with me."

"It might be better if it's Boss wasn't so pessimistic."

"What do you mean, Bull?" Mr. Bear didn't know whether to be angry or curious.

"Just this, Bear. If you go around talking blue ruin, if you keep feeding your travellers a line of talk expressing pessimistic talk, they, being only human, will take their cue from you and feed the same kind of dope to the trade. The trade will think your line is a slow seller and will buy sparingly, or not at all."

"Hum. May be some truth in what you say," said Bear, thoughtfully, stroking his chin.

"There's a whole lot, Bear. The trade and the public want to buy best sellers. By the way, what have you done to push sales?"

"Push sales! Why I've made life miserable for my Sales Manager and hounded my travellers. I've reduced salaries, fired three travellers and divided their territories among the other fellows, and given them more work to do. I cut our advertising in two at the beginning of the year. Later on I cut it out altogether. But things don't seem to improve. What have you done, Bull?"

"Well, I planned to go after business harder than ever. I added an Assistant Sales Manager, a real live wire! I sent my Sales Manager out a couple of days a week to help the boys tackle the hard nuts or go after the big fellows. And I went on some road trips myself, just to get into intimate touch with the situation. Then I got out a couple of bright window trim ideas for the retailers' use. And I increased my national advertising by a third."

"Well, you had your nerve, Bull!"

"Better call it Faith, Bear. I also instructed our travellers to talk faith in Canada, to be optimistic, to carry a message of courage, good cheer and confidence into every store they entered.

"Boys," I said:

"Have Faith in Canada

have faith in yourself, have faith in your goods, have faith in your Company, have faith in the advertising, and we will surely put things over."

"How are things going, Bull?"

"Fine! We are selling goods. Our men are full of pep and confidence. The dealers like our optimistic talk. Our increased advertising shows them we really have faith in Canada and are after business hard. They're responding with bigger orders and are behind our goods. When the tide of good times sweeps across the country as it surely will be, we are well-organized to cash in big. In fact, the tide is already rising. The Savings Bank deposits are higher than ever before. Last year, ago, which indicates a big increase in the buying power of Canadians."

"Well, it must be going now, Bull. I certainly enjoyed such a good lunch. And your talk about faith in Canada has given me food for thought. I think I'll go out and buy some new clothes and don the mantle of optimism. It's hard for a Bear to become a Bull, but I'll do my best to show my faith in Canada. You know I'm really proud I'm a Canadian even if I do growl and grouch. And in my heart I believe you've got the right dope, Bull."

Protest Against Trunks-Oshawa Game On Saturday To Be Heard Here After Second Clash With Oshawa Tomorrow Afternoon

Last Saturday's protest game will be threshed out at a meeting of the league officers, committee and representatives of the Oshawa and Belleville teams in the Quinte Hotel tomorrow afternoon following the game with Oshawa.

Evidence certainly points to the fact that Delehy has been dodging the residence rule with full knowledge of the Oshawa City Club.

Should Belleville win to-morrow and the protest be sustained then a third game will not be necessary and the Trenton outfit go to the Capital to look up with St. Pat's on Saturday. Oshawa are bringing a large crowd of supporters down for to-morrow's game. The motor town grew have high hopes of winning the Central League what can they lose by a trip to with only Patton to rely upon. Pat has long reigned the stage where he was a good pitcher. His arm is now practically gone after many years of service. The Oshawa manager will probably send Patton against the railroaders and save "Duke" Dainty for Thursday's game if the case is upheld. If the Trunks get a few "breaks" and their pitcher is in form they should win the victory hands down.

Manager Gerow has not announced his pitching selection but most fans can guess who it will be. A large crowd will no doubt greet the gladalors when the "umps" call "play ball."

Mr. Powers of the Queen's Hotel this morning states that the seat sale for bleacher ticket holders is coming along in great style, Sale of bleacher tickets for the general public will open in the morning.

Rumors of a double header are flying around but this is the first "stories" talk" and there is no truth in the matter.

Good weather is all that is needed to make to-morrow's game the banner local baseball classic of the season.

Dedman Notified

President M. J. Dedman of Lindsay, Secretary of the Central League, this afternoon that Belleville has protested the Oshawa victory on Saturday, claiming that Harold Dainty did not qualify under the residence rule of Jan. 1st.

The protest will be heard at Belleville Wednesday night following the League game.

The third game between Oshawa and Belleville, should one be necessary, will be played in Peterboro on Thursday afternoon next.

One Day's Rest

President M. J. Dedman, of Lindsay, received word on Friday last that the Central League must decide the winner by Thursday night of this week in order to send a winner to play off in the semi-finals with Ottawa on Saturday. The C. O. B. I.

To decide a winner this week means two tall hustling, and strenuous work on the part of either Belleville or Oshawa. On Wednesday the team from Belleville will be followed and must play a third game, if such is necessary. This will allow only one day's rest before the team goes up against the St. Pats, of Ottawa.

It is expected that Oshawa will pitch Patten at Belleville this week, and if a third game is necessary, will then pitch Dainty. Belleville is expected to pitch the Indian at home on Wednesday.

The Shoemen failed to arrive last evening and, defaulted their fixture to the Printers who were promptly on deck and ready for the fray. Consequently it will be necessary for the Shoemen to win Thursday night's game. This league has demonstrated the fact that there is plenty of material for future ball teams both of hard and soft variety. Some features of the games Wednesday night were Harry Bayley, "Stub" Barrett, "Jerry" Murphy and Earl Chapman and still keep up with the younger members.

A number of gentlemen have been flightly attendants at these games and witness some real baseball coupled with a little comedy low and then. The home plate has suddenly disappeared. Cord. Platt took especial pains to make the plate and some kill-joy walks off with it. The boys hope the guilty party will return it in proper place.

Efficient umpiring has been one bright light of the league. "Doc" Pentiffee, "Archie" Leslie, "Stub" Barrett and Stan Nurse rendered excellent service.

Don't forget to-night's and Thursday's game and be liberal with your support. Below is the present standing of the league.

BATTLING BUG IS WANTED IN JERSEY

By CLARENCE DUBOSE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Tokyo, (By mail to United Press).—American highbinders are on the warpath in Japan

There are looking for a ferocious insect, the most precious the heiter, and when they find the creature they are going to send him, and as many of his kin as they can find, to every possible, straight back to America and turn 'em loose on a beetle that's been ravaging crops in parts of the United States.

Seven or eight years ago some fruit trees shipped from Japan to New Jersey contained in the earth about the tree-roots some insect grubs that the plant quarantine inspectors at the American port failed to find. The grubs got by. When they reached New Jersey they became beetles and applied themselves industriously to propagating their species and eating up everything, in sight. They've been doing both things ever since.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture sent to Japan a couple of the best entomologists. "Since these beetles are Japan," said the department, "they must have insect enemies in Japan. Because all insects have enemies. So go to Japan. Find another beetle or a bug or a beast or bird or something that just naturally hates this first beetle like pizen and tries to kill him on sight. When you find that creature send us all you can get. We'll turn 'em loose on Beetles No. 1, and there'll be a cruel war in New Jersey."

The highbinders haven't found what they want yet—but they're still looking.

'SANDY' DIAGNOSES DEFEAT OF PETES

Attributes Downfall of Solomon's Crew to "One-Cylinder" Hurling Plan

Sandy Lockington sympathizes with Al. Heckman and says the Petes' downfall can be partially attributed to Jake Solomon's failure to secure a help-mate for the blonde who has twirled two games a week since May the 1st. Two so-called American stars were imported but their work did not set Central league fandom agog. Sandy's speech is revealed below:—

"Advice, like medicine is easier given than taken. When Frank Hope struggled along in the Central League depending upon Bill Dray to do all the ground duty, Jake Solomon told us that we never could have a successful ball team with one pitcher. But with a heavier schedule of games Jake placed the whole pitching responsibility upon Heckman's should-ers.

"Ever since the middle of May Heckman has been pitching twice a week, Wednesday and Saturday, and although the spirit was willing the flesh would not endure. In the last, most important games of the season, Heckman weakened and the championship was snatched from Peterboro. At Oshawa last Wednesday Peterboro was leading at the end of the seventh innings; only two paltry runs had been scored against Oshawa was won. But that old right arm of Heckman's lost just a little of its pep and of course you know what happened. Had Manager Solomon imported a h ipsate for Heckman, instead of a first base man, he might have been playing off with Oshawa today."

SOFT-BALL RACE NARROWS TO THREE

Derby Club, Tiger Tires and Shoemen Survive—Latter Two Clash To-night

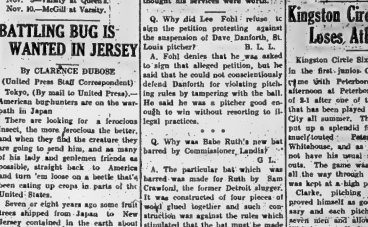

The Belleville Soft Ball League race is now drawing to a close and has narrowed down considerably. It has undoubtedly been one of the most successful leagues ever formed in the city. The games were all closely-contested, everybody was on time, there was very little "rowdyism" and, last but not least everybody had a barrel of fun, Seven teams were entered and the championship rests between three of them, the Derby Club, Tiger Tire and Shoemen are still very much in the running. Tonight's game between the Shoemen and Tiger Tire is bound to eliminate one or the other. Platt's team started off with a bang and cleaned up everything in sight. But losing their pitcher and other players the tire builders were weakened considerably and fell before the oncoming rush of the Derby Club. The latter are a lefty aggregation and have thus far cleaned up everything in sight although Stub Barrett's Mess Hall them stepping one night last week. Finally the club boys pulled out on the long end of a 6-5 score. Manahan has gathered a bunch of youngsters who are full of pep and are real handy with the willow. In Weir and Latchford he has a first-rate battery who can stop the best of them. Latchford tries hard, has a great throw and is a great slugger. The infield is the all-star variety and very seldom does the ball get through. The outfield is equally strong and the fly-catching end everything. This titular battle will be pulled off on Thursday night when Shoemen meet the Derby Club. The Shoe clerks with such well-known players as Bill Dench, Jake Hutcheson, Bill Canning, "Peg" Woodley and Mc-Alpine are not to be overlooked and still give the Derby Club the battle of their young lives. It will be a great game and baseball fans will do well to be at the High School grounds at 6.15 Thursday night. Ken Colling and Sunny Prechette will be on deck to officiate. Players must remember that darkness settles early and it is essential that proceedings should start at 6.15 promptly.

QUEEN'S RUGBY TEAM TO REPORT SEPTEMBER 17TH

Kingston, Aug. 28.—"Doc" Campbell, this season's captain of the Queen's Senior Intercollegiate rugby team, has sent out orders to the members of the team to report on the morning of Monday, September 17th, for practice at Queen's University Stadium. This is the first move of the present Dominion championship, this season and marks the first move in rugby for Queen's since they got away from this last season after defeating the Eskimos.

It is expected that all players will be at hand by the 17th of the month in order to start the grind. Rumors that Doc Campbell and Johnny Evans would not don the moleskins this season have been discard as both men will be on the job, thus insuring Queen's of one of the best quarters in the game in Evans while Campbell is a very valuable man also. Harry Batstone will arrive in town some time during the month second week in September while Leadley will also be on the scene about that time. The prospects for the team look bright, despite the criticisms of outsiders who think that they know all that's going on at Queen's in regard to rugby matters, Queen's will have practically the same team that has been intact though there will be two or three who played last year that will not figure in the Tricolor line-up this year. Harding and one or two others. There are rumors about that Walker will be playing with the Tricolors before the end of weeks ago, Walker stated he was in great shape. The Kingston man stated that he was in better condition than he's ever been. Adams and Airth will play their old positions this fall. Ian Hughes of Montreal will be here on the 12th of the month to take charge of the boys and they will start right in to prepare for their first game on October 6th with McGill at Montreal. Close veils are being worn again, those with the square mesh are particularly popular. They are worn with the small severe clothes and turbans.

LONG BEADS.

The newest beads come in extremely long strings, some of them reaching to the knees. Sometimes a cluster of larger beads is far worn.

TRYING TO PREVENT LIES IN FIGURES

By HENRY WOOD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, Aug. 27. (United Press)—For the purpose of keeping statistics from lying so much in the future, as they have in the past, the International Labor Bureau has just summoned an international conference of statistics to be held at Geneva October 29.

Some sixty odd nations, constituting virtually every nation in the world that is sufficiently advanced in its system of administration as to keep statistics, are expected to have delegations present.

The fundamental purpose of the conference is to arrive at a common basis of labor statistics for all countries. The International labor bureau has found that this is necessary if there is ever to be established any effective basis for a scientific international study of labor and social problems.

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillen Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her From an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians and specialists at $5 a visit, they said at last that I positively would not reach my home alive and I should have an operation performed for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in different papers where women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again. So I began to take it. Gained in flesh. I decided to see what it would do for me, and I have. I finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the worst pains in my sides left me. I am now in good strength and able to do my work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. EFFIE QUILLEN, 1077 Peck St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate that female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

STRING BEANS

String or wax beans are in economical dish in that there is no little waste in the preparation of them. A pound of stringless "string" beans will serve six persons.

This recipe for beans with bacon will surprise a bit different. The dish is very nourishing and should accompany a light meat course.

BEANS WITH BACON

One pound beans, 3 slices bacon.

Snap beans and wax beans, bacon in small pieces. Put it in the sauce pan in which the beans are to be cooked. Try out without adding fat. Cut beans in short lengths and put into sauce pan with bacon fat and bacon. Do not add water. Cover closely and let simmer over a slow fire for 15 minutes. Shake the pan to prevent sticking. Add boiling water if dry and simmer for an hour. Replenish water as necessary, but when beans are nearly done let water cook away. Season with pepper and serve on the dinner plates with meat and potatoes.

Beans are good cooked in combination with other vegetables.

COMBINATION BEANS.

One pound string beans, 2 tomatoes, 1 onion, 2 green peppers, 2 stalks celery, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons olive oil.

Wash and snap beans. Split and cut in short lengths. Put in stew pan and cover with boiling water, tomatoes peeled and cut in slices. Pour boiling water over peppers and let stand five minutes. Remove the thin skin that coats the pepper. Open and take out seeds and white pith. Mince peppers, celery and onion. Add to beans and cook two hours. One half hour before serving add olive oil and seasoning. Serve in shallow dishes.

ITALIAN BEANS.

One pound beans, 1 cup. 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup milk, 1 dessertspoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Wash and snap beans. Cut in long narrow strips. Put in sauce pan of boiling water, and slightly boil about 45 minutes. Drain. Melt butter and add beans. Cover with simmer until tender. Shake the pan to prevent burning. Beat the egg, add cheese, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Add lemon juice to beans. Pour over egg mixture and stir over the fire till very hot. This is a good luncheon dish for a one-dish meal.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

Mr. Selwood heard him return, and lay for some time listening to his peculiar snoring and moaning, in fact of the speech he had delivered at the meeting—and it became very evident to the new occupant of the vicarage that life with Mr. Simeon Slee boy-ruth his rest would not be very pleasant.

"I don't like the idea of turning out the poor woman," he said to himself, as he lay turning from side to side, courting the rest that would not come.

"I've been a bit excited to-day, I suppose, "he muttered; and then he tried all the known recipes short of drugs for obtaining rest, from saying a speech backward to getting out of bed and brushing his hair.

But sleep would not come till close upon morning, for that face before him and those words appealing for Eve Polly, and in the stillness of the night he seemed to be hearing her words again and again—"Poor Polly dear Richard harshly from what you saw this morning."

"Dear Richard, dear Richard, dear Richard"—he found himself repeating over and over again. "And she loves him with strength enough for everything to her, and if she found out that he was a scoundrel it would kill her."

"And set her free," something in the corner of his own seemed to whisper, and he tossed and turned in bed with the perspiration standing on his brow.

ALL NATIONS MARCHING TO ARMAGEDDON But "Millions Now Living Will Never Die."

Mr. J. W. Manson, of the lecture staff of the International Bible Students Association, addressed a large and interested audience in the Grand Theatre Sunday evening in part said:

The commission given by the Lord to the Christian today is two-fold, viz., first to comfort all that mourn, by proclaiming broadcast the news of the blessings Kingdom — which is on earth in other words preaching "good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people" and second to declare unto the nations of earth the judgments of God written in His word regarding these times.

GOD NOT YET DEALING WITH MANKIND IN GENERAL.

From Eden down to our God on the great God of Heaven has not been dealing with the world of mankind in general but has dealt at different periods with certain of them. First with a few individuals in the period from Adam to Jacob; then exclusively with the Jewish nation until that nation for a season was cast off from Divine favor; since then with the Christian alone a little flock all told. Since the Jews were cast off God has in a very limited degree been dealing with the Gentiles gathering from them "a people for His name," the bride of Christ. When this has been accomplished he plainly tells us he will deal with all mankind both the living and the dead, Acts 15: 14-17; Acts 2:17-23 Then will be fulfilled God's oath-bound promise to Abraham namely, that through his seed he would bless ALL the families of the earth. The Jewish Jehovah, who is all-wise and all-powerful, tell us in His Word that which He purposes; shall come to pass Isa. 55:11; Prov. 19:21 then to suppose that the effort put forth by man to convert the world is of God! A hundred years ago there were not six hundred millions heathen in the world, while to-day, after the spending of billions of dollars in foreign lands and the exercising of tremendous physical and mental effort, there are now twice that number; and the world is using if you please, for the supposition that all "Christendom"—so called—is Christian.

ARMAGEDDON

Armageddon is a Hebrew word signifying the Mount of Destruction or the Hill of Megiddo. There Gideon fought the Midianites. There King Saul fought the Philistines. There he has evidently seen fit to associate the name of this famous battle ground with the great controversy between the Truth and Error. Righteous Wrong. God and Mammon; with which the Gentile order will close and the Messianic Age be ushered in. The Bible abounds in allusions to Armageddon. Our Lord Jesus called it "Great Tribulation." Daniel describes it as "a time of trouble such as was not since there was a nation." Peter describes it as a time in which the elements will melt with fervent heat. Zephaniah refers to it as the "day of God's vengeance." The great battle of God Almighty, the battle of Armageddon, the battle between Truth and Error, Justice and Injustice has not as yet been fought in entirety.

A HAPPY SOLUTION.

The close student of prophecy beholds the silver lining, hidden from all eyes those of faith. We see in passing events the signs promised to precede a "second birth" even the birth of a New Age—a New World—the Kingdom of God which will bless all humankind and even the very earth itself. This happy solution is indicated b ythe Lords Word through his prophet. "I will shake all nations and they the Desire of all nations shall come." Haggai 2:7. The establishment of the Messianic Kingdom means the beginning of the Golden Age for which Christendom has been taught and prayed for centuries. It is the time spoken of by the prophet when he says: "Wrong for wicked men turned away from his wickedness which he hath committed and doeth that which is lawful and right he shall save his soul alive, he shall surely live, he shall not die Eze. 18:17-23. Jesus said "if a man keep my sayings he shall never see death." And "whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die. John 8:51; 11:26. These last two Scriptures refer to the time of the establishment of His Kingdom on earth.

The Bible then shows that the only remedy. Let all Christians who love the Lord, and earnestly desire which is at the door and that there is no other remedy. Let all Christians who live in the Lord's name and are looking for the coming of His Kingdom, now participate in spreading the glad tidings that the Lord Jesus is at present, that the present trouble is the forerunner of blessing; and that the time for the blessing of the people with life and happiness is here. Therefore with confidence it is announced that Millions Now Living Will Never Die! Speaking of these Gods prophet says: "Then God is gracious unto him and says, Deliver him from going down into the grave, His flesh shall become fresher than a child's and he shall return to the days of his youth." Job 33: 24-25. The dark night of trouble will soon be past; and shortly the peoples of earth under the righteous reign of Messiah will enjoy peace, liberty, prosperity and life everlasting.

MARKET COMMENT

The report on the unlisted market of last week, issued by A. J. Pattison, Jr., & Co, states that the market lapsed into its usual August Dullness which seems to occur each year at this season. While there was little activity, prices held reasonably well, and but few unabsorbed offerings made their appearance in the market. Durant Motors continued to advance, moving up ¼ of a point to 3.44½, while Hupp Motors in the market, and offerings had to obtain English Electric Preferred cased another point to offered at 40, still decreating interest. At the close no bid was obtainable. Whalen Debentures moved slightly to offered at 98 3-4, without creating interest. The Preferred remained practically unchanged at 17-18½. Studebaker Five Preferred at 40½-43½ and Massey Harris at 46½-48½ closed unchanged from last week-end. Matheson Debentures continued to find a quick sale at 93, with occasional offerings bought up quickly. Simmons Preferred appeared in the market for the first time in many months for Gunns Preferred, the stock being quoted at 30-33, as a result of the trading that occurred. The quotation on King Edward Preferred was unchanged at 30-36 3-4-91, without trading. The Corporation Preferred still continued offered at 40½, no bid. Offerings of Canada Starch Preferred at 50 were unabsorbed, and buyers were not interested in making bids. Alexeria Pacific Ginn Common was quite firm at 10½-11½, while the Preferred was offered down slightly, being quoted at 91-93.

Women Win Fight on Asphalt Plant

Pittsburgh, Aug. 28 (Unit.d Press) —Most cities are accustomed to offering bonuses and other inducements for factories and the like, but not so with McKeesport, a hustling community near here.

McKeesport has just won a long fight, mainly carried on by women, to rid the city of an asphalt plant, which the women claimed blackened their homes, spoiled washings, curtains and carpets and was likely to kill off babies.

The women living in the neighborhood of the asphalt plant appeared before the McKeesport city council and angrily demanded action, holding in their arms suckened faces of their babies and soiled pieces of washing and household goods.

The city council said "Wait." But the women refused to wait and that night tore up a gas line running into the asphalt plant. The plant got its gas some other way and continued to operate clouds of evil smelling smoke over the city.

Then the city of McKeesport obtained an injunction but the plant continued making asphalt, because the president of the asphalt company said he could not afford to move and employes of the firm and still work continued. Finally the president of the asphalt plant got fed up with the objections and entered into an agreement whereby the plant is to be moved to a distance some miles from the city limits.

To make sure, however, the city of McKeesport at the insistance of the women placed a guard at the plant and demanded a bond of $2,000.

Music & Drama

AGNES AYRES HAS DELIGHTFUL VEHICLE IN "DAUGHTER OF LUXURY."

A wholesome, entertaining comedy-drama is "A Daughter of Luxury," Agnes Ayres' latest Paramount starring vehicle which was successfully presented at Griffin's theatre last night before a large and appreciative audience.

The picture conveys no moral message, but it fulfills the prime purpose of any good picture—entertainment and amusement of its audience. It runs smoothly and by nature of its treatment is not overdone or too illogical in developing. The story of the situations that might easily be interpreted as possibilities, but they are so handled as to keep them in the lighter vein.

Miss Ayres has a unique role as Mary Paxton, girl who grows up in luxury, who is left destitute. She searches in vain for work, and finally is turned out of the cheap hall bedroom she has taken because she has no money to pay the rent. Mary is walking the streets hungry when by accident she meets a man named Owen, a stranger. When he invites her to his hotel apartment to have tea—the dining room being closed—Mary is forced to choose between propriety and hunger. She accepts Owen's invitation and thereupon there follows a series of rather astonishing experiences the young woman who is plunged in several highly embarrassing situations. She is forced to pose as a model by her host, and adding to her trouble there is a jewel burglary in which she figures.

The supporting cast is admirable, including Tom Gallery, leading man, Edward Martindel, Sylvia Ashton, Calla Pitta, Robert Schable and Clarence Burton.

An original My Mayor Travelogue, an interesting jungle story, and an amusing Charlie Murray comedy were also exhibited.

RICHARD DIX AT THE REGENT IN STORY OF BREATHLESS ADVENTURE

What person with an ounce of red blood in his veins who does recover a youthful thrill at a tale of a search for hidden treasure? The old time thrills have been recaptured and imprisoned for all time in celluloid by Dorothy Dix Morris in Goldwyn's film version of his story "Yellow Men and Gold," which is now being exhibited at the Regent Theatre.

The absorbing tale of adventure and conflict on a island in the South Seas partakes of a romantic fervor, lively action and picturesque color to be found in Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island." Two rival factions set out for a lonely island off which an old Spanish galleon laden with treasures was sunk. A convulsion of nature has thrown the galleon up above the water until it rests, like the skeleton of a whale, upon one of the highest points of land.

About this skeleton of this old ship occurs much of the action of the picture. Physical prowess and endurance of an unusual sort was called for on the part of Richard Dix, Helene Chadwick, Henry Barrows, Rosemary Theby, Richard Tucker and Noble Johnson and the other actors in depicting the scenes on the island. Fight for love fight to rapid succession, each one more strenuous and thrilling than the one preceding it.

"Yellow Men and Gold" was directed by Irvin Willat and he has succeeded in imbuing the film with the colorful speed, picturesqueness and character values of the original story. It is a tale that will have a spectator forgetful even of the final foot that has been unreeled.

A Sunshine Comedy, Fox News, and interesting chapter of "The Eagle's Talon's" serial was also exhibited during the evening.

Promises Stout Counter Action

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, yesterday served notice on the anthracite miners and operators that their differences must be settled and the threatened coal strike averted.

Unless this is done he told them, the state of Pennsylvania would use every power to protect the public interest.

Settlement of the controversy "is possible—and it must be done," he told the conferees.

"The eleventh hour is upon us—and the crisis has now been reached. We will in die in the eleventh hour what should have been done before.

Pinchot did not advance any plan for breaking the deadlock existing between the two parties. He only asked that they agree to confer with him privately. The miners and operators met during the afternoon and the operators will confer with him to-day.

The governor, speaking to the four representatives of the miners and four officials of the operators in the big gold reception room of the capitol, stressed the need of the public.

The rights of the miners to a fair wage must be accepted, he pointed out. The rights of the operators to a fair profit cannot be violated.

"But the general public is a party to this controversy," he said. "And its rights as well as those of the other two parties must be represented and recognized.

"A shortage of anthracite means not only a huge loss of wages to the miners —but it means also the loss of health among millions of families, the loss of comfort, of working power and of time.

"I express a truth that none can deny when I say that a bituminous using people of the United States are losing patience, and I ask you to consider that fact with care.

"The public demands that this controversy should be settled and that a suspension of mining shall be avoided.

Belgium Favors Allied Parley

London, Aug. 28.—Belgium's contribution of the latest diplomatic exchange on the reparation question was handed to Lord George Grahame, British ambassador at Brussels, yesterday, and was sent by courier to London, Premier Theunis stated. Copies will probably be despatched direct from Brussels to Prime Minister Baldwin and to Premier Poincare's cabinet, who are spending brief vacations in France.

The text of the note, it is understood, will be published in Brussels to-day. Like the British and French documents, it is extremely long and complex, embracing about ten thousand words. It is understood that while it is somewhat more conciliatory in tone than the French note, it emphasizes the legality of the Ruhr occupation and seeks to justify Belgium's priority to reparations on moral and economic grounds.

It is understood also that Premier Theunis suggests that the exchange of notes should be followed by a return to direct conversations based upon the data contained in the notes.

Church Ban For Boot-Leggers

Quebec, Aug. 28.—The illicit fabrication of "boolsch" has taken such a development in some of the border counties in this province in the last few months, that shortly, it was learned, His Eminence Cardinal Begin is to issue a circular letter in which he will warn the faithful that such practices will be severely dealt with by the church.

Shipments to the United States are being made by the illicit still owners and the Federal authorities have been approached by several parish priests in an effort to try and improve the conditions. Not only is the liquor shipped by hundreds of gallons per week but absence of all taxes are reported in certain parishes, and even deaths have been attributed to the bad quality of some of the products.

According to information on hand the church is to issue a very severe warning to those engaged in such operations and in view of the demoralization effect on the people as well as the danger for the health in most cases, excommunication may follow the persistency of those engaged in such operations.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Berry, M.D.

A PROPER FITTING CORSET OR BELT

In a former article I spoke about corsets for everybody. I had mind you with corsets made of muscle. These muscles—the abdominal muscles—run up and down, across, and obliquely over the abdomen, holding all your organs in place, and permitting you to bend.

Now I am quite aware of the fact that if you are a woman and have always worn corsets that it will take more than anything I can write to have you try to do without them.

Well why do I come back to the subject?

Just because while the wearing of some support across the abdomen may be necessary, in many, how many cases, it is not necessary. In fact it isn't fair to the rest of the body. You see my point?

Let's consider the abdominal muscles—they are four pairs of them. Now if you will look at a picture of the human body you will see that they run from the lower ribs to the pelvis. Now they are attached to the ribs and pelvis by tendons. Between the muscles and tendons are nerves and blood vessels. Now if you will look at the picture you will see that the nerves and blood vessels run from the spine to the front of the body. Now if you will look at the picture you will see that the nerves and blood vessels run from the spine to the front of the body. Now if you will look at the picture you will see that the nerves and blood vessels run from the spine to the front of the body.

Now if you will look at the picture you will see that the nerves and blood vessels run from the spine to the front of the body. Now if you will look at the picture you will see that the nerves and blood vessels run from the spine to the front of the body.

Now if you will look at the picture you will see that the nerves and blood vessels run from the spine to the front of the body. Now if you will look at the picture you will see that the nerves and blood vessels run from the spine to the front of the body.

Would Like To Shout From The House Tops

That is How Mr. Hurndall Feels About Dreco, the Famous Health-builder, That Gave Him the Results He Had Been Seeking for Years

Mr. Arthur F. Hurnall, a salesman of Long Branch, Ont., gives all the credit in Dreco for his relief from terrible suffering caused by stomach, kidneys and liver that would not function properly. Here is his story, which he says himself he would like to shout from the top of the tallest building in Toronto, so that people might hear and profit thereby.

"My stomach was out of order. After eating, my food seemed to sour and I would double up with pains. I had so much gas on my stomach that I would gasp for breath. My liver became stomach and I was very restless, arising in the morning tired out after a night's rest instead of refreshed. I had no energy or life to do anything. Catarh in my nose also troubled me and caused me to have headaches. The environment my blood was impure and I often had pimples. Constipation kept me in a run down condition that I became so run-down that friends commented on my appearance.

"My case was of several years standing, during which I tried almost everything without results, until I heard about Dreco. I got a supply of the four bottles, but a big improvement is noticeable. I feel like a new man. I can eat anything at all and have never being troubled with cramps or sourness, the gas, My system feels clean and I feel and look much healthier. I also sleep like a baby now.

"I am trying to make plain what my troubles were and what Dreco has done for me, for the benefit of other sufferers and hope that they will make use of this wonderful medicine an opportunity to help them as it helped me.

Dreco is a purely corrective and tonic properties come from herbs, roots bark and leaves. It acts on the stomach, liver and kidneys, corrects a sluggish liver, strengthens the kidneys, corrects constipation and improves the appetite. Dreco is 50 cents per box. Radio Hotel Is Latest in Detroit

Detroit, Aug. 28 (United Press).—The radio hotel is the latest.

With a radio receiving set in each of its 1,215 guest rooms, the Book-Cadillac Hotel, under construction here, will be completed, October 1, 1924.

A radio broadcasting station, with maximum power, will be installed on the roof of the luxury hotel and special telephone installations will allow use of the telephones for radio receiving, while not being used for local conversations. An order to the switchboard operator will be all that is necessary to have the phone connected with the radio set.

The hotel is being erected on the downtown site formerly occupied by the historic Cadillac Hotel, which, at one time, was considered as the finest hostelry in the middle-west.

With its 30 stories, the hotel will be the tallest transient hotel in the world, and will be Detroit's tallest building. It is being erected and furnished at a cost of $14,000,000.

MONTREAL BANK HEAD HOPEFUL

Sir William Meredith Expects Active and Profitable Fall

MERGER, SURPRISE

Hamilton Business World Astounded by Announcement of Combine

New York, Aug. 29—Sir Vincent Meredith, president of the Bank of Montreal, sailed on the Mauretania yesterday for a five-week trip to Europe.

Describing conditions in Canada to New York reporters before his departure, Sir Vincent said: "Conditions are much the same in Canada as in the United States. The inflation period is passed. The paper banks are in a strong position, and I do not look for any trouble. I expect an active fall with plenty of business for everybody."

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 29.—The Hamilton business world was astounded yesterday when the announcement was made of the taking over of the Bank of Hamilton by the Bank of Commerce. Hamilton's civic pride has suffered a rude shock. The feeling here is that the Bank of Commerce is taking away the backbone of local business.

Ten years ago there was talk of an amalgamation of the Bank of Hamilton and the Royal Bank. At that time it met with such opposition from civic organizations that the plan was not carried out. According to Hamilton business men the people at once came with such sudden news and that there was an opportunity for objection. Though the general opinion here is that business conditions have so changed in the last ten years that this action may be quite justifiable and a move towards better banking conditions, it is still felt that Hamilton has been slighted, and business men here want to know the grounds for this move.

DECREASE IN ASSETS

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 29.—A decrease of $2,484,155 is shown in the total assets of the Bank of Hamilton for the month of July as compared with those for the month of June, according to the monthly statement just issued. For July the total was $69,896,787, for June it was $72,381,312. Total liabilities for the month also decreased from $62,043,554 in June to $60,218,327 in July.

The terms of the agreement by which the Bank of Commerce will acquire the assets of the Bank of Hamilton are not yet definitely known to the finance department. The terms, however, will undoubtedly be based on the relative value of the assets of the banks in question and the stock of the banks. It is the case of the Merchants' Bank over two shares were necessary for the acquisition of one share of Montreal stock.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—The amalgamation of the Canadian banks was predicted this morning by Sir John Aird, the general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, which has absorbed the Bank of Hamilton.

According to some sources of information, the merger of the two banks is on a share for share basis, so far as the Bank of Hamilton shareholders are concerned.

Yesterday the Bank of Hamilton stock was quoted at $170.00, while the Bank of Commerce shares have been held lately at $190.00.

The joint directorate of the two banks are meeting this afternoon.

It is stated that a further announcement might be made at the conclusion of this meeting.

FIRE DESTROYS NORWOOD STORE; CAUSE UNKNOWN

Peterboro, Ont., Aug. 29.—Fire of unknown origin this morning completely destroyed the general store in Norwood owned by C. W. Waters. Breaking out at 4.30, the blaze reduced the building to a charred ruin in less than an hour.

Only strenuous efforts by a bucket brigade saved the big Rorabeck block, which was set slight several time.

Tokio, Aug. 29.—Count Gombe Yamamoto has been summoned to court by Crown Prince Hirohito, regent, it is understood the court has been invited to form a cabinet to succeed that of the late Premier Kato.

175,000 ATTEND EXHIBITION ON YOUNG CANADA'S DAY: YOUNGSTERS IN DROVES THRILLED BY SIGHTS

Toronto, Aug. 29.—Yesterday Young Canada came into its own. It was the one day of the whole year when all things waited on the pleasure of youth. Youth was served, and where youth was not served it helped itself. Prom booth and building, from midway and from exhibitor, came the trophies dear to the heart of the little ones. All day long the throng of youngsters was not permitted a swelling into so vast an assemblage that it almost seemed that all the future citizens of Canada had come to sit in judgment upon Canada's Big Fair.

The total attendance for the day was 175,000.

With an appropriateness peculiarly suited to the day, the guests of honor at the directors' luncheon were Hon. Dr. Pedley, provincial secretary and Minister of Education of Ontario and Sir Michael Cubis-Sampson, Vice Admiral of the British North American squadron, representing that navy toward which the thoughts of adventurous youth ever swing.

To the Premier the scene portrayed one of the greatest responsibilities of government—the building of a nation's youth; while the British sailor saw, strong and lusty, the promise of a new manhood and womanhood that was to come into the heritage of Empire.

And blithely unconscious of the fact that anything so serious occupied the minds of their elders, young Canadians from the four corners of the Province, and even from beyond, turned their thoughts with a serious single-mindedness to pure amusement.

It was a day of days; a day of huge crowds, all imbued with the true spirit of joy; a day of gaiety and abandon and rollicking fun; a day which will live long in the minds of the kiddies, for it was a breath from the world of romance.

Not an inch of the vast grounds but had its quota of picnic parties, not a building where the various souvenirs and trophies dear to the heart of youth are found but was filled to its capacity of eager visitors, not a show on the Midway or any of the thrilling riding devices but catered to an audience, keyed to a pitch of appreciation by the hours spent.

All afternoon, until the final fanfare announced that at last the show was over, not even Exhibition Park remained to the full with the joy of the Young Canadians.

To Place Insurance Policy Of $5,000,000 On Banting's Life But One Other As Large Written

Toronto, Aug. 29.—Arrangements are being made, it has been learned to place an insurance policy of $5,000,000 on the life of Dr. F. G. Banting, discoverer of insulin.

Officials of the National Life Insurance Co., through whom the policy is being arranged, stated today that the plans had not yet been completed.

It is understood that the Rockefeller Foundation and other similar organizations have signified their readiness to pay the annual premiums.

The policy, if taken out as now proposed, namely, for $5,000,000, would be the largest ever written against that on Adolph Zukor, American moving picture producer, which is also for $5,000,000. There are quite a number of policies in the U.S. for $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

MOTORISTS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Car Somersaults Into Ditch at Welcome

Port Hope, Aug. 29.—Mr. Yeates and another gentleman from Markham had a narrow escape from serious injury Monday night. They were motoring to Toronto and had almost passed the turn at Welcome before they noticed it. Mr. Yeates tried to swing around but the car struck the north west corner of the bank, went over into the ditch, crashed through the fence and finally finished up in Mr. Wilmshurst's orchard.

The car took several somersaults, during its rampage and the top was completely ruined. Both fenders were smashed, the springs twisted the axles badly bent. Strange to say the windshield was not broken and the occupants escaped with a few minor bruises.

The car was a new Chevrolet and had travelled less than four thousand miles.

Washington Fears Bolshevist Germany As A Peace Menace

Diplomats Say Western World Has Brought Her to Verge of Ruin

Washington, Aug. 28 (United Press).—A real fear is expressed in diplomatic circles that Germany is about to turn Bolshevist.

The recent fall of the Cuno government is the reason. In fact, surprise was general that the cabinet lasted as long as it did.

What may follow the collapse of Cuno's cabinet is what is causing misgivings here.

Since the Treaty of Versailles, Germany has refused to follow a policy of fulfillment of the treaty of peace. Despite the fact that this profession is but a camouflage, Germany's policy for the past four years has been one of fulfillment of the treaty.

This is against a sort of "western policy," for through fulfillment of the treaty, Germany hoped to regain in the family of so-called western nations and after finally discharging the obligations that rested heavily on her by the Versailles Treaty, again to become one of the principal powers of the Western world.

This was the only course which Germany saw open to her through which to regain her place in the world. And, Of course, if Germany had the power to defy the allies and throw off the yoke of the Versailles Treaty, that would be another course—and a course that gladly would be taken advantage of—if Germany has not the power.

"Therefore, the only other course Germany has open to her is to change her foreign policy to towards the east—Soviet Russia. This has been a spectre of alarm to the statesmen of the western world since the peace at Versailles—an alliance between Soviet Russia, Nationalist Turkey and finally Germany.

Such a triple-alliance already has been partly made. Turkey has her treaty of alliance with Soviet Russia, and there is the Rappalo economic treaty between Germany and Russia. However, the effect of the Bolshevist menace here is believed here to have been largely negligible and neither have Turkey and Germany been in a position allies as might have been expected.

At the Cross-roads

But now Germany is reported as standing at the cross-roads of her future—whether to attempt to remain a part of the western world or t urn to the east, to Soviet Russia, or the two are open and ready.

Germany's condition has grown steadily worse since the armistice. Her currency now is verging on the point of being worthless, and is going down the scale every day. She has settled the obliteration of Russia's currency.

German observers here say: "What has the western policy of the post-war government of Germany brought her? Nothing but ruin. The same western policy now cuts eastward to Soviet Russia."

But a liance between Germany, Russia a nd Turkey is frankly feared by western diplomats. They regard its formation as tantamount to the end of the future—perhaps early war. Such alliance would have vast man power and vast resources at its call. The diplomats praise crushed out, to break and die amid the gorgeous setting of the Olympian spectacle. Treasured trophy from booth , and exhibit, waved wildly in a passing moment of supreme joy, often suffered from unsparing handling and more than one youngster, drawing a deep breath as the thrill subsided, found his pet souvenir a sadly battered wreck, victim of his super emptics.

BUSINESS CARES, SUICIDE CAUSE

Death of Wm. Rodbourne Due to Despondency Caused by Reverses

DRANK LYSOL

Was Member of S.O.E. and A. O. F. and Warden of Christ Church

No inquest will be held into the death of William Rodbourne, Front Street Cartage Company owner and manager, who committed suicide at the rear of his office at 197½ Front Street at 3.30 p.m. Tuesday.

Death occurred partially from strangulation and partially from the deadly effects of Lysol which he procured at a drug. First hand news of the shocking tragedy was procured this morning.

Frank High, 149 James Street, employe of Rodbourne Cartage Co. who was first to find Rodbourne, tells graphically the occurrences of the afternoon, from 1.05 p.m. until he made the grusome discovery at 3.45 p.m.

"I saw Mr. Rodbourne in his office about 1.05 p.m. when I left for my return from lunch," High stated. We returned together to the office. I left him there and went out to attend to business, which I finished and returned to the office at 3.15. "When I came into the office, Rodbourne was sitting on a box in the corner at the rear of the warehouse. He was sick and was vomiting.

When High asked him what ailed him, Rodbourne replied, "Oh I'm not feeling very well, but I will be all right in a while, do not bother getting help."

High went out again on business driving one of the company trucks, and returned again at 3.45. With him this time was Jerre Wilder, 72 Cedar Street, another employe. Wilder walked into the warehouse and immediately noticed that there was something

MOVIE CAMERA IS THE LATEST FAD OF SOCIETY FOLK SOUTH OF BORDER

Del Monte, Cal., Aug. 29 (United Press)—Time was when no vacation was complete without the debutante of the family touring around taking the "cutest pictures of Ma and Pa and all the folks" with a little camera.

In fact, some plain, everyday folks still think a camera worth space in the car when they start their auto vacation.

But society folks—well, that's either become too common or it's old stuff, or something, because they've turned to the movie camera.

And now that the vacation pictures are to be movies, later detour to the shooting at all. She becomes the act of heroine of the vacation record.

Little brother does the camera work. He turns the crank and Sis, or Mother over the back of his neck like the real movie camera-men do and crashes out and away just like they do in Hollywood.

The new society fad for movies started here with the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hill, of railroad and financing fame, to sojourn around historic Monterey, especially Del Monte and Bohemian Carmel. Louis, one of armed with the movie camera. He joined the Hills and all their friends on the Del Monte lawns; recorded for the future generations the form of "Dad" Hill on the golf links; the countless feet of frolics on Canal's sewage white sand; the tumbles on the rocks, near Monterey.

It started something. Movie cameras began to creep in on the landscape and when Charlie Chaplin arrived a few days later, summoned he sought out from the studio and from movie queen he found himself beset with more movie cameras than Jile ever saw on a ball field or a prize fight. He let them all have a "shot" at him—he didn't look much different from any other guy in golf clothes—and then indicated he wished that all the cameras would be consigned to the bay. Then all the movie projectionrooms added and friends will gather at night while son reels off for them the story, told in movies, of how Pa died as drive; how sister failed as a fancy diver and how Charlie Chaplin looks when he came to Del Monte to escape the movie queens.

760 Kiddies Lost At Fair; All Are Retrieved But Two

Toronto, Aug. 29.—While the rawness of the air and threatened rain kept the attendance down somewhat at Young Canada's Day at the Fair yesterday, it looks as though a high record has been set up in the matter of the number of lost children. No fewer than 760 little ones were found wandering aimlessly about the grounds and were led by policemen, or otherkind-hearted observers to the shelter of the police station, where they were comforted with reassuring words and candy. All were restored save two, a boy and a girl, whom General Manager J. G. Kent last night took to his home to await claimants. Last year's strays numbered 552.

JURY HOLD WAWA FIRE AN ACCIDENT

Recommends More Adequate Fire-Fighting Appliances and Protection

Hunstville, Ont., Aug. 29.—The inquest on the death of Annie Leigh, one of the victims of the Wawa Hotel fire, on August 19th, concluded last night, with the bringing by the jury of the following verdict:

That Annie Leigh came to her death accidentally at the Wawa Hotel, Muskoka, on August 19th, while endeavoring to escape from the burning building.

"We deprecate the absence of systematic inspection of public buildings for fire-fighting appliances and recommend that Government supervision or inspection be enforced to provide for adequate fire escapes, fire-fighting apparatus, equipment and organization of a watchman service and for a general alarm system to further recommend the use of a power house whistle or electric gongs within the buildings, or both.

"We further recommend that all elevator or hoist shafts in such buildings be of fireproof construction and that, in the case of the building of new hotels or lodging houses, construction of a fire escape system be used within reason and that wherever possible segregation be erected instead of one large building."

Two Cars Collide At Intersection

Beckwith, was proceeding north on Pinnacle street, and was driven by Charles Beckwith, son of the owner.

GROTESQUE CONCEPTIONS

It is strange that the people of the civilized nations of the world know so little of each other in these days of wireless, automobiles, airplanes and international co-operation.

Rev. Dr. Marr told the Kiwanians yesterday that he was pleased to find, on his arrival from Scotland, that Canadians did not carry six-shooters and were not "wild and woolly". Rev. Dr. Marr spoke facetiously, of course, for there is no doubt that there are a great many persons in Scotland who actually visualize Canadians as a rough and ready people who wear wide-brimmed hats, eat with their knives and carry fearsome pistols. Likewise many Canadians picture Scotland as a land of Harry Lauders and Highland shepherds.

When the masses of the various nations acquire true conceptions as to each other's customs, manners and characteristics international comity will be more common.

Much was accomplished in respect of this during the Great War, but unless "missionary" work is done along this line we shall be obliged to continue reliance upon the sketchy books of travel and the grotesque characterizations of the movies. Rev. Dr. Marr at least can enlighten us concerning his native land for which we should be duly grateful.

FANTASTIC FEARS

For those who are inclined to view industrial and economic conditions in Canada through the fuliginous lenses of pessimism, the article which appeared in yesterday's Intelligencer, headed "The Bull and the Bear Discuss the Business Situation" sounds an unmistakable note of encouragement.

The fact that Savings Bank deposits in Canada total $3,360,000,000 more than a year ago is an argument on the side of the optimists difficult to refute. That the Dominion net debt was reduced $6,000,000 during July and that our per capita debt, $267.77 is only about one-third that of Great Britain are facts sufficiently cheering to disconcert even a confirmed "calamity howler."

However, statistics and arguments, sound though they may be, are not convincing to a person without funds and without employment. Such persons are "up against it" and the knowledge that the saving in the banks of Canada are equal to $800 per family doesn't help them financially. Nothing does the information that the wealth of the Dominion figures out at $2,000 per head, "not counting undeveloped water power, farm land and mineral fields."

A man (or woman, presumed for funds, is not directly benefitted by the fact that native investments in Canadian Government Bonds have increased from 12 per cent. in 1913 to 68.7 per cent., or that our foreign trade per head of population stands among the highest of commercial nations.

Statistics, however encouraging they may be, cannot provide work for the unemployed or re-stock depleted farms. Yet the psychological effect is a phenomenon of vital importance. When reverses occur and a few persons here and there are affected a feeling of depression and impending disaster obtrudes itself like Banquo's ghost.

The feeling is contagious and it spreads until a theoretical condition becomes a reality.

This may not be the present situation in Canada. An inchoate apprehension, concieved in false premises has become a fearsome spectre.

It cannot be denied that a spirit of gloom has invaded the business world in Canada. But it is a fantastic intrusion, the result of the cumulative fears of timid and chronically dissatisfied persons.

If we look about us we shall find little evidence of distress; industries are in a reasonably healthy condition, new business firms are being established, farm crops are good, wages are at least commensurate with other values, the people we meet on the streets appear well nourished and well groomed—in short none of the signs of depression and distress are present. To be sure, there is some unemployment but the situation in this respect is by no means abnormal. Those out of work could find lucrative employment if they sought it consistently instead of resigning themselves to discouragement over a fancied state of industrial distress.

We venture the prediction that no matter in the industrial or agricultural sections of Canada to-day has been seriously affected financially because of inability to find employment. There have been some, but nothing even remotely suggesting calamity. We hold this to be true as well in the case of business men in respect of trade.

As a matter of fact a great deal of this pessimistic influence emanates from the business offices of those who, a few years ago realized enormous profits from their business enterprises and are now forced to accept more reasonable returns. This group encourages the "calamity howler" who hastens to spread the gospel of gloom.

If we will put our shoulders to the wheel and focus our attention upon the encouraging evidences of development and prosperity everywhere apparent we shall soon be once more moving briskly along the broad highway of national progress.

A WOUND IS AN OPEN DOOR
Absorbine Jr. enables you to shut the door quickly.
The skin is Nature's own protection against germs. When it is bruised, broken or cut, the protection is withdrawn. The door is open. As quickly as possible Nature closes it by forming what we call a scab and renders you comparatively safe against infection. But this scab sometimes takes days to form and until it has fully sealed the wound, even until the wound has thoroughly healed again you must furnish the required protection yourself.
A few drops of Absorbine Jr. in the water will give you an antiseptic wash that will kill the germs of infection and help nature to heal the wound. As well as being a very powerful germicide, Absorbine Jr. will draw out the inflammation and bring instant relief.

LIFE SAVINGS AT STAKE

(Montreal Star)

If "is as great a crime for trusted bank directors [to neglect their duty as for a captain on the bridge of a ship to go to sleep. It ought to be an even greater crime for Government officials to fail to do their duty in such a case.

The savings of a thousand lifetimes are at stake. The difference between penury or comfort for the rest of life for industrious and thrifty people by the hundreds is in the balance. The opportunity for patriotic criticism to help to get an education and a chance in life may depend entirely upon the faithfulness and honesty of bankers and bank inspectors.

PROTECTION ON FARMS.

(London Advertising)

Another thing for which this summer has been remarkable is the number of accidents, and in some cases fatal termination, which have occurred to farmers while engaged in their daily advocations. Perhaps the most common of these misfortunes took place during the haying season, when farmers pereived that the crop needs fall to the ground and received serious bodily injury. It is just as important that this should be protected on the farm as in the factory, and there seems to be a slackness in this respect, at least as far as is concerned. Prevention is better than cure and there appears to be room for some "safety first" work in this direction.

Sear in a pan and cave carrot into an earthen casserole dish; add 2 sprays parsley and 2-3 cup hot pork drippings or meat above, sprinkle with salt, pepper, sliced onions, carrots and pork cubes. Cover and cook very slowly three hours, basting often with hot fat. The heat of oven must be uniform throughout the period of cooking. Remove veal to hot serving dish, draw out skewers and threads, prepare a thin gravy, season and serve hot in dish. Slow cooking is essential to success in casserole cooking.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

Hence arose a society which was the pride of Sim Slee, and known amongst the workmen as the Brother hood. Meetings were held regularly, speeches made, and Simeon Slee, who considered himself to possess fluency, drink, and local preaching, till expelled as a disgrace to the plan, became a shining light in the brotherhood, on account of what the more quiet workmen called the power of potting things, though the greater part held aloof, from the contempt in which this leader was held.

In previous days, with one or two exceptions, the word of the master of the works had been law, and wages were raised or lowered as trade flourished or fell, with nothing more than a few murmurs; but now times were altered, men had begun to think for themselves, and the behavior of Richard Claire had grown so arbitrary and unjust that the consequence was the riot we have seen.

Richard Claire was about as unsuitable a person as it is possible to imagine to have such a responsibility as the management of a couple of hundred men; but he did not think of this, and he, after the departure of his mother, nursing his wrongs, and making plans for the punishment of his workpeople.

At one time he was for having the assistance of the military, but as he cooled down he was obliged to acknowledge that his request would be ridiculed.

Then he determined on getting summonses against about twenty of the ringleaders, whom he meant to discharge.

Once he called Banks, and asked him what it would be best to do.

"Put the wage right again," said the foreman.

Whereupon Richard Claire turned upon him in a burst of childish passion, and declared that he was in league with the scoundrels who had assaulted him.

"There, I shall go till you've had time to cool down," said Banks, grimly. "Your meat's hot, Master Richard and it won't be relight again till you've had a little rest."

Richard made no reply, but sat biting his lips and making plans till dark, when he cautiously stole out of the building by a side door, of which he alone had the key.

Banks kept up another couple of hours, plodding about the building, examining doors, the exhibition of hand signals, looking at the bands of the huge lathes, and displaying a curious kind of energy, as by means of a small bull's-eye lantern he peered in and out of all sorts of out-of-the-way holes.

"There's no knowing what games Master Sim might try on," he remarked to himself, "blowing up and cutting bands, and putting powder in the furnace holes: he's shack enough for aught, and I dessay some on 'em will be cruel enough to side with him. What's that?"

He stopped and listened, for it seemed as if that he had heard a noise below him in the ground-floor.

The sound was not repeated, so he went on cautiously through the great black workshop, with its weird assemblage of shafts, cranks and bands, picking, in the fitful gleams cast by the lantern, like a torture-chamber in the fabled Pandemonium.

A stranger would have tripped and fallen a dozen times over the metal-cumbered floor, but every inch and every piece of machinery was so familiar to the foreman that he could have gone about the place blindfold, even as he did once or twice in his duty when he closed his bull's-eye lantern thinking he heard a noise.

All was right in this workshop, so he descended to the foundry, going over it and amongst the furnaces, now growing cool, which he handled his way amongst the sunken molds for castings; looked up at the cranes, and peered before the massive crutches used for melting bell-metal or ingots for the great steel bells, and ended by going out into the yard.

"I'll sweer I heerd a noise," he muttered, taking a short constable's staff which formed an open floor where lighter work was done.

He advanced very cautiously in the direction of the staff ready to deliver a blow, or guard his head, and the next minute there was the sound of some tool being moved on a bench, and then something slighted at his feet, setting up a soft purring and he came to rub up against his legs.

"Why, Tommy," he said, "you scared me, boy. It was you, was it?"

After rate, oh Tommy? Poor old puss then."

He turned on his lantern took at good look round, and then, apparently satisfied, he pulled out an old-fashioned silver watch and consulted its face.

"Eight o'clock, eh! Why, they'll be quite quiet that I'm lost."

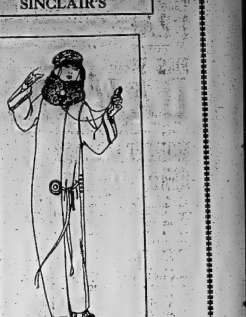

As he spoke he made his light play round for a few minutes, and then, apparently satisfied, he put it out, placed the lamp on a shelf, and went out and across the yard to a kind of lodge, where a man was waiting to take the duty of the watchman for the night.

READERS, IN LETTERS, VOICE THEIR OPINIONS ON CONDITIONS AT HIGH SCHOOL

HIGH SCHOOL HEATING SYSTEM IS "MURDEROUS," SAYS TEACHER

Editor Intelligencer:

Dear Sir—I was most interested in a letter in your paper of Monday's issue, written by Dr. Ackerill, V.S., criticising the Staff and student body of the B.H.S. relative to the heating system which, he said, was perfectly satisfactory fifty years ago—perhaps it was then.

I would like to add a few remarks. In the first place, is it exactly fair to make the exceptional brilliant student of fifty years ago and compare him—not with the average student of fifty years ago but with the average student of today, who is, as Dr. Ackerill remarked, an entirely different person? Does the Doctor realize that fifty years ago a high school education was the prized privilege of the few, even fifty years ago, only 5 per cent. of the youth of the country attended the High School? Now it is the right of every boy and girl. Any thoughtful person must realize that the question of discipline and school management is an entirely different and more difficult one than it was in the early days of education in the province.

Again, the standard has risen enormously in the past few years. We do not no longer can depend on the average to help him through a poor subject.

In my school days no student was recommended by the teacher was allowed to write examinations now the most indifferent pupil is, allowed at least to make the effort. I wonder if Doctor Ackerill knew that in the Lower school this year only those students who fell below 50 per cent. in their year's work were asked to write on the Departmental examinations.

Does Doctor understand that making an apology for either students or teachers, only for the heating apparatus which in my opinion is murderous."

Yours truly,
A High School Teacher.

NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE IS NEEDED SAYS EX-B. H. S. STUDENT

Editor, Intelligencer:

Dear Sir—

Kindly allow me a little space in your paper to excute what I consider a duty to the High School staff and students by making a few comments on Dr. Ackerill's letter appearing in Monday's issue and the editorial in Saturday issue.

It is indeed true that the students of the Belleville High School made "an unfavourable" showing" in this year's departmental examinations. However, this is the result of more than one reason, the result over the previous twenty. Hence, I cannot agree with Dr. Ackerill, that the High School staff is "not as competent as the old staff," instead I attribute the numerous failures to the fact that every possible means of education before he enters his profession should not be neglected, the salary he is now receiving. We must remember that his training, and especially that the university cannot be procured without the expenditure of two or three thousand dollars.

Dr. Ackerill must remember that the high school is not in the same condition it was forty-five years ago, that is long enough for cracks to open or pipes to burst in the best building. I have no hesitation in saying Dr. Ackerill to spend a week or two in the school on a cold winter day to see whether he would express any inclination to remove his coat. Any student who has spent a winter in old B. H. S. will not have to think twice before he tells you whether Belleville needs a Collegiate Institute or not. In many cases those who are opposed to the erection of a new building are those who do not know what it feels like in the school on winter mornings.

In hearty appreciation of the services rendered me during my high school career by the B.H.S. staff and thanking you for your space,

Yours truly,
E. A. ORR.

Editor's Note—The views expressed above coincide fully with those held by the Intelligencer. The writer's suggestion regarding a new collegiate institute is apt and his views concerning the condition of the High School building are well founded. However, the gold medallist we referred to is a young man.

Husband Gains 11 Lbs. And Wife 33, On Tanlac

Hamilton Business Man Gives Striking Example of Restorative Powers of Celebrated Medicine — Ended Stomach Troubles Entirely, He States

William H. Dyer, well known proprietor of the Dyer Painting & Decorating Co., 27-29 Railway St., Hamilton, Ont., is another man who has found the Tanlac treatment invaluable in overcoming his health.

"Tanlac has done so much for my wife and myself," says Mr. Dyer, "that we want to let everybody know what a great medicine it is. As a result of three years' suffering from stomach trouble I reached such a poor state of health that my useful days seemed to be about over.

"When I started taking Tanlac, I was not eating anything scarcely and my stomach would bloat up in right as a drum and suffer severe pains in my stomach, back and head. My nerves were all undone and I would get so dizzy that I was in constant fear of falling in a faint.

"I seldom got more than an hour's unbroken sleep at night and lost many days from my work, being so tired and miserable to even leave the house. After Tanlac restored my wife's health I began taking it myself and now my nerves are without a bottle in the house.

"Soon after I began taking it my troubles disappeared and I gained eleven pounds in weight. My appetite is as keen now I can't content it and when I get at the table, I never feel a touch of indigestion any more. My nerves are like iron. Why, it would strain me a bit to paint the City Hall Flag Pole, for my nerves are as steady as a die even at my present height.

"I sleep every night like a school boy and am feeling so strong and well that life and work are a pleasure. My wife has gained thirty-three pounds by taking Tanlac and between us we have personally recommended it to a great many people. We consider it, without an equal. Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 35 million bottles sold.

SIDNEY MURRELL OBJECTS TO BATH IN LONDON JAIL-FIGHTS JAILERS

London, Oct., Aug. 29.—Sidney Murrell, desperado, held in the Middlesex county jail until his trial on a murder charge to be tried October 15, is proving troublesome to his guards. His opposition to taking a bath led to a free-for-all in which the guards emerged the victors. Murrell was bathed.

News of the fight trickled out of the jail today. Sheriff Graham admitted there had been a tussle, but declared it was nothing serious and that no one was hurt.

Murrell was told to prepare for a bath. He refused; in fact he refused even to go to the bathroom at all. The guards, were in a quandary. They did not want to take a battle in the bathroom. Finally, Sheriff Graham decided to go to the bathroom the jail officials decided to bring it to him. Accordingly they filled a tub with water and brought it and a supply of soap to his ward.

Bill Murrell refused to bathe. One of the guards approached him and attempted to undress him. Murrell became enraged and struck the official. The other joined in the fight. Before they finished Murrell had been subdued and reluctantly agreed to bathe. Although Murrell is a boxer by profession he proved no match for the regular day watch and the turnkeys. They engaged him in catch-as-catch-can style and Murrell could not bring his knowledge of the manly art into play.

It was his first show of violence since his return from California. Murrell has always been known as a man of moods and possessing an extremely bad temper. On several occasions since his arrest on the day of the Melbourne Standard Bank robbery, April 10, he has offered to fight. When he was placed in the jail prior to his escape in September, 1921, he threatened to "get" the jail physician.

unusually wrong with his employer. Wilder immediately notified High. Both men rushed in the warehouse and found Rodbourne hanging limp from a rope which was about his neck and tied to the beam above his head. His body was swinging on a case in which soft drink bottles are packed. The rope used was of ordinary sting type, and it cut into the victim's neck very badly.

The two employees rushed out and notified James Sullivan and Horace Veteman, barbers next door. The two barbers entered the man, while the rope was cut, and the man lowered to the floor.

The police and Coroner Dr. W. W. Bonney were summoned, and the police in turn summoned Dr. J. Robertson. The latter after working over the body, when the police arrived, but he died shortly afterwards.

The man's lips showed evidences of having been burned, and there was a strong odor of carbolic about the place. Dr. Robertson applied the usual such pump, and it was soon evident that the carbolic odor was intended to destroy evidence, as the stomach was pumped out. An empty Lysol bottle found in the sink by P. C. Art Booth of the station.

For some months past members of the family have noticed that the man was acting queer sometimes, and when asked if it was the business which caused him to be downcast, he replied that it was not, and that everything would be alright. It is believed, however that he did worry considerably.

The police, together with Lysol, was purchased at Blecker's Drug Store by Frank High, on the request of Mr. Rodbourne at 11 a.m. Tuesday. Business worries are given as the reason for the unfortunate affair.

Mr. William Rodbourne, who had resided in Belleville nearly all his life, was a Methodist, and came to Canada when young. For many years he was assistant manager for Wesley Willis, now mentioned, and then Mr. Bullen retired, the late William Rodbourne and his son went into business for themselves, handling wines and ales, and also the cartage business.

In religion deceased was a devoted Anglican, and for many years took an active part in Christ church, where he was warden. He was also an active member of A.O.F. and the Sons of England Lodges, having been secretary of both lodges for several years. A grief-stricken widow and grandson, William, survives.

Mrs. Fred Fletcher and Miss Blanche, Bridge St. are enjoying a week's visit at the Exhibition, Toronto.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.
THE COMPLEXION

The complexion means a lot to every body irrespective of age or sex. The difficulty is that the kind of advice here or there is a timeless of texture that calls forth our admiration, while in others the skin is less fine and always will be.

Also many skins secrete more oils than others giving one almost a greasy appearance. Others are actually deficient in this quality and have a skin that looks to be baked or parched.

And so when you read in "beauty" hints that hot water and soap should never be used on the face, you can understand that such advice might apply to a skin deficient in oils, but good soap and hot water would be an actual necessity to an oily skin.

If you live in the country away from dirt and dust, warm water once a day, and cold water once or twice between the day should keep the skin in good condition.

But you know that the skin of the face reflects usually the general condition of the body. You know also that a plentiful diet of fruit and green will rob the blood of its constituents that the skin assumes a pallor that is so objectionable at times, by reason of the actual health of the body.

What is the matter of your particular complexion you should just sit down and figure out a plan to make it the best that it can be made. You can't do more than that. Thus if you have a fine textured clear skin, don't spoil it with too much soap and water. Be careful with it using a good soap, and then use cold water to tighten up the skin which has been loosened by the warm water. If you have a dry skin your druggist will sell you a good oil soap. And remember that your complexion reflects also the condition of the intestine.

Persons with pimples or blackheads must make every effort to have the intestines working, regularly. Exercise such as running in the outdoors in Nature's way of providing you with a good complexion. Exposure to wind and sun calls for a good face cream that suits your particular skin.

A little face powder in the summer is a necessity and cannot do much harm. The skin is more than a covering. It is a piece of mechanism as is every other part of the body. Aid it, if it needs it, but don't interfere with it, if Nature has blessed you with a good complexion.

THAT'S A FACT.

Art may be long, but artists notoriously are short.

Oshawa May Protest Against Oulette Under Residence Ruling At Meeting Here Today, Says Lindsay Despatch

Lindsay, Aug. 29—Belleville protested Saturday's game at Oshawa, which they lost, claiming that Harold Dainty, the southpaw twirler for the Motor crew, is not eligible according to the residence rule of January 1st. Oshawa is needless to say is "up in arms" over the protest and claim that Belleville is showing a streak of poor sportsmanship in protesting, and that they should take their medicine.

However, President Dedman received word from Oshawa to-day that they would fight the protest, and what is more, hinted that Oshawa would probably lay a claim against the Belleville club for playing Oulette, whom the Motor town claims was not in Belleville before January 1st last.

In the mean time the protest will be heard at Belleville to-day, following the game.

NO OFFICIAL WORD

Newton Thompson, Secretary of the Grand Trunk club, said to-day that he had received no official word from President Dedman, regarding a protest by Oshawa against Oulette under the residence ruling. "Oshawa threatened to protest against Oulette last Saturday," said Mr. Thompson, "but 96 hours have elapsed and no official action has been taken to my knowledge. Forty-eight hours is the time limit."

LEASIDE SEEKS CHANGE

President Dedman received a long distance call from Manager Henderson of the Leaside Club this morning, who claims if Oshawa's loss is accepted with Belleville, and Oshawa Club is thrown out of further participation in the League this season, then Leaside must be given a chance to play with Belleville as the Darant Motors were runners-up in a Section.

It Belleville wins the protest then Leaside will surely get their wish with a sudden death game at Peterboro on Thursday.

WILLIAMS WILL GRACE MOUND AGAINST OSHAWA HERE TODAY

From the present indications the weather for the big battle this afternoon will be ideal. It is somewhat cool but "Old Sol" may blaze forth before the teams take the field. Everything is in readiness and fans will no doubt be here from Kingston Peterboro, Cobourg and other neighbouring towns.

Oshawa are defending the protest lodged against them by the Trunks which will be decided at the Quinte Hotel to-night.

Leaside have come forward with the statement that should Belleville win the protest that they (Leaside) should play a sudden-death game

McGRAW TAKES TEAM TO VICTORY

By HENRY L. FARRELL,

(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 27 (United Press)—After the genius of leadership he has shown in the last three seasons, it might be true, even if it sounds a little unfair to him to say so, that John McGraw can win a pennant with any kind of a good ball club.

The New York Giants of 1922 were, in comparison to the other clubs in the National League, a fine ball club, but it is almost certain that they would not have won the pennant behind any manager other than McGraw.

No other manager, with such a dilapidated pitching staff, could have urged the Giants to the heights which they attained in the stirring pennant drive of 1922.

Outside of the pitching department, which was maintained under the most important, the Giants have a great team. McGraw has said he figures it to be the smartest and the best club he has ever handled.

In building up what no doubt will turn out to be at least a three-time pennant winner, McGraw was able to find everything but good, young pitchers, and since the New York club has more money to spend than any other National League club, it seems but fate that that reduced the team to such poverty in pitching.

From the results of the 1921 and 1922 pennant races, it might be urged that a great team can win without great pitchers, but the results are achieved only by genius in direction. McGraw has that genius and the figures show that it is possessed by no other manager.

Taking an outside chance that the Giants might be beaten in the present chase for the National League pennant, it is not out of order to look to the future and see McGraw leading an other race to the pennant in 1924.

If the Giants have three young pitchers of promise for the next season it might not be too hazardous to guess that New York will have another National League pennant to make it four in a row. Considering the fact that none of the National League clubs promise to be much stronger next season, it would be logical to figure that a team good enough to win this year ought to be good enough next year.

The Giants are not youths, but in no way they are a young ball club inasmuch as McGraw has two, or not more than three, slipping veterans, and to replace them he has several of the finest young ball players in the league.

Heinie Groh is about through, but when the time comes for him to be seated on the bench, McGraw can shift Frank Frisch over to third base and use Frel Maguire at second.

Frisch is a fine second baseman and a great all-around player, but many critics believe that third base is his position and that he would be a star at the fast corner. Maguire has all the makings of a second Eddie Collins at second base. He isn't a major league batter yet and, if he does, here's the Giant's batting order has enough power to carry him along.

Dave Bancroft, the incarried shortstop of the major leagues and the spark-plug of the Giants' outfield, may not have more than another good year, but when he has to be replaced, McGraw has in Travis Jackson, a youngster who is about ready for stardom right now.

Bancroft is some too strong physically, and when he was forced out of his position this season by illness, Jackson stepped in and did everything that was asked of him.

George Kelly has many ahead of him at first base, but if anything should happen to him, McGraw can bring Jimmy O'Connell in from the outfield and play him at his natural position.

Casey Stengel is liable to be through after this season, but the way veterans have been acting in recent years, Casey is likely to be around for several more years.

Bill Cunningham is available for any outfield jobs that have to be filled and he is a player good enough to be holding down a regular job on any other league club.

Pep Young, the brilliant right fielder of the club, is a young player and he should be good for five years at least. In left field, Irish Meusel may need replacements, as he has slipped a lot and is having trouble with his legs.

The pitching, however, will be the big worry of McGraw again as it has been for three years. The club is buying up every good, young pitching prospect in sight, and if the law of averages ever starts working for the Giant leader he ought to find a couple of good ones before long, because his efforts so far have been fruitless.

Sporting Skits

It is rumored that there will be no intermediate Frontenac hockey team this winter. It is said that Queens and Front-enac would join together in the intermediate O.H.A. and form one and then "Pet" good intermediate Kingston tea minstead of having two teams divided in strength. It's a long way to winter yet.

Thomas R. Munroe, of London, who for the past years has been officiating at games in the Northern O.H.A. and United Hockey Association has accepted a position as coach and manager of the Eveleth, Minnesota, team of the U.S.H.A., and will report for duty on October 25.

By the way, a little bird whispered in the ears of the scribe the other day that Jake's two imports, Cowell and Jackson, left for their Yankee home the very night that the Petes were eliminated at Cobourg by the Trunks. Neither made any particular sensation in the Central League, although they were a good average, and certainly played the gentlemen.

North Seeking Solution of Its New Negro Problem

St. Louis Adds 80,000 in Eight Months to Its Colored Population

By HERBERT LITTLE, United Press Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 29—Thirty thousand negroes, settling in St. Louis in the first eight months of 1922, have brought the city face to face with two big problems—that of housing the newcomers and that of halting the invasion of disease.

The menace of disease is being fought by a score of policemen and a special corps operating every incoming train. Both whites and blacks are vaccinated, unless they already are immunized. Seventeen cases of smallpox in June and July gave the alarm.

Housing is more difficult. There are no new homes being built for the negroes. The 1920 census gave St. Louis a negro population of 70,000, and there were barely enough buildings to house them then.

Relief agencies investigating reported that as many as 12 negroes have been found living in a house intended for one small family.

Landlords are unwilling to make repairs at present high prices of construction. Responsibility for unsanitary conditions rests, both upon the landlords and the new arrivals, most of whom are unaccustomed to city living conditions.

Two other problems in connection with the negro from the south have the leaders worried. One is that of

TO KEEP NEGROES SOUTH

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 29 (United Press)—The National Progressive Association of Negro Workmen, to help the cotton and lumber industries by keeping the negro in the south, plans to bring higher wages, better working conditions, reducing hours of work and supplying sanitation and improved homes, has been granted a corporate charter here.

Headquarters of the society are in New Orleans. Negroes of Louisiana are being sought in membership, after which the movement will be extended to other Gulf states, if successful.

Sickness and death benefits are provided. The charter also provides that the organization cannot become a labor union and that it cannot interfere with labor organizations.

voters in the last election here, practically all Republicans.

Formation of an inter-racial commission, composed of five whites and five colored men, to work out ways of avoiding friction between the two races and to find ways of housing the surplus of colored population, is being urged by leaders in racial affairs. Such a commission in Philadelphia, composed of persons elected by a referendum of all civic groups, has operated successfully in adjusting the city to the new negro.

"We are seeking to do in St. Louis in advance of any racial trouble what other large cities, particularly Chicago, have found necessary to do after such trouble," said C. K. Robinson, president of the St. Louis Clarion, leading negro newspaper.

"We know that the housing situation is acute. The negro must find additional space. It will be one of the tasks of the commission to determine where the negro can go without causing friction."

Rents in the negro tenement district have mounted from 30 to 50 per cent, according to colored real estate agents.

The negroes who come to St. Louis are from Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and Texas. About 80 per cent. of them settle here or in the surrounding industrial district, St. Louis other 20 per cent, along with a large number of St. Louis negroes, are moving to steel mills in Youngstown, Ohio, Pittsburgh and Chicago, and automobile factories in Michigan.

Migration into and through here in January was from 200 to 300 a week. It has reached a weekly peak of 3,000.

THE FENNILESS IMMIGRANTS

Most of the negroes are penniless. The biggest factor in the exodus is the high wages offered by industrial plants through labor agents.

A significant feature of the migration is that a large proportion of the negroes are between 17 and 19 years of age. Many of them are younger boys.

Most of the negroes "tote" their total possessions in a paper bundle, a few carry cheap cardboard suitcases. Extra numbers of arrivals every Sunday are explained by the fact that the men work on the sixth of the week, so they can draw as much of a week's pay as possible for their railroad fare.

"The negroes are going as far north as Duluth," said Matthew Daly, U. S. government farm bureau agent. "Instances from the south are getting 26 a day in the Duluth and Superior steel mills and in Milwaukee.

"The sort that go far north, however, take their families. Underneath the movement, aside from the certain outcry of higher pay, seems to be the fact that there is less race feeling in northern cities where negro children attend school with the whites and where white men and negroes in industry work side by side."

NEGROES AND MEXICANS

A. J. Michael, state labor agent, declared that the negroes and Mexicans are the only kinds of labor available now.

"It is a never-ending cry," he said. "We ship the negroes east for railroad work. On the other hand we get them away with the lure of higher pay. Hard road construction is taking thousands."

St. Louis steel mills' offer $5 to $6 a day. Pittsburgh steel mill promised $8 a day for twelve hours work. The big eastern railroads are taking hundreds at 40 to 50 cents an hour. Brick-yards, saw-mills, mines and others are hiring Mexicans and negroes for work in the sun, where no other race can stand the heat.

A report of the Missouri Negro Industrial Commission pointed out that for every 100 deaths among city negroes, there were only 104 births. For every 100 deaths in the white district over the country, there are 159 births according to the last census.

ENGLAND'S HOPE.

(Louisville, Courier-Journal)

A spirit of co-operation is the only hope for these eastern countries, and England is buying cotton, hoping to bring about some reality along this line. It has met with utter failure so far. Baldwin and Churchill have been talked by Poincare at every turn. They will soon refer the case to the people. And yet what hope there may be in this seems almost forlorn with the attitude of France wholly unchanged. "Perfidious Albion" is indeed, when Albion is standing alone in the struggle for the preservation of the world.

PLENTY OF TIME.

(Flint Journal)

We're not going to be here on earth very long, any of us, so why not take one thing and try to learn what it's all about—instead of attempting to travel 1000 miles an hour and keep our daily lives geared correspondingly? Trouble is, we're rushing in a treadmill through life, and getting off not any appreciable distance. Ah eternity lies ahead. Don't shove.

AGNES AYRES IN FINE ROLE

Agnes Ayres in her latest starring vehicle, "A Daughter of Luxury," which is being exhibited for the last time at Griffin's to-night, has a role similar to those in which she achieved success when she appeared as the "Sheik's" girl. She is a girl reared in luxury who, in her distaste and to forget to walk the streets hungry and destitute, rashly starting work.

Miss Ayres plays the part with a keen sense of humor and instead of keeping her plight as a tragedy, makes light of it. Coupled with thrilling action, there is an abundance of wholesome comedy, and the introduction of some gorgeous gowns and beautiful settings.

An original Hy-Mayr Travelaugh, an interesting Jungle story featuring beautiful Patricia Palmer, and a very funny two-reel Charles Murray comedy titled "The Social Error".

RICHARD DIX AT REGENT IN "YELLOW MEN AND GOLD"

Romance and vivid imagination have been brought to light on the screen in the latest tale of Governors' Men, "Yellow Men and Gold", a Goldwyn picture, co-starring Richard Dix and Helene Chadwick which is being exhibited in which Regent Theatre tonight for the last time.

It is a tale of action in which the Northern Lights figure half way across the ocean to a lost island. A band for treasure that Robert Louis Stevenson so many lyrists, and turns in their every moment is crowded with excitement.

All the elements of romance enter into "Yellow Men and Gold". A beautiful love story, a treasure quest, a terrific struggle between two groups of treasure seekers, the fine typical deed of an adventurer that softens the memory of a life given to contemptible scheming, are all welded together in a tale that, once under way, never lags in interest until the last scene flashes past on the screen.

FOX NEWS an amusing Sunshine comedy, and a thrilling chapter of Treasure seekers, the new serial are being exhibited on the same program.

WALLACE REID AND LILA LEE AT GRIFFIN'S TOMORROW

Wallie Reid, paramount star, supported by Lila Lee, leading woman; Theodore Kosloff, Walter Long, Alan Hale and other screen notables, will give Belleville screen fans six delicious reels of fun, excitement, romance and revelation, at Griffin's tomorrow to Saturday, with the usual matinee Saturday, where "The Dictator", based on the famous play by the late Richard Harding Davis, in which William Coller scored a distinct stage success several years ago will be presented.

The story shows how a young American falls in love with the pretty daughter of a south American "Liberator", follows her south and experiences a revolution. At Griffin's tonight in which her father is the instigator, not knowing that his own father, the leading, is on the other side for busines and political reasons. Hewins the revolution, the girl and his father's profound respect after a series of exciting adventures which fairly brim with suspense, mystery, adventure, fighting and delightful humor.

Pathe News; 'Oh Nurse", a funny Century comedy, and William Desmond in a new chapter of the popular "Phantom Fortune" serial are being exhibited on the same program.

JACK HOXIE AT REGENT IN ROLLICKING WESTERN DRAMA

"A dozen cowboys who have "trail bended", steers from the Mexican border to the Powder river country up in Montana, who are not character types, but real cow men of the old west, appear with the whirlwind Western favorite Jack Hoxie in his latest starring screen play, "Don Quickshot of the Rio Grande", the Universal attraction which is the feature offering at the Regent Theatre, tomorrow to Saturday, with a matinee daily.

It is a Universal phenomena, of the southwest cattle country, and was adapted to the screen from a magazine story by Stephen Chalmers.

Two good comedies, and a Kinogram are also announced for exhibition on the same program.

Calls Present Methods Wrong

Toronto, Aug. 28—Promise of changes in Ontario's educational policy which would tend toward a simplifying of the public school system was made by Premier G. H. Ferguson, speaking for the first time publicly as minister of education, at the C.N.E. directors' luncheon yesterday.

Another feature of the luncheon was the breezy and interesting little speech of the admiral of the British North Atlantic fleet, Sir Michael Cline-Seymour. He refused, however, to voice an opinion on the reduction of the British navy, saying that was a matter for the statesmen, not the naval officers.

The premier was loudly applauded when he declared that the school system today had the wrong idea, that of imparting knowledge into the young head instead of developing the young sters.

TAKE CHILDREN TO C.N.E.

When Hon. Mr. Ferguson rose to speak he was greeted with cheers.

He referred to the fact that the exhibition is principally an educational institution.

"Our efforts in the past have perhaps been along erroneous lines. We have tried to fill the child with knowledge instead of developing the young mind.

"I think the exhibition is a great educational institution and although the Ontario government cannot afford to finance a free day for the children, it will see that the children can get away from school to attend and will try and get improved railway facilities for them.

"I am of the opinion that we have overburdened the children in public schools in the past. We have crammed them in a short time with a variety of subjects, and in addition have made them do homework.

BACK TO ESSENTIALS.

"There are certain essential subjects that cover the fundamentals of education," went on Mr. Ferguson, "and we hope to get back to the old policy of concentrating on the essential subjects. We hope to stimulate the minds of the children and develop their intellectual character, and the moral character of the youngsters. After all, the moral there is the most important point of the child's being."

Bambino Slugs Pill Into Bay

Island Stadium, Aug. 29.—The sun and Babe Ruth appeared at Hillsdale, by at the Island Stadium yesterday afternoon. There were cheers for Old Sol and young Babe from the large crowd which almost filled the grand stand for the big game, Yankees versus Leafs, which the latter won, 8 to 5. By a strange coincidence when Ruth retired to the dugout after plastering half a dozen balls into a large bay far over the heads of the fielders in the centre field bleachers while the fans marvelled, the sun almost went into obscurity temporarily.

The Yankees presented a somewhat changed lineup from the one announced, Hendricks playing field in place of Meusel, who complained of illness. Hellady at second in place of Ward and Gaeila at short in place of Scott, the iron man, who is not with the team.

While the Leafs practiced Ruth rubbed for Onslow for a while at first base and showed considerable versatility in taking tosses both high and low.

The batteries were Doyle and Vincent for Toronto, and Hoyt and Hofman for the Yankees. The line-up:

Yankees—Witt, ss.; Dugan, 3b.; Ruth, lf.; Pipp, 1b.; Hendricks, rf.; McNally, 2b.; Hoffman, c.; Gaeila, ss.; Hoyt, p.

Toronto—Capes, lf.; O'Rourke, ss.; Onslow, 1b.; Kelly, rf.; Eayres, cf.; Cousins, 3b.; Miller, 2b.; Vincent, c.; Doyle, p.

Umpires—Hett and Hallinan.

TUNNELS A MENACE TO CREWS OF TRAINS

Washington, Aug. 27.—If you chate said choke over the heat fumes entering your railway car the next time you go through a tunnel, think of the men in the engine cab and be happy. So says the Bureau of Mines, the best to which trainmen are subjected not only ranges as high as 136 degrees Fahrenheit, the smoke and noxious-laden atmosphere is often filled with deadly carbon monoxide gas.

The bureau has just conducted a series of tests in railroad tunnels in connection with investigation into accident causes. Out of 40 tunnel trips whose duration ranged from 4½ to 12 minutes, it was found that carbon monoxide was present in the air in 34 cases. Hot exhaust gases from the engines were another source of danger.

Exhaustion of train crews due to exposure to atmosphere containing carbon monoxide, or to exceedingly high temperatures saturated with moisture, was said undoubtedly to have been the cause of many accidents.

Results of physiological tests over periods of ten minutes in engine cabs showed that the conditions there might be severe enough to cause an injurious effect, and in periods of 20 minutes, in case an engine became stalled in a tunnel.

While the bureau has experimented with gas masks for the use of railmen, and has perfected a small portable respirator for quick use when in a tunnel, it has been concluded that the most satisfactory method for overcoming the tunnel atmosphere is by supplying fresh air to the men from the train's air brake system. A supply is led to each man through a small rubber tube with an ordinary funnel on the end, which, when held close to the face, furnishes an adequate fresh air supply.

Mrs. Luckhurst Quickly Discovered That Dreco Possessed Remarkable Health-Giving Qualities

Every woman should read the following statement from Mrs. J. Luckhurst, of 705 Dufie Street, Toronto, Ont. It portrays convincingly the true merit of Dreco, specially emphasizing the promptness of its beneficial action.

"For several years I have suffered from indigestion," says Mrs. Luckhurst. "I had gas on the stomach, acid risings and smothering spells. The pains were very severe across my back and I felt tired out all the time. My liver was sluggish and I was chronically constipated. Had constantly to take a laxative which gave me only temporary relief. I didn't rest well and my appetite was very poor. The food I did eat gave me no nourishment because it was not properly digested.

"No remedy ever gave me the amount of good results that Dreco has and I have only taken a half bottle. I had only taken a few doses when I could feel the difference and it seems to act so differently from any other medicine. It has gone to the root of my troubles I am sure, and I feel positive that by continuing the treatment I will get real good results. I haven't been having those terrible bleating spells and shortness of breath, nor have I any pains through my limbs and back. I eat well and sleep soundly and am indeed happy that I can recommend Dreco."

Dreco are quickly and with sure, helpful result, because it is made from Nature's own remedies.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist every

"WAR IS IMMINENT" SAYS LONDON ORGAN

ASSAULT CASE SET FOR SEPT. 5

Alleged Assailant of Young Girl Is Remanded To Jail

YOUTH IDENTIFIED

Victim of Thwarted Attack Relates Experience to Police Officials

George Clegg, 30, arrested yesterday afternoon on the Trent road, was remanded to jail this morning by Police Magistrate Mason until September 5 on a charge of attempted rape. The offence is alleged to have been committed in a lane abandoning from the Trent road, between this city and Trenton. The complainant is Aletha Dalton, aged 16.

Clegg, who is a Barnardo boy, has no relatives in this country, and has been working at Napanee as a thresher's helper. He was laid off yesterday and was walking to Oshawa, when he intended to seek employment in the motor car factories there, when the alleged assault occurred.

OF MUSICAL TURN.

Walking leisurely on the Trent road, playing the mouth organ, Clegg met the girl walking toward him. She was returning from a grocery store on the Trent road. After stopping the girl, according to a statement to the police, the youth talked to her, and finally attempted to be affable to conceal his offense, after placing one hand over her mouth.

MOTHER A WITNESS.

Screams from the girl attracted the mother's ear, it is alleged, witnessed the assault, the youth fleeing upon her approach. The provincial police were notified and found Aletha under the influence of a strong drink, which she had been given by Clegg, it is alleged. Upon being questioned by the police, the suspect was immediately recognized by the girl and her mother. Clegg says he was arrested and taken to the police station here.

Give All Students Chance in Athletics Is Stanford's Motto

"EX" ATTENDANCE MAY REACH HALF MILLION

One Hundred & Two Thousand, Five Hundred Flock Through Gates on Merchants' and Manufacturers' Day

"EX" ATTENDANCE

Saturday	71,000	76,500
Monday	89,500	57,000
Tuesday	186,000	170,500
Wednesday	90,000	102,500
To date	406,500	421,500
Increase over last year	15,000

Toronto, Aug. 30.—One hundred and two thousand five hundred people paid tribute to the progress of their nation yesterday, when the figures for attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition jumped to another record, with an increase of 12,000 over the corresponding day of last year. To date 16,000 more visitors have attended the Big Fair than in 1922. The half-million mark is believed to be in sight.

Merchants' and Manufacturers' Day was the driving force behind the newly established the new record when the vast crowd passed in review before the products of Canadian industry. Stoned progress shared honors with true sport, as the opening day of the Exhibition regatta drew thousands to the lake waterfront to follow with wild enthusiasm the speeding oarsmen.

Yesterday Canada gazed upon its handiwork and found that it was good. From factory and workshop came the products of the ingenuity and craftsmanship of Canadians to tell the substantial message of prosperity, of healthy progress and of sound advancement. Housed in the many buildings of the Big Fair was a veritable treasure-trove of the products of industry. As one vast unit, merchant, artisan, professional man and capitalist joined in bringing to the Exhibition visitors the vivid story, not spectacular, but none the less convincing, of the basic vitality of Canadian manufacturing.

Figures tell their own story. Today the total capital invested in the manufacturing industries of Canada stands at three and a half billion dollars. And worthily representing that vast investment was the collection of Canadian products displayed in Toronto at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Merchants' and Manufacturers' Day received its own tribute at the hands of the huge throng. From early morning until late at night crowds of citizens thronged through the buildings pausing to admire, here and there, some striking symbol of the new progress.

Music, sport and beauty were the keynotes of yesterday's attractions and not alone in response to the varied appeals did the huge crowd which thronged Manufacturers' Day at the Exhibition.

BAVARIA'S STAND DEEPENS GLOOM

Belief General That Germany Cannot Survive Long Under Strain

(United Press Despatch Exclusive to The Intelligencer)

Berlin, Aug. 30.—A wave of mortal pessimism is sweeping over the nation following the visit of Chancellor Stresemann to Bavaria. That was given added impetus Tuesday following the completion of eight months of passive resistance in the Ruhr, repeated statements by all leaders that this weapon would continue in use, and by the sudden spread over Germany of the word that the nation cannot hold out long.

Germany Unveils Her Tribute to Airmen

Gersfeld, Germany, Aug. 30 (United Press).—Field Marshall von Hindenburg appeared here today at the unveiling of a memorial to the memory of German airmen who lost their lives in the World War and in peace, found Germans flying from one end of the world to the country, gathered to honor those who died and those who lived to help Germany attain a place in the air.

The monument is the gift of German aviation organizations. The particular spot on the cliff from which German fliers have made such extraordinarily successful flights in their gliders during the last few years was chosen as particularly appropriate in view of the development of motorless flying since the Allies curtailed Germany's motor aerial development.

The flag covering the monument was lowered as the little Rhoen valley band played national airs and the former aerial officers stood at attention.

Ontario Banking Institutions Are Sound---No Occasion For Alarm

The basic condition of Canada is entirely sound. This fact should be steadily borne in mind by anyone inclined to uneasiness over the business settlement through which the country has been passing. Financial experts are unanimously of opinion that, following the recent comprehensive readjustment, no apprehension need be felt regarding the solidity of the banking institutions in Ontario. There is no question that money on deposit in these banks is as safe as ever in the hills themselves. In view of this, the banks are discouraging the transference of deposits from one institution to another, a practice which results only in disturbance, and in no way enhances the security of the depositor. The banks have a common interest in keeping the business channels of Canada free and open, and are not rivals in the matter of trying to attract savings deposits to themselves from other institutions which are willing to serve the needs of the country's commerce.

One of the leading financial authorities stresses the point that the banks doing business in Ontario are in such strong position that the public can entrust its savings to one and all with a feeling of perfect confidence.

"MOOSE SERVICE" SPEAKER'S THEME

Supreme Secretary of Lodge Tells of Mooseheaven and Mooseheart

CARE OF NEEDY

Local Members Assemble in New Auditorium to Greet Visitors

Mr. Rodney H. Brandon, of Mooseheart, Ill., supreme secretary of the Loyal Order of Moose, was the chief speaker at the Moose lodge entertainment (formerly Bennett's Academy) last night.

Mr. Brandon whose subject was Moose Service as rendered by the individual lodge, told care of lodge sick and dependents, gave an interesting picture of life at Mooseheart, Florida and Mooseheart, Illinois, the Moose homes for aged and orphans respectively.

Moose Haven is a home for aged members situated in Florida, because the climate is most suitable for aged people.

There is no charity connected with Moose Haven, members pay for this service with their dues.

Members and their wives are not separated but live their lives the same as if in their own home. Everyone at Moose Haven is suitably employed. No paid servants. The aged members do all their own work. The reason the poor house is what it is, is because of the stigma of charity, and the emancipation of its inmates. All this has been eliminated at Moose Haven.

Mooseheart is a training school for dependant children of departed Moose. It consists of an estate of eleven hundred acres situated in the State of Illinois, planned to accommodate 5,000 children.

Already 1,100 children are there. Mothers and children are not separated. Mothers accompanying their children, are found suitable employment and are paid for their services in proportion to their work. No one receives less than $30.00 per month board and housing included.

Each child entering Mooseheart is treated in the religious faith of its parents. Moose children are never adopted into private families. They remain at Mooseheart until they can take their place in the world at about the age of 19 or 20 years.

Each person has a high school education and a musical education, and is taught a trade of his own selection. All the girls as well as the boys are taught to keep house, make their own clothes and when marrying are capable of becoming good wives to the finest men in the land.

The children at Mooseheart live in cottages homes about 40 to a home. Overseen by a matron one of the mothers of the children there.

Mooseheart is maintained by a two dollar a year contribution from over 900,000 members in the United and Canada, and today has a value of over six million of dollars. Hardly a day passes without delegations from different states, and foreign countries visiting Mooseheart to study their methods. In conclusion Bro. Brandon emphasized the practical impossibility of the working man, of saving enough money or carrying his family in case of his death and told the members that it was a solemn duty of each member to at least explain to his neighbour and fellow worker what the order is, but might—purchase through his local lodge. The lodge is fairly able to do anything for individual than the individual is able to do without the lodge.

Gen. E. P. O'Flynn acted as chairman of the evening. Selections were rendered by the Moose Orchestra and others were solos by Mr. Fred Hicks and Mr. Kerr. Mr. Brandon was introduced by Mr. Morgan G. Hoyt of Toronto, Supervision of the Loyal Order of Moose for Ontario.

ALBERTA COAL AT $11 IF RATE IS REDUCED

Westerner Says 5,000,000 Tons Are Available If Freight Tariff is Lowered To More Satisfactory Level

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Alberta coal will be sold in this district for $11 a ton if the freight rate is reduced, Sir George Fisher of Alberta said he could supply as much as five million tons.

COAL OFFERED

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Since Toronto suffered from a fuel shortage last year, and fear of the same thing "is fait for the near future, a deputation representing public bodies which held a meeting August 27th in Massey Hall appeared before the board of control yesterday headed by Mayor W. F. Orr. They requested that another public meeting be held in Massey Hall on or before Sept. 10th, during the time of exhibition to discuss the distribution of Alberta coal.

Mayor Orr.

Mayor Maguire said: The hand of control have been alive to the situation.

Ald. Robbin: We want the freight rates down so we can get coal cheaper.

Mayor Maguire: We'll do everything we can to assist you.

Controller Gibbons: The government should take control of the mines.

Several mine-owners were present and gave their opinions.

Sir George Fliney, a resident of Toronto and an Alberta mine-owner, said:

"I can bring coal here and lay it down in car lots at $11 a ton, bituminous coal, any size you want. If the freight rate is reduced we'll reduce the price of coal. By 1924 I can deliver up to 5,000,000 tons a year."

"Will you write a letter confirming that offer" said the mayor.

"Yes, indeed," said Sir George.

LOCAL YOUNG LADY HAS PET MONKEY

Something new in the way of pets, was introduced to the staid city of Belleville this week, when a local young lady appeared on Front street with a spunkey in tow, a la chain. Needless to more as the animal was here and reminded citizens of stories from California tourist pipers, where the monkey is the favorite chum up with crocodiles, ostriches, tortoises and kangaroos.

No Signs to Guide Him, Tourist Doesn't Know "Where He's At".

A motor party of American tourists hailed a reporter on a street yesterday.

"Hey," hawed the driver," is this Kingston."

"Naw, you simp," said the news hound, "don't you know a real burg when you see it?"

The reporter then explained that the tourists were in the City of Belleville, the Gateway of Central Ontario.

"Well, why don't they stick up a sign so a fellow will know where he's at?" queried the motorist.

His last's the only one who is seeking an answer to that question. It is reported, however, that the City Council is considering a suggestion to place signs in conspicuous places along straggling fares on the outskirts of the city and to properly designate all the streets and avenues.

Killing of Five Members of Italian Delimitation Commission Precipates New European Crisis

Italian Ultimatum Demanding Reparation Causes Stir—Greek Cabinet Meets To Discuss Matter

(United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

Athens, Aug. 30.—The Greek Cabinet met today to consider the Italian ultimatum which gives the country 24 hours to make reparations for the massacre of five Italian officers in Greek Territory.

Fiume, Aug. 30.—During Wednesday night four trainloads of mountain artillery and ammunition arrived at Fiume from Trieste while at the same time three Italian destroyers, accompanied by destroyers arrived at Pola.

Paris, Aug. 30.—Mussolini's seven point ultimatum to Greece became known in Paris last night it when it caused pronounced surprise and alarm in political press circles.

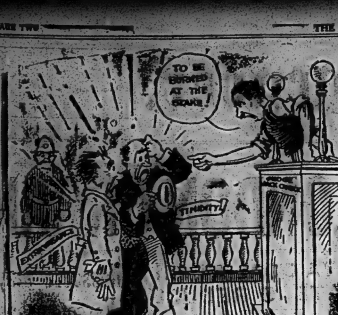

GRAVE FEARS

Paris, Aug. 30.—It is announced that a conference of Ambassadors will shortly discuss the assassination of the Italian Mission on the Greco-Albanian frontier. The assassination has created a tremendous sensation here and grave developments are feared.

London, Aug. 30.—"Europe to-day is suddenly confronted by grave and imminent danger of a new war." This paragraph in the London Evening Star to-day sums up the British opinion of the crisis precipitated by Italy's 24-hour ultimatum to Greece, demanding redress for the assassination of five Italian members of the Albanian Frontier Commission.

Athens, Aug. 30.—The Italian Government demanded from Greece an answer within 24 hours to a note handed the Greek Government last night, declaring that Greece shall pay indemnity of 50,000,000 lires, salute the Italian fleet and punish the Greeks responsible for killing the five Italian members of the Greco-Italian frontier delimitation mission.

Premier Gonatas told the newspapermen, that while all the demands of the Italians were not acceptable, some of them would be agreed to, and that the Greek Government would ask modification of the others. The Premier added that the Government would make reply within the time limit set by them.

REPORT OF CROP CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives for the Ontario Department of Agriculture:—

The recent generous rains will greatly help crop conditions. Corn and roots were much in need of moisture, while pastures were very alluring insufficient fare for many of the animals grazing on them.

The rain also will be a boon to farmers so far as the cultivation of the soil is concerned. Plowing was almost impossible during August on some clay soils, except with horses, and it was with the greatest difficulty that land could be got into condition for the sowing of fall wheat. Some farmers have been using three horses on single plows, and a number have been using cultivators on their stubble land instead of cross plowing.

Hallon reports that peas have been an exceptionally good crop this season.

Prescott and Russell: A light touch of frost has ruined large fields of buckwheat on low lands. The frost has also affected some fields of corn, a few fields of late sown oats and garden crops.

Renfrew: There is no fall wheat grown in this District, although there has been several settlers stated that they intend giving it a trial, as they see no reason why it should not grow when clover does so well.

Halton: Orchards in general are going into the winter in rather poor condition this year, due to the severe attack of blight. Most of the raspberry plantations are badly attacked with crown gall, mosaic and leaf curl. Sprayed orchards show a more vigor ous condition than orchards which were not, sprayed.

Northumberland: Apples on light soil were shy in bulk of fruit until set some showing lack of size until the rains came. A number of dealers are active, but few sales have been made. Everyone is carefully watching the trend of the market

Much injury was done to the fruit crops in the Niagara district by a recent hail storm, but particulars are not yet to hand.

Elgin: Chemistries are finding it hard to hold their patrons, as there is so much difference in price in favor of cheese.

Frontenac says that the milk production had fallen off so low that some factories last week were able to run at only 25 per cent of their capacity.

Elgin: Beef cattle going to market more than for a number of weeks and the increase in the price of hogs is bringing more to market. Farmers are beginning to understand the grade system, and are endeavoring to improve their stock.

Leeds: Dairy cattle have fallen off considerably in flesh recently, although horses are in very good condition as a rule. There being plenty of hay and roughage. Canners and dairy cattle are being sold at a very low figure; 3½ to 3c a lb. being the average price.

Hallon: Due to the shortage of help in the spring, farmers did not get su...cient manure out, and they are applying to the sod and in preparation for fall wheat.

Peel: The labor situation has been helped somewhat during the past week, by the fact that we obtained six Salvation Army boys and fifteen men, short-time men are scarce, however.

SINCLAIR'S

EAT VEGETABLES FOR VITAMINS

The mineral salts and acids and the vitamines found in fruits and vegetables are a daily requirement of the body if health is to be maintained. It is not difficult to meet this requirement during the summer and early autumn when there is an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables but very often during the remainder of the year, we allow our diet to become too concentrated with starchy and proteid foods. To avoid falling into this error, budget your planning or, in other words, plan for home canning so that the family will have a jar of fruit and a jar of vegetables every day when fresh supplies cannot be obtained. It is a good plan, in the beginning of the season, to set aside two good jars, fitted with new rubbers, for every day of the winter months and make your goal the filling of these by the end of the canning season.

Few people realize how much of the success of canning depends on the selection of materials. This is especially true in the case of vegetables. Only young vegetables should be selected and they should be canned as soon as they are gathered. One of the most common causes of the "flat sour" in such vegetables as corn, beans, peas and asparagus is allowing the vegetables to stand for some time in a warm place. If a large quantity is prepared for canning at one time it is almost impossible to avoid having some of the food stand for a considerable time and during the standing, condition arise which are favorable for the growth of the organisms which cause "flat sour," even before the work of canning is finished. For this reason it is always better to can only a few jars at a time.

A fireless cooker is valuable when it comes to preparing corn on a commercial scale. It does away with the necessity of keeping a hot fire during the time of sterilization of the food. This method of canning may also be used for such fruits however. Raspberries, plums and peaches are particularly well done in this way.

Fireless Cooker Method of Canning.

Fireless Cooker Method of Canning. Pack the prepared food into jars and adjust the rubbers and covers as if fill completely with hot syrup and seal at once. Set in the fireless cooker kettle, which has been warmed to prevent the jars from breaking, and cover completely with boiling water. Cover the kettle at once and let it in the cooker. Allow it to stand overnight or until cold.

Some fruits and vegetables may be preserved in winter use without cooking. The following method may be used for such products: Sterilize fruit jars and rubber rings by boiling them for half an hour. Fill the jars as full as possible with the prepared fruit, then fill to overflowing with cold water and let stand previously boiled for half an hour. Run a knife blade through the contents of the jars to break up any air spaces. Finish the jar in the usual manner, screwing the covers down as tightly as possible. The success of this method depends on keeping the fruit under the fresh and the jars perfectly air-tight and properly sterilized.

Drying Beans Preserved in Salt for Winter use.

Method 1: Use fresh picked and fairly young beans, string and cut finely ready for preparing for the table Pre pare the beans thoroughly and spread them out on platters to dry. Cover them with salt and let stand over night. The next morning pack in glass jars and seal or pack in a stone crock with a weight on top.

Method 2: Prepare the beans as in method 1. But use pint of clean rock salt into three quarts of fresh clean water and let stand over night. In the morning, boil, skim, strain and let stand until cool. Pack the beans in the fruit jars, fill the jars to overflowing with the cold brine and seal. To use, soak twenty-four hours in freshwater and cookes fresh in soup beans. If the beans are still salt after soaking change the water while cooking.

WALLACE REID SUPPORTED BY GREAT CAST IN "THE DICTATOR"

A list of noted players which makes the cast look almost like a roster of stars was chosen for "The Dictator", a paramount picture starring Wallie Reid which will be an item at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, with the usual matinee Saturday.

Lila Lee is leading woman. Theodore Roslolf has a highly important role; Kalla Pasha, a Mack Sennett comedian, is cast in an appropriate part; Alan Halem semi-beasy of "One Glorious Day", and Walter Long, heavy actor in "Moran of the Lady Letty", a George Melford production, are included in the highly interesting parts, and Fred Butler and Sidney Bracey are seen in good roles.

This is Willie Collier's famous stage success done into a screen play by Walter Woods. The original was by the Late Richard Harding Davie. The production is filled with interesting dramatic moments.

Pathe News, "Oh Nurse" a funny comedy, and William Desmond in a new chapter of "The Phantom Fortune" serial are also announced for exhibition on the same program.

'DON QUICKSHOT' STARS HOXIE IN THRILLING STORY

"Don Quickshot of the Rio Grande," the Universal photoplay starring Jack Hoxie, which will be seen at the theatre commencing today a matinee daily, is a typical western play of the cattle country, and has a thrilling finish to it.

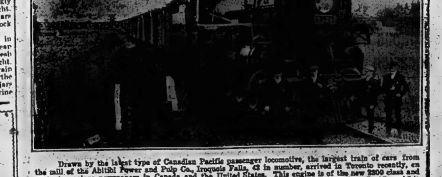

The story involves the adventures of a romantic cowboy who spends the first of his nights reading Cervantes' "Don Quixote" and much of his spare time doing imaginative knightesttrations of the hero of the legend. When he is fired for his day Frendly, he immediately hits the trail south.

No picture could have been better adapted to Hoxie's natural ability as a cowboy and his dramatic skill. Hoxie is far more than a "stage" cowboy who appears at rest in full cowboy regalia. He is a veteran of the open range country of the days when cowboy life was real, when the great cattle industry of the west was at its height.

Although he has been in pictures for three years he has never strayed from the western role in which he began his career and in which he fits so well.

And "Don Quickshot of the Rio Grande" is a visualization of the old West. The story was adapted from a magazine story by Stephen Chalmers and directed by George E. Marshall.

Two good comedies and a Kinogram will be exhibited in addition to the above feature offering.

Drawn by the latest type of Canadian Pacific passenger locomotive, the largest train of cars from the hill of the Abitibi Power and Pulp Co., Iroquois Falls, 61 in number, arrived in Toronto recently, en route to various newspapers in Canada and the United States. This engine is of the new 2800 class and has been in actual service for more than a month. It now forms part of the Canadian Pacific exhibit at the C.N.E., and has already demonstrated its fitness by the sterling performance of hauling more than 3,000 tons a distance of 250 miles without the slightest trouble.

BLACK SQUIRREL

Belleville lovers of Station No. 1 have a fine specimen of the now rare black squirrel in captivity, having caught him last week. He is a sturdy little rodent and has some startled suspicously puzzled by his healthy appearance. He was caught in a wood near the city by Mr. H. Carson, and has a separate run way and house at the fire department.

In the second squirrel home are five active red squirrels, two having been added to the home recently. Also is an odd variety with a silver colored fall.

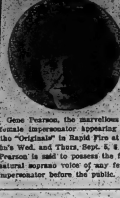

FRICTION CAUSES FIRE

Friction caused by washing a motor car with gasoline and then rubbing the car vigorously to produce the glow, started a fire yesterday afternoon which threatened to burn the machine until the Fire Brigade arrived, and quickly extinguished the blaze. The wiring on the car was burned. The fire occurred in a yard at the corner of Earl and Gordon streets.

IN MEMORIAM.

The following poem was written by Ald. G. H. French's wife in memory of her son, Malcolm Linford French, 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., who died in France in defence of Ideas and Country, Aug. 30th, 1918.

Oh, it's oftimes we are lonely
And so weary all the day
To see the face, and clasp the hand
Of him who is away.
The only one God gave us,
Our one and only boy;
His love and love was centred on
Our one and only boy.

We saw him in his infant days
Grow up from year to year,
That he would some day be a man
We never had a fear,
Tenderly we watched his every step,
It was our united joy
To think what he might be some day,
Our one and only boy.

When war broke out, to us he said:
My conscience tells me so,
For I must do my duty, Dad,
They need my help, you know.
Be brave, dear Mother, don't worry,
Again
For I'll no better than they
Who suffer and die on Flanders' Fields
With their sons far away."

A chance to do something, be someone,
To prove there's a purpose in life,
With a vision of manhood before him,
He longed to take part in the strife.
One day—there came a message;
That message gave us pain,
For the one we loved and lived for
Would never come back again.

Some day, some time, our eyes shall see
The faces kept in memory,
Who grew to highest manhood
Modeled on Christ's plan—
Who live for others, die a perfect man.
Unless little while! And then with joy,
We do believe we'll meet again
Our one and only boy.

Local Kiwanians Help Out Cobourg Club Festivities

Twenty Belleville Kiwanians aided materially, along with Lindsay and Peterboro brother clubmen in putting over a real fun day at Cobourg yesterday, when the Kiwanian picnic and sports day was held.

Peterboro Kiwanians defeated the Belleville club's baseball team 6-3 but the local representatives cleaned up in the track and field events, which aided so materially in making the day one which will not soon be forgotten, for they won many fine prizes. The Kiwanians took their wives or sweet hearts as the case was along, and they also enjoyed a wonderful day of it.

The women imported themselves in the waters of lake Ontario, as did many of the men, and in the evening an enjoyable dance was well attended.

Snow-White Pigs Latest Fair Fad

Atlantic City, N.J., Aug. 30 (United Press)—"The Playground of America" is literally packed with visitors who will remain until after the beauty pageant September 5, 6 and 7. The season is now at its zenith.

Fads and fancies of the boardwalk strollers are introduced every second of the day.

Women dressed in every color of the rainbow parade "fashion row" from sunrise until midnight. Peach, yellow, red and green are the favorite colors of the fair sex, with colors of Chinese type a close second. Knickers for morning wear are appropriate.

Canes have been discarded and the woman with the staff is having prominence. It was considered sensational when Adele made their appearance leading a monkeys, but the latest is the pig. Several young society ladies have acquired little, snow-white porkers. Dressed with a bow around its neck, the pig trots along beside its fair owner.

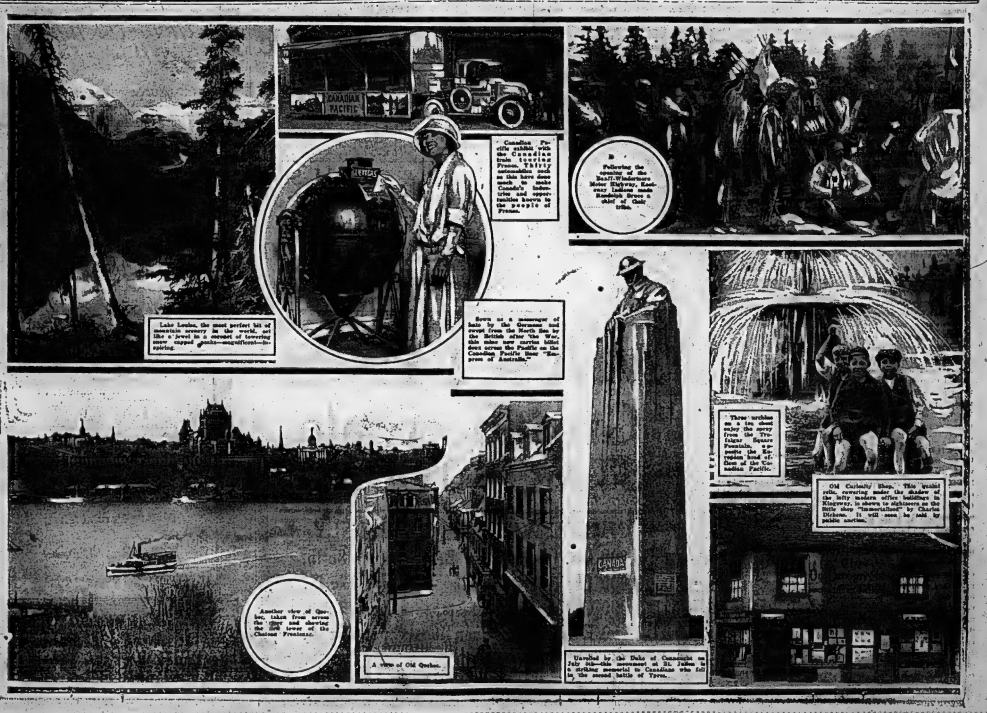

Knitting has not been displaced in popularity here. Needles click morning, noon and night. Because the sweater is handy during the cool evenings, the industrious knitters seem to concentrate on that article.

Thousands pack the beach daily to "buck" the surf. The water has been ideal all season, with its temperature hovering around 74 degrees. Rolled tops are now allowed.

THE PARIS TETE-A-TETE

Premier Baldwin and Premier Poincare have decided to attempt to unravel the tangled web of the reparations controversy at a tete-a-tete in Paris. If success smiles upon the experiment it will not be the first time in history that two men representing great powers have solved momentous problems by personal intercourse.

This method, however, has fallen into disrepute, because popular favor has branded it as an esoteric arrangement, wholly unsuited to democratic governments. This is, in a sense true, but in the present crisis in Europe any recourse is justified.

If the bland, clearly-thinking Baldwin can penetrate the diplomatic armour of the stubborn Poincare the path to settlement may be cleared.

Since there is a pronounced disposition on the part of a larger number of workers and other residents in the Ruhr to cease passive resistance, Premier Baldwin's task may be lightened. Certainly the meeting in Paris can do no harm, and it may bring solutions and peace.

Practically every available measure of peace-time has been resorted to in the reparations tangle and a resurgence of warfare is not improbable in the event the problem resists solution much longer. Perhaps Premier Baldwin will "cut the Gordian knot" in Paris.

PROTECTING CHILDREN

The coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Miss Annie Leigh, one of the victims of the WaWa Hotel fire on Aug. 19th, returned a verdict of accidental death.

By their action the jurors attached no blame to any person for the disaster which destroyed the fashionable resort in the Muskoka district and took a toll of nine lives. Yet the jurors incorporated a warning and a criticism in their verdict.

"We deprecate the absence of systematic inspection of public buildings for fire-fighting appliances and recommend that Government supervision or inspection be enforced to provide for adequate fire escapes (and) sufficient fire-fighting equipment. . ."

Rigid enforcement of fire-prevention regulations and inspection of safety appliances in all public buildings is an obvious necessity if the proper standards are to be maintained.

This is perhaps most apparent in the case of schools. Buildings in which thousands of children are housed have not infrequently become scenes of appalling holocausts. Children cannot meet emergencies with the coolness and judgment of adults and there have been instances in which inadequate safety equipments have proved disastrous.

Next week nearly 2,500 Belleville children will be housed in numerous public and private school buildings throughout the city. They will resume in these buildings during the major part of the day, six days of the week, for the greater part of the year.

The fire prevention and safety equipment of these structures conform in the standards required by law. That of the new Kingsford school is said to be exceptionally thorough. It is necessary, however, in order that these devices may function efficiently in time of emergency, that they be carefully examined at frequent intervals and that nothing be allowed to become misplaced or out of order, no matter how insignificant the part affected may appear to be.

In this day of prohibition and rigid regulation of personal conduct it is not fair to expect that one's name will be omitted from a news story in the event his is arrested on a charge of intoxication. He should look upon the publicity attached to his case as part of the sacrifice associated with a "grand and glorious" time.

Water supply systems, fire sirits, gongs, fire escapes should be minutely examined at least two or three times a week. There should be a sufficient number of fire drills to insure prompt obedience to signals and military precision in times of peril.

Of course, it is essential that equipment of the very best type be provided and that there be careful consideration of the number who can be readily accommodated. Belleville parents must depend upon teachers, board members and city and government officials to protect their children while they are in school.

PRESS OPINIONS

EGGS IN ONE BASKET.

(Banffaio Times)

Half the farmers made less than $1,000 last year, claims Nathan Straus, Jr., agricultural expert of the New York State Senate. Such figures are confusing. Do they represent clear profit? If so (and probably not) the farmers in addition go their living. Few city workers have $1,000 clear after paying for food, etc.

On the other hand: In New Jersey, 239 school pupils in one year clear nearly $10,000 above all expenses, from their home gardens. That's $175 apiece, and in spare time. They had, of course, no investment in land, no notes at bank, no taxes.

Intensive farming and diversified crops may be the solution for many farmers, especially ones who stake everything on the crop. The cotton grower finally is learning this.

TURKISH TREACHERY

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Concessions by Turkey held by Americans are to be respected by the Turkish government. This, at least, is what the treaty says. Undoubtedly the Turkish government will live up to the terms of the treaty as long as it sees any advantage to itself in so doing. In reality the assurance does not amount to much.

Whenever a treaty stipulation become distasteful the Turks ignore it. They repudiated solemn treaty obligations when they abolished extertioriality. They arbitrarily cancelled agreements with France when they handed out the Chester concessions now given protection by solemn compact.

ernment at an annual cost of a million dollars or more a year, solely in a humanitarian spirit and without undertaking whatever to perform a service which properly should be discharged by the steamship lines which bring the immigrants into the country.

This, however, affords no reason why decent accommodation should not be provided. England points with pride to the accommodation provided by the shipping companies at Atlantic Park, five miles from Southampton, where, if government reports are fully credited, conditions are nearly ideal and everybody is happy.

There are recreation rooms open ing on 25 acres of fields where children romp while their parents read or bask in the sunshine. Three shipping companies make this provision at their turn to go to the United States.

SPOON-FED GRADUATES

(Washington Post.)

People often wonder why the college graduate is not better equipped for the battle of life. Is not the answer to be found, at least in part, in the fact that he has been spoon-fed, that instead of being taught to be self-reliant he has been allowed to depend too much on the labor and exertions of others?

He may, indeed, have acquired a certain amount of information, but information gained at second-hand rests on no sure foundation and soon slips away. Besides, it is not the information itself, but the mental discipline involved in digging it out and assimilating it, added to the methods employed for these purposes, that constitutes true education. Mere attendance at lectures is not sufficient.

SPAIN IS WORRIED OVER ITS PRINCES

Belgian Note is Handed to British Foreign Office

By JOHN DE GANDT

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Hendaye, France—on the Spanish Border—Aug. 28.—(By mail to United Press).—Will Spain become a republic some day because, of shortage of kings?

This is a question about which few people in Spain dare talk, that fewer dare believe, and that the newspapers avoid for several reasons, such as lack of information, censorship, etc.

However, the truth is that, although the present King of Spain is not ill, his first son, the Infante Alfonso, Prince of the Asturies and heir to the throne, who was born in Madrid on May 10, 1907, is in very poor health and may not live as long as his father.

The news has leaked out, little by little. It is known that the Prince is suffering from a malady of the spine, which prevents him from walking, except with a crutch under each arm, his body almost bent double.

A pathetic incident occurred recently when the royal family decided to leave Madrid to go to the north of Spain, where it has summer residences on the seaside, at San Sebastian and Santander. Prince Alfonso was in condition to make the trip by railroad, but what would the crowds say and think when they see him, crippled, be, their future king? How embarrassing it would be for him and others attending the official ceremonies in places where the train stops. On the other hand, it was no terribly hot in Madrid that he could not stay there, and his parents would not leave him alone. Wherefore, the King decided to take his son to Santander, which is about four hundred miles northwest of Madrid by automobile.

One morning at 5 o'clock a huge touring car left the royal palace. It was driven by the King himself, and carried the Prince, a doctor and the chauffeur. After skirting through the towns of Castille and Navarre, the car reached the Miramar palace of Santander at noon. Prince Alfonso, almost covered with blankets, had passed unnoticed everywhere in the clouds of dust. The King came back to Madrid the next day, and a week later returned to Santander with the rest of his family.

Of course, what the Spanish papers said about the trip to Santander was that the King went with the Prince.

The situation would not be critical if the other sons of the royal family were in better health, but it is known too they are not well. The second, Don Jaime, who is now 15, stammers and suffers from terrible deafness, for which he receives care from an American doctor.

Don Juan Carlos, 10 years old, although his condition is not as serious as the other two, is weak and does not thrive properly for his age.

It is easy then to understand the anxiety in official circles on account of the death of the possible successors to the throne, especially should King Alfonso not survive long. It is not surprising, either, that those who know the inside are wondering what will be the outcome and what further difficulties may arise when Spain loses its present ruler.

SHOULD PROVE EFFECTIVE.

A farmer in Scotland had a stroke of paralysis, and the minister of the parish gave him electrical treatment with a galvanized battery. A neighbor called to inquire about the suffering man, and asked his wife how he was progressing. "Oh, middlin' bad," she replied, "but I'm thinkin' he'll maybe soon be better, for the minister has been here and gave him a shock wi' a thing ca'ed a Calvinistic battery."

OBSERVANT CHILD.

"Mother, must I wash my face?"

"Yes."

"Why can't I powder it like you do?"

DID HE USE A SOUNDING BOARD?

Mr. Smith—I thought as much; we could hear the sounds from our house.

GRAND TRUNKS TAKE SECOND GAME OF SERIES WITH OSHAWA IN NINTH INNINGS, 6 TO 5

HAGERMAN'S THREE-BAGGER BRINGS END TO DEADLOCK; PLAY AT PETERBORO TODAY

Championship of C.O.R.L. To Be Determined This Afternoon—Winner Takes League Pennant and Johnson Cup—Victorious Team Will Meet St. Pats at Ottawa on Saturday

Belleville Grand Trunks staged one of the sensational finishes for which they are noted and nosed out Art Shelly's Oshawa crew by a score of 6-5 in one of the closest battles witnessed on the Belleville diamond for some time. Yesterday's victory put the teams on an even basis and made a third game necessary, which is being played in Peterboro today. The failure of the protest committee to put in an appearance last night made the third and final game between the two teams inevitable.

"Duke" Dainty was sent back to the Railroaders in an endeavor to trim them again. He made a valiant effort but the Trunks were not to be denied, and garnered nine hits off the "Duke's" offerings. Whether Shults will pitch Dainty again today is a question, but in all probability he will get the call. The "old man" Patton is not in proper shape to take on the heavy-hitting Mohawk.

Three games in a period of six days is a great test for a pitcher to perform and it would not surprise a host of fans should Dainty go up in smoke, although he has performed the feat before, when in 1921 he stepped into Port Hope and trimmed them after having twirled three games during the same period.

Jack Oulette will likely be Manager Gerow's choice today and if the sturdy right-hander hurls the same class of ball as he did last Saturday there is not a shadow of doubt but what he should pull out with a win. Oulette has dropped some tough games in the past few weeks, but here's hoping the team stands up behind him today.

"Tetty" Jack Williams got the assignment yesterday and he performed in grand style before twenty-five hundred rabid rooters. The team played rather loosely behind him and nearly wrecked his chance, but at that Dainty's support wavered at times. The Trunks committed six errors and handed the Automotive crew at least two runs. But the Trunks won the game and must receive their due amount of credit. Errors are made by the best of players and yesterday the locals had one of their rotten days, and should be on their toes today. Criticising them will do no good, and we must all pull together for the good of the boys. They have hung up a notable record this season and should they lose today, they deserve great credit. However, if they went to Peterboro with an inch idea in their heads as a loaf, and the fans hope their fondest wishes will be gratified.

The Oshawa outfield undoubtedly saved Dainty's bacon on several occasions when they made neat to impossible catches. They are about the smoothest set of out-gardeners who have appeared on the local diamond this season. Roddick and Reg. Fair in right and centre field pulled down several beautiful drives. When Reg. grabbed Pinney Mills' terrific drive he robbed the big boy of a sure three-bagger. Roddick came in on one occasion to grab J. R. Williams' Texas leaguer, which he stabbed at his shoestrings. They are a smooth-working pair and duplicated several catches made in Oshawa.

The game was halted with a downpour of rain in the seventh inning, with the score standing 5-5. Oshawa had scored three times in the fifth when Jacobi counted on "Ripper" Rowden's single.

Oshawa in their half of the sixth recovered a brace when Dainty scored on Wilson's fielder's choice and a minute later Roddick came home on Reg. Fair's well-placed single.

The Trunks got a device on Hagerman's mighty triple which scored "Crock" Williams and "Babe" Casey. Tyson netted a run on Roddick's pretty fly. In the fifth advantage of Morrison's miscue of Hagerman's grass-cutter, and the score stood five all.

In the ninth the Trunks staffed the old ball game in the last bag when, after Weir and Rose had singled, "Brown" and "Big Pecney" went out, and Harry Mills smote Dainty's first offering to right and Weir crossed the platter and the crowd went daffy. Walter Fair made a gigantic attempt to out Weir off but the throw fell short.

Dainty was a sick man after the game. His baby-like actions were the cause for numerous comments. He was beaten fairly and had no cause for complaint. Although he made three bad plays at times, they made up for it at others. Jack Williams' support was more ragged than his usual reported American's.

The Oshawa infielders made several lucky stops, particularly Wilson and Dainty. Neither knew they had stabbed the sphere until they found it in their gloves.

Stan. Hagerman, Wicky Rose and H. Mills credited the big noise with the willow. Hagerman's triple in the sixth was a mighty clout. Wicky had three hits and came back strong after a hiking slump which has camped on his trail for some time. His drive at Rowden in the sixth was a lulu one and Rowden was forced to allow it to pass through his legs. Harry Mills, with two hits, one of which broke up the game, made them both timely and well placed.

"Big Pecney" failed to connect yesterday, but watch him today. He injured his sore finger yesterday when hitting the ball. It was thought for a time that he might have to go behind the bat when Hagerman injured his finger in the third, but Stan. stuck nobly to his guns.

Harry Mills made a beautiful pickup when he caged Rose and Reg. Fair in the seventh. He was given a hand by the crowd.

Hagerman was applauded when he donned the stake in the seventh after cracking out his triple.

Pitcher Jack Williams drew hearty applause on his every appearance at the plate.

Dainty is a nice batter and generally manages to get on first. It is unusual for a pitcher to be a good batter, but Dainty is an exception. He was accidentally hit on his pitching arm, which may bother him today. He is a hard man to "rattle" and the records tried hard, but "Duke" took it all with a smile on his face. The old "left-right" stuff was worked by the spectator box Dainty refused to balk.

Morrison, the Ball Manager of the Oshawans, is a nifty fielder but a very poor man with the willow. Tyson, late of Cobourg, was kicked off the plate and turned in a fine game. He has a peculiar whip and is a good batter, yet he failed to show up very well yesterday.

Big "Bucko" Wilson on first is rather clumsy handling the pill. He came through with a rush pended hit yesterday. He has a bad habit of blocking base runners off first, but after a jolt or two from local players he learned to play his position as it should be.

Johnny Williams on third had two nice assists and played a good all-round game. He failed to connect safely although he scored once on Browny's two errors were bad, although everybody was doing it yesterday.

In the ninth Johnny Morgan went to second, Weir to left field and Pecney to right, Casey to the bench, Allan did excellent work while on the first base coaching lines.

Thorne and Hallinan were the umps. with the former behind the plate. Their decisions rendered were excellent. The same pair will handle the game in Peterboro today.

Belleville are accustomed to Riverside Park, having played nine games there, while Oshawa have six here three this season. Jake Solomon and the Peterboro fans will no doubt be rooting for Belleville and the "Big Four."

Pass were present from Oshawa, Cobourg, Peterboro and Kingston parks.

Diamond Dust

Very poor accommodation if provided for visiting reporters. The present press-box is a two-by-four arrangement and is filled to capacity when occupied by three pressmen. Do not the scribes deserve better consideration than this? These are the boys who scatter the news far and wide that the public may read and follow the ball game from the newspaper. For the past two years the press-box has been inadequate to supply the needs and as a result usually some of the reporters were forced to seek other quarters from which to view the game. Neighboring towns, notably Peterboro and Kingston, have ample room to seat from five to seven hundred. These visitors go back home with the report of having received very poor treatment from the Belleville club. Yesterday, for instance, ten reporters had to find room in the bleachers in order to report the game. Could not the south end of the grandstand provide room for three additional people? Should Belleville win today, Oshawa will send two or three reporters to the game here, besides the representatives of contemporary newspapers. It is an important issue which demands immediate action from the local baseball management. Are the reporters not justified in having at least a decent seat? It is a favor which should be thought upon and conferred on the reporters.

Extra benches were provided along the third-base line which accommodated officials of the league and a large number of spectators. The bleachers and grand stand, were tasked to capacity, while motor cars completely encircled the outfield. "It was the largest crowd of the season," said one prominent official. There were close to 3,000 people including the many youngsters who found the odd hole in the fence.

Mark Dulmage was among the celebrants present. He came all the way from Guelph and was pleased with the game. It's a crime that President Dedman (dead man?) and the protest committee failed to put in an appearance.

Mr. Green of the Dunham House, Cobourg, who banqueted the boys last Saturday night, was a welcome visitor.

We are wondering where Stan. Hagerman and "Babe" Casey secured those nifty garters. Did you notice them folks?

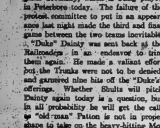

Jack Oulette was warming up for some time behind the dug-out. His services were, however, not required as Williams never once showed signs of weakening.

Police protection was of the very best. The crowd were well-behaved and Chief Kidd and his force experienced very little trouble.

Protests Committee Fails to "Show" For Conference

The protest committee composed of Sandy Lockhart, Fred D. Craig, A. G. Kimmel and Pres. Dedman failed to put in an appearance last night for the protest meeting. The faithful secretary Jack Nott received a telegram from Fred D. Craig stating that it was impossible for the committee

To go in match battle by any means, and neither was master of the situation at any time. Honors were about even, although Jack Williams had a slight edge on his port-sided rival. Williams caused eight to whiff the breeze while Dainty struck out seven. Belleville had nine hits while Oshawa gathered but seven. Dainty was erratic at times, passing four batters. Both pitchers were in fairly good form but their teammates fell down several times. Belleville accounted for an error while the motor town gang were responsible for three misplays.

Oshawa started the scoring early when, in the second inning, Wilson's grounder took a bad bounce over Weir's head and Dainty galloped home with the opener. Belleville in their half of the fourth got a pair when Rowden failed to get in front of Wicky's grounder, with Weir on base. Rev. Fair let the sphere go by and as a result Rose also scampered home. Oshawa, not to be outdone, chased across the equaliser in the fifth when Jacobi counted on "Ripper" Rowden's single.

Oshawa in their half of the sixth recovered a brace when Dainty scored on Wilson's fielder's choice and a minute later Roddick came home on Reg. Fair's well-placed single.

The Trunks got a device on Hagerman's mighty triple which scored "Crock" Williams and "Babe" Casey. Tyson netted a run on Roddick's pretty fly. In the fifth advantage of Morrison's miscue of Hagerman's grass-cutter, and the score stood five all.

Jack Oulette will likely be Manager Gerow's choice today and if the sturdy right-hander lands the same class of ball as he did last Saturday there is not a shadow of doubt but what he should pull out with a win. Oulette has dropped some tough games in the past few weeks, but here's hoping the team stands up behind him today.

"Lefty" Jack Williams got the assignment yesterday and he performed in grand style before twenty-five hundred rabid rooters. The team played rather loosely behind him and nearly wrecked his chances, but at that Dainty's support wavered at times. The Trunks committed six errors and handed the Automobile crew at least two runs. But the Trunks won the game and must receive their due amount of credit. Errors are made by the best of players and yesterday the locals had one of their rotten days, and should be on their toes today. Criticizing them will do no good, and we must all pull together for the good of the boys. They have hung up a notable record this season and should they lose today, they deserve great credit. However, they went to Peterboro with no such idea in their heads as a loss, and the fans hope their fondest wishes will be gratified.

The Oshawa outfield undoubtedly saved Dainty's bacon on several occasions yesterday and the fans at Peterboro appeared on the local diamond this season. Roddick and Reg. Fair in right and centre field pulled down several beautiful drives. When Reg. grabbed Pinney Mills' terrific drive he robbed the big boy of a sure three-bagger. Roddick came in on one occasion to grab J. M. Williams' Texas leaguer, which he stabbed at his shoestrings. They are a smooth-working pair and duplicated several catches made in Oshawa.

The game was not put over in fewer times but the odd error and hit caused a change in the scoreboard. It was not a pitchers' battle by any means, neither was master of the situation at any time. Honors were about even, although Jack Williams had a slight edge on his port-sided rival. Williams caused eight to whiff the breeze while Dainty struck out seven. Belleville had nine hits while Oshawa gathered but seven. Dainty was credit at times for passing four batters. Both pitchers were in fairly good form but their teammates fell down several times. Belleville accounted for six errors while the motor town gang were responsible for nine mistakes.

Oshawa started the scoring early when, in the second inning, Wilson's grounder took a bad bound over Weir's head and Dainty galloped home with the opener. Belleville in their half of the inning, with Weir on base, Rowden failed to get in front of Wicky's grounder with Weir on base. Rev. Fair let the sphere go by and the result Rose also scampered home. Oshawa, not to be outdone, chased across the equaliser in the fifth when Zacsko connied on "Kipper" Rowden's single.

Oshawa in their half of the sixth secured a brace when Dainty scored on Wilson's fielder's choice and a passed ball—Roddick came home on Reg. Fair's well-placed single.

The Trunks got a dozen on Hagerman's mighty triple which scored "Crock" Williams and "Babe" Casey. Tyson netted a run on Roddick's pretty hit. E. Mills took advantage of Morrison's misuse of Hagerman's frame-cutter, and the score stood five all.

In the ninth the Trunks shuffled the old ball game in the last half of the inning. Weir and Rose had singled, "Browny" and "Big Frenchy" went out, and Harry Mills scored Dainty's first offering to right and Weir crossed the platter and the crowd went daily. Walter Fair made a gallant effort to get out Weir off but the throw fell short. Dainty was a sick man after the game. His baby-like actions were the cause for numerous comments. He was beaten fairly and he was over his complaint. Although his fielders made bad plays at times, they made up for it at others. Big William Williams was much more rugged than the imported American's.

The Oshawa infielders made several lucky stops, particularly Wilson and Dainty. Neither knew they had stabbed the sphere until they found it in their gloves.

Stan. Hagerman, Wicky Rose and H. Mills credited the big boys with a home willow. Hagerman's triple in the sixth was a mighty clout. Wicky had three hits and came back strong after a bitting slump which has camped on his trail for some time. His drive at Rowden in the sixth was a hot one and Rowden was forced to allow it to pass through his legs. Harry Mills, with two hits, one of which broke up the game, made them both timely and well placed.

"Big Percy" failed to connect yesterday, but watch him today. He injured his sore finger yesterday when hitting the ball. It was thought for a time that he might have to go behind the bat when Hagerman injured his finger in the third, but Stan. stuck nobly to his guns.

Harry Mills made a beautiful pickup when he caged Browny's bad throw in the seventh. He was given a hand by the crowd.

Hagerman was applauded when he donned the mask in the seventh after cracking out his triple.

Pitcher Jack Williams drew hearty applause on his every appearance at the plate.

Dainty is a nice batter and generally manages to get on first. It is unusual for a pitcher to be a good batter, but Dainty is an exception. He was accidentally hit on his pitching arm, which may bother him today. He is a hard man to "fatzle" and the crowds tried hard, but "Duke" took it all with a smile on his face. The old "left on right" stuff was worked by the specialists but Dainty refused to bally.

Morrison, the kid shortstop of the Oshawas, is a nifty fielder but a very poor man with the willow. Tyson, late of Cobourg, was behind the plate and turned in a fine game. He has a peculiar style and is a good batter, yet he failed to show up very well yesterday.

Big "Bucko" Wilson on first is rather clumsy handling the pill. He came through with a much needed hit yesterday. He has a bad habit of blocking base runners off first, but after a job or two from local players he learned to play his position as it should be.

Johnny Williams on third had two nice assists and played a good all-round game. He failed to connect safely although he scored once on Browny's two errors were bad, although everybody was doing it yesterday.

In the ninth Allan Morgher went in second, Weir to left field and Percy to right, Casey to the bench, Allan did excellent work while on the first-base coaching lines.

Thorne and Hallinan were the umps with the former behind the plate. The decisions rendered were excellent. The same pair will handle the game in Peterboro today.

Belleville are accustomed to Riverside Park, having played nine games there, while Oshawa have not been there this season. Jake Solomon and the Peterboro fans will no doubt be pulling for Belleville and the "Big Four."

Fans were present from Oshawa, Cobourg, Peterboro and Kingston yesterday.

Diamond Dust

Very poor accommodation is provided for visiting reporters. The present press-box is a two-by-four arrangement and is filled to capacity when occupied by three pressmen. Do not the scribes deserve better consideration than this? These are the boys who realize the news far and wide that the public may read and follow the ball game from the newspaper. For the past two years the press-box has been inadequate to meet the needs and as a result, many of the reporters were forced to seek other quarters from which to view the games. Neighboring towns, notably Peterboro and Kingston, have ample room to seat from five to seven men. These visitors go back home with the report of having received very poor treatment from the Belleville club. Yesterday, for instance, the reporters had to find room in the bleachers in order to report the game. Could not Belleville find room for a couple of extra chairs and be accorded the proper room for three additional people? Should Belleville win today, Oshawa will send two or three reporters to the game here, besides the representatives of contemporary newspapers. It is an important issue which demands immediate action from the local baseball management. Are the reporters not qualified in having at least a decent seat? It is a favor which should be thought upon and conferred on the reporters.

Extra benches were provided along the third-base line which accommodated officials of the league and a large number of spectators. The bleachers were grand stand, were taxed to capacity, while motor cars completely encircled the outfield. "It was the largest crowd of the season," said one prominent official. There were close to 3,000 people including the many youngsters who found the odd hole in the fence.

Mark Dalrage was among the celebrants present. He came all the way from Guelph and was pleased with the game. It's a crime that President Dalman (dead man?) and the protest committee failed to put in an appearance.

Mr. Green of the Dunham House, Cobourg, who bagpeted the boys last Saturday night, was a welcome visitor.

We are wondering where Stan. Hagerman and "Babe" Casey secured those nifty garters. Did you notice them, folks?

Jack Oulette was warming up for some time behind the dug-out. His services were, however, not required as Williams never once showed signs of weakening.

Police protection was of the very best. The crowd were well-behaved and Chief Kidd and his force experienced very little trouble.

DAINTY THINGS FOR CHIC WOMEN

New York, N.Y., Aug. 30.—"Half a yard! Half a yard! Half a leg, oweall!" shouts the lusty herdsmen of the tennis courts. Some of them six wearing no stockings at all, preferring the cool comfort of bare limbs. The contrast between the white tennis shoes and the sunbrowned ankles is attractive to say the least.

Gray squirrel is to be used with moleskin on many of the new fall coats and the coldness of soft shadings is bound to be becoming to those who prefer the enduring influence of furs.

Little yachting pads made of white duck are creating a sensation at one of the smart Long Island resorts. They offer a relief from the over-popular sweater and as for chic and warmth, they prove worthy rivals. White serge skirts, made on simple lines, are generally worn with them, although the season's favorite, the pleated skirt, is also in evidence.

Among the new sports attire for early Fall wear are little suede jumpers made in dull colors and trimmed in colorful appliques, or steel nailheads. These are worn over the head with a front opening which laces together with a narrow suede cord. Collars are smart Eton or standing affairs, done in color to correspond with the hip border. There is one of brown suede with a big band of appliqued motifs in colors orange, black and dull green. Cuffs and collar likewise use the colored decoration. The girl who does a great deal of walking through the country roads and byways will find these little jumping jacquettes ideal.

Nightgowns from Paris are often scarcely more than chemise as they reach just below the knees. Certainly they must be cool for warm summer nights. It is said they require but two yards of material, since they use no bon shocker straps.

MRS. ANDERSON TELLS WOMEN

How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leslie, Sask.—"For about a year I was troubled with distressing backache and pain before and during the periods, and from terrible headaches and backache. I made up my mind to a doctor, and as I have several women who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results, I finally bought and took four bottles of it. I certainly do recommend it to every woman who troubles like mine. I feel fine now and hope to be able to do without medicine on hand at all times, as no women ought to be without it in the house."—Mrs. OSCAR A. ANDERSON, Box 12, Leslie, Sask.

Mrs. Lukey Adds Her Testimony

Copenhagen, N.Y.—"I read your advertisement in the papers and my husband induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve me of my backache. Before I was so weak that I could not walk at times. Now I can do my housework and help my husband out doors, too. I am willing for you to publish this letter if you think it will help others."—Mrs. FLORENCE LUKEY, R.F.D., Copenhagen, N.Y.

Sick and ailing women everywhere in the Dominion should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before they give up hope of recovery.

How to Get the Best Out of Your Clothes

By HEDDA HOYT.
(Fashion Editor of the United Press)
(Written for the United Press)

New York, N. Y. Aug. 17 (United Press).—A stitch in time saves mine!

But there are other things besides stitches which save one's wardrobe.

Blackings are perhaps one of our most expensive luxuries today, as they are both costly and perishable. Instead of buying a pair sparingly all at a time one will really have the best fit of three pairs of stockings, as each stocking of a pair always gives out before the other one does and with two odd sides you have another pair from some of these odd ones matched. When the first little hole appears in the stocking, moisten it until you get an opportunity to mend it, as the moisture will prevent further running of the thread.

Felt hats have become the all-round season hats instead of having a silk hat for season between summer and fall, purchase one of the adorable little felts which can be used again next spring and will act as a sports hat all year round. Felt shapes, are always good as they clean easily, pack easily and can be used for almost any occasion. This year we see them at the smart resorts with the afternoon and dinner gown, as well as with the sport suits.

* * *

Nearly every woman wears silk underwear these days. Tinier or colorings of some sort is essential to keeping these silks in tone, as they fade after several washings. Try mixing the Tintex wrapped in cheese cloth to work by placing it in a large bottle. One can make a box of Tintex do for as far less than 25 cents and a set of two of red ink added to wrenching water will add enough color to brighten the faded pink garment.

* * *

So many people wear down the heels of shoes before the rest of the shoe gives out. Watch for the first sign of wearing and have new leather or heel tabs put on rubber heels for the heel permanently turns. Nothing is uglier or more uncomfortable than a shoe with a run over heel. By keeping the heel straight the shoe wears a great deal longer.

* * *

Buying two pairs of corsets at one time and wearing them on alternate days prolongs the life of each corset by holding its shape. Always smooth the corset out after wearing, and roll it up as this also helps to retain its shape. Never wear a corset until it becomes discolored by perspiration as perspiration rots the material. Either send it to the cleaner or wash it with lvory soap and warm water using a scrubbing brush.

* * *

Turn the discarded dress into a costume slip by cutting it off under the arms and adding shoulder straps.

* * *

Frocks that are spotted by water or any substance other than grease should be immediately rubbed with a clean handkerchief or cloth to prevent a ring forming. Taffeta usually responds beautifully to this treatment thus saving a cleaners bill. Grease spots can often be removed by placing a blotter over the material and ironing the blotter with an iron warm enough to melt the grease. In this way, the blotter absorbs the grease. Should a ring remain, try using a little cleroform or some cleaner that is guaranteed not to spot. Pour cleaner on clean cloth and rub over material, rubbing away from the spot, until material is entirely dry.

FRESH BEANS

Fresh beans or peas should never pass through any cold water.

VARNISHED LINOLEUM

If linoleum is varnished it wears better and is easier to clean.

SAVINGS STEPS

Every woman should arrange her kitchen so that she does not have to cross and recross it many times in order to perform simple tasks.

LEATHER BINDING

It is well to dust leather-bound books occasionally with an oiled cloth to restore some of the oil which has dried out.

It is estimated that 10 per cent. of the attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition will be from the United States. This means, if the prediction of Exhibition officials that the attendance will reach 1,500,000 are realized, that not least 100,000 United Staiegers will witness the Annual World's Fair in 1923.

At the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, the buildings have more than 1,250,000 square feet of exhibit surface.

CANNING HINTS

Fresh Cucumbers in salt.—Use cucumbers fresh from the vines, peel and slice them very thin. Fill glass jars with alternate layers of the thinly sliced cucumbers and salt, pressing down as tightly as possible and seal. When opened for use take out only the quantity needed and soak over night. Cucumbers preserved in this way retain the flavor and color of the fresh product remarkably well.

Sun Preserves.—Strawberries, raspberries, cherries, currants, or a mixture of two-thirds currants and one-third raspberries may be preserved in this way. Use equal quantities by weight of sugar and sound, whole fruit. Allow one-quarter cup berry juice to each pound of fruit. Put the sugar and fruit juice in a kettle and heat until the sugar is dissolved, then cook for five minutes. Wash the berries and drain them very thoroughly. It is essential to have the fruit as dry as possible. Arrange in a large dish to successful sun cookery. Spread the fruit on large platters, cover with a finger mosquito net and set them in the sun for three or four days, bringing indoors each night. Allow the fruit to stand in the sun only so long as the syrup has thickened almost to a jelly then place in sterilized jars and seal.

Peaches, apricots, pears, plums or any berries may be preserved in the sun by the following method. Carefully wipe and pare the fruit to be preserved. Cut peaches, plums, or apricots in halves and remove the stones. Spread the fruit on dishes or platters and set in the sun to dry for one or two days. The fruit should not be left out over night to collect moisture. Using equal quantities by weight, pack alternate layers of fruit and sugar in glass jars. Be careful to have the top layer of sugar. The sugar will dissolve gradually and form a thick, rich syrup around the fruit. The mixture should be kept covered but need not be sealed.

It is well to study the housewife to know the economy of using up left overs from her canning. Odds and ends which herefore might be discarded may be combined and put up in jars. A combination of fruits make an attractive jar and is a convenient product to have on hand, since it is ready to serve as a fruit cocktail, salad, or dessert. Some good combinations are, green gage plums, pears and cherries; peaches and rhubarb.

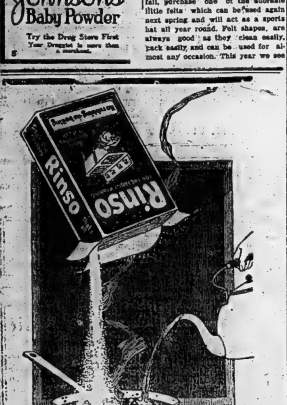

Left-over vegetables may be combined to make soup mixtures. Almost any combination of vegetables may be used. It is the time differ on the individual taste and on the leftovers at hand Vegetables of strong flavor, such as onions, carrots, peppers, etc. should be used only for piquancy, and not as a foundation. To can soup mixtures follow the general directions for all canning. Blanch and cold dip each vegetable separately. Use condiments, add one teaspoon salt to each quart jar and sterilize the time required for the vegetables used. In the time differs for the individual vegetables, use the longest period. Small, irregular, or broken tomatoes may be used for a variety of soup mixtures which will give variety to the home table throughout the winter and spring months.

GAS BURNERS

Foods being cooked over a gas flame should be well stirred to boil over and stop the holes of the burners. If this does happen the burners should be taken off and cleaned by boiling in a washing soda solution.

BOILED CARROTS

Do not boil young carrots too long or they will become soft and tasteless. Leave them very hot with a little melted butter and finely chopped parsley.

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"All right, Rolf," was the reply. "I've been all round."

Directly after the old fisherman was on his way homeward, but he had hardly taken a dozen strides down the lane, under the wall, before the head of Simeon Rice was cautiously raised above the edge of one of the great crevices, or melting-pots, and then for a time he remained motionless.

"You're a clever one, Joe Banks, you are," he said at last, as he raised himself up and sat on the edge of the great pot. "You can find out everything, you can; you can tramble on the rights of the British wuckingman, and get the independent spirits discharged, eh? But you're one of the ungodly bitter ones, and you must be smitten wherever you can. Let's see how the wench's got on meanwhile."

The speaker threw his legs over the side, and then paused to dust his trousers and his coat before proceeding further.

"It's hot tying in hitting there," he muttered, pulling off his coat and rolling up his sleeves, "I have to toil and moil like a slave for the cause."

His next proceeding was to open a great clasp-knife and try its edge, which was keen as that of a razor; and then, armed with this, and quite as much at home in the works as the fireman, he went about like steps as cautious as a cat, cutting through all the bands that connected the wheels of the lathes with the great shaft that set them in motion, he dragged them down and piled them together till he had collected a goodly heap.

This was not accomplished all at once, and with ease, for, getting aside the watchfulness with which the task had to be done, and the care to insure silence, the bands were heavy, hard to cut, and they had to be borne some distance. Altogether it was Slim Sloe a good hour's arduous labor, and he perspired profusely. In fact, it was his habit to take more pains to achieve a bad end than would have sufficed to get a good thing twice over.

"There! it's, not," he muttered in one of his pauses, during which he ran to the nearest door and listened, "What a slave I am to the cause."

Then he chuckled and laughed over the mischief he had done, and paused by laboriously dragging all the great leather bands and straps to the uncovered hole, of a furnace, down which he dropped them, so that they fell back from the mouth below, which opened on the stoke-hole; and he knew that the chances were ten to one that if the present heat did not destroy them, a fire would be lit by the careless stokers, and the bands consumed before they were missed. It business were resumed on the following day, the fireman would be there long before the ordinary workers.

"There," said Slim, when he had finished, "I wonder what Joe Banks would say now if he knew of this?"

He resumed his coat, cut of the pocket of which he took a piece of strong line, some fifteen feet long, and walking light steel hook attached to the end of his rope to the sill, just as he had entered by throwing it up till it caught, it being so constructed that a sharp wave sent along the slackened rope would set it free. And before descending Slim stood, rope in hand, listening, watched by a cat at a respectable distance, for any sound that his real being evidently impressed with the fact that the intruder in the works was wonderfully ratchke in his actions.

Tommy did not approach him, nor yet query, but crouched there watching while Slim stood with one ear close to the window, then shyply turned his head and listened. It cut into the night-air, drew it back again as sharply, and then cautiously thrust it out once more, as that unseen he could see and listen to what went on below.

For there were two figures just below the opening, and as Slim listened holding his breath, one of them exclaimed:

"I won't, I won't, Mr. Richard, and you've no business to ask me."

"Mr. Richard," said the other, reproachfully; "I thought it was to be Dick—your own Dick."

"Oh, don't—don't—don't talk like that," sobbed the other, "Oh, I wish I really, really knew whether you meant it all."

"Meant it all, Daisy! how can you be so cruel, when you know how dear to I love you? But come into the counting-house, and we can sit there and talk."

"I can't—I won't!" said Daisy; "and you know you oughtn't to ask me, Mr. Richard. What would father say if he were to hear of it?"

"Father would only be too pleased" whispered the young man, "for he believes in me, if you don't, Daisy. He'd like you to be my own beautiful darling little wife, that I should make a lady."

"BIG TIME" SCOUTS WATCH "BABE" DYE

Connie Mack Said To Be Willing to Spend $30-000 On Him

(By Associated Press)

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Toronto's sporting fraternity are much interested in the work of "Babe" Dye, the Toronto athlete who is playing the outfield for the Buffalo team of the International League. Dye is also prominent in hockey and there is a report that if he goes to the major league he will give up the connection with hockey. Dye's record is a good one and he has a high fielding and batting average. The fact that so many major league scouts have looked at Dye in the last few days is evidence that he will be found on the big leagues in the near future.

The following from the Buffalo Courier will be of interest:—

"Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, was among the spectators at yesterday's races between the Bisons and the Newark Bears at the local ball yard, and, while he declared that he had no special mission in Buffalo, it leaked out last night that he was present chiefly for the purpose of casting his glimmers over "Babe" Dye, Bison outfielder star, for whose services he is reported to give up as high as $30,000 in cash.

CANNING FARRELL

PICKING WINNER OF GREB-WILSON FIGHT

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 29.—(United Press)—Harry Greb, the "windmill" from Pittsburgh, is going after the middleweight championship here Friday night when he meets Johnny Wilson, the alleged champion.

Like the bird in Shelley, who won a racket in a raffle, the question arises: "What will Greb do with the title when he gets it?"

All there is to the title that is now possessed by Wilson is some glory that might be attached to any kind of championship, and after the disrepute that Wilson dragged the class into, there is darned little of that attached to the crown.

Wilson has made little more than the pretential dime out of the championship, and he acted so in restraint of trade that it will take a new five years at build up business again.

Despite the insistence with which he maintains that he did not make weight, Greb is no middleweight, and if he is called upon or required to do much in defense of the title he will be sure to go the way of Joe Gans.

Greb is none to ragged, even as a light-heavyweight. He has been in bad health and he has drained his resources by much fighting and by bad fighting. He has also failed to adhere strictly to a life of training.

So far, his friends as if they already had won the championship from Wilson. He is not yet in possession of the title and perhaps he is a very great distance from it.

Wilson was made a favorite in the early betting, for reasons that might be hard to explain, considering the form that he has shown as a fighter, and most of the experts believe that he has more than an even chance to retain his title.

There was a story printed several weeks ago that the fight had been fixed, that Greb was to take a dog-fall and then allbi that he was weakened too much by making the weight.

Such stories, although granting the fact that fights have been fixed in the past and that they may be fixed now, are entitled to little consideration.

Before the Leonard-Tendler fight whispers went around, started perhaps by gamblers who wanted the odds reduced, that Tendler was going to take an "out" on a foul and that they would fight again next year.

Such stories are a great injustice to Greb. He may have his faults, but certainly no one can remember anything that he has done in the past that could have caused the slightest suspicion. Like Johnny Dundee, Greb has built up a tremendous following because every time he was named as one fighter in a bout, the fans knew that they would see a lot of action and that they would get their money's worth.

Greb and Dundee have a lot in common. They have both been forced out of their class because they are their own weight couldn't be dragged into the ring with them. Since he was a light-middleweight several years ago, Greb has fought anyone offered him at any weight. He gave away pounds and pounds and always made a good showing.

Wilson has many backers because he is a southpaw. He fights with his right hand and foot extended, and this style is supposed to be most difficult to solve when it is perfected. Few besides the Philadelphian fight-weight, is a master at the "side-wheel" style, but Wilson is no Tendler yet. He is far from it.

Since he insisted upon dubbing around and keeping his title under lock and key, Wilson has become known as "the cheese champion." He is reported it with the claim that he was willing to fight, but couldn't get the fights. He maintained that he might not be a champion to compare with some of his predecessors, but that he was good enough to beat any middleweight of the division.

He will have a chance to show it when he meets Greb, although that old thing springs up again—is Greb a middleweight?

If Greb does make 160 pounds, he will be a middleweight officially, and if he does not weaken himself too much, Wilson will have as tough a job as any of his predecessors had in defending the crown that he now holds.

The champion has trained seriously for the fight and some of the experts who have seen him working have changed their opinion of him and are rather inclined to believe that he may show himself to be a real fighter.

Greb, if he has been a great punch-er, if knockouts are considered the only way to judge punching power. But Harry Greb His offener and more annoyance than any man in the ring. He can go fifteen rounds faster and he can fight nearer than any man in the ring.

He has been guilty of very foul work in the ring, and if Wilson doesn't fight back in the same style

Dreco, the Famous Herbal Health-Builder Makes Big Discovery in Cause of Mr. John Holmes

The remarkable tonic properties of Dreco are again demonstrated in the case of Mr. John Holmes, of Scarlett Road, Toronto, a returned soldier, whose health was in a precarious condition, until Dreco came to help him. "Since in Mrs. Holmes' statement of the case:

"My husband, who was a Corporal in the 10th Battalion, Railway Troops underwent an operation for appendicitis and Gall Stones, upon his return. He has never had the same strength since.

"He suffered from pains shooting through his body and also had an occasional fainting spell, his heart being in a very weakened condition. He was very nervous and felt tired all the time. His work as a tinsmith took considerable out of him and his system became entirely run down.

"He has taken only two bottles of Dreco but it is surprising how much better he is feeling already. He is much better and feels that they are doing him a world of good. Pains through the body are greatly improved and he is much better than he for a long time.

"I am sure that if he continues to take Dreco for a few months he will be quite normal again. I feel quite happy over the results so far."

Dreco is a herbal compound the whole system and improves the health generally. It acts on the important organs of digestion and puts them in proper working order. As the body responds with growing health, nerve and pains go on the stomach and other distressing symptoms disappear. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. It is a reliable remedy made only from herbs, roots, bark and leaves of known medicinal value, a corrective that may be taken with perfect confidence.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist everywhere.

400 TONS OF REFUSE ON GROUNDS NIGHTLY

Toronto, Aug. 30.—When the last fare has died from the throat of the "hooker" man is silenced, and the last visitor has left the Exhibition grounds, then comes the turn for the unsweaty men of the Parks Department. For between midnight and 3 o'clock each morning they have to clean up a form 300 acres of paper and refuse littered ground into a spic-and-span appearance such as a millionaire might loast of.

It is a big job, and Ernest Collins, superintendents, says it takes only to accomplished in one way, and that is by organization, and so he has a staff that knows its business. It is regularly on the payrolls of the city in the Street Cleaning and Parks Department all year round, but for the two weeks of Exhibition, turns its energies in that direction.

The garbage is taken to some distance from the grounds and burned after the Exhibition is over. Last year it took three weeks and 100 gallons of coal oil to get rid of what had been collected in the 15 days of the Fair.

Upwards of 400 tons of refuse is removed nightly from the grounds by the wagons and trucks that were kept going about ten hours daily.

BRAND OF CAIN.
(Ottawa Journal)

With Ireland recovering from devastation, with most of his dupes dead or imprisoned, De Valera, the brand of Cain upon his brow, appeared upon an election platform—per-haps to prison. The haugman's gibbet would be his most deserving end; but it is doubtful whether it will be. Unfortunately—for Ireland—he still has his friends; and hanging might clothe him with a martyrdom which his record does not deserve.

The Pure Food Building, Canadian National Exhibition, is the most unique exhibition ever staged. Its growth has been lengthened from 267 feet to 450 feet this year and boasts among other novel features sunken Italian gardens and open courts.

Development of the International aspect is one of the most important features of the Canadian National Exhibition this year. Great Britain, France Cuba, Mexico and other countries have taken large space in the new International Building.

GYPSY BLOOD HOT

Herrigsdorf, Germany (United Press)—Gypsy blood runs hot. That is why the first violinist in the Hessian orchestra is dead and why the rest are why his son of 17 lies wounded in a hospital.

The violinist wedded a second time taking a dark beauty of the Rumanian tribe. The son loved her, too, and kissed her when the boy was dancing in a fashionable restaurant to the mad strains of Hecla's gypsy orchestra. In the first violinist's instrument shattered on the platform, a revolver cracked and the son lay bleeding, on the floor.

London, Aug. 30—A very full programme is being arranged for the delegates ministers. Special attention is to be paid to the social side in connection with the gathering and there will be ample provision for the entertainment of the ladies accompanying the delegates. Accommodation for the visitors is being secured at a number of the leading west end hotels. The prospective social functions include a banquet at Buckingham Palace, a command dinner and various hospitalities by prominent public bodies of the metropolis.

EXTENDS SIX WEEKS

It is anticipated that the attitude of the two conferences, the imperial and economic, will extend six weeks and end about the middle of November. The imperial conference of premiers will be held at No. 10 Downing street. The economic conference probably will be held in the council of trade building.

Premier Stanley Baldwin, the Duke of Devonshire, colonial secretary, and other British ministers will receive the delegates at the Downing street residence of the premier on the opening day of the conferences.

IMPORTANT IN HISTORY

It is expected that all the dominion ministers coming to the conferences will arrive in England towards the end of September except Premier E. M. Bruce of Australia, who may be a day or two late on account of the stress of business in the commonwealth parliament.

In view of the comprehensive character of the agenda and the nature of the decisions to be taken, it is expected that the coming conferences will rank among the most important in the history of the British empire.

Pinchot Submits His Peace Plan

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 30.—Governor Gifford Pinchot last night submitted to the miners and operators a peace plan which he hopes will be accepted by both operators and miners, thus avoiding a strike in the anthracite coal fields.

The United Press is informed, on reliable authority, that the following methods were favored recently by the governor:

1—Establishment of a half-way check-off, one that will protect the operators against recognition of the union by the miners' union and yet enable the union to collect the dues of the miners in the mines on pay day.

2—A wage increase for miners, perhaps as high as ten per-cent.

3—Establishment of the eight-hour day.

If these three steps are unacceptable to either of the parties the governor has been advised he will then declare a thirty-day truce, and maintain mining operations, while new efforts are made to thresh out the difficulties.

This adviser pointed out that if the miners and operators cannot compromise his offer of peace the governor may seize the properties and appeal to the miners to work with him to save the public.

Ferguson Is Clear In His Views on School Policies

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Premier Ferguson expressed his views forcibly in his speech on education at the Exhibition.

Reduction of the number of subjects in the course would put it up to the individual teacher to make progress in certain subjects, he said.

"The government hopes soon to say to the public school pupils, 'You must take a certain number of these subjects and if you desire to take the others that is up to you'."

Thus would the holding back of bright children by the backward ones be lessened. It is hoped to at once reduce the burden of educational cost and to increase the efficiency of the system. "There is no such system as that derived from education," said the premier. "We are now spending two millions of dollars a year and we have less than three millions of people. With 18,000 teachers and three quarters of a million pupils you can see what a huge task it is to cope with this educational problem."

He stressed also the fact that the Imperial relations should be emphasized and the wonderful history of the British Empire taught the pupils With the aid of the United States the British Empire would be able with out friction or turmoil, he hoped, to work for the peace and welfare of the world.

SIR MICHAEL ON NAVY

Vice-admiral Sir Michael Culme-Seymour after paying a tribute to the Canadian National Exhibition referred to the difficulty sailors had in seeing towns that are far from the sea, but assured the hope, however, that not only would he be able to visit the Exhibition again next year, but that he would be able to bring other admirals with him.

"There is a certain section," he said, "that is so much in Canada I think, but at home who are in favor of reducing the navy They live far from the sea and don't know much about the duties of the navy. I hope they will consider well before they further reductions in the navy are made its use in peace and war."

At the outset of his address Sir Michael said that in a flippant flash sentience as he said it had to be interpreted. That gave him time to think of what he meant. He found out later that the sentence had not always been correctly interpreted, at the time. "Now," he said, "I have three glasses of vodka before I'start to speak, and that is a jolly good thing to make speeches on."

BABY ARMY WON WAR

"The army won the war," said Sir Michael in conclusion. "There can be no doubt of that. We had to hold the sea to make the transporting of troops possible, but the army, including the wonderful Canadians really won the war.

Great Battle Fleet To Greet World War Veterans at Frisco

By M. D. TRACY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

San Francisco, Aug. 28 (United Press).—Promise that the greatest armada the American navy has ever assembled in one port in time of peace, will be here for the American Legion Convention, opening October 15, has been made by Admiral Robert E. Coontz, U. S. N., commander of the battle fleet.

Probably twelve, dreadnaus battleships, 40 destroyers and an undetermined number of cruisers and of auxiliary craft will be gathered to hold "open house" during convention week.

Persons will be given under which dances and entertainments of most every kind can be held aboard the ships and special attention will be paid to welcoming back to the quarter deck or crew's quarters legionaires who served on the vessels during the war.

Eleven hundred officers and 39,000 men will comprise the complement of the fleet to be concentrated here.

Lieut.-Gen. Hunter S. Liggett, U. S. N., retired, is in charge of local arrangements for the convention. For General Liggit it is, in a way, a chance to greet again his men, for he was second in command to General Pershing during the early days of the war and commanded America's First Army Corps in France.

FOREIGN NATIONS INVITED.

Invitations to 32 European, Oriental, South American and Central American countries to send naval representations, either of ships or men, have been sent out, through the State Department at Washington.

Among notable Americans expected to be present are: General Pershing, Admiral Hilary Jones; Major General J. A. LeJeune, U. S. M. C.; General Frank T. Hines of the Veterans Bureau; John J. Tigert, commissioner of education; Judge K. M. Landis; baseball dictator; John Barton Payne, of the Red Cross; James A. Flaherty, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus; J. W. Schutt, commander of the G. A. R.; General B. S. Cary, of the United Confederate Veterans; F. L. Stanton, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Antonio P. Estenas, of the Spanish War Veterans.

President Coolidge, Woodrow Wilson, Secretaries Denby and Weeks, and President Samuel Gompers, of the AmericanFederation, have been invited.

IMPORTANT TOPICS

While no official forecast of vital matters to be considered is available, it is by observers that problems of the soldiers' bonus, care of disabled men, veterans' welfare problems, immigration and many other questions are expected to get close attention.

To relieve the strain of convention week, many diversions have been arranged.

Athletic events, including a nation-wide test of field meet, basketball tournament, golf, tennis tourney, football and baseball games, a swimming meet, rifle meet, and boxing and wrestling have been arranged. All entry lists for these events close October 5.

Charlie Paddock, Jole Ray and Clarence De Mar are expected to be among those to be seen in action. Approximately 100 bands and drum corps have signified intentions of entering the musical competitions. They will furnish. a big feature on October 16, when they will participate in the convention parade. Fifty thousand men are expected to march up Market street in an elaborate pageant.

A "ball of allies" is to be the most brilliant of the social affairs. Representatives of the armies and navies of the Allied Nations, in full uniform, will join in the night's fun to be held in the Palm Court of the Palace Hotel.

Dancing in a half dozen halls will be favored each evening and innumerable banquets for various groups are scheduled.

For women an innovation designated "Smoker-ess" is to be offered. The name may sound more startling than the event will prove—but one known.

New Chapter Begun for a Nation Which Has Bloody History

Washington, Aug. 31.—Recognition of the Mexican Government is interpreted by government officials as a step mutually advantageous to both nations.

By A. V. BRADFORD, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 31.—Recognition of the Obregon government by the United States will bring to at least a temporary end a long period of turmoil in Mexico and of constant difficulties between that country and the republic below the Rio Grande.

Serious political difficulties began to manifest themselves in Mexico during the year 1910. Francisco I. Madero launched a campaign against the re-election of Porfirio Diaz, claiming that the policy of allowing a President to serve himself for re-election was detrimental to the best interests of the country.

Diaz had the reputation of reigning in Mexico with a heavy hand. Nevertheless, there was unprecedented degree of law and order under Diaz, and it is said that lives and property were as safe under the jurisdiction as in the United States.

Mexico prospered, but Madero, while admitting this, claimed that such prosperity was enjoyed by the wealthy classes and not by the people generally. He charged that the whole basis of government was in the hands of a chosen few, called "cientigos" and "scientificos," who did with the dictator as they wished and that the Diaz government was a mere shell.

AN ARMED REVOLUTION

President Diaz imprisoned Madero but the latter, through the influence of his family, one of the largest and richest in the entire republic, escaped to Texas, where he established propaganda headquarters. From there he returned to Mexico and proclaimed an armed revolution, with himself as provisional president.

The first developments of the revolution occurred in Chihuahua, the armed band was organized by Pancho Orozco and Francisco Villa—the latter picturesque figure recently was killed—both leaders of powerful bands of cowboys and bullion guards. The first clash between Madero forces, numbering 12 to about 1,500 well armed and mounted men, and federals, constituting a superior force, was at Ceno Grandes, western Chihuahua, Madero was slightly wounded.

The federals, however, withdrew, and Madero marched north to the border, to menace the city of Juarez, key to communications between the United States and Mexico City. Armed bands began spreading throughout the country, presenting a situation so serious that government leaders began to talk compromise. Madero demanded resignation of the President and his cabinet. Diaz finally accepted the ultimatum, resigned and left the country for France, where he died four years later.

Madero was elected President by an overwhelming majority and took hold of the reins of government in December, 1911. Madero forgave the adherents of Diaz and attempted to fill his cabinet with representatives of all classes. His enemies, however, took advantage of this situation, and plotted to overthrow him. In February, 1913, a group of generals of the army, all belonging to the old regime, started a revolt in Mexico City. There was a bloody fight lasting ten days. Madero was betrayed by the commander of his troops, General Victoriano Huerta, who imprisoned him. Two days later, Madero was killed by his guard.

HUERTA AS DICTATOR.

Huerta assumed the dictatorship of the troubled country. The greater part of the country submitted to Huerta's rule. But the governor of the state of Coahuila, Venustiano Carranza, in which Madero was born, started a revolt, and called on all Mexicans to join his standard for the purpose of restoring constitutional government. This movement began in March, 1913, and

Compromises on Both Sides Fail to Breach Chasm Between Factions

Harrisburg, Aug. 31.—All indications here today point to a suspension of the anthracite mining industry at midnight tonight.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 31.—When the 158,000 men engaged in the anthracite industry lay down their tools for the day at three o'clock this afternoon, the strike of 1923 will be on.

It will be on because neither side in the controversy will accept Governor Pinchot's proposals for a settlement of the matters in dispute when they were given to him at high noon and, according to union leaders, there will not be sufficient time even if there were the inclination to cancel or set aside the strike orders already issued.

Because he knows this is the situation, Governor Pinchot decided that the meeting at noon today must be in executive session. At this session—and it is not certain that he will not meet with each group separately after the joint general meeting—he is expected to use the proposal are that it makes no profit sides will present to it as a basis on which to trade for something that will put the men back to work at the earliest possible moment.

The objection of the miners to the Governor's proposals are: That the increase in wages proposed, while a step in the right direction, is insufficient and does not meet the needs of the men; that arbitration in any form is objectionable; that the form proposed by the Government would place everything in the hands of one man, Dr. Charles F. Neill; that full recognition which the Governor says they should have is not a phrase without the check-off system and the closed shop.

The objections of the operators to the proposals are that it makes compromise for keeping the mines running after the close of today's work; that it appears that it does not specifically set the phrase "full recognition" means; that the proposal to relieve the public of the burden of the increased coal the increase in wages must mean in the price of coal by forcing railroads

MAYOR OF GATINEAU POINT, QUE., MUST SERVE 30 DAYS IN JAIL FOR TRIFLING WITH LIQUOR LAW

Montreal, Aug. 31.—For the next 30 days the municipality of Gatineau Point will be deprived of the services of its Chief Magistrate. In Hull Police Court, Mayor Rodolphe Beauchamp, found guilty to a charge of selling liquor illegally on June 30 last, and was sentenced by Judge Roland Millar to one month in jail. He had previously been convicted on another charge of illegal sale on May 26, and was sentenced to one month in jail. Mayor Moreau entered an appeal from the first conviction, but later formally abandoned from his appeal and surrendered himself to Governor Joseph Mousette to serve the sentence. It is stated that both sentences will run concurrently.

LOSES BIG STOCK.

In addition to the two charges for which he was sentenced to jail, Mayor Moreau also pleaded guilty at a previous sitting of Hull Police Court to a charge of having liquor in his possession illegally. He was fined $1,000 and costs, which he paid. A stock of liquor valued at approximately $3,500, seized on the premises of Mayor Moreau by operatives of the Quebec Liquor Commission, has been confiscated.

At a meeting of Gatineau Point Council on Monday night, Mayor Moreau announced that he would retain office, taking the ground that conviction for a penal offense did not debar him from public office, according to the Quebec municipal code.

HAS AN EASY TIME.

During the period of his incarceration, Mayor Moreau will not be required to perform work of any kind. His sentence to jail merely calls for imprisonment during a period of one month. It is understood that he will report for his prison diet, but may be permitted to receive parcels from relatives or friends.

Prospective Bridegrooms at Toronto Know Pe Names of Brides-To-Be

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Four men were required yesterday to ascertain what the full names of their brides-to-be were before Marriage License Issuer Fred Williamson could issue licenses. One, who had to put through a long-distance telephone call before he could get the information, said Mr. Williamson this morning.

"The law requires the correct full name of each party to be inscribed on the license."

"Yesterday I had three divorcees apply for licenses without certified copies of the act by which they were divorced," he added. "In one case a letter from a lawyer guaranteeing the validity of the divorce was presented, but I had to refuse the license."

Entertainment at Robinson Home Is Epochal Function

Harmony was the keynote of the function held at the home of Alderman A. Robinson on Ireland avenue last night at which Mr. and Mrs. Robinson entertained the members of the City Council, the city officials and other guests.

The gathering was a large one and the spirit of goodfellowship evidenced proved that the impasses which some times develop in the council chambers do not exist outside the walls of the City Hall. Alderman Robinson on previous occasions had proved himself a conciliator in the line of entertainment, but it was unanimously agreed that the affair last night outshone any of his previous efforts.

From the moment the councilmen arrived with their host after the deliberations in the council chambers concerning the plans for the installation of the city's new intake pipe, a happy spirit was in evidence. The earlier part of the evening was devoted to euchre and dominoes, the rivalry between the City Fathers becoming especially keen.

A programme of a standard well suited to the occasion followed the latter indulgence. formed an important feature of the evening's entertainment. Miss Stanley Robinson's impersonation of a plain, every-day housewife expounding her views and philosophy of life to a neighbor was at once amusing and illuminating. Miss Muriel Rose's interpretation of the impressions of a woman, untainted by with diamond technique, at a ball game proved convincing. The charming young entertainers also rendered several dance numbers very gracefully. Instrumental and vocal numbers were also given in a pleasing manner by Mrs. J. O. Hently and Miss Wylie Palmer. Miss Albertina Robinson acted as "stage manager" for the entertainers. By the way, mention of a skit by Miss Stanley Robinson and Miss Muriel Rose should not be omitted. In the portrayal of the emotions of a man and wife frightened by burglars, the pair evinced real histrionic ability.

It was at the banquet table that the evening's merriment reached its height. Good-natured banter and repartee were frequently heard and elevated the presence of a wholesome camaraderie. The banquet was an elaborate affair and the guests remained at the banquet board until nearly midnight. Toasts were given and address es were made by Mayor Bennett, ex-Mayor Hanna, Alderman Robinson (host), Controller Meagher, each of the city officials and Dr. G. S. Cronk, City Health Officer and Dr. J. L. Tower. Seven of the Aldermen were present, those being unavoidably absent were Alderman Adams, Mc-Cullough, Patterson and Dr. Osborne. Others present: J. W. Holmes, City Clerk; B. Frederick, City Treas.; E. J. Butler, Manager Electrical Department; C. Campbell, City Engineer, John Henderson, Foreman, Public Works Department; H. B. Stock, City Auditor, and John Kerr, City Assessor.

The guests, by unanimous vote, declared the affair a "red-letter" event for Belleville and expressed the hope that Alderman and Mrs. Robinson will see fit to make the function an annual event.

Oshawa Depositors Flurry Subsides

Oshawa, Aug. 31.—The run on a local branch bank here came to an end Wednesday afternoon, and all is quiet this morning. During the run of Tuesday and Wednesday the depositors withdrew some $400,000, all demands being met upon request. The business men of the town made no demands whatsoever, and as all depositors were given their money cheerfully, the situation is much easier today, and the cause for anxiety has been removed. While the bank manager will not discuss the situation it is understood that a number who withdrew their deposits Tuesday are re-opening accounts, now having the knowledge that other local branches sent currency over to meet the run on the one bank.

There was a small run on a local branch bank in Whitby yesterday afternoon, $100,000 being withdrawn, but all is quiet this morning.

To Fix Value of Pint of Blood

San Francisco, Aug. 31 (United Press)—The question of the value of a pint of blood is scheduled for settlement in San Francisco courts, according to reports.

At the time the suit of Leona Pear Standford against the estate of Mrs. F. Hillard, both of San Francisco will go to trial.

Miss Standford says a pint of blood or a pint of her blood at least is worth $2,000. She quotes the heirs to Mrs. Hillard estate as valuing it at only $15.

Miss Standford set forth in her complaint that she gave a pint of her blood in a transfusion operation in an attempt to save the life of Mrs. Hillard. An infection, she alleges, followed the operation and she must have money for medical treatment.

PROJECT WILL COST $85,000

Provide for 30-inch Pipe and Gasoline Pumping Station

TO PASS BY-LAW

Filtration Plant Recommended by Provincial Board To Be Built Later

Installation of a new intake pipe as a part of Belleville's Waterworks System was assured by the signing of a "Round Robin" by eight Council members and Mayor Bennett at a special committee meeting last night. The action last night was predicated upon the success achieved by Mayor Bennett, Alderman French and W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., on their recent trip to Toronto on Monday when they succeeded in convincing the Provincial Board of Health of the urgency of the pipe.

The project provides for a 30-inch steel intake pipe, a pumping house, screen and 30-inch valve, the total cost being $85,213.75. The one action last night recommended that the following tenders be accepted for the various waterworks system:

Canadian Dee Mohnes Co.

for steel pipe $14,711.30

D. MacDonald Co., for laying pipe and building pumping station (substructure) 29,741.00

Link Belt Co., for screen 1,476.00

Drummond & McCall Co., for 30-inch valve 287.50

In addition a new high-lift gasoline pump will be installed as an auxiliary to the present electric power, bringing the total cost to $35,000. A new pumping station will be erected south of the present station, which will provide space for three four-million gallon low lift pumps and the high-lift pump, which will have a capacity of 2,880,000 gallons per day against a head of 250 feet. This will avoid crippling of the Waterworks System in the event of the impairment of the Hydro service through storms or other causes.

The Provincial Board, however, had not contemplated the idea that Belleville should have a filtration plant and in the official communication to City Clerk J. W. Holmes, Dr. W. H. McCullough, Secretary of the Provincial Board, approving the project mentioned the following, inter alia:

"It is the opinion of the Board that it is necessary in the interest of public health to construct a water purification plant and such additional units from the pumping station to the source of the city, the whole to be completed not later than the first day of June, 1925."

Mayor Bennett said yesterday that while it was considered that the filtration plant is necessary, it was believed that the present project was of sufficient urgency, and for that reason it was hoped that the filtration plans could be constructed as recommended.

While the report submitted to the Board fixes the total cost of the project now contemplated at $94,000 tenders submitted show that this report prepared by Engineer Storrie of Gore, Nanmith & Storrie, Consulting Engineers employed by the city, was not unreasonably conservative. The recommendation of approval from the Board and the report follows:

Toronto, Aug 29, 1923.

J. W. Holmes,

City Clerk, Belleville.

Sir:—I have the honor to enclose herewith, the Board's order, and certificate of approval for the construction of a new intake pipe and pumping station building, together with a gasoline driven standby pumping unit in the city of Belleville.

I have the honour to be Sir

Your obedient servant

Dr. W. H. McCullough,

Chief officer or health.

"We hereby certify that the council of the Corporation of the city of Belleville have submitted to the Board plans and specifications of a new 30" diameter, steel intake pipe 1418 feet in length, terminating on the shore and at a new pumping station to be built in the south of the existing pumping lasted until August 20, 1914, when Carranza, with his triumphant entry entered the City of Mexico and assumed the executive power.

Recognition To

The result of this revolution was absolute. Carranza's forces were under the command of three noted generals —Alvaro Obregon, then provost President of Mexico, who commanded the division of the northwest; Francisco Villa, commanding the division of the north; and Pablo Gonzalez, commanding the division of the northeast. The latter were equally divided between Obregon and Villa, Gonzalez' activities being principally confined to skirmishing.

But Carranza refused to allow the assembling of congress for the purpose of calling elections, and proclaimed a new constitutional period to permit the election of a constituent assembly for the framing of a new constitution. Obregon and Villa both objected, claiming it was Carranza's duty to establish forthwith popular government. Carranza ultimately was supported by Obregon, but Villa, instead of what he described as Carranza's treachery, declared war on the "First Chief." Carranza was recognized by the United States as chief of the de facto government, and Villa, living the life of a bandit chieftain, defied his through the entire existence of the Carranza regime.

THE NEW CONSTITUTION

A new constitution, the so-called "Carranza Constitution" was accepted May 5, 1917, with many radical provisions, notably those contained in Article 27, giving the nation, as a whole, formerly belonging to surface owners was the property of the nation, which assumed the right of nationalization of the petroleum industry. This with certain provisions of the new constitution, which allowed the expropriation of private lands for public use, became the subject of long discussion between the Carranza government and the United States. But notwithstanding the firm attitude of the latter, Carranza held his ground.

In 1919, when Carranza's term of office was about to expire, he attempted to impose Ignacio Bonillas, then his ambassador at Washington, as the government candidate for the Presidency, while General Obregon announced himself in opposition. Because of alleged acts of oppression on the part of Carranza, Adolfo de la Huerta, governor of Obregon's state, Sonora, revolted. By the spring of 1920, practically the entire army had gone over to de la Huerta. The City of Mexico being in imminent danger of capture by forces in sympathy with Obregon and de la Huerta, Carranza fled with his cabinet, accompanied by Bonillas, and taking with him gold in the treasury. During the flight, Carranza was treacherously slain.

OBREGON ELECTED.

De la Huerta now was named by the congress as provisional president, subsequent to which elections were held and Obregon, elected President of the republic for the period of four years, assuming office on December 1, 1920. Obregon's period of government of the country is fairly well known as recent history. Officials here admit that the administration of Obregon has been throughout singularly free from revolt and disorder.

The United States under President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes proposed, as a means of settlement of the question of confiscation of American property through such phases of the Mexican Constitution as Article 27, that Obregon enter into a treaty guaranteeing against a retroactive application of this article and other methods objectional to the United States, as preliminary to American recognition. Obregon, however, absolutely refused to sign a treaty until after recognition. Satisfactory guarantees for American interests were obtained, however, and a settlement reached of difficulties between the two countries in the recent conference at Mexico City between the American commissioners, Charles B. Warren and John Barton Payne, and the Mexican commissioners, Fernando Gonzalez and Ramon Ross.

Music & Drama

THE "ORIGINALS" IN "RAPID FIRE."

An attraction of unusual merit comes to Belleville next Wednesday and Thursday for two nights only. Being seasons opening show at Griffin's Theatre when the "Originals" of the 3rd Division C. B. F. present their phenomenal new musical revue "Rapid Fire" with Canada's world famous company of overseas entertainers including the inimitable 'Red' Newman, Arthur (Jack) Holland, Jimmie Goode and the clever act of "Pull O' Pep" which made such a hit throughout Canada last season. In addition to the fifteen former members of the old Dumbells, the Originals have with them this year Geno Pearson, a new female impersonator with a marvellous natural soprano voice. This is his first season to tour Canada with this Company and has already created a sensation in all the large cities, after playing in vaudeville for the past two years.

The entire production is under the personal direction of Leonard Yeoni, who played the original "Duchess" and who is undoubtedly the most capable Director in Canada. The revue is admirably staged with a great number of beautiful settings in the sketches and concerted numbers. There are some remarkable lighting effects displayed throughout the entire programme while the plush curtains and draperies of brown blue and red are a doubly effective for the elaborateness of the costumes, which are the finest ever displayed in tour in Canada.

Two magnificent curtains specially imported from England this season, one a silver, and the other an elaborate jewel curtain containing tons of thousands of small brilliant stones, are a show in themselves. The jewel curtain was purchased in London at tremendous expense and is an exact replica of one used this season in the revue at the London Hippodrome. The first sale opens Tuesday morning at 9.30 a.m.

WALLIE REID AT GRIFFIN'S

IN LIVELY COMEDY-DRAMA

The internal disturbances of certain romantic and embullient South American republics, which have for years furnished the American press and humorous writers with material for exciting dispatches or clever, humorous discussions, were placed in the hall of fame by the plays of the late applying the modern brush to the can-

Richard Harding Davis, who was virtually their literary spokesman.

"The Dictator" now playing at Griffin's Theatre as a Paramount offering with Wallace Reid in the star role, is one of this type by this author. It is the play which Willie Collier made famous on the stage and one in which Mr. Davis paints an exciting picture of volcanic life in the Latin-American continent.

Walter woons translated the play to screen terms, which meant modifying it somewhat, bringing certain incidents down to date and generally

Iron Horses Ready For Grain Rush

HERE are some of the engines and box cars, Canadian made for Canadian traffic, which arrived in Winnipeg recently to augment the rolling stock of the Canadian Pacific railway. The equipment is now in readiness for the transporting of western Canada's crop, which bids fair to be one of the largest ever recorded. These additional engines and cars were constructed at the company's shops at Angus, near Montreal, and have been assembled at the Weston shops, Winnipeg, awaiting the call to the harvest fields of the west.

The upper picture shows four trains leaving Weston with a string of approximately 100 box cars per engine. Each car has a capacity of 60 tons. (2) and (3) some of the new freight engines which will be used to haul the grain throughout the three prairie provinces. (4) One of the 55-new P-2 class engines. These engines have a total weight of 324 tons, exerting a traction effort of 65,000 pounds. Their driving wheels are 5 feet 3 inches in diameter, cylinders 28½ in. diameter by 32 in. stroke; the total length being 81 feet, 6½ inches. The tender has a water capacity of 9,000 gallons and 14 tons of coal, which is equal to the average citizen's winter supply of four. These engines are known as the P-2 class, numbered in 2,500 series. They have vestibule cabs for the comfort of the engine crew and are electrically equipped throughout. The combined weight of one train hauled by one of these engines, including the engine, is 4,476 tons, of which 3,020 tons would be the carrying capacity for wheat, or 100,660 bushels in each train. The carrying capacity of the 45 engines of this standard is 4,629,700 bushels per trip. Each engine makes one trip a day. Picture No. 5 shows another group of the new Canadian Pacific locomotives. Their capacity and weight rank them among the biggest of their type in the world.

JACK HOXIE AT REGENT IN HAPPY STORY OF CATTLELAND.

"Don Quickshot of the Rio Grand," the Universal western play starring Jack Hoxie, which opened last night at the Regent theatre, is typical of the kind of screen plays that have made Hoxie such a favorite with the motion picture public. It is a happy story of western cattleland and has a flavor of sage and wild flowers of the open country.

The characters in the play fit their parts with unusual naturalness and the cowboys who have "atmospheric" bits in the piece perform with the lazy grace of old-time plainsmen. Hoxie is a skilled horseman and portrays the role of "Pep" Pepper a romantic cowboy of the Rio Grande country.

He is cast as a cowboy who, after reading "Don Quixote," becomes obsessed with the idea that he shall emulate knight of old. The idea finally loses him his job on a ranch, then carries him through a series of thrilling adventures, from plain golors to a train robbery, an unjust accusation, a jail-break, and final vindication. During the stirring life of a knight of old in the modern West he meets a girl, too, and a pretty love theme threads its way through the story.

A clever cast supports him, including Elinor Hancock as "Polly," Emmett King, Fred C. Jones, William A. Steele and Bob McKenzie. The story was written by Stephen Chalmers and directed by George B. Marshall.

Two comedies and a Kinogram preceded the exhibition of the feature offering.

MEXICO'S "BURBANK" SAYS CORN WILL SOLVE REPUBLIC'S PROBLEMS

By FREDERICK G. NEUMEIER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, Mexico, (By mail to United Press)—Mexico's "Burbank" is inaugurating the pioneer program of education on the growing of corn in the history of this country.

He plans that the average yield of corn per acre in this country shall climb from seven bushels, the present average, to sixty-five bushels.

He is Dr. Jeferio Dominguez, a Mexican, who got his inspiration at the World's Exposition in Chicago in 1893. Since that time he has been experimenting until he has now made clear in motion pictures the manner in which the Mexican farmer and peon can grow more and better corn.

Dr. Dominguez's campaign will consist of sending to each state in Mexico motion pictures and lecturers on how the corn seeds should be tested and how the land should be prepared.

He outlined his plans to the United Press and next year's crop, it is expected, will show the results of his seven years of labor.

THE STAFF OF LIFE.

"Corn in Mexico is the staff of life of ninety per cent of the native Mexican people," Dr. Dominguez told the United Press. "In this crop all the problems of Mexico are involved, the political, the economic an dthe ethnological problems.

"The scarcity of corn is one of the causes, if not the only cause of the frequent conflicts of the Mexican people.

"Corn is grown in every state of the Republic of Mexico, but there are no old methods of farming the natives use the crop as a rule is not enough to supply the needs of the country.

"While corn is grown in every state in the Republic, there are only eigh teins that grow wheat, two cotton, one rice such as henequin, two sugar and three beans.

"Mexico is beginning a vigorous campaign for the betterment of agriculture and I hope that will end the turbulent conditions in Mexico."

In 1922 Dr. Dominguez decided to go to the United States after working for several years in a bank here and seeing how the corn crop effected the conditions in Mexico.

In Chicago he became inspired by he exhibition of corn, farms in miniature, etc. So he decided that a study of corn would be of big benefit to his land.

WENT TO U.S. UNIVERSITIES.

He went to the universities of Illinois, Ames, Nebraska, Wisconsin and others on a visit to see their experiments.

Then he went to California and met Luther Burbank and the inspiration that has gotten a strong foothold, came back to Mexico to experiment.

Motion pictures that he has prepared show the Mexican farmer, many who are unable to read, how to pick seed corn, tests to be made, and also how to prepare the soil and use modern American farm machinery.

State governments as well as the federal government are backing his campaign.

COMMITTEE RULES AGAINST DAINTY TRUNKS LEFT FOR CAPITAL TO-DAY

The protest meeting held in the Empress Hotel, Feiziboro, last evening, decided whether Oshawa or Belleville should represent the O.B.A.L. in the quest for the O.B.A.A. championship. The decision was finally reached after the protest had been discussed, pro and con, and the Trunks won the issue and went to Ottawa today, where they meet Sq. Pat's, champions of the capital, tomorrow.

It will be remembered that the Belleville club maintained that pitcher Dainty was ineligible for the play-off and entailed a protest to Secretary Nott previous to last Saturday's game in the motor town.

The Oshawa club, despite the notice, used Dainty in all three games. The protest was to have been settled here on Wednesday night following the second game, but failure of officials to appear caused a postponement. At Peterboro yesterday, Mr. M. F. Duff, who happened to be a spectator at the game, was informed that the protest would be settled. This was the first time of the meeting given to representatives of the local team.

Mr. J. D. Craig of the Peterboro Examiner and Sandy Lockington were the only two members of the sub-committee present. Mr. A. E. Nott, secretary, been on holidays. President Dedman took charge of affairs and Dainty was brought up on the carpet and Lockington lodged that he had been in Oshawa in December and left prior to January 1 and did not return until March.

Dainty's admitting of the charge practically cleared up the case and Messrs. Craig and Lockington were satisfied that Dainty had been a violator of the residence rule.

Mr. E. Guss Porter, M.P., appeared on behalf of the Belleville club while K. M. Anderson represented the Oshawa team. Mr. Duff and Manager Gerow were also present.

The same umpires, Hallinan and Thorne, will officiate in the St. Pat's series. John Nott accompanied the Belleville team to Ottawa and will represent the O.B.A.A. Threats to protest Gerbrits and Brownscombe reached here today. No official word has been received by the local secretary, Mr. Thompson, this morning.

A despatch from Oshawa says:

Oshawa, Aug. 30—Amid scenes of wild excitement the conquering Oshawa baseball team returned here tonight only to be informed that their victories over Belleville had been disallowed by the Central Ontario Baseball Association, and that Belleville, beaten in two games out of three by the locals, have been declared champions and ordered to play against the St. Patrick's team of Ottawa in the O.B.A.A. series. Now Oshawa will protect two of the Belleville players.

When the train reached the station this evening three thousand fans were on hand to applaud the locals. Pitcher Dainty, the storm center, and who has been declared ineligible, was given a rousing welcome. The fans crowded into the Armouries, where laudatory speeches were given by Mayor Trick and other local officials. The Ontario Regiment Band provided the music.

The executive officers of the Oshawa club are very incensed over the decision agrived at by the C.O.B.L. and charge that Secretary Nott, who resides here, is largely to blame. Neutral followers of the sport, however, are willing to admit that the C.O.B.L. Executive and Secretary Nott merely followed the O.B.A.A. ruling in regard to the residence rule. Dainty has admitted that he does not qualify.

But down in Belleville there are two players in the same situation and no official officials can learn. Pitcher Outcette and infielder Brownscombe are the men, and the local club has announced that they do not qualify under the January 1 residence rule. The Ottawa St. Patrick's team are the O.B.A.A. Executive have been informed of the action taken by Oshawa.

Miners Quit

and contributions to the relief fund is impossible of execution; that it would require months, if not years, of negotiations by the Interstate Commerce Commission to force a revision of rates; that the Governor's estimate of 80 cents as the cost of the change he proposes is too low and that generally the scheme is impracticable.

DECISION OF MINERS.

The decision of the miners, not to accept the Governor's proposal, was reached at a meeting of the sub-scale committee consisting of John L. Lewis and the three district presidents at 1.30 o'clock New York time yesterday morning. These leaders then agreed to submit the Governor's proposal to conference without formal recommendations; but to state their reasons for advising that it be rejected to the full committees when it met this morning.

This decision not to present written proposals to the scale committee formed the basis for diplomatic denials telegraphed from here during the day that the miners had rejected the plan. At the time those denials were issued the full scale committee after hearing from Lewis, Lewis Kennedy Golden and Capsalini agreed "not to accept" the Governor's proposal without presenting the sub-committee to have ready for a meeting at ten this morning a formal reply to the Governor's proposal, a course why the union cannot accept his plan.

OPERATORS UNANIMOUS.

The attitude of the operators was tentatively reached at even a later hour and ratified at a full meeting of the general executive committee held in Philadelphia yesterday afternoon. At this meeting I am credibably informed, the vote was unanimous that independent producers more rampant than the representatives of the larger companies which mine most of the coal.

At this meeting the operators also approved the wage scale which they made for keeping pump runners and other necessary maintenance men at work after the open cut fields closed. By this agreement, the men who now work ten or twelve hours a day will go on an eight hour basis during the winter months at wages for eight hours with pro-rata pay for time worked in excess of eight hours.

The mean as set forth in the Governor's plan is $1.15 a day for 275 of the nearly 442,000 men who will remain at work, an increase which the operators conceded in the early days of the Atlantic City conference, when they agreed to abandon the 12 hour day.

Greece May Get Millions of U. S. "Tin Plate King"

Chicago, Aug. 31.—With the death of Princess Anastasia of Greece, the former Mrs. Wm. B. Leeds, speculation is rife as to the disposition of her fortune of between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000. It is believed most of it will go to enrich the tottering royalty of Greece, despite the statement, by her son, Prince Louis, Jun., that he is one hundred per cent. American, and intends to live only in his native land. He is securely bound by Greek titles and traditions by his marriage with Prince Xenia, sister to the Greek King.

The will of the former "tinplate king" provides that if young Leeds survives his mother three-fourths of the estate is to be set aside for him or his issue. According to this interpretation, Prince Chrisoloras, husband of Mrs. Leeds, would get ten millions, and young Leeds the remaining $30,000,000 of the American fortune. Then, when Leeds dies, all the fortune will pass to the Greeks.

The Princess died early Wednesday in London.

118,000 VISITORS AT "CE" EX" YESTERDAY

Music and Sports Feature of Day at Great Fair

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Exhibition City sang yesterday. From every corner of the grounds, from the steps of the many buildings, from the temporary stages everywhere, rose the sounds of sweet melody. Not one moment of the whole day but the ears of the many thousands of visitors were greeted with swelling harmony. And the population of Exhibition City listened. Never before was there such conclusive proof that Canadians are a nation of music lovers.

Bleating horns with music, troops of strolling minstrels, clad in gorgeous costumes, paused to sing for the delight of thousands who gathered round. Ukranian choirs chanting the folksongs of their native land, courtly ladies and gentlemen of the period of Louis Quinze, garlanded Hawaiians, Italian and Spanish minstrels, negro songsters of the Sunny South—all joined in offering entertainment of so appealing a nature that the very spirit of music seemed to pervade the air.

The attendance was over 18,000 yesterday.

PREMIER FERGUSON ON EDUCATION

(Toronto Mail & Empire)

Very important and very welcome is the announcement made by Premier Ferguson at the Exhibition luncheon on Tuesday to the effect that primary education in Ontario is to be made less burdensome, and that pupils are to be delivered from the affliction of the standardized examination. A reorganization of the Education Department of which Mr. Ferguson himself is the head, is to be brought about for facilitating these and other desirable changes. Great changes in the methods and objects of education, conducted in our schools in recent years, must be made if this Province is not to lag far behind the world movement for educational reform that is one of the most hopeful signs of the present time. In that movement are enlisted many men and women of experience in educational work who have studied the child-mind and have looked searchingly into the needs of society. At the Conference on Education and Citizenship that was held in this city last year some of the most eminent of educational reformers were present. May their philosophy speedily be reflected in the art of education throughout Ontario.

The Premier's announcement is a message of cheer to the young folks who were the principal visitors at the Exhibition on Tuesday. Better days lie before them. If they are guided in the way shown by the reformers who are holding up the lamp to our teachers the children's lot in the schoolroom will be far happier, and their usefulness in life, both for themselves and their country will be far greater. We commend Mr. Ferguson's declaration that the pupils in our public schools will always have present to their minds the grand traditions of the British Empire and the great achievements of the race that founded that Empire. The schools are responsive to such teaching, and ought to be exposed to more of it both at home and in the schools. Speaking at the Manchester Grammar School recently, a leading educationist, Hon. Edward Lyttleton, urged parents to cultivate the family habit of reading good matter aloud, to help in the formation of the literary taste and to keep up the poetry of modern English. In the Nineteenth Century for August Mr. H. W. Household, writing on "The Idle Mind", says children are uninterested because we make education a discipline instead of a delight. Boys, he says, read one book as examiners where they should read ten as lovers.

In an address delivered on the first day of this month before a body of teachers taking the Girls of London Vacation Course in Education, Lord Birkenhead made some bright and sensible remarks on examinations. The encounter between the examiner and the examinee, he said, is like the encounter between Little Red Riding Hood and the Wolf. Not very long ago he had had to conduct at Oxford an examination of students writing on legal subjects. There were six papers, of which he had to set two. He examined all the six papers somewhat carefully, he said, and came to the conclusion, trying to put it just as himself would being partial, that he could, on the whole, have done fairly well, but not more than that in the two papers he set, because in the spirit of a sincere seeker after truth he asked a number of questions to which he never could see an answer himself, in the hope that besides obtaining a somewhat inadequate fee he might add to the sum of his knowledge. Therefore he could not claim that in his own two papers he had attained to a high standard of efficiency, but there were some questions he could have answered because he put them in so that it would be less trouble to correct the papers. The real truth is, he said, that no one can pass an examination except those who had been working for two or three years in order to do so. It would, he said, be the most staggering performance ever known, if the Archbishop of Canterbury could pass an examination in theology. As for a Lord Chancellor who could pass the final examination for the Bar, he did not believe such a man had ever lived. He concluded by saying that there never was a moment when it was more highly important that sound teaching should be given by intelligent and highly trained teachers.

Lord Birkenhead, ex-Lord Chancellor, is one of the most brilliant and able of the public men in England at the present time. Yet, it seems he was not always lucky in his examinations. At all events, Premier Baldwin in a witty speech some time ago referred to his own failure at a school examination, but added that he consoles himself with the reflection that even Lord Birkenhead had failed to cross the bridge of a certain examination in his boyhood. On Speech Day at Bolwich College, Bishop Weldon welcomed the prize winners, but noted that many of his school fellows had gone far beyond the promise of their school days. It mattered more to the nation, he said, that those who are educated at the College should do worthy service to the State in after life than that they should gain prizes in the Universities.

There is growing feeling that life should not consist of just one coal strike after another.

STRICTLY BUSINESS.

A speaker at a ministers' meeting in Boston told the story of a negro clergyman who so pestered his bishop with appeals for help that it became necessary to tell him that he must not send any more appeals. His next communication was as follows:

"This is not an appeal, it is a report. I have no pants."

There are some who fear that when the Trunks meet St. Pat's their names will be "Dunne."

PRESS OPINIONS

CONSUMER TAKES A HAND

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

A strike of all the miners would greatly increase the difficulty of the problems confronting both the government and the people; but it would carry one good purpose. It would compel the people, as the third party to the dispute, to show what power of defensive they possess.

In the past it has been the custom in these labor disputes to proceed as if the public was without any rights which anyone was bound to respect. The public has come to believe that it has some rights, and that it has some power to enforce its rights. A general strike of the miners would afford an opportunity for a test of strength.

Perhaps it would be a very good thing if the people, who are neither miners nor operators but merely consumers, were given a chance to show what they could do for themselves in a pinch. Such an object lesson is badly needed.

OPPORTUNITY FOR GOOD

(London Morning Post).

The endowment of science provides an opportunity for rich men to confer inestimable benefits upon mankind. Science knows no frontiers, and there is today in every civilised country an army of highly trained men of science, which only needs equipment to proceed to conquests which would revolutionise human life.

It has been said by a high medical authority that in chemico-therapeusy resides the future of medicine. What is urgently known to the public as the new method of injection for curative purposes is in fact an extremely subtle chemical process.

ROCKFELLER AND FORD

(St. Catharines Standard)

Rockefeller has given away a billion dollars in the cause of humanity. Henry Ford is the richest man in the world, and has built up a great auto industry. He is not a philanthropist. Rockefeller couldn't be elected poundkeeper in an ordinary hamlet, and they are talking of Ford for President. Strange old world, is it not?

CANADIAN-MADE COTTON

(Financial Times).

The cotton industry of Canada is today a great industrial and national asset. It stands fourth in relation to the value of its product. It employs tens of thousands of workers and supplies practically all the cotton requirements of the Canadian people. In the past decade it has shown remarkable development, not only in point of output, but in quality of cloth and design.

POINCARE'S MISTAKE.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

There is nothing to be gained for any party or nation by the gratification of national hatred. Britain can see as good reason to hate Germans as France has; but all classes of British statesmen continue talking about a general peace in order that the producing and distribution of wealth may go on in a natural way.

Lloyd George was the first to see clearly the great truth, and now the Conservatives who were so eager to get rid of him are following him as the unthinking crowds follow the pioneer. Meanwhile, it becomes daily clearer that Poincare is making it impossible for British and French co-operate effectively for the early restoration of war devastated Europe.

HINT TO CONBUMERS.

(Flint Journal)

One of the members of the United States Coal Commission recently said: "Everybody knows that the anthracite operators and miners can get together on a new agreement" in twelve hours if they want to." This being the case, disregard of consumer why not fool them both by using soft coal and let them wrangle about the "check-off" till the chap of doomsday?

THE BEAUTY OF HEALTH.

Newspapers and magazines are devoting columns to magic or overnight beautifiers. There is a beauty in health that is far more attractive to men than mere regularity of features or a made up complexion. Health should be the first essential of women who want to win and hold admiration, respect and love. At the first indication of ill health as indicated by dark circles under the eyes, a sallow completion, headaches, backaches, pain in the side, nervousness, irritability and melancholia, woman should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the standard remedy for woman's ills, which has been proven to help 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

Wit and Humor

ECONOMY.

She was a comely widow, and more over, she was Scotch. She mourned MacIntosh, her late husband, for eighteen months and then from a flock of suitors chose honest, homely MacIntyre for her second.

"I'm not gold enough for ye, dear," he whispered. "What for did ye choose me for if no money?"

"Ah, well, ye see your name's MacIntyre."

"Yes, but"—began the bewildered switor.

"Yes, ye ken," finished the widow, "all my linen is marked McI', That's why, Donald."

THE BLUSHING BRIDE.

They tell us of the blushing bride
Who to the altar goes,
Down the centre of the church,
Between the friend-filled rows.
There's Billy, whom she motored with,
And Bob, with whom she swam;
There's Jack, she used to golf with him;
And Steve, who called her lamb.
There's Ted, the football man she loved,
And Don of tennis days.
There's Herbert, yes, and blonde Eugene,
And there is Harry, High school beau,
With whom she used to mash.
No wonder she's a blushing bride.—
Ye gods—she ought to blush!

There are still a few old-fashioned men who know more about the mechanism of a lawn mower than of an automobile.

THIS CHANGING WORLD.

"Shall I change this hat? It does not suit my hair."

"It would be better to change your hair."

A MIXED STATEMENT.

Old English Boatman (to tourist)—"Perhaps think I'm tellin' yer a lie, but I ain't never seen a railway train an' I don't want to—d 'aise the night of 'em."

MAYBE HE'S "CLEAN-CUT"

"Eliza," said friend of the family to the old colored washerwoman, "have you seen Miss Edith's fiance?"

Eliza pondered for a moment, then bent over the laundry tubs once more. "Yes, ma'am," she said, "it ain't been in the wash yet."

GRAND TRUNKS ARE DECLARED CHAMPIONS OF C.O.B.L

MEET ST. PAT'S TOMORROW; DEFEATED BY OSHAWA, 8-1 DAINTY HELD INELIGIBLE

League Victors Board Afternoon Train For Capital to Meet Ottawa Aggregation—Errors Contribute largely to Railroaders' Downfall at Peterboro in Third Game With Oshawa

BELLEVILLE lost to Oshawa in the third game of the play-off at Peterboro yesterday by a score of 8-1. Errors were a contributing factor to the Trunks defeat. They come at the critical moments and Oshawa converted most of them into runs. Overthrowing at the bases was responsible for Oshawa's first three runs through this fault. Belleville are, however, champions of the Central League for the second consecutive time and the third since its inauguration. The protest lodged against pitcher Dainty was upheld and the Belleville team left for Ottawa this afternoon at three o'clock where they tackle St. Pat's, champions of the capital at Lansdowne Park tomorrow afternoon. The Trunks have undoubtedly played three of the raggedest games of which they have ever participated. They were responsible for seventeen errors in the trio of exhibitions with the motor town crew. They accounted for six misplays yesterday while Oshawa made but three miscues. The team have been playing their usual class of ball of late but the Ottawa team will face an entirely different aggregation from that which Dainty did. The boys see possibilities of another Ontario championship and are out to land it.

"Duke" Dainty, the clever southpaw, was sent to the hillock to beat the Oshawa performer and in grand style. The Trunks got eight hits off of his delivery but he kept them so well scattered that only one ran crossed the plate. Dainty is a beautiful pitcher with a fast-working drop, which he mixes with his fast one.

Jack Oulette went in and he pitched a good game—but those terrible errors. Oulette has pitched some fine exhibitions this season but his support has wavered at times. Oulette got no hits from Oulette, but the errors gave them at least half of their runs.

Oshawa outfielders put up the same stellar game as in the first two games. They are, without a shadow of doubt, the best aggregation of outfielders seen in Oshawa. They run down the hardest of drives and robbed the Trunks of four or five hits. Walter Fair's catch of "Big Feeney's" drive in the second was a feature. Reg. Fair made two or three beautiful catches.

Rowden at second for the Oshawa team had an exceptionally bad day and committed two or three bad errors. "Browny" at short was also off color and made two errors. He was later shifted to the outfield. Harold has not been playing his usual game of late at short field.

At least twenty-five hundred fans witnessed the game. Part of Peterboro rooters seemed to be with Belleville while the remainder backed Oshawa.

Tyson is a nice catcher and works well with Dainty. He has a good whip and is a good man with the willow.

Hagerman, Weir, Rose and Brownscombe were all guilty of overthrows which cost runs.

The Oshawa gang are a hard-working bunch and full of pep. The infield is of the average calibre and is responsible for the odd error.

The Cans will need to play a better brand of ball against the St. Pat's aggregation here against Ottawa if they hope to win. Who will pitch in Ottawa has not yet been decided, although Oulette may take his turn again.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

PICKING WINNER OF GREB-WILSON FIGHT

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 30.—No fight of the boxing scene of fights and fights that had the experts guessing as much as the world's middleweight championship bout here tonight between Harry Greb and Johnny Wilson, the title holder, and Harry Greb, that great little piece of Pittsburg fighting machinery.

As a rule, in doping and in betting on the outcome of a fight, the champion possesses the known quantities and what expecting is to be done revolves around the prospects of the challenger.

In this annual case it is just the opposite. Everyone knows the capabilities of Greb, and no one is sure of what Wilson will turn out to be when he is subjected to the real test that he is bound to face.

Wilson sort of sneaked into the championship and he has sneaked more as the champion. He won the title from Mike O'Dowd in Boston on a decision and O'Dowd shouted to the world that he had been made the victim of leniency. Wilson gave him a return bout in New York, and although he failed to show any kind of championship ability, he did beat O'Dowd, and in the poverty-stricken condition of the class it meant that he was the champion sure enough.

Wilson fought the rugged Ileyan Downey in Cleveland and he was floored and saved by what the ringsters maintained was a most generous and considerate count on the part of the referee. The champion then took Downey back to Gotham for a no-decision thing in Jersey City and the exhibition was so terrible that Tex Rickard refused to pay Wilson his purse.

More trouble followed for the champion. When he tried to get his money Rickard forced him to sign an agreement to fight Harry Greb. Wilson signed the agreement, got his money and then told Rickard to jump himself into the well-known lake.

The New York boxing commission then suspended Wilson for failing to defend his title and announced that Greb had become the champion through sort of default process.

Matters were further complicated when Greb proceeded to win the American light-heavyweight championship and decided that he didn't care to move any around and defend what claim he had on the middleweight title.

Finally, after months of wrangling the Wilson-Greb match was made, Wilson was reinstated by the boxing commission and they are going to have it out.

In winning the championship and in title fights since that he attempted to do the set-up class to defend the title, Wilson proved himself to be no bad champion. Outside of "the cheese champ" [illegible]

His fighting is the southpaw style of fighting with the right hand and his right foot forward, and it is a rather annoying style to beat. He is of rugged build and has enough power in his left shoulders and arms to be a good hitter, if he knows how to get the most of his punches.

Some supporters of Wilson have maintained that he is a good fighter and a worthy champion and that he would prove it the first time he faced a real boxing opponent. He will have that opportunity in his fight with Greb, but bettors are asking more than assurance from his friends that he is a real fighter.

Greb has fought so much and does so well that every follower of the ring knows that he is one of the hardest fighters in the business to beat—that is, everyone knows that he once was such a fighter.

The genuine to be seen if he is as good as he was more than a year ago. Some doubts exist that he is. Perhaps he will not be hurt by making the weight, but it stands also that he will not be benefitted by it. After seeing the exhibition that Johnny Dundee gave when he was supposed to have been weakened by making weight for Eugene Criqui, good judges will be very slow in banking too much on the weight factor as a handicap to Greb.

The Pittsburg boy may not be in shape, however. He is rather a loose liver and he has been hitting the pace during the last year. There are too many examples to show that Greb is not the one in a million who can retain his effectiveness by not following the rules.

Two years ago, Greb would have been an overwhelming favorite to beat Wilson, and he will carry a lot of smart money with him tomorrow night, but the sentiment is not so much that Greb is so much superior to Wilson, as it is that Wilson is much inferior to Greb.

* * * *

If the title passes, it probably will go the way of a decision. Greb is not a great puncher, and Wilson is tough enough to stay up under some stiff punishing if he has a heart in him, and he has not been accused of being timid under fire.

To retain the championship, Wilson must certainly will have to win by a knockout. He is too awkward to win a decision from the more clever Greb, and his chances of getting over a knockout on an opponent that is swarming around like Greb is a big one. Greb all the time are also very thin.

If Greb fights cleanly and does not resort to the foul tactics that usually spoil his work, he ought to win the decision by a wide margin.

If he is in shape!

"SUNNY JIM" SOLD TO MONTREAL MAN

Port Hope Man Receives $1,475 For Fast Horse

Port Hope, Aug. 31.—"Sunny Jim," owned by Gordon E. Caldwell, established to by Dr. J. N. Johnston and driven by George Powell, "the fastest money in this section of this country, was sold Wednesday to Mr. A. Sumices of Montreal.

"Sunny Jim" was the fastest of the local horses and in a trial heat Wednesday stepped the mile in 2.10¼, the time being taken by the new pacemaker. The horse was first owned by H. M. VanAlstine; but was bought by Mr. Caldwell last a year ago. "Sunny Jim," was always in the money and while owned by Mr. VanAlstine won purses amounting $500 and also increased Mr. Caldwell's bank account by $1,000. The horse was shipped to Montreal Canadian National Express, the charges being $73.60.

The price paid by Mr. Sumices was $1,475, they highest figure ever exchange hands in a transaction of this kind in Port Hope.

GREB VS. WILSON TONIGHT.

New York, Aug. 31.—Championship boxing will return to the limelight tonight at the Polo Grounds, where Harry Greb, the Pittsburgh "wild-mill" will attempt to remove the world's middleweight crown from Johnny Wilson of Boston in a fifteen-round match.

DESERONTO MIDGET TEAM HEADS EASTERN O.A.L.A.

Deseronto Post.—The Deseronto midgets are acknowledged leaders of the O.A.L.A., as champions of the eastern section and as such will be awarded medals by the association.

The team was to have gone into semi-finals with Orillia but the distances between the two towns was so great and the expense in bringing the teams together would be so much that Secretary Labbett, feeling that the Deseronto boys should be given their due, stated that the association was prepared to give medals for the eastern championship if the team would quit now with an unimpeachable record and not a defeat chalked up against them. The other alternative was to go on, play Orillia and if losing, get nothing. On the other hand if we succeeded in putting Orillia out, the expense accident would mount higher to meet the teams of Orangeville or St. Catharines, with a chance of defeat by the more experienced experienced players from these old lacrosse towns.

We have accepted the medals. They are the first ever given by the lacrosse association for such a purpose and in accepting them we reserve the right to challenge the team that wins Ontario championship. Right here we might just state that we consider our midgets a classy team—how good they are will be proven should they meet the champions.

At any rate they are champions of the east and will have the medals to prove it, and that's a whole lot to accomplish in their first year in league lacrosse, probably more than any Deseronto team in any line of sport will ever succeed in doing again.

So take off to the Midget Championships of the East!

Shoemen Trim Derby Club

Last night at the High School grounds the Shoemen took the Derby Club to camp for the latter's first defeat of the season, to the tune of 6 to 5, but not until the whole seven innings had been played.

It was really the best game of the season, with both teams playing perfect ball, especially the opposing pitchers who had a number of strikeouts each.

The Derby Club were without their regular pitcher, Weir, and their regular first-baseman, but nevertheless they played good ball. At times it seemed that there would be trouble but it was all smoothed over in a sportsmanlike way.

With the defeat of the Derby Club last night this makes the Shoemen, Tyson and Fire and Derby Club all tied for second place.

Ken. Colling was umpire at the plate with L. Cook on the bases.

Grand Trunks and Shoemen play a postponed game tonight with Barrett and Prechette officiating.

Woman's Sphere

That Body of Yours

By Logan H. Burns, M.D.

ARCH SUPPORTS

A chap consulted his physician one day regarding his painful feet. There was no question about their being flat-all he was asked for further medical the condition was of course aggravated thereby.

The feet were placed in water, and walking across the room the whole outline of the inner border of the feet was shown to touch the floor.

The physician advised the ordinary exercises, walking on the toes and the sides of the feet for about two minutes night and morning. At the end of six weeks one arch was found to be clear of the floor to a considerable extent, and the other was slightly better than before. The improvement was so slow however that in desperation the patient consulted another physician. A plaster cast was made of his feet and in forty-eight hours he was equipped with good fitting plates of the supports and went about his work with these new artificial arches with a fair degree of comfort.

Was he wise?

This depends on circumstances. In his case as he was a salesman on his feet all day, and was in a living perhaps he was justified.

But just as surely he doomed himself to arch supports for the rest of his life.

Remember, you can always get arch supports. They are very easily obtained as in above case, but you are simply admitting that you are licked as far as your feet are concerned, and are willing to be a "flat foot" for the rest of your life.

And what is the advice then?

That you persist week after week and month in month in the simple exercises spoken of above.

If your feet get too painful, strap them with adhesive plaster, applying the adhesive at least once a week or every five or six days. Use a couple of pieces of one inch adhesive on each foot. Start at the outer side of the foot about an inch above the sole, come across the sole, and then up across the inner side of ankle to same side of leg thus leaving your foot inward whilst applying the tape.

This will help in the healing of the feet, helps the blood supply, and strengthens the muscles. A good dancer often has flat feet, but the muscles are so strong that he has no discomfort.

CAN YOU SPRAIN YOUR SPINE?

The claims agent or adjuster of damages of a railroad will tell you that he doesn't know much about sprained backs, but that he knows how to cure them.

And what is his cure?

He states that by awarding damages to the injured person the cure is instantaneous and complete.

Now what about this?

Well, he may be right in some cases, but not in the majority of cases, however, but as a matter of fact you can sprain your spine.

How?

Simply because the spine is made up of a number of joints exactly like other joints.

As you know, the animal bones are piled one on top of the other with a cushion between each one and the one above it. This softens the jar in walking, running, or falling on the feet from a height.

Then each separate bone is attached to the next one by ligaments, and other ligaments run up the front and back of the whole column. Notwithstanding all this protection it is possible to stretch the ligaments slightly and so the surrounding muscles which are attached to the bones to hold us erect and bend us in various directions, also get stretched a bit.

Sometimes this stretching actually becomes a tearing as in a true sprain, and there is a partial paralysis for a time. After this clears up the nerves still remain sore on movement just as in any other sprain.

And the treatment?

Just the same as any sprain. You remember in the case of the sprained ankle you get it absolute rest. The same applies to the spine, and so in severe cases the spine is put in a plaster of paris corset to prevent movement.

So if you have received a severe shaking up in any manner, and the back pains you, simply rest it until the pain disappears or you may always have a weak back.

AN ARTIST AT THAT.

"Freddie is clever with the brush."

"An artist, eh?"

No. I was thinking how smooth his hair always looks."

THE PARSON O'DUMFORD

BY

G. Manville Fenn

"But, do you really, really mean it, Mr. Richard?" said Daisy, with a hysterical sob.

"Really mean it! Mr. Richard!" said the young fellow, reproachfully. "Oh, Daisy, have you no means an option of me? Do you take me for a contemptible liar?"

"Oh no, no, no," sobbed the girl; "but they say—I always thought—I always thought—I believed that you were engaged to Miss Eve."

"A poor puny thing," said Richard, in a contemptuous tone; "and besides, she's my cousin."

"But she thinks you love her," said Daisy.

"Poor thing," laughed Richard.

"And I believe you love her."

"Indeed I don't, nor anybody else to be clear of the fool's paradise. Miserable extent, and the other was slightly better than before. The improvement was so slow however that in desperation the patient consulted another physician. A plaster cast was made of his feet and in forty-eight hours he was equipped with good fitting plates of the supports and went about his work with these new artificial arches with a fair degree of comfort.

Was he wise?

This depends on circumstances. In his case as he was a salesman on his feet all day, and was in a living perhaps he was justified.

But just as surely he doomed himself to arch supports for the rest of his life.

Remember, you can always get arch supports. They are very easily obtained as in above case, but you are simply admitting that you are licked as far as your feet are concerned, and are willing to be a "flat foot" for the rest of your life.

And what is the advice then?

That you persist week after week and month in month in the simple exercises spoken of above.

If your feet get too painful, strap them with adhesive plaster, applying the adhesive at least once a week or every five or six days. Use a couple of pieces of one inch adhesive on each foot. Start at the outer side of the foot about an inch above the sole, come across the sole, and then up across the inner side of ankle to same side of leg thus leaving your foot inward whilst applying the tape.

This will help in the healing of the feet, helps the blood supply, and strengthens the muscles. A good dancer often has flat feet, but the muscles are so strong that he has no discomfort.

CAN YOU SPRAIN YOUR SPINE?

The claims agent or adjuster of damages of a railroad will tell you that he doesn't know much about sprained backs, but that he knows how to cure them.

And what is his cure?

He states that by awarding damages to the injured person the cure is instantaneous and complete.

Now what about this?

Well, he may be right in some cases, but not in the majority of cases, however, but as a matter of fact you can sprain your spine.

How?

Simply because the spine is made up of a number of joints exactly like other joints.

As you know, the animal bones are piled one on top of the other with a cushion between each one and the one above it. This softens the jar in walking, running, or falling on the feet from a height.

Then each separate bone is attached to the next one by ligaments, and other ligaments run up the front and back of the whole column. Notwithstanding all this protection it is possible to stretch the ligaments slightly and so the surrounding muscles which are attached to the bones to hold us erect and bend us in various directions, also get stretched a bit.

Sometimes this stretching actually becomes a tearing as in a true sprain, and there is a partial paralysis for a time. After this clears up the nerves still remain sore on movement just as in any other sprain.

And the treatment?

Just the same as any sprain. You remember in the case of the sprained ankle you get it absolute rest. The same applies to the spine, and so in severe cases the spine is put in a plaster of paris corset to prevent movement.

So if you have received a severe shaking up in any manner, and the back pains you, simply rest it until the pain disappears or you may always have a weak back.

AN ARTIST AT THAT.

"Freddie is clever with the brush."

"An artist, eh?"

No. I was thinking how smooth his hair always looks."

The value of the Canadian National Exhibition plant is placed at 11,000,000, made up of $2,000,000 in buildings and $9,000,000 in grounds.

Women's Sixth Sense

By HEDDA HOYT

(Fashion Editor of the United Press)

(Written for The United Press)

New York, N. Y., Aug. 31 (United Press)—Blessed is the woman who possesses the sixth sense—the feminine sense—for she shall receive the admiration of all men. In the afternoon of mid-day age, she chooseth not the cart of the flapper, and, be she flapper she avoideth the garments of age. How few daughters of Eve are blessed with the wisdom of correct dressing.

It is not only essential to know exactly what to wear, but to know exactly when to wear it, is imperative. Many women wear clothes that are becoming to them and that look as though they were made just for them, but, even so, they often make the mistake of being over-dressed for certain occasions. It is far better to be under-dressed than over-dressed.

I have in mind a stunning woman whose age is on the shady side of forty. She is rather mature in build and realizes that flapper styles are not for her. She is always covered in soft luxurious fabrics with lines that are loose enough to conceal the outlines of her well-shaped figure. Her colors are always subdued; soft grays, browns and blues that are kind to her carefully tinted complexion.

But—in her effort to attain a soft, feminine appeal in her clothes, she is very often over-dressed. She appears at morning in fussy clothes that are fit only for tea-time, while for afternoon occasions she is usually dressed in gowns that would be appropriate only for the dinner hour. She is always lovely and appealing, but not always in good taste.

DANGER OF OVER-DRESSING

We all know that youth can wear one type of clothes and maturity another; also that morning calls for clothes of one sort and afternoon and evening for others. Many women make the mistake of over-dressing for morning. I have seen intelligent women who were dressed in simple morning garments deviate from the rules of convention by wearing outlandishly long earrings or some other frivolous accessory that is not in keeping with morning attire.

Morning clothes should always be tailored and not fussy. Jewels of elaborate type are decidedly in bad taste. Low cut, sleeveless dresses, even though worn under a cape or jacquette, are not suitable for morning wear. To my mind, the simple sports suit of mixed tweed or jersey is ideal for business or morning use.

Afternoon calls for more care of detail, even than morning. Sleeveless gowns, so popular at present, are really very much over-done in America. The correctly gowned woman always wears sleeves of some sort on the street, if she is without a wrap. During the warm weather the elbow or just-above-the-elbow length sleeve is unbearable to the extremely short sleeve. Gloves are no longer a necessity, but some arm covering is essential.

WOOLER.

On Friday, August the 24th, a shower was held by the "Buds of Promise" Sunday School class of Wooler Methodist church and their gentlemen friends in view of the approaching marriage of Miss Nellie Bell and Mr. J. A. Carr. Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Nesbitt Haggerty opening their home for the event. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts some bearing with them humorous rhymes and inscriptions which helped to make the party a merry one.

We extend to the young couple wish for many years of happy prosperity.

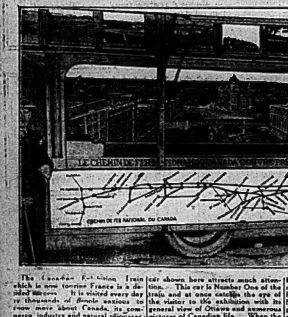

Just one more Sunday of holidays and the free life. Next week will find all our girls to work. Miss Nota Ellis goes back to her school in Parkdale, Toronto; Mrs. Vera Teal and Miss Marjorie Weaver again opened school in Stockdale. Miss Cordie Hess will be with us again as she takes up her work at Preston Hill; Miss Thelma Buell is leaving as this year she is teaching at School Section, No. 2 Adolphustown near Napanee, where she says it is a new school with every convenience. In Wooler we still have Mrs. Reid but a new principal, a Miss Warnica from Bowmanville. Miss Maggie Teal takes her first school at the Bethel school house and Miss Eva Morrow at Tabernacle. "Success to everybody."

Mrs. Vera Teal has returned from visiting Miss Bertha Monaghan, of Wellington.

Stook threshing would be the order of the day if the weather man would only chase away t he clouds and let the sun shine for a little while.

Mrs. Vera Teal and Miss Mable McColl are spending a few days at Toronto Exhibition.

GIVING FRANCE A CHANCE TO KNOW THE CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

The Canadian Exhibition, I note which is now touring France is a splendid success. It is visited every day by thousands of French anxious to know more about Canada, its commercial industry and natural resources. The Canadian National Railways auto-car shown here attracts much attention. This car is Number One of the train and at once catches the eye of the visitor to the exhibition with its general view of Ottawa and numerous pictures of a Canadian kind. When the train was officially inaugurated at Le Havre, M. Dor, Minister of Commerce and Industry of the French Republic, after a visit to the Canadian National Railways car, was much impressed and commented upon the immense part such a system must play in the development of Canada.

Declares "Whisper of Death" Has Resulted in Lamentable Injury

Montreal Star Asserts That Wails of Star Will Influence Prospective Investors and Settlers to Avoid Canada if They Articles at Face Value

The following "Reply to the Montreal Star's Whisper of Death", appeared in the Aug. 27th issue of the Montreal Herald:

"Rise like lions after slumber
In unvanquishable number
Shake your chains to earth like dew
Which in sleep had fall'n on you."
—"Masque of Anarchy," Shelley

"Mr. Bernard Shaw," was once explaining to a young writer the elements of drama; and epitomized a dramatic situation as follows:

"A man arrived home late at his apartment. Stepping from the elevator he quickly unlocked the door. Inside, to his horror, he saw his wife sitting on the sofa with a strange man's arm around her waist. Without a moment's hesitation he drew his revolver and shot both of them dead. That, like a man for a man, he took his eyeglasses from his pocket, adjusted them on his nose and looked at the corpses.

"Great heavens above!" he exclaimed. "I'm in the wrong apartment!"

"We are reminded of this example of drama by the Star's "Whisper of Death" last paragraph.

"With a great and thunderous blare the Star started out gunning after a supposition whom it considered to be faithless to their trust. Having discharged its guns right and left, it now pulls in close-by, and finds (we hope to its dismay) that it got on at the wrong storey and has landed its high explosives in the wrong apartment.

"The net result of the Star's campaign is, by its own admission, injury to the public even when it declares are as delinquent, but to do lasting injury to Canada's credit is a serious reputation.

"The facts presented by the Star do not bear out. But we do emphatically dissent from the Star's interpretation of those facts. The Star declares that Canada, under the present course and turn off on a tangent it is to avoid falling over a precipice and suffering annihilation. We say that Canada is on the right course; that it has passed through the worst of its post-war difficulties, and is already on the high road to prosperity.

"We propose to prove our contention, and we propose to take the facts that the Star has presented and to interpret those facts in a constructive way, pointing out the lessons they afford for guidance in the future policy of this country.

"But first let us indicate the harm which is being done by the Star's wail of tragedy.

"When a journal which claims to be "Canada's greatest newspaper" tells the world the Canada is plunging headlong to bankruptcy, that Canada is doomed to extinction as a separate unit, and that annexation is the closely-drawn alternative the not distant future; when it brings a mass of figures to 'prove' its contention, and when it declares that Canada's public men, alike with the mass of the people, are apathetic in the face of this impending doom, it stands to reason that every country which is interested in Canada, every person who is thinking of Canada as a land of hope, are going to do some hasty revisions of their estimates of this country.

People do not do business with firms on the verge of bankruptcy and financial stringency.

"And who, thinking of emigrating to Canada, or who, thinking of investing money in Canada, would not change his or after reading the Star's "Whisper of Death," and taking those "Whispers" at their face value?

"In illustrating the effect of the Star's campaign abroad, the following despatch from New York, published in the Financial Post of Toronto—Col. J. B. Maclean's newspaper—is illuminating:

"The publicity the Montreal Star's 'Whisper of Death' editorial shot-wide recently has had a disrupting up between the Montreal newspaper and the Toronto Globe regarding the editorial, is confirming with various reports concerning the position of several Canadian banks to disturb the financial situation regarding Canada. While, of course, the better-informed element of the New York financial community have known that the financial difficulties of the Dominion were settled, it has never been their practice to discuss the questions freely; they have left that to the Canadians themselves. But the Star's campaign, this year the pressure within Germany herself has reached proportions that makes it exceedingly probable that the German government will be obliged to yield to the double pressure from within and from without.

Germans, generally, it is declared, have reached the point where they realize that they have been misled, and are letting them out of their present situation.

WILL HAVE OPPOSITION

While it is certain that the German application for membership will meet with opposition from France and Belgium, nevertheless as only a two-thirds vote is necessary for membership, it is correct that Germany can never be kept out, once her application for membership is in.

The principal fight therefore will come on the question of on what basis she is to be admitted. Germany will certainly insist that she come in on a basis of complete equality with membership on the League Council, the same as the great powers.

However, as it is certain that both France and Belgium will oppose Germany's admission on a basis of complete equality, the fight will center largely on the question of Germany's immediate admission to the council.

Speaks Higly of This Home Made Cough Remedy

Says It Acts With Unusual Speed—Loosens the Mucus—Relieves the Irritation and Stops the Cough

COSTS NEXT TO NOTHING—FOR A BIG SUPPLY.

"I fear I have made a mistake in coming to Canada, if conditions are as black as painted in one of Montreal's leading journals, the Star. I think I had better return. I was in treaty for 640 acres, all fenced and cultivated, but I have called it off for the present. What do you advise? I can pay for my farm and stock in full, but if we are going to be swamped with taxation, we might as well have stayed at home."

These are but multiple examples. The questions given will serve to illustrate the conclusions which are being drawn from the Star's campaign—conclusions which we propose to show are not warranted."

Must Have Babies to be Beautiful Says Frenchman

By WEBB MILLER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Aug. 31 (United Press).—"To be really beautiful after girlhood, American and other women must learn that they must have babies—and must nurse their own babies."

Such is the dictum of Dr. Bretinon French beauty specialist.

"Contrary to the usual belief a woman cannot be beautiful after middle age unless she has had babies," said Bretinon. "The Venus must have had several babies—she would not have been as beautiful as Billie indicate unless she had.

"The widespread custom of feeding babies by bottle is fatal to rich ripened femine beauty. The act of nursing a baby is nature's own way and acts

Row Over Germany Expected at Session of League of Nations

Question of Her Admittance Likely to Make Sharp Division, With France and Belgium Opposed

By HENRY WOOD,

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

Geneva, Aug. 31 (United Press).—When the fourth annual assembly of the League of Nations convenes at Geneva, September 6, there is one question that gives every indication of dominating every moment of the session to fill the very end—the admission of Germany.

Whether Germany actually files her application for admission or whether she doesn't, it is now certain that the question of keeping her into the League or of keeping her out, will be matters of constant discussion and constant intrigue.

Coupled with other applications for membership, which have already been filed, and with others that are expected, the question of new members will be one of the most important of the entire assembly.

The League as now composed consists of fifty-two states. With the exception of territories that are now under protectorate or colonial organization, this number embraces every independent nation in the world except the following: Abyssinia, Afghanistan, Andorra, Costa Republic, Ecuador, Germany, Mexico, Russia, Turkey and the United States.

Should any application for membership has already been filed and will unquestionably be accepted, in addition to the states of the category mentioned above, namely, that are or were under protectorate.

Any other members of this category that may present requests for membership are the Kingdom of Irak and the Kingdom of Hedjaz of Egypt. While both of these would probably be admitted, there is no denial of the fact that Leaguers are beginning to get a trifle alarmed at the large number of English dominions that are becoming members of the League.

Were Ireland, Irak and Egypt to be admitted at the present session, this would bring the English bloc up to nine, the other being: besides England herself, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India and South Africa.

Serious Fire at Camp Borden

Camp Borden, Aug. 31.—Three hangars, a quantity of spare parts were destroyed by fire which broke out early yesterday morning.

Although Col. Barker, commandant of Camp Borden, was away on holidays, and others out of the town, through a correct system of control the damage would be slight, only $10,000 to $20,000, it is stated.

The fire started from the middle hangar, and spread to the others, which is which is a total loss.

Seven other aeroplanes parked in the open were damaged, several of them to a large number of other machines, as yet unlisted, were damaged to an extent as yet not known. Approximately the damage is not total loss included two Bristol fighters, two Avro trainers, two Curtiss Jenny machines, one Curtiss Oriole, one Curtiss flying boat, and two Liberty engines of 400-horse power, valued at from $15,000 to $20,000 each, and several high-valued stationary engines which cannot be fairly estimated, as it will be difficult to replace them.

A large building known as the "shop" also caught fire, but the prompt and rigging of machines was carried on, is also a total wreck and several machines damaged. The office of construction were damaged, as well as sight carpentering machines, the value of which is reasonably computed at $5,000. Several other buildings have been badly damaged and must also mean the total loss, and others have suffered from embers and water.

Italy Would Punish Greeks

Athens, Aug. 31.—The Greek cabinet convened to consider the Italian ultimatum which gives this country twenty-four hours to make reparation for the massacre of five Italian officers in Greek territory.

Premier Gonatas stated to the press that some of the demands could not be accepted, that some must be modified and that others are acceptable to Greece.

The premier added that Greece felt the greatest indignation with regard to the crime, but believed Albanian bandits, and not Greeks, were guilty of it.

"I believe," he said, "that this unfortunate incident will not ultimately affect Greek and Italian relations."

It was reported that in event of a deadlock Greece would invoke the intercession of the League of Nations.

The Greeks were understood to be willing to pay the fifty million lire indemnity demanded, but to oppose acceptance of some of the other clauses of the ultimatum, which are considered humiliating.

Fifty million lire indemnity must be paid.

Italian officials are to be allowed to participate in a thorough investigation, conducted at the scene of the massacre, within five days. All culprits are to be executed. Greece must apologize to Italy through the medium of a high military office. The Greek cabinet is to attend a funeral service for the victims, to be conducted in the cathedral of Athens. Greek flags must be hoisted on Italian fleet in Greek waters of Itacus, the port of Authens. Each ship is to fire twenty-one guns and hoist the Italian colors.

The assassination of the five members of the Italian mission occurred while they were riding in an automobile near cars containing other members of the boundary commission for delimitation of the Albanian frontier. The Italians' car was halted by a tree which had been felled across the road. This was at 9 a.m. Monday, midway between Janina and Santa Quaranta, and the scene of the occurrence was a thick woods. As the Italian car halted thirty or forty shots were fired from ambush. Major Corti was killed instantly.

Church Objects To "Our Hero"

Toronto, Aug. 31.—"The reasons are quite obvious," said Rev. Father L. Minehan, when asked by the press yesterday why Bishop Sedlacek of North Bay, had ordered the parents to remove from the tombstone of Tom Rogers, slain by the police after sensational chase last May, the words "Our Hero." Here was a case of the most dangerous kind and the words on the stone simply glorify murder.

"What right has the bishop to order their removal?"

"This is a Catholic cemetery," replied Father Minehan, "and we cannot allow burying their dead there must comply with the rules."

"Could the words refer to Rogers' war record?"

"No, because though he enlisted, he was released on account of his age which was a very bad thing for everybody concerned.

"Why," added Father Minehan, "you might as well put a screed of blasphemy on the tombstone as for a man is described as a hero when he was the murderer of an officer of the law."

A Catholic priest, who did not care to have his name mentioned in connection with the matter, upheld the action of the bishop. "I think in the first place," he said, "that it is unbecoming to have such an inscription in the place of the dead. In what was he a heroic? The whole burden of his life seemed to be misdemeanors. There's nothing heroic in that.

"Here was a boy who cut loose from the church and committed crimes, even murder. There seems to be no sympathy for the victims but only glorification for his bad actions. To have this carried into the peaceful place where the dead sleep is unbecoming and shows no consideration and also a wrong mental attitude. Rather would it be better to regret the tragedy of his life and that it was so ill spent.

"A stranger coming to that cemetery and reading the words, 'Our Hero', would reasonably ask who he was, and the answer would be that he was a hero because he shot down three officers of the law and lived a life of crime. The absurdity of it is obvious."

Neither His Grace Archbishop McNeil nor Mgr. Hand could be reached by the despatch.

Some story took the view that it was a matter solely for Bishop Sedlacek with which they had nothing to do and declined to be quoted on the subject.

FARMER ENDS LIFE.

The coroner decided it was a case of suicide.

station, including space in the new pumping station for three four million gallon low lift pumps, also sluiceway etc., for future water purification plant, and a new high lift gasoline driven pump, with a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons per day against a head of 210 feet at a total estimated cost of $60,000.

Mayor Bennett today stressed the fact that the installation of the new pumping and purification station as provided in the report will cost the rate-payers of the city one additional cent per year. "It's large size," was the Mayor, "to complete the improvement program by 1926 without adding to the taxes."

The present intake pipe is but 20 inches in diameter and has a capacity of 3,000 gallons per minute or approximately 3,000,000 gallons in 24 hours. The new pipe will have a capacity of 6,000,000 gallons in 24 hours. Discussing the plan, Mayor Bennett said today:

"Last spring when the insurance underwriters visited the city, and found that water shortage during the water is practically every hour in the city we could not secure sufficient pressure to throw a stream over the lowest building in the city, they threatened to increase the insurance rates but we persuaded them, however, to give us a chance to improve conditions. The pressure on Aug. 17th was as low at 12 pounds. Under these circumstances it is impossible to provide adequate fire protection. When the new pipe is installed we shall be prepared for all fire emergencies."

McCULLOUGH RELENTS.

The deputation in Toronto on Monday first waited upon Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health and he suggested that he would consent. Mr. McCullough who had previously refused to approve of the plan to install the intake pipe without the filtration plant. On Monday afternoon Mayor Bennett met Dr. Godfrey and Dr. McCullough when the latter's attitude was still unconvinced. He told Mayor Bennett that Belleville had 40 cases of typhoid fever in 1922 and 1923. Mayor Bennett explained that a great many of the typhoid cases reported from Belleville were brought in by the General Hospital, which served all of Hastings and Prince Edward counties and part of Northumberland county. He called attention to the fact that all samples of the water which were declared "good" except in two instances wherin a slightly less favorable report was given but that even though finally consented to the arrange ment.

A City Council meeting will be held as soon as possible after Labor Day at which a by-law will be adopted, providing for the immediate financing of the project, it was stated today. Alderman not approached on the matter; but Alderman Bell, Parkinson and McCreary. They are expected to support the plan. Alderman Treverton did not sign the "Round Robin."

See Small Farms as Solution of Negro Problem

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 31 (United Press)—Farm negroes migrating north won't return as long as they find work. So the southern planters, foreseeing the doom of the many-acred plantation, are attempting to induce the white man of moderate means to settle down on small farms.

W. H. Dick, president of the Southern Atlantic Land Association, will hold a conference at Washington this month with immigration officials on a proposal to revise immigration laws to allow bringing to the south larger numbers of Irish, Scotch, English, German and Scandinavian immigrants.

Members of the organization, according to Dick, are in some instances furnishing "reliable white farmers" with mules, implements, seed, credit for necessities and allowing him one-half of the crop as tenant.

A Chicago mill and lumber company recently sold 20,000 acres of logged-off land to 700 purchasers, the average size being 70 acres. Terms to the purchasers ranged from one-sixth cash payment, with the balance in five years; to no payment for five years, provided the purchaser paid taxes and interest and put a certain number of acres under cultivation.

The Atlantic Association announced its belief, after a survey of labor agencies throughout south, that the negro would'n return as-long as he has work.

What the south will do in the next three months, with 20,200,000 acres of cotton, which must be picked by hand, is problematical. If too many have left the cotton-planter is in bad straits.

Ottawa, Ont.—Immigration to Canada for the month of June totalled 13,683, an increase of 88 per cent. over the corresponding month in 1922.
